Chip-toss ammo gathered

What many view as a mushy, smelly nuisance is treasure to Sauk City, Wis., people around this time of year. They hitch up a wagon and head out to a cow pasture, ready to gather in the yearly crop of the local specialty — cow manure.

The "cow chips" will be stacked and sundried in time for the annual Labor Day weekend event, the Wisconsin State Cow Chip Throw.

Harvesting chips is serious business — kind of. "Too mooshy," said one searcher, using a sophisticated probing tool, also known as a stick, to break through the deceptively dry crust to a liquid layer beneath.

Experts agree that 1999 appears to be a very good year for chips.

"There have been years when they've been too juicy," Pam Wipperfurth said.

This year, the concern was the hot weather in July. "It's looking plentiful, but we were worried," Wendy Breunig said. "Cows are temperamental, and when it's too hot, they won't eat, and then they don't produce enough byproducts."

Oh, Johnny, another new car!

A 15-year-old girl apparently didn't think it strange that her boyfriend drove a different car every time he came to visit. Police did.

They arrested the girl's teen-age beau last Thursday, accusing him of stealing 16 cars in two months.

All the cars were stolen from the same area of Middletown, Conn., at the same time of night, beginning in early June, and were recovered the next day, police said.

The case was cracked with the use of records from cellular phone calls made from some of the stolen cars. Police said the calls led them to the girl's home in Hamden, some 20 miles away.

The 15-year-old suspect, whose name was not released because of his age, was charged with multiple counts of larceny and criminal mischief.

Schools celebrate best state rating ever

By RONN SMITH
Editor

The smiles were even broader and more numerous than usual at Monday night's Muleshoe School Board meeting: Much of the discussion concerned the fact that three of the district's four schools were assigned "recognized" ratings this year based on students' improved TAAS scores.

TAAS is the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test administered to students across the state.

"Recognized" is the second highest rating schools and districts can receive, just below "exemplary," and the district has worked in recent years to upgrade its ranking to "recognized."

To be ranked in the "recognized" category, a school or an entire district must report at least 80 percent of students passing each subject area as defined by TAAS, report a student attendance rate of at least 94 percent, and in secondary schools report a dropout rate no higher than 3.5 percent.

Muleshoe reported an attendance rate of 95.4 percent and a dropout rate of 2.1 percent.

Board President Cindy Purdy

asked Adrian Meador, assistant superintendent for instruction, to pinpoint some reasons for the improved scores.

"Teachers began to notice that they all play a part," he said, adding that once the scores could be broken down to show how individual classes were faring, teachers were

The parking lot at the new United Supermarket in Muleshoe got its first big workout Tuesday, and a store spokesman said employees were inside stocking dry goods so a photographer could not be allowed inside. An early September opening is reportedly planned for the store.

Wood says scrimmage 'better than last year'

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Mules head coach David Wood said this week that Friday's scrimmage against Seminole showed him his kids are willing to hustle again this year.

"There's a lot of people still wanting the starting positions, so they were getting after it," he said.

He said the team looked good overall despite not scoring. "We moved the ball against them better than we did last year — we didn't score, but we did move the ball better.

"There were some busts, but we're not so much concerned about the busts right now as seeing what we can do," he added.

As for Thursday night's scrimmage against Amarillo Palo Duro (7:30 p.m. at PD), Wood said he

Farmers offer weevil advice

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Texas cotton growers who have been involved in active boll-weevil eradication zones for several years are offering their thoughts on how to make the eradication program run smoothly in new zones.

"We've been fortunate here in the Rolling Plains Central eradication zone that growers have done their part in keeping our program costs low — it's all about efficiency," said Roger Blackwelder of Fisher County.

"One of the best things a grower can do is provide trappers with vehicle access around all sides of cotton fields. Trappers need to drive along turn rows around cotton fields in a pickup to quickly check traps, re-bait and download the data. By driving around the fields, a trapper can usually check about 160 traps per day," Blackwelder added.

"It's simply impractical to suggest that a trapper should walk the fields on foot. They'd be lucky to check a couple of dozen traps during their shift," commented Blackwelder.

