COWS, BULLS AND MIXED.

The receipts of butcher stuff were very light today. Bulk of offerings were odds and ends. Prices on all grades were steady with yesterday. Bulls and calves sold steady.

The receipts of butcher stock for the week has been fairly lberal, Canners and cutters have met with better demand than other classes of she stuff this week and are quoted strong to 10 cents higher. The feeling toward dressed beef cows and heifers has been rather bearish and a weaker undertone prevalled. Bulk of sales of this class are 10c lower than the close of last week. There has been a fair supply of range cows and heifers on sale. This class of cattle met with a ready outlet all week and prices look. STOCKERS AND FEEDERS.

Today's supply of stock and finishing cattle was of the usual Friday size and assortment. Hardly enough fresh material was offered to estab-lish a market but buyers went after the few odds and ends on sale in good style and prices remained stationary with the previous session.

Little change has been effected in this division for the week and at the close today prices are about in the same notches as at last week's close. Country demand has began to pick up a little with the result that trading out of first hands on all days has been reasonably active in spite of the fact that yard dealers usually had a big assortment of cattle on hand. end of the week's run has been on the light and medium weight order with quality running fair to good, with the former classification covering the big end of the week's marketings. The week's trade developed some little trade with good qualitied feeders around $5.40, but outside of one or two bunches there has been nothing good enough here to be eligible to the popularity, and anything in that line is finding ready outlet. Stook heifers have been in active request all week and at the colse today prices are quoted steady to strong. Good to choice feeding steers are

There were only a few range cattle in the small Friday run. Everything cleared on a steady basis of prices.
Receipts of western range cattle this week have been of moderate proortions. Steers have predominated, very few cows and heifers and feeder night

Since that day the market has ruled steady to strong and at the close the market shows only nominal weakness as compared with a week ago, a dime covering the loss in extreme cases. local trade has acted very creditably; in fact, selling interests are closing the week in much better shape than was expected. Fat lambs have been only in moderate supply, a big end of the range delegation arriving in feeder flesh. Little fluctuation in prices has been in order on this class of stuff, although at the close today the market is invariably quoted a dime under last week's closing level, the reduction being appliable to both range and native lambs. Best lambs sold Monday at $6.00 and at the close the same lambs changed hands at $5.90. Bulk of the week's crop have went to packers in a range of $5.50@5.85. Sheep have been hit the hardest, the final quotation of the week showing a 10@15c discount under last week. Ewes have went generally at $3.50@3.75, with yearlings at $4.25. Feeding lambs have been eagerly sought at all times and salesmen have experienced little trouble in getting rid of this stuff at $5.00 and up to $5.15.

ARKANSAN TORN BY WOLVES

Surveyor Attacked in Section Where Animals Are Bold and Daugerous.

Murfreesboro, Ark., Sept. 29 .- Torn with wounds in many parts of the body, and barely able to crawl to a point in the mountain road, where he was picked up by a chance timber inspector, Charles Foster, said to be a surveyor, formerly in the employ of the Caddo River Lumber Company, lies at the farm home of Ezra Daley, twenty miles northwest of Murfreesboro, with small chance of recovering from an attack by timber wolves near Star of the West, on a recent Sunday

Star of the West is a deserted mill site on the Little Missouri River, at the extreme northwest corner of Pike county, near the Howard and Montgomery county line. It is in a mountainous section, where a heavy second growth of timber has in the past four years taken possession of the aban-doned farms. Since the abandonment of this section by settlers the locality has become a regular denning and skulking place for timber wolves, which, in packs of continually in-creasing numbers and boldness, have been not only destroying young stock belonging to the scattered farmers of the secton, but occasionally threatened to attack foot travelers. During the past twelve months the brutes have followed children several times on the way home from school to within a few rods of their homes. In spite of numerous hunts with hounds, the wolves have increased in numbers and boldness, until their depredations and aggressiveness have ports.

reactions and aggressiveness have reached the point of practically ter-rorizing the section.

Two months ago Tobe Mitchell, foreman of construction on the Pres-cott-Northwestern Railroad at Helbig, and owner of some good wolf hounds, spent two days in the Star of the West country and succeeded in killing one monster wolf, but left three of his finest dogs torn to shreds in the woods

Louise wondered if she would. In her moment of indecision her eyes searched the country, as if to seek some means of escape from a future which she dreaded. RESERVOIR OF ALL RIVERS

Facts About the Sea and Its Place in Nature-Some Interesting Possibilities.

