WE GROW 'EM, TOO — With the announcement that a new $20 million sugar processing plant will be built at Hereford IF sugar allotments in the area are provided, interest in the crop as a second money-maker for Bailey County increased greatly. Already a few plots are grown here, more for experimentation than for anything else. This shows Ed Little in a "patch" of sugar beets at his farm eight miles west of Muleshoe.

County Growers Seek Allotments

With a $20 million sugar processing mill in prospect only 40 miles away, Bailey County moved quickly this week to seek part of the acreage to be allotted for sugar beets under a brand-new sugar allotment program signed last week by the President.

The Bailey County Sugar Beet Association, headed by Carl Bamert, sent wires to Secretary of Agriculture Freeman and officials in charge of sugar beet allotment program Tuesday, requesting sugar beet acreage for this county.

In a meeting of the board of directors of the association held at the First National Bank's directors' room, telegrams were drafted backing the joint application of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association and the Holly Sugar Company in asking for acreage allotments in this area.

The new plant which is to be built a mile west of Hereford, will be constructed if acreage assignments in this area justify the location of the plant. Otherwise the plant will not be built.

The possibility was suggested that the acreage increase authorized under the new sugar act might be given to areas where sugar processing plants already are located. By throwing the strength of the Bailey County organization behind the Holly Company and TSBGA, the directors of the association here felt that the plea for acreage increases might be strengthened.

The resolution, sent in telegrams Tuesday night read: "Be it known that on this date (July 17), the directors of the Bailey County Sugar Beet Growers Association meeting in a called session unanimously adopted the following resolution:

Bailey County Sugar Beet Growers Association hereby respectfully request the Honorable Orville Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, to grant the joint application of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association and the Holly Sugar Co. of Colorado Springs, Colorado, for new sugar allotments, and that copies of this resolution be submitted to the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association, Hereford, Texas, and the Holly Sugar Company, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Frost Boosts Sugar Content

Like cotton and persimmons, sugar beets are aided by frost. Farm experts pointed out that fact this week as Bailey County began to think and talk sugar beets. The proposed $20 million sugar processing plant at Hereford spurred interest here in the crop.

Just as cotton can stand in the fields for several weeks—or even months—after maturing without damage, so sugar beets can be left in the field until late fall or even until after Christmas. In fact, frost is said to increase the sugar content of the beets.

Hereford Gets Nod

Sugar, already a lucrative crop in portions of west Texas, promised to push into the limelight as a full-fledged big time money crop this week after a $20 million sugar processing plant was announced for the Hereford area.

The announcement of the proposed new plant was made by the Holly Sugar Corporation, Colorado Springs, and the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association of Hereford.

Both filed requests with the U. S. Department of Agriculture for sugar beet acreage reserves after President Kennedy signed the new national sugar act into law last Friday night. The new law will permit vast new acreage for sugar beets. The Holly Corporation says sufficient acreage would be necessary to produce at least 65,000 tons of sugar annually at the Hereford plant.

If the request for greatly increased sugar beet allotments is granted, construction of the new plant a mile west of Hereford would get under way shortly, and completion is expected by fall of 1964 or 1965.

The new refinery, the association pointed out, would be the world's largest sugar plant and would employ some 300 persons when it gets into operation. The mill will operate on a 24-hour basis.

Water Level Off 13% in County

Underground water in Bailey County has declined 13 percent during the last 24 years, but the depletion here is 7 percent below the average in 13 west Texas counties. Lubbock county heads the list with a 44-percent depletion for the period.

These figures were revealed this week in a report made public by the High Plains Under-ground Water Conservation District No. 1. The 13 counties are among Texas' most productive counties. W. L. Broadhurst, chief hydrologist for the district organization, prepared the figures and spotted the percentages of declines on a colored map.

The report shows that the water table has declined from 10 to 100 feet or more in 24 years in some 20 counties in West Texas where irrigation is carried on extensive ly. The area is in the Lubbock-Plainview region, and irrigation began as early as 1910. It has become widespread since World War I. The report shows that 87 percent of the water withdrawals have come during the last 12 years. So serious is the matter that the water district has backed a farmer in court efforts to secure a "depletion allowance" for income tax purposes similar to that of the oil industry.

