THE STORY SO FAR: Old Early Bill

© GREGORY

Cole, whose days were numbered, had been shot from ambush early one morning by a man who escaped with only a bullet hole through his hat. Early Bill staggered home and sent his Mexican hand, Gaucho Ortega, for his friends Doc Joe and the Judge, who arrived without delay at the King Cole Ranch. Early Bill needed the doctor to attend his wound and the Judge to make his will. However, Old Bill thought it would be fun to make two identical wills. One bequeathing his ranch and money to Ann Lee, daughter of his old friend Busty Lee; and the other leaving the same to Cole Cody, son of another old friend. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER III

Warm as the early summer evening was, a thundering log fire was making the rocks blazing hot in the living room fireplace at the King Cole Ranch. Drawn up before the hearth in his most commodious big chair sat old Early Bill with his long legs tucked under a heavy red wool blanket, with his overcoat on and buttoned to his chin, with his hat on, too. His only attendant, the only person he would tolerate in the house, his foreman Cal Roundtree, stood as far as he could from the fire, his face glistening with sweat.

Cal mopped his forehead with a blue bandana already sopping, and had his say, not for the first time, either.

"Bill," he said explosively, "I tell you you're crazy! You'd ought by rights to have some kind of a nurse here with you; me, I couldn't nurse a sick colt. A woman anyhow. Somebody to-

"Dry up, Cal," snapped the old "Go get me a drink. Get man. yourself one, too. And quit bellering like a bull calf."

Cal Roundtree, growling like a bear with a sore paw, started kitchenwards but stopped abruptly as he heard the lively racket of a horse's hoofs coming on to the house. The sounds stopped at the front door; then there was a lusty knocking. "Come in, you fool!" yelled old

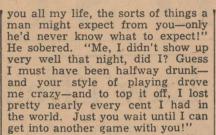

Early Bill.

Rance Waldron stepped in, just across the raised threshold, and stopped there looking about him, taking in everything at a sweeping glance. Then his look centered probingly upon the man in the chair. 'This the King Cole Ranch?'' he said. "You're Mr. William Cole?" 'Shut the door, Rance," said Early Bill, and all of a sudden his voice was quiet and all but toneless. One speaks of a poker face; well, his voice now was a poker voice.

Rance Waldron closed the door, pulled his hat off and came closer; standing at the side of the chair he put out his hand. Early Bill took it slowly, let it go with a degree of alacrity.

"Sure - Say, Cal! Where's that jug?"

"I'll go put up my horse," said Rance Waldron.

Again Early Bill Cole said, "Sure," and lay back in his chair and pulled his hat brim down. He sat there very still, looking into the fire. A queer little smile, a happy sort of smile with some strange sort of tenderness in it and a flick of humor-a flick of devilishness, too, maybe-touched his lips

When Cal, first to return, came back into the room he thought the old man was asleep. So he was. Old Early Bill Cole, full of years and of wickedness and of a rare sweetness, was taking his ease in his last long sleep. * * *

It was hard to catch a glimpse of the girl's eyes, so wide and drooping was the brim of her pink straw hat, so long and inclined to lower themselves bafflingly were her lashes. Her cheeks, too, were pink, and there was a laughing dimple in one of them. She scarcely lifted her fluffy skirts an inch when she stepped up into the stage; there was

He had ridden late last night and would have slept late this morning had he not been awakened by the commotion out in the yard attendant upon the stage preparing for departure. He hadn't thought anything about a stage, having a good saddle horse, and had ridden by way of Top Notch simply because it lay on his line of travel. Now, being awake, he yawned comfortably and stretched and came close to dozing off again. Then through the other, coarser sounds of men swearing at horses and trace chains jangling, he heard another sound, and he thought dreamfully that it fitted far more pleasantly into the early daylight hour. Little Ann Lee, very gay and electric this morning, was laughing.

He got up then, dressed and ran his fingers through a wild thatch of dark red hair, cocked his hat on at an angle which bespoke an interest in life and full approval of it, and stepped along outside. And just as he got outside the door Long Peters, the stage driver, was calling down from his high seat.

"All aboard, folks. Here we go." It was then that Cole Cody saw Ann Lee stepping up into the stage. He did catch the most fleeting of glances from her eyes under the long, demure lashes, and noted how the pink of her cheeks was as soft as the softest of apple-blossom colors tinting the eastern sky.

