STOCKERS AND FEEDERS.
The usual week-end conditions were cominant in this department today.

WEATHER FORECAST.

For Missouri: Showers and thunderstorms tonight and probably Saturday; cooler Saturday and in west portion tonight.

Kansas: Rain and colder tonight; Saturday generally fair.

Nebraska: Cloudy and colder tonight with rain in east portion and frost in west portion.

Iowa: Showers and thunderstorms tonight with rain in east portion and control portion; Saturday fair with warmer west portion.

Iowa: Showers and thunderstorms tonight or Saturday; colder in west and central portions tonight and in east portion Saturday.

Practically nothing in the way of fresh supplies were available and trade was barren and nominally steady.

Salesmen are unanimous in voting the week's trade with stockers and feeders a very satisfactory affair from start to finish. Receipts have been rather light from day to day, and under the influence of a broad general demand trade has ruled active and closing prices show some improved. closing prices show some improve-ment over last week. Demand has been especially keen for good quali-tied heavy feeders, and offerings in this class have met a ready outlet at prices that are about as high as any time this season. A big share of these classes have went in a range of $6.75 @ 7.10. Common stuff regard-less of weight have moved fairly well For the Week.

The season's record price for cows was made this week, several prime head selling at $7.35. Not many cows sold at $7.00 or better, bulk landing under $6.50. A small lot of mixed yearlings landed at $3.00 but the major portion of heifery stock sold from $7.65 down. Although the tone to the market for butcher classes was weak, there was a ready outlet for all offerings and comparatively early clearances were made from day to day. There has been an easier tone to the market for bulls and prices are off 10@15c for the week. The calf market opened steady the first of the week but closed 25c lower.

CREAM MUST BE FRESH.

Dairy Law Being Enforced-4 Days FREIGHT RUSH IN KANSAS Old in Winter, 3 in Summer,

Manhattan, Kan, May 10 .- The dairyman who keeps his cream till it is too stale for churning into country outter and attempts to sell it on the butter and attempts to set open cream market in Kansas, runs open cream market in Kansas, runs open cream market in Kansas, runs a serious risk this season. During the last two weeks D. S. Burch, state dairy commissioner, and his deputy, W. F. Droge, have condemned 65 gal-

W. F. Droge, have condemned 65 gallons of rancid cream and prevented its manufacture into butter.

The Kansas dairy law requires that cream be not more than four days old in the winter and three days old in the summer. Most of the cream which has been condemned was from which has been condemned was from seven to 10 days old and was either stale or rancid or showed objectionable flavors. This quality of cream, says the dairy commissioner, is responsible for the poor butter found in almost every public eating house and in many homes. In many parts of the state a high grade of butter cannot be had at any price. Creameries are equipped with the best butter making machinery but no but-this city in the past week on their way east.

According to reports given out at the general offices of the Katy here the hardware and implement dealers over this state and Okiahoma have had but a small stock on nand. They are now starting in to replenish and the eastern markets are now busy shipping them out.

These facts are getting abroad in Iowa and that is why cattle feeders and dairymen as well are demanding silos faster than builders can supply them. The school will relieve the situation and it is likely to be largely attended. Only a nominal fee of $2.50 is to be charged. It will be constant.

the eastern markets are now busy shipping them out.

During the past couple of months the weather through the southern and western part of Kansas and through Oklahoma and Texas has been such that the farmers have been unable to work. That is one reason why the demand for implements has not been so great until within the past week. Over two-thirds of the bad order cars of the Katy system are being brought to this city daily in strings to be repaired. They are not held on the switch tracks one day after having been completed, but are sent out to the various points immediately.

Daddy's Bedtime Three Little

Kittens and a Dog Caretaker

ACK and Evelyn had just finished a glorious romp with Tabby and her cute little kittens. Kittens that are well cared for are generally nice.

Jack and Evelyn thought Tabby's kittens were the finest they had "Kitty, a St. Louis cat, has a caretaker for her kittens," said daddy, "the oddest in the world for a cat, for Chubby, the pet fox terrier of the family, is Kitty's choice. "Fox terriers are usually the deadly enemies of strange cats and can scarcely be made to live in peace and quiet with those of their own family.

"With Chubby and Kitty it is very different. They have been brought up together and have had never had a spat worth mentioning. "Kitty is a handsome tortoise shell cat, and Chubby is as handsome a dog as you will find anywhere. He has always been plump; hence his name. "Not long ago Mrs. Kitty became the mother of three fine fat kittens, and Chubby's interest in the bables was amusing.