If a serious drought should strike again, the present depletion of water could become a serious problem, the report states. But it adds:

"There seems to be no valid reason to stop pumping water on the High Plains, but if a favorable agricultural economy is to be sustained, sound efforts must be

Ego of American Tourist Deflated: Reds Ignore Him, Muleshoe Man Discovers

VISITS RUSSIA — John Gilbreath, Muleshoe, points to Russia on the world map. He and his wife spent 10 days in Red countries recently, says the Russians "ignore" Americans. (Journal Photo and Engraving)

People on the streets in Russia can do a perfect job of "literally ignoring" American tourists, but in satellite Poland, people are friendly to Americans and eager to talk with them.

That's the opinion of John C. Gilbreath, 114 W. 8th, Muleshoe, just back from two years with the U.S. Army. Eighteen months of that time was spent in Germany.

He wound up his two-year stint in the Service with a tour of Russia and two other Communist countries. Gilbreath and his wife were among some 100 lucky American servicemen who were permitted to take the tour.

"In fact," he says in describing the Russian reaction to American tourists, "I believe an American could walk down the street in Moscow wearing a bright yellow suit and he wouldn't even merit a second glance—they do such a perfect job of snubbing us."

He says an American tourist actually gets the impression that the Russian people feel sorry for him—pity him for not "enjoying" the same kind of life which they have.

Gilbreath entered the Army after he finished the University of Miami, and was assigned to the Third Reconnaissance Squadron, Second Army Cavalry Unit which now has a mission of patrolling the Czechoslovakian border on a round-the-clock basis. John was a platoon leader in a cavalry troop which actually did patrol the border.

Only so many tourists are allowed to go to Russia every year, and the U.S. government permits only a limited number to go to Russia. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbreath were among the lucky ones who got to make the trip behind the Iron Curtain.

Traveling by military bus (private automobiles are not allowed to cross the boundary), they went into Czechoslovakia by way of the very crossing which his unit was patrolling at the time. It's the only place in West Germany

They went first to Prague, stayed one day and then boarded a Russian TU-104 jet and flew to Leningrad for a three-day stay. There they saw people wimming in the Nebra river when huge

THIS AND THAT
There's a sequel to the story of the lass from Plainview who put the sheriff's offices in three counties in a state of confusion 10 days ago when she claimed she had been forced off U. S. 84 and robbed right in broad daylight. Said she was on her way to her mother's funeral when three bad men driving a car exactly like hers, crowded her off the road, and at a time like that.

Of course as it turned out there were no badmen and her mother's funeral was held in 1959. The lady wound up paying a fine for public drunkenness. Since she was not driving at the time she was "robbed" officers couldn't tag a DWI charge against her.

But now Sheriff Dee Clements tells me that during the time she was incarcerated in our county bastille she did considerable damage to that ancient edifice atop the courthouse. Apparently she didn't care for the place at all (which admittedly is no Statter-Hilton), so she set about to do all the damage she could during her brief stay here. It cost her another $50 fine for destroying public property.

Several readers have called in to suggest various and sundry methods of getting rid of gophers out at our town house, Gopher Flats Estate. There were many different kinds of suggestions, including the funnyman who said: "Try running a hose from the exhaust of your car, and to see if it's working properly, run a line

Bailey County Crop Prospect Good Despite Lack of Rain

Crop prospects for Bailey County are bright despite the fact that rainfall has not been sufficient in most areas, and many cotton fields were planted late. In fact, the lateness of both cotton and grain sorghum in many areas is about the only fly in the agricultural ointment, other than some dryland regions which failed to get planted at all this year.

On the whole, however, farm experts say the outlook is good. Lateness of the crops in some regions may bring about a race between growth and frost and one farm expert said "I just don't know whether those late-planted acres will make it or not, but I believe the chances are pretty good." A wet September would slow maturity. County Agent E. K. Adams pointed to the growing interest in crops other than cotton and grain sorghum as a further indication of a diversified program for the west plains.

Although the tomato acreage is only about two-thirds of the usual 600 acres, the crop appears to be good, and onions and potatoes are turning out well. Some of the finest field corn ever produced in the county can be seen in the Muleshoe area.