"I'd certainly rather pay a hired hand a day's wage to turn out five times the work with greater productivity than pay that same hand a day's wage to do a lot less work," he said.

David Barr of Vincent, Texas, has played an important role in how proficient the eradication program operates in his area.

"From my experience, it just makes good sense to work with the people who are getting rid of this terrible pest," said Barr, who has grown cotton 35 years.

Local eradication scheduled to begin

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation staffers have completed mapping and eradication efforts will begin soon.

"In fact, isolated treatments have already been made to a few hot spots," said Osama El-Lissy, executive director of the program.

El-Lissy further explained that individual fields would be sprayed as they reach treatment criteria over the next couple of weeks.

He anticipated moving on to a general treatment strategy as 50 percent of area fields reach the criteria. "By the first week in September, I expect all three zones to be getting into full swing," he concluded.

The organization's board has adopted a policy allowing extended payment agreements at a reduced interest rate with producers suffering financial hardships.

For those just absolutely unable to come up with the full assessment by the due date, the foundation will accept a down payment of at least 10 percent of the assessment due.

This must be accompanied by a properly executed extension agreement to allow the grower to take advantage of extended payment terms under which a late payment penalty of 1 percent per month of the outstanding amount will accrue until the balance is paid off.

'Meet the Mules' celebrity

Entertaining the near-capacity crowd at last Thursday's Meet the Mules night is Maggie the Mule (MHS senior Kimberly Dickerson). Hugging the mascot are Janna Skaggs, a sophomore flag corps member, and fourth-grader Kenzie Beard. Head football coach David Wood addressed the crowd and helped introduce about 190 participants in football, cross country, band and flag corps. The Athletic Booster Club served homemade ice cream. After this week's Thursday night scrimmage at Amarillo Palo Duro (7:30 p.m.), football starts for real at 8 p.m. Sept. 3, at home against Portales.

AROUND MULESHOE

Girl bitten by Rottweiler

A 7-year-old girl was bitten by a Rottweiler in Muleshoe on Monday, according to a police spokesman.

The spokesman, who was not the officer who investigated the incident, said it was his understanding that the girl was bitten several times and had wounds on her back.

He also said he understood the child was kept in the hospital overnight and received several stitches to close the wounds.

The dog was taken to a veterinarian for observation and no determination had been made as to whether the animal's owner would face charges in connection with the incident, the spokesman said.

Hospital board to set tax rate

The Muleshoe Area Hospital District Board will set its tax rate for the coming fiscal year during a meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. Aug. 26 in the hospital board room.

Other items on the board's agenda include an update on the proposed nursing home and a report on the annual Texas Department of Public Health nursing-home survey.

Class of '59 seeking members

The Muleshoe High School class of 1959, which is planning its 40-year reunion on Oct. 9, is looking for information on the whereabouts of several of its members.

Those "missing" include Linda Cooper, Sandra Cooper, LeRoy Coralez, Isabel Cortez, Glen Fullerton, Randall Gore, Raymond Moore, James Seagroves, Mary Stevenson, Jack Wright, Marquetta Blaylock and Alene Goss.

Anyone having information on the above people is asked to contact Bonnie Wood Jackson at (806) 355-4909, Charles White at (806) 622-0011 or Sandra Allison Cox at (806) 353-2535.

The reunion will be at the Lake Tanglewood Clubhouse near Amarillo, with visiting starting at 2 p.m. and a meal at 6 p.m. Dress is casual; cost is $15 per person.

Blood drive scheduled at 16th and D

A blood drive scheduled for Aug. 26 at the 16th and D Church of Christ is intended to benefit two local residents.

Muleshoe resident Hugh Young is at Lubbock Covenant Hospital after undergoing brain surgery, which requires the use of blood products.

Candal Long has received four in-vitro blood transfusions for her baby and is expected to receive two more. She and her husband, Scott, are from Muleshoe. The baby's grandparents include Paul and Betty Poyner, Terry and Peggy Obenhaus and Earl and Paula Madrid, all of Muleshoe.

The drive is scheduled from noon to 7 p.m. at the church. The process takes about half an hour.

The Journal had been notified that the drive would be held at a different church.

