MHS graduation Friday

Muleshoe High School's graduation exercises will be held at 7 p.m. Friday at the Bailey County Coliseum.

MHS will send 68 graduates across the stage during the event.

Memorial Day service set

The Directors and Officers of the Bailey County Cemetery have planned a special Memorial Day Service at the cemetery Monday, May 31.

The event will begin at 9 a.m. with a special flag raising ceremony by the Boy Scouts. The National Anthem will be sung by Watson Junior High 8th grader Cydni Vandiver during the rising of colors.

Reverend Curtis Shelburne of the 16th and Avenue D Church of Christ, will deliver the Memorial Day message and a special dedication service will follow to establish the cemetery as a historical Bailey County sight.

Ruth Hall of the Bailey County Historical Commission will make some special presentations and introduce the guest speaker for the dedication, Dr. Eileen Johnson, one of the directors of the State Historical Commission. The community is invited to take part in these special services by their presence that morning.

All churches, scouts, veterans groups, and city and county governmental agencies have a special invitation to join in the morning of special recognition.

Remember, a citizen may get 9-1-1 rural address information by contacting emergency Communications staff for the SPAG at (806) 762-8721.

TASS scores bring smiles at MISD

By RONN SMITH Editor

By the time Muleshoe School Board members heard results of the district's various testing programs Monday night, there were smiles all around — local students' performance on the state's standardized TAAS test is remarkably improved in in just a couple of years.

The district hasn't yet earned an "exemplary" rating from the state — as Superintendent Bill Moore explained, that doesn't happen if there's a single test category in which fewer than 80 percent of a district's pupils pass.

But the only areas where Muleshoe's percentages for the 1998-99 school year were significantly short of 80 percent were in some subgroups related to third grade math and sixth grade reading.

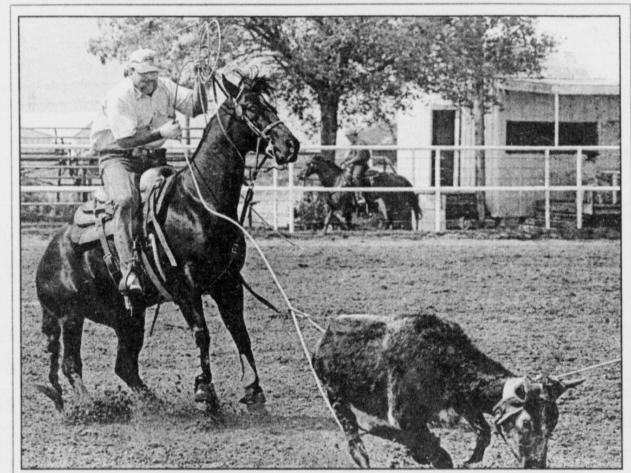

Those were offset by 20 subgroups in which 97 or 98 percent — sometimes 100 percent — of the students passed the tests.

Assistant Superintendent Adrian Meador said

Tuesday that while teachers have worked extra hard to improve test performance, much credit goes to an increase Muleshoe schools have noted in parental involvement in TAAS.

"We sometimes have 100 percent attendance," he said, and the parents' interest demonstrates the importance of achievement to the students, who are then more interested in learning.

James Hicks of Amarillo goes to the horn with a two-foot catch during the USTRC Affiliate team roping last weekend at Dusty Rhodes Arena. The event, which was sponsored by the Muleshoe Roping Club and CLT Roping Productions of Muleshoe, attracted over 750 teams and paid out more than $36,000 in cash and prizes.

Lemond puts on clinic during Muleshoe USTRC Affiliate

JoJo Lemond of Andrews put on a clinic here Saturday night, plowing through some of the best ropers in the southwest to win the No. 11 six-header at the Muleshoe Roping Club's USTRC Affiliate team roping.

