TIMETABLE:

Revised

There had been much talk about the Japanese timetable being awry, but to the man in the street this was hard to believe, since the Japs had swept the East Indies, including Singapore, but excluding Bataan and Manila Bay fortresses, in the unbelievably short period since December 7.

However, it had become apparent that the Japanese plans to enter the Australian mainland had suffered a severe setback in the arrival of thousands of American troops on the continent, in the all-out plane attack on Jap concentrations in islands to the north of Australia, and in the reported reinforcements being received by the Aussies of their own blooded troops back from north-

These were signs all could read. The attacks on New Guinea had been going on far too long in comparison with those on other islands in the Indies without the Japs moving in for the Australian "kill."

It was inconceivable that the Japanese wanted to wait until the Americans and North African troops had landed, had become organized. They had not wanted MacArthur, and President Quezon to escape to the mainland.

Nor did they want their enemy to be holding onto Port Moresby at this late date, with its airfields and garrisons awaiting a Jap push over the almost impassable mountainsides to the southern part of the island.

Here, it was evident, the Japs had met serious delay. Many believed the attack on Australia was to be abandoned, thus setting the stage for a real Allied counter-

The Australians, however, particularly General Blamey, who had been placed in command of the Aussies under General MacArthur, believe that "We must arrange our strategy on the basis that the Japs are going to try an invasion.

BULGARS:

Reported on Move

The Bulgarian army had been reported on the move to the German eastern front, the government having acceded to the Nazi demands that it furnish troops for the offensive against Russia.

But the move, highly disturbing to Turkey as well as to the bulk of the Bulgar people, was not without sharp criticism from within, almost

An anti-war movement had been gaining in popularity, and when two divisions were withdrawn from the Turkish frontier, reportedly to move against Russia, one radio station kept broadcasting an appeal to the people to "rise and emulate brave Jugoslavia." It called for the throwing out of King Boris, who was described as "only a German pawn," and "in Berlin with Von Papen."

Cause of all this antagonism toward active entrance into the war on Germany's side was the blood kinship felt by Bulgars, as well as Jugoslavs, in the main, for Rus-

It was not considered unlikely that the government might be overthrown, and that the army itself might rebel against orders sending them into action against the Reds. A possibility was seen that they might only make a "token" of fighting, and surrender rather than meet the fate which mutiny would bring.

The Jugoslavs, who overturned their government, only to succumb to unpreparedness and Croatian defections, were still fighting in force, and a Jugoslav guerrilla force of 100,000 was reported about to start a "spring offensive" of its own against the Nazi army of occupa-

Chief worrier about the Bulgar situation was Turkey, who saw in this move of soldiery the war coming every nearer to her borders.

Political circles in Berlin suggested that King Boris might renounce his old east Thracian aspirations.

INDIA: At Crossroads

While there had been no immediate indication that the Japs were to make India the supreme objective, and abandon any idea of an immediate invasion of Australia, the situation in Burma was serious enough to give poignancy to the visit of Sir Stafford Cripps and his offer of dominion status to India-after the

The sharp division of opinion in India placed three men and their followers in the forefront of the picture, Gandhi, Nehru and Jinnah. Gandhi, the Mahatma, leader of more Hindus than any other man, had been the first to confer with Cripps, and a two-hour conference had found the two men willing to admit that the basis of negotiations was "satisfactory."

But the handling of Nehru and Jinnah was a horse of another color. Despite the fact that Gandhi had been more than any other man the leader of resistance to British rule, he was regarded as more reasonable, more desirous of defending India than the other leaders.

Nehru, the congress chieftain, prior to talking with Cripps had said that anything less than a promise of complete independence would be inadequate.

