HOLLYWOOD UNMOVED BY ASSASSINATION OF TRIO.

Three men were killed in Hollywood the other night! But no one worried about it.

It was simply one of the big scenes in "The Amateur Gentleman," the inspiration picture which stars Richard Barthelmess and which will be presented to local audiences at the Palace Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

The gentlemen who were cinematically assassinated under Director Sidney O'Leary's tutelage, were Gariner James, Nigel Barrie and Herbert Grimwood. Dick himself escaping with a slight wound, thanks to the scenarist.

TOO LATE FOR LAST WEEK.

Rev. G. W. Land, lately of Louisiana, has moved his family to Snyder from Florence, Texas, where he has been pastor of the Baptist church for several months. The Rev. Land is a strong preacher. He has accepted half-time work at Ira.

Miss Mary Gartner, secretary of the First Baptist church since July 10, returned to Fort Worth last Monday to resume her work in the Southwestern Seminary.

Mrs. H. J. Manley has returned to the city from Sherman, Corsicana, Plano and Renner where she has been visiting for the past five weeks with relatives.

Marshall Fuller is a business visitor here from Fort Worth.

Mrs. W. T. Manly is here from Fort Worth visiting with friends.

Mrs. H. E. Rosser has as her guest her sister, Miss Ruth Walker of Wallhalla, South Carolina.

Pat Murphy was a business visitor here from Brownwood last week.

CANYON, Texas—Miss Omah Bullard of Hermleigh, who teaches primary grades at Snyder, is one of the eighty summer students of the West Texas State Teachers' College named as an honor student by the honor roll committee. The total enrollment for the summer was considerably more than one thousand.

Started a New Profession

By JOHN EVANS

JUNE AIKEN was facing, for the first time in her life, the necessity for helping to earn the family income. Gradually the father's salary was becoming insufficient for the needs of the household and children and June began to look about for something to do.

It was seldom that June was discouraged but today she felt blue and the outlook was anything but cheerful. Nothing her mother could say gave her a lighter view of the future, and she picked up her hat and said she would go out and try to walk off her doldrums.

She strode toward the village, a thriving little center with up-to-date shops and a modern moving picture theater.

June had never cared for picture shows and seldom went inside the theater, but today something took her to the box office almost before she realized what she was doing.

Next to her sat a young mother who was trying to keep an active child quiet. She had given the tot her handbag and the lipstick and metal vanity case had both dropped to the floor and rolled down the aisle. June had recovered them for the impatient mother.

In a distant part of the house another small child kept up a continuous shouting. A wee baby cried lustily. June could hear and see nothing but these outraged children, cooped up within a stuffy, dark theater. Then, like a flash, an idea came to her. Her discouragement was replaced by wave after wave of enthusiasm for the inspiration that had come to her.

"But—some day you will want to have a home of your own," Bob asked her after he had known her for months.

"Oh, yes, some day, Bob, when—when you and your brother and all the other kiddies are old enough not to need me. Then we will think of—our home. Meantime, let's be happy as we are."

And Bob, having learned his lessons of patience and unselfishness, was willing.

States' Lines Marked by Mason and Dixon

Mason and Dixon's line is the boundary between the states of Pennsylvania and Maryland, from the Delaware border to that of West Virginia. After years of dispute between the proprietors of the Pennsylvania and Maryland colonies, a boundary compromise was arrived at in 1763 and two English surveyors, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, were appointed to run the line. This they began in 1763, working westward for four years, by which time they carried their survey over the mountains to a point 244 miles from the Delaware river. Indian hostility made further work impossible at the time, and the line was completed later by others. The whole route was marked by milestones, every fifth one bearing on one side the arms of Lord Baltimore and on the other those of William Penn. The exact latitude of the line is 39 degrees 43 minutes 26.3 seconds north.

In the days of the slavery question, Mason and Dixon's line was often popularly projected westward, the name being given to the boundary between free and slave territory.

Perhaps This Is Why Market Venders Age

A reporter on the Los Angeles Times was sent out on a very unpleasant mission to find out where Angelinos make most of their foolish remarks. Was it at the zoo? At the railroad stations? At information desks? Not at all. Most of the senseless remarks made in Los Angeles, he found, were made in the big public markets.

