A QUICK READ OF LOCAL NEWS

Newspaper in her blood

Being of the undisciplined nature, I've had a little trouble training my Blue Heeler puppy.

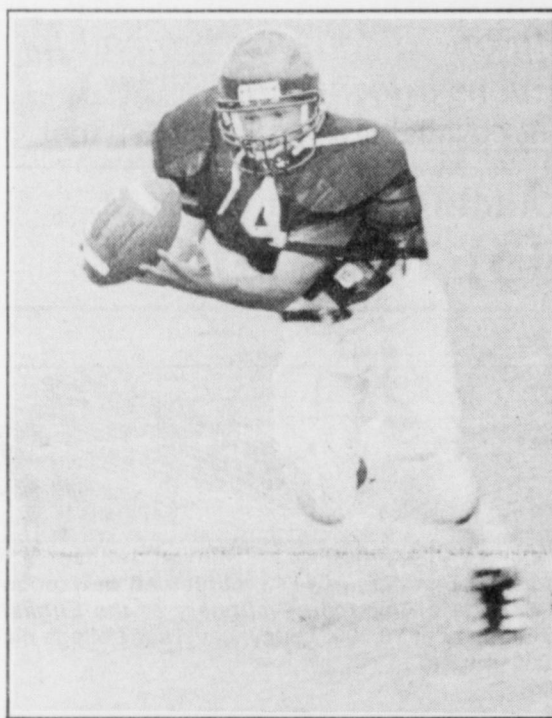

I have managed to paper train her — well, sort of.

Early one morning, I let her outside before taking a shower, figuring at 5 in the morning, what kind of trouble could she cause?

About 15 minutes later, I opened the front door to let her in, and there on my doorstep were five copies of the Lubbock Avalanche Journal she had collected in the neighborhood.

I guess newspaper ink is in her blood. Now if I could only teach her to type.

Immunization clinic Monday

The Texas Department of Health is conducting an immunization clinic Monday, Aug. 18 in the Muleshoe High School cafeteria.

The clinic will be open from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Fees are based on family income. Medicaid will be accepted. Now one will be turned away regardless of their ability to pay.

Nine-year-old Muleshoe golf ace

Trevor Turnbow, 9, led the qualifying Saturday in the third round of the $1 Million Hole-in-One contest at Muleshoe Country Club.

The event is fundraiser for 1998 MHS Project Graduation.

Turnbow landed a ball within 3 feet, 3 inches of the pin on the 120-yard hole. Two others qualified Saturday, including Ronnie Kenmore, representing the Kwanis Club.

After one more qualifying round Aug. 23, 12 finalists will have one shot at making a hole-in-one Aug. 30 and collecting the $1 million prize.

No tax increase in proposed school budget

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

The proposed 1997-98 Muleshoe Independent School District budget was tentatively approved Monday without a property tax increase, according to Superintendent Bill Moore.

The MISD Board of Trustees is expected to adopt a $9.7 million budget Aug. 25 after holding a public hearing. The figure is about $10,000 less than the budget the Board approved last year.

Moore said the district was able to maintain its current tax rate of $1.2704 per $100 of property valuation despite losing $100,000 in tax revenues due to an increase in the state homestead exemption.

The state promised to replace the funding, but according to figures Moore has reviewed, the district will only receive about $13,000 in replacement funds.

The Board also approved a 10 percent reduction in health insurance premiums for district employees.

MISD is self-insured, providing health insurance through Group Health Trust. All 235 employees are covered under one of three health plans, two of which include family coverage.

The Board also switched to a new third-party administrator, Ted L. Parker & Associates. The Lubbock insurance firm will also provide catastrophic insurance, which covers expenses above $20,000 per person and an aggregate of $300,000 in claims per year.

The reduction could save an employee with Local outdoor drama 'Keepers of the Legend' drew a huge closing-night crowd Monday

'KEEPERS' CLOSES ON HIGH NOTE

By TERESA STONE
Journal staff writer

"Keepers of the Legend" ended its third season Monday under clear skies and in front of a huge, appreciative crowd at the Muleshoe Heritage Center.