"Japan is offering us that," he said boldly. While he professed no "love for the aggressor," he said that British failure to offer independence would leave India no recourse other than to adopt a passive resistance to the Japs, which he admitted would be no practical resistance at Nehru frankly did not believe the British could achieve Indian unity, blaming Jinnah, the Moslem head. He said that Jinnah was insisting on a divided freedom for India, and that while he, Nehru, was willing to 'go along" with any type of freedom, he doubted that England was going to accede to Jinnah's de-

Relations were worse at the time of Cripps' arrival than at any time in history, Nehru said, talking darkly of civil war being "just around the corner," an eventuality which most observers believed would be suicidal with Japan knocking at the nation's eastern borders.

COMMANDOS:

Hit Daring Blow

Britain's commandos, after a lull of several weeks during which they doubtless had been "cooking" another raid, had descended in full power on the German-held port of Nazaire, important submarine and naval base, with dire results.

Chief objective, outside of general demolition work around the port, had been the destruction of a huge dock, the only one on the European Atlantic coast capable of handling the 35,000-ton German battleship Von Tirpitz.

The commandos had attacked St. Nazaire under cover of an aerial bombing raid, using paratroops, destroyers, and motor torpedo boats. The Nazis denied all efficacy of the raid, but the British just as positively declared it to have been a huge

Chief item and most daring in the raid was the use of an overage U.S. destroyer as a swiftly moving bomb to ram the dock. The destroyer had been loaded with five tons of high explosive in its bow, fixed with a time fuse to permit the crew to get ashore and fight while the ship blew

British sources had reported that this was just what happened. The vessel rammed the dock and stuck there, later to blow up and put the structure out of commission. The Germans said, however, that their coastal defense batteries struck the destroyer and caused her to blow up before reaching her ob-

The Germans, however, admitted that many of the raiders got ashore, but claimed they were all killed or captured. The British said there "were some casualties," but that the objectives were carried out, and that many members of the raiding forces returned in safety to England.

It was all part of the British spring offensive, which included practically non-stop raids against Germany and occupied France.

The U.S. destroyer found at her end a place in history along with the Vindictive and the blockships of Zeebrugge fame.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

NE of the most awkward questions that youth can ask age is the one a girl named Vera asks me this morning. Vera's letter comes from a Georgia town; she evidently belongs to a somewhat prominent family, for she was given four years at an expensive Pennsylvania college, and also tells me that she has had two visits in California "where Mother and Dad usually go every winter.'

Vera's problem is this: When she was 19 she had a love affair, entirely unknown to the family, and extremely serious. For three months she and her sweetheart were passionate lovers, then Vera's feeling waned, and she had an uncomfortable time extricating herself from Jay's still exacting devotion.

"Don't think I didn't pay for my early foolishness," writes Vera. "I did, when it came time to try to break engagements with Jay, to cut down on letters and meetings, to make him see that I was through. The day he came to me and said that he realized at last that it was all over, and would trouble me no more, was actually one of the happiest of my life. "Two years later, when I was glorying in college days, Jay married, and I felt nothing but utter relief. Novels for generations have talked of the shame and danger of love affairs, but my real difficulty and tragedy, instead of being that of trying to hold my lover, was that of getting rid of him.

Fell in Love Again.

"I am now 27. Last year I met a man whose fineness, dignity, intelligence made me feel that he was set apart from the ordinary run of men. We are deeply in love and were to have been married this June. Robert is a church member, indeed once studied for orders, and has an almost fanatic sense of honor.

"Meanwhile Jay's wife has died, and he had a lovely daughter of five, who is one of the pupils in the school where I teach. So that I have seen him again once or twice. He is much developed from the impulsive boy I knew eight years ago, with all his old charm and high spirits.
"As Robert's wife I would have wealth, position, and the companionship of a man who is bound some day to be conspicuously successful in his profession. Jay is just one business man among many. But Jay wants to marry me, and Robert feels that it might be right.

"Perhaps the path I should take seems smooth and obvious to you, but I can assure you I am harassed and undecided to the point of almost going out of my mind. It has never seemed to me possible that any woman could be in any doubt about which man she wants, but the circumstances here are peculiar, thanks to my little-girl folly, and I really don't know what to do. Robert says he will leave it entirely to my conscience, and that he knows I will decide rightly, and yet—while that may make you smile with the idea that he wouldn't mind getting out of it entirely himself, I know that, at 36, he has never cared for any woman but me, and would be deeply stricken at losing me.

