A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Thai elephants 'married'

Two pairs of elephants wearing flowing gowns embroidered with red hearts recently got married in an elaborate ceremony in the ancient Thai capital of Ayuthaya.

Carrying their handlers, or mahouts, the brides walked to a makeshift altar in front of a local department store, trailing a colorful matrimonial procession watched by hundreds of onlookers.

Sporting a pretty pink bow, Oi Jan ("Sweetheart"), 24, married Plai Bua Ban ("Blossoming Lotus"), also 24, whose trunk was brightly painted.

The other couple were 18-year-olds, Nam Peung ("Honey") and Plai Nga Thong ("Golden Tusk").

Trying to sell his soul

Adam Burtle, 20, of Seattle sold his soul on eBay, the Internet auction site, fetching $400 before the listing was removed and the University of Washington student and part-time automotive technician was suspended from the site.

For his listing, the self-described atheist displayed a picture of himself wearing an "I'm with stupid" T-shirt. eBay has blocked similar auctions in the past but said Burtle's soul slipped through.

Burtle said he didn't intend for the ad to be taken seriously.

"I was just bored, and I'm a geek," he said. "So anytime I'm bored, I go back to my Internet."

LOCAL WEATHER

Mild temperatures are expected to continue across the region at least through early next week. Thursday morning's low of about 36 should be the warmest, but the mercury is not expected to dip much below freezing through Monday. Daytime high temperatures should reach the 60s with the exception of Saturday's 56, and Monday's high should be in the upper 60s.

Energas to meet with farmers in Muleshoe

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

One of four public meetings scheduled by Energas to discuss high energy prices is planned for 10 a.m. Feb. 26 at the Bailey County Coliseum in Muleshoe.

Energas states that the meeting, the last of four to be held across the region, is designed to give farmers and other interested people the opportunity to visit with company representatives about the new Energas contracts and the anticipated future of natural gas prices.

The company stated in a press release that it "wants to make sure farmers are making decisions based on accurate information," adding that "a great deal of misinformation" being circulated is causing farmers to be "confused and concerned."

More community meetings are planned, according to the press release.

"We are very concerned about how high energy prices will affect our irrigation customers this summer," said Kelley Grimes, general manager of Energas Agricultural Services.

"All of us are in a unique situation, and we at Energas feel we must all work together to find solutions that are good for everyone,"

Grimes added.

He did not elaborate on whether Energas has any plan to cushion the blow to farmers from the company's rate hikes.

Energas is encouraging not only its own customers but anyone involved in irrigation to attend the meeting.

Similar meetings were scheduled earlier in Plainview, Brownfield and Hereford.

Energas expands ways to deal with public's inquiries

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Energas Co. has added more customer-service telephone lines and employees plus a new e-mail address in an attempt to handle the volume of reaction to soaring natural gas bills.

Customers can reach a company representative toll-free 24 hours a day, seven days a week by telephone (888) 363-7427.

The new e-mail address, Customer@energas.com, will be monitored by the company's customer-service staff.

Energas also maintains a website, www.energasc.com, that offers conversion tips and information about the impact of higher natural gas prices.

The company stated in a press release that there has been a "significant" increase in call volume recently — three to four times the normal load — and that the new steps are a way of making sure customers can express their concerns.

"Our No. 1 goal is accessibility for all our customers in a timely manner," Energas President Tom S. Hawkins Jr. said.

The company is returning $107,000 to customers in a one-time contribution to energy-assistance programs.

Mule Mania in the sky

Cooperation between the city of Muleshoe and the Muleshoe Independent School District has resulted in this painting of "Ol' Feet," the kicking mule, on the side of a city water tower. With the recent success of Muleshoe High School athletic teams, no doubt the kicking mule is on its way to rivaling Ol' Pete, the National Mule Memorial, as a symbol of the city.

HopeChest needs donations for local utility help

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

HopeChest, which operates under the Bailey County Ministerial Alliance, is one local organization working to help needy citizens cope with this winter's high utility bills.

It depends entirely on private contributions, however, and the increasing demand has long since depleted the organization's ability to help.

Figures released by HopeChest earlier this month showed that the group paid out $3,040.56 between Oct. 1 and Jan. 24. Of that amount, much more than half — $1,856.19 — went to help with utility bills, and much of the real difficulty in that area has developed since Jan. 24.

Sometimes the help takes other forms but is related to utilities: HopeChest has reported providing an electric blanket for an elderly man whose gas had been turned off.

HopeChest also helps people with housing, school clothing, prescriptions, household furnishings, food and many types of other expenses not covered by some other relief agency.

One major contribution made by HopeChest in recent months was helping a 6-year-old cancer victim travel out of town for treatment.

