NEW OIL WELL SPACING ORDER AFFECTS FIELD

Ruling by State Commission Affects
Location of Wells in Sharon
Pool—New Wells Shot

Of vital importance to operators in the Sharon Ridge oil field was a special ruling made by the Railroad Commission Monday that provides 20-acre proration units for the field.

Under this new ruling, spacing of 80 feet between wells on the same tract will be required, and 600 feet between wells on adjoining tracts. Wells will not be permitted nearer than 330 feet to a property.

Although members of the Railroad Commission did not explain just why it was necessary to issue the new ruling for the Sharon Ridge pool, commission members issued new spacing orders this week, with virtually the same provisions, that applies to the Johnson pool in Ector County, and other pools in various sections of West Texas.

In the Sharon Ridge oil field attention was centered late Wednesday on F. W. Merrick's No. 4 First National Bank of Snyder producer, which was flowing by heads following an 860-quart shot from 2,250 to 2,500 feet. Pool's new oil is located in the northwest quarter of Section 130.

Second producer of the week was indicated early this (Thursday) morning with Coffield & Guthrie's No. 2 Spears & Brownfield test, located in the northwest one-fourth of Section 130, which was shot at 9:00 a. m. from 2,171 to 2,343 feet with 750 quarts. Reports received as the paper went to press indicated the producer was flowing by heads.

Mudge Oil Company's No. 2 Alva Johnson (Grace Holcomb) test was drilling at 1,410 feet. Location is in Section 142.

Magnolia Petroleum Company, delaying their southeast extension test in the Sharon pool, their No. 1 W. R. Sterling test in the southwest one-fourth of Section 130, was moving

Billy was rushed to Snyder for treatment of superficial burns, and was taken back to the Fambro residence in the Lloyd Mountain community late Sunday afternoon. LIONS SPEAKER TALKS ABOUT AMERICANISM

"Sometimes we find ourselves unable to define Americanism, but in the larger sense of the world it means liberty, or the right of each person to be a free man," John Lee Smith of Throckmorton told Lions Club members at their regular Tuesday luncheon in the Manhattan Hotel.

"As a visitor to Rome several years ago," Smith continued, "I had the chance to see first hand the land that once ruled the world, and a country from which we get a valuable lesson."

"The thing that caused the downfall of Rome was the crumbling of civilization from within, and not the influence of outside sources. We may live to see that very thing happen right here in America if we, as a nation, lose all track of our moral ideals. But we will not be victims of inside influences that seek to destroy if we hold dear the principles that made our nation one of the greatest on earth," Smith concluded.

FLOATS TO BE HIGHLIGHT OF RODEO PARADE

Addition of Prizes for Decorated
Vehicles Scheduled to Attract
Many Entries This Year

"One of the most enthusiastic meetings of its type held in the past three years was the way attendants described Tuesday night's meeting of the Scurry County Rodeo Association at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Rodeo association directors voted to allow each stockholder to bring one guest to the annual stockholder's and helpers' supper that will be staged at Wolf Park Thursday evening, August 1, at 6:00 o'clock.

The annual stockholder's and helpers' supper, expected to attract 100 per cent of all Scurry County Rodeo Association stockholders, will be staged in the rodeo arena. A chuck wagon supper, replete with trimmings, will be served.

Prize list for the forthcoming Scurry County Rodeo August 9-10 was completed Wednesday, with many new prizes added. Plans made at Tuesday night's gathering call for 75 to 100 floats to participate in the parade each day of the boots-and-saddle round-up. Between $75 and $100 will be given away as prizes for winning parade floats alone.

Directors are working out plans this week for a new routine in the community sponsors' contest, and expect to release full details of this event in the next few days. The sponsors' contest will be conducted along the latest accepted lines of procedure.

The type of pre-rodeo program that has helped to make rodeos an institution with West Texas cattlemen will be the Saturday night Rodeo Rally that will be staged on the courthouse lawn the night of August 3. Free to the public, this gathering is expected to attract at least 2,500 people.

Highlight of activities preceding the rodeo proper will be the two-day booster trips Monday and Tuesday, August 5-6, that will carry goodwills advertising the county's fourth annual rodeo to all parts of this trade area.

Rodeo officials, who plan to make the booster trip one of the most outstanding of its kind, state a large truck, equipped with a stage, will be taken along to stage the entertainment programs.

August 9-10, the two festive days of the fourth annual Scurry County Rodeo, officials will put the "halter on the old corral" and break loose with one of the most colorful rodeos Scurry County people have ever witnessed, advance reports indicate.

A parade will be staged at 1:00 p. m. each day of the rodeo, with Snyder "Tiger" Band leading the parade in full uniform. The local band will play at both afternoon and evening rodeo performances.