A crop new to the area is gaining favor. It's Midland bermuda grass which is being tried on 40 farms and ranches in the county this summer, many of them for the first time. The comparatively new grass is getting a ready reception by farmers here who have sufficient water to grow this succulent grass. Cattle placed on Bailey County Midland grass tracts have made as much as 1 1/2 pounds of gain per day. This new grass is recommended by Oklahoma State University which has made extensive tests with the Midland variety.

Adams says it requires at least a 25-inch rainfall or two feet of water on irrigated lands. He says here it will provide for six head of cattle per acre. Ed Little

Commissioners Approve FM Road To Serve Longview

Residents of the Longview community southwest of Muleshoe are going to get the farm road which they have been seeking.

That was assured this week when the Bailey County Commissioners met and unanimously accepted the road, County Judge Glen Williams announced.

The job of getting the right-of-way and clearing obstructions will be started as soon as possible, it was promised, and actual construction by the highway department thus can get underway.

The road, a 7.3 mile strip, will cost $120,000, the funds to be provided by the State Highway Department.

The road, which will be given an FM designation, will connect two roads—Farm to Market road 298 and FM road 746. Both of these FM roads are east-west routes.

The new road will start at FM 298, one-half miles west of Baileyboro and extend north past Longview to FM 746, thus providing a loop through that farming section.

A group of Longview citizens had met with the commissioners' court last week to request that the road, which already had been proposed by the highway department, be built.

This will provide a market outlet for a vast area which previously had not been served by a year-round highway.

The highway action took up

Babe Ruth Team Losses, 5-4

Muleshoe's Babe Ruth All-Stars lost a heart-breaker 5 to 4 to Levelland All-Stars in their opening game of the All-Star Tourney at Levelland Wednesday night. The local boys had drawn a bye, and Levelland had defeated Hale Center 12 to 2 to advance.

Jerry Childs, a third baseman and pitcher, got the game's only homer in the sixth inning.

Levelland started off with a bang to grab a 2-0 lead in the first inning which they held until the fourth frame. Muleshoe came back and tied the score at 2-all. Then in the fifth inning, Levelland again went on a scoring spree to ring up three more.

The sixth's inning was Muleshoe's all the way when Childs got a round-trip and brought in Johnny Atchinson. This brought NORTH FORT POLK, La. — Among 41 officers of the 36th Infantry Division, Texas National Guard, to complete a four-hour course of instruction in the Division Military Justice School was a Muleshoe man, 2nd Lt. Coy Garrett of Tula's Company C, 1st Battle Group, 142nd Infantry.

In charge of the school was Lt. Col. Paul E. Casseb, staff judge advocate. Instructors were Maj. John F. Tafolla, 1st Lt. William E. Livingstone, III, 1st Lt. Larry L. Bean and Sp. 4 Paul Salzberger, all of the Judge Advocate's section.

During the four hours of instruction the students were briefed on the history of military justice, the relation of military discipline to military justice, the nature and origin of military justice, general special and summary courts-martial and various appellate reviews.

The school was held after regular duty hours in order not to take officers away from units during training hours. Military justice is only one of many special subjects being presented this year in short courses during the division's annual active duty training at this pine-covered Louisiana Army post.

220 Soil Samples Tested in Area

High Plains County Farmers submitted 220 soil samples to the Agricultural Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory at Lubbock during the months of May and June, according to J. K. Adams, Bailey County Agricultural Agent. This was part of a total of 1366 samples received by the three laboratories for this period.

Adams points out that the Agricultural Extension Service maintains and operates this Soil Testing Laboratory for Bailey County farmers to use in determining their fertilizer needs. The $2.00 spent on a soil test is the most important money spent in a fertilizer program, advises the County Agricultural Agent.

Submit your samples now to determine needs for your crops to be seeded this fall, he said.

Farm Safety Week Planned

Next week is National Farm Safety week—the 19th annual affair of its kind—and sponsors have picked for the theme, "Family Safety at Work and Play."

Major emphasis will be placed upon highway and farm machinery safety.

According to the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, motor-vehicle accidents account for almost half of the fatal, but only a fifth of the non-fatal injuries to farm people in the United States each year. In 1960, 11,300 farm residents died from accidents and 950,000 suffered disabling injuries. Of the total fatalities, 5,100 resulted from traffic, and 3,300 from work accidents.

