A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Some Christmas traditions

12 Days of Christmas

This celebration begins on Christmas Day — Dec. 25. — and ends on Jan. 6, when the Feast of the Three Kings is observed. The custom dates to the Middle Ages when the days between Christmas and the Epiphany (when the three kings arrived in Bethlehem), were celebrated.

Wreaths

Scandinavian settlers in 19th century America brought the custom of hanging a wreath of fir or pine boughs on the front door as a symbol of welcome.

Santa Claus

St. Nicolas, a kindhearted man bearing gifts in the fourth century Asia Minor, was the ancestor of Santa Claus. The jolly fellow in red we know today emerged from many legends brought to the United States by European immigrants. When Dutch settlers landed safely in what is now Manhattan on Christmas Day, 1624, they named St. Nicolas the patron of their new home.

Ornaments

Trimming trees dates from Saturnalia, the ancient Roman festival of Saturn. It was held to celebrate the winter solstice, the point where the sun is farthest south of the equator (Dec. 21 is the shortest day of the year).

"The Night Before Christmas"

Clement C. Moore wrote this favorite Christmas story in 1822, describing Santa as the twinkle-eyed, dimpled, plump, "right jolly old elf" everyone knows today.

Gifts

Three wise men brought gifts of gold, frankincense (a high grade of incense obtained from various African and Asian trees) and myrrh (a fragrant, bitter-tasting gum resin used in making incense) to the Christ child in Bethlehem.

Christmas Trees

The use of an evergreen tree as part of the Christian Christmas celebration started more than 400 years ago in Germany and spread to most of northern Europe by the 19th century. However, the custom of decorating a tree dates to the Middle Ages in Germany, when the early Christian church held miracle plays to teach its congregations about the Bible. Franklin Pierce, 14th president of the United States (1853-57), was the first president to set up a Christmas tree at the White House.

Greeting Cards

Sir Henry Cole of England is credited with sending the first Christmas Card. In 1843 he hired Royal Academy artist John Calcott Horsley to design a "fancy" British Yuletide images in postcard sized format. Postal Service estimated it handled 280 million holiday cards and letters last year.

Christmas stockings

Oranges, candy, nuts and small gifts are traditional for filling children's stockings. The custom of hanging stockings on Christmas Eve may have had its origin in the legend of the three penniless girls who hung their stockings on the mantel to dry. As the tale goes, St. Nicholas tossed a bag of gold down the chimney where it landed in one of the girls' stockings.

Methodist Church lends helping hand for the holidays

By LESLI RADFORD
Journal staff writer

Whether the help is with finances, food or shelter, there are always those willing to lend a helping hand during the holidays.

The First United Methodist Church of Muleshoe reached out Monday to those who are not as fortunate during the holidays with their second annual Christmas Ministry dinner.

Church volunteers served

225 Turkey dinners, according to event co-organizer Jay Messenger.

Many people were unable to attend the dinner at the church because of the freezing weather, so most of the dinners were delivered to elderly and needy families in the area. Only about 50 were able to make it to the church.

Included in the delivery were stops at the nursing home and the county jail.

Messenger said the Christmas dinner is the church's "ministry to those who may spend Christmas alone or may not have much of a Christmas meal."

This year, more than 30 church members volunteered.

"Our church members get out of this as much as the people receiving our help do," Messenger said. "It's just our way of ministering to these people through our church."

It was a strange year in agriculture

By STEWART TRUELSEN
American Farm Bureau

It was a strange year in agriculture in 1998. The farm economy took a nosedive along with Wall Street, but didn't recover like the stock market.

The weather was particularly strange.

It started in January with a severe ice storm in the Northeast that felled trees and power lines affecting dairy farms and maple syrup production. Parts of the South suffered one of the worst-ever droughts. Flooding followed in Texas. Hurricane Georges destroyed Puerto Rico's coffee crop and leveled poultry barns.

Natural disasters cost American farmers billions of dollars in 1998.

There were commodity price disasters, too. Hog prices, when adjusted for inflation, were the lowest in U.S. history. Iowa farmer Russell Allen said he sold finished hogs in December for 14 cents a pound. A few days later the price was 12 cents.

"That amount covers only half of my feed costs," he said. "The remainder comes from my dwindling farm equity."

Another farmer remarked that raising hogs was like burning money.

The second-largest harvest in history sent corn prices to their lowest levels in 10 years. Domestic use of corn was running at a record pace but exports were sluggish.

Wheat farmers in Washington had a terrific crop, but prices were only half of what they were two years ago before the Asian flu.

It was a strange year in other ways too. A former Secretary of Agriculture was acquitted of federal charges that he illegally accepted gifts. The President of the United States faced impeachment.

