

MANY VISITORS EXPECTED FOR MOSER SPEECH

Delegates From As Far Northwest As Lubbock Scheduled To Swell Co-op Gathering Today.

When C. O. Moser, vice president of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, appears on the city tabernacle platform (Thursday) afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, he will speak to a number of visitors as well as to hundreds of farmers and others from this county.

Mr. Moser's address will center around plans of the new West Texas Cotton Growers Association, which will be ready for operation with the opening of the new cotton season.

He appeared at Coleman and Hamlin Tuesday, at Roby and Smith yesterday. He will proceed to Haskell this evening, and to Colorado Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Clyde Daniel of Abilene, organization director of the new WTCCA, has been advised that delegates will attend the Snyder meeting from as far northwest as Lubbock.

The delegation from that city will include a group of cotton growers and business men, it is said.

A lovely refreshment plate was passed to Meses. Clyde Shull, E. J. Anderson, Charles Cooper and J. O. Dodson, guests, and to Meses. W. B. Lee, H. G. Towle, Garrett Harrell, W. R. Johnson, G. A. Hagan, Verne McMillan, R. H. Curran, A. J. Towle, A. D. Erwin, Hugh Boren, T. L. Lollar, O. P. Thrane and Forest Sears.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wedgeworth have returned from a visit with friends and relatives in Teneha.

Information For Our Housewives

WHEN you pick up a can of corn in the grocery store and look at the label, decorated with a picture of an ear of corn and a fancy name like "Golden Glow," "Smith's Banner" or "Best Country Gentleman," what do you really learn about the contents? How can you tell, in choosing among several brands, which one is worth the most or is most suitable for your purpose?

Price alone is not an indication, for one store may price the same brand differently from another. The fancy name tells you nothing. In fact, the contents of cans of apparently different brands, sold at varying prices, may look and taste about the same when you open them up. It is said that there are about 4,500 brands of canned corn, 1,000 brands of canned peaches, 300 brands of canned pineapple and 1,000 brands of canned salmon. Many wholesale distributors buy and sell according to fancy brand names which mean certain quality grades to them, but which mean nothing to the housewife. How can she expect to judge canned foods by brands or prices?

Your government has some help for you if you are interested in procuring the best value for every penny you outlay for food. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has already established definite quality standards for several kinds of canned goods, particularly corn, peas, tomatoes, snap beans and lima beans and is working on others. The bureau urges canners and distributors to print these quality grades on the labels so the housewife can tell at a glance what grade she is getting. It urges the housewife to ask for these grades until they are in common use.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics believes that it would be much simpler and fairer to everybody concerned—grower, canner, wholesaler, retailer and housewife—if "Grade A" or "Fancy," "Grade B" or "Choice," "Grade C" or "Standard" and "Substandard" (now required by law) were plainly printed on labels according to the contents of the can. Under the food and drugs act, labels on all food products must be truthful. So it is sufficient for the canner or distributor to learn for himself what grades he has to offer and to guarantee the contents on the labels. If the cans enter into interstate commerce, and the statements are not truthful, the foods may be seized and the canner prosecuted by the government.

There is also a special new official grading service which is available to those who wish to pay for it. If an inspector appointed by the government has personally supervised every stage of preparing and canning the food, including the sanitation of the plant, the distributor or canner may mark his goods "U. S. Grade A" and so on. But the "U. S." may not appear on the label unless this service has actually been performed.

How does knowing the grade affect your selection in buying canned foods? Like every careful housewife, you doubtless have different uses for different qualities. Take canned corn as an example. For a company dinner you are willing to pay a little extra and get "Grade A." When you give the family plain stewed corn, you want it good in flavor, but not high in price. "Grade B" or "Choice" would be very nice, and "Grade C" would do if you are watching pennies pretty closely. "Standard" or "Substandard" (which merely means a wholesome food lacking some of the qualities of the higher grades) would give adequate flavor to such dishes as corn pudding, corn soup, corn fritters, tomatoes with corn and cheese, and so on.

It is easy to see how helpful these grades will be when they are once adopted universally. It is important for the housewife's voice to be heard in the matter, for at present distributors of canned goods declare that the housewife does not read the labels. When she convinces them that she does, and that she prefers to buy canned goods bearing plainly marked quality grades, she is more likely to get this information on the labels.