The Council points out that studies of accident reports show that over 90 percent of all accidents involve some human failure—improper attitudes, carelessness, lack of attention to rules and many others.

Accidents, the Council continues, are the leading killers of young people from ages 1 to 36 and rank fourth in total deaths. From 1950-60, nearly a million persons died in accidents, 95 million suffered disabling injuries, and 3.5 million were permanently handicapped. America's cost, $100 billion. But no dollar total can hope to appraise the priceless value of human life, nor can it comprehend grief, loneliness and pain. No purpose is served by accident losses. And most can be prevented, emphasizes the Council.

Safety is no accident and the accomplishments of rural leaders and cooperating farm families and organizations in their work to reduce accidents was cited by the Council. During the past decade, an 11 percent decrease in the farm resident death rate has resulted from this cooperative effort.

But warns the Council, we still have a long way to go to give farming and ranching a safety record equal to other national industries. Until every rural resident makes safety his business, our cooperative efforts must be continued, they add.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our neighbors and friends for their kind deeds and their Christian thoughts, and the ladies for bringing the food and preparing it for everyone. God Bless everyone for being so kind during the loss of our loved one, Walter Victor McMahan, Jr.

chunks of ice from up north were floating past. The people, clad only in skimpy swim suits, were practicing for Russia's big day—May Day when all Communism flexes its muscles. This was in April.

One of the interesting places visited was an old Catholic church in Leningrad which is now turned into a museum called "History of Atheism and Christianity." This is the very church in which czars of Russia were crowned before the days of the revolution. He says all churches in Russia—except one percent—are used

The Glibreaths flew next on another Russian jet to Moscow and spent four days there, touring the Kremlin, Red Square and Lenin's tomb. Incidentally, he saw Russians stand in a line a mile long, three abreast—and in a constant rain—to file past Lenin's bier.

He said the Kremlin is a well-kept structure. In fact, John said the most noticeable thing on the whole trip was the cleanliness of the Russian towns. All had a fresh-scrubbed look.

As to the people in Russia, he said they were happy, content and extremely patriotic. "They have faith in their country, and the most surprising thing that I noticed was the total indifference of the Russian people to the Westerner. It's just as if we didn't exist at all; Almost as if they actually feel sorry for us."

He said another surprising thing was that the dress of the Russian people is "adequate" but not stylish. This lack of style he attributed to the Russian's dislike of caste, and clothes with style would be a badge of caste distinction.

A second thing that surprised him was the freedom of the Russian people—within their own country. "If a Russian has the money he may go anywhere and do whatever he wants to so long as he is in his own country." Pay, too, is ample, he says, and those who go to school work hard and many are given opportunities to go to other communist countries. At the moment, Glibreath says, the ambition of the young and adventurous is to go to Cuba to help with the Cuban cause. It's almost as if they want to be missionaries.

"So completely ingrained in nationalism are the Russians that it is impossible even to discuss issues with them," he says.

"They think all the things which we have heard about communism are lies. Back them into a corner in an argument, and their answer is, 'I have a difference of opinion,' or 'that is not for me to discuss; next question, please.' Just like that. You can't argue with them at all."

There are two ways in which Glibreath thinks America is missing the boat:

1. "We are too concerned with how much production—or lack of it—plagues the Russians in the matter of food, cars, TV sets, etc. We should remember that not many years ago—15 to 20 years—Russia had no production at all, and from that they have built a society and an economy which today is one of the strongest in Europe. That position was reached on the literal sacrifice of the people."

2. "In education of youth we are missing the boat. In Russia, youth are given every opportunity to develop any natural trait, skill or ability they may have. The government pays for everything and the pupil merely concentrates on his education." He cited as an example a block long building for the training of youth who show talent in dancing. They spend all their time in pursuit of this artistic training.

He says there is no unemployment in Russia so far as can be detected. "This is due partly, however, to the virginity of the country," he says. "Much of it is still undeveloped, and while cold, it makes ideal new farming land."

As for food, he says the tourists obviously got the very best possible in order to create a favorable impression. One of the reasons for restricting the number of tourists annually is the lack of food and housing.