Lemond and header Matt Davis of Vega averaged an amazing 7.87 on six head of steers provided by CLT Roping Productions of Muleshoe. The pair had a total time of 47.20 and were more than seven seconds ahead the second place team, brothers Justin and Sid Morris of Muleshoe at 54.54. Davis and Lemond collected $1,695 each for the victory, while the Morris brothers earned $1,400 each.

But Lemond wasn't through. He teamed with Koby Smith of Portales, NM and came back to place third, earning an additional $1,110. He also placed second with Shryl Cooper of Monument, NM, in the No. 9 and collected $539 — totaling $3,344 for the night's work.

The roping saw 742 teams run at over $36,000 in cash and prizes. The event showed a whopping increase over 1998, when 484 teams competed. The growth came as a result of moving the event to a week earlier so as not to conflict with a big Memorial Day surge in roping, including a USTRC event in Odessa.

But the growth was not without a price. Muleshoe Roping Club members and wives and the CLT Roping Productions staff went almost without sleep Saturday night, as the large numbers of teams for the No. 11 and No. 9 extended Saturday night into Sunday at about 5 a.m. It was back to the arena for the 9 a.m. start the next day.

Lemond was one of 12 ropers who won at least $1,200 during the two-day event. Smith, who headed for Lemond in the No. 11, heeled on Sunday and added another $1,400 to his sack. He won $2,591 for the weekend.

Exceeding the $1,500 winnings level was Lyndall McDaniel of Canyon, a #2 header who placed second in the round and first, second and third in the average in the No. 6 to win $1,769.

Davis, with $1,695 after winning the No.

Concerns over grant to dairy unfounded

By RONN SMITH Editor

Citizen concerns about the propriety of an economic development grant to a local dairy appear to be unfounded, according to the minutes of the May 11 meeting of the Muleshoe Economic Development Corporation Board.

A caller to the Muleshoe Journal office had expressed concern that the owner of Boehning Dairy is a son-in-law of Pat Angeley, a member of the Economic Development Board.

Minutes from the meeting are unofficial at this point, until they are approved by the board at its next meeting.

But included in the minutes is a statement that "Pat Angeley excused herself from the meeting at this point." Then the board began discussing the possible grant to Boehning.

The vote to approve the grant was 3-1, reflecting the four board members left in the meeting once Angeley left. The minutes did not reflect which board member opposed the grant.

City Manager Rick Hanna said Tuesday that care was taken to make sure the issue was handled by the book.

"This was done very properly, and I have no reservations about how the board handled it," Hanna said.

Angeley was not involved in the decision in any way, he added. "No input was offered or solicited, and none would have been accepted," he said. "We never considered that a factor."

Hanna pointed out that since he is new in town, he does not always know when family relationships become involved in decisions. But he said that in this case it was pointed out to him immediately.

"As soon as this issue came up, we addressed that," he said.

He also said the board discussed the fact that the dairy is located just outside Bailey County in Lamb County, but agreed that the jobs provided for Muleshoe residents and the business generated for Muleshoe merchants made it in the city's interest to help the dairy's expansion.

Susie Pierce, Hanna's administrative assistant, had said last week that the Economic Development Board got involved in the matter after hearing reports that another community was willing to offer Boehning considerably more than the $150,000 grant being proffered by Muleshoe.

Hospital District moving on plans for new nursing home

By RONN SMITH

Editor

The Muleshoe Hospital District Board is moving toward approval of plans for an 88-bed nursing home overlooking the new city park.

The current proposal is scaled down from the original 100-bed, 37,500square-foot plan. The floor plan for the project has been trimmed to 33,300 square feet.

Board members met Thursday to consider a revision suggested by the board that separates Medicaid, private pay and special care (mainly an Alzheimer's unit) into separate wings.

Another option presented by BGR Architects-Engineers of Lubbock would move eight of the proposed 52 Medicaid beds into the same wing with the pri-

Rain, smiles continue

By RONN SMITH Editor

Recent rains have farmers smiling for now, but County Extension Agent Curtis Preston says it's too early in the season to assess what the moisture could be worth.