The audience and performers all agreed that the final performance was an absolute success.

"We had an incredible opening night this year, to think that we had to repeat or live up to that performance could make you a bit nervous," said Heath Scott, who plays Tom Masters, a young rancher who falls in love with the new school teacher. "But if anyone was nervous, you couldn't tell."

Director Sally Messenger was pleased with the final-night performance, which concluded a four-day run and went off without a major glitch.

She joked what pleased her most was "that it didn't rain."

Sunday night's performance was rained out by a torrential downpour just minutes into the opening act.

An estimated 500 people attended the final performance Monday of the historical outdoor drama written by Bailey County native Paula Paul.

"I get a kick out of seeing the growing support, especially from people from out of town," said Buddy Beach, who has a starring role as middle aged-farmer John Masters. During the play, Masters struggles to convince area farmers of the need to incorporate Bailey County.

Set near the turn of the century, the two-act play features live music, authentic props and involves a mixture of historical romance, comedy and suspense.

Scott is convincing in his role. His romantic interest, Ms. Rosalie Parker, was played by newcomer Twyla Gear.

Tom and Ms. Parker share a moving duet called "Do I Dare Call

Voters approve tax cut

By TERESA STONE
Journal Staff Writer

Bailey County voters Saturday overwhelmingly approved a constitutional amendment that grants homeowners a tax break.

Proposition 1, which increases the school property tax homestead exemption by $10,000, was supported by 95 percent of the voters in Bailey County. Support of the tax break was similar statewide.

Voter turnout across Texas was low with Bailey County being no exception. Only 9.5 percent of registered voters participated in Saturday's special election. According to the Bailey County Clerk's office, 337 voters approved the amendment while only 18 voters opposed.

The constitutional amendment will provide school tax relief by increasing the residential homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000, saving the average home owner an estimated $140 per year in property taxes.

The measure also allows homeowners 65 and older to transfer their tax rate, which is "frozen" at age 65, should they move.

The school property tax cuts will result in an approximate $100,000 loss in local school revenue, according to Muleshoe Independent School District Superintendent Bill Moore. However, the state has

MHS Class of '47 holds reunion

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

Don Bryant liked school so much he stayed an extra year.

Bryant was one of 24 former students who attended a Muleshoe High School Class of 1947's 50th reunion brunch Saturday at the Muleshoe Church of Christ.

The lifelong Bailey County resident and farmer was scheduled to graduate with the MHS Class of 1946 — he was even class president — but purposely didn't take a required English course so he could attend high school another year.

He was just 16 at the time and felt another year of school would do him good. Plus, he would get to play football and basketball one more year.

Royce "Poss" Lowry and Jess "Pesky" Winn, both of whom are now deceased, also stayed an extra year.

"We got together with Coach (James Beam) and checked out the rules," Bryant remembers. "We found out it was legal so we stayed another year."

The Class of 1947 included 51 graduates, 10 of whom have passed away and another six organizers were unable to locate.

Many of the former classmates hadn't seen each other in 50 years, said Mary Moore, one of the reunion organizers.

Corn Country Landscape

BAXTER
BLACK
ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Corn country landscape-painted late summer-high clouds, heavy with moisture waiting for afternoon to thicken and darken and start raising Cain.

You can see for miles. Brown, green, yellow patchwork pieces of a giant jigsaw puzzle. Feedlots in the distance, their pens spread out like dark blanket on the side of a hill.

On the horizon to the north and south I can count three spray planes circling over the corn like buzzards. They are so far away I cannot hear them.

Closer I can see circle sprinkler lines leapfrogging over the tops of corn row taller than a pickup and thick as pile carpeting. The stalks are straight and tasseled. They remind me of a crowd waiting to hear the Pope. An orderly group. Corn is seldom unruly.

The fields of sunflowers are less organized. They are Woodstockers, jostling and stretching to get a glimpse of the morning's performer.

Suddenly I pass a farmstead. Acres of lawn with a butch haircut from the side of the road to the first row of corn. Who mows all this, I ask. A windbreak. Deep green paint-by-number rows of pine trees and junipers, beautiful, yet somehow out of place.

