Stalking Big Game In Jack Rabbit Tribe

By Leon Guinn. The gaunt jack rabbit is a gamey cuss, a native in West Texas cat-claws and mesquite, where jack rabbit yams are served straight and where hunters nurse a yen to stalk Mr. Rabbit along the game trails of the Texas Panhandle.

Occasionally the predatory fur carrier is stalked to his lair, and killed without the benefit of fattening until tomorrow. It is a game affair to chase rabbits with dogs, bespeaking of the hunter's power and glory, and fraught with little danger.

Clark M. Mullican Runs for Congress On Four Sentences

To the people of the 19th Congressional District: For nearly a year you have had before you my announcement for Congress from this new district.

Were I to detail a platform several times as long, I could say no more. The multiple problems of government that are perplexing the greatest minds in the world cannot be properly discussed in a political announcement, nor can they be solved in a political campaign.

Questions of currency, revenue, economic, taxes, tariff, foreign relations, national defense, commerce, banking, pensions, transportation, labor, unemployment, industry, law enforcement, farming, stock raising, marketing, and many others with their numerous related subjects, affect all mankind, and 434 other congressmen will have an equal voice.

With an abiding faith in the sincerity and the ability of our democracy to choose for the best interest of all concerned, I humbly submit my candidacy for your deliberate and careful consideration—Clark M. Mullican, Democratic candidate for Congress.

My own way and conduct is the same privilege to the other candidates. I have no controversy with any man, and do not propose to engage in cheap, petty, local politics that might lead to one. To me, the Congress of the United States is a sacred institution, sacred only to the flag, and I expect to depart myself with a dignity worthy of the high office I seek.

Dallas News Says Voters Are Given Wide Range in Governor's Campaign

A wide range of personalities, training and platforms is available for Democratic voters in their choice for governor this year, The Dallas News declares. The paper goes into detail:

Ten candidates, three of whom live or have lived in one city—the Wichita Falls—have entered the race and are actively campaigning, either in public appearances or in setting up political regional organizations.

The candidates so far filed with the State Democratic Committee for a place on the first primary ballot are James V. Allred, Austin, formerly of Wichita Falls; Edgar E. Witt, Waco; Clint Small, Amarillo; Maury Hughes, Dallas; Tom P. Hunter, Wichita Falls; C. C. McDonald of Austin and Wichita Falls; E. K. Russell, Amarillo; Franklin P. C. Houston; L. H. Middleton, Port Worth; and T. E. Terrell, Lamesa.

Political forecasters' opinions as to the respective standing of the candidates vary as widely as do the opinions of plain voters. Of the first six, each has supporters who claim he will lead the ticket, but the supporters differ widely in their guesses as to who will be second.

Attorney General Allred is an experienced campaigner and has an organization perfected in practically every county in the state. Edgar E. Witt made a host of friends, many of them influential, as lieutenant governor. Clint Small is a power in West Texas.

Maury Hughes gained influence as chairman of the State Democratic Committee and will receive many of the so-called Ferguson votes. Tom P. Hunter, oil man, received more than 220,000 votes and ran third in the race for governor in 1932, being beaten by Mrs. Ferguson every county in the state.

Other candidates for state offices are: Lieutenant governor—Joe Moore, Greenville; Walter Wood, Houston; B. F. Berkley, Alpine; John W. Hornby, Austin; and R. M. Johnson, Palestine.

FOR R. R. JOB Rex Waller of Trinity County, candidate for state treasurer, has opened headquarters in the Driskill Hotel at Austin.

TOM HUNTER

Elimination of ad valorem taxes on land and substitution in lieu thereof a net earnings tax upon the larger brackets of income is one of the high lights in his program "for a Texas recovery" announced by Tom Hunter of Wichita Falls, in his opening address in the governor's race at Clifton, Bosque County, on San Jacinto Day.

Poultrymen Warned Against Fake Cures

Hatching time and the 8 to 12 weeks that follow bring a serious menace to chicks in the form of coccidiosis, one of the most fatal diseases of young chickens.