Local business houses, a survey conducted this week reveals, will probably close a portion of the rodeo to allow store employees to get a first hand account of the boots and saddle festival.

In the principal address of the evening, R. N. Sandlin of Abilene, deputy state superintendent, stressed the importance of "each community playing the role of which it was capable, rather than attempting goals beyond its reach."

Sandlin, who highly commended the Canyon School and members of the Canyon School Board, stated: "Much of the spirit that has made West Texas communities the social centers of 10 and 15 years ago can be greatly revived today by just the type of community gatherings evidenced at Canyon."

REUNION HELD BY BLACKARD GROUP FRIDAY

Reunion of the L. W. Blackard children was held Friday at the Dunn tabernacle, so that the group of brothers and sisters might be near the graves of their mother and father in the Dunn Cemetery and also in their former home community. Nine of the 10 children were present for the all-day gathering, which attracted 69 relatives and a few friends.

Originally from Mississippi, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Blackard moved from Brown County, Texas, to Scurry County 40 years ago. Recollections of the children included the fact that the late Mr. Blackard paid the highest price for his farm land, one mile northwest of Dunn, on record for that period.

Useful citizens have come from the family, which gathered to uphold family traditions at Dunn Friday. Some of the children moved to other parts of the state soon after coming to Dunn in 1906, but they have returned for frequent visits. Mrs. Blackard died just three years after the family moved to Scurry County, and Mr. Blackard lived until 1927.

The four brothers present at the reunion were: J. K. Blackard of Abilene, H. M. Blackard of Ira, R. A. Blackard of Colorado City and T. F. Blackard of Carrizo Springs. The sisters were Mrs. R. C. Huggins of Snyder, Mrs. F. M. Brownfield of Idalou, Mrs. W. R. West of Mitchell County, Mrs. Berry Edmonds of Fort Worth and Mrs. J. P. Crowder of Dunn.

Also present for the reunion were Mrs. Roy Blackard, widow of the youngest brother, and her son, Joe Leonard, of Colorado City; a step brother, J. E. Shipp of Snyder, and a step sister, Mrs. Blake Durham of Dunn, with their families, were in attendance. Basket lunch was served at noon.

Both will continue their work, and they are at home at 2705 Avenue T.

"I'm sorry," she said.

"That's all right, Mary," John's face cleared.

"Are you in a good humor?"

"Fairly so. Why?"

"I have an apology to make for my younger son." Contact with the tropical sunshine had given Mary Adams' skin a permanent tan. She was slight and worn, at thirty, from having dutifully, and gladly, followed the feet, from having had two babies, "each in a different language" as the expression it, from the struggle to keep up the necessary front on a naval lieutenant's pay. But her dark eyes in the sharp pikie-like brownness of her face were animated and cheerful and the stories she told of her vagrant existence were a source of amusement to John.

"What has Skippy been up to?" he asked.

"Look! John." She held out a crumpled sheet of yellow paper.

"This telegram came for you yesterday afternoon. I left it on the table in the hall and supposed you'd gotten it when you came in. But Skippy must have. You know how he's always looking for letters from Nat. I found it in the pocket of the sweater he had on yesterday. I think he's stolen most of it. There isn't much left."

John took the paper from her hand. The only typewritten words which remained legible were "NOON TOMORROW—GAY." He looked up from the paper to Mary Adams.

"Abbie took a telephone message just after noon when Miss Sprague was out for lunch. It was from the Congress Square."

"Do you suppose that was Gay?" he asked in a dazed voice.

"Abbie said it was a lady. She never gets names straight, you know. When I found the telegram I was pretty sure."

"Then she's been here all afternoon." John ran his fingers through his hair effecting a crisp disorder.

"Why didn't you call the hotel?"

"I considered it, but I thought she might wonder why I read your telegrams."

"What will she think of me?" John asked still in a dazed and bewildered voice.

Mary's face twinkled with sympathetic excitement. "I've spanked Skippy if that makes you feel better," she said. "You'll bring her here, won't you?"

"May I?"

"For dinner, if you like. We can open the emergency bottle of olives. Or maybe you'd rather—"

"After dinner," he said. "Will you take care of her during office hours? Is it imposing?"

"Imposing! I'm hysterical with excitement."

John's diffident smile widened into an irrepressible grin. "Mary," he asked, "did you ever feel as though somebody had socked you in the pit of your stomach and a million stars were bursting inside of your head?"

He reached for the telephone. Mary moved toward the doorway, smiling.

"I feel that way every time Nat's ship steams into port," she said gently, and went out and closed the door.

John laid down the menu card and the water moved away. He smiled diffidently across the narrow table at Gay.

