

POULTRY

BREEDING CHICKENS FOR EGG PRODUCTION

"Breeding chickens for high egg production is in its infancy," said Prof. L. H. Schwartz of Purdue university recently. "There never was such a big demand as there is now, for males particularly, of known breeding. Large returns are in store for the farmer raising reliable standard bred birds. Selection is the keynote for success in any breeding enterprise."

One essential for successful breeding is to have at least two pens, one for the breeders and the other for the layers. Both males and females should be carefully selected and only the best used for breeding. The practice of using pullets in the breeding pen was condemned, while breeding from birds molting late in September, October and November is recommended.

Late molting birds have proved to be the best birds for breeding high egg production. A bird, in order to be a high producer or a breeder for high production should be full of energy, have plenty of capacity, have a deep body and long wide back. Males and females should be kept as long as they breed and produce well. The desirable way of introducing new blood is by buying eggs or pullets. The inheritance of high egg production is transmitted through the male, and only high producing hens should be used.

When birds are not too closely related and are carefully selected, well housed and given a well-balanced feed, the improvement of our flocks for egg production will take place.

Eggs for Hatching Must Be Gathered Carefully

At the time an egg is laid, the germ is smaller than the eye can see and is located within a ring visible on the surface of the yolk. It is very delicate and improper handling of the egg before it is set may kill this germ.

Eggs to be set should be gathered several times daily to prevent chilling or "starting" by a broody hen. The nests should be kept clean, a wire mesh bottom nest which lets the dirt out being best. The eggs should not be washed, as this opens the pores and allows the egg to evaporate. Scrape the dirt off and do not set those which are very dirty.

Keep them at a temperature of from 60 to 65. At 68 they will start to hatch, and if not put under a hen at once will probably die. Do not put them in dusty material or where dust can gather on them, as this will close up the pores and smother the chick later. A basement is much better than a dry room. Do not hold the eggs over seven days before setting—five days is safer.—O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Whitewash Favored for Cleaning Chicken Coop

Because mites breed so rapidly, the hen house becomes uninhabitable by summer if preventive measures are not taken in the spring. Mites can live for five months without blood, so that closing the poultry house during the summer will not completely starve them out. This explains why they can live through the winter and be ready to breed the next spring. A poultry house can be kept absolutely free from mites. Clean up all the old nests. Clean up all litter on the floor and burn it. Paint the roosts and dropping boards with undiluted commercial liquid lice-killer, or with crude petroleum. Apply to the entire length of the roosts, top side and under; also where the roosts join the wall. Repeat in June, and again in August. Spray the entire interior of the coop with disinfectant whenever you clean it. Whitewashing and cleanliness largely prevent poultry disease and the red mite as well.—American Poultry Journal.

Poultry Hints

Do not breed from mongrels. Keep only one breed.

If the floor is damp the litter should be covered with four to six inches of litter at all times.

The litter on the floor should be kept clean. It should be changed at least every three months. Dirty litter is very unsanitary, as well as unsightly.

The nesting material should be cleaned at least once every two months and the nests well sprayed with disinfectant. Mites and disease germs find good resting place in dirty nests.

Broodiness is inherited and can be reduced by not breeding from the hens which are broody more than once in a year.

More and more eggs are being bought on a quality basis. Do not set eggs which are off in shape, color, or texture of shell.

Turkeys need an abundance of fresh, pure water. If they can't get it from the brook, spring or horse trough, keep a bucket full of fresh water in a shady place.

Graded Schools.

Business Session.

At the County Institute the Scurry County Teachers' Association was organized by the election of Supt. I. C. Bagwell as president, E. A. Watson as vice-president and Miss Loree Stokes as secretary. It was agreed that the first session would be held at Hermleigh early in November. The above program was made up by the committee Saturday, Nov. 1.

It is hoped that every teacher in the county will be present. It is certainly worth while for teachers to get together and discuss their problems. All other professions do and why should not teachers? The subjects for discussion are real live questions. Especially is the question of a County Unit System of Graded Schools a live and important subject at this time. It seems that even yet in this age of progress there are many schools that are laws unto themselves. Their pupils either move to some other district and find they can not fit in or finish the course of study in the small elementary school and then find that they can not enter a first class high school. It is to remedy these evils that a discussion is to be had. Let us hope that this problem may be solved in Scurry County this year so that any pupil either moving from one district to another or in transferring for high school purposes may get credit for his work in the school and take his place with those of the new school.

Hermleigh will entertain every teacher and trustee who will come. She extends to the teachers and trustees and all others interested in education a cordial invitation to come and partake of the feast of good discussions at this the first session of the Scurry County Teachers' Institute.

Who owns the Santa Fe?
More than 67,000 stockholders own this great railway. Several thousand live in the states it traverses. All have a voice in its management!

Every Southwest investor should buy a share in the Santa Fe and thus get a valuable interest in an institution that helps build up that section. Let it be Yours, in ownership as well as in service.

The Santa Fe operates in thirteen states and in these states there reside 7,635 of its stockholders. While this is almost the largest number on record, it is slightly below the year before. We should be very glad to see those residing along the Santa Fe Lines become much more generally interested in its stock, although both the common and preferred shares give a smaller return than many other investments promise. The high price is a deserved tribute to the property. Every investor in the Southwest might well buy one or more shares in the Santa Fe.

At the beginning of this year, the ownership of the Santa Fe was divided among 67,118 stockholders with an average of 53.1 shares apiece. Twelve months before there were 64,643 stockholders, averaging 55.4 shares apiece. The number of stockholders has increased steadily for many years and the average holdings decreased, resulting in an ever-widening distribution of ownership.

Among the stockholders are found:

Women	30,370
Men	30,931

This joint enterprise of a great body of our citizens is open to all to participate in as stockholders. Why then should any favor government ownership and the certainty of supporting the railroads as taxpayers?

Since the organization of the present company in 1895 it has not failed in any year to earn its full interest, nor since dividends have been declared to earn them in full. The Preferred Stock dividends are limited to 5%. The first payment was made in 1898 at 1% and in 1900 full payments of 5% were begun and have been maintained for the ensuing 25 years without interruption. Common dividends were begun in 1901 at 3% and have been maintained steadily since that date with gradual increases, 6% having been paid since 1909.

For the railroads, as a whole, the records of the Interstate Commerce Commission show that at the close of 1923 there were 807,524 stockholders, or 30,392 more than the preceding year. The average dividends on the outstanding stock amounted to $4.03 per share.

Surprises for the Gossipers 'Way Back Home

By FRANK FILSON

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

I SUPPOSE it is human nature to be interested in the misfortunes of our fellow-beings, and that excuses the interest that everybody in Merivale took in Jenny Walsh.

Frank Stockleigh and his bride were coming back to Merivale. Jenny had been pretty once. I'll qualify that by relating what our mayor, Doctor Williams, said. After thirty-five, he said, a woman must have matronly charm, because the girlish charm has grown stale. That here out his reputation as the village wiseacre. And Jenny was still slim and girlish, but she was growing into a middle-aged woman.

Yet it didn't seem so long since Frank had been madly in love with her. She had known Frank since they were children—but she rejected him. Nobody exactly knew why, some thought she was in love with ne'er-do-well Jim Furber. Anyway, Frank Stockleigh went West, and now he was returning, the owner of the Montana copper mine and a millionaire several times over. He had bought Squire Gray's house, and announced that he and his wife were coming back to make Merivale their home.

He and his wife! He had married a Montana girl, and that was one of the things we wanted to know how Jenny would take.

Would Jenny go to the train? Yes, Jenny was going to the station. The whole of Merivale's inhabitants had gone trooping down, and all the offices were closed.

It seemed endless, that waiting, but at last the train steamed in. Jim and his wife were in the front carriage. He jumped down like a boy, and swung a pretty, buxom lady to her feet, and stood staring at the crowd. Then he gave a whoop and stretched out his hand to the mayor.

"My, but I'm glad to see you!" he yelled. "Don't tell me you're not Pete Williams—red-headed Pete who used to go fishing with me? Address of welcome? What, Mayor Pete! Mayor? And Doctor Williams! Catch me, somebody!"

Then he presented Doc to his wife, and soon we were all thronging round the couple and giving them the best welcome in Merivale. And Jenny? Jenny was blushing like a schoolgirl. And, before anybody knew what was happening, Jenny had kissed Frank, and Frank had kissed her; and Jenny had kissed Mrs. Frank, and Mrs. Frank had kissed her, too.

We were all so excited about this that nobody noticed the thin, tired-looking man with the closely cropped hair who had got out of the same coach, and now stood behind Frank Stockleigh, his eyes roaming restlessly about until they lit on Jenny's. But suddenly Jenny sprang forward, and in a moment the thin man had her in his arms.

There was a sort of universal gasp of stupefaction. Frank Stockleigh cleared his throat—and then he wasn't looking at the crowd any more, but only at Jenny Walsh and the thin man, who was still hugging her.

