A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Belted out of school

The American Civil Liberties Union has donated six belts to a high school that pulled a student out of class for not wearing one.

The action against 17-year-old Cassidy Perry was not worth taking to court, said ACLU director Joe Cook, but he said the punishment was so ridiculous the ACLU wanted to publicize it.

The Chalmette, La., school dress code requires belts for skirts or pants with belt loops.

Violators can have someone bring a belt from home. The office has 20 belts that it rents for a quarter, but it has run out of belts when Perry needed one.

Perry's father worked too far away from school to help her out.

Tick tock toy truck

Post office employees in Lincoln, Neb., weren't taking any chances when they heard a ticking sound coming from a package.

They called 911 and police closed off the streets leading to the building. Fire Investigator Jack Bruns, a bomb technician who responded to the scene, said he knew immediately what he had on his hands — a motorized Tonka toy truck that was accidentally turned on in the process of being mailed.

"I've got so many grandkids and I've bought so many toys like that I recognized the sound," Bruns said.

What a sinkhole!

There's no denying it: The city police in Alexandria, Va., are going downhill.

That's because Alexandria's Public Safety Center, built atop a landfill, is sinking. The floor slopes so steeply that barbells roll through the police weight room. A recent study found that the building has sunk as much as 4 inches since the $26 million complex was built 14 years ago. It may cost more than $4.5 million to repair.

Mailing correctly can speed tax refunds

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
WASHINGTON — Taxpayers can help themselves to faster refunds by using the correct address label when they mail their federal returns.

The IRS sent tax packages with two address labels — a yellow one for those claiming a refund and a white one for those with a payment.

Use of the appropriate label helps the IRS sort the mail arriving at its processing centers.

Taxpayers who do not have the tax package will find the appropriate processing center address in the tax instructions. The final digits of the Zip+4 Code identify the type of form and whether it is a refund or payment return.

Taxpayers also should send their federal return in the IRS envelope.

One way to avoid possible mailing errors is to do what nearly half the taxpayers have done so far — file electronically.

There are no envelopes to stuff, no labels to affix, no chance of sending returns to the wrong agency, and it's the fastest possible route to a refund.

Although Texas is not affected, individual taxpayers in 12 states are sending their returns to a different IRS center from what they have used in the past. This is part of an ongoing workload redistribution among the 10 IRS centers.

Affected states are Alaska, Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Oregon, West Virginia and Wyoming.

When the redistribution is complete, individual and business returns will be separated.

Basketball camp taking applications

Final registration is under way for the Ten Star All Summer Basketball Camps.

Boys ages 8 to 19 and girls ages 10 to 19 can apply.

Camps are located in Commerce and Fort Worth, Texas; Redlands and Thousand Oaks, Calif.; Champagne and Macomb, Ill.; Sackville, New Brunswick; Babson Park, Fla.; Gainesville, Ga.; Greencastle, Ind.; Atchison, Kan.; Midway, Ky.; Hillsdale, Mich.; St. Paul, Minn.; Fayette, Mo.; Rochester, N.Y.; Boiling Springs, N.C.; North Canton, Ohio; Lock Haven, Pa.; Bristol, R.I.; Lebanon, Tenn.; Blacksburg, Va.; and Olympia, Wash.

Coach Eddie Kilmer praised the team, saying, "These young men understand that the game of golf is a game of honor. The want to shoot the best score possible, but they are diligent about recording every stroke, and I am very proud of them for that. The Mules competed in all three district tournaments in only 15 days. In this shortened season, the team that happens to be hot at the right time usually does well."

Not everybody has jumped on herbal bandwagon

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL COLLEGE STATION — For as long as human beings have lived, herbs have been in use — as medicine, as botanicals and as flavorings for foods.

And even now, as the 21st century officially dawns, "Americans are spending between $3.5 billion and $5 billion annually on herbal supplements," said Dr. Jenna Anding, assistant professor and Extension nutrition specialist.