"Hold on there!" shouted Cole Cody, and bore down on the stage at a run. He called back to the hostier who had just lent a hand with hitching up, "Keep my horse until I come and jerked the stage door back, open

It drooped on each side of her lovely face and there were ribbons streaming from the brim. He almost made her a bow; not quite, but he did take off his hat. She almost smiled, but then she looked away very quickly and began talking hurriedly to her companion. The driver called out a second time impatiently, Cole Cody climbed up on the high seat, the whip snapped at last and they were

Yank Fliers in Australia By W. B. Courtney

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

I am writing this from Port Darwin in the Northern Territory of Australia. The Darwin area is about as far from Sydney and Melbourne as Death Valley is from New York. It is probably wilder in nature and ruder in its white men than any other part of earth under a United Nations flag.

Even the Australians, usually sensitive about references to whatever section of their country, admit it's "bloody Godforsaken." But it's home, for the time being at least, to many Yank bomber and pursuit kids whose advanced flying bases, hacked from the desert scrub and the moribund red earth by their own engineers and labor battalions, white and Negro, dot the "bush" hereabouts.

So very young and lean, habitually wearing only shorts and rubber sneakers, cooked to a partridge brown, raising as much beard as they can, with huge pistols dangling from web belts, these rakish and raffish airmen look, after a couple

Twice a day the orthodox Jew repeated the words of verses 4 and 5, "the Shema," in his time of prayer, morning and night. It was the foundation of his faith, declaring the oneness of God in a world of many heathen gods, and calling for complete and absolute devotion to Him. But it was not enough that these words should be repeated in the service, they were to be taught with

"Oh, I saw you once, two-three months ago, Waldron. Four months ago, maybe. You mightn't remember. Me, I don't forget. Over at Bantam Springs, it was."

Until he finished speaking it was hard to make much of his face, what with the effect of the flicker of the fire, an affair of light and shadow commingled, and with his broad hat brim pulled low. Now he lifted his head and shoved his hat back and looked up into his kinsman's eyes.

Even so for another moment Rance Waldron remained puzzled. "But-but-" Rance stuttered. "At Bantam Springs, that night! Of course I remember. There was a card game-we had a few drinks together-But I didn't know who you were! I didn't know your namethey just called you Bill-Why didn't you tell me?" "Better get a move on and bring that jug, Cal," said Early Bill, and left the young man utterly to his own devices.

But Cal Roundtree didn't budge; he stood stock still, staring in fascination at the visitor's face. Rance was bare-headed; the fire glow seemed to make his face ruddier and ruddier until it grew bright red. Or was it just the fireglow, Cal wondered? Yes, Rance Waldron was remembering! That poker game at Bantam Springs! An old man, a stranger, sitting in! What a run of luck the old fool had had! He had been so clumsy; he seemed only halfway to know what he was doing; he fumbled with the cards when he shuffled; he made crazy bets and lost-and yet, by some miracle, in the end he won everything in sight! And Rance Waldron lost his shirt that night; lost more than he could. afford to lose, expecting with every new hand to clean the old fool down to his bootheels; had lost more than just money, because he had lost his head, too, and had flown into a rage and had said things-Just what had he said? And the old fool was Early Bill Cole, keeping his name hidden the way he did an ace in the hole-and all the time Early Bill knew who Rance Waldron was!

But this consternation, holding him tongue-tied and at utter loss, was only momentary. He was a young man of parts, was Rance Waldron, hard to down and harder to keep down. Of a sudden, startling both Early Bill and Cal Roundtree, he began laughing

"Bill Cole, you old heller!" he shouted when he grew articulate. "I might have known at the time that it was you! I've heard about CP just the flash of an out-peeping tiny foot, the merest suspicion of a pinkstockinged ankle, and about her a wisp of fragrance as though she had just bathed and sprinkled herself with Florida Water.

Little Miss Ann Lee, accompanied by Aunt Jenifer, fragile and tremulously smiling under her poke bonnet, had taken the first stage from Bantam Springs, arriving at the small crossroads settlement of Top Notch in the early evening. There she and her aunt tarried overnight at the very respectable boardinghouse operated by a local celebrity, Big Belle. And there they spent the following day and night waiting for another stage to take them a day's journey through the mountains to the King Cole Ranch, some miles on the nearer side of Bald Eagle. All this, of course, was because of the letter she was carrying with her now, a most mystifying communica-tion from a Mr. William Cole-intriguing, even beyond its mere mystification, because of the hundred dollar yellow back that had come with it. A huge sum of money-but with certain strings to it.