"He danced and whimpered about the box in which the little ones were and showed very plainly that he was pleased as Punch. Kitty seemed tickled that he should admire her darlings and allowed him to kiss each of them, which he did in his funny way by licking them with his rough tongue. When the kittens squealed, for they did not like it a bit, Mother Kitty gently purred to them that Chubby was a very dear friend of hers and they must be polite

"Chubby and Kitty had always been in the habit of taking their naps curled up together. It was a great deal more convenient now for Kitty to have Chubby take his nap with the kittens when she wished to take an airing.

"Cats are sometimes jealous mothers, but Kitty is not. She will go away for hours, leaving Chubby to take care of her young ones and seeming to know perfectly well that he will not leave them until she comes back. "One day while they were still quite young one of the kittens climbed out of the box and, wandering off, went to sleep by itself in some out of the way corner. As soon as he missed it Chubby began to hunt for the runaway, whining pitifully for it to come out of its hiding place. When he found it great was his joy, and very carefully he carried the squealing and kicking little creature back to the other kitties in the box.

"Whenever visitors come to the house Chubby fusses about until the kittens are shown to them, and then he looks up at them with eyes that say as

"'Aren't they the finest kittens in the world?"

When Things Come True

By Bryant C. Rogers

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Miss Blythe Halpin should have had more sense than to go to an astrologist in the first place and hand out a dollar in her hand, and in the next place she should have known better than to believe what the woman told her the stars were going to dish out

"You are going to be dreadfully embarrassed!

"You are going to meet a light-hairod man with blue eyes." "You won't like him at first, but later on you will marry him."

"You will be very happy." "The blue-eyed man is almost in love with another girl, but he will turn to you." "The stars cannot lie. They always tell the truth. Next." Fred Ward handed out his dollar balf an hour later and was told:

"You think you are in love with a girl with a turn-up nose, but it is only a passing fancy." You will meet and love a girl with gold-filled front teeth." "She will almost hate you at first sight, but do not be discouraged."

You will live in a vine-clad cottage after marriage." "But what's the matter with a twostory and basement?" asked Fred as his hand was dropped.

"Do not presume to dictate to the stars in their courses!" was the reply. "But aren't they going to have my lottery ticket hit the capital prize?"

"The stars have spoken, sir!" "Might little speaking for a dollar. I'd talk half an hour for half the cash. However, I'll go out and find the girl I'm to be almost hated by."

And he found her. It was an icy winter's day. Miss Blythe had come out to do a bit of shopping and call on the astrologist. Every shoe store carries a stock of ladies' rubbers, and every lady buys a pair or two and lays them away in camphor balls. At least, and she said the stars said I was to they never wear them when it can possibly be avoided. Miss Blythe had never thought of hers. She went sliding and slipping, and just as a young man was passing her down she came like a ripe apple. It was a kerchug of a drop. It was a drop on ice, and her hat was bounced off. She also felt hooks and eyes give way. But it was a graceful fall. She didn't claw the air nor scramble nor turn a handspring. It was a nice graceful fall, one that caused the young man who helped her up to say:

"I don't believe that one woman in a thousand can beat it!" "How dare you, sir!" was hissed at

"But you didn't want to sit there all the afternoon, did you?"

Yes, there was the light-haired, blueeyed young man!

Yes, there was the girl with the The astrologist had hit the mark right in the center, and no precious time had been wasted. Mr. Fred picked up Miss Blyth's hat and handed it to her. Had he known how he would have pinned it on her

"I don't thank you, sir!"

"Oh, there's no need!" And thus they met and thus they parted. The astrologist had said that she would be dreadfully embarrassed. Hadn't she been? The woman of the stars had said that the girl would almost hate the blue-eyed man at first sight. Gee, but didn't she want to claw his smiling face! To most young ladies it is utterly impossible to get up from a fall and walk away with proper dig nity, but Miss Blythe made a very

Mr. Ward was in the real estate business. He passed on to attend to his bargain sales, but as he headed for his office he said to himself:

"Yes, I thought I loved another, but I was wrong. It's the girl with the olden tooth I love and am going to

Mr. Ward did not lack cheek. No real estate man does. If he hasn't got he makes a flat fatture. Therefore he didn't let 24 hours elapse before calling on Miss Blythe. For the small sum of ten cents a small boy had fol-lowed her home and marked down street and number. The agent inten-ed to ask if the house was for sale.

but something happened to prevent. The girl who had tumbled was at the head of the stairs when he rang. She started down to open the door, and er heel caught and she pitched forward and went to hall floor like a feather bed. The mother came running and screaming, and Mr. Ward turned the knob and entered just as the bundle on the floor was unrolling itself.

