TURKEYS SOLD DESPITE DROP IN 1936 PRICE

Market Closes Saturday; Dressing Plant Turns Out More Than 60,000 Pounds.

Despite the decided drop in 1936 market prices, from 18 cents in 1935 to 11 and 12 cents this season. county turkey growers sold about the usual percentage of birds during the Thanksgiving market, which closed Saturday night.

It is the general opinion here that the "strike" of turkey growers in large centers has been overplayed in the papers, and that their action has in reality done nothing more than hold the Thanksgiving marketing to a point that the public can easily absorb.

The tremendous turkey crop this year, and not the desire of wholesale buyers to keep the price at a low level, has been the cause for the low prices of 1936, according to most

GINNINGS MAY CLIMB BEYOND 16,000 BALES

Government Report for November 1 Says 11,327; Total Now More Than 13,000 Bales.

The tail-end of the county's cotton crop, popping open in a hurry after the first killing frost November 3, may boost the total figure for 1936 to 16,000 bales.

A total of 11,327 bales had been ginned November 1, according to the latest government report. Snyder gins had turned out 5,650 bales Tuesday at noon, and the total Friday 13 Turns county figure at that time was approximately 13,000 bales-at least 3,000 bales more than optimists were estimating two months ago for the entire season's crop.

This total of 11,327 bales for November 1 compares with 6,362 bales at the same time last year, when the crop was extremely late.

The state total on November 1 was 2,303,251, compared with 1,903,-142 on the same date last year. Nearby counties had official fig-
