Cloudy skies; sunny outlook

By RICK WHITE
 Managing Editor

Scattered thunderstorms early this week loosened Mother Nature's death grip on the South Plains, bringing much needed relief for area farmers.

Gentle showers Monday that dumped about 3/4 of an inch of rain across most of Bailey County combined with heavier, isolated showers Sunday night, added up to an inch and a half of rain in some areas.

"This will help out a whole lot because farmers won't have to pump as much water," said Hector Flores, Sr., superintendent of the Muleshoe Co-Op Gin. "It makes the outlook a little brighter."

A cold front from the Northwest that drifted across the Rockies is the main cause of the rain, according to meteorologist Pat Vesper with the National Weather Service in Lubbock. Colder temperatures and more rain were possible Tuesday and Wednesday, according to Vesper. Temperatures were expected to climb back up to around 90 by the weekend with a slight chance of rain, he said.

The West Camp area received .9 to an 1 1/2 of rain, according to West Camp Gin owner James Shepard.

"It's going to help a whole lot," Shepard said. "(Rain) does

'Keepers of Legend' opens Friday

Playwright Paula Paul captured the rhythm of rural America in "Keepers of the Legend," creating scenes from an array of personal childhood experiences in West Texas.

Paul not only wrote the script of the locally-produced play, but composed the lyrics for the 13 original songs featured in the play.

"It was a new experience for me to write that many lyrics," Paul told the Journal in an earlier interview. She typically writes children's books and romance novels. "It was really my first serious attempt at writing lyrics. I enjoyed it though, and I wouldn't mind doing it again."

"Keepers of the Legend" is a two-act play that depicts the struggle to incorporate Bailey County near the turn of the century, while telling the legend of the Muleshoe sandhills.

According to legend, an Indian tribe that settled in the Bailey County area was erased by an enormous sandstorm. The ghost of the tribe's chief is rumored to still ride the Muleshoe sandhills at night.

Paul, wrote the songs with West Texans in mind.

"The lyrics are straight forward and plain-spoken," she said. "That's the way people in West Texas are. There are no hidden messages or flowery language in the songs."

One of the play's featured songs, "West Texas Morning" is sung by a farmer who smells the morning air and longs for the need for rain. "That one really came from my heart," said Paul, who grew up on a ranch near Baileyboro. "For some, there is a beauty in West

WWF for spiders

MANILA, Philippines — Tired of children cutting class to search for spiders, school officials in the southern Philippines are cracking down on a favorite pastime in rural areas: spider wrestling.

A ban on spider wrestling, in which spiders are placed on a stick to fight to the death, began last week in North Cotabato province after school officials traced numerous absences to the game, Isidro Valeroso, superintendent of schools in the province, said. The matches also encourage gambling, Valeroso said.

Aficionados search for spiders on trees and power lines, housing their best "gladiators" in matchboxes. A prized fighter can sell for more than $2.

Valeroso cited another reason to stop children from killing spiders: "We have to teach children that spiders are a farmer's best friend because they catch insects that destroy or damage crops."

Atwood brings home bronze from U.S. Junior Olympics

SEATTLE, Wash. — Kyle Atwood proved he is not only one of the top young runners in the South Plains but in the nation by winning a bronze medal in the 800 meters Saturday at the U.S. Junior Olympic track & field meet at the University of Washington.

Shaving nearly two seconds off his personal-best time, the Muleshoe High school freshman finished third in the boys 13-14 year old division with a time of 2:03.67 in the national meet.

Atwood flashed a big smile when asked if he expected to bring home a medal. "Not really," he admitted.

"My first goal was to make it to the finals," Atwood said.

Feeding damaged corn to livestock an option

AMARILLO — Area corn producers are starting to look for ways to salvage what's left of their corn in the aftermath of the current drought.

To help farmers consider their options, specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are offering timely information on drought-stressed grain crops and nitrate management.

"In times like these, there are no easy answers," said Dr. Brent Bean, Extension agronomist in Amarillo. According to Bean, some farmers with irrigated operations are beginning to abandon some of their corn acres in order to concentrate their available water on less acres.

"The portion of the crop that is deprived of water will wither under the heat and produce very little grain," Bean said.

"One of the options some farmers are thinking about is feeding the abandoned corn to livestock; however, they need to approach this alternative with care and planning," said Dr. F. T. "Ted" McCollum, Extension beef cattle specialist of Amarillo.