"A straw hat," he said. "You've torn several leaves off the calendar. This afternoon I was sure we were in for a blizzard."

"Don't you like it?" Her smile was constricted.

"I'm more polite than you were. It's nice. Looks like a halo. Have you had a pleasant winter?"

"Very pleasant, thank you. I got a little weary of palm trees and bathing suits, though. I wanted to see snow."

"Is that why you came?"

"Well, variety—You look—" Her glance dropped from his face to the table. She constructed a wigwam with a knife, a fork, two spoons.

"Are you working hard?"

"You haven't forgiven me, have you?" His voice softened. He bent toward her across the table. "I don't blame you. It was dreary not to be met at the station. I can't tell you how sorry I am. What did you do all afternoon?"

"Stayed in my room. It has matching draperies and counterpane the color of melted raspberry sherbet. There are twenty-four-de-lis, light gray on darker gray, running lengthwise in the carpet from the window to the door."

"Is that all you could find to amuse you?" His laugh was reluctant.

"But, darling—" Her eyes fell from his face. "All right," she said slowly.

From the divan on which she sat she watched him cross the lobby to the desk, holding himself stiffly, his shoulders erect. Though she saw only his back in the dark tweed suit, she knew how his face looked, a little grim, the jaw line pronounced, his dark eyes brooding. How silly of him. But how thoughtless of her, perhaps. She must be careful—She must remember—

When he came back to her, a bell-boy followed with her luggage. John took her loose fur coat from the boy, held it, apologized for hurrying her, but avoided her glance. They went out through a revolving door. Cold wind struck them with unanticipated force. She was blown in a staggering half-circle. He caught her. They stood on the pavement in the light washing out from the hotel. Their eyes met.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I thought—"

"You were right." His eyes were penitent, his slow smile self-reproachful. "I was showing off. Forgive me."

"The last patient gone?" she asked, glancing up from needles that flashed through scarlet wool.

"I've paddocked the office door." He went to Gay, settled comfortably in a corner of the davenport and dropped down beside her.

"Mary, do you think that professional ethics would permit me to cut the telephone wires?"

"I shouldn't hesitate," she replied briskly, and stabbed an amber needle through the rolled length of knit wool.

Mary folded her knitting and stabbed a needle through the bundle of wool. "There'll be a greater possibility of Miss Graham's liking me if I disappear tactfully now."

"Don't run away, Mary."

"Her small brown face twinkled. "You aren't very convincing, John."

She rose from the chair beneath the lamp. "You can have breakfast anytime you like," she said, smiling at Gay. "John has his pretty early."

"I'll have breakfast with John. Will you call me?"

"The children will probably extend to that. You've made a terrific impression on my son, Nat. He's a susceptible young man. Good-night!"

"Good-night, Mrs. Adams. And thank you."

"I do like her," Gay said when Mary Adams had gone out and closed the door.

"Mary's very fine." John dropped down on the davenport again.

"She tells me that her husband is in Manila."

"Yes, for two years. Mary had a bad case of typhoid last summer and Dr. Sargeant thought it unwise for her to go with him. She's not very strong and the tropics are enervating. Those two kids are a handful."

"Probably no other project that is being carried on in rural school districts through the summer months is benefitting county schools more than the state sanitation project in operation here." Roy O. Irvin, county superintendent, stated Tuesday.

Rural schools of the county that have recently received benefits from the project in improved sanitation facilities include Bethel, Plainview, Martin, Turner, Lloyd Mountain and Ira.

Sanitary privies that have been installed in county schools under the direction of B. L. Kott, local state sanitation supervisor, include Canyon, Dermott and Ennis Creek.

The local state sanitation project, which is being sponsored by WPA, the City of Snyder and Scurry County, is declared by State Health Department officials to be "one of the most important in operation in Texas counties."

"To safeguard health in any county," they stated, "the right precautionary measures must be taken. This is especially true in Scurry County."

Latest issue of Midwest News Flasher, a publication distributed by Midwest Electric Cooperative of Nolan, contains REA news of such general interest to Times readers, excerpts are given herewith.

Sidelights of Midwest REA Projects Taken from Recent Office Bulletin

"The growth and expansion of our cooperative has made it necessary that the time limit for paying monthly service bills be moved up from the 20th of each month to the 15th. Although not affecting this month's bills, this change goes into effect with August service bills.

"People of our trade area, whether REA customers or not, missed a good show if they didn't attend one of the four meetings we held at Pivanna, Pylon, Hobbs and Roynton.

"While we are waiting for new allocations to start work on 120 miles of new rural electrification lines in Scurry County, we are happy to announce that 108 more farm families in the Busby, Longworth, Falava and North Roby communities of Fisher County will soon be receiving electric service from our REA lines.