"From April 1 to Oct. 1, if we got 8 inches, I could tell you what that would be worth," he said.

Monday's rain around the area brought close to an inch to rain gauges, though there were pockets with less, such as .2 of an inch just northwest of Muleshoe. Rain came Tuesday and is in the forecast through the end of the week.

Preston did say that with the moisture supply as it is, he added, "if we get one more in July, we'll make a decent dry-

AROUND MULESHOE

Students to spend summer at ACU

Muleshoe High School students Beau Cameron Henry and Leonard Mitchell Joyner II have been chosen to participate in Abilene Christian University's Junior Scholars program this summer.

Henry is the son of David and Belinda Head; Joyner is the son of Shelia Joyner.

Junior Scholars enroll in freshman- and sophomore-level courses with current ACU students during the university's two summer sessions. They can earn up to 14 hours of college credit.

Girl Scout sign-up set

Sign-up for the Muleshoe area Girl Scouts' summer day camp is scheduled for June 5 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the municipal swimming pool.

The camp is open to all interested girls. Refreshments will be served during the sign-up period.

Dates for the camp are June 24-26. The first two days will be at the Girl Scout Little Hut and the final day will be at Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge.

Scouts attending the camp will be earning their outdoor badges.

Muleshoe students finish at South Plains

Several Muleshoe students were among the 664 receiving dipiomas at South Plains College in Levelland during the college's 41st annual commencement exercises recently.

Associate of applied science degrees went to Eula Faye Keck Ratliff in computer information systems, Douglas Tennell in auto technology and Ryan Wesley Clapp in performing arts technology.

Associate of science degrees were awarded to Stanford Brian Box and María Guadalupe Ramírez, both academic non-majors. Amy Brooke Barrett received a certificate of proficiency in vocational nursing. Clovis college schedules registration

Registration for summer classes at Clovis Community College has been scheduled for June 3-11 in the college's admissions office.

Students should report for registration alphabetically according to the first letter of their last name, according to the time schedule printed at the front of the summer course schedule.

Students who are unable to register at their assigned time may have someone else register for them. The person handling the registration must have the student's Social Security number and must register during the student's alphabetically assigned time.

More information is available by calling (505) 769-4027.

Hospital joins national hepatitis push

The Muleshoe Area Medical Center laboratory is cooperating with a nationwide effort to identify people who may have been infected with the hepatitis C virus, which has been transmitted is through blood transfusions.

"This is not HIV, the virus that causes AIDS," said Bruce Hinchey, the laboratory's director. "HCV causes a liver disease." Hinchey noted that prior to May 1990, screening tests for HCV wree not available. Improved screening tests came into use in July

People who contract hepatitis C can go for years without knowing they have been infected. Most will develop liver damage, but many do not feel sick from the early to middle stages of the disease.

Of every 100 people infected with the virus, about 15 will develop cirrhosis (scarring) of the liver, which can lead to liver failure. This can take many years to develop.

There is no cure, but there are treatments available.

"For anyone who received blood, or blood products, prior to June 1992, it is advisable that they consult their physician and have a test run to see if HCV may be present as a precaution," Hinchey recommends.

MHS Class of 1989 seeking addresses

The Muleshoe High School Class of 1989 is seeking the addresses of several class members in preparation for its 10-year reunion, scheduled July 3 at the Muleshoe Country Club.

Reunion organizers are seeking addresses for Troy Evans, Claudia Posadas, Tamara Fisk, Elisa Martinez, Yolanda Pena, Tiffany Collins, Mary Espinoza, Mychelle Stout, Bobby Fried, Lawrence Jaramillo, Jason Simms and Jaime Reyes. Anyone who has information on the above graduates, or is a 1989 graduate and did not receive an invitation is asked to call Michelle Estrada (806) 965-2428 or Lisa Gunstream (806) 647-2150.