The help provided has been varied:

- Paying for a doctor's examination so an elderly man could get a hearing aid;
- Assisting an elderly woman in getting a new roof on her home;
- Providing a bed for a child who was suffering leg cramps from sleeping in a crib;
- Providing a fan and a hot water heater for an elderly couple; and
- School clothing for two families headed by working mothers.

Donations may be mailed to BCMA HopeChest, P.O. Box 175, Muleshoe 79347.

Local officials attend national conservation meeting

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Officials from the Blackwater Valley Soil and Water Conservation District joined more than 1,700 leaders from across the nation Feb. 4-7 to discuss issues of natural resource conservation on private land in America.

The occasion was the 55th annual meeting of the National Association of Conservation Districts, held in Fort Worth.

The theme of the meeting was "Bullish on Conservation," and the purpose was to set policy, discuss key conservation issues, elect officers and recognize national award winners.

Ernest Ramm, director of the local district, brought back new information and ideas for the district.

"While our local conservation work will help ensure continued quality of life for our children and future generations, we have a responsibility to make sure our conservation programs help our producers on the land remain viable today," Ramm said.

He added that conservation districts work with local farmers, ranchers and other landowners on improvements to benefit water

Six Lady Mules to be honored by Gatorade

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Muleshoe High School girls' basketball coach Shana Simms announced Tuesday that six Lady Mules have been selected to receive the Gatorade Will To Win Athlete award.

The program recognizes high school athletes for dedication, determination and desire.

Simms said the six players earned the award throughout the season, which saw the Lady Mules earn a playoff berth by emerging from a three-way tie for second place in the district. They lost their bi-district game to Amarillo River Road.

The athletes are selected by their coaches based on their passion for sport and their motivation to push both themselves and their teammates.

"These six girls give a little extra to the sport of basketball," Simms said. "They were good players all year long. They show through hard work and dedication what it takes to be successful."

She added, "I am proud of all the girls in the basketball program here at Muleshoe High School. . . . They are such an asset to the school and the community."

World Day of Prayer to include Muleshoe group's observance

A local observance of the World Day of Prayer is scheduled for noon March 2, sponsored by Muleshoe's United Methodist Women.

The Day of Prayer is a global event sponsored by Church Women United, which does not have a chapter in Muleshoe.

The local observance will include a covered-dish luncheon, and those bringing food are asked to arrive by 11:45 a.m. There will be a nursery for small children, and parents are asked to feed the children before bringing them.

The program material was written by Samoan women on the theme "Informed Prayer and Prayerful Action." An offering will be taken to benefit Church Women United.

AROUND MULESHOE

Senior citizens plan fund-raiser

Bailey County Senior Citizens Inc. and the Muleshoe High School DECA students are planning a luncheon from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Feb. 23 to benefit the senior citizens.

The menu will include beans, cornbread and trimmings. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children. They are available at the door or in the Bailey County Office of Aging in the courthouse, or from any DECA student.

The event will be held in the First Assembly of God's Family Life Center.

Computer classes set at Coliseum

Computer classes have been scheduled for Feb. 23-24 at the Bailey County Coliseum.

Classes set for Feb. 23 include "Organize Yourself on the Computer" from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. and "Web Page Building Class" from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Scheduled for 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Feb. 24 is "Internet and E-mail Proficiency."

Registration is available by calling toll-free (888) 298-4075. The $65 fee is payable at the door.

McGonagill at Mayo Clinic

Linda McGonagill of Muleshoe is in the Mayo Clinic in Scottsdale, Ariz., awaiting a liver transplant.

She said she has been told she will get the next available liver that matches her blood type.

McGonagill asked for the prayers and best wishes of local friends rather than having them send cards.

Speech students win again

Muleshoe High School speech students have performed well in two more tournaments this month.

At the Canyon High School tournament on Feb. 9, Westin Price and Rocky DeHoyos placed first in debate while Eric Madrid place second in United States Extemp. Students from 39 schools participated.

At the Randall High School tournament on Feb. 10, Price and DeHoyos again placed first in debate. Price won the tournament's outstanding debater's trophy.

Ash Wednesday service scheduled

The First United Methodist Church of Muleshoe has scheduled an Ash Wednesday service for 7 p.m. Feb. 28.

The service, which marks the beginning of the Christian season of Lent, will last 30 minutes and involves the placing of ashes on the forehead of the worshipper.

The public is invited, and a nursery will be provided.

More information is available by calling Brad Reeves at 272-5517.

Evangelist to speak in Muleshoe

Evangelist Ed Rimer will conduct a series of meetings at 7 p.m. Feb. 25-28 at the First Assembly of God, 521 S. First in Muleshoe.

Rimer's background includes 11 years as a pastor and eight years as a member of the King's Quartet.

He is the author of The Best Is Yet To Come, a verse-by-verse commentary on the Book of Revelation. The Muleshoe services will utilize a 130-foot full-color chart of Revelation, and the lessons will be followed by question-and-answer sessions.

