CATTLE.

Receipts Mostly Southern, Native Trade About Steady.

Of the moderate number of cattle here for today more than half were in the quarantine division and the native division had little more than a nominal market on a steady basis of prices compared with Thursday.

For the week there has been a fairly liberal movement of cattle to the several markets and the total for five points shows a considerable increase over last week. But it should be remembered that Monday of last week was cut out on account of the holiday. The totals for the week at the five points stand at 134,000 for this week against 102,000 for last week and 125,000 for the same week last year and the last year comparison is the more nearly normal one.

The supply at the local point has not been large and does not show any increase over the previous week and is 2200 less than for the same time last year. The local supply has not had as large proportion of southern cattle as were here last week but there have been a few more rangers from above the quarantine line. The market for the fat grades of cattle of all weights has had a healthy tone and prices as a rule have been very well sustained. In the native line there is hardly a quotable change in prices compared with the close of last week and each day has seen good activity to the trade. There have not been many grades of cattle that would fit the fancy trade but there has been a liberal proportion of the grades of good beef steers that sell at a range of $6.75 to $7.50 and a few lots have been here that have made $7.65 to $8.00, the latter being the highest price of the week and it was paid for a choice lot of steers weighing slightly over 1200 pounds. There has been fair representation of the light and medium weight grades of steers that sell from around $6.00 to $6.75; they are a pretty good kind of beef cattle and have been finding ready sale. In a general way the market is in satisfactory condition at the close of the week. Next week will be apt to see more of the westerns than have been here this week.

COWS, BULLS AND MIXED.

The small business in butcher grades of cows and heifers for today was done at a steady basis of prices and the trade for the week closes in a very good and encouraging condition. For the week the supplies of native cows and heifers has been very moderate and the demand has been quite good at all times. In the line of cows the only slow spot in the demand has been for the canner grades and those have not sold better than steady. For all of the better grades the call has been an active one from start to finish and prices now current are strong to a dime higher than at the finish of last week. Westerns and south-westerns have not been coming freely and there is a prospect that everything useful in the native shee stock line will continue to meet an active demand. Supplies of heifers have been moderate and everything that has been of attractive merit has been meeting a ready demand at prices that are full strong for the week.

Dry fed heifers are quotable at about $5.75 to $6.50, but there are not many coming, bulk are selling at $4.75 to $5.25, common kinds at about $4.00 to $4.50. Best dry lot cows might sell up as high as $5.25, but there are not many coming that sell above $4.50 and the bulk of fat cows are going at $3.75 to $4.25 with canners and cutters ranging down as low as $3.00 and under.

Supplies of calves have been quite liberal and there have been some wide fluctuations in the market. Tops touched $9.00 for the week but the market has receded from the high point until the best veals would hardly sell above $8.25 at present and prices are now quoted 50 to 75 cents lower than the high time of the week. Bulls are about 25 cents lower and it takes a top grass bull to sell at $4.00 at the close of the week.

STOCKS AND FEEDERS.

There has been a picking up in the country demand for cattle to go into pastures and feed lots and the prospect for the good kinds has been working to a higher level. The market is quoted about 25 cents higher than at the close of last week and at the advances the local dealers have not been able to accumulate any considerable supplies in the stocker division, the country taking factor in estimating the demand for young cattle and the prospect now favors a good trade as it is about time now for the fall demand to begin to develop.

Choice to fancy feeding steers are quotable at about $4.50 to $5.50, with the latter an outside price, medium to good grades $3.75 to $4.50; good to fancy stock steers $4.25 to $4.75, and common to fair $3.50 to $4.25; stock heifers $3.50 to $4.00 for fair to strictly good kinds; stock cows $3.25 to $3.75, and stock calves $3.50 to $4.50.

QUARANTINE DIVISION.

Close to 500 cattle were on sale in the southern division. The market was in active tone with steers selling steady and cows steady to strong. Steers are about 25 cents higher for the week.

HOGS.