The sea is the reservoir into which run all the rivers of the world. It is the cistern which finally catches all the rain that falls, not only upon its own surface but upon the surface of the land and upon the roofs of our houses. All this water is removed by evaporation as fast as it is supplied. It is estimated that every year a layer of the entire sea fourteen feet thick is taken up into the clouds. This vapor is fresh, and if all the water could be removed in the same way and none of it returned it is calculated light the lamp and bring the evening that there would be left a layer of pure salt 230 feet high on the bed of "There's going to be a dance down the Atlantic. THOUGHT HE WAS A HOBO Bartender's Suggestion to Rough Look-

Tetlow is a man of substance and of some standing. He even lays claim to some literary ability, but he has careless habits. If his wife didn't watch him closely he would wear the same suit of clothes from one year's end to the other. He never thinks of getting shaved until some one asks him if he is trying to raise a beard. Naturally, he is apt to be misjudged by those who have nothing but his appearance to go upon. Drinking whisky is one of his fads He takes a drink when he likes it, and that is rather frequently, and he gets it wherever he happens to be. The other day he was in front of one of the new palatial hotels and thought he would see what sort of refreshment was served there. He asked for his favorite brand and the bartender set the bottle before him. Now Tetlow is not a heavy drinker, although a frequent one, so he poured out a very moderate amount.

The bartender looked his ill fitting and well worn clothes over and then glanneed at the shallow drink he had measured out. "See here, old man," said the bartender, "that's going to set you back 20 cents. You might as well get your wore a frivolous little pink frock that money's worth."

WHY THE VALISE WAS HEAVY

Mrs. Billingsly Was Taking Her New Flatirons to the Country Summer Resort.

The Billingslys were starting for a summer outing in the country, expecting to be away from home a week or two. The trunk had been sent to the railway station, a few blocks distant, and nothing remained but to close the house and walk thither. Mr. Billingsly, the last one to leave the front door. picked up the hand baggage and followed the rest of the family down the steps. One of the two valises he was carrying seemed tremendously heavy, and before he had walked a block he stopped, set it down on the sidewalk and turned to his wife. "For the land's sake, Fidelio," he said, mopping the perspiration from his brow, "what have you got in this gripsack? The family silver?" "Nothing of the sort, Hiram," she answered. "That's hidden where nobody can find it." "Then what makes this thing so heavy? It weighs a ton!" "I'm taking along that new set of patent flatfrons I bought last week." serenely re-"Sometimes," murmured the girl, sponded Mrs. Billingsly. Keeping Eels at Home. Under the direction of its biological station at Copenhagen, the Danish government has begun an interesting effort to aid the fishermen of the Baltic by preventing the migration of eels from that sea into the ocean. The means employed is a "barrier of light," formed by placing fifty electric lamps along a submerged cable between the island of Fano and the coast of Funen. The effectiveness of such a barrier depends upon the fact that the ells migrate only during the dark hours. Accordingly, as soon as darkness begins in the season of migration, the lamps are illuminated, and thus a wall of light is interposed from which the eels recoil.

Rubber Stamped Form Letter to Influential Constituent Brings

Forth a Reply in Kind.

A prominent middle western senator fell into a practice common in Washington of allowing a secretary to sign the former's name to much of his correspondence with a rubber stamp. He was warned against the custom, but laughingly remarked that the farmers out there wouldn't know the difference. Likewise the senator, as many have, have a stereotyped reply to communications. It so happened that one of these form stamped letters was sent to a substantial and influential constituent. Nothing was known of the break until a few months later, when the sénator, endeavoring to rebuild his fences, wrote a letter to the constituent inquiring of political conditions in the home state. A prompt reply was received at the capitol, addressed to the senator, and in the exact form which he

"Dear Sir: Your valuable communication of the 6th inst. duly received. It gives us much pleasure to consider

DOG THAT GOES TO CHURCH

Maine Animal Attends Sunday Serv ices Regularly, Sitting in the Shadow of the Pulpit.

And here is a dog story which comes from the Journal's Skowhegan correspondent. The story is of a fine young shepherd dog which has strong religious tendencies. He is the dog of Elmer Decker of Hinckley. Shep is persistent in his attempts to attend Sunday services.

