RAISING CHERRY TREES

VARIETIES THAT HAVE PROVEN SUCCESSFUL IN MISSOURI.

By J. C. Whitten, Professor of Horticulture, University of Missouri.

Missouri cherry growing is largely confined to the sour types of cherries. Sweet cherries, which thrive in the sea-coast regions, are not very successful in Missouri.

The best varieties for this state are Early Richmond, Montmorency and English Morello. They have generally proven successful in this state.

One-year-old cherry trees are probably preferable for planting, provided they have made a strong growth and are well branched.

In preparing for cherries, the soil should be thoroughly plowed, harrowed and pulverized. Planting may be done either in the spring or fall.

After the trees are planted, the trees should be given thorough cultivation for one or two years until they become thoroughly established and begin vigorous active growth.

It is not clear to most growers why cherry trees do not respond to continued cultivation as do peaches. The feeding roots of the cherry usually form abundantly near the surface of the ground.

The first pruning takes place at the time the tree is to be set in the orchard. Any ragged wounds at the tips of the roots, caused by digging, should be cut off with a smooth cut.

The shape of the top requires great care. The cherry, perhaps, needs to be pruned less than any other fruit tree.

DUTY OF THE PARENTS

THEIR RESPONSIBILITY FOR CHILDREN NEVER ENDS

Loving and Redeeming Thought and Action of Father and Mother Should Continue, Whatever the Conduct of Offspring.

In early days in New England it was the custom of many fathers to give each son, on reaching his majority, "his portion" of the family fortune, send the young man out into the world with paternal blessing, tell him to take care of himself and cease to be responsible for his conduct.

Changing times and manners have brought new conditions. When does responsibility of parent for care and conduct of offspring cease? Does the mere fact of a boy or a girl passing a certain birthday anniversary end that responsibility?

Certainly, the boy and girl had no least responsibility for their own being. They were not consulted. It could not be known that they would be gratified with the conditions and influences into which they were brought at birth and to which they were to be subjected in early life.

The stern parent in such a case, the more obstinate is the child likely to seem. That responsibility which is conceived in love, born in the spirit of devotion and nourished by purpose and hope for the best for the child never ceases while the parent lives.

Miserable Toadstool. It is a pity that the edible mushroom of our fields, the most liked and the commonest of all fungi, should be forever under a ban because ignorant or careless people persist in cooking a few specimens of the death cup Amanita, the commonest of poisonous fungi, with their mess of mushrooms, and dying suddenly in consequence.

Value of the Hands. Twenty thousand dollars for the boy who lost both hands—the reward just sustained by the New Jersey courts—is little enough.

It is about all that most persons with two hands can do to earn a living at manual labor in these days of high rents and high prices. There are few trades open to a man handicapped by the loss of one hand.

Woman Stonecutter. Miss Agatha Troy of Utica, N. Y., is said to be the only woman in this country who is a professional stonecutter. She acts as her father's assistant as a granite and marble cutter.

SPRAY FOR SAN JOSE SCALE

Description and Method of Treating This Orchard Pest.

One of the most dangerous of the fruit tree pests in this state is the San Jose scale. It can be identified by the tiny scales slightly raised in the middle, which are seen on the branches.

The insect of the San Jose scale inserts its beak into the bark of the tree and excretes a scale covering its body. It multiplies rapidly and may completely cover the bark of the limbs in place.

The best time to spray is in the fall soon after the leaves are off, or in the spring when the trees are still dormant. Spraying in mid-winter is not only very disagreeable, but has been found to be less effective.

This insect attacks apple, peach, currant, pear and many other common fruits. Every orchardist who is interested in the welfare of the state should strive to kill out this pest and eradicate it from the state.

Another effective spray for the San Jose scale is the lime-sulphur, which can be made at home. It requires 15 pounds of lime, 15 pounds of sulphur and 50 gallons of water.

The appearance of the home grounds around the farm house should be a matter of more interest. The problem of keeping the boys at home on the farm, which is a great problem everywhere today, would not be so great if the surroundings were made more pleasant.

The decision is especially noteworthy as a new mark in the apparently increasing appreciation that courts and juries all over the country are showing as to the handicap of physical disability.