Chicks infected with the disease frequently recover naturally, and if proper sanitary methods are followed they will not become reinfected. Poultry growers have sometimes attributed natural recovery of chicks to some nostrum which has been sold to them.

Miss Sue B. Mann, district school supervisor, met with Ira school authorities Tuesday night of last week, and after having outlined the requirements for a nine-month school, with subjects accredited, the educational board adopted a resolution to increase the term to nine months and ask for classification and affiliation.

The entire faculty of this year was selected to fill the positions for next year, some of which have a rather lengthy record with the Ira school. Mrs. Grace King will begin her eighth year, while Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Taylor begin their sixth year and Miss Margaret Dell Prim begins her fifth year.—Ira reporter.

Hermleigh Class in Home Economics to Austin for Meeting

Thursday morning, April 26, seven home economics girls of Hermleigh High School left for the home making rally at Austin. The girls who made the trip were Juanita McQuaid, Marlene McQuaid, Annette Wasson, Mildred Snowden, Sybil Williams, Evelyn Kasper and Edna Stevenson, and their teacher, Miss Hazel Lee.

They were represented at the rally by Juanita McQuaid, who wore a tailored garment. Friday night the girls who attended the rally were given a banquet. There were 600 at the banquet and many more were there who were unable to get tickets.

After the events of the rally the girls visited the sights of Austin, including the capitol building, the state deaf school and the museum. Saturday afternoon the girls went to San Antonio and part of them went through the Alamo. In San Antonio they also visited the Buckhorn School, Breckenridge Park and Sunken Gardens.

Californian Misses Local Paper; Sends Check for Renewal

"All morning I've felt something was lacking, and believe it or not, I'm sure it was because The Times failed to put in its usual Monday morning appearance," writes Mrs. Mary B. Sterrett from her home in Hollywood, California. "That is entirely my fault," Mrs. Sterrett continues, "and I herewith enclose check for renewal. I've been away from that fine little city for some years, and have always taken The Times. It's an up-to-date, newsy paper, but best of all, I find much of interest—read every word of it, too, about my dear old Snyder friends. I've never found better friends anywhere.

"California is a nice place to live, but after living in the Lone Star state for so long, it's really hard to feel at home any place else. Best wishes for The Times."

WHISTLER'S Southern Mother

By JOHN BLAIR
In The Progressive Farmer

When the United States government announced a few weeks ago that it would issue a special postage stamp to commemorate Mother's Day this month, what picture did it select for reproduction on the stamp?

The celebrated "Portrait of the Artist's Mother," by James McNeill Whistler, of course. What was the first painting by an American artist ever to be purchased by the Paris Louvre, the most exclusive art museum on earth? Whistler's "Mother."

At the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago last year, out of more than 1,000 paintings shown, many of them by the greatest masters of art, living and dead, what painting was more often inquired for by visitors than any other? This same "Whistler's Mother," brought over from the Louvre for a special trip to the United States and insured for $1,600,000.

But of the millions of admirers in Europe and America of this famous painting, how many know that Whistler's mother was a Southern woman, that Whistler always called himself a Southerner, and that his brother served in the Confederate Army?

As a matter of fact, not only was Whistler's mother a North Carolina woman, but his father was appointed to West Point from Kentucky. Sketch of Whistler's Mother.

So it is an American mother and a daughter of the Old South who sits so gravely and so quietly within the frame, which is the window through which her son has given us the privilege of looking at her. It is the mother who taught her two boys, Jimmie and Willie, to recite verses of the Psalms every morning before breakfast, keeping up the custom while abroad, whether living in St. Petersburg, London, or Paris, and constantly maintaining other traditions of her fine Scotch and Southern ancestry.

The South is at last beginning to claim her as its own. It was here that she was born and grew to mature young womanhood. It was here that she acquired her culture, charm, good breeding, and reverence for things sacred that distinguished the women of the Old South. That she also had their courage is strikingly illustrated by the story of her going from Wilmington, North Carolina, to England in the most perilous days of our War Between the States on board the Confederate blockade runner, "Advance."