The deadline for items to appear in Around Muleshoe is 5 p.m. Monday for Thursday's edition and 5 p.m. Thursday for Sunday's edition. Items may be brought to the office at 304 W. Second, mailed to P.O. Box 449, called in to 272-4536 or faxed to 272-3567.

quick to see the potential for their own contribution.

Beyond that, he said, "everybody concentrated on Dillman and said we have to get it done there," knowing that if students gained the basic skills in the earliest grades, that would carry through in later years.

He also mentioned the district's emphasis on reading, which pre-dates the state's philosophy by several years.

"Five years before the state said it, Muleshoe said it," he added.

Campuses honored as "recognized" schools were Dillman Elementary, DeShazo Element-tary and Watson Junior High.

Officials said Watson had been recognized before, but not Dillman or DeShazo.

Muleshoe High School missed the designation only narrowly, because of scores in a couple of categories.

The board also voted Monday night to:

- Close the DeShazo campus at lunchtime. Superintendent David Hutton said he had received several comments supporting the move over the Watson Junior High campus was closed, and had not had any negative reaction to the idea;
- Allow students making good grades to take five additional days off from school (in addition to the 10 already allowed) to participate in UIL activities; and

- Heard a report that enrollment is up by six students over last year, with more expected to enroll before the final count is in.

Upcoming on the school calendar are Thursday's high school football scrimmage with Amarillo Palo Duro (7:30 p.m. at Palo Duro), a Muleville board meeting at 3:30 p.m. Aug. 30 at DeShazo, a first-grade teacher/parent meeting at 6 p.m. Aug. 31 at Dillman, and a Sept. 4 Brownfield cross country meet.

expects some similarities between the two teams.

"Palo Duro has a new coach and will run very similar plays to what Seminole did, except that they also use an I formation," he said.

On defense, he said, the Dons use a split six, and "we don't see much of that."

The Mules start their season at home Sept. 3 against Portales, followed by Denver City there and Brownfield here. All three games are to start at 8 p.m.

Bomb scare turns out to be fake

A bomb scare last week at Farwell turned out to be based on a fake bomb, but that wasn't discovered until after authorities had spent a tense few hours.

The crisis began when a motorist noticed a device lying in the intersection of Railroad Road and County Road X just outside the Farwell city limits. The device consisted of two pipes with wires on them and a timing device on one end.

There was no evacuation because no homes are near the site, but both vehicle and train traffic were held up while the device was checked out.

Satellite glitch may cause positioning problems Aug. 22-28

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

This is roll-over week for the constellation of satellites providing position and guidance through the Global Positioning System.

The clocks built into the satellites reached their maximum number of weeks (1,024) last week and rolled over to start anew Aug. 22.

For the most part this has not been a problem. However, on some older equipment not originally built to handle the rollover, it has not been economical for a manufacturer to develop a hardware or software solution.

Replacement would then be the only option.

As to the field navigation/swath guidance systems used by most aerial applicators, one manufacturer—SATLOC Inc.—has discovered a week rollover problem with NovAtel GPS receivers only, in AirStar, ForestStar and SwathStar systems.

Left unmodified, these systems will not function correctly during the week of Aug. 22-28 but will function after that time.

Their products using other GPS engines function correctly and do not need an upgrade.

SATLOC Inc. has upgrading files available through its website, <http://www.satloc.com>, which will enable these systems to function during and after this period.

There are probably others out there with glitches.

Maybe the words attributed to Davy Crockett, Daniel Boone and several other old-time pioneers ring true this week: "Never been lost in my entire life. Just been uncertain of my exact position for a few days!"

A&M researcher working on unique potato study

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
COLLEGE STATION—Before conclusions can be drawn in any research project, a scientist has to get to the root of things.

For Dr. Fred Davies, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station horticulturist, that's fairly literal.

Davies studies fungi that partner with plant roots to help them become more efficient. His work has taken on such international importance that Davies is spending a year in Peru, where potatoes originated, to examine native strains of the fungus.

"Mycorrhizal fungi are not a panacea," he said, "but they can help cut costs and provide for a better environment."