A fresh-tilled field pushes within a few feet of the road. It smells strong, heavy on my lungs. On this humid morning it reminds me of chocolate cake.

I drop into a creek bottom. Cows of all colors lay like mixed nuts spilled on a green carpet. Bleached round bales of hay hunker along the fence row like melting clumps of sticky candy. I follow the pretty three-lined power poles festooned with mushroom-like insulators. Proud they are in their orderliness, functional yet outdated. The DC3's of corn country leading me back up.

Two giant eight-wheel jointed tractors sit visiting with each other in a quarter section field laying fallow. Resting? I don't know, maybe just waiting.

More cornfield city blocks. Each row seems to have its seed company sign out front like a mailbox. Mr. Garst, Mr. Pioneer, Mr. Producers, Mr. Dekalb, Mr. Corn States, Mr. ICI.

The next town comes into view. A water tower and grain elevator.

The implement dealer has his monsters on display along Main Street. Like elephants in the circus standing side-by-side, one foot on the stool, one in the air, trunk raised. Lesser implements parked beyond like resting butterflies, wings folded.

Retired county agents notice change

LUBBOCK — County agents of the 1940's through the 1970's see the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the 1990's as a whole different world altogether.

LeeRoy Colgan, Jim Foy, and J.K. Adams, all retired agents, said that the most important thing in being a county agent was being able to work with the people of their communities.

"Helping them to help themselves was the most rewarding thing I found being a county agent," Foy stated. Foy started as an assistant agent in Hockley County in 1948. After two years he became the Terry County agent for 27 years.

He got his degree from Texas Tech in 1948 in agronomy. Foy started to Tech in 1939 but left to go to World War II for four years. "I was willing to take just about any kind of job I could find because I had a family but I really wanted to be an agent," Foy said. He now lives on several acres of land which he rents to farmers to cultivate while he enjoys working in his yard.

"To see people succeed in what they were doing as a result of something I helped them do was a good feeling. The best feeling is when 4-H members come back and give you credit for their success," said Adams of Muleshoe.

Adams was the Bailey County agent for 27 years from 1945-1972. Adams attended

Texas A&M University in 1937 and graduated with a degree in dairy husbandry in 1941. He now spends his time farming 90 acres of irrigated land and caring for 50 head of cattle for a retired sheriff who suffers from Alzheimers.

Agricultural agents in the 1940's did many different things, such as run terrace lines, irrigation lines, scope out the land to find a place to put irrigation pumps, and even cull chickens, the three said.

"It was a whole different world back then. We raised cotton and grain sorghum and there were no boll weevil or insect problems. We did more of the cow, hog, hen program than the farming," stated Colgan, retired Dawson county agent.

"I became a county agent because I wanted to," Colgan said. "I thoroughly enjoyed it and I had a good time. The work was not hard physical work but you stayed busy and I did not look at it as an eight to five job." Colgan worked as Dawson county agent for 28 years and as assistant agent in Lubbock for two years.

His career started in 1947 after he got out of the service and ended exactly 30 years to the day later. Colgan received an agricultural economics degree from Texas A&M in 1942.

The district Extension director at the time that Foy was a Terry county agent told him that he had to tell people what research had shown and help them to do it that way but if they did not want to do it that way then help them do it their way, the district director advised him. "You did use the research, but you also utilized top people in that certain industry program to help, because they knew from experience," explained Colgan.

A county agent is, "a man that thinks in terms of taking people where they are and doing all that he can to help them obtain a higher standard of living by putting the latest scientific knowledge to work," Adams said.

U.S. lifting Argentina cattle ban

A 68-year-old ban on imports of beef from Argentina will be lifted Aug. 25.

Since 1929 the U.S. Government has prevented imports of fresh, chilled or frozen beef from Argentina because of foot-and-mouth disease in Argentine cattle.

After a massive vaccination campaign, the disease was last reported in Argentina three years ago and U.S. Department of Agriculture officials say they are "confident that importing meat from Argentina will not put domestic livestock at risk."

Argentina will be allowed to export 20,000 metric tons of fresh beef to the United States annually.

