Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Fish will have a gala Sunday. Their three sons and two daughters, with their families, will be here to help the couple celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. The event really falls on Friday, but the family could not get together until Sunday. The all-day affair will be held at the C. E. Fish home in Southwest Snyder. The other boys are Walla and Collie; an's youngest brother.

Mrs. Lou Watson, a widow living just north of Dermott, lost her three-room house by fire Friday afternoon about 1:00 o'clock. She and her three children and her mother, Mrs. Mary Jones, were away from home when the fire swept away their home and its belongings. A defective flue is believed by Mrs. Watson to have caused the fire.

· John and Mary had just backed out of the driveway and had reached the corner when she exclaimed, "Let's go back. I see the light burning in the bedroom."

John just laughed and kept going. "But lights cost money," Mary protested. "We'll be gone three hours."

"That's true," said John, "but let's do a heele figuring."

And as they drove on down the street to the theater he did a simple problem in arithmetic. They had driven just 300 yards from the house when Mary wanted to turn back. John figured they would have used about 1/2 penny's worth of gasoline to turn around and go back to the house, a total distance of 600 yards. This same amount of money would keep the light burning for four hours. They saved money by not turning back.

"I didn't have any idea that light cost so little," Mary said. "I guess that's why the Electric Company says electricity is cheap."

structures and water spreading sysems serve the same purpose on range land. Each provides a mechanical barrier which slows the low of water or impounds the rain-ture to soak into the soil to become available for plant use. "When water is permitted to rau off the land during heavy rains, this oisture is lost for plant use on the land upon which it fell," Turner pcints out. "However." he says, "if this water is controlled by mechanical structures and stored in the soil, the moisture is available to alleviate the damage to crops or grass during eriod of extended drouth. "Evidence of the value of conservng moisture may be seen on conour tilled and terraced farms and on contour furrowed pastures in this area. Where moisture has been conserved fields usually have an even crop stand and pastures have a denser growth of grass along the furrow.