Farmers will be glad to turn the page on 1998, but the outlook is uncertain. There is no definite sense of eco-

YEAR IN REVIEW

Mules pounce on Portales 61-40

Muleshoe is dangerous when it gets in a zone — at either end of the court.

Led by Dustin Cleavinger and Mason Sinclair, Muleshoe picked apart Portales Friday, shooting 55 percent from the field in a 61-40 win at WJHS gym.

"We took care of business," Muleshoe coach Ralph Mason said. "We were a little sloppy at times and did some things we couldn't do in a close game, but I think that had something to do with the score."

Cleavinger had 15 points and 13 rebounds and Sinclair added 15 points for the Mules, who sport a modest two-game winning streak. The Mules were 6 of 14 from 3-point range.

But it was on defense where the Mules did the real damage, holding Portales to just two points in the second quarter en route to a 26-13 halftime lead.

An active 2-3 zone that has become Muleshoe's signature defense this season held the Rams to 24 percent shooting for the game. With the 6-6 Cleavinger in the middle and ballhawks Carlton Lewis and Mason Sinclair out front, the Mules are able to extend the zone and pressure outside shooters.

"It fits out personnel and the kids are starting to develop a lot of confidence in it," Mason said. "It caused problems for them."

Combest wants Clinton canned

By RICK WHITE

It was a day that U.S. Rep. Larry Combest and few Americans will not soon forget.

Combest was among the members of the Republican-controlled House that on Saturday voted to impeach President Clinton against the backdrop of more military action against Iraq.

He also had to deal with the stunning resignation of Rep. Bob Livingston, who earlier in the day turned down the Republican seat as Speaker of House.

"I'm glad it's over," said Combest, a Lubbock Republican and District 19 Representative, during a teleconference Monday with rural newspaper editors in his district. "It was pretty ugly."

He said hopes the Senate moves quickly on the impeachment issue.

Combest firmly believes that Clinton should be removed from office — either by resignation or impeachment — for lying to a federal grand jury.

Combest said he wasn't holding the party line when he voted for all four articles of impeachment for perjury and obstruction of justice.

"I truly believe with every fiber of my being that we would have not have gotten to that point," Combest said of the Republican Party.

He said Democratic leaders should have asked Clinton to resign as soon as the details of the Monica Lewinsky case became known.

Clinton is only the second president in U.S. history to be ordered to stand trial in the Senate.

"This is not something that just happened," Combest said. "The reason Nixon resigned was because the Republican Party asked him to. And that's what (the Democratic Party) should have done as soon as it became obvious what had taken place."

Combest is puzzled by public opinion polls that continue to show support for the President.

"I continue to be amazed at how trivial some people view what is strong evidence that the president of the United State broke the law."

Like many, Combest is suspicious of the timing of the attack of Iraq. But he said he has bigger concerns about further military action against Iraq.

"I think the real question is not whether we should have bombed Iraq, but are we accomplishing anything?"

He called for the administration to take a long, hard look at its policy regarding Iraq.

Combest said the United States either needs to make an all-out effort to overthrow the government of Iraq or reconsider its options.

"We shouldn't be putting soldiers in harm's way in an attack that doesn't appear to be having an affect," Combest said.

Closer to home, Livingston's resignation came two days after his confession of martial infidelity. Like many, Combest was caught off guard.

"He did what he thought was right," Combest said. "It's hard for me to judge if he did the right thing."

Combest, in line to become the Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, did give a ringing endorsement of Dennis Hassert of Illinois, who was quickly anointed to replace Livingston by Republican leaders.

Combest called Hassert low-key, "which is probably why he surfaced so quickly." He described Hassert as a friend of American Agriculture.

During the 30-minute phone session, Combest said his first goal as Ag Chairman is to install a safety net for American farmers.

He was stumped when he was asked what he would like for Christmas. He said there were a lot of things.

But becoming President of the United States wasn't one of them.

conomic recovery in the farm sector.

On the positive side, Congress was mindful of the hardships farmers faced this year. Billions of dollars were approved for disaster relief and assistance because of low farm prices. Taxes were actually something for farmers and ranchers to cheer about in 1998. That's because Farm Bureau efforts paid off in securing meaningful tax reform that affected everything from capital gains and income averaging to deductibility of health insurance premiums.

Farm Bureau's grassroots action was active on other fronts too. Farm Bureau resisted EPA efforts to remove vital crop protection chemicals. Farm Bureau was an important voice on the global warming issue.

Farm Bureau also spoke up for farmers on water quality issues, insisting that any regulatory measures be based on sound science and quantifiable data.

Farmers faced some incredible adversities in 1998 to bring in the harvest. There was no shortage of perseverance. But consumers only had to work a little over a month to pay their grocery bills for an entire year. We all benefit from the hard work of America's agricultural producers. As they look to next season, farmers will have to draw on another quality they are known for — optimism.