Mycorrhizae (pronounced my-co-RIZE-ay) are microorganisms found in soil. They are beneficial because upon entering a plant's root system, the roots become more efficient in picking up water and nutrients.

The majority of important crops can partner with mycorrhizae.

"Phosphorous doesn't move well in the soil," Davies said, for example. "Mycorrhizae are a biofertilizer because they enable elements with lower solubility to be picked up more easily."

"They are essential for making lower level of nutrients available," he added.

Davies said the fungi are important for sustainable agriculture systems, whether low tech — as in less-developed countries — or high-tech operations such as U.S. plant nurseries that are increasingly facing water shortages, high input costs and government controls for managing fertilizer runoff.

"The fungi can work in nurseries that are sophisticated but sustainable in that they have to collect and recycle irrigation water," he explained.

When mycorrhizae fungi are used in fields or containerized plant production, he said, lower levels of slow-release fertilizer can be used because the fungi in the roots enable the plant to use the elements more efficiently.

Mycorrhizae are commercially available, typically in premixed media.

Here's why it works: Mycorrhizae are living organisms that form a symbiotic relationship with plants. That's necessary because fungi are not capable of performing photosynthesis to make life-sustaining sugars and carbohydrates.

Plants provide carbohydrates for the fungi in return for the fungi picking up more nutrients from the soil, Davies said.

"Mycorrhizae have been around a long time and are becoming more commercially available," Davies said. "But it is industry driven. To some extent, environmental regulation has brought on the use of mycorrhizae because in the long run, the environment is healthier if we use less water and less fertilizer to grow plants."

Because potatoes are native to the Peruvian region, Davies plans to look at the potato and native mycorrhizae fungi to see how the two have evolved together.

"Potatoes have high nitrogen and phosphorus fertilizer requirements," Davies explained. "So there is big interest for all of agriculture in looking at them to understand the mycorrhizae fungi better."

One thing Davies hopes to learn is how mycorrhizae fungi can be more effective. In subsistence and large-scale agriculture production, he will be testing an experimental compound that is available to stimulate the fungi.

Plants in containers need extra care but can be worth it.

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Gone are the days when container planting was restricted to house plants or an occasional patio accent.

Now, people grow everything from vegetables to small trees in containers, and not necessarily just because those people have limited space for gardening.

We have discovered the flexibility inherent in being able to move the plants around — either to “redecorate” and change the look of things or to rotate containers so there’s always something at the peak of bloom or just to raise the height and bulk of some plants.

The containers themselves can be as formal or as rustic as you like. You can set smaller pots in front of bigger ones, either for the design effect or to hide the big ones if they’re really trashed. (Keep in mind, though, that some of the most attractive planters are those that are falling apart!)

As far as I can tell, the No. 1 drawback to container plants in our climate is watering them. Of course, if you work 40 hours a week or less, this needn’t be considered a time constraint — but maybe you just don’t want to mess with it.

Some people find it restful in the evening to go around and water the plants (with the added benefit that if something starts going wrong with the plants, it’s likely to be discovered early on). Others find any kind of evening chore “just too much.”

The type of container and the type of plant you choose will, of course, determine whether the watering routine will be easy going or amount to a part-time job.

Personally, I like the look and feel of plain clay pots. Unfortunately, their porous composition allows moisture to go right through. If you use them for much more than cactus or other extremely drought-tolerant species, be prepared to water — morning and evening during hot, dry spells.

Much as I hate to say so, your best bet for moisture retention is probably plastic — molded to look like something else, I hope.

One other point of maintenance needs to be made, too: Since your container plants probably are going to be viewed very closely, they need to be kept presentable. This means deadheading old flowers, picking off dead leaves and probably pinching branch tips to make a more shapely plant than you might worry about in the open garden.

And don’t forget to fertilize them according to product directions.

If all that hasn’t discouraged you, begin thinking about what type of effect you want to achieve. This can range from a single specimen (maybe even sheared formally, like a hedge or topiary) to a jungle effect.

When thinking in terms of combining plants, think of contrasts: Big leaves next to little leaves, dark purple leaves next to yellow leaves, heart-shaped leaves next to fern-like leaves, little rounded leaves next to spiky leaves, variegated leaves next to solid colors, upright growers next to bushy growers, bushy growers next to sprawlers, etc.