"Our hotel accommodations ranged all the way from silk-covered walls in the finest hotels to shabby, unkept rooms fortified with bedbugs. In Moscow we stayed in one hotel which had no dining facilities; in order to eat, we had to drive 10 miles downtown to another hotel."

John says construction everywhere in Russia is proceeding at a dizzy pace. Most of the construction is in the form of prefabricated houses, and so hastily are they put up that a four-foot wire mesh extends over the sidewalk from the roof of a new structure to protect pedestrians from any possible falling bricks.

He says if a Russian helps build a structure—and much of the work everywhere is done in "spare" time—the builder is given an opportunity to receive an apartment in that building—maybe. Incidentally, each person in Russia is authorized to have nine square meters for living space, and all housing is in apartments; there are no individual homes.

After their visit in Russia, the Glibreaths flew to Warsaw, Poland, a beautiful country where the people are friendly. "In Warsaw we found an entirely different attitude toward the Americans," he says. "There the people are very friendly, and they like to tell us that they will never fight Americans."

Although Poland is a Red satellite, some free enterprise is permitted: Anyone is authorized to have a business provided he employs no more than five Polish people.

Warsaw was almost completely destroyed during the war but has rebuilt and is an ultra modern city. Last year, 28,000 Americans visited Poland, so "the Polish people have a close kinship with Americans," he sums up. He says they like to dress in western style and are intensely interested in America.

In Poland 90 percent of the people are Catholic and only three percent are communists.

The Glibreaths returned to Muleshoe after his separation from the army recently (he was a first lieutenant when discharged) and he is to be associated with his father, Rufus Glibreath, in the seed and grain business. His father has lived here for 31 years.

also into your car. Keep all the windows closed, and when you begin to get groggy you can know that the fumes are doing their work in the gopher holes."

And there have been suggestions of various patent rodent killers, including a circular marked "for your special attention at Gopher Flats." That company, according to the circular, makes a gopher killer that kills 'em dead.

Mrs. Joe Vaughn also recommended a chemical—pellets manufactured by a Michigan outfit.

Fortunately—at the moment anyway—the gophers have gone elsewhere to play. As a result our dandelion and carless weed lawn is flourishing again. In fact, the dandelions and carless weeds are giving even the goatsheads a tough run for their money now out at Gopher Flats Estate.

Around Muleshoe I've already discovered there are a lot of practical jokers. For instance there was the day that one of the town citizens gave me what he called the "lowdown" on one of the prominent business men in the town. Almost had me believing it, too. Made me wonder what kind of a town I had moved to anyway, if a man as bad as this one was pictured was one of the leading citizens! Of course later I found out that these two fellows take delight in "ribbing" each other and they are the best of friends.

Which reminds me, has anybody seen Frank Ellis' new money-clip that some of the "boys" were kind enough to have engraved for him? I've seen a lot of moneyclips in my time (most of them empty) but I have never seen one engraved as Frank's is. (When I saw this one, incidentally, it had two $1 bills in it.)

As I was saying, sometimes you gotta be pretty rugged.

Wendell Tooley, publisher at Littlefield, likes to run his favorite jokes now and then in his column. Well, here's my favorite newspaper story:

Seems a cannibal tribe in Africa captured a newsman and prepared to make him into stew. As the pot was set to boiling, the cannibal chief walked up to him and asked, "In America what did you do for a living?"

The shaking newsman replied, "I was an assistant editor."

"Good", said the chief, "then you are soon to get a promotion. You will be editor-in-chief."

Rev. J. Frank Peery, Methodist pastor here who is on a six-weeks tour of Europe, had soft drinks served him on his flight Monday from Lubbock to New York, as a result of several years' campaigning by the Muleshoe minister.

Seems each time Mr. Peery would fly somewhere on a commercial line he was offered all kinds of drinks, all of them hard. Each time he would write the airlines office afterward to voice protest.

Recently the very same thing happened again, this time on Braniff's lines, and again Mr. Peery wrote to ask why the hostess never, never served soft drinks. He told them he had booked flight again on a Braniff plane to New York, but he didn't give the date of his flight.

Braniff's P. R. boys looked up Mr. Peery's reservation and then wrote him last week to inform him that this time Coca-Cola was being stashed away in the aircraft's refrigerator just especially for his use on the Lubbock-New York flight.