A late scheme of his is to get up very early Sunday morning and call upon a neighbor who takes him to church in his carriage. On arriving Shep makes a practice of walking straight up the aisle to the platform, where he takes his place in the shadow of the pulpit. There, . with his nose protruding by the corner, he can see what is going on at the same time he is listening. The other day during the minister's long prayer an automobile came chugging and tooting along, much to the disturbance of Shep's idea of the nicety of things. He rushed through the open door with loud barking and scared the intruder away, but his manner of quieting the disturbance had a reviving effect upon the audience and our correspondent thinks the prayer must have been shortened. -Kennebec Journal.

Changing Taste in Hymns.

One of our churches in New York city having taken a poll of the congregation in order to determine the ten favorite hymns announces that number of ballots: "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Abide With Me," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "I Love to Tell the Story," "Lead Kindly Light," "Rescue the Perishing," "Rock of Ages," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Four others were tied for tenth place: "Love Divine, All Love Excelling."
"Just as I am," "Faith of Our Fathers, Living Still," and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." Nothing could illustrate better the change that has come over our religious thinking. In the list there is not one hymn about heaven. Ten years ago no congregation would have omitted "Jerusalem the Golden" or "There Is a Land of Pure Delight," and twenty-five years ago half the list would have been given to such hymns. -Northwestern Christian Advocate.

For these first took the leather and sliced it in pieces. Then did they beat it between two stones and rub it, often dipping it in the water of the river, to render it by these means supple and tender. Five-eighths of the British rights were purchased for $500 by a Providence man, says the National Magazine. After working in London four months he could not find any one who would put a shilling in the telephone.

An English review said of it: "The telephone is little better than a toy. It amuses the English, but is inferior to the well established system of air tubes."

The victory was won at last by Kate Field, who sang "Kathleen Mavourneen" over the telephone to Queen Victoria. Naturally applicants for life insurance may be expected to put as good a face as possible on the reports concerning relatives and the causes o their deaths, but they sometimes make rather amusing statements. Up to this time he plicant does not know cause o mother's death, but states that she fully recovered from her last illness." "Applicant has never been fatally sick." Hungry Jack - Gets a Fine Sea Lion Story

Menagerie Pet Uses Din ner Bell to Get His Fish Dinner

'M sorry it's bedtime, daddy," said Jack one evening. "I wish it was only supper time instead." "You don't mean to tell me you are hungry again?" asked daddy

"I saw the dinner you ate, and I know that Dinah always gives you a big bowl of bread and milk and berries before you come up to tease your poor old daddy for another story." "Can't help it, daddy," answered Jack, "and, besides, you know that grandma says no child should ever go to sleep while hungry."

"Why don't you buy him a dinner bell, daddy?" put in Evelyn. "Then he can ring it whenever he's hungry, like the sea lion we saw in the circus." "That's a splendid idea," said daddy, "but if Jack's appetite keeps growing he'll be ringing the bell all the time, and none of us will get any rest." So daddy got some milk and crackers, and Jack finished every morsel.

"Thank you, daddy," he said, "but won't you please tell me about that sea lion? If you remember I was away at Aunt Mary's when you and Evelyn saw him

"Well," said daddy, "I have no fears now about you being a millionaire. First you wheedle me out of a meal and then you demand a story on the subject of eating. When you grow up I'll bet that all the rich men will get together and have you kept out of Wall street under pain of death.

"Well," started daddy, "this lion is a little chap, and I'm sorry to say I don't know what his name is." "Call him Jack," said Evelyn. "That's a good hungry name."

"That's funny, Evelyn," laughed daddy, "but it's also a little bit mean. We'll call him Nicodemus and Nick for short.

"Every afternoon at exactly half past 1 Nick dives down into his tank, where he keeps his precious bell, so that no one else can get it. Then he pushes his chair up to his table, sits carefully on the chair and rings that bell with his right fin. His keeper comes running with a bill of fare, which Nick reads carefully and then barks like this: 'Ff-wh-iss-h!"

"So the keeper takes away the bill, Nick throws the bell back in the tank and in a few moments is eating away at a whole pailful of nice fresh fish. "Now, if Jack would ring a bell only once a day," said daddy, "I'd buy

"That's impossible," said Evelyn.

Education.