"Cleveland Littlepage, vocational agriculture teacher of Hobbs, has recently built a new home near the Hobbs School. We are proud to state that Littlepage is often considered the "papa" of our Midwest Cooperative, because of his ceaseless and untiring efforts toward organizing the original group of members.

O. J. Martin One of Buyers at Cattle Sale

O. J. Martin, county stock farmer northwest of Ira, was one of the 35 buyers who took advantage of mid-summer conditions of cattle in the auction sale of Herefords Monday at the White Hat Ranch near Blackwell.

A number of Scurry County stockmen attended the barbecue dinner given at the ranch Monday at noon, and the auction that followed.

Black & Largent of Granbury topped the sale when they paid $460 for May Mischief 4th, by Prince Domino Jr. The heifer was calved May 24, 1938.

John B. Stribling & Son of Hobbs paid $230 for Banglette Miss 4th, a three-year-old cow calved September 15, 1928.

Other county attendants at the White Hat sale included Mrs. Royce C. Ellend, Harrie and Wade Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gray and C. T. McLaughlin, owner of the Diamond M Ranch.

Scouts of Section Will Make Tour Of Interest Soon

Senior Boy Scouts from this and other counties in the Buffalo Trail Council area who take part in the trail council's first Senior Scout Tour will have some unusual camping experiences during their 10-day trip, starting August 5, to the Rocky Mountain National Park.

In the course of the August 5 through August 15 tour away from home, the group will be at 10 different camp sites. Camp sites range from the Plains to the heavily wooded mountains of Southern Colorado.

The entire trip is to be one where "roughing it" will be the rule rather than the exception. Meals will be cooked out-of-doors, and all nights on the road will be spent under the stars. Where possible, natural rustic shelters will be set up instead of tents so that Scouts can still get the feel of real camping and pioneering.

At present plans call for side trips to the Puye ruins, in New Mexico, site of the living quarters of a group of Indians who settled there approximately 700 years ago. The Royal Gorge of the Arkansas River will be visited, and Scout officials are now trying to make arrangements for the group to make a trip through the United States Mint at Denver.

Leaders of the tour promise a varied and memorable outing for Scouts who participate. Every notable curiosity of nature and history which it is possible for the group to visit will be seen. It is the purpose of the men in charge to make the trip so successful that it will become a regular feature of the summer program of the Buffalo Trail Council.

Jesse Clements, scoutmaster of Snyder's Boy Scout Troop No. 36, states scouts have until August 1 to register for the trip. Buffalo Trail Council officials report a good response has already been shown in scouts signing up for the trip. Members of the group will be limited to 32 Boy Scouts.

USE OF COTTON URGED AS AID TO INDUSTRY

Local People Asked to Cooperate in South-Wide Drive for Increased Consumption of Staple

Cotton producers and cotton buyers of Scurry, Piner, Nolan, Mitchell and other nearby counties in this trade territory were called upon Tuesday by Oscar Johnston, president of the National Cotton Council, for 100 per cent allegiance in cotton's total war for increased consumption.

In a message addressed to local producers throughout Scurry County, Johnston declared that "the raw cotton industry is arming as never before in its history to smash the blitzkrieg of substitutes, surplus and foreign competition."

The message came simultaneously with the National Cotton Council's announcement of a "universal service" plan to provide funds with which to carry on the fight during the coming year. The new plan, to go into effect August 1, calls for a defense fund of five cents on every bale of lint and three cents on every ton of seed, mobilized with the help of each of the five primary raw cotton interests.

Under the new plan, arrangements have been perfected enabling the producer to make his nickel-a-bale contribution at the first point of sale, either to the cotton merchant, large or small, or the gin-ner or warehouseman acting as merchant. This contribution is carried on from merchant to compressor, who remits the accumulated funds to the Council when the bale is first compressed, or from the merchant to the textile mill which remits on uncompressed cotton.

Similarly, contributions on seed, which are made by the ginmer and crusher, are assembled and remitted to the war chest by the oil mills.

"For fifty years we cotton farmers have been talking about an organization like the National Cotton Council to defend our markets and find new ones through judicious advertising, intelligent research, and organized opposition to restrictive legislation. At last we have it, and in two years, equipped with modern weapons, it has accomplished more than any of us thought was possible in so short a period," Johnston stated.

Locals Attend Meet Of Baptist Laymen

H. L. Wren, District 8 Brotherhood president, Jack Inman, Hollis Browning, A. C. Kincaid, D. H. Goodnough, D. V. Merritt, Walter Holmes and Lawrence Deavers compose a group of local people who attended the regular quarterly associational Brotherhood meeting at Colorado City Tuesday night.

