

Long distance love affair with Muleshoe

■ Wisconsin woman pursues lifelong dream

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

STRATFORD, WI. —

All her friends were heading off to school, had gotten jobs or were getting married while she was stuck working on her family's small farm. The recent high school graduate didn't even have a driver's license.

"All of a sudden I realized the world was passing me by," remembers Wojick, who has lived in the dairy farming community of 2,000 in central Wisconsin now for 52 years. "I didn't even know any boys to marry then."

She decided she needed a goal. She was going to travel.

Pulling out a map of the United States, she closed her eyes and plunked her finger down on her dream destination. Then she diligently recorded the town of Muleshoe, Texas in her diary.

Marriage and raising a family soon interrupted her dream, but she never forgot about that town in West Texas with the strange name.

Finally, after 34 years Wojick's dream will come true.

Even though money is tight, Wojick, her husband Pete and three of their children are planning to visit Muleshoe during Labor Day weekend.

"It was always in the back of my mind," said Wojick, who has worked part-time in food service at a nearby hospital for the last 18 years. "I knew some day I'd get there. My son told me if I didn't go now I might never make it."

Wojick (pronounced Wood-jik) wrote a letter to the Journal in January, relating her story and asking the staff to send a copy of the paper and information about the town.

She's been an avid reader of the Journal since February, soaking in every ounce of news about her adopted hometown.

"I'm fascinated by how much goes on in your town," Wojick said. "Every time I read your paper, I learn something new."

Wheat harvest running late

A good area wheat harvest is being offset by low market prices, leaving Rex Black and other area farmers frustrated.

"That's always the sad story," said Black, in the middle of harvesting his 240 acres of wheat he planted last fall. "The yields are better than they have been in years."

"With all the reports of a freeze doing major damage in the north, we anticipated getting a good price," Black said. "But the price is scary."

The market price for wheat Tuesday was $3.14 a bushel. Last year wheat brought $6 a bushel.

Black reported yields of 75 bushels an acre in irrigated field compared to 40-50 bushels an acre last year.

Because of a wet spring, the wheat harvest is a couple weeks later than normal, but boast both quality and quantity, reports Max King of King Grain in Muleshoe.

"It's been a pleasant surprise," said King, noting unusually heavy rains in April and May helped the crop recover nicely from a mid-April freeze.

At Sherley-Anderson Grain in Lariat, manager Lonnie McFarland said he is still waiting on irrigated wheat but reported dryland yield of 18-30 bushels.

It's the first dryland crop for most farmers in two years, McFarland said.

McFarland said the harvest will likely last until mid July. It is the first time in his 22 years at the Lariat elevator he has seen a wheat harvest last past July 4.

Clovis man hired as MHS assistant principal

BY RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

Muleshoe High School completed its administrative staff with the hiring of veteran administrator Bill Bizzell of Clovis, NM, as assistant principal.

The hiring was approved by the Muleshoe Independent School District Board of Trustees Monday during a regular bi-monthly meeting.

Bizzell served as high school assistant principal at Clovis High School for the last eight years and was part of the school system since 1973. Bizzell is a former coach and is also one of the top basketball officials in New Mexico.

Bizzell replaces David Jenkins, who was elevated to MHS principal June 16.

"His experience was the biggest factor," said Jenkins, who described Bizzell as "a people person and disciplinarian with a reputation for being fair and honest."

Bizzell was one of seven applicants, four of which received interviews, Jenkins said.

Jenkins told a campus advisory committee he was a little worried about recommending Bizzell because of the "New Mexico" connection and how it would look. The committee assured him it was only interested in finding the most qualified candidate, Jenkins said.

SCHOOL BOARD

Jenkins served in the Portales school system for 25 years before coming to Muleshoe.

In other items Monday, the board tentatively approved a minimum pay raise of $1,500 for district teachers, contingent on the passing of a constitutional amendment Aug. 9. If the amendment fails, the district would still honor a $1,000 across the board raise approved in May.