His other books include Antichrist Is Coming, God's Word on Angels, The Rev. Lucifer D. Satan and Doctrines of Devils, The Seven Feasts of Israel, Iraq, Its History and Prophecy, Your Questions and My Answer, Touring Israel and The Holy Spirit.

Public calendar

Feb. 24 — 10 a.m. Bailey County Coliseum (registration begins at 9 a.m.). Annual meeting of Five Area Telephone Cooperative membership.

Also on Feb. 24 — 6:15 p.m. Pep homecoming banquet, in the school cafeteria (registration begins at 5 p.m.). $10 adults, $5 children age 12 and under.

March 8 — Deadline for Muleshoe students to apply for the Kristy M. Landers Memorial Scholarship; application forms are available at the high school counseling office.

Women's Leadership Conference slated at Tech

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

The third annual Women's Leadership Conference sponsored by Texas Tech University's Center for Professional Development is scheduled for Feb. 28 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The conference hosts business owners, corporate officers, managers, supervisors, business professionals and community leaders.

"This conference is geared toward women networking with other women and exchanging professional experiences with the contacts they make," said Kim Dixon, assistant operations manager of the Center for Professional Development, which is in Tech's College of Business Administration.

Barbara Richardson, executive vice president of Amtrak, will be the opening keynote speaker. She oversees the daily management of the railroad and leads all marketing, brand management, market research, revenue management, call-center operations and internal and external communications.

She will describe Amtrak's goals and provide insight into the leadership role of women in railroading.

Shirley Harrison, vice president of diversity management for human resources for the Philip Morris Management Corp., also will be a speaker.

Harrison will discuss ways in which her company is helping diverse employees establish goals and develop the skills to reach them.

She also will explain the company's commitment to generating business with minority and women entrepreneurs and its support of women's issues in communities where Philip Morris employees live and work.

Harrison is responsible for the development and implementation of the company's "worldwide diversity management strategic plan."

Lucinda Garza Cardenas, the Mexican consul in Midland, also will be a keynote speaker, talking about the role of women in Mexico's political environment.

The conference cost is $149 per person, which includes materials, lunch and refreshments. Registration information is available by calling the Center for Professional Development toll-free at (800) 690-3020.

MEETING

quality, clean air and wildlife habitat.

The national meeting's keynote speaker, Bruce Vincent, challenged conservation officials to lead local discussions on conservation issues so that economic and ecological decisions can be made in harmony.

He reminded them that the 50 million rural citizens in the United States can have a strong voice and should be offering policymakers a reasonable, practical approach to land-management decisions.

Rudy Rice, outgoing president of the national organization, challenged the group to reach out, listen, learn and lead, and "never give up on taking steps necessary to improve the quality of life for all Americans."

Pearlie Reed, chief of the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, told those attending the conference that "the new administration understands that farmers and ranchers have to make a living before they can practice conservation, and that USDA is working to ensure that technical assistance is provided to farmers and ranchers at the local level."

Since the conference was held in Fort Worth, known as "Cow Town," much of the focus of the meeting was on the economic and environmental challenges of stock grazing.

Conservation districts as a group believe that sustained yields and multiple use of renewable resources should be basic principles of public and private grazing-land management.

A special forum at the meeting addressed the emerging conservation issue of using plants to trap carbon from the air, which may be a way to help the environment and financially reward America's farmers and ranchers. Plants are known to have the ability to trap carbon both above and below ground level.

The Blackwater Valley has worked with landowners and other interested parties since 1941.

Crossword Answers

Game warden provides rundown of frequently asked hunting questions

As hunting seasons wind down, state game warden Sam C. Harris of Littlefield says he has received several questions about the hunting of non-game animals such as coyotes, bobcats, feral hogs, prairie dogs and rabbits.

The question most frequently asked, he said, is "Do I need a Texas hunting license to hunt these animals on my own land?" The answer is yes: Anyone who wishes to hunt any wild animal or wild game bird is required to purchase a hunting license.

Game birds listed in the Texas Parks and Wildlife Code include wild (that is, not domestically raised) mourning doves, white-winged doves, white-fronted doves, bobwhites, Gambel's quail, scaled quail, Mearns' quail, all species of pheasants, partridge, all species of ducks, all species of geese, brant, grouse, prairie chickens, red-billed pigeons, band-tailed pigeons, snipe, all species of shore birds, chachalacas, all species of plover, sandhill cranes and wild turkey.

(Killing of other birds is prohibited.)

The second frequent question brings up the issue of hunting at night with a spotlight, and on this point there is a distinction between game animals and non-game animals.

Non-game animals may be hunted at any time of year by any lawful means or methods on private property, and this includes hunting at night and with a light.