And, upward of a hundred miles from Bantam Springs at the trading post where he went now and then, a young man named William Cole Cody had received a very similar letter. He considered the thing some sort of a hoax-but then the hundred dollar "expense" money enclosed was real dough. It was a long trip across the mountains to Bald Eagle; he had heard of the place as had most men within a pretty considerable radius. Why the devil should he pick up and travel because some no doubt crack-brained individual beckoned? Why? Well then, because a thing like that gets a man's curiosity stimulated until it won't let him rest; because it is a simple thing for youth to scent adventure over the next hill. And, when he is handed a key, it's sheer human nature for a man to wonder what lock it fits!

So in the end Cole Cody slid into his newest boots and hat, decorated himself with his most flamboyant bandana, looked to his guns and through Black Rock Pass, and came in due course to the stage stop at Top Notch. He stabled his horse, had supper and went to bed. In the morning he'd saddle and ride

First disposing of those of his cargo whom he knew, he got around at last to Ann Lee and Aunt Jenifer.

'We're carryin' a couple nice ladies, too," he said. "Don't know much about 'em. They come this far with Hank Roberts day 'fore yestiddy; I only saw the two of 'em breakfas' time. They're a Miss Edain't real old at that, and her niece, around Bantam Springs some place, Hank says. And they never been up of their folks. Jus' visiting'."

"Going far?" young Cody asked casually.

"All the way through to Bald Eagle. We get there early tonight." He eased his straining horses down to a walk as the slope steepened and the road narrowed and roughened. "How about you, stranger? I ain't ever seen you any place."

"Me? I'm headed on to Bald Eagle, too. No, I've never been up this way. My stamping ground's down around Dutch Skill's Trading Post." "Glad to know you. My name's

The so-called "magnetic" nests of Bald Eagle. Of what a fine day it are the most famous-tall, slabwise, sharply templed pillars, the ends of which always point exactly north and south. Woody substance inside, they are covered with fine clay that hardens into fortresses that repel all the termites' enemies.

> The Yanks found a use for these. They ax off the tops, chisel out a hollow in the bases-and have fine barbecue or picnic stoves!

All Kinds of Hunting.

The chief unrationed recreation of the Yank airmen here is hunting-Nips in the air, kangaroos, snakes, dingoes or wild dogs, emus, ducks, buffalo, crocodiles on the ground.

The kangaroo remains of greatest interest. The boys catch young ones wards, that's the old lady and she and try to tame them; each plans to take a 'roo home with him. But Miss Ann Lee. They come from they find the 'roos dumb and unsomewhere way down yonder; responsible; "just misshapen rabbits

He comes in at night and sleeps under one of the cots. But if you try to pet him he runs out. At reveille he moves out about 30 feet from the tent; sits there all day, watching, sidestepping anyone who goes near him. In four months of this, no one has succeeded in touching him.

The Yanks try to build up auxiliary air-raid warning services with their wild-pet friends. Goannas, a type of monitor lizard, are plentiful in all the camps-roam about all day on their business of catching insects, not allowing the advent of thousands of men to disturb their lives. They are not dangerous-except that if you stand motionless, one may think you are a tree and run up you, with unfortunate results to your clothes and skin from his knife-like claws. The goannas stand heads when planes go over.

II. By Remembering God's Blessing (Deut. 6:20-25).

The nation that forgets its past will have no future worth remembering. The Israelites were to recall that the glorious history of God's loving kindness toward them bore testimony to the truth of His Word and to the faithfulness with which He had kept them. Their young people would thus be encouraged to trust God for the future. 'Hitherto the Lord hath helped," means that henceforth we may count on Him.

In every nation there are those occasions of history where only God could deliver-and He did. The recollection of such events in a way which will give the glory to God rather than to man will strengthen faith and cause men to look to God in the hour of need, and to thank Him in the day of victory.

In the family too, we should cultivate the sacred memories of God's deliverance, of His blessing, of the joy of His fellowship in bright as well as threatening moments. Children who hear such matters gratefully rehearsed in the home have an effective anchor in a time of storm

III. By Continuing in God's Grace (II Tim. 3:14, 15).

That which we learn of Christ and of God's Word is to be translated into living for Christ. The experiences of grace and the remembrance of God's blessing of childhood are not for that period of life alone but for a continuing in God's grace. This carries our thought a bit beyond the responsibility of the parent to provide the proper surroundings and training, and stresses the duty of the child to apply, perfect, and continue that experience of Christian truth and testimony. Too many careless individuals, who because of the desires of their own wicked hearts have abandoned the church and the Book, blame it on the parents. "They were too strict. We had to go to church too much. They made me go to Sunday school"-such are their excuses. Of course, we know that they are only excuses, not reasons. They are the refuge of the hypocrite who is not willing to face his own terrible responsibility.