The gasp was succeeded by a breathless silence. Then Mayor Williams peered hard into the thin man's face; and suddenly he cried:

"Jim Furber, as I am alive!" He spun round, and Jenny, too, and she was looking at us with a kind of gentle defiance in her eyes; and they were holding each other's hands.

"Why I thought you were—I thought you were—" stammered Doctor Williams, and that was as far as he could get. He couldn't exactly tell him he thought he was in prison; and yet the surprise of Jim's reappearance, and his appearance in Frank's company, made the mayor forget himself.

"Yes, I was," answered Jim. "I was in the penitentiary eight years. But—"

But it was not until the dinner was over that the mystery was explained, and it was Frank Stockleigh who cleared it up.

"Friends," he began, and there was something in his tone which checked the air of jollity. "I am bringing back to you not only my wife—here he bowed toward her—but also your fellow-citizen, Mr. Furber. You probably know the sad circumstances connected with his disappearance. Let me say that after eight years' imprisonment his innocence has been proved by the confession of a dying man. By his own desire, Mr. Furber has preferred to remain under a stigma rather than drag the name of the dead man's relatives into publicity. You cannot give him back those eight years, but you can take him into your hearts—"

In a moment every man there, and every woman, too, was crowding around Jim, shaking his hand.

He stood up and tried to speak. After several attempts he found his voice.

"Thanks to Frank Stockleigh," he said. "It was he, gentlemen, who discovered what had happened to me and traveled East and spent thousands of dollars proving my innocence. And I ask you to drink to—drink to Frank and his bride and—my wife, whom you know as Miss Walsh. You see," he added, choking more and more, "we were—married—when I—was in—prison—eight years ago."

WILD DUCKS DYING OF LIMBER-NECK.

"An appalling number of dead ducks litter the shores of a lake three miles this side of Happy. They are so thick on the banks a person could step from one to another and walk all around the shore."

So says Hugh Whitcomb, who yesterday made a personal investigation of the reports that the wild ducks are dying by the thousands near Happy. Mr. Whitcomb brought back one sick duck and it is now at Walter Crossett's office. It has the limber neck and cannot walk.

Water Believed Contaminated. "In one corner of the lake I counted 298 dead ducks—pintails, spoonbills and read-heads," said Mr. Whitcomb. "A conservative estimate is there are at least a thousand dead water fowl on the lake. Besides the dead ones, there are hundreds of them so weak they can do no more than flutter across the top of the water."

"I do not believe the ducks are dying from poison set out by the farmers. I am of the opinion that the water in that particular lake is contaminated. Seven miles east there is said to be another lake covered with dead birds, but the trouble seems to be confined to these two lakes."

Authorities Notified. "I talked to several farmer boys. They said that ducks taken from the lake and given fresh water quickly recovered."

Mr. Whitcomb said he had reported the matter to both the federal and state authorities, and he expected experts here from Washington to make an investigation. A local sportsman this morning suggested that a fund be raised to hire men to patrol the lake, scaring off the healthy birds. He said he was willing to start it with $25.—Amarillo Globe.

Are You Staking Your Family Against Fate?

—Purchase All the Life Insurance You Can Pay For, Before You Need It

It is not prudent to do so, but: You may safely wait until it turns cold before you buy an overcoat or lay in a fuel supply; or,

You may safely wait until the rain begins before you purchase a raincoat or an umbrella;

But you may not safely wait until you need life insurance before you secure it. If you do, you probably can not get it.

If you wait until your house is afire, you can not insure it, and if you wait until you are sick you can not secure life insurance.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, SPEAKING OF OLD LINE RESERVE LIFE INSURANCE SAID:

"Insurance is the modern method by which men make the uncertain certain, and the unequal equal. It is the means by which success is almost guaranteed. It is part charity and part business, but all common sense. Through its operations the strong contribute to the support of the weak, and the weak secure, not by favor, but by right, duly purchased and paid for, the support of the strong."

"Every insurance policy is a declaration of independence, a charter of economic freedom. He who holds one has overcome adversity. . . . There is no argument against the taking of insurance. It is established that the protection of one's family, or those near him, is the one thing most to be desired and there is no medium of protection that is better than insurance."

The skeleton was that of an animal about three times the size of the modern milk cow, which might have been one of the reasons why the Waco professor decided that it would have been impossible for old Noah to get all of his animals in his ark.

The Lubbock Avalanche is authority for the statement that England has developed a weed that smells like mustard and tastes like garlic. The weed has not yet been named, but we will warrant that it is not a full generation separated from American okra. It has always been a mystery to us how that weed ever disguised itself sufficiently to enable it to get a pass into the garden as a vegetable, unless it was because it was so "stuck" it slipped in.

The Albany News declares that a spoonful of politics will spoil a barrel of religion. And the News is right. A spoonful of the quality of politics that some folks swallow and pronounce "good" would spoil anything that is high, pure and noble, for "it stinketh unto the heavens." On the other hand, enough genuine religion shed abroad in the hearts of men would change rotten politics into justice and equality, and rotten politicians into men of honor.

A Childress undertaker "solicits a share of your patronage with a highly illustrated advertisement in his local paper and with the following words which ring almost as touching as a heavenly anthem: "Where waves reach up to whisper to the clouds, or where they roar their message to the shores of man they can speak of nothing higher than a Service of Sin-erity." Now, there is nothing like service, we agree, and "Service" is giving the public what it wants when it wants it, but it appears to the editor of the Times-Signal that an undertaker never expects a customer to come back, so why lay so much stress on Service?

AND IT PAID.

DINNER WITH THE
"IRON CHANCELLOR"

English Divine Tells of Re-past in 1855.

At twelve o'clock we had a large and long meal, including smoked geese and other delights. (Friedrichsrub, Germany, 1855.) My father sat next to Princess Bismarck, who was very pleasant, and after luncheon, when the cigars were handed round, he asked her whether she minded his smoking, on which Bismarck roared out, "Why, she smokes herself!"

This was in 1855, when it was very unusual for a lady, to smoke, so a vigorous effort was made by his daughter to induce him to behave properly; but he took no notice of her repeated and reproachful cries of "Father! she doesn't! Father!" and shouted, "She does, she does, in her bedroom she does!"

It turned out that the poor lady suffered from asthma, and smoked medicated cigarettes to relieve it.

"You will understand," Bismarck remarked, "that in everything but name I am king of Germany, but I have not all the privileges of a king and I cannot simply say I am not disposed to receive so-and-so." It appeared, however, that even the most pressing visitors sometimes failed to get in, for Bismarck told us the following story:

"A man called and sent in word that he wanted to see me, and I said that he couldn't. He then sent in to say that he must see me, and I said that he shouldn't; and he sent in a third time to say that if he did not see me he should go and hang himself on one of the trees, and I told the servant to find a rope and lend it to him!"

The frankness or apparent frankness of his talk was surprising, but it was just as cheap to tell the truth as to tell lies, and quite as effective, for the truth is never believed in diplomacy. Another saying of his which impressed me, though I do not remember the context, was "In matters of national policy I never put down my right foot till I know where I am going to put my left; that is a lesson which I learned in my youth in the Pomeranian marshes."

At dinner we each had, I think, seven wine glasses and at least one tumbler, and I drank nothing but water! My host noticed and deplored this, and though he courteously tolerated it he could not refrain from a slight outburst against what he called the temperance craze in England, and against the fanatical attacks on moderate drinking.

It is recorded of him that at one time he did his moderate drinking in large glasses of champagne and port mixed, and that one Molke gave him a sort of punch made of champagne, hot tea and sherry.

Menace of Vesuvius
Today as Yesterday

A queer life they must have lived in those little houses of Pompeii, whose rough masonry and stained patches of color were first created when Germany was a savage forest, Britain a moist land distant from civilization "the whole globe away," and America had never felt the tread of a shod foot. In the sunny courtyard the master dreams away the hot hours to the splash of the tiny fountain, listening to the sleepy gabble of his slaves from the rooms round the atrium. The rattle of the two-horsed chariots over the lava blocks of the street, the oaths of a driver who fails to negotiate the huge stones placed like massive policemen to regulate the traffic at the entrances to the cross-roads, disturb his slumber, and he remembers the gladiators, "heroes of ten fights," when the needle Pansa is to exhibit in the arena on the Nones of April. A dull roar, and a vertical column of pearl-white smoke, bellying out into fantastic shapes and floating majestically away on the light wind, shows him that Vesuvius is angry. He glances for reassurance to the picture of the Lares and the snake of fortune, painted on the wall of the entrance porch to avert ill-luck. No need to worry; it has always been like that and always will be.

It is like that today. The monster snorts fire and smoke innocently into the blue sky. Visitors on sturdy ponies go fearlessly up to gaze into his black, evil-looking jaws. But will it always be like that? Or, when the last bucketful of cinders has been painfully sifted, and the last house cleared, will he again mock human labors and human hopes and cover all once more with dust raining from a lurid sky?—Washington Post.