"At least," said the minister, "I won a personal victory."

pointed out, are highly pleased over the prospect of a new sugar processing mill only a short distance away, and if acreage is allotted to make the plant possible, sugar beets may add another important source of income to farmers in this county. The Bailey County association, it was pointed out, had not sought the plant for Bailey County. "It is sufficient for us," the president said, "that the plant is located here on the high plains, and we shall do all we can to co-operate with the mill if it is built."

It was pointed out that an acre of land will produce 20 to 25 tons, and this would mean that 40,000 acres would be necessary to provide the 65,000 tons for the mill's full-time operation.

Much experimenting with sugar beets in this county has been carried on, and tests have proven that Bailey County can produce the beets as well as any other county in west Texas or eastern New Mexico—water and soil are ideal, and transportation is excellent.

The farmers also are pleased with the side products of the sugar beet industry—forage for cattle. The tops—and even the beets themselves—make excellent cattle feed.

The Holly Company plant will be located on a three-section tract just west of Hereford. It is in an area which abounds in limestone, it was reported. Limestone is essential to the processing of sugar beets into sugar. Doubtless this was another factor which induced the Holly company to announce tentative plans for the mill. Too, the Hereford area has been producing sugar beets for some 15 years and also is shipping beets to the company's other plants.

eight miles west of town, has had 25 head on six acres for two months, and the cattle are making rapid gains.

Some concern is being expressed for grain sorghums which are being hit heavily in some areas by boll worms. In some fields,

For several years the Holly Company has been buying sugar beets in the Hereford area, and the firm has been considering a new plant in this general area for some time. To keep such a plant in full operation, acreage allotments would have to be increased throughout west Texas and eastern New Mexico.

In addition to asking for more acreage allotment, Holly also has allotment, in accordance with the new law, to permit it to distribute sugar produced at the proposed new factory.

Sugar beets have been grown here for several years in small plots, but if the new allotments are approved doubtless many farmers in Bailey county will ask for sugar acreage allotments.

Through the test plots, farmers have proved that sugar beet production is feasible. Ed Little, a farmer living eight miles west of Muleshoe, exhibited sugar beets on his farm which are of high quality. He is growing "just a few rows" for test purposes.

Merrill E. Shoup, president of Holly, and James W. Witherspoon, representing the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association, both said they hope prompt and favorable action will be taken by the agriculture department on the new applications.

"We have made an exhaustive study of the West Texas-eastern New Mexico area which would be served by the proposed new facility near here," Shoup said, "and we are convinced that the potential for a successful operation is here. We must depend, however, upon favorable action by the government on the applications submitted to . . . support an economic unit in the area under consideration."

He said the company's specialists in factory construction and operation, "agriculture and other fields have made detailed studies of all aspects of the proposed project, and their findings are the basis upon which we have taken the initial steps announced today."

Witherspoon said his organization, which is supported by farm and business men throughout the area to be served by the new sugar beet factory, "has spent many months working for the establishment of such a plant in the Hereford area."

He added: "We have worked to the infestation is heavy. Adams is recommending that farmers keep a close check on the insect and when the infestation reaches the 50 percent level, they should consider poisoning, he says.

ward the end that new legislation would provide for new areas. . . . and we have sought to interest a processing company with the necessary know-how to construct and operate a . . . factory. We are extremely encouraged and pleased by the . . . steps taken."

The Holly Corporation is one of the nation's two largest sugar beet companies and is currently operating 10 factories—five in California, two in Montana, two in Wyoming and one in Colorado.

F. Z. Beanblossom, Extension poultry marketing specialist, suggests a marinating sauce for barbecued turkey. He says to immerse cut-up meat in a sauce consisting of two parts sauterne wine or lemon-lime fizz water, one part soy sauce, and one part peanut oil. Add lemon juice to suit the taste and garlic cloves, if desired. There should be enough of the sauce to completely cover the meat. The specialist suggests leaving the meat in the marinade for at least two hours.

This same sauce, he adds, can be used in cooking whole turkeys on a spit. Just brush it on the bird frequently while it is cooking.