Heavy Mostly 5 Cents Higher, Light Averaged Steady.

The hog trade again showed a slightly better tone. Supplies at all points were less liberal than on former days of the week and the buying interests let up on any bare tactics and bought the heavy weights at slightly better prices than on the previous day; in fact the market for the heavy and medium weights was generally a nickel higher than yesterday, while for the light weights trade was not more than steady to strong. The quality of hogs was somewhat better than yesterday and this may have had something to do with the strength of the market. The movement to business was somewhat better than it has been of late and the supply of hogs was out of first hands in good season. For the week the local supply of hogs is 11,000 more than for last week and slightly ahead of a year ago. At the five leading markets the total is 248,000 and shows an increase of 93,000 over last week and is 79,000 ahead of a year ago.

Prices ranged from $8.15 to $8.80, with the bulk selling at $8.40 to $8.70. The bulk yesterday sold at $8.35 to $8.70, a week ago at $8.65 to $8.90, a month ago at $9.30 to $9.37 1/2, a year ago at $7.75 to $7.95, two years ago at $6.65 to $6.75, three years ago at $5.77 1/2 to $5.90, four years ago at $6.65 to $6.60.

CREATES NEW DEPARTMENT

Farm Management to Be Taught at Missouri College of Agriculture.
Columbia, Mo., July 15.—The College of Agriculture has recently established the first department of farm management devoted exclusively to this subject in the United States. This department will consider the factors of production as they relate to the successful administration of farms.

WANT TO SELL YOUR FARM?

I want information immediately about a good grain or stock farm for sale. There is a good buyer waiting for it, willing to pay your price. Write me at once for full particulars. Address: Arthur Capper, Dept. 59, Topeka, Kansas.

PLAN CLEARING HOUSE

Fort Worth, Tex.—D. J. Bell, assistant state lecturer of the Farmers' Union, announces that plans are about ready to organize a clearing house to dispose of the products gathered in the Union warehouses. This clearing house, according to Mr. Bell, will eliminate the broker and his profit and make the price paid for farm products a matter between the farmer and the retailer or manufacturer.

GAMBLING HARD ON HORSES

Fremont, Neb.—The real punishment of John Coleman, a negro jockey, arrested on a charge of crap shooting, fell from five horses. Coleman had placed the horses in a private stable and after his arrest was unable to describe the location so others could find the horses. The animals were compelled to go without food or water until Coleman was tried and fined. His associates paid the fine and he made haste to find the horses.

NOT MUCH DOING IN LIVE MUTTON.

Prices Lower For Week.

There was little doing in the sheep house today. There were about 1000 head arrived but two cars were direct to a packer and one car was through stock stopped here for feed. A few odds and ends of native stock was all that was on sale and these went at steady prices.

For the week the local supply of sheep and lambs has fallen off somewhat compared with last week but the supplies at the five leading markets have been large and the market has been on a lower turn. Lambs have got the worst of the slumpy turn and are 50 to 75 cents lower than at the close of last week, while sheep are 15 to 25 cents lower. A big percentage of the supply has been coming from the western ranges and has included considerable stock of feeder grade. These have been taken quite readily, although here as with cattle the corn belt sections are disposed to wait for the corn crop before going in heavily for stock to put into feed lots. Rains of the past few days have been favorable and the effect is noted in an increased call for feeder stock.

Fat lambs were quoted at $5.50 to $7.00 and some fancy kinds might bring $7.25. Fair to good at $5.75 to $6.25, common at $4.00 to $4.50, feeding yearlings at $4.25 to $4.75, fair to choice fat ewes at $3.50 to $3.75, fair to good ewes at $3.25 to $3.50, fair to choice wethers at $4.00 to $4.50, 8 spring lambs..... 7 6 50

IN WOMAN'S REALM

MEATS. Veal Loaf.—For every cupful of meat add a cupful of ground or grated bread crumbs when making veal loaf.

Fruit Dressing.—One-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, pinch of cayenne pepper, two tablespoonfuls melted butter, two eggs well beaten.