The obligation is on each one of us to continue in the things we have learned, and if we do not, the judgment must come upon us. If we do, salvation and blessing will come to us, and we in turn will pass it on to others.

May this lesson turn many an on their hind legs and turn their American home back to God's way

The Stratford Star Schools Make $180

Collection Efforts

Stratford schools have realized $180 from the scrap collected in their recent drives, M. E. Cleavinger, faculty member in charge of the drive announced this week. About 50,000 pounds of scrap iron and steel were collected by the school pupils under the direction of faculty members, and despite the bad weather which interfered with planned collection dates, the school children have canvassed the town on two different occasions to find junk. Last Tuesday all of the school students were dismissed and spent the afternoon hunting scrap.

Trucks were donated by the Stratord Grain Company and W. T. Martin.

High school students worked on the scrap pile which has been in front of the grade school building and carried it to the junk yard.

Mr. Cleavinger not only commend-Miss Mary Woodford Kidwell will ed the work of students and citizens leave by plane for Fort Worth Friday in this collection, but said the teachfor a weekend visit with her aunt, ers had pitched in and really done their part, also. He added that if the farmers who have scrap they wish to donate will call the school, some method of picking it up will be found.

Wild Plants in U.S. Yield Food

Forests and Fields Abound In Varieties Used by Indians Years Ago.

NEW YORK .- There is no reason why hikers who get lost in the forest wilds, or even deserts, of the United States should starve to death -provided they, or even one of a group, are equipped with a working knowledge of botany. For there are no fewer than 3,500 different species of plants and grasses used by the Indians years ago, with more than half of this number of edible vari-

Vegetables, grains, fruits and seasonings are to be found in the wild and were obtained by the North American natives, writes Marian A. and G. L. Wittrock in the Journal of the New York Botanical Garden. Dependent to a large extent on the plants that could be gathered, the Indian found many to satisfy his palate, and those same plants are growing in North America today.

A number of trees and shrubs provided nuts many herbaceous plants gave greens and other types of vegetables; fruits came from innumerable sources, and many bulbs and tubers which are passed unnoticed today provided tasty vegetables, seasonings or nourishing ground meal. In the absence of wheat the Indians used the seed of many other grass plants for flour.

STAY WELL A recent headline in Newsweek our soldiers' health-as well as the said, "Services' call for doctors means U. S. must stay well."And the statistics back that up thoroughly. This country has 176,000 physicians-of which 22,000 have been taken by the Army. If the goal of a 9,000,000 man Army is attained, about 53,000 doctors—one-third of the nation's total-will be in uniform. And the situation is about the same in the case of nurses. We have 300,000 trained nurses-and 50,000 will be required for the Army and the Navy by the middle of next year. No one can complain about this-America's fighting men will and must have the best medical attention possible. What it means is that all remaining doctors must work far harder and longer than ever before. The medical schools are stepping up the tempo of medical training as far as practical. And, in addition, civilians must help. Here is how Newsweek puts it: "The civilian will also have to pull his oar in the boat. Instead of expecting punctual appointments and home visits, he will have to wait his turn in the doctor's waiting room. Preventative medicine will loom larger. Face-lifting operations will have to yield precedence to emergency appendectomies. By the war's end, hypochondriacs and the bedside manner alike may well have become part of America's past.'

This is a small "sacrifice" indeed for civilians to make in the interest of health of those who stay at home. Give our doctors this kind of sensible cooperation — and America's standards of medical care will remain the highest in the world.

Acorn Was Popular.

Perhaps the most important food plant was the oak. The trees with the sweetest acorns are the California live oak and the basket or cow oak of the Atlantic states, but any acorn may be used for food if the tannin is removed. Indians ate the nuts of more than 40 species of trees and shrubs, as well as the nutlike seed of the water chinkapin, or American lotus.