Game animals and game birds, however, may not be hunted at night or with a light anywhere in Texas. Thus, in addition to birds, the following animals cannot be hunted at night or with a light: mule deer, white-tailed deer, pronghorn antelope, desert bighorn sheep, gray squirrels, fox squirrels and collared peccary (or javelina).

The list of non-game animals is extensive, and Harris suggests contacting him through the Bailey County Sheriff's Office (272-4268) or Texas Parks and Wildlife's Lubbock office (806-761-4930) for questions on specific species.

Non-game animals also may be hunted from a motor vehicle on private property, but no hunting of any kind is allowed from a motor vehicle on a public road.

The 76th Texas Legislature increased the penalty for hunting from a motor vehicle from a Class C misdemeanor to a Class A misdemeanor — regardless of the species or its classification as a game animal or non-game animal.

This means anyone convicted of hunting from a motor vehicle on a public road is subject to a fine ranging from $500 to $4,000, not more than a year in jail, both fine and incarceration, and revocation of their hunting license for up to five years.

Another question regarding hunting from a public road is "How far off the road must I be to be legal?" The roadway is defined as "fence line to fence line," but in many areas of the state — especially Bailey County — there are no perimeter fences. In this case, the hunter must be out of the ditch and up on the property in order to hunt legally. A good rule of thumb is to judge by power poles or telephone poles.

A hunter who drives county roads looking for animals, spots animals in a field, parks the vehicle and walks into the field would be considered road hunting — whether or not he or she discharges a gun from the road.

If the landowner's permission was not secured, the hunter could also be charged with criminal trespass and hunting without landowner's consent. The penalties for the latter also have been increased — to a state jail felony for deer, pronghorn and bighorn, and to a Class A misdemeanor for all other animals.

GROWING LEADERS

The FFA Creed

I believe in the future of agriculture, with a faith born not of words but of deeds—achievements won by the present and past generations of agriculturists; in the promise of better days through better ways, even as the better things we now enjoy have come to us from the struggles of former years.

I believe that to live and work on a good farm, or to be engaged in other agricultural pursuits, is pleasant as well as challenging; for I know the joys and discomforts of agricultural life and hold an inborn fondness for those associations which, even in hours of discouragement, I cannot deny.

I believe in leadership from ourselves and respect from others. I believe in my own ability to work efficiently and think clearly, with such knowledge and skill as I can secure, and in the ability of progressive agriculturists to serve our own and the public interest in producing and marketing the product of our toil.

I believe in less dependence on begging and more power in bargaining; in the life abundant and enough honest wealth to help make it so—for others as well as myself; in less need for charity and more of it when needed; in being happy myself and playing square with those whose happiness depends upon me.

I believe that American agriculture can and will hold true to the best traditions of our national life and that I can exert an influence in my home and community which will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task.

C. Black

The FFA Motto: Learning to Do, Doing to Learn, Earning to Live, Living to Serve.

The National FFA Organization consists of nearly a half million members who are preparing to take over leadership roles in the science, business and technology aspects of agriculture. Currently, there are more than 7,200 local chapters, which presents a tremendous opportunity for shared agricultural knowledge and ideas.

FFA's mission is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education.

To accomplish this mission, FFA: develops competent and assertive agricultural leadership, increases awareness of the global and technological importance of agriculture and its contribution to our well-being, strengthens the confidence of agriculture students in themselves and their work, promotes the intelligent choice and establishment of an agricultural career, encourages achievement in supervised agricultural experience programs, encourages wise management of economic, environmental and human resources of the community, develops interpersonal skills in teamwork, communications, human relations and social interaction, builds character and promotes citizenship, volunteerism and patriotism, promotes cooperation and cooperative attitudes among all people, promotes healthy lifestyles, and encourages excellence in scholarship.

Warm weather is getting the fruit trees ready for a frozen crop

By RONN SMITH
Editor

With the weather warming up the way it has been for the past couple of weeks, the buds on peach and apricot trees are swelling rapidly — not a good thing to happen so early in the year.

If you haven't already mulched underneath these trees, it would be a good idea to do so while the ground is still very cold.

Four or 5 inches of mulch (and I recommend a layer of newspaper under that to keep weeds from coming through) will help keep the ground cooler later in the spring, so the trees won't bloom so early. The biggest problem with these fruits in our area is that the crop is so often killed by late-spring freezes. Mulch usually won't delay blooming for more than a few days, but that may be all the time you need to save a good crop.

No doubt those of you who have very early-flowering spring bulbs already have noticed one effect of the months of cold weather we have had: Snow crocus, which had been flowering during the latter half of January in the past several winters, still haven't flowered — at least not at Chez Smith.

When you're thinking about groundcovers (as all faithful readers of this column must be by now), don't overlook the many types of low-growing junipers that will be making their appearance at nurseries and garden centers over the next few weeks.