"Sometimes I think half the funny slips in the city are made right in front of this stall here," volunteered one vender. "Only the other day a young woman came up and asked for a pound of bacon already fried. Of course, what she wanted was bacon already sliced."

Another vender spoke up: "Once a young man came and asked me for some eggplants. I started picking some out. He said he didn't want those things, he wanted eggplants. Well, we argued back and forth, and then he clinched the argument by saying that he knew they weren't eggplants, because eggplants are round, and these slices of pineapple, I gave in."

Corrugations in Roads

Corrugations appearing in the surface of gravel roads appear to be formed by the kick back of surface materials arising from the spin of the rear wheels of automobiles as they descend after the bounce over some obstacle or depression, and also from the impact of both the front and the rear wheels of automobiles. A small obstacle or depression in the road will cause a vehicle to bounce and strike the road with the above-mentioned effect. A few such occurrences are sufficient to form a corrugation, and this corrugation may result in the formation of one ahead, and thus the process continues. This theory is confirmed to a certain extent by the fact that corrugations very rarely occur on gravel, where ascending cars will cling more closely to the road, and descending cars in neutral do not give much spin to the rear wheels in descending after a slight bounce.

Anniversary of Birth

The word "birthday" has two principal meanings. The day of a person's birth is his birthday. In that sense a person has only one birthday—it is his first and last. But "birthday" also means the anniversary of one's birth. In that sense a man's first birthday is the day he was one year old. He has a birthday each year after that. When we say a man died on his seventy-seventh birthday we mean that he was seventy-seven years old.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Yes, there will be a County Fair held at Snyder this year—November 18, 19 and 20. It will be a mighty good time and place to meet friends and see some mighty fine agricultural products.

Nearly everybody who has not been in Snyder for several months invariably remarks: "Never saw a town improve like Snyder has since I was here before." And they are right, Snyder is forging right ahead, and, in spite of a few hard knockers.

Although cotton is down close to 12 cents, it is still worth picking; besides, there is a good chance of its going up considerable. So, don't let your cotton that has already been made, go to waste in your fields. Gather it, have it ginned, even if you have to hold it.

The Times-Signal hopes that his readers will be on their guard against peddlers, fakirs, grafters, who are already making the rounds in an effort to get some of Scurry County folks' hard-earned money from cheap-priced cotton. Bear in mind the fact that those fellows, who never saw you before, and may never care to see you again, are not out for their health nor yours, either, but to try to sell you something that can be bought right here in Snyder from men who pay taxes to keep up schools and other public institutions and who are always glad to help you in times of need. In many cases it seems nothing but right that you spend your cash with them.

A Traveling Magazine Shop

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

"MOTHER darling, honestly, I don't think there's anyone in the whole world who can collect more magazines than you can. I've just been up in the loft and found barrels, boxes, trunks—everything stuffed full of old magazines."

Mrs. Crawford grinned. "Just think how useful they would be if we wanted to start a shop. Once when I was in London I saw a shop filled with old magazines and they were all selling for six pence and three pence. Years and years old they were, too, so—"

"My word, I'd like to have ten cents for everyone about this place—Mother!" she broke off as inspiration seized her. "I could start around in the old bus and sell magazines to all the country people who never get a look at one—wouldn't that be a grand idea? It would help Dad a lot if I could make a little money so easily."

"What an idea—you mean you would drive about with a car full of magazines, just like an old clothes man or—"

"Just about," laughed Enid. "Only I wouldn't ring a bell all the time. I would just go about to the isolated people and I'll bet it will be a blessing to them—magazines don't go out of date as far as reading matter goes."

"It is really a good idea and we can buy further some of those new incubators he wants so badly."

"I think mother wants them as much as Dad," laughed Enid again, and you really think you can sacrifice some of the magazines—"

"I can start right away to collect more," laughed her mother.

It was no time at all before Enid was started on her route. She had pointed up the old delivery wagon that her father delivered chicks in and fitted it with shelves. Outside she had a large sign bearing the words, "The Magazine Shop."