Union Baptist Church, six miles west of Snyder, was named host for the next quarterly Brotherhood meeting, which will be held at the county church in October.

ENROLLED AT LUBBOCK

Thelma Welch, daughter of Mrs. J. C. Welch of Snyder, has enrolled in Draughton's Business College at Lubbock, where she is taking shorthand and typing. G. C. Stewart, Draughton's college attaché, states Miss Welch's work as a student is proving highly satisfactory.

To the Voters of Scurry County

The pressing duties of my office have made it impossible for me to make a personal call to solicit your vote and influence for reelection to the office which I now hold as sheriff of your county. Since I have not the time nor the opportunity to contact you personally, I take this means of letting you know that I deeply appreciate the privilege and the honor of serving you during the past 18 months.

I am asking election for a second term. My services as a peace officer are generally well known to the people, and I am now asking the voters to give me a second term based upon my past record and experience.

As a peace officer it is my duty whenever possible to run down law violations and bring to justice those found guilty of violating the law. This I have done in a prudent and diligent manner but, at all times, I have tried to be fair and impartial. If elected for a second term I shall continue to render that same fair and impartial service.

After serving as sheriff for the past 18 months I feel that I am now better qualified for the job and can make you a better sheriff during the next two years. A peace officer is confronted almost daily with various kinds of problems concerning the interests of the general public. Oftentimes the problem is of such a nature that it must be handled in a cool and judicious manner. During my term of office I have done my best to handle each and every problem fairly and squarely, but at all times to keep a cool head. It is upon this service and this record that I am asking for a second term, and I earnestly ask your help and solicit your vote on the 27th day of July.

To the Voters of Precinct No. 1

I want to thank you for your support in the past and also for your support on July 27. If elected I will do my best to maintain and keep your roads in good shape and continue to keep the finances of the county on a cash basis. At any time I will be glad to cooperate with all the people in the county and city in any move that will be of benefit to all. Thanks.—HUBERT ROBISON.

TO COUNTY VOTERS

Having been confined to bed most of the time for the past two months, please consider this my earnest solicitation of your vote for district clerk in the July 27 primary.—Sincerely, Marion Newton.

TO THE VOTERS

The time is near when you must choose the one who is to be your next County Clerk. If I was capable of serving in that capacity when you first elected me, I should be able to render a more efficient service with experience.

Thanking you for past favors and assuring you that your vote and influence will be appreciated in this election, I am, your friend—CHAS. J. LEWIS.

To Scurry County Voters

Due to the duties of the office it has been impossible for me to call on you personally to solicit your support and influence for reelection to the position which I now hold as your county attorney. Therefore, I take this method to let you know that I appreciate very much having had the privilege and the pleasure of serving you up to the present time in my first term of office.

I am now seeking election for a second term, and I would appreciate your checking my record not only as an officer for the short time that I have held the same but as a private citizen of your county for some 20 years. If, after investigation into my private life and as an officer, you find that I am worthy of confidence, and that I have discharged the duties incumbent upon me as your county attorney in an honest and fearless manner to the end that the laws of our county are fairly and impartially enforced, then I will deeply appreciate anything that you might say or do in my behalf between now and the date of the election, and I earnestly solicit your vote on the 27th day of July. In conclusion, I submit to you my candidacy strictly upon the basis of merit and service rendered. Sincerely,
BEN F. THORPE.

Billingsley Writes to County Voters

I shall greatly appreciate your reading this article. Though I realize that you receive many political appeals, I am making this brief and to the point as well as I know how.

In the first place, I am unable to make a personal campaign owing to recent illness, and the doctors have advised me not to undertake a personal campaign. If I were able I would be glad to make a personal campaign for I would enjoy meeting people and visiting with you.

I am seeking a promotion from the office of district clerk to that of county clerk. I appreciate the office of district clerk and enjoy the work, but unfortunately for me it hardly pays enough to make a living for myself and my family. I have tried to give satisfaction in the office I occupy and believe that I have. I believe that I am qualified to fill the office of county clerk, and I respectfully solicit your vote for the same. This promotion would certainly mean a great deal to me, and I earnestly desire your support.
J. P. (Jimmie) BILLINGSLEY.

From Your County Treasurer

I have been mighty busy trying to make you a good county treasurer. I appreciate the cooperation my friends have given me in office. Although I have no opposition for the office this year, I am not unmindful of the support of friends that gave me the office two years ago. I pledge continued efforts toward an efficient discharge of the duties of the office.
MOLLIE PINKERTON.

More Jobs Made Available by NYA Increased Funds

Unemployed boys and girls in Scurry and other counties of Texas who are at least 17 years of age and need the work experience and training provided on NYA projects are now eligible for such employment. A. V. Bullock of Lubbock, district NYA director, said here Monday.