Fruits are another source of food in the wilds. The Indians enjoyed fresh berries and berrylike fruits from at least 278 species of plants that occur in the United States. Many species of flowers, too, were consumed. A number are grown in vegetable gardens today. They are all of Eurasian origin; cauliflower, broccoli and artichoke, of which we eat the bracts of the flower in the bud stage. The Indians, however, ate raw the flowers of 24 species of wild plants, boiled the flowers of many others; fried the flowers of the red-bud; boiled the buds of the common milkweed and cooked as pot-herbs the inflorescence of 15 other species in the bud stage.

It seems that anything green, tender and not too fibrous was used. More than a dozen different kinds of leaves were eaten raw

Wild rice, restricted in its distribution, was known to only a limited number of tribes.

Learns Value of Ferns. The white man is just beginning to learn the food value of the ferns, of which the Indians used at least 20 species. Some of these now are being served in restaurants on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and at least one kind is being commercially canned. The outstanding fern plant used as food by the Indians was the common brake or braken. The rhizome was utilized, its bark being removed and white heart roasted. Though it resembles the dough of wheat, its taste is too pungent for most white people. The Indians, however, relished this nutritious food, particularly in the Northwest. The intermediate part of the frond in the early spring is delicious and when properly prepared suggests asparagus shoots.

So sustenance can be found in the woods and fields. There is food also in the prairies and along the shores of lakes and rivers, in pools, even in margins of deserts. These native foods are not recommended as staple articles of diet but they provide a source of food in an emergency.

Dogs of War Charge Armed 'Enemy'

Dogs of war will charge an enemy in the face of gunfire. In this series of pictures a Great Dane leaps for an armed "enemy" as he crawls over a barrier. The "enemy," using blanks, fires directly into the dog's face, but the dog never falters. In second picture the Great Dane has the "enemy" by the arm and is pull-ing him down, and in picture at the right the enemy is falling. Although the trainer had great layers of elk hide and wool in his sleeve, the dog's teeth marked his arm.

DEMOCRACY STREAMLINING If the President and the country want to get a full realization of how democracy is streamlining for action they should think back to the summer of 1941, just one year ago, when, for what seemed like unending weeks, the congress stewed over extension of the selective service act.

Senate and house isolationists were haranguing the galleries on the iniquities of keeping the boys more than one year in camp; telling the public how the navy was already convoying ships; revealing in advance that Roosevelt had sent troops to Iceland

Finally by the thin margin of one vote, 203 to 202, and thanks to the sage generalship of Speaker Sam Rayburn, the selective service act was extended. Had it not been for that narrow victory, we should have had no army to rush to Australia, and the whole war effort would have received a tragic set-back.

But last week, a war-geared house of representatives passed the 18-19 year draft extension act in three Paint was next. White, because days; and it should be passed by the senate and signed by the President inside the week.

Politically and personally, nobody wanted the 18-19 year draft extension. It was the worst time to pass it, just before elections. But congress is doing a much better job than most people realize for streamlined democracy.

ATROCITY PICTURES

A strong debate is raging among propaganda chiefs over the question of atrocity stories and pictures. The government has received a lot of such material from Allied sources, especially the Chinese and Poles, including such horrible scenes as Japanese attacking Chinese women, and pouring oil on live bodies before setting the torch to them.

Opponents of publication argue that the atrocity stories of the last war were largely invented, and when so exposed left the public disillusioned; thus the people might now react unfavorably and charge the government with pulling the same tricks.

Other officials argue, however, that the material is authentic, that it is not posters and rumors, but actual photographs, and the public should know what sort of enemies we are fighting.

It is apparently a part of the German psychological warfare to treat British and Americans with reasonable humaneness in order to keep us lulled in a state of moderate warfare. They save their worst tricks for the conquered nations and the Russians.

* * * DAIRY MANPOWER

Forthright Sen. Berkeley Bunker of Nevada had a long talk with the President the other day on the war manpower problem, in which he emphasized the need of swift action to meet the labor shortage on dairy farms.

"I'm from a farm area myself and I know what these dairy people are up against," said Bunker. "Unless we move fast we will have a serious shortage next year. Already, many farmers are beginning to slaughter their dairy herds because they can't get help to tend them.'

The President admitted the problem was serious, and assured Bunker that the War Manpower commission was aware of it. He added, however, that he doubted any steps the government might take to relieve the farm labor shortage would be a complete answer.

"The government can't solve this said Roosevelt. alone," "We are going to have to depend on the farmers themselves for individual initiative. I'll give you an example of what I mean."