Enid found her way to the straggling clumps of small houses in outlying districts that boasted neither shops nor brain food. It was remarkable how seemingly starved some of those country people were for something in the nature of reading matter and picture books. Enid got very close to the lives of many of her patrons and was thoroughly enjoying herself. Many times her mother came along with her and Mrs. Crawford took to bringing along a lot of fancy cushion tops and little oddments of house-cleaning bags and baskets, which she made in her spare time. They sold well.

The new incubators could be purchased almost any time—so successful was the traveling shop.

But there was much more in store for them than any of them suspected—at least, until Jack Darwin rode into the scene on his bicycle.

The two women in the car did not know at first whether he was following them for flirtatious possibilities or whether he was merely trying to see if he could cover the road at the same speed as Enid.

Instead, he was trying to let them know that he wanted to see their wares. "I want something to read," he breathlessly informed them.

Swiftly observing that he was not the type of person she had been selling to she said with a lovely smile, "We only have very old magazines—nothing of a later vintage than last November."

Darwin laughed. "Nine months is young for a baby, but a magazine! Still, some stories are ageless. Let's have a look."

Enid opened the doors of the van and let Darwin take his time at her neatly arranged shelves.

"I say, you have some old ones," he muttered. Then suddenly he turned, "Is there a chance in the world that you would have any Ramblers of ten years back? If you had the one I want, well—it might mean a small fortune for all of us."

"What's it all about?" inquired Mrs. Crawford. "Yes, I had all the Ramblers once—but you see we have sold heaps of magazines—the one you want might be gone."

Darwin was quite excited by now. "I had a story in the Rambler of December, either nine or ten years ago. It has been put on the screen—without my name—well, in fact it's been stolen. My lawyers are at work. I've been a bit up against it since I have lost the only copy I had. If—"

"If," said Enid suddenly, "you can put your bike on the top and hop in with us you can go up in the loft and have a look. It's well worth it."

A moment later the three now excited people were speeding up toward home and mother's collection of magazines.

Dusty and covered with cobwebs, three hours later Enid and Jack came triumphantly down with the magazine they sought.

"If I win my case—and there's no reason why I can't—it will mean something like a fifty-thousand-dollar check—they've made a super-picture from this story." He was laughing and so was Enid and it was not entirely due to the finding of the story. Finding one another had much to do with it.

"Mother, darling!" Enid shouted, "your passion for magazine collecting will probably be the means of giving Mr. Darwin a big success and—"

"Far greater success than anyone can for the moment suspect," said Jack Darwin and flashed a look toward Enid.

Lava-Coated Trees in Hawaiian Forest

On the slopes of a volcano near the town of Hilo, Hawaii, there is a perfect forest of lava trees, which is believed to have been formed many centuries ago. The trees which form this forest are amazingly like the trees of the Hawaiian Islands, even the grain of bark being represented, yet they are nothing but shells of lava. The way in which this strange forest was formed is interesting. The original trees were of a kind known locally as ohia, a species abundant in the Hawaiian Islands. During a terrific outbreak on the part of the volcano, when the lava poured out in a vast cataract, 40 or 50 feet deep, the whole of a thickly wooded region was overwhelmed. The fluid point of lava is at 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit, but it instantly solidifies at a point a few degrees below this high figure. . . . When the trees were buried in the stream of liquid fire the lava which came into touch with the trunks and branches immediately solidified, owing to the contact with the cold bark. The main flow of the molten stream swept on, leaving behind with only a thin coating. This was sufficient to set the wood burning, and, in course of time, all the branches and the trunk of the tree were consumed, leaving nothing but the lava mold.

Moving Pictures Long Ago

Moving pictures are not so very new. The English diarist, Ralph Thoresby, writing as long ago as 1678, says: "I called to see the moving pictures, a curious piece of art; the landscape looks as an ordinary picture till the clockwork behind the curtain be set at work, and then the ships move and sail distinctly upon the sea till out of sight; a coach comes out of the town; the motions of the horses and wheels are very distinct, and a gentleman in the coach salutes the company; also a hunter and his dogs keep their course until out of sight."—New York Times.

