CATTLE EXPORTS INCREASE.
The Breeder's Gazette: "The enormous increase in cattle exports during the past six weeks is easily explained," said Samuel Grabenheimer of the S. & S. concern.

A WAR IN STEEL.
Trouble seems to be brewing among the steel makers. It ought to result in good for the steel users.

BIG FOREST AT GARDEN.
More Than a Hundred Thousand Trees to Be Planted.
Garden City, Kan.—The record for planting on the Kansas national forest this year will probably be about 125,999 trees.

POULTRY PRODUCTS.
So long as we depend upon the grocer to handle our eggs, and upon the butcher to handle our fowls, so long as we take eggs to market that are large and small, mixed colors, white, brown, pink and speckled; so long as we will bring in fresh eggs with blood clots, and stale eggs taken from a stolen nest, clean and dirty; just so long will we have to take the offered price in trade.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

"WISE, you would please tell us a real good war story, daddy," asked Jack one evening.
"Right," said daddy. "Suppose I tell you about my old general, Philip Henry Sheridan, or 'Little Phil,' as all his men affectionately called him.
"First I must tell you that he was a cavalry leader. That means that all his men had horses. The men who fight on foot are called infantrymen. Next I must tell you how he became such a wonderful rider. When he was only five years old he was playing around his father's farm in Ohio one day when a group of older boys dared him to get on the back of a horse that was grazing in the next field. Little Phil couldn't take a dare then any more than he could when he grew up, and he jumped from a fence on the horse's back and grabbed its mane.
"With a snort of astonishment the horse jumped the fence and galloped down the road as fast as he could go, leaving the big boys crying with fright, for they thought surely that Phil would be thrown off and killed. But not much. The horse ran in to his owner's barn three miles away, and there was Phil still on his back, sticking like a chestnut burr.
"Where'n you scared, sonny? asked the man who helped him down.
"'No, s'r,' said 'Little Phil; 'nary a bit. I'd a' gone farther only the horse wouldn't."
"Well, Little Phil became a cadet at West Point and in his very first command as lieutenant showed his horsemanship. He was stationed at Fort Duncan, in Texas, and while he and two of his men were outside of the stockade one day a band of Apaches surrounded them. The chief, never dreaming of resistance, jumped from his Mustang to seize Phil, but Phil ducked under his arm, was on the horse's back like lightning and galloping to the fort for help. And he got the help and returned in time to kill several of the Indians and save his two companions.
"Hurrah!" cried the children.
"So when in the great war there came a demand for cavalry leaders Little Phil was made a colonel and put in charge of the Second Michigan troop and the Second Iowa horsemen. In his very first battle at Boonville he and his two regiments whipped General Chalmers with nine regiments. For that he was made a brigadier general, and if it wasn't too late I'd tell you how I fought 'n' him. But I'll tell you some other evening."
"I'm going to be a general," said Jack sleepily.
"Ah, s'r," said daddy. "Hurry up."

NEW ERA FOR GOULD LINES
Missouri Pacific to Be Rehabilitated and Put in Front Rank.
St. Louis, Mo., May 26.—Benjamin F. Bush, the new president of the Missouri Pacific, has given out in interview outlining the constructive plans of the new management which recently succeeded that of George J. Gould.

Attitude Toward the Public.
"The relations existing between a railroad and the people should be most kindly," says Mr. Bush. "The prosperity of the railroads depends absolutely on the people, and the prosperity of the people depends largely upon the railroads. This kind of feeling can only be brought about by fair treatment on each side. If the railroads treat the people fairly I believe they will, in turn receive fair treatment from the people. A few of the railroads have adopted a policy of this kind and already some of the feeling against the big transportation systems is dying out. It is not so bitter as it was three years ago."

Advocates of Public Control.
"I see that James J. Hill, the Great Western magnate, recently came out for public control; President Mudge of the Rock Island did likewise; President Vail of American Telephone and Telegraph took the strongest of stands along that line in his recent annual report to his board of directors in which he demanded complete acquiescence in the control of public commissions. All those things go toward making good feeling between the railroads and the people.
