EAST ST. LOUIS.

Receipts, both locally and at outside points have been moderate, though heavier than for the previous week which included the Thanksgiving holiday. At this point receipts for the week total approximately $,100 head, showing an increase of 1,300 over the previous week but a loss of 4,500 as compared with the corresponding period a year ago. Total arrivals at the five leading points stand at 140,200 head as compared with 111,500 head the previous week and 162,600 for the same time a year ago.

has been a preference shown to the dressed beef grades of cows and the better classes of helfer stock. These kinds are quotable from 15@25c higher than the closing of the previous week. Canners are not much more than steady, while some of the best cutters are 10@15c higher. Choice mixed yearling heifers and steers have been scarce all week and have been in good demand at higher prices. Some of this kind if choice would sell around $7.00 or better. Western cows and heifers have been in small quantities this week. What few that have made an appearance are quoted highmade an appearance are quoted higher in sympathy with other classes of she stock. There has been a fairly liberal showing of bulls and are quotable steady to 10 cents higher, the best gardes having the preference. Calf receipts were light all week and

Several years the college of agriculture has offered a short course in agriculture for the farm boys of Missouri, but this is the first time that it has ever attempted to do anything for the farmer boy's sister. It is expected that the short course for girls will be as successful as the short course for boys.

Daddy's Bedtime Generally Jack Tar Has a Very

UPPOSE you really were a sailor, Jack," said Evelyn severely, "how would you like it when Christmas came and there was no Santa Claus to fill your stocking?"

Jack had been wishing that instead of a plain home boy he might be a sailor lad and sail the deep blue sea in one of Uncle Sam's ships. "Why, why," faltered Jack when this view of the case was brought to him, why of course I'd want some Christmas presents for Christmas. But, I say, daddy, don't the sailors have any Christmas?"

"Oh, dear, yes," replied daddy. "Plenty of it, and I've heard that Santa Claus makes his rounds even on shipboard. Nobody in the world is more particular about his Christmas than the sailor boy and many a time he has trouble in making it enough like a real sure enough home Christmas to keep him from getting homesick.

"On shipboard Christmas begins at noon the day before Christmas, when the men are allowed to knock off work and do as they please. "If any of the sailors have friends or relatives in the port where they are stopping they can go to spend the holiday on shore with them, but if they are far from friends and home they join with the other sailors in trying to make the best of things as they are. If the ships are not at sea the crew can go they fix them to every mast and yardarm. The sailors have their Christmas er of this city.

Since last May Mr. Harris has been ashore and get greens with which to trim the vessel. If they get evergreens unpopular officer, for all grudges are forgotten at holiday time. If the ship is where evergreen trees do not grow the sailors use palms or something that will do 'just as well.'

"The cook, of course, can manage the mince pie, but the turkey must be the real thing, and turkeys for about 1,000 men are not easy to find. The sailor boys take the greatest interest in the Christmas bird. One crew in Chinese waters once quietly bought up all the Christmas turkeys to be had in the towns of Hongkong and Canton so that when the officers of the ship came to look about for fowls there was not one to be had for love or money. The sailor boys were as kind as they were clever and gave to the officers of their store of turkeys.

"The ship's postman is the sailor's Santa Claus. On Christmas morning all Christmas mail, which brings, of course, the sailor's gifts from bome, is finished and the crop has been found given out to the men. Friends of the sailors, knowing this pleasant Christmas custom, generally mark their packages, 'Not to be opened till Christmas,' so that they may be handed out to the lads by the Santa Claus in uniform."

vanity in her pocket, and serve as foil for her luckless stepcousin, Elise. She was sorry for Elise, whose life ran sluggishly between drab walls. It had taken all her own mother's tact and diplomacy to compass Elise's being where she was. Peggy had been a little worried at first-Elise had so few social accomplishments, and though Peggy was kind she hated carrying dead weight. But, by and by, when there were evening exhibitions of drawing-room accomplishments, Elise had shown such grace, such lightness, such rhythmic harmony of motion as to redeem herself.

But she had never yet done the cakewalk, save in the privacy of their own chamber, a big, airy and secluded one, high up in the tower. Peggy had practiced it with her, enough to make sure they would not fail. She had thought rather proudly of the sensation they would make, quite eclipsing Marie Dene, straight from Paris, and still affecting the airs of her Parislan training. It took her all aback, though, to think of dancing in such guise as would make her a fright. Notwithstanding, she agreed generously to put herself out of the question, partly through indolent good nature, partly also through the impelling of some thing under the surface which she felt in Elise.