Many of these grow only a few inches tall and spread for considerable distances across the ground. If you want a taller groundcover (2 feet high, or any size), you can certainly get a variety of juniper to fit the bill.

They are available in various textures and in all shades of green, silver, "gold" and "blue." And the group contains some of the toughest plants in horticulture, able (once you get them established) to withstand drought, the heat reflected off concrete or asphalt, and the toughest sun you can put them through.

True, they don't make colorful flowers, but as a trade-off they don't shed their needles in the winter — in fact, some of them turn interesting shades of purple or some other color when the weather is cold.

One good possibility (8 inches high by 6 1/2 feet across) is Juniperus communis 'Hornbrookii,' formerly known as 'Prostrata' and still sometimes sold that way. Another variety of the common juniper is 'Repanda,' with soft foliage that is really beautiful when in growth and which gets a bronze tinge in winter.

The shore juniper (Juniperus conferta) grows about a foot high and can be 12 or more feet across. The green leaves have a light-colored band across them; this is a particularly good choice for sandy soils, but not as commonly available in our area as some of the other species.

Creeping juniper (Juniperus horizontalis), which has several extremely popular varieties, is another 12-inch-high species that can spread almost indefinitely. The new growth is gray-green and needle-like.

Some of the easiest-to-find varieties include 'Bar Harbor' (mature foliage also is gray-green), 'Blue Chip' (mature foliage is bright blue) and 'Emerald Spreader' (mature foliage is bright green).

Juniperus procumbens also is often available and is a simi-

1-foot-high-by-6-feet-across grower. The dwarf form, 'Nana,' is good for smaller spaces, getting only about 2 1/2 feet across.

Another good point about these spreading junipers is that they can take shearing without complaint. That is, if you plant them near walkways, it's very easy to trim them to fit. You probably would want to look at the smaller types if it's a tight space, of course.

These plants need some water and attention for the first year or two, but after that they're about as carefree as any groundcover you can select.

Happy planting!

Enlistments now being accepted for Bobwhite or Buckskin Brigades

SAN ANGELO — Parents, got an ambitious teen who expects to have a little too much time on his or her hands this summer?

Then consider "enlisting" the child in one of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service's Bobwhite or Buckskin Brigades. The camps use bobwhite quail and white-tailed deer as vehicles to equip young people with communication skills and leadership development in an outdoor setting.

The skills they learn can serve them well regardless of their career goals.

The Buckskin Brigade is set for June 3-7 at La Bandera Ranch near Carrizo Springs.

Dates and locations for the three Bobwhite Brigades are: Rolling Plains camp, June 23-27 at the Krooked River Ranch, Lueders; South Texas camp, July 15-19 at La Bandera Ranch, Carrizo Springs; and East Texas camp, July 22-26 at the Pinewoods Conservation Center, Broadus.

Cadet age limits are 13 to 17 years old, but preference is given to incoming high school sophomore and junior students (ages 15 to 16).

The intensive four-day camps are designed to make quail or deer experts of their participants. Cadets are schooled in quail or deer biology and management by leading wildlife scientists from across Texas. After graduating, each cadet is encouraged to present quail or deer management educational programs in his or her home county. The camps have earned several state and national awards for conservation education. The 300 cadets graduated since the camps' debut in 1993 have conducted over 3,000 educational programs.

"I'm not sure who's more impressed with the camps — the cadets themselves or their parents," said Dr. Dale Rollins, San Angelo-based Extension wildlife specialist and the camps' originator. "Each year I have a parent lament 'where was this type of camp when we were that age!'"

"Every year after the camps I meet a lot of parents who ask whether there could be a career in wildlife management for their child. I tell them there are such careers, but to be successful, you have to outshine the competition. Camps like the Bobwhite and Buckskin Brigade provide a unique opportunity for youth to meet wildlife professionals. The teens can then decide whether this is really the line of work they want to pursue."

The camps' sponsors include Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, Quail Unlimited, local soil and water conservation districts, and private landowners.

Applications can be obtained from county Extension offices or from the Internet at <http://texnat.tamu.edu>.

Helen Holdsworth, the San Antonio-based Bobwhite Brigade executive director, handles Bobwhite Brigade applications and information. She can be reached by phone at (210) 467-6578 or e-mail her at holdsworth@tamu.edu.

Tamara Trail, educational director for the Texas Wildlife Association, is in charge of Buckskin Brigade applications and information. Contact Trail at (800) 839-9453 or e-mail her at t-trail@texas-wildlife.org.

The cost of the camps varies from $100 to $200. Scholarships for at least half the tuition are available for those who request them. Organizers stress that inability to pay should not be a reason for not applying. Deadline for applications is April 15.