Robert Worries. "His brother tells me he cannot sleep nights for worrying over this thing; the brother doesn't know all the circumstances. Robert has had the old house completely modernzed; he has talked to me of our ife together as though it were a dream too precious ever to be realized, and if I decide to marry Jay it may embitter him for life.

A NEW PROBLEM

Here is a problem Kathleen Norris has not recently discussed. The "Vera" of this letter cannot choose between two men. The one, her former sweetheart, can give her charm, a spirited sense of humor and a love that has matured into deep devotion. The other, a solid, successful man of 36, can give her wealth and position, but her life with him would probably be very dull. He has already told her that if she feels it is her "duty" to marry the other man she is, of course, free to do so. But Vera believes that losing her would break his heart. What should she do?

"A hundred times he has said to me, 'Oh, why, why, why, does it have to be this way? Why you, of all women?' Of course that is what my Robert has used the expression, you feel you must pay the debt.' Will you tell me what you think and help one more distracted woman to

Judging from your letter, Vera, would say that life with Robert might be a rather rigid affair. It seems plain that this self-controlled conscientious man is having the sort of battle between the spirit and the flesh that comes only to religious persons. He is in love with you, and it is his first love, and so overwhelming and painful.

Robert undoubtedly thinks that Jay has a claim upon you, that you pledged him wifehood when you yielded to him in that early affair. And that nagging conviction will grow stronger after marriage, when the first wild glamour dies and he discovers that you are human, and can make mistakes and be troublesome and disappointing like any oth-

So I wouldn't marry Robert if I were you. If the more easy-going, cheerful Jay is sympathetic to you, and you can imagine yourself as making a good mother to his child and working out a happy normal life for yourself as his wife, then why not tell Robert once and for all that you see the justice of his attitude and that you have determined to make the only reparation in your power for your youthful mistake. This will make him feel heroic and that you both are committed to the dutiful and self-sacrificing course.

Success Rests With Vera. But if your decision meets with violent opposition from Robert, and he implores you to forget the past and go on with him into a more honorable future, then of course you might relent and accept the more distinguished destiny. A faultless husband is a fearful and wonderful thing, so be sure that you are reluctantly talked over, if you decide to be talked over. It might be that in the future you will be glad to remind him that your decision was made to marry Jay, when Robert persuaded you otherwise.

With either man, the success or failure of the marriage rests with you. With Jay you probably would have cheerful companionship, more laughter, more of the unexpected than with Robert. But with Robert you would have wealth, position, the power a young wife with both can wield, and the knowledge - very much to your credit-that you did not conceal anything from him and that he contracted this marriage with his eyes open to your early INSTALLMENT ELEVEN THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Water son, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, comes with Colt to Honolulu and meets Tonga Dick or Richard Wayne, a mem er of the Wayne family which has been control of the property since her grandfather's disappearance. Dick's unele. James Wayne, manager of this isand, Alakoa, dies from overwork and Dick attempts to work out a compro-mise settlement of Karen's claim. This is refused. Meantime Karen has learned that both Colt and Dick are in love with her. On the island, one day, Dick re veals that Karen is not an heiress at all, but that Garrett Waterson is alive and is on his way to Alakoa. He and Karen discuss what attitude the old man may take toward her claim to the island. Now continue with the story.

"I've been perfectly sincere. Dick you just have to believe that!"

"I do. But Garrett Waterson may very possibly believe, by this time, that the Waynes took unfair advantage of him when they bought Ala-

"Neither," said Dick Wayne, "do I. You know that."

She turned a little to look at him; and the young stars made her face a pale oval, mysterious and lovely, but her expression he could not see "You don't want your island?"

"No," he said. He released his hold, and she moved a few inches away from him. "No," he repeated. "I'm not going to marry an island either, Karen.

'Then you see - it's hopeless, Dick."