Almond Cookies.—Four eggs, beaten light; then add two cups of granulated sugar; again beat hard until light.

Angel Rolls.—This recipe will make thirty to thirty-five rolls. Bake an angel food cake in a pan about twelve by six by three inches.

Lancaster Pickles.—Two quarts onions, two quarts cucumbers, two or three peppers (take seeds out).

Plane Cake.—One and a half cups of sugar, one-fourth cup of butter, two eggs, beat separate; one cup sweet milk, two and one-half cups of flour.

Setting Out Peach Trees.—Peach trees, as grown in the nursery row, nearly always exhibit a bow in the stock near where the bud was inserted.

Charles Reade's Method of Work.—Reade's literary work was, Sir Robert Anderson remarks, a rare combination of genius and plodding.

His Master's Voice.—"Why do you want to give your parrot away?" "He uses such awful language."

TRAPPIST MONKS ON FARMS

Communes in Canada Where Agriculture and the Priesthood Go Hand in Hand.

Scattered throughout Canada are many curious religious communes, especially in the province of Quebec; but there is none more curious or interesting than the settlements of the Trappist Monks.

This brotherhood has three settlements in the dominion—in Nova Scotia at Tracadie, in the wilds of North-east Quebec near the Lake St. John district, and on the banks of the Ottawa river, not far from Montreal.

The Trappist is a farmer as well as a priest, and the Oka farm of 800 acres is one of the best tilled in that part of Canada. All kinds of grain are grown, an excellent vegetable garden is maintained, and a large orchard and vineyard add picturesque to the rural scene.

Adjoining the barn is the dairy, where a fancy cheese is produced that has a high reputation in the Montreal market, as have the claret and wines produced from the vineyards.

HAD MISSED IT A NICKEL

But Self-Sacrificing Little Ones Left the Store with the Coveted Plant.

Two little girls entered a florist shop. So near each other in size were they they would have been taken for twins.

"Well," she said, encouragingly. "We want to buy a plant," said the little spokeswoman. Then she added in order to avoid later embarrassment—"the cheapest one you've got."

"Ah," said the florist, going to the window, "here is a nice little plant—for 25 cents."

The little sister turned quickly to the other, but still smiling bravely. "Baby, we've just missed it a nickel," she said.

Yet not three minutes later they issued from the shop bearing the plant between them, and as the woman deposited the two silver dimes in the cash drawer her eyes must have caught their gleam, for there was something shining there.

JUST A REMINDER OF HOME

Good American Word "Gums" Has Been Adopted by a Large London Store.

If they were judged by the fiction they are most fond of Americans would be held to be a violently sentimental nation, and there would be considerable importance in the discovery by a correspondent that a window in a big London street has the word "Gums" posted on it.

Our own word "galoshes" does sound, we admit, rather grim and unbending compared with the homely and familiar "gums;" but we believe that in the main Americans are content to come and visit our capital without caring much one way or the other.

"How often," he says, "has not one noticed with a poignant pang of pathos the hungry faces of the sightseers from New York. All is strange to them. They gaze around them in vain endeavors to catch but the slightest peg on which to hang a memory of the dear homeland which they have left, and all the while the char-banc rolls remorselessly onward, and the guide with the megaphone nearly strapped over his mouth dilates on the objects at hand.

"We now approach St. Paul's cathedral, a hallowed shrine, erected by Sir Walter Raleigh. No gums. On our left the Mansion House, the residence of the Lord George Sanger; on our right the Bank of England, containing in a vault the Venus of Milo. Still no gums."—London Globe.

COOKING THE EEL IN JAPAN

Patron Chooses His Delicacy, Which is Prepared for the Table Before His Eyes.

Entering a Japanese restaurant, a guest who wishes broiled eels and rice is led to a tank of squirting fresh water eels and bidden to point out the object of his preference.