Persons who have received an invitation and plan to attend are asked to contact Estrada or Gunstream and send their money immediately so that meals may be ordered.

Educators in Small Business scheduled

A seminar on Educators in Small Business is set for 8:30 a.m. (Mountain time) to 4 p.m. June 1 in Room 512 at Clovis Community College.

The seminar is to provide information on the first steps in starting a new business, marketing a product and customer service, as well as firsthand knowledge from local educators who are also small-business owners.

The $25 fee includes morning refreshments and lunch.

Seating is limited to 40 attendees; early registration is encouraged. Registration or more information is available by calling (505) 769-4136.

Wheat must be certified by June 15

June 15 is the final date for farmers to certify wheat for this crop year. The date was extended from May 17 because of the Farm Service Agency's heavy work load due to the disaster program.

Producers are asked to call 272-4538 for an appointment. They also are being asked to certify all crops regardless of the intended use.

Crops must be certified in order to eligible for federal programs.

The deadline for items to appear in Around Muleshoe is 5 p.m. Monday fay Thursday's edition and 5 p.m. Thursday for Sunday's edition. Items may be brought in to the office at 304 W. Second, mailed to PO Box 449, called in to 272-4536, or faxed to 272-3567.

vate-pay beds in order to shorten the wing that would otherwise contain all 52 Medicaid beds.

In both options, the facility's service wing and administration wing have been moved into a more economical "square" arrangement. Also in both options, the nurses' station, day room and dining room are designed as one large open space, with different finishes in each area defining the extent of that area.

"What is our ratio of Medicaid to private pay now?" Board President Tim Campbell asked. He was told that it's about 65 percent to 35 percent in the current facility.

Then he asked what the private-pay rooms would cost in the new facility.

"They ought not to double the cost of the semi-private, although some have suggested that," hospital administrator Jim Bone said.

Phelps asked whether it is expected that any of the current private-pay residents would move elsewhere if the price goes up.

Bone said he feels like that for a new facility with the same amenities they have now, the patients wouldn't move because of the increased cost.

Phelps then asked if the prospects are still good for building an assisted-living facility in the near future, explaining that her reason for asking is that she's concerned that the proposed four private rooms in the nursing home might not be enough of there is to be no assisted-living facility.

Bone responsed that he has been in contact with people who build assisted-living facilities near small hospitals, and they told him that assisted-living units generally fare better where there is not a topnotch nursing home nearby.

Campbell also expressed caution. "What scares me about this assisted-living deal is they

What to do about society's violence remains very puzzling

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a column written by U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas.)

There are no easy answers to what happened at Columbine High School in Colorado, but surely we need to look for ways to curb the violence that erupts in our culture.

The place to start is by identifying the connections between violence in art, violence in the media and violence in real life.

The video games available to children are frighteningly realistic. An 8-year-old can sneak off to cyberspace, assume a virtual identity and, with the touch of a button, torture victims, rip out their hearts or spinal cords, and then wave the bloody debris around in victory.

Statistics regarding the violence children are exposed to on television are staggering. The average American child witnesses 100,000 acts of violence and 8,000 murders on television before leaving elementary school.

If a child plays with video games, that number is multiplied countless times - in violence at the child's own hands. The child pulls the trigger, succeeds in hitting a target and raises the score.

At a recent Senate hearing into this culture of violence, one expert witness testified that video games use the psychological techniques of desensitization that the military employs to teach adult soldiers to kill in battle.

The difference, the witness said, is that video-game violence is associated with reward and pleasure. It is not tempered by the respect for authority that the military inculcates in recruits. Nor is it mitigated acknowledgement of the unique requirements of war. I have long supported public policies that give parents more control over the access their children have to popular culture. I sponsored legislation to create a "report card" system to help parents assess television shows so they can better monitor what their children watch.