Herbs that are touted to be health aids — whether as prevention of some condition or other or as cure — count for a lot of those billions of dollars. Some devotees say because herbs have been used as medications for thousands of years, they must have some value. Other consumers and health professionals are more skeptical. If herbal medications were so wonderful for all those years, they ask, why was life expectancy so much shorter in the past?

In fact, many health-care professionals — including Anding herself — are very cautious when it comes to herbal supplements. "Most of the research on herbal medications has been done in Europe, where herbal supplements are regulated more tightly than they are here," she said.

In an article on "Herbal Therapy: What a Clinician Needs To Know To Counsel Patients Effectively," Brent A. Bauer, M.D., defines herbs as "a plant or plant part valued for its medicinal, savory or aromatic qualities."

Botanicals, he wrote, are "any plant-derived product used for a medicinal or health purpose."

(From "Concise Review for Clinicians," the Division of Area General Internal Medicine, Mayo Clinic, 2000 Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research)

Sometimes herbs and botanicals are the same thing; sometimes they are not.

But according to information from the Natural Marketplace Trends Report (copyright The Natural Marketing Institute, 2000), the three top sellers in the world of herbal remedies are ginkgo, garlic and echinacea.

GINKGO

"Generally speaking, ginkgo is often promoted as a means of improving short-term memory — improving concentration and short-term memory," Anding said. "There are some studies that suggest the herb might have some merit — and some (studies) find that it doesn't work."

Perhaps these studies were done differently, used different levels or different strengths of the herb; or the herb was given in different ways for different lengths of time; or the symptoms were monitored differently, she said.

"The jury is still out," Anding said, adding that many studies are still being done.

"One concern is that ginkgo may have some blood-thinning properties," she said. "If one is already taking blood-thinning medication — even aspirin — the ginkgo might thin the blood even more." If someone who has been taking ginkgo is in a serious accident, she said, the bleeding might be difficult to stop.

Anding said the recommendation is to stop taking ginkgo at least two weeks before a scheduled surgery, just as any other blood-thinning agent should be discontinued under the circumstances.

GARLIC

Garlic is promoted as a way to reduce blood cholesterol levels, as well as being a possible antioxidant and "it may have some antibacterial properties," Anding said.

But when garlic is taken in high doses (and as Anding points out, "Who knows what a high dose is?"), it may enhance the effectiveness of high blood pressure medication and blood thinning medication. In theory, the use of garlic with insulin or with a drug for hypoglycemia might have an adverse effect on those medications, she said.

Garlic in food is not a problem, Anding said. "Cooking with garlic is fine, although some may get an upset stomach if they eat too much."

"Using a little bit is good; using too much could be harmful." And, as with other herbs, use of garlic should be discontinued one to two weeks before scheduled surgery.

ECHINACEA

Echinacea is promoted as a method of preventing or treating colds, Anding said. "Some studies say it works; some say it doesn't. There are so many variables it's hard to get a conclusive decision."

Echinacea is also called purple coneflower, she said, which is part of the composite ("daisy") family. "If one is allergic to daisies, you may experience a reaction to an echinacea supplement."

This herb is supposed to prevent colds because it boosts the immune system. But for someone with an autoimmune disease, such as lupus or rheumatoid arthritis, boosting the immune system is the last thing they want.

And the plant's possible benefit might not be all that beneficial. "Some experts say if it's taken for longer than eight weeks, it may reduce the effectiveness of the immune system," Anding said.

Anding's advice is to consult with a doctor or other health-care provider before taking any herbal supplements, keeping in mind that medical doctors' knowledge of herbs varies greatly.

Since the Food and Drug Administration does not test herbal supplements, these supplements are not scrutinized with the same standards as more traditional medications. "Herbs are not tested for purity before going on the market," she said. "Herbs in this country are regulated differently from drugs, although some of them may have a drug-like properties."

Anding advised anyone who is thinking of taking any herbal supplement to:

- Talk with a doctor or health-care provider, and get into the habit of discussing any and all medications with them, including pharmacists.
- Get an accurate diagnosis before using any herb.
- Learn all about the potential side effects of the herbs considered. Do your homework — get educated and make informal decisions.