Disaster loan deadline is Friday

Businesses in Bailey County and most of the surrounding counties must file applications by Friday in order to apply for low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loans are available for businesses dependent on farmers and ranchers sustaining crop losses due to drought between September 1999 and the present. The loans are to cover loss of income to the business, not physical damage from storms. Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for these particular loans, but nurseries that are victims of drought can apply.

The eligible area includes all of New Mexico as well as Bailey, Parmer, Cochran, Deaf Smith and several other counties in West Texas as well as spots in the Panhandle and Rio Grande Valley.

More information is available by calling (800) 366-6303.

"The Cancer Warrior"

In 1960, when he was a surgical resident, a young doctor named Judah Folkman was drafted by the U.S. Navy to help find a substitute for whole blood to meet the need for transfusable blood on long voyages. What he discovered instead was a startling secret about cancer growth. It was a clue he would pursue for the next 40 years.

Today, his persistence is paying off with a new class of drugs that fight tumors by cutting off their blood supply. In a television exclusive, Nova "The Cancer Warrior" tells the story of Folkman's 40-year quest to treat cancer with a revolutionary new strategy.

In 1987, Folkman suggested a startling new place to look for angiogenesis inhibitors: the tumor itself. It was long known that in some rare cases of cancer, the surgical removal of the primary tumor would be followed by a rapid growth of small metastases that had spread to other locations. Could the tumor itself be secreting a molecule that keeps the metastases at bay? When the tumor was removed, did that also remove the inhibitor?

Today, more than two dozen drugs that inhibit blood vessels are in development or in clinical trials. Many scientists believe that they are on the verge of a new paradigm in understanding cancer, in which the disease is no longer viewed as a death sentence, but as a disease that can be controlled with an arsenal of weapons used in combination to prevent tumor growth.

"Cancer Warrior" on Nova airs Tuesday, February 27th at 8:00 p.m. It repeats Sunday night, March 4th at 1:00 a.m.

THE KENNEDY CENTER PRESENTS

"The Mark Twain Prize"

The Kennedy Center Presents turns to the art of comedy in "The Mark Twain Prize." The program features an all-star cast — including Steve Martin, Jerry Seinfeld, Dick Van Dyke, and Mary Tyler Moore — saluting author, actor, and director Carl Reiner. Hosted by Dick Van Dyke, the two-hour broadcast was taped before a live audience on October 24th, 2000.

Reiner's remarkable entertainment career began at age 16, when he was attending free drama classes at the WPA school in New York. From there, he progressed to Broadway musicals, GI revues during World War II, and then a regular spot on "Your Show of Shows" with Sid Caesar. Reiner went on to create the beloved situation comedy "The Dick Van Dyke Show" (1961-1966). Recognized with 12 Emmys and induction into the Television Academy Hall of Fame, Reiner is one of the industry's most creative minds.

The Kennedy Center Presents "The Mark Twain Prize" will be broadcast Wednesday, February 28th at 8:00 p.m.

Channel 3 Television from Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, New Mexico

For entertainment purposes only

FEB. 25-MARCH 3

Aries — March 21/April 20

You have an important decision to make this week, Aries. Don't just consider what is best for you. Several others will be affected by your choice; think of them also. Turn to that special someone for advice if you need it. A business associate reveals his or her true feelings for you. Let this person down gently.

Taurus — April 21/May 21

A loved one invites you out late in the week. While you'd rather stay home, say yes. An evening out is just what you need to lift your spirits. You're sure to meet some interesting people and make a few new friends. An acquaintance needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her.

Gemini — May 22/June 21

Don't get upset when a close friend takes his or her frustration out on you. Instead of getting angry, offer this person a shoulder to cry on. He or she really just wants someone to talk to. Be that person. That special someone has a surprise for you late in the week. Enjoy, because you deserve it.

Cancer — June 22/July 22

Try not to let a run-in with an acquaintance ruin your good mood this week, Cancer. This person purposely is trying to upset you. So, let what he or she says go in one ear and out the other. You have too much going for you to let one person bring you down. Capricorn plays an important role.

Leo — July 23/August 23

Don't let your pride get in the way of honoring a close friend, Leo. This person deserves accolades for what he or she does. You don't always have to be the one in the spotlight. The person whom you've been seeing calls it quits. Try not to get too upset. He or she isn't the right one for you, and you know it.

Virgo — Aug 24/Sept 22

An acquaintance asks for your help with a personal problem. Give him or her all of the advice that you want, but don't offer any money. You know that this person isn't reliable enough to pay you back. A loved one drops by unexpectedly late in the week. Listen to what he or she has to say.

Libra — Sept 23/Oct 23

You've put off making an important decision for far too long, Libra. You can't avoid it anymore. Just look at all of the pros and cons, and do what you think is best. Turn to a loved one for advice if you need it. He or she always has your best interest at heart. Leo plays a key role.