Missed Her Native Land. She reached England safely but her heart always remained in Carolina. A little later we find her writing: "I prefer my native land at all seasons. Ah, when shall I ever have a home in it?" And again: "The distressed state of my own native land depresses me. The struggling South is not fighting for slavery but in defense of its honor. I hope to report something more cheerful of my darling Willie—Willie being her son in Confederate service. She did not again live in the South, but returned here for a visit in 1868-69.

Her strong religious faith and her devotion to her two boys after the death of their father were her greatest interests in life. Thus she writes: "But my gratitude goes to the One Source of help on which I rely for the continued success of my dear boys. Their struggles are so unwearying to attain position to enable them to keep bright their name and to gain an honest livelihood."

In London, we are told, her Southern hot biscuits, her buckwheat cakes, preserves, and jellies were specialties that delighted her guests—Carlyle, Swinburne, Burne-Jones, and many another celebrity. The temptation is strong to quote from letters and articles about her, but we must end with the last words of what appears to be her last published letter:

"On the 27th, my birthday, '72. In the evening it is light. How gracious is the Lord!"

Interpretation of the Painting. And now, in conclusion, a word about this now world-famous portrait of this typical daughter of the Old South. In this portrait Whistler attempted to give us the whole atmosphere which surrounds a personality. He endowed her sitting pensively in the gray interior with one of the noblest emotions of which the human soul is capable—the reverence and calm one feels in the presence of one's aging mother. With a feeling in which all mannerisms are avoided he produced an epic poem, a symphony of superb breadth and beauty—a symbol of the mother of all lands as she sits thoughtfully amid the turmoil of modern life. Nothing more simple and at the same time more satisfying has been created in modern art. As has been said:

"As you look at it you are at first held spellbound by the fascination of the face, painted with infinite tenderness and marvelous delicacy of color. Gradually the sense of stillness and peace and utter quiet takes hold of you, and it is some time before you begin to realize the mastery of painting which could produce such an effect."

"The Mother Symbolism." It is said that when the poet, Swinburne, first saw the painting, "he was deeply moved, recognizing in it the tenderness and pathos of all the mothers in the world—the mother symbolism." As another critic has written:—

"Garbed in black, she sits in profile with her feet upon a footstool and her hands laid peacefully and elegantly on her lap; the lawn and lace of her cap silhouetted against the wall. She gazes with tranquil intensity beyond the limit of our comprehension along the vistas of memory, leading back through maternity to be a beautiful youth."

The South will always be proud that it was here that that beautiful youth was spent, that it was in our environment and atmosphere that her character was formed, and so that our section has given to the world and to future ages its most beloved symbol of all that is beautiful in aging mothers.

The wardrobe of the King of England contains 500 changes of dress.

MOTHERS DAY

OLD MOTHERS.

I love old mothers—mother with white hair and kindly eyes, and lips grown softly sweet with murmured blessings over sleeping babes. There is something in their calm grace that speaks the calm of Sabbath afternoons; a knowledge in their deep, unflinching eyes that far out-reaches all philosophy. Time, with caressing touch, about them weaves the silver-threaded fairy shawl of age, while all the echoes of forgotten songs seem joined to lend a sweetness to their speech. Old mothers! As they pace with slow-timed step their trembling hands cling gently to youth's strength; sweet mothers! As they pass, one sees again old garden walks, old roses and old loves.—Charles Ross.

Next Sunday is Mother's Day. There's not exactly any need to get all worked up over it, but when Sunday's sun arises it'll make you feel doubly chesty to know that a little gift is all ready for her—won't it?

Small chance we'd have, indeed, of telling you what a swell girl your mother is, so we are only going to take the privilege of reminding you that you might just as well attend to that little token of love and reverence right now. Mother wouldn't want you to spend a lot of money on her, but she may feel just a little hurt (though you'd never know it) if you forgot her entirely.

So we urge you again, even though you consider us quite a nuisance, to choose your remembrance now. Don't delay.

Remember your Mother on Mother's Day!

Active Roles in Rehabilitation of State for Women

Women must take a big part in the rehabilitation program of the state if it is to be more than a materialistic, bread and meat affair, it was stated Saturday at Austin by Director Marie Dresden of the Texas Relief Commission when commenting upon progress made in the rural recovery program to date.