THE next time you are in a vegetable market, you might look about and see how many members of the cabbage family are present. It depends on the season, of course. Brussels sprouts only appear from September to January. Cabbage sprouts come in the fall after the main heads have been cut off. Broccoli, also, is in season during the fall and winter. Cauliflower appears on the market late in summer or early in the fall and keeps coming from different sections of the country all winter. But hard-headed white cabbage is the most plentiful year-round member of this family. Yes, cauliflower, broccoli and cabbage, and kale, kohlrabi and collards are all cousins with the same family name of Brassica. There are two Chinese cousins which can be met occasionally in large city markets—petai and pak-choi.

Some of these members of the same family are considered very aristocratic and others quite plebeian. Unfortunately for their pretensions, nutritionists say that the fancied superiority of some kinds is not a matter of either food value or flavor, but is largely governed by the length of the season, amount grown and association with a high price or scarcity at some time or other. For instance, a few years ago broccoli was almost unknown in America, although a common favorite in Italy and France. A pound bunch of broccoli sold here for about 60 cents. Growers planted broccoli extensively, and now in the large city market one can sometimes buy three pounds for about 20 cents.

Ordinary green cabbage is the most desirable of all the Brassicas in respect to its vitamin C content, and to some ways of thinking it is the most delicate of all in flavor if properly cooked. So you can see what possibilities there are for your menus at different cost levels, using one or another member of the cabbage family for a vegetable. Some good dinner menus are suggested at the end with this idea.

Practically all the "Brassicas" contain sulphur compounds. When you boil cabbage too long and it turns reddish brown and develops a disagreeable flavor and color, the sulphur compounds are asserting themselves. The same is true of yellowish brown Brussels sprouts or kale or any of the others. Overcooking also destroys the vitamins in all these vegetables, so there are at least two good reasons for cooking in the shortest possible time—just enough to make them tender. If they are to be prepared by boiling, cook them in an excess of lightly salted water (except kale, which is cooked like spinach, in the water that clings to its leaves after washing); and young cabbage, which may be cooked in a small amount of water. Cook them uncovered to preserve their natural green color and, strangely enough, you will not be nearly as troubled by the characteristic cabbage odor through the house as when the saucepan is covered and steam escapes from it. However, you can steam them if you prefer. Steaming takes slightly longer. Here are some details for preparation:

CUT broccoli into pieces suitable for individual servings and split the thick stalks lengthwise into strips. Buy 1 1/2 pounds for five people. Steam for 20 minutes or boil for 15. Lift the cooked broccoli carefully so as not to break the flower-heads. Serve with melted butter or Hollandaise sauce. Considered somewhat of a luxury, especially with the rich sauce.

A pound of Brussels sprouts will be enough for five. Trim outer leaves and cut ends, and boil uncovered for about 10 minutes. Serve with melted butter or a white sauce. A short season keeps the price of Brussels sprouts fairly constant and a little high.

Cauliflower cooks most rapidly if the flowerets are separated, although some people like to keep the head whole. Ten to 11 minutes is enough for the flowerets of a two-pound head, either steamed or boiled. The supply of cauliflower is not nearly as great as cabbage, and the heads spoil much more readily, so cauliflower is generally high priced.

Cabbage of some kind is available the year around, and most of the varieties are relatively inexpensive. If quarried, one pound of green or white cabbage can be steamed in 11 minutes, boiled in eight to 10 minutes, and, if shredded, the time is reduced to between five and seven minutes. Curly or Savoy cabbage, which some people consider the most delicate in flavor, is cooked in the same ways; also the Chinese cabbages, collards and cabbage sprouts. Red cabbage is an exception in that it requires some acid in the cooking water or it will change color. An apple is often cut up and cooked with red cabbage to help keep its fine color and give a pleasant flavor.

Kohlrabi, sometimes called "turnip root," is a peculiar looking vegetable which grows with its roots above ground. It is only good when young, before the root becomes fibrous. Both root and leaves are used. Buy a pound and a half for five people, trim off the leaves and keep, and after peeling and slicing the root, boil all for 25 to 30 minutes.