Seek Treasure Under Sea

The harbor of ancient Carthage is to be thoroughly explored in search of treasure which is now definitely known to exist there, its presence having been revealed by observers in airplanes. For years the sponge divers in that vicinity have repeated stories about seeing an ancient galley reposing on the bottom, but the matter was never given any very serious attention. But from a height the bottom of the sea may be scanned very thoroughly and some aerial observations revealed the presence of a boat of ancient construction very clearly, and some preliminary examinations have shown that it is at least partially filled with valuable specimens of Greek art. Explorations on modern plans will be commenced at once and the cargo systematically recovered. The old harbor will be further searched for treasure ships which are known to have gone down during the Punic wars. In this work the airplane will play an important part.

God, Love and Money

I was greatly struck, approaching Pittsburgh on the train, passing through a black, cindered region where life must lack many of its most harmless pleasures, to notice the astounding number of churches. These, surely, are not there without some sound social reason. There are three prime consolations known to man in the difficulty of his life: God, love and money. Of any two of these you may deprive him without hearing much grumble, provided he has plenty of the third. But if he lacks all three, there is sure to be trouble.—Christopher Morley in the Century Magazine.

Boy Discovers $10,000 Buried in Skunk Hide
Coal Gate, Okla.—While hunting, John Hockaby, fourteen years old, chased a rabbit into a hollow tree and uncovered $10,000 wrapped in an old skunk hide. The money was buried long ago, as the printing on the bills is dim. It was sent to the Treasury department for redemption.

The News

"Well, no," said Toke Sugg of Sandy Mush, in reply to the inquiry of the able editor of the Tumbinville Torch of Liberty and Tossia of the Times. "I don't reckon there's no pertickler news out my way—come to think, though: Some fellers dug up a nest of rattlesnakes tuther day, killed fourteen and hung 'em on the fence beside the road. About six or eight moonshiners and bootleggers came along in course of the day, gave a yell apiece, tumbled over the bank on tuther side of the road and into the creek. Looks sorter like rain off to the south'ard, don't it?"—Kansas City Star.

Pat's Smart Bank

Pat had opened his first bank account and had taken to paying most of his debts by check. One day the bank sent him a statement, together with a packet of canceled checks. Of the statement Pat made neither head nor tail, but the returned checks greatly pleased him.

"Mike," he said to a friend, "sure an' it's a smart bank I'm doin' business wid now."

"How's that?"

"Why, Ol paid all me bills wid checks, an' he jabbers if the bank wasn't slick enough to get livery check back for me again!"—From Life.

Carving Aged Timber

Alois Lang of Manitowoc, Wis., who ranks among the foremost of America's wood carvers, is working on a block of oak taken from the timbers of York cathedral in England, which was built 500 years ago. He is making beautiful panels to be placed in the sanctuary and chancel of St. Paul's cathedral in Los Angeles. Records in England show that the oak timbers were given by William the Conqueror to Bishop Walkelin during whose episcopate the edifice was erected.

Intestinal Disinfectant for Control of Diseases
A good intestinal disinfectant, such as bichloride of mercury, can be used in the drinking water provided for the poultry flock, as a means of aiding in the control of poultry diseases. This, however, is but a small part of the procedure in disease control and does not strike at the real source of the trouble.
One of the first steps in keeping the poultry flock healthy is to dispose of, by killing and burning, all birds afflicted with tuberculosis, fowl cholera and other similar serious diseases. A second step is to see that the two main causes of disease, lack of sanitation and a condition of lowered vitality, are eliminated from the flock.

Tennis Thirty Years Ago
"A well-known tennis player of the Doherty period told me an amusing story the other day. He said he used to play on a public court in one of the squares in Kensington some thirty years ago. There was a large notice up to the effect that 'gentlemen were requested not to play in their shirt sleeves.' It goes to show the type of lawn tennis that was played in those days.
"This player also told me how he remembers going to stay at a certain country house, and how some irate colonel became quite angry with him for yodeling. The player was told what had form it was."—From Lawn Tennis, by F. Gordon Lowe.

AUTHORESS SLAYS
WOMAN TO SPREAD
HER NEW THEOLOGY

Killed Landlady So People Would Know God of Bible Is Satan.

Portland, Ore.—Under the spell of her "Demon God," Miss Nora Hollis, authoress, recently killed her white-haired landlady to disseminate a new theology.

The slayer then went to police headquarters and told the desk sergeant:

"I've just killed a woman."
"She did it," she said, so that the world might know "the truth," and read her book entitled "The Living God of the Bible is Satan, the Evil One."

"People should know," she said, "that God is really Satan."
"This is the germ of her theology, that where there is misery, sin, suffering—not the handiwork of a merciful God."

Had to Kill Someone.
"I knew there was one way to make the world hear the truth," she said. "If I killed myself, the world would say 'just another crazy woman gone.' They wouldn't heed the warning and see the right. I knew I had to kill someone else."

Creeping into the parlor of the little East Twelfth street home, she held a revolver ready. Mrs. Eva Bradley, sixty-five, a kindly old lady, was seated at her sewing. She was heading over a worn tablecloth with careful hands mending a hole, absorbed entirely in the task of homely economy. "I knew I had to shoot her, but I didn't want to do it," said the slayer afterward. "So I shot her in the back, because I couldn't stand to look at her when I did it."

Unmoved by Crime.
Miss Hollis was strangely unmoved, almost nervous in a way, as she spoke at police headquarters. She is forty-two years old, and of ordinary appearance. She said she worked as a singer.

"I didn't write my book for money. I printed it only to make the world realize the facts about God," she said. Her book is a small paper-covered volume, which discusses various phases of religion from her unusual viewpoint. It was printed by the Keystone Press in April, 1923.

Bible Revealed "The Truth."
Police went to the East side home, where the aged woman was found with three bullet wounds in her back. Upon the floor lay the scissors which had fallen from her lap. Crumpled on the floor beside Mrs. Bradley's body was the half-mended tablecloth, a pathetic shroud.

Miss Hollis explained to detectives how, when she first began thinking of religion, she took to her God of the Bible and tried to live according to His teachings. More and more she became aware of the pain and suffering in the world. Only an evil God, who tormented humanity and releases mankind when He wills, could be responsible for a world of so much sorrow," she decided.

Then the Bible revealed to her "the truth."

Miss Hollis told the police she came here from Atlanta several years ago.

SUES ESTATE OF MAN WHO HANGED SELF

St. Louis Woman Asks $10,000 in Unique Action.

St. Louis.—When John P. Martin, formerly manager of the Martin building, came to the home of Mrs. Mary Shupe, he agreed to conduct himself in an orderly manner and not interfere with the welfare of the family.

But a few months later he went to the basement of her home and committed suicide by hanging himself from a water pipe.

This, Mrs. Shupe contends, was a violation of his agreement, and she brought suit for $10,000 damages in the Circuit court against Joseph E. Martin, administrator of the estate of John Martin.

In committing suicide at her home, she complained in her petition, Martin "acted voluntarily and intentionally and knew he would disturb and disrupt the peace and quiet" of herself and family.

Martin, she explained, lived at her home as a roomer and boarder for about six weeks prior to his death. During that time, she declared, he conducted himself in a "reasonable and orderly" manner, according to agreement.

But, without even "notice or warning," Mrs. Shupe alleges, he went to her basement and ended his life.

The next morning, she complains, she went to the basement and collided with Martin's body. The discovery, she added, severely shocked her nervous system, and as a result her health was greatly disturbed. She later became "sick and ill," she asserted, and had to get the services of three physicians.

The illness, she said, is permanent and she is unable to perform her household duties.

Martin is one of the heirs to the Martin estate.

RESCUED FROM JAWS OF GIANT CROCODILE

Incident English Officer Is Not Likely to Forget.

The following interesting account of a thrilling fight with a powerful crocodile in an Indian river is told by Lieutenant Colonel Carserly, in the Montreal Family Herald:

One afternoon the column halted by the river as usual and prepared to camp. When the men had cleared the ground and set the pickets they fell out to get their food and rest.

A captain, unslinging his empty water bottle, went to the river to fill it.

At that spot the bank was perhaps four feet high and rose straight up. It curved in a sharp bend, and the water close in ashore was shallow. There was no current near the bank, but only a few yards out the deep and mighty stream swept along like a mill race.

The officer knelt on the bank and, lowering the bottle by its long strap, turned his head to speak to a subadar (native company commander) near him. Half a dozen sepoy, some holding their rifles, were standing close by.

Suddenly out of the still water under the bank came a monstrous head, and like a trout rising to a fly a huge crocodile snapped at the white man's outstretched hand. The great jaws closed on it, and in a twinkling the officer was down in the river!

As he fell the astonished soldiers gasped in horror. Then without hesitation two or three leaped in after him. Standing waist deep, they clung to the captain's body and strove to pull him away from the giant reptile, which was backing out into deeper water.