Barbecues featuring turkey meat are easy to prepare either for a small family picnic or a large community gathering, and any size turkey from 4 to 24 pounds can be barbecued. Beanblossom recommends that the larger birds be boned or disjointed and marinated several hours before barbecuing.

TOTAL LOSS — This 1955 Pontiac, owned by 1st Sgt. Ozey D. Young who with his wife and two sons were on their way to California, was a total loss after being involved in a collision Friday the 13th of July. A 1959 Ford passenger car driven by a Plainview man headed east on "Killer" Highway 84, 10 miles west of Muleshoe and near Lariat, collided head-on with the Pontiac which was in its own traffic lane and nearly stopped. Sgt. Young and his family were on their way to his new station at McClellan AFB, California following a 46 months' stay in Spain with the Air Force. Shown on top of the Pontiac are their total possessions. Muleshoe Motor Wrecker Service brought both vehicles to Muleshoe and provided the above photo.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

Jury duty is an experience everybody ought to have. In a criminal case twelve jurors have a duty to do justice as each one sees it, and yet be unanimous in most trials both sides have much to say, and the evidence is conflicting. The twelve jurors vary in their ability, temperament, character, education, and their experience in the world, and in the question at stake.

Yet a jury made up of both sexes, with wide age and educational differences, jobs and origins must all come up with the same verdict. Upon their verdict much depends—the life or liberty of others, and the public good. So it may take them days of talking among themselves, all to agree.

Jury duty calls for insight, common sense, courage, tact, fairness, patience, (especially toward the jurors who disagree with you), good humor, tolerance, balance willingness to hear others out and change one's mind, readiness to go over and over the facts to find something to bring agreement. In short, jury duty demands a "decent respect to the opinions" of others.

More and more women share civic duties, especially as jurors. Time was in Texas when women could not serve on juries. They still cannot in four states. A jury finds facts. It hears and weighs evidence and then comes to a verdict. It does not make the law—the legislature does; and he judge "charges" or instructs the jury concerning the law applicable to the particular case it is considering.

The judge will tell you not to find the accused guilty until he is proved so under strict rules of evidence. If you have any "reservations" — not imaginary or far-fetched—acquit the accused.

Civil cases do not demand a moral certainty, merely the "preponderance" of what you regard as reliable and believable evidence.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

ATTACK ON ALCOHOLISM — Part 3

The Woman Alcoholic Has Own Problem

Editor's Note: The medical view that alcoholism is a disease is widespread among the general public. But there's a habit, or tradition of the eternal double standard, the disease in the eyes of the public seems more unforgivable in a woman than a man. This and other special problems of the woman drinker are examined in this third article in a five-part series.

By JOY MILLER
Associated Press Women's Editor

She is rich, respected, a patron of the arts.

Don't try to reach Clarissa in the afternoon though because she stays in her bedroom with formidable "headaches." Her grown children and devoted husband urge her to see a doctor. She gently but firmly refuses.

Mary lives in a conventional split-level house in the suburbs with three small children and a husband who doesn't like to come home anymore. Unkempt house, children running wild, humiliating scenes—he's thinking about a divorce.

Karri is a smart career girl who knows her way around. She downs a stinging shot of whisky every morning to face getting up, and snatches periodic pickups during the day. "I can always cut it out if I think it's getting the upper hand," she insists.

These three women — women who might be your friends, your next door neighbors, even your wife—are alcoholics.

Up to 2½ Million
Three out of how many? Some experts estimate there are one million women alcoholics. Others say perhaps 2½ million about the same as for men.

Dr. Marvin Block, chairman of the American Medical Association Committee on Alcoholism, thinks the ratio between men and women could be about 50-50. He says the currently accepted ratio of one woman to five men is very misleading. The low figure refers primarily to clinic patients, and women are much less likely to seek help in public for a problem than men, or their families, try to hide from the world.

A spokesman for Alcoholics Anonymous, which does not break down its attendance figures according to sex, says, however, that more and more women are now attending its meetings.

"It's bad enough to see a man drunk—but a woman!" This is an American proverb H. L. Mencken traced back to 1907. But it sums up the double standard attitude prevailing today.

The medical view that alcoholism is a disease—and should be treated as a disease—hasn't overcome the mass opinion that problem drinking in women can be equated with vice and moral turpitude.