What is education? Emerson says that the greatest teacher is not the teacher who supplies the pupil with the most facts, but the one in whose presence the pupil becomes a better person. The great secret of education lies in respecting the wants of the pupil. It is not for us to say what another shall know or even do. That part of the game of life is chosen and forcordained and the pupil alone holds the key to his own needs. Emerson begs us to respect the child. He re-Iterates his plea to respect and wait and see the new product of nature develop. We are not to be too much the pupil's parent. We are not to be too often in his solitude. We are to let him alone. Give the pupil an opportunity to exercise and express his every faculty, and then-hands off!

About Thimbies.

The thimble was at first worn on the thumb, and for that reason was called a thumb bell, which later became thumble and finally thimble. It was invented by the Dutch, and brought to England in 1695.

The first thimbles were made of fron or brass; later came those of silver, gold, steel, horn, ivory, pearl and glass. The Chinese make beautiful thimbles of carved pearl, with gold binding and ends.

One of the most gorgeous thimbles ever seen was a bridal gift from the king of Siam to his queen; it was made of gold, shaped like a lotus bud, and was thickly studded with dia-monds, arranged so as to spell the queen's name.

Pretty Legend of the Origin of Wine in Persia, Where It First Was Made.

The making of wine is said to have originated with the Persians, who dis covered the process quite by accident. One of their earliest kings, Jensheed, who, it is said, was only five or six generations from Noah, was the discoverer, or rather a woman of his household was.

"He was immoderately fond of grapes," says the narrative, which is found in Sir John Malcolm's "History of Persia," "and desired to preserve some, which were placed in a large vessel and lodged in a vault for future use. When the vessel was opened the grapes had fermented and their juice in this state was so acid that the king believed it must be poison

"He had some vessels filled with it and 'Poison' written upon each. These were placed in his room. It happened that one of his favorite ladies was affected with nervous headache; the pain distracted her so much that she desired death. Observing a vessel with 'Poison' written on it, she took it and swallowed its contents. The wine, for such it had become, overpowered the lady, who fell down into a sound sleep and awoke much re freshed.

"Delighted with this remedy, she re peated the doses so often that the monarch's poison was all drunk. He soon discovered this and forced the lady to confess what she had done. A quantity of wine was made and Jensheed and all his court drank of the new beverage, which from the circumstance that led to its discovery is to this day known in Persia by the name of Zeher-e-khoosh, or 'the delightful poison."

Old-Time Farmers Show Revolution of Farm Machinery.

Veteran Swings Scythe at Ninety and Explains How He Harvested Grain Seventy-Five Years Ago at DeKalb.

Chicago.-From the shadows of the past came reapers of 50 and 70 years ago to the Henry Whitmore farm the other day, near DeKalb, and in the role of harvesters pitted themselves against the marvelous machinery of modern times

More than 1.000, many of whom came in automobiles, watched the men harvesting grain in as many ways as have been contrived since agricultural pursuits have been followed on the American continent. There was the oldfashioned cradle, the sickle and scythe, the early-day reaper and the modern binder. It was a panoramic history of one of the most important phases of the industrial life of America.

White-haired, patriarchal in appearance, his shoulders bent with the weight of years, "Uncle" William Allen of Sycamore, swung his cradle for five minutes as he was wont to do threequarters of a century ago. And as he cut his last swath, he leaned on the handle of his cradle and laughed at the incongruity of the picture pre-

"Looks silly, doesn't it?" he asked of the cheering spectators. "Times have certainly changed since I began harvesting." And his old eyes followed a modern binding machine cutting a wide swath, gathering up the fallen grain and tying it in bundles.

"I am 91 years old," said the veteran harvester as the binder turned a corner, "but if I could live 20 years more I would see even greater changes in the world than since I first began swinging a cradle in a harvest field."

Among the reapers were C. W. and W. W. Marsh, two brothers, who have lived more than the allotted threescore years and ten, and who are credited with being the first to have conceived the idea of the reaper. Their first machine was brought forth and cut a swath around the ten-acre field. As crude as it seemed to the throng of spectators, it was a marvel compared to the cradle which they had used for years before they brought the reaper into being.

merable Collection of Spiders, Bugs and Strange Things.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A live rattlesnake held captive in a large oil can which in turn was reinforced with a wooden box arrived at the Hollenbeck consigned to

Since his receipt of the rare ' Latrodectus manctus, or red spotted spider, the most poisonous insect of its kind, Smead has been made the custodian of an innumerable collection of spiders, bugs and curious living things that crawl, creep and fly, the latest being the rattlesnake.