Small Fortune Paid for Gutenberg Bible

Recently at Vienna, an American dealer paid $220,585 for a copy of the Gutenberg Bible. It belonged to an abbey in Austria, and the owners had to get official letters from the Austrian government before they could sell their treasure. They obtained by far the biggest price ever paid for a book. Yet a still higher price is reported as having been once offered.

Just a Little Loan

She was waiting for a friend outside a telephone booth. A fashionably dressed young woman approached her. "I wonder if you could let me have a nickel," she said. "I want to telephone and can't find one in my bag."

She handed the nickel to the stranger.

"I don't see how I can pay you for the loan," the young woman laughed. "As I don't know you or where you live."

First Gas Attack

The plank is an example of the axiom that it pays to specialize. He cannot swim like the other, nor sink like the marian, nor run like the hare, says Nature Magazine. He has neither the strength of the wolverine nor the fierceness of the weasel. Yet he has outlived all these members of his family by developing a little speciality of his own which bids fair to save him from the attacks of civilization for many years to come. He discovered the gas attack long before man. His weapon is a movable duct through which he can throw a stream of liquid musk with deadly accuracy from five to ten feet.

Plant That "Walks"

The fronds of the walking-leaf fern arch over until they touch the earth, where they root to form new plants. Some other ferns occasionally produce plants in this way, but in this species it is a settled habit. The new plants grow up, repeating the process of walking, and soop the original plant is surrounded by quite a colony of its own offspring without the intervention of spores. The connections between them are slow to die, and it is not unusual to see three or four generations linked together.

Fair to Both

A well-known newspaper editor was playing over Transit valley the other day when one of the caddies captured a beautiful young scold bird, too young to fly. Walking over to the golfer he said to him: "Got any kids at home?"

"Yes."

"Well, here, take this bird home to him, probably he will like it."

"Can't do it," replied the golfer. "Why?" queried the caddy.

"Well, it is his way. Go and catch another and I'll do it. You see, I have twins and I cannot bring one home for one without doing the same for the other."

The caddy let the bird flutter away.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

Toothless Era Seen

Scientists state that certain changes in the structure of man are going on at the present moment, and one of the most marked of these is that we're losing our teeth. They are certainly decreasing in number. The third molar is doomed, and other teeth may follow until the normal state of man is toothless. When that happens the square chin will no longer be a sign of strength of character, for there will be none. As the teeth recede or disappear the chin will recede also.

"Tom," said Mr. Scarsdale suddenly at breakfast next morning, "I hope you are not still darning after the daughter of that old thief, Israel Vanderburg?"

"Well," replied Tom slowly, "you see, it is this way. Mr. Vanderburg has announced his intention of casting Gladys off and cutting her out of his will if she marries your son."

"Oh, he has, has he?" growled Philip.

"Yes, sir," said Tom, "and he is really violent about the matter—declares such an alliance would break his heart and be a disgrace to his family. And as you are set against the marriage also, and have threatened to cut me off if it takes place—why, there you are!"

"Israel Vanderburg is an old ruffian and always was," said Mr. Scarsdale, and lunged away from the table. But his son's statement of the case kept recurring to him all that day. He would go to almost any length to spite old Vanderburg.

Meantime Gladys was having a session with her paternal ancestor. "I suppose you will be hard-hearted enough to be glad of it," said she, trying to squeeze a tear or two into her bright blue eyes, "but Tom and I are up against it. First you objected, and now Mr. Scarsdale frisks at the idea of his son marrying your daughter—says it would disgrace him."

"Disgrace him!" cried Israel; "does that old ruffian have the cheek to face that way?" And Israel departed, turning matters over in the gloomy and vindictive chambers of his mind.

For ten years now the former friends had been seeking for an opportunity to do each other a mischief, and had found none. Now, at last, was an opportunity presented.

"Tom," said Mr. Scarsdale that night at dinner, "does that Vanderburg girl take after her father?"

"Oh, no," replied Tom; "everybody says she is her mother over again."

"You go and marry the girl," cried Mr. Scarsdale. "How Israel will rave; I'd like to hear him."

And Mr. Vanderburg said unto Gladys, "So Scarsdale thinks he would be disgraced if Tom and you got married, does he? Nothing would give me greater satisfaction. You marry Tom just as soon as you can."