McCollum is cautioning producers about the high concentration of nitrates in corn at this stage in the plant's growth. Corn doesn't even have to be drought-stressed to be high in nitrates when it is at the tasseling and silking stage of development. An Extension Service publication (L-5146), available to producers through their local county agents offers information on preventing nitrate problems in drought-damaged corn.

The specialist said nitrate and aflatoxin poisoning are two problems encountered with attempts to use drought-damaged corn. Under drought conditions, the uptake of nitrates may exceed the rate the plant can convert the protein. The demand for nitrates increases as grain fill begins.

Plants that often accumulate nitrates under drought conditions include field crops, weeds, and vegetables, especially corn, forage sorghums, and grain sorghums, according to Bean. Bean said producers will want to test plants to determine if nitrate is at a level that may pose a risk to livestock.

"It's called the diphenylamine drop test. The test kit is now available through local county Extension offices in the Panhandle," said Bean. This is used only for an initial screening and only shows if high concentration is present, not the level of nitrates. More in-depth analyses are performed by trained toxicologists in facilities such as the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory.

McCollum said producers should start considering a plan to either harvest the corn as greenchop or silage as soon as possible. If the corn is to be grazed, there will be fewer problems with nitrates because the leaf material has a lower concentration.

"Do not let the cattle graze down to Texas that can't be matched anywhere else. And 95 percent of the time we need rain. The song is about the beauty of the land and how it's so darn dry."

Religion was the most dominating influence during Paul's childhood, and therefore shaped the lyrics sung by a fire-and-brimstone preacher in the production.

"If You're Gonna Get to Heaven" is a caricature of the way I remember Southern Baptist preachers growing up," she said.

"Name-Calling" is performed during a scene where youngsters are scuffling on the playground.

"That one was inspired by years and years of riding the school bus," Paul said. "There was always somebody fighting. I still carry a scar under my eye from a fight I got in defendi

Paul said that the underlying theme of the entire production is about the need for change.

In the play, ranchers in Bailey County are opposed to the incorporation of the county, while farmers are anxious to convince lawmakers of the need for organized government. "The play and lyrics are all about change," Paul said.

"The lives of our grandparents were very, very different than our lives today. We have to give up our old ways. But that doesn't mean you have to give up the spirit of the land."

Even while the lyrics denote transformation, parts of the production testify to the unbending nature of certain elements of West Texas life.

"A West Texas Man" is sung by the wife of a stubborn rancher.

"My father is a good example of a West Texas man. He's a hard-headed man who is so aggravating you couldn't believe it, yet so lovable," Paul said.

"Even the boys I grew up with were like that. They were always independent in the way they thought, acted and dressed," she continued. "West Texas men have this special sand-storm toughness about them, along with a vulnerable, lovable side."

"I realized I was rewriting the legend myself," Paul said. "I only enhanced the quality. That's what story-tellers do—they tell a story and then embellish it to add magic to it," she said.

"I felt like I was the 'keeper of the legend.'"

A tractor-trailer hauling ashes got stranded while crossing the eastbound lanes of U.S. Highway 84 Monday when the trailer buckled in the middle.

Truck accident shuts down eastbound lanes of U.S. 84

By HEATHER SHIPMAN
Journal staff writer

A tractor-trailer hauling ashes across U.S. Highway 84 east of Muleshoe Monday collapsed in the middle of the four-lane highway, blocking traffic in the eastbound lanes for about 3 1/2 hours.

The tractor-trailer was hauling ashes from a June fire that destroyed 18,000 tons of hay and cotton burrs at NuEnergy Feed, located about three miles east of Muleshoe on U.S. 84.

The ashes were being hauled to a field across the highway, according to Scott Dickerman, manager of NuEnergy Feeds.

Dickerman was driving the truck when the trailer buckled while crossing the median divider at about 1:45 p.m.

"That was the most helpless feeling in the world, all I could think about was getting the truck off the highway," Dickerman said.

A pay-loader removes ashes from the buckled trailer

The Texas Department of Transportation rerouted traffic to the westbound lanes.

Police officials and NuEnergy Feed employees worked together to devise a plan to get the tractor trailer off of the road.

After some debate, it was determined the ashes had to be unloaded before the tractor-trailer could be moved. The entire left panel of the trailer was removed and the ashes were carried off by a front-end loader.

The highway was cleared about 5 p.m., according to Bailey County Sheriff Coy Plott.

"It was a mess, but we've had other trucks turn over and spill stuff on the road that was more of a mess to clean up, we were just worried about getting the truck off the road," Plott said. "It was one of those things that just happens."