All unemployed boys and girls, from 17 to 25 years of age, who are out of work and are interested in NYA employment, are asked by Bullock to contact James A. Cowan, local NYA supervisor, as soon as possible.

With funds made available, the minimum age requirement for work on NYA projects has been reduced from 18 to 17 years, approximately 113,000 Texas boys and girls automatically become eligible for NYA employment, provided they are out of school and need a job, Kellam pointed out.

With funds made available, the National Youth Administration in Texas will be able to provide employment for 15,000 young persons at any one time, it was explained. As youth go off NYA projects into private industry as a result of the work experience and training gained through NYA employment, all eligible youth in the state will have the opportunity to replace them, the State Youth Administrator stated.

"All over Texas, in cooperation with local public and civic organizations, NYA work projects and resident centers are operating to give youth work experience and related training in radio technique, metal work, aviation mechanics, auto mechanics, agriculture, home-making, wood and iron work and many other fields," Kellam said.

Imported Corn Seed Matures in 42 Days On Middleton Place

Literature's famed axiom, "the best eating corn from little kernels grows" was proved here last week when Jack Middleton, who lives just outside the city limits of Southwest Snyder, exhibited some sweet corn that within 39 days from planting made roasting ears.

Remarkable thing about the sweet corn Middleton was exhibiting was the fact all ears on the stalk, which were normal in size, were not over four to five inches above the stalk's tap roots.

Planting seed of the sweet corn was furnished Middleton by Melvin Newton, local grocer, who received the seed from his sister, Mrs. J. M. Hollingsworth of Oceanso, California. Newton, who believed the corn seed was received this year too late for profitable planting, gave Middleton a sample to plant in his garden. Both Newton and Middleton were completely surprised when the corn, which matured rapidly, was too mature for cooking on the cob within 42 days after planting.

NYA Marches On!

Those who bemoan the apparent fate of youth today, and while away the moments of their spare time accusing the government, as well as private business and industry, of laying down on the job so far as hiring needy young people is concerned hit a stump when they get around to the National Youth Administration.

For this government agency, which has been bending every effort during the past three years to give needy boys and girls from 18 to 25 not only employment but training in vocational work as well, is doubling its efforts now to place as many youths as possible on project work so that they may earn, as well as learn.

With the announcement this week that the minimum age requirement for work on National Youth Administration projects has been reduced from 18 to 17 years, approximately 113,000 Texas boys and girls become eligible for NYA work.

Leaders of the older school of thought argue rather convincingly that boys and girls in granddaddy's day had no NYA work to fall back on—and yet they succeeded in finding work and later establishing homes. This was very true 20 years ago, but conditions have changed so rapidly in the past five years, for instance, that what held true several years ago will not, in many cases, hold water today.

And at this crucial moment in America's economic history, when butter and bread is more often at stake than the dreams of a fanciful future that could carry youth forward in years past, NYA work means much to boys and girls who want to thrill at the actual experience of earning their way along.

The National Youth Administration, despite the bars hurled at it from many "ornery" outsiders, marches on! The employment it gives youth of the state and nation not only keeps them from heading out on the open road with nothing in view but sleeping under the stars and getting a warped outlook on life, but offers, through vocational training, a means of instruction that can well become stepping stones to better things beyond!

The Rodeo Just Ahead

With officials of the Scurry County Rodeo Association working out final plans for what will be the county's fourth annual—and probably biggest—rodeo here August 9-10, interest in the rodeo as an institution is reaching a new level, not only here, but in other West Texas counties.

The recently held Texas Cowboy Reunion at Stamford proved conclusively this year that rodeos of this type are and do get too big to be satisfactorily profitable. When this is the case cattlemen and others naturally turn their attention to the home county rodeos—affairs inexpensive to stage, but affairs nevertheless that offer everything a larger rodeo can offer.

Those interested in rodeos as an institution are sometimes surprised at the fact the world's first rodeo was held in 1883 at Pecos, a small size affair that started as a result of cowhands engaging in some friendly competition.

Today, just 43 years after the first rodeo was staged at Pecos, people look upon a rodeo such as the Scurry County Rodeo here in August as an event that will attract almost 5,000 people. Yes sir, rodeos are here to stay, and the people who put them on are the conservative type of citizens who do not endorse events of the kind unless they're something really worth the money. So, get your saddle down from the old corral, boys, for there's going to be great doings here August 9 and 10.

Editorial of the Week

THE RADIO "THRILLER" WAVES

The wane of the radio "thriller" for children is foreshadowed in results of a survey, made in New York City schools, which shows that the youngsters themselves are wearying of such sensational fare. A happy feature of the questionnaire, sent to 60,000 pupils in 21 schools, was an invitation to the children to make recommendations for radio programs they would like to hear.