Then, chopping the fattened eel into three-inch lengths, the pieces are plunged into boiling water to make the skin tender, long bamboo splints used as skewers are thrust through them, and they are then placed on rods over glowing charcoal and broiled brown, being plunged from time to time into a vessel that contains old soy of the color and consistency of molasses.

These preparations concluded, the steaming eels are drained and placed in red lacquer boxes with rice and set before the customer.

Thompson Tact

By Louise Spencer

"So we're the decoration committee, we three—you and Jean and I. Mrs. Jones stood in the middle of the lodge room of the new club house and looked critically at the broad expanse of undecorated wall. Then, pulling off her gloves looking with a teasing smile at Robert Hastings, she went on: 'I see how you manage it, Robert. Nothing like being the son of the president of the club, and having any one you want appointed on your committees. And only last month you and Jean were on the house committee together!'"

"Fiddlesticks!" replied the young man abruptly. "On my word of honor I didn't know Jean was on the committee till you told me. Come, let's look over these pictures and have them ready to hang."

"Here she is now, the dear!" exclaimed Mrs. Jones, hurrying to greet the new comer, a frank-eyed young girl, whose graceful step and fresh color declared her athletic distinction. She looked inquiringly at Robert as soon as she was free from Mrs. Jones' embrace.

"Can't help it, Jean. I'm not responsible," said the young man with an air of indifference, as he arranged the pictures in a row against the wall for inspection.

The club house door swung noisily open and the president, Mr. Hastings, entered the room. He was an athletic, white-haired man, past middle age, whose pleasant, frank eyes, and simple smile, always brought the light into Jean's girlish face.

"This is good," he said, laying a fatherly hand on her shoulder. "You and Bob are doing good team work again. How you have improved the place, Mrs. Jones! A fire there on the hearth, these pictures in place, and we'll be in ship-shape."

"Got a Dinner Date Tonight, Jean?"

"I say, Mrs. Jones," said Robert, holding up a framed photograph of a placid, middle-aged man for inspection. "Where does this go?"

"Oh, be sure to put that in the best place," Mrs. Jones answered. "Not that Mr. Thompson was a whit better president than you, Mr. Hastings, for he wasn't. Here, Robert, call the steward to do that. You'll certainly break your neck or smash your thumbs. Oh, well, all right. There, that's a fine place for Mr. Thompson, right opposite the door. Such a way as that man had, too. You remember, don't you Mr. Hastings? He could make any one do anything he wanted him to. Diplomacy, I suppose you'd call it, but we always called it 'Thompson Tact.' I remember when my husband—and a stubborn man he is, too—had charge of the tennis courts when the club started, he was bound there should be three turf events and only one dirt one, fancy! Well, everybody was excited about it and he was going right ahead with his own notion. Then one day Mr. Thompson smiled and said that he wanted four turf courts and didn't want any others at all. Every one was thunderstruck. Mr. Thompson insisted till my husband forgot all about what he had said in the beginning and read up on dirt courts till he was a regular expert, and then Mr. Thompson, gradually, just as if he was being convinced, let my husband argue him over."

Here Mrs. Jones laughed. "Mr. Jones never said another word about the three turf courts he had wanted and the thing went through just as every one wanted it." Here she lowered her voice and whispered. "And he doesn't know to this day that Mr. Thompson was just using tact!"

"M'm," assented Robert, from the top of the ladder, "not a bad idea, that."

A few minutes later the work of the committee was completed and Jean was the first to leave. As Hastings saw the girl's face through the door, with the wind in her hair he suddenly remarked, "Oh, Rob, go and ask Jean to have dinner with us tonight. Your mother asked me to, and I forgot."

A momentary protest lingered on the young man's lips. Then he climbed down from his ladder, and with deliberation took his hat and swung out of the club house. He walked slowly down the path to the country road.

"Got a dinner date tonight, Jean?" he asked catching up with the girl. "Because if you haven't and you are so disposed you are requested to come over to the Hastings', and according to my recent considerations, I am inclined to think that you had better come. In fact," he said, looking directly at her. "I've an idea. Now listen."