Or you might want to consider a row of identical pots containing identical plants. Or identical plants in containers of varied heights.

Some of the dwarf evergreens are excellent, either for contrasting with leafier plants or for creating the more disciplined walkway boundary.

Keep in mind that for the most part, the really dwarf evergreens are going to be much more dwarf than you expect. Trees that grow 100 feet high in the wild often have forms that may reach less than 10 inches in 10 years.

This slow growth is an advantage in not having to prune them, but if you plant them where you want them to fill space . . . they won’t! (Also remember that, with the exception of many pine species, evergreens are going to require regular watering.)

Using containers, you can grow many tropical plants outside during the summer and move them into heated quarters for the winter. Also, small water gardens — such as those in whiskey barrels and the like — are container gardens and look very nice set among other containers.

Container gardening is summed up nicely by garden writer Sydney Eddison’s conclusion in the October issue of Fine Gardening:

“As a rule, even a large container, such as a half whiskey barrel, looks better when the variety of plants is limited to three or four kinds, plus a trailer to drape over the edge.

“But rules are made to be broken. The real joy of making a garden with potted plants is that you actually can have it all. You can take risks and get away with it. You can go overboard without going bankrupt. You can have a beautiful garden without killing yourself with work. It’s a win-win situation.”

Happy planting!

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

If someone is arrested and accused of something they didn’t do, it might make sense to hire a lawyer.

But what if police confiscated all the suspect’s assets, including money? How would they cover legal fees?

This type of situation happens to people across the country. One organization, called the Liberty Project, works to inform the public about the problems with current civil asset forfeiture law.

“There is a rising tide of evidence seen every day in the media that our civil liberties are being eroded,” said Phil Harvey, Liberty Project founder.

A section on the Liberty Project’s Web site lets visitors register their opinions with elected officials in Washington. There is also an area where visitors can post their thoughts on specific issues and read true stories of other people’s struggles.

More information on The Liberty Project, based in Washington, D.C., is available on the Web site at

Puckett, Thomas wed July 10

Brett Ryon Thomas and Lauri DeAnn Puckett were married July 10 at the First Baptist Church in Muleshoe with Dr. Stacy Conner officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Donald and Judy Puckett of Muleshoe; the groom is the son of Randy and Terry Thomas of Lazbuddie.

Music was provided by Suzanne Thompson, a friend of the bride. Rex Thomas, uncle of the groom, sang.

Serving as maid of honor was Donna Puckett, sister of the bride from Lubbock. The best man was Jason Thomas, brother of the groom from Lazbuddie.

Guests were registered by Holly Hutton, a friend of the bride from Abilene. Ushers were Heath Hodges of Slaton and Shawn Thomas of Lubbock, both cousins of the groom.

