WILL PAY, IF Denver Field and Farm: The stores of the farmers union will get along all right if the promoters are willing to pay the price for brains to run them.

When the grange stores were established in the seventies farmers were willing to pay a good farm wage for a man to move to town and conduct the business, but they were unwilling to pay the salary which a man of like ability in town demanded for conducting a business of such magnitude.

TURNING THE TABLES.

Nebraska Farmer: Western Nebraska men, especially those who have had land for sale, have been very sensitive in recent years. They have resented anything which would suggest that anything but a humid climate prevailed in the western part of the state.

We heard a good story the other day that shows how the tables have been turned. Professor Wilcox of the experiment station tells of a very live real estate agent in a western county who has made a perfect "killing" within the past two or three years selling western Nebraska land.

FUNDS FOR EXPANDING WEST.

The financial strength of the west is persistently underestimated by financial writers of the east. It is misconception of the facts that causes the trouble.

In the west creative forces are at work. Waste lands are being converted into productive farms; towns and cities are springing up and a new country is developing at a rapid pace.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Fox and the Stork

"CHILDREN," asked daddy one evening, "can either of you tell me what a stork looks like?" Both Evelyn and Jack wanted to answer, but daddy let Evelyn tell.

"A long, long time ago there was a stork which lived by himself and had very few friends. Strange to say, one of his friends was a fox. The two were quite intimate and visited each other often.

"That bird is certainly greedy. Every time he comes here he eats everything I have in the pantry. I'll have to fix him." So he thought up a very clever scheme. The next time Friend Stork came to visit Mr. Fox the bird said:

"I'm pretty hungry today. What's on the bill of fare?" "I am very sorry," said the fox, "but I have nothing to eat today but some nice soup."

"Very well," said the stork, "let's have some soup." "But when the fox served the soup the stork could not eat any, for it was served in a broad, shallow dish, and he could not get any with his long, sharp bill. Cuddling Mr. Fox laughed to himself, but he said: 'I see you cannot eat any of this splendid soup. I shall have to eat it all myself. And he did so.

"But by and by the turn of the stork came around. Mr. Fox sent him a letter that he was coming to visit him the following day. When he got there he waited until dinner time and then said:

"Well, Friend Stork, I could enjoy a nice little bite to eat now. Have you anything good for dinner?" "Why," said the stork, "yes. I have some very fine olives."

NATIONAL BEAUTY REFUSE TO BE DISCOURAGED

Japanese, Taken Either as a Race or as Individuals, Are Ever Optimistic.

Then passing on, around pretty old Mount Shepherd, and back into Iron-ton we come to Emerson Place, named so in honor of one of the founders, the late Judge Emerson. It is known to many as "Grant Park," but there is no authority for its being so called, as it is the private, but genuinely hospitable home of Mr. York, whose most hearty welcome extends to all visitors to Iron-ton and Arcadia. Emerson Place is built on a plot of 6 1/2 acres and is one of the most rare in beauty, besides being rich in historic importance. The property and improvements cost many thousands of dollars and it is well that it is to be preserved by the one into whose hands it has at last fallen, for on this historic ground stands a statue of General Grant, mounted on a large granite base, commemorative of and marking the spot where, in 1861, Grant received his commission as general, from which he went forth to conquer, in the bloody conflict that was to follow. There on the beautiful lawn of this historic home, near the statue of Grant and within thirty feet of the famous and magnificent spring that gushes forth from beneath old "Grant Oak," king of the forest, thereabout, stand, as if defending their rescuer, two rude cannon of the old type and they have a record; having been captured by the confederates at Shiloh; recaptured by Grant at Vicksburg, went through the Chattanooga and Atlanta campaigns, on with Sherman to the sea, then to Washington and at last, for all, stand silently in the shadow of their rescuer on the historic spot from whence he went forth to victory and to fame.

THE WOMAN AND THE DOG
Simple Explanation That Made Crowd of Frightened Men Look Rather Foolish.

A crowd gathered at Tenth and Barton streets to watch a handsome fox terrier that was running about, nose in air. White froth was running from the dog's mouth.

"He's mad!" yelled a fat man.

The fox terrier stood in the center of the group, with wide-open eyes, either too mad or too frightened to move.