"In another hour or so it will becompletely. This is the last time we'll ever have any choice. Because now we don't know. Right now one of us is as good as broke-but we don't know which. Perhaps neither one of us will ever have anything in the world again.'

'Maybe," Karen said, "that would be best of all. Only—we can't make that choice either, Dick. Neither one of us has any choice whatever, in anything, it seems."

Dick said gravely, "The choice is yours, Karen; and you have to make it now, tonight-before I leave this

'What is it you want me to do?" "I want you to come with me, now, on the Holokai. I'll throw the Holokai over the bar, and run to sea." "If only," Karen said, "I had a little time—" dark tall shape, with her trucks showing against the stars. The moments ticked by, and the outrigger glided past twice, standing on and off, and it seemed to Dick that she was never going to speak.

He picked Karen up lightly and lowered her over the rail into the moving outrigger; then himself vaulted the rail in time to light upon the canoe's stern as it swept past. The little craft reeled, and the canoe's whole outrigger lifted out of the water; then she steadied, and her sail flapped lazily as she came about and pointed for the Holokai.

Karen stood beside Dick Wayne as he piloted the Holokai to sea. He was handling the wheel himself, as he always did in these reefs; but even while he was narrowly backsighting his markers, the sense of her presence there had hold of every part of him, changing the meaning of the vessel, and the harbor, and the night. The salt spray that he loved had never, in all his life, been so welcome in the air he

The Chinese mess boy poked himself into the wheelhouse and plucked at Dick's sleeve. He was in a white mess jacket, this time.

"Captain Tonga, something is w'ong, I think. Somebody is in your cabin, I think. You send somebody in cabin?"

"Well, who is it?" "Captain Tonga, the door is fastened.

"Oh, bunk! What's the matter with you. Seeing akuas?"
"No, Captain. Somebody is—"

"Go tell the cook to make dinner for two-and make it good. Get out of here and do as I tell you."

The big combers that lashed over the snag-toothed coral were close on Holokai's bows, but Dick seemed sure of his way. He fired the Holokai at the channel like a shot; the big Diesel had small range of speed, so that under power the Holokai went full out or not at all. He spoke from the side of his mouth to the Japanese who served as first officer, bosun, and copper-smith.

"Inyashi, get the night glasses out of my bunk.'

"Yes, Captain."

"We'll very likely sight the Sarah coming in — that's your grand-father's other ship," Dick said to Karen, raising his voice over the roar of the shoals. "She's a good little vessel, but much slower than this. She must have started north no more than twelve hours after the Holokai, and you see how late she is. Did you know that 'Sarah' was your grandmother's name?"

The Japanese quartermaster was back, bursting into the wheelhouse in the quick nervous way that "Capmarked everything he did. tain Dick, I cannot get the night glasses—you have left your cabin locked."

"Locked? You're crazy - the door's stuck, that's all. Give it a boot.

"Let it go. I'll send up the glasses. Get a Kanaka boy for the wheel—we'll be in clear water in a minute. Set a course for Kalae; watch for a ship-any ship-and report all vessels to me."

"Yes, Captain!" "That last is for you," Dick told Karen. The wheel was kicking crazily, but he let go with one hand, and pulled her close against him. "I thought you might want to see the ship that's bringing him in, out of

> LESSON TEXT-Luke 10:1-7, 17, 21-24. GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly great, but the laborers are few: pray therefore the Lord of the harvest, that would send forth laborers into his harvest.

IMPROVED  UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Working with Christ for the salvation of men has been the privilege of believers since the time He chose the twelve. We learn today that there were at least seventy more whom He considered dependable and worthy to be sent forth. Knowing how brief was the time before His death, the Saviour called, commissioned, and cared for them as they went two by two, personally to evangelize "in every city and

I. Sent to Serve Christ (vv. 1-3). Prayer is back of the calling of laborers for Christ. God waits for His people to lay before Him the need, and to enlist His grace in moving upon the ones who can best serve Him. There is mystery here which we cannot fully understand, but it is perfectly clear that prayer is the power which has been given to the church with which to "move" the hand of God. The reason the laborers are so few, even in our days is evidently, then, because there has been so little prayer.

