COACHINGEXPENSIVE

VANDERBILT'S LONDON VENTURE MEANS BIG OUTLAY.

Expenditure for the Season Works Out $15,000 and the Actual Figure Probably Is Much Above This.

London. - "Can he make it pay?" asked one of the crowd that stood the other morning in Northumberland avenue. Mr. Vanderbiit, looking the very model of an old coaching print, even to the large red and white but bonhole that only broke the correct blackness of his attire, jumped on the coach, raised his hat to the passengers, and with a shake of the ribbons set off the four championship grays on their rhythmic way.

The mistake of the questioner is a general one, and Mr. Vanderbilt's desires have been mistaken. Mr. Vanderbilt said that he did not wish to make it pay; he did not wish to make records; he did not even wish to prove the superiority of the American trot-

What he wants is to enjoy "the bestwearing sport in the world" on a beautiful and historic road, and to vivify the sport of coaching in English soclety. "Just sport," as his master of horse said before a recent journey; that is the only idea.

Even with a public coach the sport is one for the capitalist, at any rate if practiced across the Atlantic. Mr. Vanderbilt has 70 horses. Their Atlantic passage would cost $1,875. Journeys at either end would cost that amount over again.

There has never before been any catcher at 25 cents a head and the constables turned up their official poses at the suggestion that they should kill the animals

All this is changed now, however. The town board is offering $2 apiece for all dogs killed. A dogcatcher is to be appointed in each of the 14 districts and men are said to be tumbling over one another to get the jobs.

Montgomery, Mo.-Louis Gill, cham pion egg eater, who has offered to wager $50 that her can reat 42 boiled scrambled or "sunny side up" withou stopping to rest or to think it over has a rival. Miss Helen Brown, 14 years old, of Kansas, says she can equal his feat, and then add the usua order of three eggs to the repast as chaser or as dessert.

Miss Brown writes from Kansa City to announce her capacity to eggs. "I can eat 45 eggs," she confi dently asserts. "I would like to prove it to you, but you are in Montgomer and I am in Kansas City, so I can't but I thought I would let you know that there is one who can eat more eggs than you can.'

Mr. Gill, who has never really eaten 42 eggs at once, but who has a record of three dozen, and says there was certainly room for six more, is a little worried about the Kansas City wom an's challenge. He does not know that i would be good form to enter an egg-eat ing contest against a woman, and he is afraid that if he did his gallantry would overcome his ambition and he would permit her to defeat him long before he had satisfied his appetite.

Court Declares a Dam Lease From Lake Michigan and Hennepin Canal Valid.

Chicago, June 26 .- A decision that may have considerable bearing upon the plans for a deep waterway from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico was handed down in the circuit court of Cook county Thursday by Judge Julian S. Mack. The court upheld the right of the Economy Light and Power company to construct a dam across the Des Plaines river at Dresden Heights, dissolving an injunction suit brought by the state of Illinois against the company and declaring valid a 20year lease which the company had seoured on the site from the commissioners of the old Lake Michigan & Hennepin canal.