Newspapers Will Sponsor Special To World's Fair

August 25 is Texas Day at the Century of Progress in Chicago. The Amarillo Globe-News and the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal are sponsoring a special train leaving Amarillo on the Santa Fe railroad on Sunday, August 20, at 2:00 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 1:25 p. m. on Monday, August 21. The train will leave Chicago Saturday night, August 27, at 7:00 p. m.

The price from Amarillo will be $67.50, which includes the railroad fare, berth, meals on Harvey diner going and coming, five nights at the New Palmer House in Chicago with two persons to a room and two to a lower berth or one to the upper, and several side trips.

Wilbur C. Hawk, general manager of the Globe-News Publishing Company, points out that the complete round trip from Snyder, including railroad fare and two meals in addition to the price quoted above, would be only $72.80.

Through special arrangements with the Amarillo and Lubbock newspapers, The Times can place a few Snyder and Scurry County people on the special train, and at the $67.50 rate from Amarillo and return, or at the $72.86 from Snyder and return. If you are interested, inquire at this office for further details, or write direct to Miss Lois Black, Globe-News Publishing Company, Amarillo.

Rug Making Brings Profits For Women

Rug making is a profitable home industry that can be easily carried on with other household duties. It has been found by six former County Home Demonstration Club women who have formed a hooked rug and knit association for promoting the marketing of their products. The average cost for making a hooked rug is 12 cents per foot, and the average selling price $1 per square foot, leaving 88 cents for the labor, these women report.

Mrs. Robert Scott of Newman says that she can complete a hooked rug two by four feet in five days and do all her other house work. "I average making one dollar per day with my rug work besides the joy of creating something beautiful," says Mrs. Scott.

Lawyer—"And are you ready to swear to the remarkable state of facts which you have outlined to me?"

Client—"Certainly, I'll swear to it—but I wouldn't advise you to bet any money on it."

Pleads Not Guilty

Ayanley Johnston of Cleveland, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, as a director of the standard Trust Bank of Cleveland, pleaded not guilty to misapplication of bank funds when arraigned.

Red Cross Meeting For Gail Thursday

Relief of unemployment in Borden County was discussed at length last Thursday during a meeting of the county's Red Cross chapter at Gail.

C. Edway Farmer, West Texas field man for the relief organization, explained in detail how the movement is working hand-in-hand with the national Red Cross to meet the needs of the people.

Red & White Picnic Planned Next Week

The annual Red & White basket picnic for the Abilene district will be held Wednesday of next week at Buffalo Gap, according to W. C. Hamilton, manager of the local Wooten wholesale house.

Last year's picnic attracted about 2,500 Red & White merchants and their families and guests, and it is expected that this year's crowd will eclipse that figure. Practically all of the Red & White families in the Snyder area will attend the picnic.

CREATIVE ART COURSE.
I shall give instruction in a four-week class in creative art. A student course may be selective. The course of instruction will include still life and life drawing, creative and interpretative design, with wood and linoleum block printing, landscape painting with week-end field trips to Double Mountain and Cap Rock areas and interesting ranches. —Eula Stinson, assisted by Vernelle Stinson. WHAT'LL WE DO AFTER COTTON IS PLOWED UP? HERE'S WHAT

What will Scurry County farmers do with the land on which they plow up cotton under the federal contract?

W. H. Darrow, Extension Service editor, sends the following suggestions from College Station: "The cotton reduction campaign has created an emergency about which a few things ought to be said."

It's the future that counts. By the time this is read the campaign will probably be history. The cash cotton rentals will probably not have arrived, but the problem of what to do with retired acres will be staring every cotton farmer in the face.

Some farmers will likely meet it by going fishing. Others will vainly try to plant this summer or fall every kind of a cash crop they can think of. The majority we hope, will take another look at the contract they signed and think hard about ways of making extra money out of those extra acres without violating their agreements.

Boiled to its essence, the cotton contract forces the signer to do something toward living at home or toward enriching his land, or toward stopping soil erosion.

What can a farmer do with these extra acres? Well, he can sow cowpeas, season permitting, and have some good cow and hog feed, and perhaps some food for his family. If he get a rain he might try a late sowing of sudan grass. It should give him grazing for work stock and cows until way up in the fall.

He may plant some late feed to get his stock through the winter. He may dig a trench silo and plow to fill it with late feed. If some of the acres are rather unproductive anyway, he might get ready to have a filing at a permanent pasture by sowing improved grasses and clovers this fall.