MISD offering acceleration testing

Muleshoe Independent School District has established a process for credit by examination without prior instruction.

Any student, grades K-12, who wishes to receive credit for a class or a grade level and move to a new grade may do so within the following guidelines.

A test will be administered free of charge and will be approved, furnished and monitored by a representative of the Muleshoe Independent School District.

Elementary students must score 90 percent or more in areas of Language Arts, Math, Social Studies and Science to advance to the next grade.

Secondary students receive credit by scoring 90% or better on tests in individual classes (i.e. English I).

Parents of legal guardians must notify the principal of the intention to test at least 30 days before the date of testing.

Elementary students in grades 1-5 must meet these requirements to be accelerated.

1. The student scores 90 percent or above on the criterion-referenced test for the grade level to be skipped in each of the following areas: language arts, mathematics, science, and social studies.

2. A District representative recommends that the student be accelerated.

3. The student's parent's or guardian gives written approval of the acceleration.

In order for High School and Junior high students to receive credit in an academic subject in grades 6-12 in which the student has received no prior instruction will require that the student score 90 percent or above on the test.

Muleshoe Independent School District will provide three testing days for acceleration purposes between July 1, and December 31, 1997 and three days between January 1 and June 30, 1998.

The dates for Fall testing for 1997 will be September 15, 16, and 17, 1997. The Principal of the school must be notified of the intention to test by August 15, 1997.

The dates for spring testing for 1998 will be June 3-5. The Principal of the school must be notified of the intention to test by May 4.

Because the district had a low number of claims in 1996-97, the Board decided to return some of the savings to its employees, said Moore, calling the reduction temporary.

In other action taken Monday:

■ The district approved joining a cooperative effort between the district, the school athletic booster club and the City of Muleshoe to build a baseball field.

The field will be built at the new city park on land donated by the city. The Muleshoe Booster Club will initially donate $3,000 to build an infield and for improvements on the current sprinkler system.

Moore has been authorized by the Board to seek bids on several projects for the field.

The superintendent said one of the priorities should be lighting, allowing play at night and limiting the amount of classwork students miss.

Muleshoe baseball coach Brad Hill said infield construction will begin soon in hopes of having the field ready next spring.

Harvest Aid Speeds Cotton Harvest

With so much profit riding on cotton grades, quality becomes a critical factor. Planning harvest timing to maximize cotton quality and yield is essential. Using a harvest aid program speeds harvest and helps maintain crop quality. Harvesting early can improve yield potential, by avoiding regrowth caused by late season rains and decreasing the risk of sticky cotton due to late season aphid infestations.

Most growers in our area have their own harvest aid tankmix recipe. No matter what you use for a harvest aid program, be sure to include CYCLONE® harvest aid in the program for faster, more effective defoliation and desiccation.

Cyclone offers the most effective and efficient harvest aid results of any product available. Adding it to any defoliation tankmix stretches your harvest aid dollars. Plus, Cyclone's flexibility will allow a whole crowd of tankmix partners. Cyclone fits any harvest aid program.

A harvest aid program that includes Cyclone:

- produces cleaner, higher quality cotton
- works quickly and is rainfast in only minutes
- provides good, fast, effective results, even in cool weather
- offers the lowest cost-per-acre of any burndown on the market.

Cyclone is very predictable. Even in cool weather, count on a Cyclone defoliation to do its job in only four to seven days, so you can begin harvesting seven days after application.

For best results when using Cyclone, carefully time harvest aid applications. Crop maturity remains the most important factor in determining harvest aid applications. Otherwise, proper development of immature bolls may be inhibited. A managed approach to harvest using Cyclone will open mature bolls, desiccate weeds, get higher grades and avoid the chance of stained cotton.

Growing high quality cotton is a yearlong job and Cyclone offers ways to help you see it through. Cyclone puts you in control of cotton harvest.

Probationers pay record restitution

AUSTIN— Convicted law-breakers sentenced to community supervision in lieu of being sent to prison paid a record amount of restitution to their victims last year, according to the latest figures compiled by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Some 148,000 probationers paid almost $34 million in cash to their victims and put in more than seven million hours of unpaid work in charitable and community service, TDCJ said.