The Englishman, with his hand in the crocodile's mouth, was too dazed to struggle, and subsided passively to be pulled this way and that in the grin of war. The native officer snatched a rifle from the man beside him and jumping into the water fired at the monster at a yard's range. A sepoy followed his example, but neither man thought of aiming at the eyes, and so their shots had no effect; an old crocodile's hide is impenetrable to bullets except in the throat, the belly and behind shoulders.

The weight and strength of the brute was too much for the united efforts of the men. In vain they dug their heels into the yielding sand and pulled with all their might and main. Slowly, remorselessly, the officer was drawn farther out; the sepoy clinging to him were dragged with him.

The Englishman seemed doomed. The crocodile was swimming now tall foremost out into the swift, racing flood.

Then a miracle happened! When it seemed that nothing could save the man the strong current caught the monster with full force and swept it away, and by a marvelous stroke of luck the officer's hand was torn from its mouth.

The irregular teeth of a crocodile fortunately do not fit close together. So little injured was the captain that after the doctor had bound up his hand he was able to attend to his duties immediately.

With Every Day

Every day, as it rises out of eternity, keeps putting to each of us this question afresh—What will you do before this day has sunk into eternity and nothingness again?—F. W. Robertson.

Poultry Profits Depend on Earliness of Hatch

Profits in poultry raising depend to a large extent on the earliness in the season that chickens are hatched. The earlier in life a pullet commences laying, the greater the number of eggs produced during the first laying year. Pullets should be in laying condition the first part of October, if good winter egg production is to be expected. The more eggs laid during November, December and January, the greater are the annual profits.

In order to commence laying in October, pullets of the Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red, Wyandotte, and similar breeds should be hatched the latter part of March or the first part of April. Pullets of the Leghorn, Ancona, and similar breeds should be hatched the latter part of April or the first part of May.

Immense Difference

"I tell you, sir, I have played in all the largest theaters in Europe."
"Yes, but they're nothing compared with the theaters we have in America. Why, sir, we have theaters so big that when a man in the back seat throws an egg it hatches out before it reaches the stage."—London Tit-Bits.

Taking No Chances

A troop of barnstormers out from Liverpool were in imminent danger of stranding in Wales.

"We got to get out of Wales before we strand," declared one, "and that's all there is to it."

"What's the difference," asked another, "whether we break up in Wales or elsewhere?"

"I was once stranded in a town called Llereigollwih and from there I wrote to my friends for help. Of course they all thought I was on a spree and nobody would send me a cent."

How It Was Done

A sportsman with a wonderful power of imagination was telling how at one shot he had bagged two partridges and a rabbit. His explanation was that, though he had hit only one partridge, the bird in falling had clutched at another partridge and brought that to earth in its claws.

"But how about the rabbit?" he was asked.

"Oh," was the calm reply, "my gun kicked and knocked me over, and I fell on the rabbit as it ran past."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

CABBAGE GIVEN HIGH PLACE IN DIETETICS

Vegetable Worthy to Grace Table of Kings.

Should the history of the cabbage ever be written, it may prove to be unexpectedly thrilling. Remarkable facts concerning that humble vegetable have been discovered by Prof. Ruggles Gates, the botanist.

"Cabbages, kales, cauliflower and brussels sprouts," says the professor, "all originated in the wild cabbage, a native of the coast and the south of England. The cabbage, as we know it, was the first development of the wild plant, and from it appeared the cauliflower and the sprout."

"The origin of the species is lost in antiquity, but the Romans appear to have cultivated it. The remarkable thing is that each type entered more or less suddenly into the vegetable garden."

"A gardener in these ancient days may have planted a cabbage on a certain spot and have awakened some morning to find a cauliflower or a stalk of sprouts in its place."

There was no gradual development. It happened spontaneously. In the case of the cauliflower there was an inflorescence, and the green flower became white, succulent, and fleshy, though not to the degree that we know it today.

"The sprout was the result of the cabbage, instead of confining its efforts to the attainment of one large bloom, determined to multiply itself into a numerous clump of tender heads."

"It is in this way that we now think evolution has taken place—the production of new and marked varieties with fully developed characteristics."

"As a food the cabbage has a long and honorable career," says Dr. Royal S. Copeland, commissioner of health, New York city. "It has graced the table of kings. The favorite dish of Emperor Pompey was cabbage. I have no doubt that many another ruler, if he admitted the truth, would confess a yearning for corned beef and cabbage. It must be terrible to live on ambrosia and nectar!"

"Humans require roughage, coarse, indigestible material, just as animals do. Every farmer can testify to the necessity of such foods for his stock. Every dietary expert agrees that roughage must be supplied if we are to be healthy."

"Cabbage is important, then, because it supplies lime and because it furnishes roughage. When it is served with delicious mayonnaise or other dressing it makes a fit dish for any table."

"In Scotland the oatmeal is cooked in the cabbage water, making a dish called 'kale brose.' In this way the mineral elements are saved."

"Almost everybody can eat raw cabbage, but the cooked vegetable disagrees with many. As a matter of fact, too, when the cabbage is boiled much of its valuable material is carried away. Steaming, instead of boiling, guards against calcium loss."

Thrift

During a big snowstorm a genz drove his car down to a filling station on a side street, intending to get some gasoline. He went down in his jeans to see how much money he had. One piece—a quarter—dropped in the snow. The man scraped around a while in the snow, but couldn't find it. So he left his car there and went away. Three days later he came back. The snow was gone. He picked up the quarter.

"Why did you leave your car here for three days?" asked the gas man. "Just to mark the place where I dropped the quarter," he replied. "I never would have been able to find it if I had driven away."—Capper's Weekly.

Gifts to the Zoo

Most of the wild animals that come to Bronx park zoo, of New York, are not bought by the zoo. They are the gifts of private citizens. Among gifts received last year are more than a dozen opossums, two canaries, a Texas rattlesnake, which is described as partly albinistic; a horned grebe from Astoria, L. I., and forty birds from various parts of the world, the gift of Emory W. Clark of Canandaigua. Possibly the oddest gift of all is a collection of 3,700 white rats and 3,000 white mice from Crocker laboratory, of Columbia university, to be used as food for reptiles.

Duval Real Personage

Claude Duval was a notorious highwayman, born in Domfront, Normandy, 1643. He was a follower of the duke of Richmond at the time of the Reformation, but forsook him for the life of a highwayman. He was famous for his gallantry to women as well as for his audacity and robberies. He was captured while intoxicated, and executed in 1670 at Tyburn. A part of the inscription on his tomb in Covent Garden church is as follows: "Here lies Du Vall; Reader if male thou art Look to thy purse! if female to thy heart."

Similar Occupation

"Well, John," said the eminent personage, who was now an invalid, "who is it wishes to see me now? My biographer?"

"No, your excellency," replied the butler, "your physician."

"Ah! Almost the same thing. He's at work upon my life, too."—Philadelphia Record.

How To End a Cough Quickly

Specialists say to actually end a cough in the shortest possible time the medicine should not only soothe and heal the soreness and irritation, but should also loosen and remove the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. When this is done the worst cough quickly disappears.

This "double-action" method has been brought to perfection in the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. A few drops stop the coughing spells almost instantly, and people who have hardly been able to sleep at night for coughing usually get their full night's rest even after the first doses. It has been very successful, too, for children's spasmodic croup, for bronchitis, laryngitis, tracheal asthma and hoarseness. On sale at all good druggists. Ask for

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN.

Joe Merritt says what the farmer wants at his door is more opportunity and fewer wolves.

We want to state right here that anybody can start a newspaper or a family but it takes hustling to keep either one of them going.

Andy Anderson declares he doesn't know whether the hen or the egg came first, but he's sure the cold storage plant will last longest.

According to Clyde Shull the reason some men are bachelors is because they failed to "embrace" their opportunity.

Nobody with the smell of liquor on his breath can work for Henry Ford. Wonder if Henry has any skunk cabbage in his garden?

"When a girl gets tired of working at home and a boy gets tired of his mother's cooking," says Sam Hamlett, "it's the easiest thing in the world for them to fall in love."

We've always had a suspicion that Adam left the well-known garden because someone told him there was better farming land farther west.

"We spend a lot of time talking about traffic problems," says Jim Chinn, "when we ought to be down on our knees returning thanks that the old-fashioned hoop-skirt isn't coming back into style."

POLAR DOTS.

Weather for the past three or four weeks has been wonderful and people here have made rapid progress in gathering their cotton and also feed cutting.

Health of our community is fine as far as I have been able to learn. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fenton are sporting a new Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis visited in Polar Sunday afternoon. Dave Davis and family from Alabama have moved into our community to make this their future home. We welcome them and wish them well.

Mrs. Ida Vick came back for another short visit with her son, before leaving for California. She has been visiting a daughter at Wilson, for several weeks.

Miss Bonnie Ford, one of Polar's popular young ladies, entertained quite a few of her friends in her home last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Vick and children visited on the Plains a few days the first of last week.

Miss Tressa Cumby was a Polar visitor Sunday.

