Adams' estimate of Jackson has been challenged by Dr. Archibald Henderson, who tells in the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer the result of his exhaustive researches regarding Jackson's early life. He finds that Jackson, as a boy, received a better education than the average child of his station in life. Later he attended Waxham academy. He continued his studies in that part of Carolina known then as New Acquisition. An account of the life of Rev. Francis Cum-

Under Big Handicap As in the case of human beings, so in bird life there are those which for some reason or other are fated to go through life with certain handicaps. Unfortunately, man is mainly responsible for bird cripples. Rabbit trapping, as carried on today, is responsible for damage to thousands of pheasants. No less than 50 per cent of those shot in a small wood recently had only one foot, but they had managed to survive and were in perfect condition apart from this damage.

Smaller birds often get a leg smashed, but seem able to get along without it by hopping on the sound one and using their wings. Not only will a starling just manage to exist under such conditions, but it will fight and scramble after food and manage to hold its own.

In wild-fowling it is frequently found that after a large flock of birds has been put to flight a smaller number remain behind and seem loath to fly. If these were examined through a good pair of glasses, they will be seen to be the halt and the lame that have been damaged in some part of the body. Nature has a rough-and-ready way of healing their hurts and many cripples survive for a time. Few birds that are born cripples survive for long, for their enemies are many and the weakest are the first to go.

In Amsterdam, Holland, the municipal electric light works sell air to citizens. This seems an odd byoduct of the electric industry until it is considered that the electric ozonation process is one of the most effective means of puri-fying the air just as lightning "freshens" a dank and humid atsphere, stimulating those who breathe it. The Dutch air is drawn down through a chimney 100 feet high, purified and dried by electricity and compressed into clyinders like those used for soda fountain gas in America. ## Put Faith in Image to Frighten Smallpox Motoring along a country road in India, the attention of tourists was called to a curious-looking object by the roadside. It was a roughly carved little image, mounted on a small stool, with three legs. The image betrayed no signs of expert workmanship and was quite clearly the handiwork of some rough village carpenter. The eyes and mouth were roughly carved, and vermillion paint brought these into prominence. The little creature had also two wooden arms.

Stopping the car, the tourists waited until some villager came along the road, and questioned him as to the reason why this image had been left by the roadside. He pointed out that it had been placed a few yards over the boundary line of the village, and that it had been there since the early hours of the

It was an image of the goddess of the village temple, so common in south India, and represented the deity who controls smallpox. The scourge had broken out and had laid low a number of people, and it was felt that unless the goddess could be persuaded to transfer the evil more would fall sick.

So the little image was made and removed outside the bounds of the village. Naturally, the people in the next village did not appreciate this attention, and the custom is to move it from village to village. Then sometimes it is possible to get Mohammedan, for a small fee, to destroy it completely. Thus does the Indian villager deal with the troublesome disease.

Dorothy and Sally, age five and three, were visiting their grandparents in a southern ladiana town. One morning they had been out playing when they suddenly burst into the house very much excited and frightened. Being asked the reason for their hurried entrance, Dorothy gasped out: "Oh, there was a horse went running down the street and nobody was with it. And it didn't have a thing on, not even a strap-nothing but just its skin and its tall."-Los Angeles Times.

New and Marvelously Beautiful Fisher Bodies -a host of Mechanical Improvements-New Features found only on the costliest cars

-plus an Amazing Reduction in Prices!

America has always expected great things from its greatest industry. But the announcement of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet has been the automotive sensation of all time! Here is a car which in beauty, luxury, quality and modern design challenges the costliest creations of the day. Here, in a price class where average standards have been the rule, is now offered a car so far beyond all expectation that comparisons cease to exist.

Seven superb models styled as low priced cars were never styled before and offering such marks of fine car distinction as: full crown one-piece fenders, bullet type lamps and "fish tail" rear deck modeling! New and supremely beautiful bodies by Fisher! And, above all, infinitely finer quality-the result of a host of additional improvements such sa AC oilfilter, AC air cleaner, coincidental steering and ignition lock, larger 17-inch steering wheel, gasoline guage and many, many others!

All this is combined to a supreme degree in the long famous leader of the Chevrolet line-the Coach. It would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at any reasonably low price. But to sell it at the amazing price of $595 is a feat of history making proportions. This one price reduction alone would suffice to center worldwide attention on Chevrolet. But due to economies of tremendous production plus the vast resources of General Motors, Chevrolet also announces striking price reductions on other models.