Figured at minimum wage, the community service was worth $34.3 million.

The payments and service represent a 20 percent increase over the prior year, continuing a trend which has increased every year over the past five years.

The terms of an offender's restitution and community service requirements are set by the district courts where they are convicted and their payments and work are supervised by the 122 local Community Supervision and Corrections Departments (CSCDs) formerly known as local probation departments.

The state through TDCJ's Community Justice Assistance Division, annually provides approximately $200 million for operation of the local CSCDs.

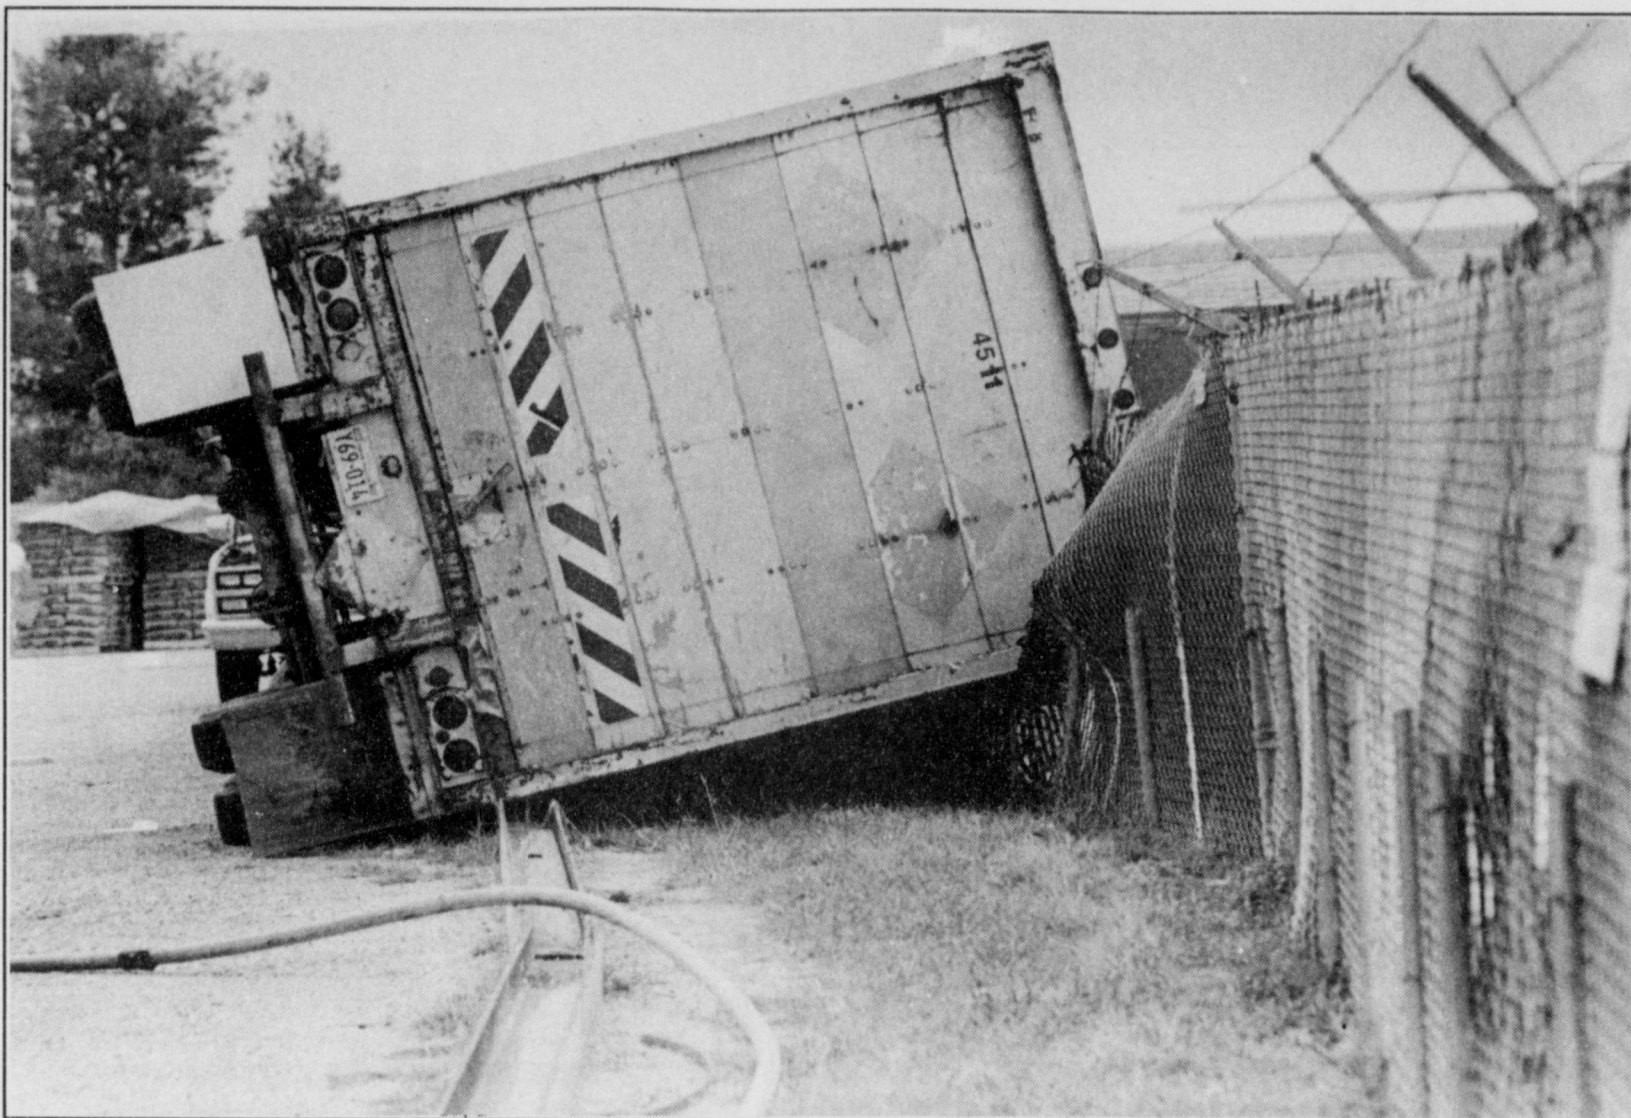

TDCJ's Susan Cranford, director of the Community Justice Assistance Division, credited both the courts and the local CSCD's with bringing about the increase in payments and work.

The courts are ordering more offenders to do public service and the CSCDs have sharpened their focus on collecting restitution, Cranford said.

Everyone wins in this system, Cranford said. The victims get the compensation they deserve, the community gets work projects done which it might not otherwise be able to afford and the offenders are given a chance to at least partially redeem the damage their crimes inflicted on their victims and the public.

Cranford said that community services ordered by the courts have included projects as varied as building playgrounds, stocking food bank shelves, picking up highway and park litter, installing home insulation for the elderly and sorting donations to charity groups.

She said that restitution most frequently is used to pay for victims medical expenses and to reimburse property and income losses.

MISD offers new football ticket options

The Muleshoe Independent School District has added several new football ticket packages.

Now available are an adult general admission season ticket for all five varsity home games for $12.50; a sub-varsity adult season ticket for $7.50; a student varsity season ticket for $10; and a student season ticket for all football games for $15.

Adult varsity reserved-seat season tickets are still available for $17.50.

Any reserved seats remaining after the season starts will be available at a cost of $4 per game and may be purchased at the Administration Office on game day.

Fans who purchase seat options at the $17.50 rate may also purchase a pass for all sub-varsity games by paying an additional $7.50.

For more information, contact Dana Rasco at the MISD Administration Office (272-3911).

Curtis Shelburne, playing the role of a fire-and-brimstone preacher, leads his congregation in song during Monday's performance of "Keepers of the Legend"

It Love" professing their new found love for each other.