Bill McKinnsey is sporting a Dodge roadster.

Miss Hattie Fay Smith was a Polar visitor Sunday.

Quite a few of our Polar folks were seen shopping in Snyder on last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lee were in Snyder shopping Monday.

Will Clanton made a trip to the Plains with his truck, the first of the week.

We have for our teachers, Professor Franklin and wife and Miss Anna Hull of Snyder. This is the third term for Mr. and Mrs. Franklin and they need no recommendation.

Patrons are well pleased with the work they've done in Polar. Miss Hull comes here with a fine reputation as a teacher, having taught in the schools of Scurry County for several years. We feel our board of directors made a good selection when they chose these worthy citizens as teachers of our school. We bid them welcome to our community and wish for them a successful school year.—Pansy.

500 ENROLLED IN BIBLE CLASSES AT TEXAS UNIVERSITY.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 6.—Students of the University of Texas are interested in the study of the Bible, as shown by the large enrollment this year in the courses taught at the University. There are 500 students enrolled in the Bible classes taught by the Association of Religious Teachers, an organization uniting six demonstrations for the purpose of teaching the Bible to University students. Although conducted independently of the University, credit toward a degree is allowed for the work.

Instructors are maintained by the various religious denominations, and the classes are held in religious buildings near the University campus. Sophomore standing is required for admission into the Bible classes, and the work is given according to the University scholastic requirements. Historical and literary interpretations of the Bible are emphasized, according to Frank L. Jewett, who was the first to teach Bible classes at the University under the auspices of the Christian church. He is now at the head of the Association of Religious Teachers. The denominations offering Bible instruction are the following: Christian, Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic and Episcopalian.

TOWLE & RAMSOUR.

Which Proved It Right

L. D. Edie is a professor of economics at the State university, and incidentally is the author of the textbook used in his classes. He has a way of "catching up" his students, after they have made recitations. A few days ago, one of his students was as clever as he was. The usual procedure is that the professor asks a question, and after the student has answered it, the instructor says, "Now, are you sure about that?" and adds, "Isn't it thus and so," or "don't you really mean something entirely different from that?"

The student usually believes that he is wrong and "hems and haws," trying to correct his first statement, which usually is correct.

But this time a young man recited and when Mr. Edie asked, "Are you sure about that?" the student said, "I don't know whether it is right or not, but that is what you said in your book?"—Indianapolis News.

The News

"Well—p'r'nt—no," said Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge in reply to the inquiry of the able editor of the Tumbleville Torch of Liberty and Tocsin of the Times. "I don't believe there's nuth'n' special in the way of news been going on out my way. Come to think though, at the dance at my house tuther night the floor broke down and killed a dog that had crawled under the house."

"Ah! Your dog?" asked the scribe. "Nope; belonged to Newt Strodder, over beyond Slippery Slap. Newt cussed and cut up so much about it—claimed he had only nine dogs left—that before the evening was over I had to shoot him in the leg to give him something else to think about. No, I don't know no pertickler news."—Kansas City Star.

Sails to See Mother, 109

"Tom" Brennan, at the age of eighty-five years, when most men are tired and retired, has left for Ireland to visit his mother, one hundred nine years old, who is too busy to come over and visit her "young" son, who is in an active necessary salesman.

One of the infant salesmen was contemplating a visit to his mother. "Tom," spoke up and said he had not seen his mother for twenty years. "What, your mother still living, 'Tom'?" asked his employer.

"Sure; hale and hearty at one hundred nine," "Tom" replied. "You're going to see her," commented his boss. "You can get ready to go."

So Brennan is off to dear old Dublin, near where his mother lives, to spend some time with her, and return sometime in the fall, as suits his whim. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Knocking Hubby's Book

Mr. and Mrs. Author were going out for the evening. They had engaged a new nurse and she was left in charge of the children for the first time.

"Dear," remarked Mrs. Author, as she came downstairs, "I looked into the nursery and noticed nurse was reading. Who gave her the book?"

"I did," replied her husband. "What book is it?"

"My last," he answered. "Darling," exclaimed his wife, "and you know how important it is that she should not go to sleep until we return!"

Squaring Things

An inveterate poker player who had been trotting in double harness very long went to an old married owl for some friendly advice.

"What is it, son?" asked his mentor. "Wife been jumping on you too severely?"

"No, that's just the point. That's what makes me uneasy. My wife doesn't say much, but when I have been out late with the boys she apparently does a lot of thinking. Now, what should a husband do when his wife looks at him oddly?"

Malaria Long Known

Although malaria was not given its present name until 1753, the disease has been known and described in various writings for thousands of years. Before 1000 B. C. both the tertian and quartan types of the disease were alluded to in the Greek poems. According to Deoderick, the blind of Homer and the Wasps of Aristophanes contain allusions to what we now call malaria, and according to Gioroff, the word AAT, found among the inscriptions of the temple of Deoderah, referred doubtless to malaria.—Bass.

POULTRY

CARELESSNESS WILL CAUSE POOR HATCHES

The careful gathering, selecting and holding of hatching eggs are factors too often overlooked, asserts W. H. Allen, poultry specialist at the New Jersey College of Agriculture at New Brunswick. To prove his statement Mr. Allen points out that nearly 90 per cent of all eggs that are set in incubators or under hens are fertile, and should hatch strong chicks, yet only 50 to 60 per cent ever do.

Eggs should be collected three or four times a day, and from clean nests. This prevents them from getting chilled, dirty and damp. Grade them for size, color and shape. A bird usually lays eggs of the type of the one from which it was hatched. Keep the eggs in a dry room with a temperature of 50 degrees F., and never hold them more than six days before placing in the incubator. Eggs held 12 days will hatch 10 to 15 per cent fewer chicks than eggs only a week old.

Incubator rooms should not be cold. The ideal temperature is 70 degrees. When the temperature is lower than this the hatch will be retarded and the chicks of poor quality. A chick hatched in twenty days is worth two hatched in twenty-two.

The incubator should be leveled to prevent uneven temperatures within the machine, all thermometers tested for accuracy, and the machines disinfected. The manufacturer's instructions should be followed. Run the incubator three days before putting in the hatching eggs. Do not disturb them for two days after they are set, after that turn them twice daily. No cooling is necessary during incubation, especially during the months of February, March and April.

The best temperature at which to run a machine is 103 degrees. Test out all infertile eggs on the seventh and fourteenth days. To prevent chicks from dying in the shell, it is often necessary to add moisture. This can be judged by weighing the eggs plus the hatching tray on the first day and again on the seventh. The eggs plus the tray should not weigh over 5 per cent less on the seventh day than on the first.

Scurry County Times

AND SNYDER SIGNAL

VOLUME XXXVII

SNYDER, TEXAS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1924

Number 23

WHY CERTAIN NEWS FEATURES.

The editor is trying to make the Times-Signal a paper for the masses, and in order to do so, he must publish news of almost every class. A number of our readers have recently told us that the Times-Signal is the only paper they read, and are requesting us to give even more State News Notes. One read said recently: "I sure like your State News and Neighboring County Notes. They are boiled down and I don't have to read a whole column to get what I want."

Several readers have requested us to give them several short stories each week, while one reader was kind enough to tell us that he liked our editorial paragraphs. Of course he was joking about that, but after all it showed that he was a patient fellow to say the least.

When questions concerning the Times-Signal come up we invariably ask the reader if he reads the ads. In nine cases out of every ten the reply is in the affirmative, which is proof that advertisements placed by Snyder merchants in the Times-Signal not only go to the homes of this trade territory but are read by every member of each family on our large list of readers.

Therefore, if you are not interested in some one of our feature departments, remember that we have readers who are, and since it takes all kinds of folk to make up a world, it likewise takes all sorts of news to make a paper popular among all the people.

"SUM PUNKIN"

A. S. Colclozer of the Ennis Creek community left at the First State Bank of this city the daddy of all pumpkins. It is a Scurry County product and contains enough pie timber to make a stack of pies ten feet high. In fact, it would serve the purpose of the famous "Peter" who had a wife and couldn't keep her except in a pumpkin shell.

Clyde Funk, who is as famous as a pumpkin picker as Joe Merrit is as a rabbit twister, declares that said pumpkin would have grown larger but the vine on which it grew made such a rapid growth that it dragged a lot of weight off the under side of the pumpkin which not only lessened the pumpkin's weight but caused it to be a little flat.

Even with such a pumpkin, which is big enough within itself to start a county fair, Scurry County was not represented at the State Fair this year. It is no wonder that Scurry County is not getting the publicity of many other counties with resources not half equal to the resources of Scurry County.

THE CHURCH "SLACKER."

