Two busses were added last year, one by Ira and one by Hermeligh. Snyder operated two privately-owned busses last year, but has cut the number to one for the current year. County Superintendent Frank Farmer points out that addition of seven school-operated busses in two years is an outstanding lini: in the "New Deal for Texas education." Fluvanna and Ira now have five usses each, Pyron and Hermleigh have three each, and Dunn has two. Hermleigh began school last week with a new Chevrolet truck being used in its own district. Ira has bought a new International bus to care for the 21 Bison students who have just been transferred. Mr. Farmer says that few countles in West Texas with a similar school population have more busses than Scurry County. "This simply means," declares the superintendent, that more and more children are being given modern educational advantages."

EDITORIAL OF THE WEEK

This tax shifting amendment should be defeated. of the two Scurry County men. Facts are stubborn things, but very helpful guides toward progress and safety. We call your attention children, Mrs. Minnie Jonte and Mrs. Ernest Thompson, all of Dal-

1. Substance of the Amendment. An amendment to be voted upon at the general election, November, A. M. Curry, during the week-end 1934, is embodied in Senate Joint Resolution No. 13. In Minnesota the principle has been applied to local taxation in school districts and municipalities, in Utah to the state school fund. In these cases the limits placed are Dallas. It is generally recognized that the ability to bear Streams of public opinion do not mean much in taxes is represented by the amount of wealth in a themselves, but when they form into a mighty river state rather than by the size of its population. The population of Texas increased 90 per cent between 1900 and 1930, the computed wealth of the state increased 450 per cent, or five times as much.

Rank of Texas in Support of State Government. the expenditures of other states, Texas, in 1920, ranked forty-fourth from the top, or fifth from the bottom, among the 48 states in its per capita expenditures for all public purposes, including schools, eleemosynary institutions, highways, etc. This ranking has not been materially changed since that time. (Texas Educational Survey Report, Vol. II, page 25, and Financial Statistics of States, Bureau of Census,

5. Amendment Increases Local Taxes. This amendment, if adopted, must inevitably increase local tax burdens. When normal times return, the State will be forced to use all of its revenue-producing power to support its own agencies.

This bad consequence of the amendment's operation in turn involves another. To the extent that the tax burden is thus shifted from the large to the small taxpayer.

In the biennium just concluded, 1931-33, it was largely the State per capita apportionment and the rural aid funds which kept Texas schools open.

6. A Blow Against State's Rights. The tendency of this amendment is also to strengthen the federal government at the expense of the state. In the long run, the people want and will demand satisfactory government and institutions. If one unit in the political hierarchy cannot provide them, other units No man can handle life to the best advantage until will be called upon to do so. Should the example he becomes a conservative. 7. Bread Bonds Not Considered. The evidence available indicates that the proponents of this amend-Perhaps no greater result can be obtained from ment did not take into consideration the great excelebrations of Texas Centennial, being planned for penditures now being made by the state for relief 1936 at San Antonio, Goliad, Brenham, Nacogdoches, of the poor. It will require approximately three million dollars a year, or "I feel that we have hit the bottom of the hole," possibly much more, for the next ten years or longer

8. Cost of Texas Centennial Overlooked. The world that Texas will have a Centennial celebration and there can be no thought now of turning back. To do so would hurt the state irreparably. The proponents five per cent on the net capital of operators, which of this amendment failed to take into consideration was earned in 1924, the highest return in the last the fact that the federal government offers to Texas for expenditure on its public highways 71/2 million dollars a year for the next two fiscal years, provided, of course, that the state of Texas will match the federal appropriation with like amounts. The coming of the Centennial celebration makes it imperative that Texas roads be made the best possible within a very short time, and then maintained. 10. Reduced Value of the Dollar. The proponents of this amendment did not consider the possibility of cheap money, high prices resulting from the inflation of the currency, devaluation of the dollar, which inflation is now a matter of fact, progressing inevitably toward a much cheaper dollar than we now have. This one fact alone should guarantee the defeat of this amendment. Instead of having for use in our daily business dollars of the value considered