• Seek unbiased and scientific-based research for your source of information.

"There are plants that may help and plants that can harm," she said. "Many times the difference between a drug and poison is the dosage."

Gemini — May 22/June 21

Something an acquaintance flippantly says gets you in trouble with that special someone early in the week, Gemini. Before you get angry at this person, get yourself out of hot water. Explain the situation and how you really feel to those who matter most. It will take some effort on your part, but you will rectify this problem.

Cancer — June 22/July 22

Your sense of humor serves you well this week, Cancer, as things get hectic. Don't become overwhelmed by everything that you need to do. Just try to see the humor in all of this. It will make it a lot easier to get things done. Those closest to you will be impressed with how you handle the situation. Virgo is involved.

Leo — July 23/August 23

A loved one needs your help with a personal problem on Wednesday. While you're not sure what you can do, offer your assistance. This person really just wants someone to bounce ideas off of. Listen, and give your opinion. Your efforts will be greatly appreciated. Pisces plays a key role.

Virgo — Aug 24/Sept 22

While you would like to be alone this week, you're not going to get your wish. It seems as if everyone wants something from you. Do what you can for these people — even if it means disrupting your plans. That special someone has a surprise for you on Friday. Enjoy!

Libra — Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't cry over spilled milk on Thursday, Libra. The minor setback that you encounter can be overcome easily. Just relax, and try to think clearly. You certainly can come up with a remedy for this problem.

Scorpio — Oct 24/Nov 22

While an acquaintance tells you important information in confidence, don't keep it from that special someone. He or she deserves to know what is going on. Besides, this person won't share the news with anyone. You can trust him or her. Capricorn plays an important role.

Sagittarius — Nov 23/Dec 21

Keep your temper in check when you learn some distressing news during the middle of the week, Sagittarius. Getting upset only will make the situation worse. So, stay calm, and figure out how to deal with this. Turn to a loved one for advice if you need it. He or she won't steer you in the wrong direction.

Capricorn — Dec 22/Jan 20

Don't be shy when you meet an interesting person on Tuesday, Capricorn. Get to know him or her better, because this could be the one. Just relax, and be yourself. Your feelings are sure to be reciprocated. A loved one needs your help with a family matter. Do what you can for him or her.

Aquarius — Jan 21/Feb 18

Don't be too aggressive when you meet a new co-worker this week, Aquarius. You don't want to overwhelm this person. Just relax, and try to be helpful and informative. This is how you'll make a good impression and gain a business ally.

Pisces — Feb 19/March 20

While you would like to help loved ones with a difficult problem, your involvement only will make the matter worse. So, try to stay out of it. This is something that they need to take care of themselves. However, your good intentions won't go unnoticed. Gemini plays a key role in all of this.

New service monitors homebound patients

LUBBOCK — Outreach Health Services has launched its TeleHomecare program for homebound and chronically ill patients in the South Plains area.

The program, one of the first of its kind in Texas, uses state-of-the-art computer equipment to monitor patients' health and emotional status in the home environment.

The equipment integrates live audio/video images and sound with medical peripherals to provide a real-time picture of the patient's condition, concerns and their compliance with treatments.

The system electronically transmits voice, video and patient medical data over ordinary phone lines and allows home-health professionals to teach new information as well as reinforce previous health education.

High-resolution video also lets nurses and home-care providers view wounds and dressings, IV pumps and more. In-home equipment monitors weight and uploads glucose and blood-pressure readings to a nurse at the central station.

More information is available by calling (800) 745-3044.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I am writing to you on behalf of my brother-in-law. On Feb. 20, he was stopped by an officer from the Muleshoe Police Department for having a broken taillight.

He soon found himself in handcuffs and being hauled off to jail. They told him that his driver's license was no good.