"Oh, you needn't ask me, Robert. We settled that definitely the other day, and I wouldn't do anything to mislead your father or to let him think—"

"That we either of us cared a fig," Robert finished for her. "But listen. You heard what Mrs. Jones said about Thompson tact. How would a little of it work with us? If we pretend to do care—both of us—just for a little while; and father begins to think that I'm actually in love with there can be little or no increase in wheat acreage."

"This may be largely true, but does Secretary Wilson overlook the fact that in the Panhandle of Texas there are 13,900,000 acres, of which perhaps 10,000,000 acres are cultivable? Yet in some counties only 1 per cent of the land is under cultivation, and not over 10 per cent is under cultivation in a majority of the others. Wheat in the Panhandle is a known success, and this territory will produce, under full cultivation, one and a half times the amount of wheat now produced in Kansas. We do not say it does, or it will, but it can—the land is there and it will produce wheat."

Mr. Coburn quotes the Northwestern Miller in its issue of March 23d: "The problem of giving the necessary bread is becoming the question of the hour; beside it all others are insignificant." Further quoting the Northwestern Miller: "A few years ago we had a very large export flour trade, and the American millers believed that if they lost this trade, they would have difficulty in keeping their mills running. Practically, the export market has already vanished. The enormous demand from the domestic trade has absorbed it, and millers are anxiously wondering where wheat is to come from with which they can keep pace with the demands."

The Panhandlers invite the wheat growers to come into their country and turn over the sod that is still untouched by the plow and make it produce breadstuffs. They will show them fine stands of wheat that will make a year and place the Panhandle in line as a wheat producing country to be figured on. Here are some of the estimates of the secretary of the Dalhart Commercial Club. Read this carefully and analyze it:

"With less than one per cent of its tillable land, in some counties, in cultivation, with not more than ten per cent of the tillable land in cultivation in a majority of other of the Panhandle counties the possibilities—better, the sure outcome of the Panhandle as an agricultural storehouse and granary to be added to the wealth of the nation stagger—and halts calculation.

A NEW WHEAT FIELD.

Northwest Texas Gives Much Promise to the Wheat Farmer.

Hoyt King in Southwest Trail: Is bread to become a luxury rather than a staple? This is the question asked in an article in the Saturday Evening Post entitled, "Fighting a Bread Famine," by P. D. Coburn, the well posted secretary of the Board of Agriculture of Kansas.

"That we either of us cared a fig," Robert finished for her. "But listen. You heard what Mrs. Jones said about Thompson tact. How would a little of it work with us? If we pretend to do care—both of us—just for a little while; and father begins to think that I'm actually in love with there can be little or no increase in wheat acreage."

Attraction of Cheap Land a Thing of the Past, Says a Santa Fe Man.

Kansas City, Mo., July 15.—The homeseekers' excursion nearly is a thing of the past for the railroads in the southwest. The first and third Tuesdays of each month for the last twelve years have been homeseekers' day.

"It is the lightest day we have had," said E. C. Ott, the Santa Fe passenger agent, yesterday. "There isn't any more cheap land. Thirteen years ago, when the railroads started the homeseekers' rates there were hundreds of thousands of acres of land in Texas that could be bought for $1 an acre. Then it was frequent that 200 carloads of homeseekers went through the Union depot in one day. But the same land now ranges from $10 an acre to $100 in sections where there are successful irrigation systems."

"The number of cars has dwindled from 200 a day to four—the number which went through the Union depot yesterday."

On account of the increasing scarcity of fur-bearing animals considerable interest is being manifested in the muskrat. Both the fur and the meat are simple articles in some of the markets of the east and middle west during the winter months. The furs are used largely by fur dressers and dyers and are made to closely imitate the more costly furs, thus creating a continuous demand for the pelts. Owners of marsh lands have already made the trapping of muskrats profitable, converting otherwise useless lands into income-producing investments. Many lease the trapping privilege to those who make a business of trapping. Farmers' Bulletin No. 286, "The Muskrat," gives a description of its general habits, methods of trapping and the value of its fur and flesh. It will be sent free by the secretary of agriculture, Washington, District of Columbia.