At this juncture, the policeman arrived. A dozen voices began to tell him that the dog was mad; that it must be killed; that it had been snapping at the children; that it began to froth when it passed a pool of water, and how best to shoot.

A tall, quiet-looking woman pushed through the crowd and started toward the dog. A dozen men yelled at her, two or three men grabbed at her.

She picked the dog up and started out of the crowd. The policeman stopped her with:

"Madam, that dog is mad. He must be shot. Look at the foam coming out of his mouth."

"Foam," she said contemptuously. "That's a cream puff he was eating." —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Undisturbed Femininity.

"Women may be pretty in little things, yet they have a childlike trust in each other's energy," said the man. "If they hadn't they could never have sat serenity through the situation that faced several of them the other night at the opera. I had a balcony seat. Beside me sat a woman who discovered, at the end of the first act, that she had lost her purse. She thought it had slipped to the seat in front. The woman occupying that seat stood up, shook her wraps and looked under the seat, but couldn't find the purse.

"Still, it may be here some place," she said. "My own bag has slipped down to the seat in front of me. I'll get it when the opera is over."

"Then other women began to hunt for handbags and purses that had fallen. Some found them, others didn't. But nobody seemed to mind. They had a perfect faith that the things would turn up later and settled back tranquilly for the second act. Imagine a lot of men letting their purses lie around like that."

No Beggars in Copenhagen.

Copenhagen is a city of 500,000 inhabitants. During a week's stay I have seen no seller of matches or bootlaces, no gutter merchant, no blind or other afflicted persons about the streets asking for alms—not one single sign of distress due to poverty. I have explored the artisans' quarters by day and late at night. There is not a single spot in the whole of Copenhagen that could be compared even remotely to the slums in our large towns. There are no unemployed hanging about the street corners, no unkempt women standing idly at the doors, no ragged and dirty houses, with dirty or broken windows, mended with bits of paper, and a ragged apron or a torn bedcloth doing duty for a curtain.—Denmark letter in London Express.

Oslerizing Society.

A friend from Denmark who declares he knows tells me that the late king and queen of Denmark put down their undoubted and even extraordinary youthfulness of appearance and character to the fact that they never had anybody about their court who was over 40 years of age. Any gentleman or lady over that age was superannuated.—The Gentlewoman.

So Careless.

Child—Mamma, mamma, my piece of bread and butter has dropped on the buttered side!

Mamma (to nurse)—Marry, I must beg that you will be more careful butter slice's bread on the right side!

THOUSANDS GATHER AT BATHS

Arabian Men and Women Make Meeting Place of Springs at Hamman-Rirha.

Dr. Georges Martin of the thermal station of Hamman-Rirha gives an interesting account of the Arabs who come in crowds to take the baths at that station. Their number every year can be estimated at more than 20,000. Of these bathers about two-thirds are women. Besides the medical effect of the baths for the Arab woman a meeting place, where she encounters her friends, as they remain a long time in the baths, three-quarters of an hour or more. They dip themselves in the water from time to time; then, sitting on the curb, they chat, laugh and sing.

Sometimes one of them addresses an invocation to the Sultan Sllman (Solomun), patron of the springs hidden in the mountain. The more believing sometimes receive their recompense in seeing the steam rise from the waters. After the bath the native rolls himself in his cloak and lies in the sun.

To quench the burning thirst which the very warm bath gives Arabs suck the juice of lemons or oranges or they go to the "cafe maure" attached to the bath to drink a tiny cup of coffee. Many Arabs, instead of coming to the establishment, prefer to take the bath in the open air. On the side of the hill a spring flows from the rock and the natives come to bathe in the natural basin where the water gushes out.

As a votive offering the women hang portions of their veils on the neighboring bushes. The children come there plausibly to plunge in their small stuffed dolls. It is there that the prayer is above all agreeable to Sllman. They sacrifice fowls to him, they burn incense and spices in the eastern braziers, and it is in his honor that the little, many-colored wax tapers stuck in the ground burn so often at night.

WITH THE MOUNTAIN WHITES
Widow Looked Forward to a Period of Enjoyment—The Husband and The Mule.

A home missionary under the auspices of the American Missionary society, which has its headquarters in New York, tells the following tale of an old woman encountered during her work among the mountain whites of Saluda, N. C.