The marriage was hasty, the flight abroad on the wedding tour immediate. Philip and Israel, passing to the street, were each surprised to see upon the face of the other a smirk of malignant satisfaction. What could it mean? They were shrewd men and after prof. and consideration arrived at the true solution of the case. But they were also proud men, unwilling to admit that they had been outwitted, and so held their peace. A year later meeting each other one morning on the street Israel, with beaming face, accosted his old enemy for the first time in many years.

"It's a boy, Philip," said he. "I have just come from the house. Both doing fine."

"I was on my way there," replied Philip; "come along back with me. I suppose you have been two old fools. What are they going to name him?"

France Has Absorbed Blood of Many Races

France is called a Latin country, but little save the language and some customs are really left over from Roman times. Racially, they are no European people more mixed. Two-thirds of the dwellers in ancient Gaul were Celts, the rest were Iberian Franks.

This Celto-Teutonic admixture in the last 2,000 years has absorbed Romans from all parts of that heterogeneous empire; pure Celts, in Brittany; Scandinavian Normans, in the Seine valley; Teutonic Flemings and Walloons, in the north; Teutons, in Lorraine and Alsace; Italians, in Nice and Savoy; Greeks and Arabs, on the Mediterranean coast; Spaniards and Basques, in the Pyrenees; English and Scotch, in the southwest, which was held by English kings for more than a century.

After the Napoleonic wars came many Poles. Before 1914 Swiss, German and Belgian immigrants were being quickly assimilated. Such facts amply well for the present undigested contingents of Italian, Russian, Czechs and Poles. They talk, nevertheless, of establishing a quota system similar to that in force in the United States.

Travesty on Coffee Served by Javanese

Java coffee is renowned the world over—in the bean. In the cup, as served in the Dutch tropical possessions, it is a frightful travesty on coffee, writes Samuel Q. Blythe in the Saturday Evening Post.

They roast the bean until it is almost burned, and grind it. Then they let water drip through it or employ some other occult process and produce a black, thick, acid mixture they call coffee essence. This is served cold in a little pitcher, with a larger pitcher of hot water. The plot is to pour some of the essence into your cup, fill the cup with the hot water and revel in the murky combination.

It doesn't taste like coffee, it tastes like some sort of chemical solution used for cleaning rugs. That is a detail. There isn't a good cupful of coffee, or a cupful of good coffee, to be had outside of the United States anywhere in this world, so why imitate the Dutchman's idea of the brew?

SINE CURAS ENTERTAINED WITH LUNCHEON.

Members of the Sine Cura Bridge Club and guests were entertained Tuesday, September 27, at the Wilford Tea Room with a one o'clock luncheon and bridge with Mrs. Chas. Cooper as hostess. The guests were Mesdames, P. M. Chambers, Fritz R. Smith and Hugh Boren.

TIMES-SIGNAL SIGNALS.

Some Snyder men would make many sacrifices to be boys again. Some of them would even agree to go to Sunday School.

The fellow who has gone all summer with his long underwear might as well go ahead and leave it on now.

Women have such equal rights now that when two of them meet they don't know whether to kiss or shake hands.

Everybody in Snyder knows something that will cure your cold, banish your freckles or reduce your weight.

These channel swimmers might as well get ready to retire now that the football season is here once more.

The reason some weddings go off as scheduled the bridegroom doesn't know as much about the bride as her younger brother.

The Snyder man who trades one used car for another is setting a modern example of jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

There is a man in North Carolina named O. Dammit. That name must seem appropriate whenever he goes to sign a check.

As a general thing when a man hurries all day it's hard for him to keep from eating supper that way.

More than one farmer around Snyder who once frowned on Sunday motoring can now be found out in front of his place every Sunday ready to sell farm produce.

Do you suppose three ever was a social function at which refreshments were served that the guests didn't say they were "delicious?"

As a general thing after a man has lived on the same farm for forty years he gets over the idea that the government is going to help him.

More than one Snyder home would be far happier if the wife would only quit talking after she won the debate.