The President then told how a neighbor of his in New York state, owning a large dairy farm, had partly solved his labor shortage by employing students from a near-by high school to milk the cows.

"Boys did the milking in the morning and a group of girls from the same school took over in the afternoons," he said.

"That sounds like a good idea, Mr. President," observed Senator Bunker, "but it isn't exactly a new one. When I was a boy on a Nevada farm, I used to milk 10 cows every morning before school and 10 at night. And I had to ride eight miles to school on a bus."

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1942

THE Big Minds of college football have plenty to worry about as the 1942 season reaches the half-way point. Transportation problems have plagued more than one college. Schedule changes have caused quite a few disappointments and decreased attendance figures are responsible. for considerable grief.

The latter problem looms exceedingly large at the moment. Not that the others aren't important, but gate receipts-or lack of them-cause no more concern to the average college than would an onslaught of the black plague.

A comparatively early analysis of college football attendance revealed some discouraging information. In the first 127 games played by 44 major colleges this year, attendance was about 25 per cent lower than in 1941.

The decrease was general. In the Big Nine, only Purdue showed an increase in its first three games. Attendance throughout the conference was off almost 50 per cent.

The Big Drop

In their first 127 games, the 44 colleges played before a total of 2,296,-797 spectators. A year ago the same number of home games for the same teams brought a turnout of 3,028,955.

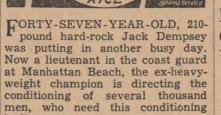

While these early-season figures are subject to decided change, it must be taken for granted that they indicate a trend. Football has proved more exciting than ever this year. Upsets are more numerous. Nevertheless, attendance slumps are the rule rather than the exception. The sharpest drop was reported by Cornell, where attendance was slashed from 49,070 for last year's first three games to 19,587 this year. Cornell places much of the blame on inaccessibility, the rest on poor performance.

Ohio State dropped from 246,831 to 173,161. Buckeye officials figure that it will take all 10 games on this year's schedule to equal the eight-game 1941 total of 486,468. They're not too sure the extra two games will make up the difference. Last year scores of school busses from all sections of the state brought students to take advantage of reduced admissions. Today such use of busses is forbidden.

Major Problem

While the importance of paying customers cannot be overempha-sized, colleges are faced with a still bigger problem-the future of football. It's none too rosy. In fact, you may be looking at your last college games for some time.

freshman class they had but a months of college relatively few life" ahead of them. "I say 'few months,' " Dr. Conant said, "for I believe the draft age soon will be lowered and I feel sure none of you wish to be left behind in college as your contemporaries march off to war." Subsequent draft legislation regarding 18 and 19year-olds proved the truth of the educator's remarks. His statements left little doubt about the future of football at Harvard if the war continues. And the factors influencing Harvard will have as profound a bearing upon all other colleges of the nation.

badly. I spent the day with Lieutenant Jack, and I've never seen a busier man at work. From seven-thirty in the morning until nightfall he and his staff of instructors handle 3,000 recruits every day.

The wind was whipping in from the ocean as Jack moved from group to group, speeding up their work, giving out encouragement, helping his assistants on the job. "They are great fellows," Jack said, "but they need this badly. More than anyone might believe. Do you know that out of 3,000 men here more than 2,500 never boxed, wrestled, or played any game to speak of? You'd be surprised how many couldn't even chin themselves once-just once. When they came here they didn't know how to hold their hands-nor how to stand. Look at 'em now.''

The Dempsey Program

It was put up to Dempsey to work out this program and he's done a great job. We moved from group to group — 100 fighters here, 100 wrestling close by, a jujitsu class, a calisthenics class. "What's this?" I asked Jack. "That's our kicking squad," he said.

Best Food Storage in Outdoor Cellar or Cave

Storeroom Style Depends On Contour of the Land

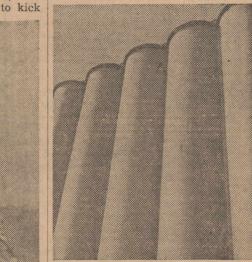

The most nearly ideal food storage space on the farm is the outdoor, underground cellar or cave.

It is set all or part way into the ground, banked over with earth, floored and lined with masonry, and fitted with one or more ventilators for air movement. This type of storage provides the best natural conditions for canned fruit, pails or other tightly covered containers, as well as for whole fruits and vegetables. It also serves as a storm cellar for the farm family. In some areas the bank cellar may be the best solution to the storage problem this fall. The bank cellar belongs on rolling ground. The lower part is masonry construction and is set back into the sloping ground. The upper part may be made of lumber, insulated in the upper walls and roof with sawdust or commercial insulation.