She found the old lady enjoying a comfortable pipe in front of her little fireplace. She greeted the visitors cordially, and upon their departure pressed them to call again.

"You'll always find me right here," said she, "unless I go off for a visit. Now my husband's dead I'm going to enjoy myself."

The same domestic atmosphere seemed to pervade the reply of another, whom the missionary asked if she didn't know there was a day of judgment coming.

"Why, no," said the old lady. "I hadn't heard of that. Won't there be more than one day?"

"No, my friend; only one day," was replied.

"Well, then," she mused, "I don't reckon I can get to go, for we've only got one mule, and John always has to go everywhere first."

A Floor Mzp.

Make a map of your floor for the intricate places that suggest difficulties in the cutting and possible failure in the fitting of your new linoleum. The map may be a perfectly fitted size and shape, done in newspaper or even heavier Manila paper. The paste pot comes in just here. The first trial won't be perfect, but every little chink may be fitted in by a pasting process until you've got the exact facsimile, and then for the final cutting of the new linoleum.

The forethought and trial paper will be of just the same use as is the perfect paper pattern in garment making. Try it and you will be convinced. The map is useful, whether the floor covering be carpet, oilcloth, felt, denim or matting.

Where Belshazzar Feasted.

German excavators in the ruins of Babylon have been looking over Nebuchadnezzar's palace. The ancient city is buried beneath the remnants of superimposed buildings, but the tomb of the old civilization has been made to yield its secrets. There has been found the great oblong hall, with an alcove for the throne, where Belshazzar held the famous feast and heard the warning voice of the prophet. Many relics of those precursors of the modern public dinner have been discovered. The architecture of those days seems to have been mighty. One of the outer walls of the palace was more than 24 yards thick.

How Hair Grows.

It is a curious fact that a boy's hair grows one-half slower than a girl's. In boys the average rate of growth is three feet three inches in six years, being an average of .018 inch per day. During the twenty-first and twenty-fourth years a man's hair grows quicker than at any other period. It takes an eyelash 20 weeks to reach a length of 425 inches, and then its life is from 100 to 150 days. By means of a camera the wink of an eyelid has been measured, and it was found that 30 winks can be made in four seconds.

A Common Weakness.

Landlady—Yes, I must confess I have a weakness for coffee.

Boarder—It must be sympathetic. The coffee has the same quality.

Arkansas Farms for Sale—Large or small. City property. Rice land farms, some improvements, $10 per acre. Address: Rose Thompson, 292 N. 7th St., Paragould, Ark.

Don't overlook this proposition. It won't remain long at these figures—25 acres on St. Francis River, 15 miles east of Piedmont, Wayne Co., Mo. 2 1/2 miles east of a good inland town, post office. 5000 stores, 2 blacksmith and wagon shops that can manufacture and repair anything needed by the farmer. 150 acres in cultivation, over 200 acres under good plow and wire fence, 25 acres of best bottom land, all in corn, and this season with the highest yield in several years, but a small portion overflooded. There is 80 acres in pasture, good 10-room, 2-story frame house, painted; 2 large barns, 20x30 and 4x30 with granaries and cribs and other necessary out buildings. One other good 4-room box house; 4 cisterns, plenty of running water in every field for stock, 80 acres virgin timber, well cut about two thousand feet to the acre. This is one of the finest combination farms in this county and very healthy, the owner hasn't had a doctor on the place in 15 years. Reason for selling—old age. This is a bargain, and I court a personal inspection. Price, $5,000. Let me sell you something that will not only make you a living, but will increase your bank account each year. TO APPLY THE GAG Western Legislators to Urge Congress to Suppress News Dissemination.

WOULD OUST PRESS AGENT Propose Making Appropriation Bill Read Information Only "On Request."

Washington, Aug. 18.—During the coming session of congress the country is promised a fight on the conservation movement by a strong coterie of men from the public and states who expect to kill the popular interest in conservation by putting a check on the publicity work indulged in by various bureaus in several of the departments which are concerned with the study of utilization of natural resources.

A number of senators and members of the house have insisted for some time that they will not stand for this "conservation hysteria," as they call it, and that the natural resources of the west must be exploited along the "first come first served" plan, the same as in the past. They claim there has not been much land grabbing, and that the occasional frauds unearthed, and even the startling disclosures concerning conditions in Alaska, are not so serious after all. It all means "development," they say, even if a monopoly or two are created in the process.