TO TEACH HOG FARMING.

Hope to Increase Output of Pork in Lone Star State.

Austin, Tex., July 15.—In order to increase the interest in hog raising among the farmers of eastern Texas a special exhibition hog train, called the Rotators' Express, has been put on the Texas and New Orleans division of the Southern Pacific, to run between Dallas and Beaumont. This train will be operated over that road during the month of July and later may make a tour of other divisions of the Southern Pacific.

The meat packers of this state have been complaining for a long time of the scarcity of hogs. It is claimed that this is one feature of the agricultural industry that has not advanced along with other industrial development of the state.

It has been demonstrated that eastern Texas is admirably suited to successful hog raising, but the farmers of that section seemed to know so little about the animals that they give the matter of making them a source of profit no concern. It was in order to teach them that the packers induced the Southern Pacific to inaugurate a special demonstration train.

The train is composed of stock cars and a passenger coach. The stock cars are divided into pens and in each pen is a sow and litter of hogs. Various registered breeds of hogs are carried on the train. At each stopping place the hogs are shown the crowds of farmers and a lecture on hog raising is delivered by Tom Frazier of Morgan, Tex.

CUTTING UP RANCHES. Cattle Ranges Becoming Too Valuable for Simple Grazing.

Kansas City, Mo., July 15.—The big ranches of western Texas are surely being cut up for Kansas and Missouri farmers, according to Land Commissioner Hornbeck of the Orient railroad, who has returned from a long motor trip over the Orient right of way between Fort Stockton and San Angelo.

In the last year almost every cattle ranch of any size along the Orient right of way for almost 300 miles south of San Angelo has been sold into smaller tracts. The land is getting too valuable for grazing, and with the certain announcement that the Orient would build along surveyed lines cattle men have reluctantly disposed of their holdings to colonizers.

"A number of new towns have been started between San Angelo and the Rio Grande, where for the last half century nothing but cow camps existed. The great advance agent of civilization in west Texas is the motor car.

"There are 200 machines at San Angelo, 150 at Midland, 100 at Pecos, and twenty-five at Fort Stockton. Almost every rancher owns a car. Settlers are not to be bluffed out by droughts even now, and farming is being carried on as far as a hundred miles from a railroad. The Imperial Irrigation company, a Kansas City concern, is installing a $200,000 system forty miles from present railway transportation."

VERY LIKE BUSINESS MATTER

Little Romance in Many of the Marriages Contracted by German Couples.

From the beginning the little German girl is trained to matrimony. "Eat your fish fresh and marry your daughter while she is young," runs the German proverb. The girl, coming from a race of practical-minded, deft-handed people with a counter-balance of idealism, has her dreams of a fairy prince. They dwindle and fade in the face of realities till at last she is glad to marry a sober business man from 10 to 30 years her senior. This discrepancy in years is due to the circumstance that a man in Germany, according to government regulations, must spend so many years in preparation for his profession that by the time he is able to support a wife he is at the age when an American man has already made the initial success of his career. But men and women are anxious enough to marry.

When other hope falls some of them advertise. For many German newspapers have a kind of marriage market in their columns. Such advertisements read:

"I am still young, strong, and with a fortune of 12,000 marks. How shall I go about getting a husband? Kind advice sought by — and so on."

"A Jewish lady of 25, beautiful, with a dowry of 200,000 marks, would like to marry a man of title and good family. She would be willing to be baptized into his religion. A meeting must be arranged for in a dignified manner."

"The manager of a good business would like to marry a pretty widow, very strong, weighing about 180, but of good figure, and with a fortune of a few thousand marks."

POISE OF TROUT AND KESTREL

Both the Fish and Bird Present Alluring Sight to the Lover of Beauties of Nature.