Another useful storeroom, and usually the simplest and best for the home with finished basement—is the special storage room in the basement.

Effect of War

It is obvious, of course, that war already is having its effect on football. Freshmen and sophomores are seeing more action all the time. Most of the conferences allowing freshmen to play are doing so for the first time. The many startling upsets of the present season are due in part to the more widespread use of youngsters. They are not as consistent as the juniors and seniors, and are more likely to turn in an excellent performance one game, a ragged showing the next.

In almost every college, football practically supports the entire athletic program. The present lack of cash customers is likely to result in a curtailment of minor sportsespecially those which are consistent drains on the athletic department treasury. Some schools have attempted to overcome the transportation problem by shifting their games to centers where the transportation problem is less of a hazard. But a large proportion of schools find this solution geographically impractical.

When a Washington sports writer asked Stephen Early, secretary to the President, what the chances were for the continuance of sports, he said: "I frankly don't know whether sports will be able to continue or not-but I certainly hope they do."

He voiced the hope of millions.

SPORT SHORTS

(Al Ettore, retired heavyweight, and Young Terry, middleweight, are new members of the marine corps. A Memphis golfer made an evenpar score for nine holes without parring a single hole. He made three birdies, one eagle and five bogies.

ening up. No frills. And they eat | controlled to some extent. It is imit up. These kids are great. They average around 22 years and most of them never had a chance for any form of athletics before. They find out what it does for them in just a few weeks.

Building Confidence

"What we are working on beyond fitness," Jack said, "is speed and poise. But more than all, confidence in themselves.

"When they first come here they have no confidence at all. In about three weeks they are different fellows - heads-up, come-and-try-totake-me fellows.

Jack moves around—"Hey, keep punching - keep punching - keep those hands up-what's the trouble -one in the stomach? Well, take a little rest. Then go and get him." You would be more than surprised to see the difference between firstweek classes and fourth-week classes. The improvement in speed. skill. poise, toughness and stamina is amazing.

Each group gets two hours a day of this in addition to coast guard duties, and that leaves little time for any resting spots. Putting in eight or nine hours a day, Dempsey at 210 looks as fit as he did at Maumee Bay 23 years ago. As fast? That's something else that belongs only to youth.

About Louis and Conn

I asked Jack what he thought about the heavyweight situation.

"After another year in the army," Dempsey said, "neither Louis nor Conn can expect to be near the old fighting form. Louis isn't a kid any longer. A year's layoff, or a longer layoff, is sure to tell heavily on his speed, his timing and his reflexes. "I laid off at times too long myself. I know what it means to see a punch coming, but seeing it too late-or rather, not being able to call on my reflexes in time-is something else. "If Louis and Conn remain in the army two years, it will be a miracle if either ever can come back to championship form. Both are great fighters and great fellows. But army training is entirely different from the speed and the sharpness you need in the ring.

"And there's that thing they call co-ordination. After a long layoff they just don't gel any more-there's no team play between them.

"Joe and Billy may be better than anything left after the war, but they won't be the Louis and the Conn we saw in their big fight."

sown in seedbeds in the early spring. In June, when the plants are six to eight inches high, they are set out in the fields, either by hand or with a mechanical planter which digs a small trench, drops the plant and waters it, then covers it with soil, all in one operation. The usual rate of planting is 3 feet by 14 inches, making about 2,400 plants to the acre.

Frequent cultivation keeps the weeds down until the plants ripen and the seeds turn brown and black. The plants must be harvested at just the right time, when not too green to have a high content of ascaridole, and not ripe enough to shatter. After curing several days, the plants are hauled to the still and made into oil.

In farm leases, essential points are the date when the lease is drawn, the beginning and ending of the farm lease term, method of renewal or extension, accurate description of the real estate and other property affected by the lease, reservations such as right of landlord to enter to inspect the property and make improvements, and, finally, a definite and agreed price of rental and the time and manner of pavm above mentioned things, selfishness hatred, and self-defense.

Men have always fought becauss down through the ages they have ruler been filled with all three of these traits. The nobler instincts, or thoughts of a human being are always suppressed by the animal part of man, or it might be said that the nobler thoughts of a man are always suppressed by the evil thoughts and impulses of the man, especially in war times. This is the reason that one of the contenders in a fight must be exhausted before the fight will end, and he is willing to surrender.