Wisconsin town can smell a winner

The town fathers in Merton, Wisc. will be considering a proposal this week that basically says farm odors are OK with them.

At a resident's request, the town is considering a right-to-farm ordinance. If approved, the measure would basically exempt farms from the town nuisance ordinance, Deputy Clerk Susie Oman said. Under the nuisance ordinance, Oman said, the ban on noxious fumes and odors is probably of the most concern to farmers.

"There is nothing harmful about it," Town Chairman Thomas Kraus said of farmyard odor. "I think it is us trying to tell the farmers, 'We value what you are doing, and we want you here.'"

"Common sense will tell you if there is a farm in the area, they are going to have odors," she said.

That sense doesn't come as easily to people fleeing the city for a home in the countryside, said Roger Cliff, of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation.

People who move into rural developments often find they don't like the side effects of living next to a farm, he said. "There are a lot of conflicts as there is development in rural areas, in farm areas, around the state," Cliff said. "The neighbors aren't happy with the farms."

Wisconsin passed a "right-to-farm" law in 1996.

"The law says if you are there first and are carrying out accepted agricultural practices, then you are protected," Cliff said. "Those who move into the neighborhood do so at their own peril."

But the state right-to-farm law does not offer protection from local nuisance ordinances, Cliff said.

Merton's right-to-farm proposal would basically copy the state law, Kraus said. "I think it is just something good, something nice, for the farmers," Kraus said.

Oman said the town Planning Commission would consider the proposal Aug. 5. The Town Board would also need to approve the measure.

Sudduth, Burton win in playoff

Carey Sudduth's birdie on No. 18 forced a playoff and partner Terry Burton won it with a birdie on the first playoff hole in the Championship Flight of the Muleskinner Invitational golf tournament Sunday at Muleshoe Country Club.

Burton and Sudduth, both of Muleshoe, finished the final round tied with Don Herbert and Gary Renner of Friona at 10-under-par 130 in the two-man, low-ball tournament.

Putting last in the group, Burton drained the winning putt after chipping his approach shot within 10 feet of the pin on the 320-yard, par 4 first hole.

Both Herbert and Renner missed birdie putts in the playoff.

"It was a great match," Burton said. "The kind we you hate to see someone lose."

Sudduth rammed home a 20-foot putt on the par 3, 125-yard finishing hole to create the sudden-death playoff.

Three other local teams won titles in a 60-team field that was divided into eight flights. Three local golfers were also members of flight winners.

Former Muleshoe High School golf teammates Kyle Embry and Darren Box won the First Flight with an eight-

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL)-- A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is available immediately without a prescription in an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream or new roll-on lotion form. Arthur Itis, is guaranteed to work or your money back.

Lazbuddie's Mims wins national accounting title

Lazbuddie freshman Kati Mims won a national title in accounting at the Future Business Leaders of America National Leadership Conference held July 3-9 in Orlando, Fla.

Mims finished first in Accounting I. Junior Joshua McDonald finished eighth in Accounting II.

Three other members of the Lazbuddie Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) qualified for the national competitive events by winning their state-level competitions. Cameron Turner, a senior, competed in Accounting II, and Brice Foster and Dustin Weir, both seniors, competed in a team desktop publishing event.

The students traveled with their accounting coach and FBLA advisor Marsella Jennings.

The awards were part of the competitive events program sponsored by Future Business Leaders of America-Phi Beta Lambda, Inc., (FBLA-PBL), a professional association for students pursuing business careers.

Individuals, local chapters, and state teams compete in nearly 40 events representing a range of business, career, and leadership development activities. The winners of these challenging and prestigious awards are selected from FBLA-PBL's 240,000 members, and have won state and regional competitions to qualify for the national awards program.

The 4,500 delegates to the 47th annual conference elected national student officers and attended business and leadership training workshops in addition to competing in business and career skill events.

This year's conference theme, "A Celebration of Character," reflected the locale in central Florida as well as focusing on the importance of character in one's personal and professional life. Conference highlights included Madline Manning Mims, 1968 Olympic Gold Medalist, Disney Youth Education Seminar program, a spirited campaign hall, entertaining multimedia shows, and, of course, the magic of Walt Disney World theme parks.

Future Business Leaders of America-Phi Beta Lambda, Inc. (FBLA-PBL) is a nonprofit vocational student organization that prepares students for careers in business and business education. Its 240,000-plus members in 12,000 chartered chapters include students from the United States, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, and Europe.