He had his car taken from him, and then dogs were allowed to sniff through it. My sister had her personal belongings gone through, including everything in her purse. She was not with him when he was stopped, but her purse was in the car. He was on his way back from dropping off their 4-year-old son at preschool; he works at a dairy, and his shift had not yet started.

They were charged $125 toward a $750 bond and $75 to get their car from the towing company. My brother-in-law was made to spend two hours in jail.

Well, it turns out that his driver's license was good and that there was a mistake in Austin, but my sister had to go through many channels to get them to believe that.

The mistake is not the basis of our complaint. Our basis is the way they were treated by police officers: My sister and her husband were made to feel like criminals. I believe they had their civil rights violated by having all their things in the car searched without any probably cause or explanation from the police.

At one point my brother-in-law, who does not speak English, told the translator that he did not understand all that was being said to him during the Miranda reading. The officers paid no attention to this and told him to sign the paper stating that he understood everything anyway!

My brother-in-law gave no permission for them to search his car, nor was he asked if it could be searched.

My sister contacted the county judge and was told that no report had been filed. When she called the police department in Muleshoe, she was told that none would be filed because they are hard to read and understand. I think it was done to cover up all that they did to my brother-in-law.

We are not a wealthy family and we do not understand the law as well as we would like to, but we are human beings and, I believe, entitled to protection from those who wish to abuse their authority.

I know that you are probably too busy to mess with such trivial matters, but if you stand for something, you ought to stand for the small people out there who are working as hard as they can to get by.

My sister was told that everyone they stop is put through this and that it was not any type of racial profiling, but it would probably get pretty crowded at the jail if EVERYONE they stop was put through this.

We don't know what to do, but we would like an apology and assurances that this will never happen to anyone again. This is a horrible thing for anyone to have to go through, whether they be brown, black, red, pink or white.

I just thought that maybe you guys might be able to help us in some way or at least keep someone else out there from having to go through this, too.

Elizabeth Taylor
- England's Other Elizabeth -

Elizabeth Taylor is arguably one of the world's most famous women, remembered for her eight marriages, vast jewelry, multiple illnesses, and flamboyant lifestyle.

Born in London but raised in the old Hollywood studio system, the actress remains an icon, practically the last of Hollywood's royalty. It is a role she discusses openly, charmingly, and with great good will in Great Performances "Elizabeth Taylor: England's Other Elizabeth."

Highlighted by interviews with Shirley MacLaine, Rod Steiger, and Angela Lansbury, the program includes the ever-glamorous star's reminiscences of Richard Burton, Montgomery Clift, Rock Hudson, James Dean, and Paul Newman, the pleasure of three Oscars (two for Best Actress and one for Humanitarian), and her dawning sense of responsibility at the onset of the AIDS crisis.

Also featured in "England's Other Elizabeth" are sequences from a number of her most famous films, including Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (for which she won an Oscar for Best Actress), and A Place in the Sun.

Great Performances "Elizabeth Taylor: England's Other Elizabeth" will be broadcast Wednesday, April 4th at 8:00 p.m.

Scottsboro-
An American Tragedy

In March 1931, a freight train crowded with homeless and jobless hoboes left Chattanooga, Tennessee, bound for points west. A short time after it crossed into Alabama, a fight erupted between two groups of hoboes—one black and one white. The train was stopped by an armed posse in the tiny town of Paint Rock, Alabama. Before anyone knew what had happened, two white women stepped from the shadows of a boxcar to make a shocking accusation: they had been raped by nine black teenagers aboard the train.

So began one of the most significant legal fights of the 20th century. Before it was over, the Scottsboro affair—so named for the little Alabama town where the nine were put on trial for their lives—would divide Americans along racial, political, and geographic lines.

American Experience "Scottsboro: An American Tragedy" tells this extraordinary story for the first time on film. Viewers meet a fascinating gallery of characters: the lead defendant—a defiant black man who refuses to lie down before the power of Alabama; the accuser—a poor white woman who finds in her lie a route to respectability; and the Southern judge—who risks the scorn of his beloved state to deliver justice.