Observe that the Lord sent His servants "two by two" so that they could encourage and assist each other. Christian work is best done in Christian fellowship. The "star performer" or the "lone wolf" may be acceptable in business or social life, but he has no place in Christ's program, unless by His special call and guidance for some particular task, such as pioneer work. He sent them to go "before His and privileges. face"-what a glorious place to be! That means that He was watching over them, expecting them really to 'labor" for Him. But notice also that in loving thoughtfulness they

II. Sustained by Christ (vv. 4-7).

It is well when workers go out that they have proper backing. We speak of the "board" which is behind our missionaries. That is right and proper, but above all there must be the assurance of the provision and protection of Christ.

They were not to be concerned about money. Christ had already moved upon the hearts of His people to see that the laborer had "his hire"-which was food and shelter (v. 7).

For a moment she met his eyes Time is what life is made of, and and her smile was shy, misty; he had never seen her in this mood and the keen brilliance of her house to be entertained, thus losing place an army. much time and strength.

The point of all this is that the expectation of the Christian servant prise he saw that she was looking is from his Master, Christ, whose business requires diligence and haste (I Sam. 21:8b). opened, and Lilua was standing

The outcome of such service is revealed in our third point.

III. Successful Through Christ (vv. 17, 21-24). The seventy returned rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name. He still has power over the demons of our day. Would that the church wielded that power more effectively! While it is a great thing thus to see the power of God at work, Jesus She spoke straight to Karen: it told them in verse 20 that an even was as if she could not see Dick at greater thing is to have one's name written in heaven. That means that we ought to be much concerned not There was appalling silence, filled only about having our own names with the rush of the sea along the written there, but the names of all those whose lives we touch-at home, at work, anywhere.

The secret of the disciples' victory is found in the statements which Christ in all humility and honesty made about Himself (vv. 22-24). He is the one to whom "all things are delivered"-unlimited in authority and power. The mystery of His person and work is not something man can think out or fully comprehend (how foolish have been the attempts to do it!) for He is God. The fact that the Father had revealed these things to the seventy humble, ordinary men caused Christ to magnify His Father's name in praise and prayer. Spiritual insight (vv. 21, 24) is something only God can give, and often He can give it in full measure only to humble and lowly men. "Men like D. L. Moody, who became spiritual giants, were usually humble men from lowly walks who gave themselves wholly to God" (B. L. Olmstead).

Need to Slow Up

The world is going too fast! Even the Church needs to slow up for it is attempting too much in social programs and is losing spiritual poise in many places. Paul said to the Church, "Put on the whole armor of God." The whole armor takes time to put on, yet it is dangerous to leave off any part of it.-Rev. A. E. Gregory.

OUR SON, JOHN,-IS IN THE ARMY.

"OUR SON, JOHN, is in the army," said Farmer Nordholm, 'but we do not know where he is. We can write him at an address we have and know our letters will be forwarded, but where they will reach John, we do not know.

"He may be somewhere in the United States or he may be in England, Ireland, Russia, Iran, Egypt or Libya. He may be in Java, Burma, India, Australia, or in any one of the many south Pacific islands. Or he may be in Africa, in Dutch Guiana, the Canal Zone, or any one of the several islands of the Caribbean sea; or it might be the Philippines or China or Norway-we do not know. Because his ancestors came from Norway, I expect John would like to be there, helping to drive the Germans from that Huninfested country. We know he is doing his best wherever he is."

In that little statement about his son, John, Farmer Nordholm painted a picture of this war and of the Americans who are fighting in it for us. A war which encircles the globe; a war on every sea and on every continent—the most terrific conflict the world has ever known, the result of which will determine the freedom or slavery of practically all peoples.

For America it is being fought by people of all races and all nationalities, for of such America is made. In our armed forces are men whose ancestry comes from all the nations of Europe, Asia, Australasia, South America and from the tribes and peoples of Africa.