MISD Superintendent

Bill Moore said if the amendment does pass, a large percentage of the salary increased would be covered by the state.

The pay raises in the minimum salary schedule for teachers were included in a tax relief package that would provide a $10,000 increase in homestead exemptions for local school property taxes.

■ awarded the district's two-year depository bid to First Bank of Muleshoe on Moore's recommendation. Muleshoe State Bank also submitted a bid.

■ reviewed and discussed minor changes in the Watson Junior High and MISD athletic handbooks.

A proposed change in the junior high handbook that would limit the number of earrings girls can wear prompted a lengthy discussion.

The proposed change would limit the number to one per ear.

Board President Cindy Purdy said she felt uncomfort-

Garcia Muleshoe Postmaster

Lionel Garcia of Plainview started Monday as postmaster of the Muleshoe Post Office.

Garcia started as a mail carrier for the Plainview Post Office in 1977, working his way through mail processing, mail delivery and an OIC (Officer In Charge) over a period of 20 years.

"I'm glad I was lucky enough to get this job," said Garcia. "It's a new opportunity for me."

He hopes the position is permanent.

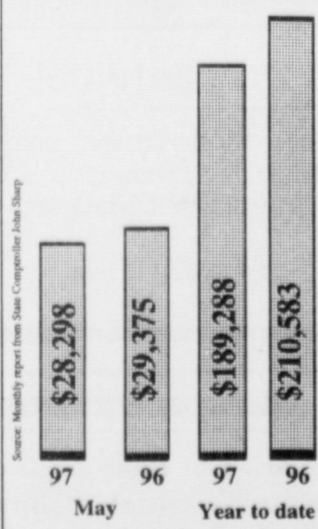

One of Garcia's goals is to get people interested in stamp collecting. He plans to carry more collectable stamps in stock.

Funds available for new USDA program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Texas is expected to receive about $13 million through a new USDA conservation program.

Farmers and ranchers in environmental priority areas may be eligible for technical, financial and educational assistance to help meet water quality and other conservation efforts through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program.

EQIP is part of the 1996 Farm Bill, replacing previous USDA programs, including both the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) and the Great Plains Conservation Program (GPCP).

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), Farm Service agency (FSA), local soil and water conservation districts, and others will begin implementing the program at the county level. Producers must be accepted and contracts signed prior to Sept. 30.

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock), vice chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said "One section of EQIP will address statewide concerns such as livestock production, cropland, wellhead protection areas, and forest land.

Under EQIP, each application will be ranked according to total cost and the environmental benefits derived from the installation of the practices. Producers within a priority area will compete for funding against other applicants within the area. Producers, outside the priority areas, will compete statewide for EQIP.

To receive funding from EQIP, producers are required to enter into long-term contracts. Contracts must be at least five years and cannot be longer than ten years. Producers can receive up to $10,000 of EQIP funding per year not to exceed $50,000 for the life of the contract.

PUBLIC NOTICE
BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENT
OF PROPOSED
CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT
SPECIAL ELECTION
AUGUST 9, 1997

PROPOSITION NO. 1
ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment which would increase the school property tax residence homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000. The amendment would also authorize the Legislature to limit all or part of the exemption to political subdivisions that are the principal providers of elementary and secondary education within their boundaries.

In addition, the amendment would authorize the Legislature to allow the transfer of all or part of the age 65-and-over tax freeze to another homestead. Specifically, the Legislature would be authorized to provide that the current limitation against increasing school property taxes on the residence homesteads of persons age 65 or older, or their surviving spouse who is eligible to receive the exemption, may be transferred if the person establishes a different residence homestead.