Nikki Felan gives an energetic performance of young heroine Lizzie Anderson. Poor and the product of a broken home, Lizzie comes to the rescue of Tom, accused of a crime he didn't commit.

Felan comes across as a headstrong teenager while singing "I Don't Want No Party Dresses" and teams with Gear in the heartfelt ballad called "Prayer Song"

Local Church of Christ minister Curtis Shelburne was an audience favorite for his portrayal of a fire and brimstone preacher who motivates his congregation through song to be good, law abiding West Texas folks.

Steven Madrid played the cunning Jake Diamond, teaming with his comedic sidekick Henry, played by Nathan Keller.

During one hilarious scene, Jake and Henry scheme to sabotage the plans to incorporate the county by robbing a train.

On the train is the one person that can decide the fate of Bailey County, Sen. George Washburn, played by Jack Young, and his stuffy and somewhat clumsy companion from England, Durwood Wigginbotham, the Earl of Diddlesquat, played by John Bryan Cowart.

After trying to frame Tom for the crime, Jake and Henry are eventually caught.

The revelation helps convince Sen. Washburn to give his support for the incorporation of Bailey County.

Cleared of the crime, Tom is free to marry his sweetheart Ms. Rosalie Parker.

Texas toughens inspection laws

Modern-day ho... thieves beware.

A new state law targets thieves in Texas, the leading horse state in the nation, by allowing the inspection of horses sold to horse slaughterhouses in Fort Worth and Kaufman. The inspection programs, conduct by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, goes into effect Sept. 1, says Steve Munday, TSCRA executive vice president.

The Texas Legislature has authorized our organization to inspect for identification purposes each horse held, handled, purchased, or sold through a slaughterhouse in Texas, Munday said. TSCRA is a 120 year-old livestock trade group that has conducted brand inspection at Texas cattle auctions for decades. Livestock theft investigation and livestock inspection are our core business.

Munday said TSCRA brand inspectors will record all identification information and submit it to their Fort Worth headquarters, where it will be entertained a computer database. The information will be made available upon request to all law enforcement agencies that investigate thefts of livestock.

A $3 per head inspection fee paid by the seller of horses at a slaughterhouses will be remitted to TSCRA to pay for the program. Approximately 50,000 to 70,000 head of horses will be harvested for pet food and for meat exported for human consumption in 1997.

In addition, a $2 per head fee paid by the seller of horses at slaughterhouses will be deducted for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to provide horse owners with an on-going program for theft prevention.

Horse owners who mark or brand their horse must first register the mark of brand with the county clerk of the county in which the animals are located. The new law encourages horses owner to mark and brand their horses.

Horse slaughterhouses are required to provide the county clerk with a report that gives the marks and brands of all horses purchased. The report also must include the names of sellers and date of purchase.

Munday said horse theft remains a law enforcement problem today because the highly diverse horse industry in Texas is big business with lots of dollars chasing it. Chasing the horses for the dollars are thieves who prey upon owners that are usually urban and absentee.

The theft of a horse is a property crime but actually it amounts to considerably more to the owner. These horses are more than a commodity, they are many times considered partners, companions and family members, Munday said. "It isn't very easy to tell a little girl that her filly is now filet mignon for foreigners."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I called you Aug. 4 after reading an article that was in the Sunday, Aug. 3 edition of your paper.

I told you how bad it had upset me. If you have forgotten, it was about the death of my son, with very unnecessary and private details added.

As I told you on the phone, unless you are completely without feelings, I think you would be upset if this was your son.

I also said that I really hoped you would try to have more regard to other families in the future.

If Larry and Sammie Hall still owned the paper, I know this wouldn't have happened.

People in this area are very caring and I had planned on composing a thank you letter to everyone who has been so thoughtful and done so many wonderful things and paying to have it put in the paper.

Now I will never pay another thing to you for anything.

I am not the only person who feels this way and have told me of their experiences with you.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE AND ESTIMATED UNENCUMBERED FUND BALANCES

This notice concerns 1997 property tax rates for the six taxing units listed below. It presents information about three tax rates for each unit. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine 1996 property taxes. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the total taxable value of taxable property with adjustments as required by law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.