Because less than 50 per cent of the people of the United States are church members we are soon to see in this country what promises to be the greatest religious revival in its history. We send out this notice in advance so Snyder people who do not attend church may get ready to do so, and those who are church members may prepare for the parts they will be expected to play in the great revivals. As now planned it will be in progress at the same time in every Protestant church in America, big or little. There are, according to recent figures, 115,000,000 people in the United States, and less than 45,000,000 of them attend church. Every pastor in the nation will be asked to enlist his congregation in this gigantic revival, and while no date has been set it promises to be an event of such far-reaching effect and widespread interest that it will be well worth watching and waiting for.

SNYDER TEACHER 10,000TH TO REGISTER.

FORT WORTH, Texas.—The tenthousandth teacher to register this year as a member of the Texas State Teachers' Association paid her fees Saturday. She is Mrs. Marie Palmer Greene of Snyder, Scurry County. The enrollment in the association is 1,086 ahead of what it was this date a year ago, according to Secretary R. T. Ellis.

AN ODE TO AUTUMN.

We are not going to reprint "The Frost Is on the Pumpkin," because every paper in the country is now busy doing the same thing. We want to be different, so instead of following the example of the others we're going to offer a new autumn ode. And here it is:

The housewife counts her cans of fruit, the hunter sallies forth to shoot, the football fiend begins to root, and the Legislatures start to loot. The buckwheat cakes will soon be here, and sorghum 'lasses, too, will cheer, and o'er the children's faces smear its sticky mess from ear to ear. The bird dog hunts the timid quail, but strikes the frightened rabbit's trail, the burrs get in the horse's tail, and autumn winds begin to wail. The apple butter stews and biles, the thrifty housewife stirs and smiles as she reflects upon the piles of fruit she's canned in different styles. Farewell straw hats and open hose farewell my gauzy underclothes, the wind begins to nip our nose, to tell the truth we're darned near froze.

FORMER COLORADO CITIZEN NOW A MILLIONAIRE.

Judge C. H. Earnest, Colorado attorney, has directed attention to the fact that former citizens of Colorado are listed as among the heavy income tax payers of the country. In referring to this fact, Judge Earnest said:

"In the list of large income tax payers, given out by the newspapers, under an Act of last Congress, allowing public inspection, appears the name of F. W. Baun of Los Angeles whose income tax is $75,000, being the fourth largest in that city, Douglas Fairbanks being first, E. L. Doheny, second. F. W. Braun will be remembered as Fred Braun who did business in Colorado, Texas, in the early eighties, having a drug store in building now owned by Masonic order, on Oak street. In Kansas City list appears the name of E. F. Swinney as a very large tax-payer. Old timers will remember him as Ed Swinney, cashier of Colorado National Bank at time this bank was on Oak street in Colorado. In Detroit list is Ford Motor Company, who pay an income tax of fourteen and a half million dollars, and Henry Ford, who pays individually, two and a half million. Old timers here will remember a cow-boy out here by the name of Henry Ford."—Colorado Record.

Woman Fined for Cutting Cat's Claws

Chester, Pa.—"That's the cat's meow," remarked a neighbor of Mrs. M. Schofield of No. 631 East Twelfth street. Later the neighbor discovered the "meow" was caused by the owner of a cat trimming the feline's claws. She notified Agent La Rose of the S. P. C. A. and he had a warrant issued for Mrs. Schofield's arrest. Magistrate Maitland fined her $10 and costs.

SPIRIT OF CAPT. KIDD HAUNTS OLD HOUSE

Pirates Said to Have Buried Treasure in Ohio Building

New Lexington, Ohio.—The spirit of Captain Kidd, pirate extraordinary, is said to haunt an old house on the Pleasantville pike, two miles east of Lancaster, Fairfield county.

The house is more than 125 years old and is still in good condition. The back windows of the upper floor of the house are boarded with sheet iron and have stout bars on the inside. Tradition has it that one of the principal members of Captain Kidd's band of pirates escaped with his loot, bought the old homestead and buried his treasure on the farm, or somewhere in the old house, fitting up the back room into a stronghold from which he could note the approach from all sides.

The same story goes on that he finally hanged himself to the bed in the room. Others say that another of the gang tracked him to his hiding place on a dark, stormy night, murdered him and escaped with the booty. The house has been famous as the "haunted" house for more than seventy-five years and tenant after tenant has moved in only to move out after staying a few months or days. Some say unearthly shrieks, screams, commands and the crash of glass can be heard emitting from the barred room on stormy nights.

Recently a tenant moved into the house and, in search for the hidden gold, he dug so deep around the foundation that it became necessary to run a brace through it to steady the walls. He did not find the treasure.

The farm has holes dug practically all over its hundreds of acres where treasure-seekers have made efforts to locate the gold.

The "pirate house" is built on what is known as the old "Baldwin" farm, and in earlier days was the stopping place for stockmen who drove cattle from Kentucky to all points in Ohio. The farm was inherited by Mrs. W. W. Kemper after her mother's death, and in 1900 the Kempers built a bungalow on the farm but only lived there a short time, although they say they were never bothered by ghosts. The farm is now being platted for building lots.

Wife Keeps Vow to Die When Spouse Is Buried

Alto, Tex.—Keeping a vow which she had made time and time again during her life that she would "not live without her husband, but that she would die when he was buried," Mrs. J. G. Hoover, well known resident of this community practically all her life, died at her home three hours after returning from her husband's funeral.

Mr. Hoover died recently and the funeral was held the following day. His wife, although heart broken, was in good health. She repeated time and again that she would not live without him, and upon returning to her home, she went to bed. She died three hours later, passing away content and peacefully. She was buried beside her husband whom she had known all her life.

Hoover owned considerable acreage near Alto. His son, Miller, is a prominent tomato grower of this county, and during 1922 was connected with the state department of agriculture.

Tame Duck Winner in Battle With Wild Hawk

Cullen, Ala.—A large hawk came out second best here in a battle with a duck and gave up its life in an effort to make a meal of the tame animal. The hawk was exceptionally large and had caught the duck on a pond. The domesticated animal made a great resistance, pecking the hawk in the eyes and blinding it. The duck then grasped the helpless hawk by the throat and held on tenaciously until Mrs. John Ramsey, owner of the duck ranch, killed the hawk with a club. The duck was not harmed.

New Skyscraper to Have Space for Tenants' Cars

Chicago.—One-quarter of the area of a new skyscraper at Chicago—to be the second largest in the city—will be laid out in parking space for tenants' automobiles. There will be room for 625 cars. Fluvanna Methodist.

Rev. B. A. Moores returned Monday evening from annual conference with the good news that he would be with us another year. We, as a church, are truly glad to have Bro. and Sister Moores with us and we believe the community will give them a glad welcome.

Bro. and Sister Moores came back to us with the determination to make this the best and most successful year of their work. Let us, as members of the church, do all we can to help them. Don't let us be like the woman who said, "I got up and left the church when the minister began to read the Athanasian Creed, in which I did not believe. Now Mr. Huxley, don't you think I was quite right to mark my disapproval?" "My dear lady," he replied, "I should as soon think of rising and leaving your table because I disapproved of one of the entrees."

If we, as church members, could realize under what great difficulties Bro. and Sister Moores are laboring we would be more willing and ready to help them and we would with one accord say, "Here am I, send me." Are you big enough todo it? Remember that "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." —Church Reporter.

School Notes.

The auditorium at the schoolhouse was the scene of a very entertaining party Halloween night when Mr. Maples entertained the high school with a few invited guests. All kinds of games were played, the pupils were costumed and masked and went on a "spooking" hike after which they returned to the schoolhouse where they were served with different kinds of fruit, cakes and nuts.

Since the opening of the school there has not been a more entertaining chapel service than on last Monday morning. Miss Isaac had charge of the hour and together with her pupils put on a very appropriate play. Its moral beauty and true simplicity went home to every little child.

Miss Isaac proved herself a skilled worker with children and Fluvanna is fortunate in securing her services.

There were several patrons present but let more of us try to come more often and by that way if by no other show the teachers we want to co-operate with them. Also it will help us to be more able to impress on our children that education is needed to make a man a good citizen and a good Christian—probably more needed today than ever before. It is our problem—at once a political and religious problem—to see what are the essentials of education necessary for this purpose, and to set ourselves to work of mastering them.—A Patron.

The fourth and fifth grades entertained in chapel Monday morning with a short four-act play, "Angel Mollie."

Characters—Dr. Henderson, Allen Sturdivant; Mrs. Hagan, Mattie Bell Snodgrass; Miss Dunning, Rose Marie Clawson; Mollie, Inez Gleghorn; Pietro, Paul Moores; Tony, John Truss; Jake, E. V. Boynton; Foxy, J. T. Beaver; Tohe, Homer Patterson; Bangs, Jack Nesbitt.

Special music was rendered by Mr. Boston and Mr. Maples. Lela Isaac, teacher.

We, the undersigned business men of Fluvanna, agree to close on Tuesday, Nov. 11, this being a legal holiday:

- W. H. Jones.
- W. P. Sims.

Idle Dollars

are dollars gathered but not working; they are dollars which are removed from circulation by being withheld from deposit in the bank.