The amendment would also allow the $10,000 additional amount for the standard exemption to be used to lower the tax rate of persons currently receiving the 65-and-over tax freeze. Specifically, for a homestead affected by this limitation in 1996 or in an earlier tax year, the Legislature must provide for a reduction in the school property tax limitation in the 1997 tax year and subsequent tax years in an amount equal to $10,000 multiplied by the 1997 school property tax rate.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing school property tax relief by increasing the residence homestead exemption by $10,000 and providing for the transfer of the tax limitation to another qualified homestead for persons over 65 and a reduction in taxes subject to the limitation."

able telling children how many earrings, how many rings, or how much jewelry they could wear.

She felt a provision that prohibits students from wearing jewelry that would or could cause health or safety hazards, distractions, or disruptions in the school or classroom was sufficient.

Moore agreed with Purdy that the distraction/disruption clause was probably sufficient.

One board member was concerned that without a clearly defined earring policy, it might shift too much responsibility to school officials.

"They have to make calls like that all the time," Moore said.

The handbook prohibits boys from wearing earrings and all body piercing.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL)—A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is available immediately without a prescription in an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream or new roll-on liquid form. Arthur Itis, is guaranteed to work or your money back.

A LOOK AT LEGISLATURE

The following is a summary of important agricultural legislation passed during the 75th legislature by Austin attorney Ed Small.

Water Conservation

The legislature passed the state's first water conservation and drought management plan.

Small, who worked with lawmakers on the water bill, says agriculture is well positioned. Weather modification and water conservation, including brush control can be promoted under the plan.

Horse Inspection

Lawmakers also passed a bill to help prevent horse theft. Under the legislation, TSCRA will inspect all horses before they are slaughtered in Texas, allowing inspectors to catch stolen horses before they are killed. TSCRA will receive a $3 fee for each horse slaughtered to cover inspection costs.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will receive $2 per horse to cover the costs of educating horse owners on theft prevention.

Property Taxes

Although property tax breaks were not as high as Governor Bush and many landowners had hoped for, the legislature did take a big first step toward decreasing property taxes.

By carving $1 billion out of the state budget, lawmakers were able to increase homestead exemptions by $10,000. This will result in about a $140 tax cut for property owners.

"That doesn't sound like a lot, but it really is a good first step," says Small. "The other side of the coin is the legislature will have to deal with school financing next session. School financing is the real issue."

Poaching

Under a popular anti-poaching measure, hunting licenses will automatically be suspended for hunters caught poaching.

Fencing

Landowners rights to maintain high fences was clarified.

Fire Ant Control

Fire ant research was funded at $2.5 million. TSCRA Director Bob McCan of Victoria was a leader on the state fire ant committee and was instrumental in gaining support for fire ant research and control projects.

Landowner Rights

Several bills will allow landowners to voluntarily deal with environmental problems on their properties without the risk of repercussions.

"There were several instances where the legislature recognized that landowners could deal with environmental issues on their own and gave them some incentive to do so," says Small.

No sale

BAXTER BLACK
ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

The big boy land developers hired them a worn out hack
To go and buy the water rights off farmers down the track.
"Just pay'em anything they ask. Hell, any price on earth.
Those farmer's haven't got a clue of what it's really worth."

"Them's fightin' words," the farmer said. "This water ain't for sale It's all that keeps this place alive. Without it crops would fail."

The lawyer sorta laughed it off. "We'll get it anyway.
The cities need it all to grow. You can't stand in their way.

It's progress, you should know by now you can't hold back the flood."
"There's lifetimes given to this land. The water's in their blood."

"Old man that's ancient history, besides we'll make you rich.
Just name yer price, you'll have it. It's nothin' but a ditch."

"Yer hollow as your vacant eyes. Yer empty as yer word.
You can't see past the dollar signs. These things that you've inferred
Are bigger than yer lawyer's fee, yer Judas ten percent.
You've no respect for anything, you covet just the rent.

Go back to your rich puppeteers who've never broke a sweat,
Who ride in when the battle's done and use their bayonet
To finish off the wounded brave and pick their pockets clean
Then sell their spoils to innocents to keep their cities green.