Those who will be behind the coming fight have figured that the principal reason for the country applauding both the progressive Republicans and the Democrats who are making the conservation movement an issue is because the newspapers and magazines have had the task of getting information from the departments made too easy.

Tawney Leads Opposition. The first skirmish in the fight, which will begin in earnest next winter was opened by Representative Tawney of Minnesota during the last session, while the agricultural appropriation bill was up. Tawney is about as warm toward conservation as Uncle Joe Cannon is, and as soon as he got the opportunity he attempted to clap on an amendment to the bill, a provision which would have made it impossible for the forest service of the department of agriculture, except "on request," to give out any information to newspapers or to magazines.

Conservation is not popular with many members of congress whose friends and constituents are interested in water power development and other resources on the public lands of the west and Alaska, and it seems that the one best hope of checking the movement is to put an end to the "press agent," as the newspaper men handling publicity in the bureaus have been contemptuously called. The plan for the attack is unique but simple, the idea being to remove the cause of public support and close the channels of publicity.

Deny They Plan a Gag. Several of the bureaus have had in their employ for years trained newspaper men whose work has been to popularize the results of scientific investigations carried on by the government; that is, to condense and throw into understandable English scientific reports which in the old days were lost to the general public because they were weighed down with technical expressions often known only to learned members of scientific societies.

The congressmen who have looked down upon publicity work in the past, and who are expected to lead the fight against it next year are loud disclaimers that they wish to limit the public's knowledge of the public business. They maintain that the public get ample knowledge of what the government is doing from the official printed documents, many of which, as Lew Fields says, can be obtained "free, gratis, for nothing." The objectors add that when specific information is wanted a person can write for it, and that it is unnecessary to employ former newspaper men or others to condense and popularize the information collected by Uncle Sam.

In his fight against any publicity other than that given by the old style government document or information furnished "when requested," Tawney will be supported by Representative Mondell, chairman of the house public lands committee, and by Senators Heyburn of Idaho and Clark of Wyoming. All of these men from the public land states have been outspoken against the work.

The opposition has never been organized, but next year it is hoped to push the fight in both the house and in the senate, in the committee and on the floor. And all that is necessary to insure their success is to get into the wording of the appropriation bill two little words, "On request."

SASKATCHEWAN WHEAT CROP. Winnipeg, Man.—William Whyte, vice president of the Canadian Pacific Railway received advices today from W. R. Mosherwell, minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan, that the wheat crop in Saskatchewan was sufficiently advanced to warrant an aggregate estimate of 66,000,000 bushels.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION. State of Missouri, County of Buchanan, ss. In the Buchanan County Circuit Court, to the October term, A. D. 1910. Cordelia Robbins, plaintiff, vs. Thomas Robbins, defendant.

Now at this day came the plaintiff by her attorney, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in vacation that said defendant, Thomas Robbins is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, and does not reside therein, it is ordered that said non-resident defendant be notified by publication, as required by law, that said plaintiff has commenced her suit in this Court against said defendant by petition and affidavit, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce on the ground of desertion and abandonment; that unless the said defendant shall be and appear at the next term of this Court, to be begun and held at the Court House, in the City of St. Joseph, in Buchanan County, State of Missouri, on the 3rd day of October, 1910, on or before the third day of said term, to answer plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken for confessed as to him and judgment rendered accordingly.

It is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in The Stock Yards Daily Journal, a newspaper published in the County of Buchanan, for four weeks successively, the last insertion of which to be at least fifteen days before the next October term of this Court. A copy. Attest, AMBROSE PATTON, Clerk. By Ross C. Cox, Deputy Clerk. James Limbird, Attorney for Plaintiff.

TALLOW, PELTS, WOOL, FURS and HIDES

THE market is again at a standstill, tanners on the waiting list. We will leave our prices unchanged for another week. We would like to have your shipments now while we can pay you good prices, but if you would rather wait awhile and sell for 1-2c less by and by, you may do so. We always advise you through the Stock Yards Daily Journal that which is to your best interest, but do not wish to persuade you against your best judgment. We are in the hide business exclusively and give it our whole thought. We are more likely to go right than some others.
