arrived at this point today and other markets had only moderate runs, the total at five points falling 8,200 short of a week ago on the early estimates of 25,300 head. Receipts here were estimated at 1,000 head but only 800 got in, part of this number coming in on belated trains. A week ago 2,370 cattle were offered on the local market and a year ago receipts were 1,506 head. Pallrade centering at this head. Railroads centering at this point claim that they are running stock trains on practically schedule time again. Small receipts of stock today were largely attributed to snow-blocked and soft country roads which makes it difficult to get stock to the whiming stations.

naturally spirited competition for the offerings. Early receipts cleared within a very short period at prices generally conceded to be fully 10@15c higher than yesterday. Today's Receipts.

assortment of light and medium weight stocker steers, which in all was hardly enough to create general interest. Offers of steady rates were readily forthcoming and salesmen were not long in coming to the conclusion that anything bid in on that basis needed selling, with the result that trade was active while it lasted, with no indications of a change in values as compared with yesterday. Stock cow and heifer trade was characterized by the usual skimpy supply, and it was called a market only by force of habit. Prices on the few sales booked were not radically different as compared with yesterday.

STEAM PIPE BURST.

Creates Lot of Excitement Among

Traders in Exchange Lobby.

Bursting with a noise that could be heard in all parts of the building, one of the big steam pipes on the second floor of the Exchange gave way under high pressure at noon today, and almost created a panic among traders on the first floor lobby. Bang! Bing! Bang! sounded the big pipe followed by a scream of pain from some quick witted practical joker who grasped the situation in time to have a little fun. At the sound of somebody in distress those on the first floor rushed up the steps, forgetting about elevation consisted of corn, Champion Molarses feed and alfalfa hay. Despite the severe weather encountered, Mr. up the steps, forgetting about eleva-tors and trampling each other in mad trush to administer first aid to the injured. "The snow is so deep that he would have little chance of finding them but for his clever dog. Man and dog start out together to search for the sheep.

The dog runs here and there, sniffing at the snow. By and by he seems to have made up his mind and starts straight ahead, stopping at a drift which will be piled up against some bank.

"When his master reaches him the dog looks over the snow until he finds a round hole in it crusted at the sides with frost.

"Then he knows he has found his sheep, and, digging down into the snow, the man lifts them out and carries them home, a little hungry, but quite snug

"The sheep huddle against the bank to get out of the wind, and the snow covers them, keeping them as warm as a blanket. The members of the Fourteenth regfment as a whol didn't pay much attention to Kitty O'Riley until she was about 14 years old, but the members of Company A had been more observant. This was because she was the daughter of Corp. O'Riley, whose wife was laundress for the company, and because Kitty had been the best looking and smartest kid in barracks since she was able to toddle

At four years old she won the name of "Kitty the Kid," and this had stuck. At five she knew the name of every "A" man. At six she knew the drill and all the bugle calls. At seven there were only three or four members of the company that could beat her at reading and spelling. When she was three years older her father was killed in a fight with the Indians, and every man in barracks picked the kid up and kissed her and murmured; "Poor little gal!" as he sat her down. . It was about four years later that Sergt. Brady received what was called "The great snub." He had been ten years in the service, and eight years a sergeant, and he was a sort of father to the company. He was the first to speak consoling words to Widow O'Riley and the first to hold the kid on his knee and wipe away her tears with his bandana. That was his visit of sympathy.

When he made his official visit he was in full uniform and his face wore a grave expression. It was wash day with Mrs. O'Riley, but she turned from her tubs to receive the caller.

> She had been sent to school in the town, and she had passed some time with a relative in the east who was fairly well off, and the raik and file of the Fourteenth had come to look upon her as a goddess. One evening, after the girl had attended the noncommissioned officers' ball and been sought for as a partner and admired and praised on all sides, the old fear was revived. Caste forbids a commissioned officer marrying the daughter of an enlisted man, and the orderly sergearts who held a consultation were agreed that Kitty was too handsome and too much of a lady to throw her-

It would be a sin and a disgrace to have Kitty marry outside the regiment. It would be going against precedent and establishing a dangerous principle. The sergeant donned full uniform and made his way to the laundry. It was a busy day again with the laundress, but she wiped her red hands on her apron and stuck out her elbows as before and saluted her visitor with:

> "I'm listening to you, Sergt. Brady." "It's about Kitty," he replied. "She's of a marriageable age. She's handsome and smart and a lady. She's away from us much of the time of late years, but she still belongs to the company and the regiment. Is she to marry inside or outside of it?"

GOOD THINGS FOR HUSBAND'S CRONIES.

By Martha McCulloch Williams. Man's part at home is to endure all things and eat all things, smiling as though he liked it all, whatever the facts in the case may be. And most men, I believe, nobly fill the part.

Therefore, it seems to me fitting that every once in a while they should be given, by way of reward, a supremely masculine evening, whereat it is understood that woman's part is to stand in wait and supply the good things to eat-good things that have been cooked to perfection in paper bags.

As to the nature of the evening, let the man himself decide. Many things heretofore described in this column suit such festive occasions. Savory mouthfuls, hot chicken biscuits, hot oyster sandwiches, paperbagged oysters either in shells after Soyer's recipe, or cooked in quantity with butter, cream and lemon juice and their own liquor added laterthey all will satisfy hungry souls and whet the palate for things potable, especially if supplemented with cheese crackers, also hot, salted nuts of any sort, olives warmed in a very little sherry, or crisp radishes and

PARADISE FOR THE ACTOR STARLINGS GOING NORTH.

Australia is the Place Where the People Make Real Gifts to Stage Favorites.

The actor, bronzed from a long sea voyage, was praising Australia, whence he had just returned.

"Australia's the place!" he cried enthusiastically. "If a pretty actress makes a hit over there, the warmhearted Australians aren't content with passing flowers over the footlights to her. No, no. They pass her a box of gloves, a dozen pairs of silk "As for me-"

The actor made a great gesture of arm and shoulder to indicate modesty. "As for me," he said, "I don't want to brag. I was never one to boast. At the same time, this I will say. No jeune premier ever made the hit I did in Parrabetta, Quirindi and the other one-night stands. Do you see these pants? Passed up to me by a distinguished society matron of Murrumburrah.