Bill would 'conceal' weapon permit

Texans would be able to carry a concealed handgun without the knowledge of anyone except law enforcement agencies under a bill that gained tentative approval in the Texas House last week.

The measure, which is an amendment to a larger bill that authorizes the continued operation of the Texas Department of Public Safety, passed on a 76-68 vote. If approved by another House vote, the bill then would head to the Senate, which already has stamped its approval on the DPS bill.

"This is nobody's business except you and law-enforcement agencies," the sponsor, Rep. Suzanna Gratia Hupp, R-Lampasas, told the Dallas Morning News.

Under current law, residents can submit a person's name and ZIP code along with a $5 fee and find out whether the person has a permit to carry a concealed handgun. Hupp said public access allows stalkers and criminals to prey on victims who

Workshop airs diabetes

Participants in an international one-day workshop last week in Austin called for the development of a statewide strategy to address what health officials believe may be an epidemic of type 2 diabetes in children.

The May 14 workshop, prompted by Gov. Bush, was cosponsored by the Texas Department of Health and Juvenile Diabetes Foundation (JDF) International to find ways to combat a rising incidence of type 2

"No one knows what causes diabetes," said Dr. William R. Archer, Texas commissioner of Health, "but we know there is a link between increased obesity in kids and increased type 2 diabetes in kids."

Dr. Robert Goldstein, research

vice president for JDF, said Texas' approach to dealing with the increased incidence of type 2 diabetes in children could become a model for the rest of the country.

Type 2 diabetes is marked by an inability to properly use insulin to control blood sugar levels.

AG revives Triads Texas Attorney General John

Cornyn signed a statewide Triad agreement May 17 and pledged 100 additional Triads by the end of the year 2000.

Cornyn was joined by state law enforcement officials and American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) representatives in signing the agreement that recognizes and re-establishes Triads currently operating statewide. Triads are groups of local law enforcement officials and older or retired citizens working together to prevent crimes against the elderly.

Texas leads the nation with 100 Triads. More than 600 operate nationwide.

Pathway To Your Future

Mistaken Identity

Is this the horse I think it is? You had him here last year. That rope got tangled in his feet, he jumped just like a deer. He pulled the brandin' pot plum down and hung up in the gate. It tore clean off its hinges which is why it don't hang straight.

I'm tellin' you I know this horse. He threw you cross the fence! The ground crew tried to find a hole and hide in self-defense He bucked back through the cows and calves and tried to kill Joe's truck. I've never seen a grill fall off, ol' Joe was thunderstruck.

He finally stopped to catch his wind, his hide was wringin' wet. We tried to slip up next to him, as close as we could get. To try and grab a draggin rein, was all that we could hope, But he nearly did a back flip when Jim Bob shook out a rope.

I thought that net wire fence would hold but I sure missed my guess. He climbed it like a Sherman tank and lit out toward the west. The whole corral was tore up bad, we've fixed it back since then But there's still bite marks on the gate inside the brandin' pen.

You sure you wuddn't here last year? Performed that tour de force. "You've got me mixed up with someone, hell, I just bought this horse." By gosh, ol' Son, I think yer right, you wuddn't even here. It seems like I remember now, Slim rode him here last year.

Carr's Chapel to host prairie revival

Everyone is invited to join the parishioners of Carr's Chapel for a Prairie Revival on Saturday, June 12. You will experience an evening like the early pioneers did.

We would like to extend an invitation to all those in the surrounding area to share with us in this celebration. This is a family event. We extend a special invitation to the youth. Our circuit riding preachers, Rev. Steve Rogers of Lubbock and Curtis House of Canyon, will arrive on horseback at 7:30 p.m. There will be lots of singing, old-time gospel hymns, and special music. Food and drinks will be available at reasonable prices from 6:30 till 7:30 p.m. The Boy Scouts and San Juan Methodist Church of Plainview will provide food and desserts to raise funds for special projects along with an authentic chuck wagon. We suggest you bring your own seating lawn chairs, blankets, etc.