"Scottsboro: An American Tragedy" on American Experience airs Monday, April 2nd at 9:00 p.m. and repeats Friday, April 6th at 11:00 p.m.

Enzyme could provide continual fat burning

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

HOUSTON — An enzyme discovered by Baylor College of Medicine researchers is critical to the metabolic pathway that governs the body's ability to burn fat and could open a door into new ways to reduce obesity, diabetes and other fat-related human diseases.

In an article in the March 30 issue of the journal Science, Dr. Salih Wakil described mice, whose genes were manipulated to make them deficient in the enzyme acetyl-CoA carboxylase 2, or ACC2, as being able to eat as much as 40 percent more than normal mice and weigh 10 to 15 percent less.

ACC1 and ACC2 are involved in producing malonyl-CoA, which is key to the formation of fatty acids and to fat burning.

Wakil, chairman of Baylor's department of biochemistry and molecular biology, and his colleagues found that there are two pools of malonyl-CoA in the cell. The one in which ACC1 is important is critical to the formation of the long carbon chain component of fatty acids.

The other pool associated with ACC2 regulates the transfer of fatty acids to the mitochondria, the cell's powerhouse. Without ACC2, fat burns continuously in the mitochondria.

ACC2 was identified in Wakil's laboratory in 1989. Researchers sequenced its DNA and located it on the chromosome. To determine the different effects of ACC1 and ACC2, Wakil and his colleagues created two forms of "knock-out" mice. The mice that lacked ACC1 died as embryos, demonstrating the value of fat in development.

"However, the mice genetically engineered to lack ACC2 seem very happy, live and breed well," Wakil said. The difference was that they ate more, weighed less and accumulated less fat than the normal animals.

Studies demonstrated that the ACC2-deficient mice had nearly half the fat of the normal mice. The fatty livers of nor-

McElroy qualifies for national competition

South Plains College student Josh McElroy of Muleshoe has qualified for the National Phi Rho Pi Speech Tournament, scheduled for April 9-15 in Jacksonville, Fla.

He and his partner, Kenna Taylor of Lubbock, completed their qualifications at the recent regional tournament at North Harris Community College in Houston. Competitors at regional came from two-year colleges in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

On the regional level, the 19-year-old McElroy took third in prose and fifth in programmed oral interpretation.

The team of McElroy and Taylor took third in a duet acting piece, "The Funeral Parlor" by Christopher Durang.

At the national tournament, they will compete in duet acting; McElroy will compete in both prose and programmed oral interpretation; and Taylor will compete in speeches to entertain (she was fifth at regional) and informative speaking (sixth at regional).

"They did very well at regionals," said Laura

Dickinson, speech instructor at South Plains and coach of the forensic team. "It was a highly competitive tournament, which should help to prepare them for national competition."

The family suggests memorials to the First Baptist Church (220 W. Avenue E, Muleshoe 79347), Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center (106 W. Avenue H, Muleshoe 79347) or Bailey County Meals on Wheels (300 S. First St., Muleshoe 79347).

MINNIE PARHAM

Services were held Tuesday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel for Minnie Parham, 88, of Lazbuddie. Elder Bernard Gowens officiated. Burial was in Lazbuddie Cemetery.

Mrs. Parham was born Dec. 26, 1912, in Jones County, Texas. She died Sunday in Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center.

She married E.A. Parham on Dec. 26, 1935, in Anson, Texas. They moved to Lazbuddie in 1943 from Jones County.

She was a homemaker and a member of the Primitive Baptist Church in Clovis.

She had maintained her beautician license for 40 years.

Mrs. Parham is survived by her husband; a son and daughter-in-law, Terry and Celie Parham of Lazbuddie; a daughter and son-in-law, Sharon and John Agee of Muleshoe; a brother, J.T. Mayfield of Lazbuddie; six grandchildren, Michelle Daly, John David Agee, Tiffany Hicks, Tina McCreight, Landon Parham and Kayla Parham; and nine great-grandchildren.