Heston isn't gun shy

Q. What's going on with Charlton Heston?

A. He's the new president of the National Rifle Association (NRA).

Q. Who is he?

A. For you young people, Charlton Heston was one of Hollywood's biggest stars 25 years ago. He played strong men with convictions and the nerve to back them up. He was as we imagined George Washington, Davy Crockett, Jim Thorpe, and Moses to be. And....he turned out to be playing himself.

The press is having a field day covering him. Most of them are young enough to have never been exposed to a politician or public figure who speaks his mind. They never got to hear Truman, Goldwater, Nader or Nelson Rockefeller. They expect deception, double speak, half truths, tricks and condescension.

Now, with Charlton Heston they are in the presence of a fire-breather who makes Jesse Jackson's opportunist oratory seem pale, house-speaker Gingerich's fuddy-duddiness seem frivolous and vice-president Gore's eco teapot sound like the Pillsbury Dough Boy throwing a tantrum.

Q. But what is Heston saying?

A. He is a believer in the right to bear arms and isn't timid about defending that right. But in today's politically correct cocoon he is exposing himself to criticism with his outspokenness. Anti-gun people are hoping his rigid rhetoric will eventually trip him into shooting himself in the foot. But it doesn't seem to be hurting the NRA's cause.

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

In spite of Charlton Heston's uniqueness or belligerence or narrow-minded, uncompromising focus ... or because of it, his message appears to be getting through to a new generation. The NRA's message which simply says that the Second Amendment (the right to bear arms) was instituted by our founders to protect the First Amendment (the right of free speech).

Q. To protect the First Amendment from who?

A. Not flag burners or deer hunters as some might think. The First and Second Amendment were put in place to protect free men from a government, which by the nature of any government, will continually try to suppress the freedom of its people.

CORN

the stalks since nitrates are higher in the lower portion of the stalk," he advised.

Green chop and silage may be safe because the entire plant will be harvested and the nitrate in the stalk will be diluted out by the leaf material. Some nitrate problems can be reduced by raising the cutter bar and leave more residue in the field.

The nutritional value of immature corn forage will contain a little less than 10 percent protein and from 58 to 64 percent TDN. This compares well with forage sorghum hay, said McCollum.

Both specialists agree that it may be possible to hay the corn but there will probably be some difficulty drying the forage enough to bale and avoid spoilage.

"Green chop is another alternative, and a good option if the producer has equipment available day in and day out to chop feed, but not so good if the forage cannot be harvested on a daily basis," McCollum said.

"Given the nutritive value, green chop would be a good feed for dry cows and growing cattle that are not expected to gain rapidly," he added. A small quantity of protein supplement may be required for lactating cows, young calves, and other growing cattle where rapid gain is expected.

Silage can be another alternative for putting up the forage rapidly, storing it for future use, and reducing nitrate problems.

"There are two main concerns with this option," said Bean. In failed corn, there is a lack of grain (carbohydrates) necessary for adequate fermentation to make good silage. The second concern is moisture content of the forage.

Ensiling will reduce the nitrate levels by about 50 percent. So a relatively toxic forage can become useful after this process.

"If this option is chosen, then a farmer might consider adding some cracked corn to the forage as it is ensiled. This will provide carbohydrates for the fermentation process," said Bean.

In a mature corn plant, about 45 percent of the dry matter is grain, so adding about 30 percent corn on a dry basis to silage would produce a good product.

"Anything less than 30 percent dry matter can lead to poor fermentation and bleeding of the silage. It may be necessary to wilt the corn forage prior to ensiling to bring the moisture content down to 65 or 70 percent," said Bean.

"Right now, most corn in the Panhandle has reached the tasseling growth stage," Bean said. The forage yield will probably be about 30 to 35 percent of the expected yield for full-season silage.

PCA sponsors hay exchange

Plainview Production Credit Association (PCA) has joined with other Tenth Farm Credit District lending organizations to develop a hay exchange list for ranchers and farmers in the drought-stricken South.

The local agricultural lending cooperative encourages producers who have hay for sale, as well as truckers who are willing to haul hay, to register on the Farm Credit hay exchange list.

The list is available free of charge to anyone in need of a hay source. Currently, the list includes hay suppliers and haulers from several states. Providers' names, phone numbers, type of hay and quantity available are included.

"Within the Tenth Farm Credit District, which serves Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico and Texas, there are producers who have no forage crops, as well as those who have excess hay," said Ronda Spies, assistant vice president of the association.