The breakfast food concerns at Battle Creek are using ads to urge people to "eat more corn products." They don't say anything

COULDN'T FOOL ALL OF 'EM ALL THE TIME.

Last week the Lynn County News told us how successfully George W. Truitt has, for the past thirty years, pastored the First Baptist church of Dallas. Had Bro. Hill stopped there, it would have been a good editorial for Rev. Truitt has done a wonderful work religiously for the leading city of Texas, but Bro. Hill then proceeded to "run down" another Baptist preacher, Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth. When the Rev. Mr. Norris has built the largest church in the world and it did not take him thirty years to do it either. Why run down one pastor by saying nice things about another? As to J. Frank Norris, he might fool Editor Hill, he might fool the Claude News editor, or he might fool thousands of other people living hundreds of miles from Fort Worth, but he will be dogged if we believe he is smart enough to fool ten thousand people who are constantly associated with him every week in the year. Yes, indeed, it is probable that Rev. Norris could fool many people who live hundreds of miles from Fort Worth but to assume that he is fooling ten thousand people who hear him preach every Sunday, is silly, members say he is a good preacher, has religion and is a wonderful pastor. Shall take the evidence of those constantly associated with Norris, or the statements of those who live hundreds of miles from him and many of whom do not know him? If Dr. Norris is vile, mean and crooked as some people paint him, do you suppose that ten thousand people would follow him through thick and thin, believing him to be a good man, and, too, people who know more about his life in one minute than Editor Hill knows in a whole year? Christian people are not going to follow a crook, and to maintain that they do is simply worse than child's prattle. They won't do it—Claude News.

So, They Were Married

By H. IRVING KING

ISRAEL VANDERBURG and Philip Scarsdale were highly respectable gentlemen of good financial standing. They cherished a thorough detestation of each other. It had sprung from a trifling disagreement ten years before and, watered and nourished by self-will, had reached its present proportions.

Israel had a daughter, Gladys, and Philip had a son, Thomas; and the young couple were so far from partaking of the paternal animosities that they considered each other about as nearly perfect as it is given to mortals to be. Both parents got wind of the fact and fulminated and dogmatized upon the subject to their degenerate children.

"I had an awful row with dad today about you," said Gladys one evening to Tom when they met upon the neutral ground of one of Mrs. Stuyvesant Mulgrove's dinner dances.

"Having them oftener than usual lately?" inquired Tom.

"Yes, I think so," replied Gladys, "and I'm tired of them. Yet I'm awfully fond of dad, too."

"I had a bit of a run-in with the governor, myself, yesterday about you," replied Tom. "The governor is an old trump in other respects; but when it comes to the question of our getting married he's the limit. What say, Gladys, let's go off and get married anyway. Neither of our respected parents shows any symptoms of recovering from what ails them."

Gladys was silent and thoughtful for fully two minutes—then she said: "We are going to be married, of course—that is settled. But it would be so much nicer if we could do so with the consent of our nar-

MRS. W. W. SMITH HONOREE AT DINNER PARTY.

The young girls who were being promoted from the junior to the intermediate department of the First Methodist Sunday School entertained their teacher and department Supt. Mrs. W. W. Smith, Saturday evening, Oct. 2, with a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Anderson. Mrs. Smith has been with the girls for the past four years, having been "promoted" with them from the primary department.

The idea of the tulle decorations. A delicious three-course dinner was served to Mrs. Smith and little Misses Brentz Anderson, Constance Collier, Lois Fay Gideon, Dora Dank, Hazel Bannister, Ruth Yoder, Janice Thompson, Aciedell Merton and Pauline Jenkins.

Mrs. Smith was presented with a beautiful silver serving tray, a gift from the girls, to show in part their appreciation for her untiring efforts and the inspiration she has been to them in the four years of association with her.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB HAS FIRST MEETING.

The members of the Twentieth Century Club met with Mrs. H. E. Rosser at her home Tuesday afternoon, September 28. The lesson was enjoyed after which Mrs. A. L. Pitts to Anson, was married to Emmett L. Whitaker of Lamesa, at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Anson, Texas, at the residence of the Rev. F. A. Pope, Missionary of Jones County Baptist Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker arrived in Snyder Sunday where they will make their home. Mr. Whitaker is associated with the Times-Signal here. Before his removing to this city a short time ago Mr. Whitaker was pastor of two churches in the Lamesa Association.