Speaking of pastures, a fine way to handle a few acres is by sowing to such small grains as oats or barley or rye this fall. A winter pasture is something much to be desired, thousands of farmers can tell you.

A good cover crop of sorghum or cowpeas for turning under late this fall might be a good move. Whatever the future holds in store it's a safe bet that low yielding acres will not pay tomorrow any more than they do today. A farmer for his own good ought to either turn his poor acres up with cover crops or manure, or turn them out to pasture.

Typewriter ribbons at The Times

Mrs. F. R. Roberts Buried Here July 8

Mrs. Frances R. Roberts, 67 years old, was buried Saturday afternoon, July 8, in the Snyder cemetery. Rev. Philip C. McGahey, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at services conducted at the Odom Funeral Home.

Palbearers were F. D. Bruton, James McEntire, Evans and Eddie Millhollon, Albert Corley and Whit Farmer.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Mollie Thomas, of Bibley, Louisiana; and four sons, Charlie Roberts of Lingo, New Mexico, George C. Roberts of Waco, Luther Roberts of Kennard and Lee Roberts of Snyder.

Mistake In Penney Ad.

A typographical error was made by The Times in the J. C. Penney Company ad last week. The wording of the ad on women's shoes should have been: "A Price That Shouts Savings! Women's Shoes—Every kind with every type of heel! Buy a number of pairs at Clearance Price—88c, $1.98."

Continuation Of Home Activities Urged on Farmer

There should be no let-up in living at home activities now that quick cotton money is in sight, points out Mildred Horton, state home demonstration agent, and H. H. Williamson, vice director and state agent of the Extension Service in a joint statement to farm families and to county farm and home demonstration agents.

"All that may be gained by cash cotton rentals this summer may be lost this fall and winter unless all the feed and food that can possibly be raised to advantage on the farm is put into storehouse and pantry," they say.

"Texas farm families saved themselves the last three years by making their farms almost self-sustaining as far as feed and food are concerned. There is no reason now to stop feeding the hogs and bees for winter killing, or to sell off most

Scurry County Man On Trial In Abilene

From Abilene Morning News: I. E. Wallace, Scurry County resident, waived trial when arraigned Monday on a charge of disposing of mortgaged property. Bond of $750, set by Justice Esco Walter, and returnable to the grand jury at the Forty-Second District Court at the September term had not been arranged Monday night.

Complaint against Wallace, sworn to by H. E. Sanderson, charges he disposed of an automobile on which the Lone Star Finance Company held a mortgage. Sanderson is a representative of the company. Amount assertedly due on the car was $175.

of the poultry flock, or to give up plans for a fall garden, or to give away the steam pressure cooker and sealer. Texas cotton farmers have gotten a 'break' if they hang on to their depression life-saver—living at home—they have a good chance to turn this 'break' into a permanently better future," the statement concludes.

The way to make your dreams come true is to work them out day by day.

Tells How She Took 4 Inches Off Hips 7 Inches Off Waist

In 40 days by taking Kruschen Salts, Mrs. Helga Blauch of New York City reduced 26½ pounds— took four inches off hips, three inches off waist. She writes: "I haven't gone hungry a moment—I feel fine and look 10 years younger."

"To get rid of double chins, bulging hips, ugly rolls of fat on waist and upper arms safely and without discomfort—at the same time build up glorious health and acquire a clear skin, bright eyes, energy and vivaciousness—to look younger and feel it—take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast."

One jar lasts four weeks and costs but a trifle at any drugstore the world over. Make sure you get Kruschen because it's safe. Money back if not joyfully satisfied. 3G-3

Snyder, Texas, Thursday Afternoon, July 20, 1933

The Times Creed.

For the cause that needs assistance; For the wrongs that need resistance; For the future in the distance, And the good that we can do.

THE WEEKLY DOZEN.

Three-Two, Four-Two, Me-Too. Alcoholic content, 32. Cotton processing tax, 4.2. Patronage seeker's cry, "Me, too." Roosevelt's decree to Turpe, "Go to." Four slants at the Democratic spectrum.

Ladies of the Jury.

The ladies of the New York jury who convicted a dentist for practicing without a license certainly proved that they believe in a law with teeth in it.—The Pathfinder.

Shades of Anthony Comstock.