"Our first thought is to see that destitute families are enabled to provide themselves with food and clothing," said Director Dresden, "but if we stop there, we have built only the foundation. We are laying out plans which will enable people of this southwestern area to do more than merely exist. Work projects necessary under the relief program can be directed toward bringing shade trees to streets and lawns, to creating community parks, to building community club-houses which reflect the native architecture of this area and set a model for homes of the same type. Our first settlers here often had an architectural type all their own, dictated by the native material and by the climatic conditions. We have reason to be proud of such architecture. Rather than imitate other types, we will do well to keep the honest and beautiful types which we ourselves developed."

These are only a few points in which women will be most valuable in guiding the rehabilitation projects and the rural rehabilitation committee is going to offer the opportunity to them, Director Dresden said.

Workers on the relief administration projects will be given credit for their labor according to the usual rate in this section for such labor, Director Dresden said, but in no case will the scale of wages be less than 30 cents per hour, as set by the FERA.

"We do not expect the rehabilitation families to work out their indebtedness to the Texas Relief Commission the first year, in every case," Director Dresden said, but we are going to provide work sufficient to allow them to repay their indebtedness eventually."

Miss Dresden has expressed the hope that some time during the spring, she may find time to go into the rural areas personally and make a study of the progress made in bringing better conditions to those who live remote from large cities.

Mothers May Be Honored Through Care for Health

Provision for adequate care for mothers-to-be, as a practical means of putting into effect the honor and reverence due all mothers, is urged in connection with the nation-wide observance of Mother's Day. The day will be celebrated on Sunday, May 13.

"Because of the precious memories the day arouses, each of us wishes to pay our own tribute of homage to the mothers of the past and present," Dr. H. N. Barnett, director of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, said, "for their unselfish love and devotion, their self-sacrificing service, and their never ending influence on our lives. But those of us who are engaged in public health activities are thinking of the third group, also—the mothers-to-be—when we urge that Mother's Day be used as a starting point for efforts to make motherhood safe for all expectant mothers—the mothers of tomorrow."

"When we talk about safeguarding the health of the mother-to-be and speak of adequate care for her, we mean that she should have regular, medical supervision before, during and after the baby's birth. The life and health of both mother and child are safeguarded by such care."

"The doctors throughout Texas are glad to give care of this kind to expectant mothers in their own practice, but many mothers and fathers do not realize the importance of such supervision during the period before the baby arrives, and neglect to secure it. And often both mother and baby suffer the consequences of this neglect."

Huestis Made Fish Coach for Simmons

G. L. Huestis of Snyder, senior at Simmons University, was elected freshman football, basket ball and track coach for Simmons next season at a meeting of the school's athletic council Tuesday.

Huestis was captain of the 1933 football team and has earned four letters on the grid team. He also made four letters in track and three in basket ball while in Simmons. He was formerly a Snyder star in the three athletic fields.

LeeVurle Andrus served as freshman coach in football, basket ball and track during the past season.

The largest vote ever cast for any candidate for office in Texas was 973,641. That just-short-of-a-million ballot was in the Democratic primary in 1932 for Edgar E. Witt, who was re-elected lieutenant governor by that popular acclaim and this year seeks the governorship.

How Can I Get My Dollar's Worth?

We're all interested in doing the most possible with the money we have. Rich or poor, we all want at least one hundred pennies return on every dollar we spend. One way to achieve that aim is to buy Quality Merchandise from reputable institutions. Study the stores in Snyder and note how thoroughly they all meet those requirements.

Another way to enjoy greater return from your expenditures is to buy where you're surer of reciprocity—where you know that your money will come back to you sooner. There, again, your home-town store fits the description. If you want your dollar's worth—in merchandise and in results, there's only one way to attain it—by doing all of your shopping in Snyder. That's the only way Snyder can buy from you or pay your salary.

Average Citizen of Snyder Spends $375 At Home Each Year

Residents of Snyder and vicinity spend approximately $375 per person in the retail stores and shops here each year, according to an estimate made by the Chicago Wholesale Market Council.