As the kestrel is to the clouds so is the trout to the crystal waters. Both kestrels and trout display that magical poise, as if suspended by invisible threads—only now and then, when cross currents are encountered, is a sign given to show that life itself is not in suspense.

A brief agitation of the kestrel's wings, a swishing of the trout's tail—the cross current is weathered, and bird or fish poises motionless again. And as when walking along we are pulled up in ever fresh wonder by the sight of the hovering kestrel, so we must needs pause on a bridge when there is a trout in the stream below.

He looks his best poising with head to the stream—a shapely form against the background of smooth brown pebbles and waving emerald weeds. Lean over the bridge with eyes on the trout a vision is conjured—an alluring fly drops on the water, then a slack line tightens, there is a song from the reel, a rod bends; there follows a dazzling dance of vermilion spots against the green of the bank.

Or as we come to the bridge on a winter's day we think we hear a mighty splashing of water over the pebbles—which turns out to be the play of 30 or 40 trout—the play of the last round of some water tourney. As they come to the surface, rolling and wallowing—their great fat sides look twice as big as when seen through the clear water—they almost make a dam across the stream as they jostle each other seeking for the choicest places on the spawning bed.

Life's Lessons.

An old gentleman, well on in years, sits handsomely and naturally in the bow-window of his car, scanning experience with reverted eye; and, chirping and smiling, communicates the accidents and reads the lesson of his long career. Opinions are strengthened, indeed, but they are also weeded out in the course of years. What remains steadily present to the eye of the retired veteran in his hermitage, what still ministers to his content, what still quickens his old honest heart—these are "the real long-lived things"—that Whitman tells us to prefer. Where youth agrees with age, not where they differ, wisdom dies, and it is when the young disciple finds his heart beat in tune with his gray-bearded teacher's that a lesson may be learned.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A Poultry Point.

"Always ask for the right leg of chicken or turkey," said a chef. "If the left leg is offered you, refuse it. It will be tough and stringy." "You see, these birds nearly always roost on one leg, the left. Hence, that leg becomes very muscular. The sinews are like steel. It is an excellent leg from the athletic, but a vile one from the culinary point of view. "But the favored right leg remains tender and juicy. Therefore, as the advertisements say, ask for and insist on getting 'the right leg.'"

Proclaims His Feelings.

Without the doctor and my better half I have my doubts whether there would have been an opportunity to write this, and this reminds me to say that, against protestations, I'm prepared to say, there is no easement to the afflicted and no satisfaction so intensely intense as when you are sick and pain seems unbearable to let your voice proclaim the feeling. Sticlen is very noble, to be sure, but when nature demands the tribute of a hearty groan or grunt from a sufferer she is apt to revenge herself if it is suppressed.—Ocala Star.

Snakes in Austria.

Snakes are common enough in many Oriental countries; few persons are perhaps aware that they are very numerous in Austria, and that the government offers a reward for every snake killed. In 1908 no less than 273,000 snakes were destroyed, of which all but 4,000 belonged to venomous species. To aid the rural inhabitants in their warfare, the government authorities have supplied a simple appliance whereby, in the case of a bite, the possibility of a fatal result is reduced to the minimum. This instrument comprises a small knife wherewith the wound of a bite is immediately enlarged, and in the cut thus formed a concentrated solution of permanganate of potassium is injected. That such a precaution is valuable is borne out by the fact that out of the 140 cases of snake bites reported in 1908 only six proved fatal.

Proud of His Prospects.

Louis Pierre was one of a number of Canadian immigrants who settled at Fitzgerald, Ga. As he spoke both French and English, he rapidly became a man of importance, and was successively elected to the offices of city marshal, coroner and justice of the peace.

A dispute arose between the French and English settlers as to the superiority of the United States over the Canadian provinces. They finally agreed to leave the decision to Judge Pierre, who handed down this decision:

"Youst tage a look at me. Ferst dey mage me constabul, den coroner, and now jousts of de pees. Soon I be ze govaernar, den senator, den president. I wood be ze long time in Canadaire fore dey mage me queen."—Circle Magazine.