Scorpio — Oct 24/Nov 22

A loved one needs a little time alone this week, Scorpio. Don't be offended by this. Instead, give this person the space that he or she wants. It will do wonders for your relationship. A business associate asks for your help. Do what you can for him or her. Your efforts will be appreciated.

Sagittarius — Nov 23/Dec 21

Be careful of what you say when talking with that special someone. This person is having a difficult week. Hearing the harsh truth from you right now could really upset him or her. A loved one needs your help with a family matter. Even though you don't want to get involved, you must. Do what you can.

Capricorn — Dec 22/Jan 20

A co-worker takes control of a problem at work. While you would rather be in charge, that's not how it is. So, deal with it. Just do what you can to help, and try to learn something from the situation. That special someone takes you out late in the week. Enjoy yourself, because it's sure to be fun.

Aquarius — Jan 21/Feb 18

An acquaintance asks you to lie to help him or her get out of a difficult situation. Do don't it, because you're sure to get caught. Just stay out of it, because there's much more going on here than you know. A close friend offers you some romantic advice. Listen to what he or she has to say.

Pisces — Feb 19/March 20

A business associate reveals a secret to you late in the week, Pisces. Keep this information to yourself. Telling others only will wreak havoc at work. So, just keep your mouth shut. A loved one needs your advice about a personal problem. Be honest with him or her.

Texas Legislature looking at long-term water fight

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
AUSTIN — Rule of Capture, Junior Water Rights and such terms are becoming increasingly familiar at the state capitol as the Legislature moves to address the issue of water.

The issue is not expected to be answered during this legislation session, but more than likely will be a culmination of efforts over the next several sessions.

"I don't think the issue of water can be settled in just one session," said Rep. Rick Hardcastle, R-Vernon. "It will be a subject that will have to be addressed over an extended period of time."

Nonetheless, Sen. Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson, is putting the final touches on Senate Bill 2, which will address in this session such topics as Junior Water Rights and interbasin transfers — both of which show signs of becoming hotly contested.

The consensus is that Brown will not get all he envisions for a state comprehensive water plan. Perhaps, many say, he will get a certain number of the items he seeks, but it appears likely that the legislation will leave unanswered a good many questions revolving on water rights.

As Texas continues to grow, projected populations in metropolitan areas are expected to place urban and agricultural needs in a direct path to confrontation.

This increased demand could trigger interbasin transfers — the transfer of water from region (river) to another region (river) — that could greatly impact agriculture.

All Texas rivers but one are experiencing negative flows, meaning there is greater potential demand than there is water available.

As long as climatic conditions remain favorable, Texas river flows are generally sufficient to meet demand. During extended drought, though, the demand on rivers increases significantly. As population continues to grow, demand will eventually reach levels at which river flows will be affected regardless of climate.

Water is a commodity that impacts every Texan. Protect-

Emergency Preparedness Checklist

The next time disaster strikes, you may not have much time to act. Prepare now for a sudden emergency.

Learn how to protect yourself and cope with disaster by planning ahead. This checklist will help you get started. Discuss these ideas with your family, then prepare an emergency plan. Post the plan where everyone will see it—on the refrigerator or bulletin board.

For additional information about how to prepare for hazards in your community, contact your local emergency management or civil defense office and American Red Cross chapter.

Emergency Checklist

Call Your Emergency Management Office or American Red Cross Chapter

- Find out which disasters could occur in your area.
- Ask how to prepare for each disaster.
- Ask how you would be warned of an emergency.
- Learn your community's evacuation routes.
- Ask about special assistance for elderly or disabled persons.

Also...

- Ask your workplace about emergency plans.
- Learn about emergency plans for your children's school or day care center.

Create an Emergency Plan

- Meet with household members. Discuss with children the dangers of fire, severe weather, earthquakes and other emergencies.
- Discuss how to respond to each disaster that could occur.

- Discuss what to do about power outages and personal injuries.
- Draw a floor plan of your home. Mark two escape routes from each room.
- Learn how to turn off the water, gas and electricity at main switches.
- Post emergency telephone numbers near telephones.
- Teach children how and when to call 911, police and fire.
- Instruct household members to turn on the radio for emergency information.
- Pick one out-of-state and one local friend or relative for family members to call if separated by disaster (it is often easier to call out-of-state than within the affected area).
- Teach children how to make long distance telephone calls.
- Pick two meeting places.
  - 1) A place near your home in case of a fire.
  - 2) A place outside your neighborhood in case you cannot return home after a disaster.
- Take a basic first aid and CPR class.
- Keep family records in a water and fire-proof container.

Prepare a Disaster Supplies Kit

Assemble supplies you might need in an evacuation. Store them in an easy-to-carry container such as a backpack or duffel bag.