Explain to them the difference between value and price.
That value isn't what is paid it's what is sacrificed
That gives it worth. It's measured in the turns around a field,
In families and community, in broken bonds and healed,

In barns burnt down and harvest lost and kids gone off to war.
Explain to them it's measured in grooves worn in your soul . . . or,
In depths of neighbor's breaking hearts when someone's lost a wife,
And that you can't just set a price on someone's way of life.

Green Thumb program provides assistance to seniors

Not long after Holly Millsap retired last fall she found herself long on free time and short on money.

What started out as volunteer work in the district clerk's office in February has turned into a part-time job.

Millsap is now part of the Green Thumb program, a federal program that assist senior citizens in finding part-time employment.

For the last three months she worked for the Green Thumb program.

The lifelong Muleshoe resident now helps the county treasurer at the Courthouse with payroll, accounts receivable/payable and receipts.

"I love working with the people and learning new things," she said. "It's really a lot of fun."

Millsap retired from the Muleshoe Journal in November after 20 years.

She said she took the job to get out of the house and earn a little extra money.

Millsap has one daughter and three grandchildren. In her spare time she likes to travel and read.

Fay Martin, of Clovis manages the local Green Thumb program and has employed five Muleshoe senior citizens.

Research stabilizing roots of agriculture

The public's fancy is captured by news of research using corn to de-ice airport runways, tobacco plants fighting cancer, and an ice plant teaching crops to survive in desert heat.

Stories of "gee-whizz" research understandably get attention. However, I believe there is a lot of "gee whizz" behind the solid, reliable research results from integrated pest management, no-till preparation of the land. Not very fancy, but vitally important.

This month, I began a series of hearings in Congress — leading up to the first comprehensive plan in 20 years for agriculture research. Research is the important, stabilizing roots of our agriculture system. A farmer would never go into the field without months of land preparation and financing.

The seeds of research have taken years to cultivate what we harvest today as the breadbasket of the world. This research has led to a six-fold increase in agriculture labor productivity since 1948. Almost 50 years ago, the number of people fed by one farmer was 15. Today, one farmer is able to feed 96 other people.

Our region's agriculture-driven economy is a living laboratory for research. In particular, the Plant Stress and Water Conservation Institute at Texas Tech University continues to make strides in improving the drought and heat tolerance of crops grown in arid areas. Throughout agriculture, federal, state and private researchers work with farmers and ranchers perfecting innovations benefiting our need for quality food and clothing.

I have always felt that our cutting-edge technology, dependent on strong research and development efforts, is what gives American agriculture the advantage over the rest of the world. We are blessed with the most productive people and land in the world, yet we cannot remain competitive on the world market without continued investments in agricultural research, extension and education.

Fundamental changes from the 1996 Farm Bill will expose producers to new challenges and risks that research may address.

In light of this substantial change in farm policy, it is even more critical that strong support for research programs is maintained to ensure our competitive edge in the technology arena. While this is our goal, the degree of difficulty involved is multiplied as we balance a tight federal budget with many competing needs. I will continue to encourage the other committees in Congress to recognize the vital importance of maintaining our investments in agricultural research. At the same time, I will also focus the debate on efforts to improve current research, striving to make every research dollar go as far as possible.

Cadillac Desert — chronicles epic struggle for water in the modern American West.

Cadillac Desert, a four-part series, chronicles the epic struggle for water in the modern American West and its legacy of fruitful abundance and profound risk at home and abroad. The first three programs, based on Marc Reisner's groundbreaking book, Cadillac Desert, are tales of heroic determination, astounding engineering feats, political machinations, and economic and ecological triumphs and disasters. The final program, based on Sandra Postel's book, Last Oasis, explores the ramifications of the global export of American land reclamation technology to developing countries. Academy Award-nominee Alfre Woodard narrates.