Our church may be the only surviving rural Methodist church in the Hale-Floyd County area continuously holding regular services for 95 years. In 1963 our chapel was declared a Texas Historical Landmark by the Texas Historical Society. Carr's Chapel is located of FM 378 three miles north of FM 45, about 8 miles from Petersburg; 16 miles from Floydada and Lockney; 38 miles from Plainview; or 45 miles from Lubbock.

Mark the date on your calendar. We will gather to enjoy fellowship with our neighbors, to sing, pray and thank God together, to recapture the basic principles of faith on which. our country was built, and honor our pioneer forbearers.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW, COMMUNICATIONS YOU TRUST

ETTERS TO THE EDITOR

On May 15, I received a "notice of appraised value" from the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District informing me of a doubling of property taxes on my farm in the Walcott Independent School District.

Last year (1998), the property tax on this 328 acres of native grassland with two tin barns on it was $1,134.36; the 1999 property taxes are to be $2,213.69.

Now, if my calculator is correct after being slammed down on the floor three or four times before I regained my composure, that comes out to $6.75 per acre.

Is this reality, or am I having nightmares? Or maybe my farm sits on top of the biggest gold mine in the whole of Texas!

For years now, I have been told that the Walcott School District has one of the lowest tax rates in the state.

If that's true, what is going on in the Deaf Smith County tax appraisal office? Is everybody there getting a Christmas bonus in May? OH — maybe this is the start of a huge tax increase to pay for the proposed new hospital in Hereford?

I wonder what's wrong with the old hospital — it seems to have plenty of empty rooms most of the time.

When Diamond Shamrock shoved its big pipeline through the Walcott School District, all I heard was how much tax money would be coming into the district. What happened with all that money? Did Diamond Shamrock miss a payment or what?

I can barely hear the echos of Gov. George W. Bush did he say something about property tax relief? Where are you, George? We need you here in Hereford, George!

Everything I have accumulated in this world, I've scratched out of this dryland farm in northwest Deaf Smith County. So I am fully aware of the declining Hereford economy, but I still can't figure out how doubling the property taxes on farm and ranch land is going to improve

Well, I guess things are looking pretty good for the employees of Deaf Smith County with twice as much money coming in.

I guess I'm not smart enough to grasp "Clinton economics," or maybe I'm just not efficient enough to handle a doubled tax rate, or maybe I just don't like being ripped off to this degree!

For those more efficient farmers and ranchers out there who are willing to pay $6.75 per acre property tax on good native grassland with two tin barns, please contact me at this address:

Wheat-Tex Farms Inc. Route 4, Box 154 Hereford, Texas 79045 I am willing to include two sections of CRP land in the sale, if you so choose.

In fact, Preston said Tuesday that with the continuing cool nights, the cotton crop in most of the county has had about all the rain it needs for the time being.

"We might take another one (rain) tonight, or tomorrow night if we have to, but that's it!" he said.

Measurements from Monday's rain include:

• Maple Co-op Gin — 1 inch, on top of about 1.3 inches during the weekend;

· Three Way Baptist Church (adjacent to the school)—2 inches;

• Bula Gin — reports of 1.5 to 1.75 inches across the area;

 Dodd Gin — nearly an inch ("This is about as smooth a start as we've had in a long time - we just can't stand this much good news all at once");

· Sherley-Anderson, Lazbuddie — .7 of an inch;

have these over here at Farwell, and they can't sell them or rent them."

He added that there are more units in senior citizen housing available than ever before. "I'm concerned about what's happening to the demand," he said.

The board asked Bone to call around to towns similar to Muleshoe that have nursing homes and inquire about how many private rooms they have and how many they think Muleshoe would need.

Bone said Tuesday the project's estimated price tag has edged downward from $3 million into the $2.5 million range, although nothing can be for certain until the bids come in

In other action, the board:

• Swore in new members — Campbell and Arline Phelps — neither of whom had to stand for election because they were unopposed.