Include:

- A supply of water (one gallon per person per day). Store water in sealed, unbreakable containers. Identify the storage date and replace every six months.
- A supply of non-perishable packaged or canned food and a non-electric can opener.
- A change of clothing, rain gear and sturdy shoes.
- Blankets or sleeping bags.
- A first aid kit and prescription medications.
- An extra pair of glasses.
- A battery-powered radio, flashlight and plenty of extra batteries.
- Credit cards and cash.
- An extra set of car keys.
- A list of family physicians.
- A list of important family information; the style and serial number of medical devices such as pacemakers.
- Special items for infants, elderly or disabled family members.

ENGAGEMENT

RONEK-HELTON

Richard and LouAnn Ronek of Muleshoe announce the engagement of their daughter, Natasha Ronek of Amarillo, to Christopher Helton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chan Helton and Mark and Gail Francis, all of Amarillo. The bride-elect, a graduate of Muleshoe High School, is a customer-service representative at McCoy, Myers and Associates. The prospective groom, a graduate of Amarillo Caprock High School, is data center supervisor at McCoy, Myers and Associates. The wedding is scheduled for 4 p.m. March 10 at Treasure Island Chapel in Las Vegas, Nev. A reception will be held at 5:30 p.m. at the Mirage Hotel.

Nonconformity doesn't require being in people's faces

KATYE'S KALEIDOSCOPE

By Katy Cook

Have you ever been the "odd kid"—that one person who seems to have nothing in common with anyone else?

When I was little, I was always looking for a way to be different, a little "off." I was bound and determined to never be like anyone else.

In the third grade, I finally found a way to be different. Get ready for this: I wore my dad's shirts that hung down to my knees, one blue soccer sock and one green soccer sock, both coming up to my knees. I wore my hair in dog-ears, and if I was in a really good mood when I got up in the morning, I wore one Nike tennis shoe and one Reebok tennis shoe.

What I remember most about my odd way of dressing is that no matter what I was wearing, people didn't make fun of me for my clothes—at least not to my face.

When I really did run into insults, it was when I was in the fourth grade. I wasn't wearing my usual outfit; instead I had on regular clothes, a pair of stretch pants and a long-sleeved shirt. I was called a whale.

I was wounded, scarred for life. It really upset me. I decided then the weirder, the better. I had so much fun being the person who marched to her own drum!

Then I moved. People where I moved didn't like the way I dressed, so I changed my style: I bought five pairs of overalls. That is all I wore, with the exception of the occasional sweater or dress.

I felt weird going from being accepted as I was to having to change to make it through one day without tears.

I made the change OK, though, and found a way to be different without dressing so strangely. I still march to my own drum—it's just a little softer now.

There are a million and one different drums to march to; why pick the one every else is hearing?

Texas A&M University publishes guide to Panhandle birds

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
COLLEGE STATION—The Texas Panhandle is deceiving when it comes to animal life: Although its vast open plains appear devoid of animal life, regional variations provide habitats suitable for more than 400 species of birds.

Their occurrence and habits are described in detail in Birds of the Texas Panhandle: Their Status, Distribution and History.

The new book is by Kenneth D. Seyffert, past vice president of the Texas Ornithological Society and past president of the Texas Panhandle Audubon Society. He lives in Amarillo.

"The purpose of this book is to make known this increase in knowledge and to provide an enlarged view as well as a more detailed view of the richness of bird life that exists in the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle—an area larger than West Virginia," Seyffert writes.

"Barren... as the High Plains may appear, of the 606 species of birds confirmed in Texas (as of 1998), 67 percent have been confirmed in the Panhandle," he added.

The Panhandle is composed of two ecological areas, the Rolling Plains and the High Plains.

The Rolling Plains is composed mainly of mesquite shrub and mixed grassland, and attracts species such as the red-headed woodpecker and Carolina chickadee.

The High Plains, which consists of gently rolling terrain and scattered rainwater lakes, provides winter habitat for a variety of migrating waterfowl.

Many of these, such as the stately great blue heron, are common; others, such as the red-throated loon, have been confirmed only once.

For each of the species found in this region, Seyffert provides information on the bird's status, occurrence and nesting habits, which allow amateur and professional birders alike to scope out even the rarest species.

Additionally, Seyffert describes his own birding experiences in the Panhandle. Ten elegant line drawings accompany the text.

Birds of the Texas Panhandle is a must for those already familiar with the avifauna of the Panhandle and an eye-opener for those skeptical of the abundance of bird life in the region.

Residents of the Panhandle will find the book a handy reference to places where they can view their winged neighbors.

The book is available in bookstores or direct from Texas A&M University Press. Telephone orders can be placed by calling (800) 826-8911 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Central time Monday through Friday; secure Internet ordering is available at www.tamu.edu/upress.