The only logical way that money can be kept at work; that the welfare of the community may be preserved and that financial aid may be extended to farmers and other business, is through the bank.

Good business and good citizenship demand that idle dollars be deposited in the banks.

The Twentieth Century Club met Tuesday, Oct. 28, with Mrs. J. C. Dorward. The house was decorated in orange and black, with cat and witch festoons, reminding us that Halloween is near.

Mrs. Richard Webb was leader for the afternoon. Fifteen members answered to roll call with political current events. The program:

They Now Could Work and Love Their Own Way

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

"HE HAS brought a new motive into my life—he is the best man I ever knew!" spoke Lesbia Austin with force and sincerity. "Hm!" commented her guardian and distant relative, Ira Dunn. He had his own ideas about Clement Rowe, the artist friend to whom Lesbia referred.

Her eyes sparkled, her breath came quickly, her ambition and anticipation showed in her bonny face as he told her of studio life in the city. Her father had been a noted tragedian. Perhaps there was born in her the careless, happy bohemian instinct.

It seemed as though the sun had departed from the heavens the day that Clement Rowe left Merton. He had promised to return the next month. There came a chatty, friendly letter from Clement.

Clement Rowe did not return as he had promised. Poor little spirit! She grieved to think she was so soon forgotten. Then a wonderful happening took up her attention. An aunt had died leaving her twenty-five thousand dollars.

It was all in money, Ira Dunn told her, and he developed a sudden new interest in his charge.

Now Ira Dunn conceived a great idea of keeping that money in the family. He had a favorite nephew in a neighboring town. Behold, within a brief time, this Abner Bowen a guest at the Dunn homestead, the chosen suitor for the hand of the pretty little heiress!

Lesbia treated the awkward, carrot-haired youth with kindness, as her gentle nature impelled her.

One day Abner Bowen blunderingly proposed to Lesbia. So palpably had the speech he made been put into his mouth by Ira Dunn that Lesbia laughed outright at him. In a later impromptu interview with Mr. Dunn she flatly rejected his candidate and the schemer set about forming new plots.

Then gradually there came to Lesbia's mind an intense desire to make of art her life endeavor. She made of her room a regular studio. But she missed the expert hand that had taught her the rudiments of a profession she was resolute to adopt.

And then one day came a remarkable discovery, that abruptly changed all the impulses of her young life and hurried the accomplishment of her soul's ambitions.

She was looking for an old scrapbook in the library when she came across what appeared to be the pencilled draft of a letter written by Mr. Dunn. She could not take her eyes from the sheet, as she saw that it concerned Clement Rowe.

It had apparently been written right after Lesbia had answered the first and only missive she had received from the artist. It told Lesbia that Clement had written a manly letter to Mr. Dunn, confessing his love for her and asking his permission to renew the acquaintance.

The reply had been that Lesbia was already selected for another; that she would ultimately become an heiress, and that if Clement persisted in his attentions he would lie under the suspicion of being a mere fortune hunter.

"Poor, proud soul!" cried Lesbia, her eyes scintillating with indignation, mingled with reverence for the man she had learned to esteem. "And he has loved me all the time! Oh, the way is easy now! As to the fortune—"

Her busy little mind mapped out and carried out a speedy program. Money should cease to be a barrier between Clement and herself, she resolved.

The next morning Lesbia went alone to the bank where her little fortune was deposited. First she drew out a few hundred dollars for her own personal use. Next, she sent half of the remainder to an old aunt who had groined under the hard burden of a heavy mortgage on her home for many years. The balance Lesbia donated to a home for orphans in a near city.

"He can be no fortune hunter now!" she whispered raptly to herself—"if he really wants me."

A note apprised Ira Dunn of what his independent charge had done the next day.

One day Clement Rowe received a note from a Mrs. Ernest Moore. She was the widow of an artist, and an artist herself. As he entered her studio he chanced to glance past the draperies at an aproned figure standing busy at work before an easel.

"Miss Austin!" he fairly gasped, "and here!"

"Yes, for a month past she has been my helper," replied Mrs. Moore, with a happy smile. "She is making good headway toward a point where she can earn her living."

"What! she, an heiress?" challenged Clement incredulously.

"Let me tell you a story," said the lady artist—and she did.

"Now, then, Mr. Rowe," she remarked brightly, "I am going to leave you alone to renew your acquaintance with the wildwood nymph you mourned as lost."

Blessed fate! The sunlight was bright in that quiet studio, two dauntless spirits met on the threshold of a blissful destiny. The barrier of fortune was gone, and they could work and love together in the pure simple glory of perfect harmony of mind and soul.

STATE UNIVERSITY TO MANUFACTURE LIQUID AIR.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 6.—Liquid air will soon be manufactured at the University of Texas when the new liquid air machine is installed in the chemical laboratory in about thirty days. It is said that this machine will be the first of its kind in this part of the country, and is a distinct addition to the University equipment. It is a high pressure pump, working under a pressure of 3,000 pounds. A 15-horse power motor will be required for its operation.

Liquid air is used for freezing purposes and for obtaining very low temperatures in experimental work. With the aid of the new machine, experiments can be made at the University, which have not been possible heretofore. After the machine is put in operation, lecturers can be sent out from the University to demonstrate the use of liquid air, it is stated.

ALL-COLOR PICTURE DUE.

"Wanderer of the Wasteland," a Zane Grey Paramount production, directed by Irvin Willat and featuring Jack Holt, Kathlyn Williams, Noah Beery and Billie Dove, comes to the Cozy Theatre next Wednesday to remain two days.

You've heard about the wonderful colorful photography in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments?" Well, this one's done entirely in color. There's not a black and white sequence throughout the length of the film. Think of it!

Even if it weren't for the great story it really is, you should go see this picture just for the novelty of the thing. Remember, it's the very first really practical all-color production to be shown on the screen anywhere. But it's more than just a novelty—much more. It's Zane Grey's greatest story brought to life.

ENNIS WEEKLY.

How is everybody and the editor, too, at this writing. I guess you have wondered why you didn't see this in last week's paper. There were such a few left in Ennis Sunday week there was no news to write. I think most everybody went to Ira to get a feed at the convention.

Mrs. B. M. West, who has been visiting at Fort Worth, is at home again.

Homer Robison and wife of Mountain Air, New Mexico, have been visiting Dee Robison and wife, also some of his old friends at Ennis.

Quite a few of the Ennis folks are attending the show at Snyder this week.

Hallow'een was very quiet in our community; not even a chicken roast.

Mynott Ford has been seen driving a new car around over the country, smiling and tipping his hat to the girls. He says one side of the front seat is still as good as new.

We are looking for a change in the weather from the north as Clarence Wade was seen flying south Sunday.

HIGH SCHOOL CARNIVAL A SUCCESS.

The senior class of our local high school put on a very successful carnival here last Friday night. The spirit of Hallow'een pervaded it and the people all had a great time. Everybody came with their nickels and dimes and the carnival management took care of the rest. As Barnum said so it is.

The main attraction was a vaudeville show by members of the senior class. There were dance and song numbers and a black-face skit. It was well put on considering the conduct of the audience which interfered to some extent with the performance. Many expressed themselves as well pleased with the main show, especially those who had "free" seats on the grandstand and courthouse steps. On the whole we are much pleased with the result.

There were well attended Spanish booths where coffee and chili and sandwiches were sold. The fortune tellers booth was a favorite, due perhaps to its low price of 5 cents. Some had the courage to try the chamber of horrors and they do tell that everybody escaped with their respective lives, though not so much may be said for their looks. Nobody has been reported as having tried it twice. The Hallow'een booth sold a goodly lot of seasonal novelties and the Japanese booth sold lanterns, etc.

The carnival was given by the senior class, sponsored by Miss Zadie

Runkles, and they wish especially to thank our business men and local organizations for the splendid help and hearty co-operation extended. Special thanks are due to the Parent-Teachers' Association, the Snyder band, the Hall Music Company, the Moore Studio, the Snyder Bakery, Ware's Bakery, Mrs. J. W. Templeton, Mr. G. B. Clark, Higginbotham Lbr Co., Bryant-Link, and everybody who assisted in any way.

The prize cake, donated by Snyder Bakery, was won by Frank Buchanan, and the prize for best costume was won by Elizabeth Jameson. We thank you.—Reporter.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

Lesson for November 9

THE FEEDING OF THE FIVE THOUSAND

LESSON TEXT—John 6:1-15. GOLDEN TEXT—I am the bread of life.—John 6:35. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Feeds Hungry People. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Feeds Five Thousand. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christ Meeting Human Needs. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Jesus Saves.

In the previous chapter, Jesus showed Himself to be the source of life. He here proves Himself to be the sustainer of life.