"You-you again!" it gasped. "Yes! You cannot be much injured. You fell too gracefully for that. You surely have got the art. I called to

A month passed. Then one day Mr. cases a day are treated. Ward rode out into the suburbs to inspect a piece of real estate that had been marked down in price to him owing to the fact that it abutted on a acute attack of dizziness, sharp pains screams. Biss Blythe was riding out about, and the vehicle was skidding from side to side of the road and looking longingly at a stone wall. There was no chance to play the hero before Miss Blythe jumped. It cannot be said that she landed on her ear, but still she landed and brought up against a fence with a bang.

Mr. Ward was on the spot with words of hope and condolence, but he hadn't uttered ten of them when Miss Blythe was on her feet and saying: "You wretch, but you have crossed my path again!" "Oh, I don't know," replied the young man. "I came out here to look at a graveyard, and had no thought that you would follow me." "But it 'must stop, sir-it must

"Yes, three falls is enough!"

"If you continue to-to-"But you see I've got to. I paid an astrologist a dollar to read my hand, marry you."

"That woman-that woman!" "If you'll drop in there yourself and hand her a dollar it's shilling to pennies that she'll tell you the stars say-"I won't! I won't!" exclaimed the girl as she walked off. "I'll bet she has!" whispered Mr. Ward to himself, "and that's what she is mad about. She may fight me off for a time, but the stars are working for me day and night."

During the next month Mr. Ward did not catch sight of the girl with the golden teeth, but he was calm and content. Not for a moment did he doubt that the stars would bring everything out all right. Then the day came that a grocer's horse was given an extra handful of oats and got frisky over it and ran away. Did he run over Miss Blythe? Not a bit of it. Mr. Ward was there to grab him by the nose and twist him into a lamppost and see that his neck was propbled and fell backwards, but she was at once assisted to rise, and before she could shed a tear the real estate Elizabeth, N. J., to Princeton, for man was walking home with her and saving:

"You can't beat the stars, my dear. They say we are to occupy a vine-clad cottage after marriage, and we might as well be looking around after the vines!

Miss Iva Eichelberger, who is in charge of the new emergency room, and he was also the first to speak has made a study of the cases brought under her observation. Miss Eichelberger was surprised to see the great number of young women clerks who would stumble into her room, gasp for a bottle of smelling salts and then fling themselves upon a couch, complaining of racking headaches, story, and Prof. Neff left for Chicago necks stiff as boards, and a dizzy sen-

After brief treatment, they would recover and go back to their desks. It was then that Miss Eichelberger suggested to Chief Clerk Wilmeth the installation of an emergency room, patterned after wards in hospitals, with white enameled cots, nurses' costumes for the matrons, and a full equipment of medicines.

No sooner had the idea been conceived than it was put into effect. The matron's room was converted from a dismal, cheerless place into a bright, wholesome appearing ward that any hospital would be proud to claim as its own. Two white enamsled cots were placed along the walls. Water-proof paint turned somber walls into attractive ones, and the matrons shone even more splendidly in spotless garbs, topped off with lace bonnets. Then the attention of Miss Eichelberger was turned toward the disease itself. Test tubes were purchased, with her own funds; a microscope was procured, and the midnight oil consumed. And this is what was rerealed-that currencitis was caused by the glare of the piles of shimmering gold pieces and the dazzling silver present in the treasury. Green eyeshades now are being affected by many, and a falling off in the disease is noticeable. However, the emergency room will be retained.

The professor was also a passenger on the Koenigin Louise, returning from the Mediterranean.

As the story was told to the immfgration inspectors who boarded the steamship at quarantine, the seven young persons behaved indecorously on the transatlantic voyager. Two of the young men in the party, that always kept to itself, are officers in the kaiser's army, while one of the young women proved herself to be ing immediate immunity from the spooning-on-deck charge.

Prof. Neff was one of the cabin passengers whose years of maturity prompted him to appeal to the captain to stop the lovemaking on deck to the immigration officials, saying that young women and young men who would annoy other passengers by their cooing and billing on deck were not desirable aliens to be admitted to this country. 1,900 Per Cent Rise in Shares Startles London.

mund Davis, Back of Present Manipulation, Likes the Title and Dresses the Part.

London.-The records of quick profits made in the rubber boom have been beaten by those established during the rase in tin shares, which has been going on quietly the past year. Only now is the public, outside of the stock exchange, beginning to take notice of the tin boom, which is still far from attracting as much general attention as did its predecessor, the rubber boom, in which all London seemed to have taken a hand.