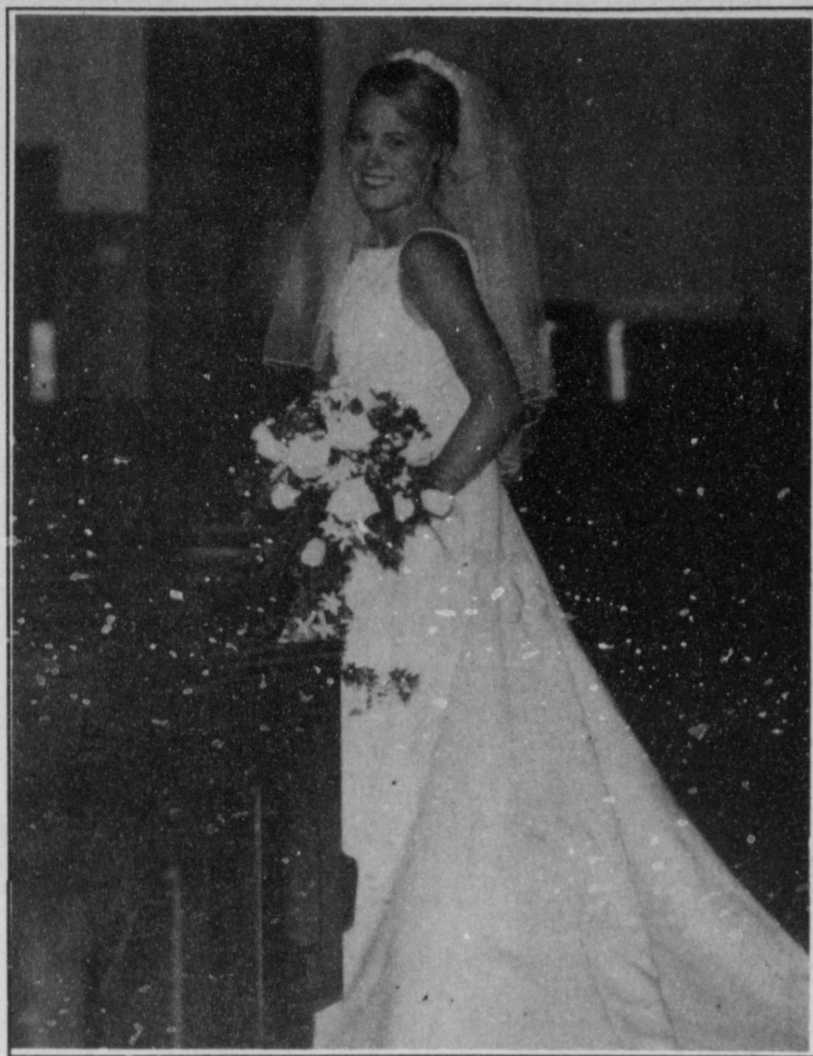

The ringbearer was the groom's cousin, Dee Oles, son of Jim and Reagan Oles of Claude. The rings were carried on a satin pillow made by the bride's mother.

The flower girl was Kayla Wills, daughter of Jeff and Tara Wills of Lubbock, a cousin of the bride. She carried a white satin basket that contained white Love Knots which were fashioned by the bride's mother.

The bride entered the church wearing a formal gown of white delustered Italian white satin featuring a Sabrina neckline on the snugly fitted bodice. The empire set-in waist was detailed with a small bow, and flowed into a princess-style A-line skirt.

The cutout Venice-lace back was detailed with an elegant bow and covered buttons that extended the length of the detachable chapel train.

The fingertip-length veil of

Lauri Puckett-Thomas poses at her July 10 wedding silk illusion was attached to a headband adorned with flowers and pearls.

The groom wore a black peak-lapel tuxedo with a black vest and tie.

The bride's bouquet was white bridal roses, stephanotis and million-star gypsophila. In her shoes, she wore pennies minted in the years of the bride's and groom's births.

In the tradition of something old, the bride carried her maternal grandparents' wedding rings in her bouquet. Something new was her dress; something borrowed was jewelry from her sister, Donna; and something blue was the ribbons on her garter, made by her mother.

The reception was held in the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall. The servers were Jennifer Barnes, cousin of the bride from Muleshoe, and Reagan Oles, cousin of the groom from Claude.

Members of the house party were Pat Angeley, Sherry Barrett, Belinda Caswell, Sharon Dale, Diana Harrison and Druscilla Hutton.

The couple honeymooned in Ruidoso.

The bride is a 1996 graduate of Muleshoe High School and attends Texas Tech Health Sciences Center's School of Pharmacy in Amarillo.

The groom is a 1994 graduate of Lazbuddie High School and attends West Texas A&M University in Canyon. He is employed at Riverfields.

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The MULESHOE CITY COUNCIL will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll by 0.46 percent. Your individual taxes may increase or decrease, depending on the changes in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property and the tax rate that is adopted.

The public hearing will be held on September 7, 1999 at 8:30 a.m. at Muleshoe City Hall, Council Chambers, 215 S. First, Muleshoe, Texas.