Satellite technology help study Sandhill cranes

CANYON — Four sandhill cranes equipped with satellite transmitters have arrived in Texas, this according to information on the U.S. Geological Survey's Web site.

According to the information, the four cranes arrived in Texas during the third week of October. As of the first of December, two of the four cranes were in the South Plains, one 10 miles east of Morton, and one 20 miles northeast of Plainview. One is currently 5 miles southeast of Palacios on the Gulf Coast. The fourth crane, now believed dead, was last seen near Big Spring on Oct. 30.

These cranes are being monitored by orbiting satellites, as part of a four-year study that seeks to document the year-round habitat use of mid-continent sandhill cranes, as well as aid in the estimation of the size of their population. Personnel from the USGS Northern Prairie Wildlife Research Center in Jamestown, North Dakota, captured and marked the cranes last March in the Central Platte River Valley in Nebraska.

Each crane is marked with a standard U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service aluminum band on one leg, and carry a one ounce transmitter mounted on a plastic leg band above the knee joint of the other leg. The birds' locations have been tracked through the

Western High Plains Zone approved

ABILENE — Eligible landowners and cotton growers last week voted by a 79 percent majority to establish an eradication program in the five-county Western High Plains (WHP) boll weevil eradication zone, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Of the 1670 votes cast, 1309 were in favor of starting a program.

"Growers in the area have done a tremendous job in putting this plan together," said Foundation Executive Director Lindy Patton. "This is not only a positive vote for eradication, but positive for the economy of the Western High Plains and the cotton industry of Texas," said Patton.

As indicated in the referendum, the initiation of the program is contingent on obtaining financing and state or federal cost-share funding.

The WHP zone consists of approximately 875,000 cotton acres in Andrews, Gaines, Yoakum and parts of Lynn and Terry Counties.

There is a remote chance that Texas sandhill crane hunters may encounter one of the study cranes.

Hart hands LHS second loss in OT

HART —Hart outlasted Lazbuddie 65-59 in overtime Friday in a game of runs.

Lazbuddie, losing for the second time in five games, rallied from a six-point fourth-quarter deficit to send the game into overtime tied at 54.

But Hart (10-4) jumped out to the early lead in overtime and then made 9 of 10 free throws to seal the win.

Laura Jo Via led three Lazbuddie players in double figures with 15 points. Kia Morris chipped in 11 points and Holly Engelking added 10.

"The kids are tired," Lazbuddie coach Carey Sudduth said. "I didn't see a whole lot of fire in their eyes. We're ready for the Christmas break."

Sudduth said Lazbuddie's inability to handle the press was the difference. Lazbuddie (12-2) finished with 28 turnovers.

"For four minutes, we'd shred the press," Sudduth said. "Then for two minutes, we'd struggle."

Senior backcourt mates Veronica Gonzales (18 points) and Ysa Rodriguez (11 points) gave Lazbuddie fits, especially on defense. Post Geneva Finch added 15 points, including 10 during Hart's 22-10 surge in the third quarter.

Hart lead by 12 points at one point in third quarter before Lazbuddie came storming back.

Engelking scored seven points in the fourth quarter to lead the charge.

Gonzales (10 of 12 free throws) sent the game into overtime with a 15 foot-jump shot with 18 seconds left.

Christmas office party in the barnyard

At the Christmas office party in the barnyard on the farm,

The domesticated Dilberts were dispensing wit and charm.

The fermented grain made scholars out of even dullest fowl,

Though it's hard to take a chicken seriously, even when he's speaking owl.

Sheep were bunched like secretaries, sipping wine, comparing notes,

'bout the latest in-house romance and, like always, blamed the goats.

While the sheep dog and the llama were discussing coyotehood,

And why it's so misunderstood.

Cows were gathered round the milk bowl with the union Galloway

Who was trying to convince them they should strike for higher hay.

The more they drank the more they plotted out their smartest moves,

But they finally gave the plan up 'cause its hard to hold a picket sign,

If all you've got is cloven hooves.

By then the pigs had made a mess of all the hors d'oeuvre trays,

"We're unappreciated swine — You think we live our days

Just eat and drink and wallow but WE have yearnings, too!

We aspire to upper management, maybe

It was all this discontentment that has got them feelin' blue.

Farmer Brown announced the bonus, but like always they could not,

Every time they were astounded and surprised which some might think was silly because it was the same thing every Christmas,

But, like always they forgot.

As the sun set on the barnyard everybody got depressed,

Just another office party that would fade into the rest.

Till the rooster's inspiration saved this ponderous December,

When he caught the big tom turkey weaving slight underneath the mistletoe,

Mistook him for a pinata and nearly took his had off with a fence stay,

Causing a small laceration on the snood but as memories will attest,

Made this a Christmas to remember.