Last year Anglo-Continentals were despised and rejected, and stood at 7 an American citizen, thereby secur- shillings ($1.75). Only a few days ago they were bid for greedily up to $35. Thus the lucky person who had a thousand shares at 7 shillings, costing him $1,750, if he held them, would have been able to sell for $35,000. This is a stupendous profit and beats anything the rubber boom gave us, at any rate as far as the speed of making is concerned.

Edmund Davis, the man at the back of the tin boom, is one of the most picturesque figures in the city. He has been associated with West African properties for many years, likes to be called a "Napoleon of Finance," and rather dresses the part. He also likes to be thought a great connoisseur of art. At one time he rented the Piazzo Desdemona in Venice, and perhaps still retains it. He is almost as well known on the continent as in London. and he is supposed to be the smartest market manipulator the city has ever seen.

He was the creator of the present boom, and he is now careering round ambs belonging to the Carondelet the continent, carrying the glad news

We hope this remark

> "Numberless small people have followed Davis into tin, but the curious thing is that although they were willing enough to sell their shares when the market first rose they all now are buying back the holdings which they disposed of some months ago. Therefore, at the moment no large fortunes have been actually made out of the tin boom. They are all paper profits."

NEED OF FARM TEACHERS

Instructors of Today Not Properly
Equipped for the Work.

Washington, May 10.—The fact that national welfare depends upon agricultural prosperity and that agriculture itself is daily becoming more and more of a science reinforces the pressing demand for more and better agricultural education among the rural population. But where are the teachers of agriculture coming from? This question is rased by A. C. Monahan, specialist in rural education of the United States bureau of education in a bulletin just Issued by the bureau.

"At present nearly 2,000 high schools are teaching agriculture, the course being taken by an aggregate of some 37,000 pupfls." Mr. Monahan writes, "But in all these schools, only a very few besides those giving 4-year courses in this subject have instructors with a college or normal school training in scientific agriculstructors with a college or normal school training in scientific agriculschool training in scientific agriculture, while a large percentage of the active teachers with this training have had no training in psychology or pedagogy. Probably no one factor has greater influence in retarding the introduction of substantial courses in agriculture in all those high schools whose pupils are drawn in large numbers from farming districts than the shortage of properly qualified teachers.

"It will be several years before the

"It will be several years before the supply of men available as instructors in agriculture will be sufficient to meet the demand. Although the salaries paid are from 50 to 100 per cent higher than those for instructions in other subjects in secondary schools." "Most of the commercial mixed for. ries paid are from 50 to 100 per ries paid are from 50 per ries paid a

"It is important, however, that properly trained men be obtained. Agriliture as a high-grade science has of yet been developed into good pedagogical form and until it is so developed a higher grade, better trained teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the need.

"If a fertilizer costing $20 a ton the need teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the need teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the needed for the agricultural teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the needed for the agricultural teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the needed for the agricultural teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the needed for the agricultural teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the needed for the agricultural teacher is needed for the agricultural teacher in the needed for th subjects that of any other subject in the high school curriculum.

Men for this work need a liberal ducation in the general culture subjects, together with special training; First, in the physical and natural sciences, particularly in their relations to the science and art of agriculture; second in technical and practical agriculture and farm practice; third, in rural sociology and agriculture economics; fourth, in general psychology and pedagogy; fifth, in special agricultural pedagogy, including the history of agricultural and industrial education, the place and purpose of agriculture in the high school, the some years ago one of the representatives from the Agricultural college was visiting an up-to-date farmer in the country, and the farmer showed him a field of wheat which-illustrated this harrowing in a remarkable manner.

A storm had passed over that section of the country and about 1 1-2 inches of rain had fallen. It had been a dashing shower and had packed the surface of the ground-considerably. The grain was from 4 to 6 inches high, and the farmer had been advised to harrow the field to prevent evaporation. He sent his hired man to do the work, who hitched on to the harrow and dragged it diagonally across the field of wheat and then around the outside of the field some 5 or 6 times. He then became disgusted with the work because it appeared that he was dragging out so much grain, and reported the fact to the farmer, who ordered the work discontinued.

Find What the Land Needs Before Buying Fertilizer.

Manhattan, Kan., May 10.—You can save from $2 to $5 a ton by mixing your own fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium to your land if the soil needs only phosphorus, says L. E. Call, associate professor of soils at the Kansas Agricultural College.

"If the soil needs fertilizing," said Professor Call, a few days ago, "a farmer should determine what ele-