FOR the proposal: Sharon Grant, Juan Chavez, Jerry Hicks, Robert Montgomery

AGAINST the proposal:
PRESENT and not voting:
ABSENT: Cliff Black

The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average residence homestead value	$ 50,000	$ 50,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average homestead, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	$ -0-	$ -0-
Average taxable value	$ 50,000	$ 50,000
Tax rate	.6637/$100	.6637/$100
Tax	$ 331.85	$ 331.85

Under this proposal, taxes on the average homestead would remain the same compared with last year's taxes. Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would remain the same per $100 of taxable value compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Roper's magic is downright poetic

Out of the clear blue of the western sky

Like a dive bomber, target in the cross hairs,

Comes the cowboy equivalent of the dog-fighting ace.

Tuned in like a torpedo on a string ...

Whap-slap-two wraps and a hooley, Faster than the human eye can see.

He was leadin' in the average 'midst the toughest competition.

He backed up in the ropin' box and checked his ammunition.

Piggin' string, cinch tight, horn knot, rope right, horse is cocked and ready.

Thinkin' now, all clear, calf straight, right ear, hold the trigger steady,

In the box dance, his caballo shimmied to the perfect spot.

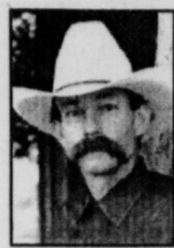

He paused a microsecond, felt the sinews coming taut,

A nod, then let the calf move, wait until you see an ear,

Then he's on him like a cheetah runnin' down a crippled deer.

The loop sails, no, shoots ... harpoon-like, through the air as thick as water.

Horse's hooves lay tracks, the cowboy

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

leaps, it seems before he caught 'er.

Down the line he slides, poppin' tucks in th Derek line, too right,

Hand in the flank, flip and a flop, too fast to put up a fight.

The baby loop, the wrap and tie, a blur like a bullwhip crack.

Hands in the air like a bandit who's been captured in the act.

The snappin' flag, the worried wait, the flag man rides away.

We marvel at this wizardry, for him it's just child's play.

In timed events you often hear folks ask, "Where did it go?"

Like right before their very eyes somebody stole the show.

But ropin' calves is sleight-of-hand and magic ain't a crime,

So all he's really guilty of is stealin' precious time.

West Texas A&M University offers courses via the Internet

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
The "time poor" and the "place bound" have more opportunities to pursue degrees at West Texas A&M University beginning this fall.

The university, which previously offered courses leading to master of business administration and master of education in instructional technology degrees via the Internet, is now offering complete programs in those areas.

In addition, courses leading to six degree programs are being added to the distance-education curriculum.

The courses schedule for on-line and/or inactive television support the following programs: bachelor of science in nursing, bachelor of science in engineering technology/fire safety and protection, bachelor of applied arts and science in fire safety and protection, bachelor of applied arts and science in fire safety and protection, baccalaureate degrees with teacher certification, master of science in agriculture, and master of education in educational diagnostician and administration.

"Non-traditional students are most likely to take advantage of these courses," said Dr. Flavius Killebrew, WT provost and vice president for academic affairs. "Work and family commitments have precluded them from taking classes delivered by traditional methods. Technology affords them the opportunity to receive instruction at all hours and in all places."

But Killebrew thinks the classes will attract traditional students as well.

"We have become a 'just-in-time' culture, and these methods of delivery provide our students with more scheduling flexibility," Killebrew said.

Dina Balik, a teacher at Elkhart (Kan.) Middle School and a graduate student working on a master of education in instructional technology degree at WT, agrees.

"The greatest advantage is the flexibility," Balik said. "I took classes on campus during the summer and take web-based classes during the fall and spring semester while I'm teaching. I will graduate next spring or fall 2000 and that wouldn't have been possible without the advantage of these Web courses."

West Texas A&M University began offering classes via Internet and/or interactive television in the fall of 1997 with four classes of 129 students.

Last spring, 415 students enrolled in 18 courses. And this fall, the 27 classes scheduled for alternative delivery are expected to attract 1,100 students.

"In terms of providing alternatively delivered courses, West Texas A&M University is way ahead of the curve and compares very favorably with other colleges and universities in the state," Killebrew said.

In addition to inclusion in the university's schedule of classes and listing on its own web site (online.wtamu.edu), WT courses delivered via Internet and interactive television are listed on the Southern Regional Electronic Campus web site at www.srec.sreb.org.