The state of Texas' total retail trade of more than two billion dollars a year is equal to about two-thirds of the volume of wholesale trade of Chicago, whose wholesale market district, lying just west of the famous "loop," is considered one of the greatest in the world.

The study which revealed the figures made by the newly formed wholesale council to determine how best to meet the needs of the retail merchants who depend largely upon Chicago wholesalers for goods to stock their shelves for Texas purchases. An expansion and improvement program, including numerous additional buyers' services, has been launched to accommodate the throng of merchants who are expected to combine a visit to the Century of Progress with their annual or semi-annual buying trip.

The estimate is based on the total retail trade of the state and the population, both reported in the latest United States census.

The $375 per person, or about $1,400 per family, spent with Texas merchants includes all purchases, except for personal services, such as laundry and barbering.

The Cricket Song.

By the Skipper of the Salt River Packet.
A long hot and sultry day has passed on and darkness with its cool and balmy air steals through the shadows, soothing my tired frame from the weary burdens of the day.
The heavens are sprinkled with myriads of glittering stars as I take a seat on the low doorstep of my boarding house cottage. Not over ten feet from where I am sitting is a garden fence with a thick tangle of morning glory vines, and from its deep shade comes the chirrup of many crickets. Their song starts a reverie that brings to mind old scenes and faces long forgotten.

Strange is it not, that certain sounds, or songs and even half-remembered faces, come back to me as if they were yesterday's memories that have been sleeping for years? It seems that everything that has ever happened in your life, no matter how long ago, needs but the key, a certain sound or scene, to unlock the vaults of memory again.
The cricket song, the oldest, I suspect ever sang by insect, bird or beast, remains with us throughout the ages.
Its song has no variations, but remains as unchanged as the moon and stars, and which it sends up its unvaried strain.
As I listen, events long forgotten and faces long hidden by the dust of the earth and distance come trooping by, each claiming a place in the events of my life. Some are old friends and scenes we love, in our mind we would hold them and fondle them tenderly.

But childhood scenes are most frequently recalled by the cricket song. For it is in childhood that the mind is constantly fed by mystery and imagination. It was the cricket that sang its weird music always in the dark where fantastic forms shaped themselves into snakes and hobgoblins. Dark nights, angry clouds, shady bowers, overgrown fence rows, woodlands, with their tall dark trees against the sky.

Now, at the doorstep of some lonely little cottage, your home, with your head in mother's lap with her soft hand on your forehead. Some anxious hour of waiting, listening, straining her eyes in the darkness to see the form or hear the footsteps of some beloved member of the family. I can see the old barn, its great roof glistening in the moonlight. And out across the field, where the tall green corn makes a great black shadow across the field. Those were early days when the dreams of the future were full of everything, but spite.

Another scene later on—You are riding across a wide waste of prairie land with the moon and countless shimmering stars in the ocean of the sky, and spreading out about you the great plain, like a white billowing sheet, with the voices of thousands of insects yet with the shrill clear notes of the cricket coming clear above them all.

While these old scenes, together with the memory faces of old and long forgotten friends have gone into the voiceless past, the song of the cricket pursues its changeless rhythm on down through the ages, holding in its song the key note of unawakened memories that no other sound can do.

Chirrup, chirrup, chirrup the ceaseless strain goes on. Now I see a tall two-story farm house, with wide halls and porches. A large grassy yard, a few giant oaks, a deep dark woodland stretching out over a long ridge, the sweet scent of blossoms from the peach orchard, and occasional tinkle of a cow bell.

A porch seat, semi-darkness, two hearts are beating, two hands are clasped, words have come to me, by some strange sounds. Silence, only silence speaks the language uninterrupted by mortal man, yet a language as old as the world. Yet, into its sacred sanctifications, the weird strains of the cricket song find a place, as though a part of the innermost emotions of the human heart.

The unwearied wing of time flies on, the panorama of faces and scenes fit by to join the innumerable host beyond, but the cricket song remains the same as back through the ages its voice chimed forth from the ancient land marks of forgotten cities. For whatever the trading footsteps of man have invaded, the cricket song has followed to weave its weird music into his memories and meditations.

