DRAGGY TONE TO THE TRADE AND PRICES LEAN TOWARD WEAKNESS. BEST OFFERED BRING $7.25

Cows and Heifers Steady to 15c Lower—Bulls Steady—Calves Active and Strong—Stock Cattle Steady to Lower. Cattle receipts fell a little short of the runs a week ago but supplies were large enough to prevent the market from showing improvement in tone.

HOG PRICES IN DROP

EXCESSIVE GENERAL MARKET-RESULT IN SHARP DECLINE IN VALUES. BREAK AMOUNTS TO 10 TO 15c

Hogs sold at lower rates today, the reduction figuring 10 to 15c. Liberal receipts at all of the leading markets precipitated the break. Estimates for the local trade called for 12,000 head and the combined supply at the five big markets totaled 122,000, one of the heaviest runs of the winter season.

LAMBS GO HIGHER

PRICES BOOSTED 15 TO 25 CENTS ON LIGHT MID-WEEK SUPPLY. NEW SEASON TOP MADE

Best Offerings Sell at $7.00—Not So Much Change in Sheep, But Demand Had a Keen Edge. It was another high strung, nervous market in this department today, for which a general contraction in supplies, both locally and at the five markets, was held mainly responsible.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Jan. 10.—From cowboy to agitator, from agriculturist to legislator, and from legislator to editor—this is the triangular, if not meteoric career of Robert L. Glover, generally known as "Battle Ax" of Chickasha, Ok.

STOCKS AND FEEDERS.

Trade in this department was in a wayward mood today, changing largely to the slack demand for common light weight stock steers, which made up the bulk of a moderate fresh supply, and a weak and lower market for good to choice steers.

GOING AFTER BETTER ROADS

Texas Plans to Expend $10,000,000 for This Work in 1912.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 10.—Ten million dollars, it is estimated, will be spent for good roads in Texas, this year, an increase of $1,000,000 over the amount spent for road improvement last year.

It is admitted that the automobile has brought about a closer relationship between farmers and town people and united them in sentiment for good roads.

Dealers in automobiles report that their sales are greater among the farmers and ranchmen than any other class of Texans. The cars are used largely in the transaction of everyday business by the rural owners, and the general use of the auto has brought about a reciprocal feeling between the people of the towns and the farmers, and all work together in good roads movements.

In many of the black wax counties of the state there will be 20 to 200 miles of completed good roads by the end of 1912, and other counties are expected to vote good roads bonds.

STUDENTS AID RED CROSS. Four Chinese in M. S. U. Contribute to the Fund.

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 10.—The four Chinese students in the State University are retrenching on expenditures for some of the necessities of life that they may contribute to the fund for the Red Cross Society operating in China during the revolution.

In Stress of Pity

By M. C. England
(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"Work is work, but picnics are only picnics," summed up Aunt Hepzibah tartly. "I'm going to town and you'll stay here and do that ironing, so don't let's have another word about it."

Barbara Larsen stood, meek and submissive, bravely holding back the tears till her aunt's gaunt form had turned toward the road and disappeared trolleyward. Then she threw herself down in the old rocker and sobbed unreservedly.

She had told Jasper Burnham she was going—Jasper, who had never before mustered up courage to ask her to go anywhere. And now he'd think she was doing it on purpose—that she didn't care.

She rose at last. The ironing must be done. But as she reached the kitchen door some wayward impulse turned her steps and forced her up into her own tiny bedroom, where lay in all their dear, seductive glory her "best things" that she had laid out ready to wear. Sobs shook her anew as she gazed at them. She moved over to the bureau and opening the bottom drawer took from it a shining length of ribbon that matched the little rosebuds on her dress.

With a sudden impulse she began to unhook the unbecoming brown gingham that was her invariable week-day garb.

"I'll try them on, anyway," she resolved.

Fully arrayed, the pink ribbon gleaming around her waving brown hair, she surveyed herself with a mournful satisfaction. She hadn't known she could be so pretty. She looked longingly out at the radiant afternoon. Swinging down the road, with furtive, bashful glances toward the house, came Jasper. Barbara's heart beat hard. Turning, she ran down the stairway and out on the vine-covered porch.

"I'll let him see I was ready, anyway," she thought defiantly. "And then he'll think something happened afterward."

Jasper paused uncertainly at the gate. "Coming?" he called.

withdraw to a distance and Barbara joined a group of chattering girls by one of the swings.

He kept shyly apart from her during the afternoon, though his eyes followed her everywhere with a dumb worship. When twilight came and they began to flock homeward in chattering groups of twos and threes, Barbara had an instant's pang lest he should fall her, but a moment later he fell into step at her side.