They are the product of the American melting pot. Freedom, the opportunity for advancement, to prosper, to live as free citizens, has made of them the kind of Americans who will give their all that they and their children may retain the rights

WAR IS DIFFERENT THAN LAST CONFLICT

AMERICA'S problems in World War I were much different than those confronting us in this conflict. Then we had an enemy on one battle line in Europe. To be sure, it stretched from the Atlantic through to the Black sea, but we had allies who had been holding that line and who offered us landing places for troops.

We had a war on one ocean only, the Atlantic. German subs and German raiders were fairly numerous, but we had the navies of France, England and Italy to join with our own. Today we are fighting on the seven seas of the world. We have only the navy of England and the limited number and size of ships of the Dutch in the East Indies and the servants of Christ were not to those of Australia. We have no waste it in lengthy oriental saluta-tions (v. 4), or going from house to or in the Far East where we can

World War I was not an "all-out" war so far as America was conangry if some one did not receive cerned. We did not become the "arsenal of Democracy." We were the breadbasket of the Allies. While we supplied food, England supplied us with ships. France supplied us with artillery, for which England supplied the ammunition. American pilots flew French and English planes. We had no tanks.

World War I was a conflict of men. This is a conflict of machines. At the end of 18 months in 1918, we had an army of some three million men in France, and practically no American-made machines. In this war at the end of four months, we are supplying the machinery of war to all of the Allied nations. this paper for details.-Adv.

INCOME TAXES AND BATTLE FRONTS

THE FACT THAT 22 million Americans planked down their money to pay their income tax without any perceptible murmur of complaint is the best evidence of any lack of enthusiasm for the prosecution of the war in which we are engaged. People will back the government to the all-out limit. The one place where war apathy is found is in the halls of congress.

A large majority of the men who represent us in our legislative bodies are evidently thinking more of winning votes than of winning the war. The rank and file of American labor is willing to work 48 or 60 hours a week if that be needed to supply tanks, ships, guns and airplanes. American farmers and American industry will cheerfully sacrifice war profits that our freedom and liberties may be preserved. The coterie of minority lobbyists at Washington does not represent anything other than themselves. Our law makers may discover that at the next elec-

HIS may be disturbing news for Larry MacPhail, who doesn't disturb easily or softly. Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, says this 1942 collection might be the best Cardinal team of all time.

"We had a great team in 1926—the year we trimmed the Yankees," Sam remarked. "We had another great team in 1931, and still another in 1934 when the Gashouse personal orders of the President.

Roosevelt directed Biddle to take vigorous legal action against certain factional leaders who have been publicly denouncing the war against the Axis and in some instances ac-Gang with Dizzy Dean and Pepper Martin were riding high. But it wouldn't surprise me to see this bunch we are looking at now turn out to be our all-time top. This is certainly the best pitching staff we ever had, and one of the best allaround teams in every department."

"MacPhail says his Dodgers are much stronger than last year and after a few early flurries should never be headed," we told Breadon.

"His Dodgers had better not have too many early flurries," Sam said. 'Brooklyn has a good ball club, but we have a better one. We have better pitching and more speed. And if our club had any more spirit it might explode. Billy Southworth has the entire squad hustling to the limit—and I can tell you now those Dodgers will be seeing Red Wings in their broken dreams this summer. They'll be after those Dodgers from the first game to the finish.

Everything Necessary

"Look this ball club over," Breadon said. "We have all the catching any team needs, and the best pitching staff in either league, so far as both quality and quantity go.

"You'll be hearing from this kid Pollet all season. He isn't 21 yet, but he works like a ten-year veteran. He hasn't blinding speed, and he hasn't any back-breaking curve ball. But he is smart, cool, cunning and a tough fellow to beat.

"And Pollet isn't the only one. We have at least ten high-grade pitchers, although one or two could use a little more experience. Mun-

He can cover all the ground that Speaker or DiMaggio or anyone else ever covered-and mayplayer who has never received the publicity he deserved. If Terry hadn't been hurt in the stretch last fall we'd have been going away from Brooklyn at the finish.