The first episode, entitled "Mulholland's Dream," airs in June. It is a story of how the people of Los Angeles sent William Mulholland to look for water and how he found it for them. Evoking real-life visionaries, scoundrels, and dark intrigues behind Los Angeles' search for water in the 1974 fictional movie Chinatown, the program weaves past and present together to illustrate water's role in the history of Los Angeles, as well as the city's challenges for the future.

Cadillac Desert will be broadcast Tuesdays at 9:00 p.m. beginning June 24th on KENW-TV. The series repeats Saturdays at 11:00 p.m.

COTTON NEWS

LUBBOCK — Rains have returned to the Texas High Plains during the past couple of months and producers are working hard to take advantage of the situation.

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) the situation for most growers is considerably better than it has been at this time for the past several years. Adequate moisture levels mean sprinklers don't have to fun and dryland crops are getting off to a good start.

Unfortunately there is always some bad news to temper any situation and this year it is the fact that the rainfall and associated hail and blowing sand could have caused as much as 200,000 acres of cotton to be lost across the area.

Compared to the more than 900,000 acres lost in 1996, primarily to excessively dry conditions across much of the dryland area, the current picture doesn't look as bleak as it first appears. With time about exhausted for producers to plant back to cotton many of these acres, and any additional losses, will likely be diverted to alternative crops.

Overall prospects are bright so long as producers are able to cope effectively through the remainder of the growing season. Insect pressure and the constant threat of hail with passing thunderstorms will be the most significant problems to avoid.

Muleshoe teens attend entrepreneur camp

LEVELLAND—Jill Gladden, Brenna Farley and Rhett Kerby from Muleshoe were among a group of teenagers who got down to business last week at South Plains College thanks to the first-ever Entrepreneurs of the Future Camp 1997.

Nineteen high school sophomores, juniors and seniors from towns throughout the South Plains attended the two-and-a-half day camp, which was co-sponsored by SPC and a number of state organizations. Students stayed in college housing.

Youth and business are becoming increasingly linked together. "Most colleges are now gearing up for some type of entrepreneurial program, and there are success stories around the nation of young people who have been successful in their own businesses," said Steve Anderson, director of the Small Business Development Center in Texas Tech University's College of Business Administration.

The two-and-a-half day overnight camp co-sponsored by SPC and several area organizations focused on the nuts and bolts of starting a business and featured experts in a variety of business-related fields.

They learned about the importance of developing a business plan and promoting their business at trade shows, how to market their product and themselves, use the Internet and libraries as business plan and promoting their business at trade shows, how to market

Muleshoe students mean business

Three teenagers from Muleshoe got a firsthand look at how to start their own business this past week at South Plains College during the first-time Entrepreneurs Camp of the Future 1997. SPC co-sponsored the camp along with several organizations, including Wes-Tex and Texas Agricultural Extension Services. From left are Karie Preston, executive director of Wes-Tex and RCND, Gail Gladden, Bailey Co. extension agent, Brenna Farley, Jill Gladden and Rhett Kerby, and Jim Walker (right), associate dean of technical and continuing education.

their product and themselves, use the Internet and libraries as business resources, record keeping, pricing their product, promotion and marketing, and tips on creating a successful craft business.

The teens also participated in a trade show and learned about other Texas entrepreneurs who have been successful in niche marketing, that is, meeting a specific need—for example, marketing mesquite chips bagged like potato chips for grilling, frozen homemade style cookie dough, sweet potato pancake mix, gourmet mushrooms that can be grown in the refrigerator and a sorghum-based flour for persons allergic to wheat.

The camp was sponsored by South Plains College, Promised Land Network, Texas Agricultural Extension Services, Wes-Texas Resource Conservation and Development Area, Northwest Texas Small Business Development Center, Tech Prep, Region 17 Service Center and Texas Rural Communities, which provided scholarships.

The students received certificates for their participation during Friday's closing ceremonies. But the story won't end there.