MRS. ROLAND BELL HOSTESS TO ALTRURIANS.

Mrs. W. R. Bell was hostess to the Altrurian Club members Friday, September 17, at the Wilsford Tea Rooms, at their first meeting after the summer vacation. Following the business session, Mrs. A. C. Preuitt favored the women with a musical number. The guests were then ushered into the dining room where at prettily arranged tables refreshments were served. Gladiolas were daintily favored. Tea guests were Mesdames Joe Strayhorn, H. J. Brice, Allen Warren, N. B. Moore, Joe Taylor, J. M. McBurnett of Brownfield, and Miss Elaine Rosser.

SCURRY'S GRAPE JELLY FOR FAIR SOUVENIRS.

Miss Laura Belle Roten tells us that in each county where there is a county home demonstration agent, that agent is requested to have two women from her clubs make twelve small containers of preserves, jams or jellies to be sent to the Dallas State Fair. Scurry County's grapes have been chosen as the fruit from which the twelve containers of jelly are made, and Mrs. Will Merritt and her mother, Mrs. Rhodes of the Pleasant Hill community have been selected to prepare the jelly. These containers of sweets are to be given as souvenirs to members of the Fair Association.

HOME DEMONSTRATION EXHIBITS OFF TO FAIR

The Women's Club of the Pleasant Hill community is sending a complete exhibit to the Dallas State Fair. The five Scurry County Home Demonstration Club girls who won trips to the Fair are Era Hart, Farris Lee Hart, Mary Davis, Farris Stevenson and Mary Ann Noshinger. Three of the girls are from the Ennis Creek Club and two from the Hermleigh club. They are sending a complete canned exhibit. It is possible for only five girls from the entire county to win trips, yet it is the desire of the officials to have a number of contestants try for that honor. We are told that these five girls were the only ones to bring in their exhibits. It is probable that there is other work that has been done by the club girls that is just as good if it had been turned in to be judged. Officials wish to urge more girls to take part in contests that may be offered in the future. Miss Roten and the five girls will leave for Dallas, probably the 18th of October.

Thursday, October 7, Mrs. H. H. Jeffries of the Union Home Demonstration Club and Mrs. Josie York Lindley of the Fluvanna Club will give a food preservation demonstration at the Sweetwater Fair at Sweetwater. Club women from Scurry County, whether a member of a home demonstration club or not, are urged to be present at this demonstration.

WHITAKER-PITTS.

Miss Della Lee Pitts of Seminole, who recently moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pitts to Anson, was married to Emmett L. Whitaker of Lamesa, at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Anson, Texas, at the residence of the Rev. F. A. Pope, Missionary of Jones County Baptist Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker arrived in Snyder Sunday where they will make their home. Mr. Whitaker is associated with the Times-Signal here. Before his removing to this city a short time ago Mr. Whitaker was pastor of two churches in the Lamesa Association.

MOTHERS CULTURE CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. AN. DERSON.

Members of the Mothers' Self-culture Club met with Mrs. E. J. Anderson at her home Tuesday afternoon, October 5th. Mrs. Anderson also led the lesson. The following program was enjoyed: "Nature's Provision for the Protection of Animals by Special Mental Gifts and by Special Physical Characteristics Suited to their Needs," Mrs. Jack Harris. "Coloration of Some Animals," Mrs. C. F. Sentell. "How Arctic Animals Turn White," Mrs. H. G. Towle. "An Orphan Bear," Mrs. Geo. Northcutt.

A very interesting round-table discussion on "Making a Just Inference" was led by Mrs. Anderson. Among those stressed were the following: "What estimate do you make of such a career as that of Cyrus W. Field?" "What do you infer from the contrast between the career of that of Jefferson and that of Hamilton?" "What do you conclude as to the value of the knowledge of General Gorgas and that of Lieutenant

SANS SOCIANS INITIATE NEW MEMBERS.