With the homeward walk came back the crushing fear of what might befall her as a result of her disobedience. She knew only too well the harsh ill-temper of her aunt. She lagged more and more slowly, till all the happy, laughter-loving crowd had left them. Jasper lagged even more slowly, seeming loath to bring the silent walk to an end. Yet the twilight, the solitariness, the very nearness to the object of his devotion bred in him a paralyzing shyness, a very agony of self-consciousness.

Never, perhaps, would he have a chance like this again, yet the very thought of speaking, of even reaching out and touching the little hand that swung near him, brought the perspiration in great beads to his brow.

Barbara, with the growing intuition of awakened womanhood, vaguely realized all this.

As they came in sight of the house her heart began to beat painfully. She moved closer to Jasper.

"I'm frightened," she whispered.

For the second time that day a fire of indignation swept Jasper's self-consciousness from him. His hand went out suddenly and grasped her small one.

"Don't you be afraid," he said soothingly.

They came opposite the window. Inside Aunt Hepzibah sat, waiting. Her jaws were set in a heavy, purposeful frown. Barbara grasped Jasper's arm with a little sob.

THAT OLD-FASHIONED LADY

Sweet Picture That Some of Us Are Privileged to Carry in Our Memories.

Everybody loved that old-fashioned lady. And I find almost everyone past forty has, at the back of his mind, vivid impressions regarding her and the social life of which she was the center. One remembers the atmosphere of that day as one remembers the blush roses and spicy pinks of old gardens. Even yet there are gardens where blush roses grow, and I know some women not yet old, and a few young girls, whose mere presence serves today to reproduce that atmosphere. She was dauntless and sweet, that old-fashioned lady; witty but tender; as notable a housewife as a hostess; full of gentle concern for others, with a mind ever at leisure for their affairs, and a heart whose sympathy was instantaneous in their service. She stimulated and interested as the old lace and finely wrought gold she delighted to wear, she was a very precious piece of porcelain. The brilliant, soft daguerrotype that has preserved her early likeness for us did not idealize her beyond her just due. Perhaps the intimate secret of her influence was the impression she gave of one whose heart is fixed, one whom the world can no longer harm.—The Atlantic

THOUGHT HE MEANT TRIPE

Mrs. Mills' Sadly Misled About Husband's Diet by Deaf Old Family Doctor.

Mr. Mills was ill, and Mrs. Mills sent post haste for the deaf old family doctor, who, responding promptly to the call, looked Mr. Mills carefully over and decided he was not going to die that time.

The doctor, who had his deaf side toward his interrogator, mistook her question for an inquiry as to the nature of Mr. Mills' disease and replied gruffly and shortly: "Oh, stomach, stomach—nothing but stomach."

"Dear me!" thought Mrs. Mills, who is not a subtle reasoner. "I suppose, of course, he must mean tripe. It's a singular diet, but perhaps Albert's disease is singular."

Next day when the doctor called he found the patient much worse, and at once inquired what he had had to eat.

"I gave him just what you told me to," shouted Mrs. Mills into the doctor's best ear, "nothing in the world but tripe."

Remains of George Whitefield.

Rev. Silvester Horne, who desires to have the remains of George Whitefield brought from America and buried in the Chapel in Tottenham Court road which bears his name, may not know that a portion of those remains has already done a double journey across the Atlantic.

Whitefield died on a preaching tour in America, and was buried by his own desire, in a vault beneath the Presbyterian church at Newburyport. Fourteen years after his death the coffin was opened, when the body was found perfect. In 1901 it was opened again, when "the flesh was gone, but the gown, cassock and bands remained." Shortly afterward a bone of the right arm was stolen by an admirer and sent to England. Protest was made, and the bone was restored to Newburyport in 1837.—London Chronicle.

A Blind Baroness.

A short time ago the Baroness von Kranscheff (Miriam Gardner) an English woman, died in Bucharest. The baroness, who was one of the queen of Roumania's personal friends, was writing a poem one day when a mist suddenly spread over her eyes, and she thus became, in her fiftieth year, totally blind. In spite of her age, however, the baroness attended an English school to learn the alphabet and the use of the typewriter, and in the end triumphed over her affliction to the extent of being able to make her own clothes and hats without any aid whatever.

Arabia's Laughing Plant.
The laughing plant is not a flower that laughs, but one that creates laughter, if the printed accounts of travelers can be believed, says an English paper. It grows in Arabia and is called the laughing plant because the seeds produce effects like those caused by laughing gas. The flowers are of a bright yellow, and the seed pods are soft and woolly, while the seeds resemble small black beans. Only two or three grow in a pod. The natives dry and pulverize them, and the powder, taken in small doses, makes the soberest person behave like a circus clown or a madman, for he will dance, sing and laugh most boisterously and cut the most fantastic capers and be in an uproariously ridiculous condition for about an hour. When the excitement ceases the exhausted exhibitor of these antics falls asleep, and when he awakens he has not the slightest remembrance of his frisky doings.