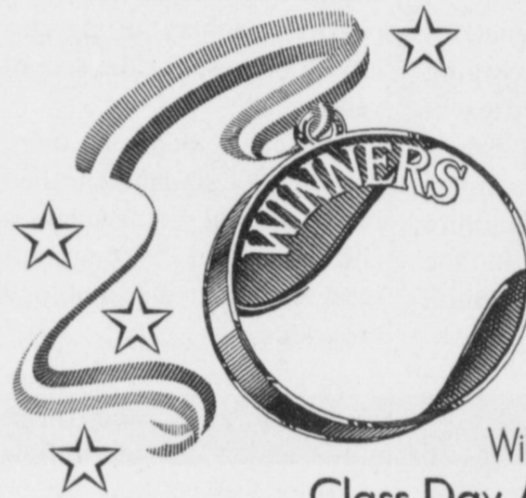

"Our goal is to put those who have hay in touch with those who need hay."

Plainview PCA makes short- and intermediate-term loans for production agriculture. It is headquartered in Plainview with field offices in Dimmitt, Olton, Tulia, Friona, Floydada and Muleshoe.

To register on the hay exchange list or to request a copy of the list, phone the PCA at (806) 272-4220 or fax the association at (806) 272-5305.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE AND ESTIMATED UNENCUMBERED FUND BALANCES

This notice concerns 1998 property tax rates for the six taxing units listed below. It presents information about three tax rates for each unit. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine 1997 property taxes. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the total taxable value of taxable property with adjustments as required by law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Service award

Muleshoe High School Agriculture Science teacher Carl Wheeler (left) accepts a plaque honoring 25 years of membership from Scotty Windham, president of the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association of Texas.

Wheeler receives service award

Carl Wheeler of Muleshoe was recently awarded the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association of Texas Distinguished Service Award for his 25 years of membership in the organization.

Wheeler has taught agriculture science at Muleshoe High School for 17 years and before that for eight years at Clovis (N.M.) High School. He is also Future Farmers of America advisor at MHS.

This award is designed to commend individuals who are dedicated and supportive of agriculture education in Texas. Wheeler was presented his award during the Agriculture Teachers' Professional Development Conference on July 29 in Wichita Falls.

"This year's conference focused on new and emerging technologies and helped teachers use this technology in their classroom," said Ben Shaw, state director of agriculture education. Shaw said that the conference draws agricultural science and technology teachers from around the state and provides teachers the opportunity to prepare for the school year ahead.

In Texas, there are more than 109,000 students enrolled in agricultural science classes and more than 950 agricultural science and technology programs.

.3 of inch since Friday. "It's still real dry," he said.

McCaul said some areas north and west of Maple received 1/2 to 3/4 of an inch, which will help dryland farmers who have planted hay grazer.

Muleshoe City manager James Fisher reported water usage was down in the city, but didn't necessarily tie it to the recent rains.

"We've seen a drop in water consumption since last week when the bills went out," Fisher said.

The city pumped 47 million gallons of water in July, compared to 35 million last year, according to city officials.

Imogene Tabor was born November 19, 1922. Born in the "middle of the pack," Imogene and her nine siblings grew up in Alma, Arkansas. Miss Tabor received her high school diploma from Alma and then chose to further her education by attending Hill Crest Hospital's School of Nursing. Imogene eventually became a Registered Nurse. She has practiced nursing in several different towns and states including: Alaska, Clovis and Amherst. But to many of us, Imogene is most remembered and loved for her many years as Muleshoe's elementary school nurse. She was the individual who could nurse your "boo-boos" and your moods with just her gentle hand and a warm smile. Imogene retired in 1984.

Imogene Tabor married Gordon Tiller who passed away in 1969. In December of 1984, she wed Homer Cole. Mr. and Mrs. Cole live on Lake Eufaula in Oklahoma. While recovering from a stroke, Imogene is staying with her daughter Kay Swint of Muleshoe. Mrs. Cole also has another daughter, Brenda Dirks, of San Antonio. Imogene has 5 grandchildren and is hoping to someday have great-grandchildren to boast about. Her "fingers are crossed!"

Mrs. Cole enjoys crocheting, reading fictional novels and playing bridge. She jokes that her husband, Homer, is probably spending every minute fishing while she is gone. She looks forward to joining him soon.

Imogene is a member of the Oakridge Baptist Church of Lake Eufaula.

About M.A.H.H.A., Mrs. Cole smiles a very familiar smile and says that the staff has "treated me great, both at home and while working with the Speech Therapy department."