Mrs. John Covey and Miss Eula Richardson were hostesses to the Sans Soci Club members and guest, Mrs. Loree Curry at their meeting Tuesday evening, October 5. A two-course luncheon was enjoyed at the Wilsford Tea Rooms. Misses Hattie Herm, Mary Strayhorn, Rhoda Martin, and Mabel Wilkerson were initiated into the club, the initiation "tour" including various points of the city.

UNION DOTS.

The winds blew and the rain fell in torrents just about Sunday School time at Union Sunday, so there was no Union School at either church and only a few persons got there. The superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school, Edgar Shuler, and wife, J. E. Huffman and family, Dale Ware and the writer were the fortunate or unfortunate ones to get there. The wind and rain together wasted some cotton. Don't expect though that the government report will hardly take notice of it.

The young folks gathered at Mrs. Pearl Martin's Sunday night and had singing.

The whole cry is cotton pickers, more cotton pickers and of course we need them but I sometimes fear that we show some traits in the effort to get hands that we would rather the world and everybody else didn't know. We even offer our neighbors hands a raise in the price of picking just to get our cotton out forgetting that he possibly needs them and their help more than we do. Then we use God's holy day to go to town to try to get hands and we even pretend that we don't think that such things are wrong when we know that it is a violation and deprecation of the day and of this we may be sure that we will not be held blameless but will be called to an accounting.

We understand that the Snyder high school will probably try to give the children part of the day for the purpose of helping to gather the cotton if the weather continues favorable. It is a good move and Mr. Bagwell and the school board should be commended for such thoughtfulness.

There will be preaching at Union Sunday by Bro. Moores, the pastor of the Methodist church, if the weather permits. This is the regular singing evening. Also everybody is invited to come, and we want you to remember that the county singing convention will be held at Union the fourth Saturday night and Sunday of this month. Every class in the county is urged to elect delegates and send to the business meeting on Saturday night then everybody come on Sunday, and let's have a great day. We have two churches here so that we may accommodate everyone who attends.

Every class is urged to bring their song books so that we may have a good supply for each

Greek Sphinx Unlike Ideas of Egyptians

The Greek sphinx was not a monument, like the surviving sphinxes of Egypt. She was a creature of Greek mythology, having the body of a lion, the wings of a bird, the tail of a serpent and the head of a woman. She presented the Thebans with a riddle according to the legend, and slew all those who were unable to guess it. Edipus solved it at length, and in chagrin she cast herself over a cliff and died.

Somewhat similar composite figures are familiar in Egyptian art—animals or lions with heads of other animals or of men. The Greeks called these representative sphinxes, and we have adopted their term. To the Egyptians, however, the figures were artistic conceptions of an imaginary animal believed to be a favorite incarnation of Ra, the sun god. The pharaohs were held to be the descendants of Ra, and his representatives on earth. For that reason the face of a sphinx was modeled after that of the reigning monarch, or sometimes from that of the queen.

Of the numerous Egyptian sphinxes the most celebrated and remarkable of course, is the Great Sphinx of Gizeh, lying among the pyramids as a guardian of the necropolis. From inscriptions found on this famous monument when the dust of ages was cleared away from the front of it in 1818, the figure is taken to represent Har-emchis, a special form of the sun god.

E. L. Noble of Texas City, and Ralph and O. B., both of Dallas, arrived in Snyder Friday and with their brother Charles, who lives here, accompanied the body of their father, the late Judge J. Z. Noble, to Rasca where funeral services were held. Charles returned to the city Monday.

Mrs. L. A. Wade returned Saturday from Baylor hospital at Dallas, where she recently underwent a major operation. She is reported doing nicely.

The Times-Signal is glad to see the good and venerable friend, Mr. T. J. Broxson, on our streets again, after being kept in for several months on account of illness.

Used to Make Medicines

The aborigines of tropical America believed the fern to possess special curative properties and when made into a syrup it was used for pulmonary and other internal ailments. An oil made from the male fern of a certain species has long been and is today highly valued by physicians as an excellent vermifuge. In addition to its medicinal virtues, the roots of this fern are highly prized for making beer and other beverages pleasing to the taste. At the present time the French believe fervently in the medicinal qualities of a syrup made from the Venus-hair fern.