A friend residing in Calzona having read of the fact that the hotel man had received the spider decided on a more peculiar gift and as a result set out to catch the snake, of which species there are many in that section of the country. In a letter accompanying the gift, the donor mentions the manner of its capture and hopes that Smead will be able to add to the collection which he has or is making for the southwest museum. As yet Smead has not been able to decide whether the serpent shall be killed and his skin tanned and stuffed or whether to turn it over to some of the Main street side show fakers.

From Don Cabezos, on the Mexican border, Smead several days ago received one of the most perfect specimens of a scorpion ever seen here. It is five and one-half inches in length with not a vertebra or a claw displaced in the horrible land crab. In addition two splendid specimens of the centipede were inclosed.

A mining man residing in Lower California undertook to show his esteem for the hotel man by shipping him a pair of bats captured in a great guano cave along the west shore, They were both dead, but preserved in such a manner that they will keep for a long time. In the letter accompanying the bats the mining man tells a wonderful tale of the millions of these night flyers that at about seven o'clock in the evening begin to leave

"They pour forth in one steady stream for a period of more than three hours, all going out over the ocean in their flight. At about three o'clock in the morning they begin to return, flying from the land side, having evidently completed a big circle in their flight. Again it takes them several hours to get inside. The caves are so foul smelling, so vilely black that they have never been fully explored."

New York Man Recovers Speech After Operation and Surgeons Believe
Frequent Attacks of Insanity
Will Now Cease.

New Haven, Conn.-Removal of a piece of a patient's skull which had come in contact with the brain brought back the power of speech to Harry Wiltse of 154 Plymouth street.

For six months Mr. Wiltse had been unable to utter as word, but when Dr. Morris D. Slattery, who per formed the operation in the presence of a dozen or more prominent sur geons in the city, came into the op erating room again after leaving it to see another patient, Mr. Wiltse raised his head from the pillow, and in a distinct but low tone said: "Hello,

There was great surprise at the moment and the news quickly circulated to the physicians who had been interested in the case. They proclaimed the belief that when Mr. Wiltse fully recovers his strength, his speech would be as good as ever. They also believe that frequent attacks of insanity, the result of injury to Mr. Wiltse's head 21 years ago, will cease. The operation was performed in the hospital of St. Raphael.

The injury to Mr. Wiltse, who is 36 years old, came to him when he was 15. He was playing ball near his home in Forty-fifth street, New York city, one afternoon, when he was run over by a team, the horse stepping on the boy's head. He was taken unconsclous to a hospital where it was found that his skull was fractured. He remained in the hospital about six months, but as a result of the injury insanity developed.

He was later sent to the insane asylum in Middletown, N. Y., and after a few years there he was released as cured. Three years ago, however, he became insane again, and was once more removed to the asylum. While at the institution he had lucid intervals, followed by clouded reason. After treatment for about a year he was released and came to this city. He made his home with his brother, John Wiltse, an electrical worker. Last summer his condition again compelled his removal to the state asy-

COWS IN A CONFECTIONERY

Customers Who Were Present When They Pald a Visit.

Sheridan, Ore .- Quite a number of customers were in the confectionery store of J. L. Morris when three cows entered and took charge of things. A small herd of cattle was being driven to the depot stockyards and three of the animals escaped.

of the animals escaped.

The trio of cows rushed through the open door, disregarding the cries and antics of passersby to head them off, and they were soon browsing among the immaculate showcases. The soda fountain and showcases appeared to be demolished by the first headlong rush, and frightened women clerks sought the "high places" without ceremony.

A large crowd watched the peculiar performance from the outside. The cattle were induced finally to leave the store.

French Lawyers Went on Strike. Over 300 years ago one of the most unusual strikes ever recorded took place in Paris, when all the lawyers valked out, so to speak. A law or ordonnance was issued and promulgated by the French king, Henry III., ordering all lawyers to sign their pleadings and to state the amount they were charging their clients for their services. This was done so that the lawyers could be properly and sufficiently taxed on their income. The awyers objected, and the strike, causing an entire stay of judicial proceedings, followed. Peace was restored by the non-enforcement of the ordonnance, though it was not repealed.

