Wes-Tax taking over city trash disposal Sept. 1

By RICK WHITE Managing Editor

The cost of taking out the trash will increase next month when a Midland firm takes over sanitation services for the City of Muleshoe.

Residential rates will rise slightly, while commercial rates will see a significant increase when Wes-Tex Waste Services, Inc. takes over Sept. 1.

The City Council approved the contract Monday after about a month and a half of negotiations.

Monthly residential rates will rise a $1 to $15

The new fee also includes alley cleanup once a month, a service the city never charged for, according to City Manager James Fisher.

Local businesses will take a bigger hit.

Monthly rates will run between $20-50 per dumpster, depending on the size of the dumpster and the number of pickups per week. Old rates ranged between $14-32.

"For some reason, commercial rates run substantially higher than residential," Fisher said. "And I've never truly found out why. They just do."

Fisher is confident Wes-Tex will be cooperative in meeting the community's needs, "it's just that the City of Muleshoe has done a fantastic job of spoiling its citizens" when it comes to sanitation service.

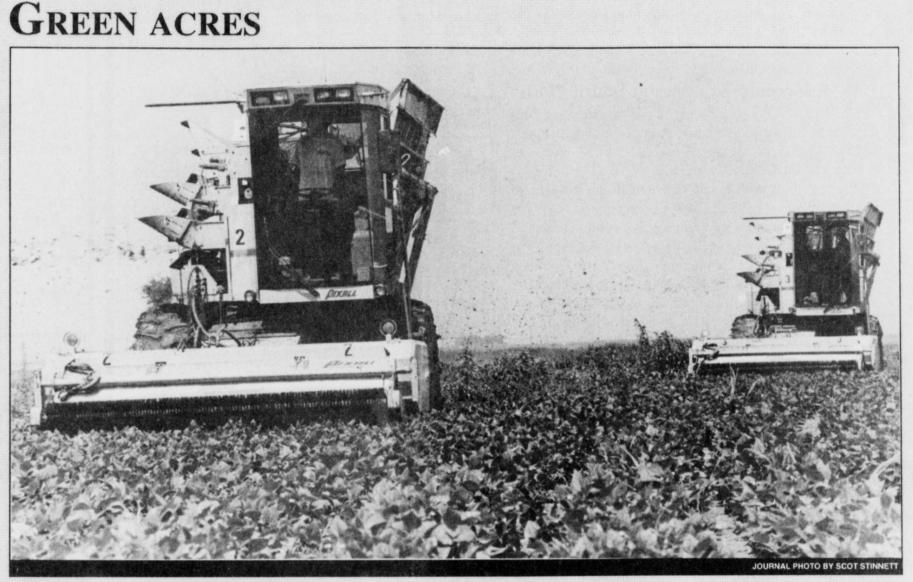

"There will be a transition period that will be hard on everybody," Fisher said.

The City got out of the sanitation business because of the prohibitive cost of operating a landfill.

The five-contract with the waste company is for both Type I (perishable) and Type IV (bulk) garbage disposal.

South Plains Fair entries due Aug. 18

LUBBOCK - Junior and Open Livestock Show exhibitors showing animals at the September Panhandle South Plains Fair are reminded they

Because of new state guidelines, the City must start closing its current landfill by October.

Fisher said the cost of building and maintaining a new landfill that would satisfy the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission's new environmental-conscious guides line would be exorbitant.

"We can't afford to operate a landfill," Fisher said.

As part of the agreement, Wes-Tex will purchase to sanitation trucks and about 700 dumpsters for $80,000.

The money will go toward closing the City's Type I landill east of town, which Fisher estimates will cost about $100,000.

Fisher said the City will keep the Type IV landill is full, then they will shut it down.

The City has considered maintaining a Type IV landfill, but decided against it.

City personnel that worked in sanitation will continue working for the city in other departments.

Wes-Tex is a division of The J.C. Duncan Company, which services more than a million customers in Texas.

Late birdie lifts Lubbock golfers to Muleskinner Invite championship

Chass Akard birdied the final hole, breaking a tie and lifting the long-hitting Lubbock golfer and partner David Salisbury to the Muleskinner Invitational men's partnership title this weekend.

Akard and Salisbury fired 13-under-par 127 on the par-70 Muleshoe Country Club course during the twoday, 36-hole low-ball tournament.

Forty-nine teams competed in the tournament, which was seeded into six flights by handicaps before the first round.

Akard snaked in a 15-foot putt on No. 18, a 130-yard par 3. Ramey Kimbrough and Shawn Reeves of Plainview, who posted a Sunday-best round of 63 to put pressure on the leaders, parred 18 and finished one stroke back at 128.

Kimbrough and Reeves started the day three strokes back of Akard and Salibury, who opened with a 62 Saturday.

Todd Shipman and Sid Felan of Muleshoe finished third at 133.

Akard saved par and probably the title when he parred the par 5, 11th hole despite a two-stroke penalty for hitting his tee shot out-of-bounds.

After Salisbury hit two balls OB from the fairway, Akard returned to the tee to hit. A driver, short iron and putt later he had his 5.

Friona's Brent Loflin and Rick Roden shot a 66 Sunday to win the First Flight with a 5-under 135.

Sally Messenger might have done the best acting job during Monday's rehearsal of "Keepers of the Legend."