If Anthony Comstock, the fiery nineteenth century roundsman of the Lord, could get one good look at the modern brand of bathing suits, he would not only turn over in his grave . . . he would pull down his moral blinds.

Warships and the Peace Move.

Probably one reason why the international peace conference hasn't gone over so well is because of the fact that while it is in progress our nation let the contract for $280,000,000 worth of warships.—Honey Grove Signal-Citizen.

The Way to Chicago.

There are ways and more ways of transportation to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago. One of the most attractive of these is a mode and means is the special train that is to leave Amarillo shortly. Read of it in another column of The Times.

When Times Are Hard.

George McKee, Anderson, South Carolina, says times are not hard. "I never saw a suit of underwear until I was 17 years old." Heck, man! We'd be riding a wave of prosperity if we could get by with anything like that during the Scurry County summer of 1933.

Crime Rackets Increase.

Those who argue with ignorant honesty that the racketeer will be wiped out with the advent of legalized beer and liquor need only to read the wet dailies to learn that rackets are increasing in the already-wet states and cities. Another reason why you should vote the dry ticket August 28.

Pessimism Pete's Plaint.

Pessimism Pete is pleading with President Roosevelt this week to do something about the relatively few garments a woman must wear during the summer and the relatively manifold garments a man must wear during the summer . . . if they are to keep comparatively cool and decent.

Two Cents Make a Bigger Smell.

Little news items indicate that Postmaster General Farley is pleased with the showing of the local two-cent rate. People are funny animals. They fuss and fume for the sake of a few cents a year in their postage bill, but they stretch tooth and toenail in order to buy and keep up a car better than their neighbors!

A Pathetic Story.

The current issue of West Texas Today, official WTCC organ, contains a pathetic story of divorce as related in a school theme by a 15-year-old Amarillo youth. The editor's cryptic comment is an editorial and an indictment in few words: "Times Are Broken — But Hearts Break . . . The Law Has Helped Write This Tragedy of Shattered Youth."

Pay Day for Youth.

Tragedy of a Snyder youth whose pay day was hastened near Fort Worth by an assassin's attack should leave an indelible imprint on the minds of his former friends in Scurry County. Millions have been made in the various law-resisting rackets of the country, but the age-old maxim that crime does not pay has not been erased by time or modernism.

Choose Your Own Weapons.

Every new battleship only brings the nation building it a little more dangerously close to war. Yet it is a part of the admiralty's tradition that more and bigger battleships can keep us out of war. They do not consider the fact that wars were fought before battleships were invented, and that as long as the "peace by force" theory is followed nations will continue going to war with whatever weapons are at hand.—Tulsa, Oklahoma, Tribune.

It was 11:45 and conversation in the parlor was lagging.

She remarked: "A penny for your thoughts."

He replied: "Why, I was just thinking of going home."

And her father yelled from the top of the stairs: "Give him a dollar, Mary—It's a bargain."

O. P. Thrane, Builder and Friend.

When announcement was made last week that O. P. Thrane had resigned as vice president of the Snyder National Bank, Scurry County was stunned almost as completely as if a worthy citizen had passed to his final reward.

For Pete Thrane has been a community builder, a friend to his neighbors, and a conservative banker, all in one.

It is doubtful that any man in Scurry County is held in higher esteem than Pete Thrane. He brought rare personality and genius to West Texas when he was a very young man, and then allowed himself to be molded into the rough-and-ready likeness of his adopted terrain, even as West Texas chose him as leader and builder.

Much of the financial stability of this community must be laid at the feet of this unassuming man. Much of the rare spirit of confidence in our bank that has characterized the past three years of national monetary cobwebbery must be credited to his fairness and conservatism.

Pete Thrane will blush with astonishment when he reads this tribute, for he has ever been a retiring citizen. He has always been in the vanguard when any progressive movement was at stake . . . always a jaggard when self-praise was the prize.

Good News For Colorado.

Announcement here Monday morning by Divisional Engineer French of the State Highway Commission that his department would proceed at once with preliminaries looking to the awarding of construction contracts on Highway No. 101 came as good news to the general public. Colorado and Snyder, with intermediate communities cooperating, have expressed considerable interest in this project through the past several months.

