COUNTY GRAINS IN FAIR SHAPE AS COMBINES BEGIN 1935 WORK

Oats and Wheat Yields Are Much Better Than Expected Because Of Spring Rains.

Rains that came late in the spring helped pull the Scurry County oats and wheat crop up to a level that was not dreamed of two months ago. Six or eight combines started working in earnest a few days ago.

The oats crop that is being harvested, estimated at about 2,500 acres, promises to yield an average of close to 20 bushels. Wheat varies greatly from one community to another, but it is generally estimated that the yield will average about 10 bushels, with something like 7,500 acres to be combined. The average last year was not more than six bushels.

The first carload of wheat was shipped out yesterday by the R. S. & P., and a second car will probably be completed today. Local railway employees estimate that 15 to 20 cars will be shipped out. This compares with about 8 cars last year and 55 in 1933, when one of the county's heaviest grain crops

HEAVY MILLET CROP BUNDLED

Pat and Mert Jones, who live just southeast of Fluvanna, are harvesting one of the biggest crops of millet that you'll find in this part of the country. They have 25 acres of the heavy-headed crop, which is almost unknown in this county outside of small patches used largely for chickens.

The Joneses are binding the crop while it is fairly green. They say it is relished by any kind of stock. Herbert Smith gathered up several heads and stalks of the bumper crop when he was in Fluvanna Tuesday, and left them on display at the Times office.

New Recipe For Success Used By Ozona Constable

By BILL GRAY, Newspaperman of Ozona

There are some people who spend a lifetime in search of fame but never reach their goal, but Constable Tom Smith of Ozona has attained the status of a celebrity by doing nothing. And as constable he has been doing it for 23 years.

For those many years, a score and three, Tom Smith has served as constable of the Ozona precinct of Crockett County and has hung up a record in that office, that of never having carried a gun nor made an arrest. From the mentioning of that fact in the local paper, the story has expanded into an item that ultimately landed in Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" feature.

Since he has been publicized in the national cartoon, Mr. Smith has received hundreds of letters from throughout the United States, querying him, congratulating him and requesting him . . . for pictures, verification of his unique record and for facts of his life. The inquiries have come mostly from story writers, magazine editors, cartoonists and other persons interested in the

The Ozonan is a successful ranchman, somewhat of a humorist and philosopher, and a good neighbor.

Concerning his record as constable, he has managed to keep the electorate sold on his method of law enforcement to such extent that when an aspiring seeker of his office throws his hat in the ring with the veteran officer, the aspirant is overwhelmed by the in-

There were requisites to the office of constable back in the days of saloons and cow town irregularities. In those days a constable needed tact and personality. When they failed, then a constable had to have something else in his make-up, a considerable bit of brawn. Constable Smith was a blacksmith in his youth and was equal to require-

"All I do is tell the boys to have another drink on me, go home and cool off, take a good drink in the morning and forget about it," says Constable Smith. "If they get tough, of course . . well, I can always go to the ranch."

One of the favorite stories of Tom Smith is of the early dry law enforcement, concerning the cowpuncher who was jailed to sober up. After the first few hours' stupor, induced by saturation, the vaquero began to take on life and wanted a drink. In the jail run-around was a pile of rubbish and through it the puncher began to dig . . . just in case . . . A spider, lurking in the trash, nabbed his finger and a physician was summoned. The medico administered a small amont of whiskey to counteract the poison. A half hour later, the constable tells, the prisoner was discovered again rummaging in the trash pilelooking for spiders.

The Ozonan is married and is the father of two girls, one a student in a Denton college, and the constable is getting a huge kick out of getting so many letters from admiring widows and giddy girls who saw his likeness in "Believe It Or Not."-West Texas Today.

Uncle Sam Outtalks Them All.

A little folder just issued by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company reveals that the United States has more telephones than all the remainder of the world combined. Europe has about two-thirds of the balance, Canada about one-tenth of the balance, and the remainder of the world takes what's left. Our worst fears are realized. . . . Washington, the folder reveals, has more telephones per 100 population than any other city in the world.

Meat Packing in Texas.

Petroleum refining is first, flour and other grain milling is second and meat packing is third, the latest census of manufactures for Texas reveals. "Some idea of the importance of meat packing to the economic life of Texas may be seen in these figures." declares G. L. Childress, Texas regional chairman of the Institute of American Meat Packers, "especially when it is realized that between 70 and 80 per cent of the packing industry's income from the sale of its products it used for cash payments for live stock."

Usually, a town tries to make its central event of the year measure up to the size of the town. Stamford, to the contrary, is trying desperately to make the town measure up to the mammoth size boasted by the Cowboy Reunion. That's the only objection one hears to the reunion-"there is just not enough

The reunion is widely advertised, even in towns that are more or less business rivals of Stamford's, for the simple reason that the event has become pure, unadulterated news. THE VILLAGE CHOIR

Written by Leon Guinn, Times Staff Republished from "The Southern Music News," Dallas, July Issue

Today I look across the terraced fields, past the sheltering trees and neighbors' homes, and see the village church. It is a gem in lumber and shingles, its concrete foundations as strong as the religion hat inspired our forefathers to make America a just heritage for their children. What if the paint is slightly chipped, and its exterior within fancy facades? Within is the clear, sweet memory of lives without fancy facades? Within is the clear, sweet memory of lives well spent, of valiant souls humbly serving a just God, and truly hear again the village choir, and it makes me human and gracious. There stands Jim, Carol and Sam in the front pew singing Mary, Frances and Lilly blending in soprano with Richard's Their voices ring softly as a bell in the tower of the soul, and life is perfume again. Other faces in the village choir become living pictures, and it brings tears to my eyes to let memory frame that inspired picture of God's children, singing the gospel songs, that being beautiful endure awake in souls forever In the citadel of the heart methinks the herald angels sing when the village choir sings gospel songs of faith, and no doubt you as a child thrilled at the quivering beauty of the piano; certainly there is flight one's faith climbed the shaft of sunlight penetrating the glazed window panes and found refuge under God's protecting wing!