I. Jesus' Compassion for the Multitude (vv. 1-5, cf. Matt. 14:14). The sight of the crowd always incited the Lord's sympathy. He knew that they were as shepherdless sheep (Mark 6:34). They were going forth with no one to care for them. Besides, they were ignorant, so much so that they had no appreciation of Him. Added to this, was their awful physical hunger. This condition roused the Saviour's pity. This is true of the multitude today. The crowd surges about us daily as shepherdless sheep. There is no one to care for them. Then, too, they are ignorant. Sin has so thoroughly blinded them that they are not conscious of their lost condition. Down deep in their hearts is a hunger for truth and God. The millions of earth are hungering for Christ, though ignorant of their real needs.

II. The Lord's Conference With the Disciples Touching the People's Need (5-9).

This was not done for His benefit, for He knew what He would do (v. 6). He is equal to any occasion. His object in this conference may be summed up as follows:

1. To teach them their sense of obligation to the multitude. Men are slow to recognize their obligation to the great shepherdless multitude. We need to be taught the wonderful truth that God has made man His partner in the salvation of the world. We are workers together with God (II Cor. 6:1). It is a most solemn obligation to co-operate with Him in saving the millions who are groping in darkness.

2. To teach them their true helplessness in the face of such great needs. The loaves and fishes were as nothing in the presence of five thousand men besides women and children. Well might Andrew exclaim, "What are these among so many?" We may plant and water, but the increase comes entirely from God.

3. To teach them that their sufficiency is from the Lord. The mission worker needs to know that Christ is the only source of supply. Without Him we can do nothing (John 15:1-8). We can no more carry on the work ourselves than the branch can bear fruit without the vine. The branch supplies the life and strength for the production of fruit. Philip's arithmetic is of no use in the face of such need. The Lord Jesus has all power.

III. The Lord's Method of Accomplishing His Work (vv. 10-13).

We observe here the orderliness of Christ's work. He pauses to give thanks for their scanty supply, teaching us that we should always bring our abilities and gifts to God, that He might bless them to His use.

1. The Lord's part was to bless and break the bread; yea, even to create the needed supply. This part the disciples could not perform. The Lord must begin the work. The same kind of bread was provided for all, rich and poor, young and old, women and children.

2. The disciples' part was to distribute that which He had blessed and consecrated. This is true of the missionary today. His part is to take from the hands of the Lord that which He has blessed and consecrated, and distribute it among the starving multitudes. We are not responsible for the supply; but we are responsible for its distribution to all those who are hungering and perishing for the bread of life.

3. The people's part was to sit down and eat. They had no part in the provision, neither its distribution; but only to take from the hands of the disciples and eat. This is an illustration of the part obedience plays in our salvation. "When all had eaten to the full, much was left," illustrating the superabundance of Christ's salvation.

IV. The Effect (v. 14). The people recognized Him at once as the Prophet who should come. They believed Him for His works' sake.

Must Tread the Path

Death's but a path that must be trod, if men would ever pass to God.—Thomas Parnell.

Merely being headed in the right direction doesn't get you any place. You have to move if you want to arrive.

PATENTS GRANTED TO TEXANS.

Of 801 patents issued in the last week, Texas inventors obtained 12. Do you know any of these inventors? That these inventions are worth while is attested by the number of patents that already have been assigned for manufacture and sale. In other cases the inventors are themselves or still struggle to manufacture them themselves or still are negotiating for assignments or royalties.

The following information is compiled by Munn and Company, of New York and Washington, patent and trade mark attorneys.

Paul Jackson of Port Arthur. Combination tool. This is a simple and efficient structure which is reliable for various purposes and operations and which may be manufactured at comparatively low cost. It provides a ratchet wrench which may be rotated in respect to its handle as may be desired.

William O. Webb of Ira. Agricultural implement. This invention provides an inexpensive machine by which stalks left after gathering a crop may be efficiently cut into small pieces preparatory to placing the ground in condition for the planting of another crop.

Joseph H. McEvoy of Houston. Work-feeding mechanism for drill presses. This invention provides a feed mechanism which is exceedingly simple and cheap in construction in which the feed screw or nuts are so formed that they are interchangeable so as to cause the pipe to move longitudinally in respect to the drill different distances per revolution or rotation of pipe in order to space the openings as desired.

Oliver M. Franklin of Amarillo. Method of making blackleg vaccine. This is a vaccine or bacterin preparation to be used in combating the disease among cattle commonly known as blackleg symptomatic anthrax. This disease is produced by the blackleg organism which is now sufficiently termed Clostridium chauvei, and which is well known to be a very resistant spore forming organism. Mr. Franklin assigns his patent to the Kansas Blackleg Serum Co., Inc.

John C. Colligan of Dallas. Liquid sampling apparatus. This is a container used for the transportation of petroleum or petroleum products in large quantities. A structure is provided which permits a predetermined portion of the contents of a car to be withdrawn without causing any material disturbance upon the car contents, so that the sample obtained is representative of the car contents. Mr. Colligan assigns his patent to the Texas Co.

Myrtle E. Sullivan of Fort Stockton. Ice cream freezer. This freezer cools and freezes the cream hard, not only on its outer surface, but also and simultaneously in the center. It is so constructed that two or more kinds of differently flavored ice creams may be produced at the same time.

Charles W. Cochran of Wichita Falls. Jack or lifting device. This is an automobile jack that will raise one wheel of a car with one stroke of the operating lever and means for holding it in any set position. It provides a mechanism that will render sufficient leverage to enable the lifting of one wheel of an automobile with one stroke of the operating lever. Mr. Cochran assigns his patent to Superior Auto Jack Co.

William Gladstone Bentley, of Wichita Falls. Electrode for spark plugs which will permit a current or stream of air to be drawn into the engine cylinder upon each downward or suction stroke of the piston in such a manner as to clean the sparkling points of the electrodes. Mr. Bentley assigns one-third of his patent to Felbert A. Ray and one-third to Z. Robert White, both of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Roy R. Atchley of De Kalb. Fender attachment for cultivators. This invention provides a device for use in connection with cultivators or other toothed ground working devices in which the fender used in connection with such devices may be readily adjusted to properly position it for the character of work it has to perform.

Martin B. Hill of Houston. Lining for transmission bands. This is a lining so constructed that smooth starting and stopping of a carry may be effected at all times. The object is to construct a lining that will not become slick and non-absorbent of oil, and which will keep the transmission drum oiled.

Honre C. Thrift of Burkburnett. Machine for screwing together and unscrewing pipes and rods. This device is adapted for use in unscrewing the joints of pipe or casing as the same is withdrawn from abandoned wells.

TIMES-SIGNAL SIGNALS.

Rockefeller says he's glad to be of some service to mankind. Sure. Look at all the nice filling stations he has given us.

Education is great stuff, but the Snyder man who writes dollars with one "I" may have the biggest bank account.

Funny how some men will go to war and fight for their country but won't go to the polls and vote for it. We see where an eastern man was buried to the tune of "Yes, We Have No Bananas." Maybe it was the song that killed him.

Maybe, too, the Snyder woman who doesn't make biscuit like mother used to make has a husband who doesn't make the money that father used to make.

The dead past has mighty little chance to bury its dead during campaign year.

Why is it that a man will suffer for eight hours and then raise the roof if the doctor takes 10 minutes to get to him.

What has become of the old-fashioned Snyder woman who used to send her daughter calico scraps of the new dresses she had to make?

Artists can rave all they want to about beautiful backs, but to us the most beautiful back in America is the greenback.

Our experience is that there's not enough going on in the eight hours a man is supposed to sleep to pay him for staying awake and watching it.

We can't think of anyone around Snyder we're as sorry for as the young man who is in love and hasn't a flivver of his own.

By the time airships are as numerous as autos we hope monkey wrenches and other tools will be equipped with parachutes.

Most any woman can learn to like the way her husband makes his money if he only makes enough of it.

The average Snyder girl has two fellows—the one she likes and the one who is some account.

No matter whether it's spelled "pumpkin" or "punkin" you can pass this editor a slice any time you feel like it.

What has become of the old-fashioned, open-in-the-back white shirt with a little flap at the bottom of the stiff bosom bearing the initials of the owner?

Our advice to the Snyder man who wants to hold his job is to work every day as though he was liable to be fired the next.

AIRPLANE ALMOST WRECKS CHURCH AT O'DONNELL.

A bucking broncho, a head-on collision of two automobiles or a dog fight on the streets of O'Donnell would only occasion passing notice, but let an airplane run wild with no pilot at the helm as one did last week, and there is some excitement. A ninety horse power Curtis had been brought over from Dallas for the private use of A. C. Jones, one of the teachers in the public schools, and was parked south of the Baptist Church. A young man paid the machine a visit of inspection and in order to see if she was in running order, threw the switch on, pulled the throttle wide open and gave the propeller a yank—and she took. With a roar the monster machine was off at a flying pace. Those who saw it coming scudded for their storm cellars or tried to climb telephone poles, dogs went under the houses and the chickens flew for their coops. Finally the church got in the machine's path and she hit it full amidships with a crash that was heard all over town. When the Curtis was extracted it was ready for considerable repairs, including all its parts except its tail which did not get in the church.—O'Donnell Index.