TOILING EIGHTY-SIX YEARS

Chicagoan, Aged 92, Expeots to Live Long Enough to Ride in Airship-Longovity Rules.

Chicago.-William Fuller, 1467 Indiana avenue, claims Chicago's long-distance record for working. He is now in his ninety-second year. He is employed every day and a good many nights, and he has been toiling for sighty-six years.

To the fact that he is a great eater of apples the veteran attributes his ability to retain his mental and physical powers.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away," is his favorite maxim. For fifty years he has eaten at least one Baldwin, Jonathan, or pippin in every twenty-four hours. He has become a connoisseur of the fruit. He knows what the apple crop will be. He has kept track of the apple-raising industry every season for a half-cen-

Mr. Fuller is now employed as an elevator conductor.

"I expect to live long enough to ride to work in an airship," he said. "I haven't even begun to think about

"While I am waiting for the airship to get a bit more popular I walk more than a mile to work every day and home again at night. I never felt better in my life."

He gives these rules to young peo ple seeking health and longevity: "Live a clean, upright life.

"Give both yourself and the other fellow a square deal. "Do not abuse your body or your

"Work hard, eat simple food, shun rich diet

"Get plenty of sleep and eat apples before retiring. "If you do this you can depend on 100 years to lay up money for funeral expenses. Mr. Fuller is a Virginian. He came west early in life and worked until the Civil war began, when he went back to his home, and fought throughout the long struggle. He ascaped serious injury in spite of hard service and many battles. Then he went back to selling furniture in a small Illinois town. Here his wife died. He says she followed his rules and died of pneumonia and not of the debilities of old age.

Remarkable Work of Pacific Islanders Added to University of Pennsylvania Collection.

Philadelphia.-Seventy-five curious articles, some of them with interesting histories, have been added the South Sea Islands collection of the meuseum of the University of Pennsylvania. Some of these excel similar work of the Pacific islanders displayed at the British museum, and the acquisitions of the university place the museum here high in the list of institutions having collections of South Sea island

Included in the list of additions to this curious display is a relic of Captain Cook's voyage to New Zealand in his ship Discovery. It is a Marori tiki, or charm, of carved jade, which has been traced back as far as 1777. There is also a jade ceremonial club 161/2 inches long and weighing several pounds. One of the objects of greatest interest to collectors is a jade ax from New Caledonia. There is nothing like it in either the Berlin or British mu-

There are 16 war clubs from the island of Tonga, 2 from Samoa and 15 from New Caledonia. Those from Tonga are intricately and exquisitely carved by their warlike owners with sharks' teeth or sharp pieces of shell and stone, the natives having no metal

Two necklaces in the collection also tell a tale of the patient industry of the islanders in completing their works of art, ornaments of the person or implements of war. One necklace has 250 jade beads, each bead drilled by hand with an instrument of

Burn Famous Old Warship.

Port Townsend, Wash .- The oak hulk of the corvette Iroquois, which as a United States man-of-war took part in the batle of Mobile bay and the siege of Vicksburg, was set on fire the other night by junk men where she lay on the short of Discovery bay and furnished an illumination all night.

The burning was in order to release the copper from the wood. The Iroquois was built in New York n 1858 and went out of commission 18 years ago. She sank the confederate gunboat McRae at the battle of Mobile bay and lost a larger propor tionate number of men than any other ship of Farragut's fleet. Regular at Sunday School.

Canton, O .- George Austin, Hartville's centenarian, was an attendant at all sessions of the Stark-Carroll Lutheran Sunday School convention, which closed the other day at Hartville. He was a speaker at the last day's exercises. Austin is now 103 years old and has attended Sunday school since he was 3.

Three Pastors in 100 Years.

Claysville, Pa .- The Claysville United Presbyterian church celebrated its hundredth anniversary Sunday. The church holds a record in that it has had but three continuous pastorates in its 100 years' existence. The present pastor, Rev. Alexander McLachlin, has been with the church since 1872.

HIDES STEADY

We are making no change in our quotations for the coming week. The market is fairly active with tanners holding out of the market all they possibly can hoping for lower prices, but we hardly think they will be successful in gaining their point, as the supply of hides throughout the country is not sufficient to cause any excess accumulation,