Realization of a north-south paved highway, with probable ultimate connection with Highway No. 9 at either Sterling City or San Angelo, will be reckoned as an asset beyond the ordinary value. In addition to opening an avenue for additional tourist traffic, it will expand territory into which Colorado merchants and wholesalers may reasonably look for patronage.

Another desirable aspect couched in Mr. French's announcement is found. As the project is under construction, employment will be given to a considerable number of men and concerns identified with the sale of building materials may realize an acceptable market from a source not often available in this immediate part of the state.

Colorado received another bit of interesting news last week in announcement out of Washington that proposed post office building here would be included in a list of accepted projects expected to receive final okay, after having run the gauntlet of the usual red tape.—Colorado Record.

Hours on the Farm.

Whether the 30-hour week will ever penetrate to the rural districts is a problem that is worrying some of the bright editorial writers of the country. The Minneapolis Journal, published in the very heart of the agonized agricultural belt of the Middle West, has its doubts.

Noting that Secretary Wallace has yet to work out a time schedule for the farmer, the Journal takes time by the forelock and submits a schedule that is suggestive—very suggestive. First, of course, every farmer will have Sunday off. That means the cows will go unmilked and the livestock will have to rustle feed and water for themselves. The Journal's proposed schedule of hours on the farm goes like this:

- 7:00 a. m.—Rise, take brisk exercise in home gymnasium, followed by shower and rub-down. 8:00 a. m.—Breakfast. 9:00 a. m. to 12:00 noon—Regular farm work. 12:00 noon to 3:00 p. m.—Dinner and siesta. 3:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m.—Farm work. 5:00 p. m. to 7:00 p. m.—Golf. 7:00 p. m.—Supper. 8:00 p. m. to 11:00 p. m.—Contract bridge.

This is for the farmer himself. Nothing can be done, the Journal fears, for the farmer's wife, since in view of the bureau of the census farm women are not considered to be "employed." All the government's devices for regulating hours of labor are applied only to those who have employment, and as everybody knows—including the census bureau—the farmer's wife is never employed. She just works.—Abilene Morning News.

CURRENT COMMENT

BY LEON GUINN.

Last week steamers left Los Angeles harbor with crates of choice Valencia oranges thinly coated with paraffin destined to reach seaports along with fresh oranges processed far more cheaply than oranges in refrigerated cars. . . . Prime morsel of joy was the fact that paraffin shut off oxygen, kept the so-called "sun-kissed" oranges fresh and eatable. . . . Well could the Texas fruit industry try this method to ascertain how cheaply Rio Grande Valley grapefruit could be shipped to Eastern markets, undersell at a profit millions of pink Texas grapefruit. . . . When you realize 6,000,000 Texas grapefruit trees produce choicey fruit, it is easy to understand why Texans should talk Texas! . . . Everybody should eat fruit, and the cheaper we buy it here the more it means to the jelly pantry and the peckpocketbook.

While the average citizen is going about peddling his or her papers, 250,000 hoboes are riding "the rods" over the United States, and generally causing much concern to the federal government, for 250,000 people stealing rides get used to stealing any and everything they can. . . . Insanity is on the increase for the reason these professional "bums" are notorious carriers of vermin of every kind. . . . And many are dope fiends. . . . Once the habit is picked up, it is rarely ever shaken off. . . . You would be shocked at the immoral rottenness of hoboes generally. . . . Degraded men and women that pay $5 per day for cocaine, opium or heroin to pump in their arteries a grain at a time will do anything. . . . Gripped by drugs, many hijack, rob and shoot good citizens. . . .

With wheat skyrocketing to $1.15 for the best grades and cotton vaulting to the 11-cent bracket, Washington officials find it very difficult to curb speculation, promote recovery. . . . To hold the big shols in check, securities sellers were clamped down on, Europe informed our dollar wouldn't be stabilized—just now. . . . The dollar sold below 70 cents last week, while speculators bought and sold for high stakes. . . . Business touched 97.3 per cent of normal. . . . And the steel trust had more unfilled orders than any time since 1930. . . . Now it is plain why Attorney General Cummings warned the profiteers to beware. . . . For one thing the bakers were handed walking papers. . . . For another, cotton farmers were gambling in New York futures, as evidenced by their option plans. . . . We've definitely reached the corner.

Regardless—We're all on David's Side.

Your city should aim to please in every way.

The span of life seems to increase with each generation and there is less and less cause to worry about dying young.