She did not sense the hidden thing until they came out for their turn. The big house party had turned itself into a vaudeville company, by way of front of the bank, stopping each trip passing the two days of a drenching to look anxiously at the door. She looked half angel, half nymph, her face deeply flushed, her silky hair beautifully disordered. Peggy knew she herself was showing scarlet through the veiling made up-she had subdued her color with grease paint, but it was no longer effective. Still she footed it lightly, consciously making of herself mainly a support for Elise-Elise whose secret she had surprised, and thereby surprised herself even more.

She was not indifferent to Georgy. Rather in him lay the root of her indifference to the others. Dully she wondered if he-with a catching breath she stole a glance at him, where he stood watching the dance, and particularly the chief dancer.

As the curtain rang down after the third encore he caught Elise under the arms, and tossed her up, as one might toss a child, saying:

"I must! To find out if you are mortal or fairy. No," as the applause rose madder than ever, "you mustn't go back-I could look at you all night -but you have done enough. Run outside and sit down now-just as you are-but don't drink more than seven lemonades-nor let more than nine fellows propose at once."

Elise obeyed without a word. Georgy busied himself getting ready for the next turn. Peggy was stealing away-he had not spoken to herwhen he wheeled and caught both her hands, saying:

"Peggy-my love didn't bat an eye over seeing you in pink-and you were a fright sure enough. So I think you ought to reward it. Let's set the day tomorrow.'

"But Elise!" Peggy gasped, though her head swam with happiness. Georgy looked carefully over her

Development of Petrology.

Accurate chemical analyses of rocks and of the component minerals of rocks have become increasingly important in the modern development of petrology. The discovery of new rock types is continually providing fresh material and demonstrating that the older rock analyses no longer suffice for the requirements of the present day. In this work a leading part has been taken by American chemists, and particularly those of the United States geological survey. In the last thirteen years four bulletins have been issued, giving complete analyses Man Wedded Forty-Seven Years De velops Roving Disposition and Seeks Divorce From Wife.

Kansas City, Mo .- A roving disposition which did not develop until 47 years after he was married, but which then caused David C. Rinehart to make three long, profitless journeys from home, the last with the announcement that he never would return, was the reason given the other day by Mrs. Ida Rinehart for bringing divorce proceedings in the Wyandotte county district court.

The Rineharts were married Christmas day, 1863. They own several houses in Kansas City, Kan., besides the one in which they lived, 1936 North Fifth street. Mrs. Rinehart alleges that the "wanderlust" first seized her husband in April, 1910. when he went to Canada without saying good-by or telling where he was going. Three times, she says, he returned and said he would "settle down" again, but each time he broke the resolution. Last Fourth of July, she states, he called her on the telephone to go to the Union station. There, she declared, he bade her goodby and said he was going into the far northwest and never would return. She has not heard from him since. He is a carpenter and seldom had been from home until a year ago.

New Eyelids by Grafting. Kansas City, Mo.—The eyelids of Rev. Joseph Hohe, pastor of a Catholic church near Bucyrus, Kas., which were burned off when a lamp exploded in his hands, have been replaced by new ones constructed of pieces of skin cut from the priest's arms and grafted on the stumps of the lids. Over the new lids he has almost complete muscular control. The operation was performed in a local hospital of the Sixty Per Cent. Waste Time.

The American school plant is valued at more than $1,000,000,000, and as used for school purposes alone utilizes but thirty-nine per cent. of the time George J. Lawton, Tax Sale Bidder, which could be given to the needs of the community. This, according to the National Magazine, represents a total loss of school plants to the country of more than $30,000,000 every year.

An active movement is now taking place to turn school property during the summer months into children's playgrounds and places of amusement and to make them the center of recreation, of political and social life, the same as in country places, where they serve many purposes, oftentimes even for church services.

Evening schools, free lectures, indoor sports, folk dances, civic and educational meetings and gymnastic exoffice building and theater, valued at ercises are among the things menabout $4,000,000, for $48,680. The proper procedure is to anaesthetize the patient with ether or some other "WANDERLUST" LATE IN LIFE general anesthetic, then remove, surgically, the entire side of the nail which tends to grow wrongly. The anesthetic permits the surgeon to dissect out the entire section of the nail to its remotest attachments. One great difficulty about treating ingrowing nails is that the sufferer cannot be persuaded to wear a sufficiently roomy shoe to permit the new nail tissue to grow naturally. Thus do vanity and hygiene contend.

Smoke or Ride, Which?

In the early days of the London, Brighton & South Coast Railway the regulations against smoking were strictly enforced. The Mechanics' Magazine of September, 1842, records that "a foreign gentleman was re cently smoking a cigar in a train coming from Brighton to London. The guard warned him the practice was not allowed. Nevertheless, he continued to smoke, and finished his cigar At the next station he was asked for his ticket and ordered out of the coupe; and the guard, addressing one of the officers on the platform, warned him that that person was not to be allowed to proceed to London by any train that night. So there he was left."-London Chronicle.