For years Chevrolet has led the world in providing Quality at Low Cost. But now with a new and more beautiful car -with a car infinitely finer in quality and greatly lower in price, Chevrolet stands supreme and unchallenged in dollar-for-dollar value!

No matter in what price class you intend to buy or whether you plan to spend more or less than the price of a Chevrolet, come in today and see the most beautiful low priced Coach ever designed. Admire its marvelous style and grace! Mark its many new fine-car features! Learn for yourself by personal inspection why, at its new low price, it is the greatest sensation of America's greatest industry!

Now, what you just said about Polly-you know, Mr. Milikin, it means a lot to me coming here to his vacation at his country home, see her, and hoping all the time that some day—" He stopped and looked off at the bold shoulder of the quarry hill that jutted against

"Of course, Peter, you know ma and I think a lot of you, being a nice boy and we've known you all our lives, and I always thought Polly did, too-but she's a prudent girl, and you couldn't blame her if she did get rather interested in that new automobile salesman that's staying over to Andrew's place. He's always wanting to take us all out in his cars-and ma and I certainly do enjoy it in our old age," he chuckled reminiscently. 'And Polly?" questioned Peter's low, strained voice. "Well-she's nice to him," admit-ted Mr. Millikin. "Now, that young feller, he never comes the long way around when he's coming here, Peter; he just shoots around the corner by the church and he's here in two minutes. That's the way he come tonight, and whiffed off Polly and her mother, while you was moochin' all around by the quarry in your bus. Well, Polly's gone for the evening-sorry," said Mr. Millikin, and, stepping back inside his own gate, he watched the disappointed suitor drive off.

"Going back the same way-long way around, jiminy," ejaculated Polly's father as he hobbled around to the rear of the house to feed his chickens. "I just can't see our Polly marrying anyone that's got no more wits than Peter Marr." That night when Polly came home, her father related his conversation with Peter. The girl

My Thanks

Just as far as words go, I want to thank one and all for the patronage I have received during the season that is just closing. My business was as good as I had expected, and I did my utmost to give the very best service possible.

As most of you know, I have recently had the misfortune to lose my gin by fire. This came as a severe blow to me, yet I am going to put forth my best efforts to rebuild and be ready when next year's season opens to take care of my former customers and all others who may see fit to patronize

Again thanking one and all, and not forgetting the fire boys who did their best to save my property, for I was bedfast at the time, and not able to help myself, I am

"Wicked Weed"

Hops did not attain their present popularity without a struggle. Their use in beer was actually for-bidden by Henry VIII, and in 1649

the city of London petitioned par-llament against them on the grounds that "this wicked weed would spoil the drink and endanger the lives of the people." But, in spite of this, hops had come into common use by Elizabeth's reign,

Creosote in Chimneys

The division of agricultural engineering says that creosote deposit in a chimney is a product of distillation from burning wood. Greater quantities of the deposit are pro-duced when green wood is burned, so the best precaution is to be sure that you are using dry wood, as this will lessen the creosote. Chim-neys subjected to cold winds are more susceptible to creosote than others, as the walls seldom become

Immense Salt Beds

That the southwest United States rests on a bed of salt averaging 500 feet thick is the conclusion geologists are drawing from the natures of cores brought up from oil wells all over the region. The bed is known to be under the surface soil of 40,000 square miles of Texas and is believed to extend far into New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas. for the Kansas City Star.)

Plenty of money has always gone into floral exhibitions, and this is literally true in England, where a florist has succeeded in getting delicate tints with the aid of silver coins. He drops silver coins in water in which the flowers are standing. Silver hydroxide is formed and the action of the chemical changes the natural color of the blossoms, giving them shadings not possible under natural conditions. After the coloring has proceeded to a satisfactory degree, the coins are removed and a few crumbs of sicked lime or mortar

In this way the horse was spared a double burden and the travelers made good speed.

Finns Once Powerful

The Finns are descendants of a western branch of the great racial family of which the Mongolians are the modern representatives in the Far East. But there is evidence that the Finns, or a closely allied race, were at a prehistoric time spread over a large area of Europe. In the course of time they mixed with other races to such an extent that some of their original characteristics have been modified or lost, ised victory to those whom he while some of those of other races have become Finnish. ### Character in Making

Some writers assert that character is formed in the days of childhood, says the Los Angeles Times They allege that in infancy the habits of age are formed. If the kid throws mud he is going to be politician. If he likes to play with dolls he is going to be a movie actor. If he fights with all the other boys in the block he will be a lawyer. If he robs birds' nests "Oh, not at all," declares the he is going to be a promoter. So young lady smilingly. "I am young, the argument might go.