The programs they suggested show that these children—ranging from kindergarten through the first year of high school—are keen for wholesome entertainment, especially when it makes demands upon their imagination, enlarges their understanding of the world they live in, satisfies their curiosity, and appeals to their aesthetic tastes. They are interested in nature studies, in information about children's hobbies, in news of scout activities and of what other children are doing. They asked for American historical plays, dramatizations of Bible stories, fairy tales, travesties of foreign countries, music, and more operettas. They wanted mysteries and adventure, but preferred them "with less shooting."

As radio programs are created to satisfy the children's own tastes, the radio will take on a really constructive role in their experience. Such programs will accustom children to listen attentively without having their emotions overstrained; they will stimulate healthy interests, curiosity and intelligent discussion, and they will cultivate the child's inherent feeling for poetry, music, and drama.—The Christian Science Monitor.

I know the Bible is inspired because it finds me at greater depths of my being than any other book.—Coleridge.

Current Comment

By LEON GUINN

Developed as a peacetime movement, the Triple A program is playing an important part in the national defense program, attaches at the state AAA office reported this week. . . "First," R. M. Evans, national AAA administrator, says, "farmers and ranchers are building up the productive power of farm and ranch land through the use of conservation practices, and second, are cooperating in a program designed to make agriculture a healthy industry that provides abundance now and will continue to provide that abundance in the future."

Evans points out that sound agricultural practices are essential to national strength, and that the Triple A stands more clearly than ever before as "a vital bulwark to our national defense program, by helping farmers and ranchers to conserve and build up the agricultural resources of the United States, resources as important to our future as in our past development." . . . Traeng briefly the exhaustion of the nation's range lands through over-use and the subsequent movement to rebuild the grasslands, Evans declares that it is only natural now that the people of the United States, through the government, should take an interest in land and soil conservation.

During 28 years of land buying for national forests under the Weeks Law, the United States has purchased 16,369,751 acres at a total cost of $61,260,435. . . This program of consistently adding to our national forest acreage has resulted in the government obtaining valuable timber lands that will never be denuded by money-grabbing lumber kings, who always consider reforestation and timber conservation the pipe dream of forest service boys who couldn't find anything else to do. . . Preservation and additions to our national forest lands is vitally important, if we are to make America the "ramparts of beauty we watched" for future generations.

Those who cling to the viewpoint that the U. S. Army is an invincible branch of national defense received a severe jolt with this week's issue of Look magazine. . . In this issue, Major Leonard Nason, reserve officer and radio commentator, alleges that "dotards" who should have retired 10 years ago are in charge of army policies, that the younger school of officers and soldiers get a lot more training in bed-making and putting the white paint on stones than in warfare and modern army tactics. . . While it may be assumed Nason is using an extremist argument, army officials are pretty hot under the collar about the exposure; they admit the army is sadly in need of rejuvenating influences, but they've had a mighty cranky set of Congressmen to face in getting allocations for modernizing any branch of the U. S. Army at all.

Natural gas producers of the southwest are growing highly enthusiastic over a newly discovered but inexpensive method of producing high explosives from natural gas. . . Although details of the new process are not yet available for publication—in trade journals or otherwise—this new explosive, which is announced at the moment least expected, is comparable to nitroglycerin, used basically in dynamite and double base military powders. . . Research members of the petroleum industry predict this new usage of natural gas will not only mean an additional horizon of income for oilmen and landowners, but will make the United States much more self-sufficient in producing its urgently needed defense products.

About the niftiest thing a gardener could ask for in the way of garden helps is a complete first-aid kit for "happy gardeners," introduced last week by an Iowa firm. . . This kit, which is expected to take all the guess work out of raising vegetables and foods for home consumption, will appeal mostly to city residents having gardens, since it contains chemicals, implements and detailed instructions for combating a wide range of insects and diseases that attack flowers and plants. . . All of which reminds us in a forceful way that farmers and gardeners, who as a rule know how to farm or garden a lot better than they actually put into practice, need to know more about the chemical analysis of their soils and the ways and means of combating insects and plant life destroyers than they do the aesthetic angle of raising garden products.

Once a gardener gets to knowing soils and the types of chemicals different soils are usually deficient in, and how to successfully keep Old Man Insect away from the rows of growing peas and beans, the matter of seeing things from the standpoint of beauty becomes a secondary and unconsciously adopted attribute. . . Aesthetic, in its Latin form, aesthetica, was first used by Baumgarten in 1750 to designate the science of sensuous knowledge, the goal of which was beauty. . . Once a person gets a working knowledge of how to keep green things growing, the appreciation of beauty in nature—especially to those in close contact with the soil—becomes an adopted characteristic.