Amid sound checks, costume changes, a few fumbles lines - and the threat of yet another evening thunderstorm, she appeared calm.

Now in her third year as director of the outdoor musical drama, Messenger knows what to expect with opening night four short days away.

"Everything is going about how I expected," said Messenger, despite enduring several major cast changes . "I'm never really happy - because we can always get bet-

When I hear a truck pull up in front of the house and the pandemonium of dogs barkin' would wake a sleeping mastodon, I relax. It's only my neighbor, D.K. come to borrow something of his back.

He doesn't get this ferocious reception because he's on the canine list of unsavory visitors or because he has the reputation of annoying domestic animals on a regular basis. It's because his two dogs usually accompany him on his rounds.

My dogs even bark at his pickup in anticipation that his dogs will be in the back. On those rare occasions he comes "undogged," my dogs give him a withering glance and stomp off. It's like they are disappointed.

After all, what else have they got to do? Watch the sheep through the fence? Go to the pasture and check the cows? Sneak up on the creek in hopes of scaring the urea out of ducks? Go roll in the dead carp stranded on the banks?

I watched them the last time I went to D.K.'s to borrow his brush hog. My dogs were leaning out over the side already clearing their throats as we neared his place. I deliberately drove by the first turnin. Both dogs jerked their heads around and glared at me through the back window. I could see Hattie mouthing the words, "Hey turkey, ya missed it!"

I turned in the second drive and we were met with the raucous sounds of a rabbit let go in a dog kennel. I pulled to a stop as D.K.'s dogs surrounded the pickup barking at the top of their lungs.

My dogs were leaning out over the side like seasick fishermen returning in kind, bark for bark. It was deafening.

But I noticed D.K.'s dogs never got quite close enough to touch noses and mine knew just how far to lean to avoid actual contact.

One might think it was all for show. Protecting their territory, as if his were shouting, "Don't you dare get out!" and mine were screaming, "No way we're lettin' you jump in this truck!"

Or they could just be visiting like old folks at a reunion, "HOW ARE YOU, TEX! I HEAR YOU GOT A NEW HEARING AID! WHAT KIND IS IT?!"

"QUARTER TO FOUR!"

I've gotten to where I don't worry about it much. Dogs like to bark. It's in their job description. It probably doesn't irritate the dogs near as much as it does us humans. They just communicate at different decibel levels. It's part of nature. It's possible even aphids bark at each other and we just can't hear it. But it must drive the ants crazy.

OTTON NEWS

By SHAWN WADE Plains Cotton Growers

Ever hear of the Caribbean Basin Initiative (CBI) ?

Not many cotton producers have, but that doesn't mean it hasn't had a tremendous impact on the way their crops are bought and processed. The key to the CBI is the recent expansion of cotton textile imports from the Caribbean nations that make up the CBI and Mexico.

The important distinction for U.S. cotton producers is that CBI and Mexico cotton apparel imports contain about 80 percent U.S. raw cotton and cotton products such as fabric and yarn. Early season rainfall helped get the area off to one of the better starts it has had in recent years. Unfortunately, those same rains brought a variety of detrimental side- effects. Trying to overcome everything from hail and blowing sand to below normal temperatures, the crop has been delayed 10-14 days.

The lateness of the crop is more of a concern in the shorter season Northern areas. South of Lubbock the crop is still behind schedule, but the calendar is a little more favorable to the producer. be selected to fill a combination of new and expiring positions.

The word smog is a blend of the words smoke and fog.

New Out Of Hospital Advance Directives Now Available!

By contrast, Far Eastern cotton apparel imported into the U.S. is composed of only about 20 percent U.S. cotton.

Until recently Far Eastern imports accounted for well over 60 percent of the cotton apparel coming into the U.S. During the first five months of 1997 this trend has taken a significant turn.

Since 1990 CBI nations and Mexico have been making tremendous strides towards becoming competitive in the U.S. import arena. This turn- around has been the result of numerous factors, including the North American Free Trade Agreement and strong reinvestment programs by U.S. textile firms.

So far in 1997 the CBI and Mexico have accounted for 38 percent of the U.S. apparel imports compare to the Far East's 32 percent share.

For the U.S. cotton producer it means that more U.S. cotton is being purchased, processed and returned to the U.S. for consumption.

Efforts are underway to further enhance this effort and with additional progress the ultimate beneficiary will be the U.S. cotton producer.

High Plains cotton producers aren't ready to throw in the towel on the 1997 cotton crop even though the calendar appears to be working against them. Generally cotton in the area is progressing well. Some area's however, appear to be nearing the end of their bloom period, well in advance of what the calendar date indicates. Usually a producer can expect an Aug. 25 bloom to make a harvestable boll, depending of Fall weather conditions.

The most immediate problem across the area right now is a shortage of soil moisture in this layer and are beginning to show signs of stress and cutout.

Irrigated producers are having a difficult time keeping up with the moisture requirements of the crop as it blooms and sets bolls.

The key to the 1997 crops will be conditions during the month of September. Producers in Northern areas can still make an average crop with favorable weather in September and some timely rainfall in the near future.

Producers in the Southern High Plains are also looking for and open September and timely rains to help carry their crop through harvest.

Plains Cotton Growers officials travel to Dallas next week to take part in a series of meetings to select new members to the governing bodies of several important cotton industry organizations.