Publicity Comes Again To Piggly Wigglys of City

Piggly Wiggly Turnstile, national organ of the grocery group, comes forth again on April 27 with several inches of publicity for the local Piggly Wiggly stores, operated by Maurice Brownfield and Charlie Kelly. Three views of the Snyder stores are also presented.

Following is the Turnstile article: In a recent issue of Turnstile, Lionel Tompkins addressed an open letter to Maurice Brownfield of the Piggly Wiggly stores with headquarters in that city. This open letter was designed to bring out what Mr. Brownfield's organization does that accounts for their success.

Corporation officials hope that other operators will take the hint and write in without waiting for direct correspondence, telling unusual and successful promotional stunts, methods of operating, etc. Mr. Brownfield's letter follows: "We don't mind your picking on us, as stated in an open letter in the Turnstile of April 6—in fact, we feel honored by the fact that you state we are one of the most successful operators in the country."

"This statement makes us very proud that we are one of a grand organization that cooperate with each other in order to be more successful. We are always willing and anxious to do our part to create more interest in our system. "We do use a little of the stated stunts, displays and ballyhoo, but we do not have cards up our sleeves, for we have our cards up. We possibly have a situation here that no other operator has; we are located in a town of only 3,500 population, but with a trade territory that extends 30 miles in all directions, and, believe me, we try to get some trade from the ones farthest away. We try to keep in mind the fact that they all have to eat and it is our duty to sell them the merchandise that they have to buy to eat."

"We have had in mind since joining the Piggly Wiggly organization in 1928 to build good business and not just come-and-go business. We have been able to do this only by consistently keeping our stores not only clean, well stocked and arranged but when there seemed to us to be a weakness in our present layout we would improve, taking on new items in fixtures that would make our stores more attractive. By doing this we kept in mind the fact that we must keep a uniform merchandise system as we had always had. The improvements we have made have not been always expensive changes but little added improvements that would keep our stores always modern. We feel that this is one thing that will well pay any operator."

"Now we have special sales of almost any kind that any other operator has, but we feel that our personal contact with our customers has helped us more than any other sales event that we have put on. We have been very careful in our selection of employees, training them to use their salesmanship, always being well kept and courteous, thanking our trade for every purchase, no matter how small, seeing that their little wants are taken care of. If necessary, we do little personal services—buy them a spool of thread at the department store next door; anything in reason we do for them.

"In line with our effort to be successful we advertise in our local paper every issue, and we think that the advertising service we are now getting from you is wonderful."

Willard Jones was chosen scoutmaster of the Snyder Boy Scout troop by a joint meeting of the Texas Lion club and American Legion committees late last week. He announces that organization plans have already been made, and that the first meeting of prospective scouts will be held Saturday.

At the beginning a small group of boys will be trained, more to be added gradually. When the first group is well under way, it is planned to organize a second.

Cecil Worley has been chosen as assistant scoutmaster, with Jack Reynolds as senior patrol leader.

Money Made in 1933 By Tended Chickens

During the past year in which cotton, wheat and corn and hogs have held the center of the Texas farm stage, the lovely hen has been doing her part to keep the farmer in the ruminia. Complete reports from 482 farms in 89 counties where demonstrations in good poultry management have been conducted show that the average man made her owner $1.04 above feed cost for the year. This is exactly the same return on labor and investment that hens in demonstration flocks made in the previous year, it is pointed out by Paul Cunyus, assistant poultry husbandman in the Extension Service at Texas A. & M. College.

"Without a doubt this is a return much above the average of all farm flocks in Texas," Mr. Cunyus says. "It shows what the hen can do in bad times under good management. There were 10,908 birds in these demonstration flocks. Neighbors who cooperated with county farm or home demonstration agents in following similar demonstration methods numbered 659, and they made a little more than $1 per hen above feed cost on their 109,705 birds."

Irrigation is utilized to aid crop production on 10,881 Texas farms. The first such project was achieved by the Franciscan fathers who built their missions at the present site of San Antonio.