Over the world property is being The Strattord Star destroyed as never before in the history of the world, and women and children, the sacred possession of mankind, are being outraged, all because of selfishness, hatred, brought by the nobler impuses of men being suppressed by the evil influences.

No man in a rage ever listens to reason, and he never hears the $1.50 Per Year in Sherman and pleadings of the Still Small Voice. Now every liberty loving man or woman in this country are called upon to make sacrifices in order to help win this war. From it we can take a lesson as to what selfishness hatred, and defense will do to a nation. It will do the same thing for an individual, and when the war has been ended, God should be the Ruler in the hearts and minds of men.

When four men were arrested recently for cattle stealing and held for the federal court, it served to put fear in cattle rustlers in this section of the country. 'Inursday of last week two men pleaded guilty in federal court at Oklahoma City, and two pleaded innocent. Cattle rustling in the modern way, by truck, has been in vogue in this section for some time, and gave the officers of Sherman county, and Texas county, a lot of trouble. Officers of more than one Texas and Oklahoma panhandle country took part in ferreting out the guilty parties.

The nation needs scrap iron now just as badly as ever, and all who have not gathered up all kinds of scrap iron and sold it, can do the nation a big service to sell it to the local dealer. Scrap iron is worthless to the owner, but in the form of guns tanks and ships, its valuable to the defense of the nation.

According to tire tests made by the We Call For and Deliver-Phone 90 Society of Automoblie Engineers and Iowa Engineering Experiment stations, a tire with 10.000 miles of normal driving left will give 14,000 miles of service driven consistently at 35 miles an hour. A worn tire with 5,000 miles of service at 40 miles per hour will go 7,000 at 30 miles per hour, or 10,000 miles at 20 miles per hour. This same tire will last only 3,500 miles at 50 m. p. h., and only 2,500 miles at 60 m. p. m. John Casey, chairman Minnesota Ed. Adolf: Dot humming—vot iss it?

Reddy: That. Adolf, is the hum of power by which you will meet your doom. Power in the air ... power afoot, on tap to build more planes, more tanks, more guns, more ships. It's the hum of American men and machines at work-twenty-four hours a day!

Adolf: Ah, but I haff power, too!

Reddy: Listen, Adolf! America has more power than you and all your stooges and conquered countries put together. Free men and women are using that power, turning out weapons of war in thundering quantities, because they want to stay free.

Adolf: Yes, but I haff men and women working for me, too.

Reddy: Slaves, Adolf. They toil with bayonets at their back. They have no spirit for the work. They are slowed down by hunger. The machines they work are worn by years of war. Manpower can never do the work of electric power!

Adolf: Sure, but I got the jump on you! I command everything-

Reddy: That's where we differ, Adolf. Your system is based on state slavery and political control and operation of all natural resources, industry, religion and education. In West Texas... and in all America ... we respect the rights of the individual and the institutions he has created. Over here, we believe in free enterprise under government regulation ... a system under which men and women know they'll be rewarded for initiative, ambition and production.

It's a powerful incentive, Adolf, and it's helped make America power-full. Consider electricity, for example. It's helped give West Texas homes about twice or three times as much electric service for their money as they used to get ten or fifteen years ago.

American business management is behind that hum you hear, Adolf, and its success depends on giving more for less cost. It's a hum that will beat upon you until freedom is restored to the earth. It's the hum of fate, Adolf!

Texas is the leading turkey-raising state in the nation. This is turkey season, too, and hope to goodness they are not rationed out.

Just now there is a "ceiling" on most things that are for sale in the stores, and it is reported that a ceiling has been placed on hogs. One woman commented and said. "We want a fence around them as well as a ceiling," and how true that is when a rooting hog is running out. Yet here is a little verse that sounds good:

Twinkle, twinkle little star Up above the world so far;

You alone, I have a feeling. Need not fret about a ceiling.

Folks, nature makes a lot of mistakes. At least it seems to, but it never arranges the bloom of youth close to the nose on the cheek and near the ear on another.

It's no use putting on airs that aren't natural to you—another man's coat is sure to wrinkle up on you somewhere.

Some folks are gonna have to do some figuring, or deep planning, when they have to make 2800 miles cover the entire distance covered by the family car, in one year. No more funny trips to Amarillo to attend a night club-or that regular Sunday afternoon drive to cover two or three states, can be had. These ration books are valuable, and must be used wisely.