People are intensely interested in reading newspaper advertisements when they have to spend must be carefully spent, because the ads tell them where to find the bargains.

Every city has a few men who are only half human when it comes to cooperating in building the home city. They might change and become nearly human and believe in the home city.

BRUCE BARTON

Writer of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy-laden who will find every human trial parallelled in the experience of "The Man Nobody Knows."

Master of Situations. In all the three years of His public work there was not one moment when Jesus failed to be complete master of the situation. He was accessible to anybody—in the market place, in the temple and on the main streets—fair game for the keen and clever. It became quite a recognized sport to match wits with him. Pharisees tried it and Scribes tried it; a "certain lawyer" tried it. Always they came off second best. Even at length the chiefs of the high priests came one afternoon. Lesser antagonists had gone down; now the leaders themselves would take the matter in hand. They would demolish this presumptuous upstart; by the splendor of their presence and their offices they would awe Him into line.

By what authority do you do these things?" they demanded very brusquely, "and who gave you this authority?" If they expected Him to yield an inch they received the surprise of their lives. His retort was instantaneous. "I'll ask you a question," He exclaimed, "and if you answer it, then I'll tell you by what authority I work. Answer me now, what about John—was his work in baptizing inspired by heaven or by men?" They caught their breath. Their heads came together; excited and disturbing whispers were exchanged. What should they say? If we answer that John had come from heaven, He will say, "Well, why then didn't you believe him?" If we say, that he came from men, this crowd of fools will tear us to pieces, because every last one of them believes that John was a prophet. What shall we do? Better tell Him we don't know; better get out of here as quickly as we can. "We don't know," they muttered. "All right," said Jesus serenely. "You don't answer my question. Neither will I answer yours." It was a perfect triumph. Amid the jeers of the delighted crowd they gathered up their fine robes and went away.

You won't think as you read the narratives that the wise ones would have been wise enough to let him alone. Even a child having burned its fingers once knows enough to avoid the fire. But their jealousy and anger drove them back again and again; and every time He was too much for them. In the very last week the "Pharisees and Herodians" gathered together a picked delegation of sharp wits and sent them with what looked like an absolutely fool-proof bomb. They started in with flattery; after all

Greed Maketh Today's Road Hog

In the middle of the street or highway rides the road hog, a ton and a half and more in weight. Like his farmyard counterpart, sometimes the road hog waddles sometimes he grunts along, looking neither to the right nor to the left. Avarice makes the road hog. He takes delight in narrowly missing pedestrians, crossing streets, in holding up traffic, in denying to others privileges which he accepts, and in saying, "I just shaved that car." The road hog causes many accidents at intersections by refusing to slow up to see who has the right-of-way. He causes many of the accidents which result from improper passing, from cutting in and out of traffic, from driving on the wrong side of the road, and from going off the roadway. These types of accidents, according to the book, "They Call Us Civilized," published by the Travelers Insurance Company, were responsible for the deaths of nearly 10,000 persons last year.

He was a simple fellow from the provinces—a few kind words and His head would be turned. Then they would catch Him off His guard. Judge—"So you admit that you helped to duck that collector who came around to get the installment on that loan?" Farmer—"Yes, I helped." Judge—"Just what part did you take?" Farmer—"I took his left leg." She—"How wonderful it is to sit here at sunset and watch the sun rest on the horizon!" He—"Yes, I could sit and watch it all night." Every time a mule kicks he slows down—a man loses ground.

"Good Stuff" SAY FRED AND HENRY WILHELM... When You Mention Advertising in The Times! IT LOOKED like mighty poor business when Hank and his Dad opened a spanking new grocery store (Hande-Dande, you know) on the east side of the square last January. The depression screws were tightening down, and—well, you know the old story. BUT THE Wilhelm's buckled down to modern merchandising, which includes courtesy, good stocks, service... and consistent advertising. And we mean CONSISTENT ADVERTISING! SINCE Hande-Dande opened the first week in January, heralding the fact with a half page ad in The Times, the store has carried a minimum of 44 inches every week... a total of 1,322 inches, if you please, for the first 28 weeks of 1933... an average of more than 47 inches per week. THE WILHELMS give much of the credit for their remarkable growth to that vital governor of modern business... advertising. "GOOD STUFF!"