• Re-elected Campbell as president of the board, reelected Victor Leal as vice president and elected Phelps to replace Phil Kent as secretary. Kent was presented with a plaque in recognition of his service on the board.

• Discussed provisions of an offer to lease from Covenant Health System the buildings where Dr. Bruce Purdy (under the Methodist Hospital system) and Dr. Mark McClanahan (under St. Mary's) have been operating clinics. The merged Covenant system has not been interested in continuing the operation of both clinics.

In some subgroups, the percentages that included special education students equaled or surpassed the score in the equivalent subgroup without special education students, indicating that the district's special education students may be gaining ground faster than mainstream students.

Muleshoe hasn't always done that well. Asked Tuesday to review the records, Meador said he only had to check back a couple of years to find passing rates as low as 35 percent in some subgroups.

Meador said the TAAS test can be unusually tough for students because "there are no wrong answers that are obvious."

In other words, a student may not be able to guess the right answer by eliminating some completely implausible possibilities. Even in the least successful subgroups, Muleshoe's figures were not dismal.

In third grade math, which produced the lowest percentages, 70 percent of the district's third graders passed TAAS.

The breakdown of students shows that 67 percent of Hispanic third graders passed while 77 percent of Anglo third graders passed.

It was when economically disadvantaged third graders (regardless of ethnic background) are singled out that the problem is clear: Just 63 percent passed.

Interesting to note, however, is that a gap in math skills declines in older students. Fifth and seventh grade math scores are dead heats, with 98 percent of economically disadvantaged (and Hispanic) seventh graders passing the math test compared with 97 percent overall and in the Anglo subgroup.

Categories in which Muleshoe students achieved 100 percent passing grades include:

• All of the Hispanic third graders outside of special education passed in math. (Throw in special education students and the percentage was still 98 percent passing).

• All of the Anglo seventh graders outside special education passed (with special education students, the percentage fell to 97).

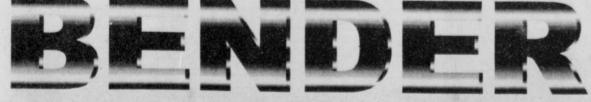

• All Anglo eighth graders (including special education students) passed in both math and writing.

Even in the district's second-worst showing — sixth grade reading — 80 percent of all students passed TAAS. On this test, 95 percent of the Anglo students passed, offset by percentages of 70 for Hispanic students and 71 for economically disadvantaged students.

Texas' Master Gardeners honored

AUSTIN - People who love gardening and who share that love to the betterment of their communities were lauded Wednesday in a special ceremony of the 76th Texas Legislature.

The Texas House of Representatives presented a resolution to Master Gardener program officials and volunteers during ceremonies at the state Capitol, calling for "continued success with this worthy endeavor."

The Texas Master Gardener program trains and enlists volunteers to provide reliable horticultural and environmental information to residents in their communities.

"The program was designed to provide busy county Extension agents with an expert volunteer corps," said Dr. Doug Welsh, Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist and statewide Master Gardener coordinator.

The legislators noted in the resolution that the Extension Service's significant commitment to the Master Gardeners in terms of a full-time program coordinator and thousands of hours of volunteer training by Extension Service specialists and county agents is the reason for the program's exponential growth and success.

"Today, there are more than 4,235 certified Master Gardeners in the program, and together these individuals volunteered 204,666 hours of service to the citizens of Texas in 1998," the

"This volunteer service represents a $2.8 million contribution" and the equivalent of almost 100 full-time employees.

"Whether through information booths on composting or butterfly gardens, coordinating wetlands reclamation or state park landscaping — or simply helping local residents grow bigger chili peppers and roses, Texas Master Gardeners have established themselves as a premier corps of volunteers," the resolution notes.

To be certified as a Master Gardener, a person must undergo 50 hours of training and provide 50 hours of related community service.