"Enos Slaughter is another fine outfielder. And keep your eye on a kid called Musial. Hopp can play the outfield as well as first base. And Hopp can hit and run."

These are the disturbing items we think Larry MacPhail should know about. Sam Breadon gives Mac-Phail credit for being one of the smartest showmen, promoters and handy guys baseball has seen. But Breadon has an idea that Macteam, and the Dodger chief with Leo Durocher may be in for a number of nervous shocks.

It Might Have Been

"I don't think they quite under-stand just what would have happened to the Dodgers if we had had as many of our regulars in action as they had last year. It might have been distressing—quite distressing. It might not even have been close.

years. They have been the Notre Dame of baseball.

"We've looked for two things," Breadon said, "speed and spirit. We want ball players who love to play baseball, who like to hustle and who are out to win. Last year the Cardinals were crashing into fences, duga ball game.

Washington from parents of boys in the armed services demanding that these domestic foes be jailed. But Biddle demurred on the ground of "preserving civil liberties."

Shortly after Pearl Harbor, FBI agents arrested Robert Noble, rabid Los Angeles Fascist leader, on serious charges involving statements concerning the war. Despite the FBI's evidence, Biddle ordered Noble released.

This brought down a storm of protests on Biddle's head that steadily increased as the hostile operations of these elements became bolder and more outspoken. Still Biddle refused to allow either the FBI or federal district attorneys, who were champing at the bit, to crack down. Finally White House advisers, alarmed over the situation, took the matter direct to the President. They laid before him a mass of evidence dealing with Noble, Father Coughlin, Francis P. Moran of Boston, Gerald L. K. Smith of Michigan and Charles B. Hudson of Omaha.

Charles B. Hudson of Omaha.

One document shown Roosevelt was the March 16 issue of Coughlin's weekly publication which declared that a "world-wide sacred war" was declared against Germany nine years ago. The publication also attacked aid to Russia, denounced the British bombing of French plants making Nazi supplies, and contained such statements as: such statements as:

"Unless the German forces can overcome Russia and successfully invade England by the end of September, there is every evidence that the entire world will have elected to experience a blood bath the like of which was never imagined by the most poetic minds."—"It has been the practiced policy of the Roose velt administration to favor the Chinese in their war against Japan. This policy has rankled in the hearts of the Nipponese war lords who are devoted to the policy of Asia for the Asiatic, a policy which, after all, is nothing more than an expression of our own Monroe Doctrine."

After carefully examining the evidence, the President summoned Biddle, ordered him to get tough and do so immediately.

GOOD WAR NEWS

Here is some all-important GOOD war news for a change. The United States and the British Empire have won a victory of supreme importance in the crucial war production race. For the first time in the 21/2 years of the war the United States and

Britain now are outproducing the Axis and its vassal states in vital arms and munitions. Although the two Allies still are on the defensive, henceforth Anglo-American war output should pile up an ever-increasing margin of armament superiority. U. S. producing capacity in par-ticular is just beginning to swing into an all-out war scale. The mighty auto industry, for example, is now be a few yards more. And Moore is also a .300 hitter. He is a ball major industries are undergoing the same transformation. Also hundreds of new war plants are in various stages of completion, with hundreds of others being projected.

Sage old "Bernie" Baruch comments: "We can't yet crack our heels together in celebration, even if things are better."

What he means is that there are still plenty of sour spots.

Some of these are: labor supply, certain obstacles in the flow of materials, shortage of materials, inadequate use of equipment insufficient subcontracting, red tape and bureaucratic obstruction, the incompetence, greed and lack of initiative Phail has underrated this Cardinal of many employers, the profit-team, and the Dodger chief with mindedness of dollar-a-year men.

But despite all these, U.S. industry every week is pouring out a steadily soaring floodtide of war supplies. On the basis of a private survey made by the authors of this column, it can be stated definitely that with the British Empire's greatly accelerated production the two Allies now are ahead of the