Although the government, as predicted in this column three weeks ago, has even given out announcements of pending actions in regard to the national defense program ahead of authorizations for several important deals, it is working itself out of some embarrassing situations in which the sudden defense rush put it. . . Defense attaches probably pulled one of the month's prize boners last week when they summoned officers of one large industry to Washington and asked them to expand their plant capacity for defense work.

WOMEN MAKE MATTRESSES IN AREA SESSIONS

Five Community Centers Slated for Demonstrations by County Agent Under Group Method

Beginning Monday of work under the county's cotton mattress demonstration program provided cheering news for the county families eligible to receive mattresses under the program sponsored by the county home demonstration and county agent's offices.

Total of 15 cotton mattresses were completed through Wednesday at Strayhorn, the first work center set up for making the cotton mattresses. Miss Ekella Rabel, home demonstration agent, had general charge of construction details.

Women of the Lloyd Mountain community will meet Friday at the Strayhorn work center to make mattresses, and those of the Camp Springs and Midway communities will gather at the Strayhorn center Saturday.

Mrs. Jim Boothe, general chairman of the Strayhorn center, is doing a very commendable job in assisting with mattress construction. Miss Rabel stated Wednesday Second work center to be opened in the county will be the one placed in operation at Union today (Thursday). Women of the Union community gathered to make their mattresses at local work centers this (Thursday) morning.

Residents of the following communities will meet at the Union work center on the days designated next week to make their mattresses: Monday—Ennis Creek women. Tuesday—Tri-Community. Wednesday—Crowder and Bethel. Thursday—Dermott-Martin.

Due to the lack of funds, together with tables and room space, county extension service officials point out that it is impossible to open work centers in each community.

Those who will receive mattresses under the cotton mattress program, therefore, are asked to cooperate 100 per cent, and be at the center from which residents receive notices.

Work centers to date have been designated at Strayhorn, Union, Fluvanna, Hermleigh and Ira. A work center will be established at Snyder if the cotton and ticking on hand is sufficient, after work at the other centers is completed.

AREA LAYMEN MEET SUNDAY IN FELLOWSHIP

Members of the First Christian Church were hosts Sunday evening from 5:00 o'clock through preaching services to a group of about 60 members of the Laymen's League and their wives and families at an informal fellowship meeting.

Lay leaders from Abilene, Breckenridge, Post, Lubbock and Slaton joined the local men and their families in front of the First Christian Church, shaking hands and becoming acquainted. The group enjoyed sandwiches and drinks in the basement of the church. The 60 or more men met in the auditorium of the church for extemporaneous talks from various laymen from the several cities concerning an awakening of interest among laymen in Christian work.

"The purpose of the Laymen's League," a spokesman said, "is to meet with the men of the smaller churches and give encouragement and help to them, as well as to enjoy the fellowship of Christian workers in neighboring cities."

A. J. Cody gave the welcome address to the gathering of men. Lewis Ackers, Abilene business man, gave a highly interesting address, and introduced the speakers.

Highlight of the gathering was a sermon given during the evening services by Rev. Rodney Glascock, former Scurry County youth, now pastor of Lamesa Christian Church.

Ryans Move to New Location at Perryton

Dr. and Mrs. O'Dell Ryan, Snyder residents for the past three and a half years, moved the latter part of last week to Perryton, in Ochiltree County, where Dr. Ryan has established a chiropractic office.

Dr. Ryan purchased equipment and office fixtures for his new office at Perryton from Dr. H. Schlichting, who moved early this week to Vernon to establish offices.

Dr. Ryan and Dr. Schlichting were classmates in Carrer's Chiropractic College at Oklahoma City, where both received their degrees in 1937. Perryton School Board officials announced Monday that Mrs. Ryan, former teacher in the local schools, has accepted a position in the Perryton School as first grade teacher.

School Transfers In County Being Made

"Good response is already being shown by county school patrons in the transfer of school students previous to August 1," Roy O. Irvin, county superintendent, stated Tuesday.

"Students of the county who will not attend school in their home districts should be transferred as soon as conveniently possible," Irvin says. "High school students, as well as those in grammar grades, must be transferred before August 1 if their per capita apportionment is to go to the school they will attend."

Evelyn Pollard was a house guest last week of Ruth Elliott in Colorado City.

Unlawful activities in the Colored Section of Snyder for years have given continued trouble to peace officers. If elected, I propose to put a stop to the carousing down there by diligent enforcement of the laws of our State. Law and order can be maintained—and I pledge an honest endeavor to that end.