Yet it's not the blowsy slatterns who make up the bulk of women alcoholics. A recent study shows only 3 per cent of all alcoholics are females. Alcoholism in women cuts across social, age and economic strata, with the average woman alcoholic of better than average intelligence and income.

Why is the number of women who drink compulsively apparently increasing?

For one thing, drinking has been moved to the home from the saloon — where, you'll recall, it was, "Daddy, dear daddy, come home with me now," never mommy.

Now, predinner cocktails are an evening ritual in which the wife joins. At parties the good hostess is one who keeps each glass filled with doubles, her own included. And to keep terribly gay, she can slip herself extras in the kitchen while her husband tends bar.

Anthropologist, Dr. Margaret Mead points to the mass movement to cities and suburbs as a contributing factor.

A woman brought up in a community having social and religious sanctions against liquor, where "good women and ladies don't drink," moves to a larger, less protected, more sophisticated environment. She gets lonely.

When her husband, usually a commuter, makes it home, he wants a few cocktails to unwind. Tentatively she joins him.

Becomes An Escape
As time goes by, alcohol becomes her comfort, a way to pass the time, an escape from lonely reality and, finally, a necessity.

She knows by now it's poison for her, but she can't give it up. Her life has one aim, drinking. Her time is devoted to outwitting the enemy—usually her family—which is trying to keep her from the one thing she wants most.

Housewives sometimes can hide their secret sickness from their husbands a long time. Through an alcoholic haze they can tend children, get chores done and buy liquor undetected through clever economies in the household budget.

But eventually the day comes when the husband finds her drunk. He is disgusted. If she fails in her promises to give it up—and unless he seeks outside help failure is almost inevitable—he is likely to pack up and leave.

Men are usually less patient than women about alcoholic mates. Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the National Council on Alcoholism, has found. And there are always the children to consider.

Says Dr. Fox: "Because of the closeness of children to the mother, they are apt to suffer irrepar-

Study at High Plains Research Seeks Commercial Sunflower Seed

Farmers throughout West Texas may be growing sunflowers as a cash crop in the near future, if scientists at the High Plains Research Foundation are successful in their attempt to breed improvement varieties for commercial use.

The sunflower plant, which was being used by the Indians when the earliest European explorers discovered North America, offers considerable promise as a potential cash crop for West Texas. Of particular importance is the fact that it is drought tolerant plant well adapted to our soil and climatic conditions. It can be grown with less water than most other crops such as corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, cotton, and castorbeans.

Several hundred plant types from Russia, Canada, Chile, Columbia and South Africa are under study at the Foundation. Dr. Earl Collier, chief agronomist, and Barry Love, assistant Agronomist and Paul Belcher, technician are conducting the plant breeding program. Superior plants are being self-pollinated for use in developing high yielding varieties adapted to complete mechanization. The goal of the breeding program is to develop varieties that can be harvested with a regular grain combine.

The sunflower seed could be marketed as an oilseed crop to oil mills, sold directly to feed mills, or consumed on the farm as feed for poultry and livestock. The whole seed is an excellent feed for poultry and livestock. It contains a higher percentage of total digestible nutrients, protein, and fat than many other feed crops, particularly corn, oats, and wheat.

Sunflower seed contain approximately 30 percent oil or fat, which is classified as a very high quality semi-drying oil, and approximately 22 percent protein.

The oil is used in the manufacture of drugs, shortenings, salad dressings, oleomargarine, and liniments. The meal or flower from the sunflower seed is an excellent source of protein, minerals, and vitamins. It contains above 50 percent protein, is unusually rich in calcium, an excellent source of thiamine or vitamin B1, and particularly outstanding in its supply of niacin. From the standpoint of nutritional value, sunflower meal would be a very desirable ingredient in human food products.

On commenting about the future of sunflowers as a crop for the future, Dr. Collier stated, "sunflowers could be an important cash crop for the farmers of West Texas, since it can be grown with less water than most crops." "With our declining water table throughout the High Plains of West Texas, crops of this type will be essential in our farming program in the future."

Farm Safety Week

In order to be effective, Farm Safety Week—which will be observed July 22 - 28 — must be more than a seven-day interval on the calendar. The special week has been designated to call attention to the menace of rural accidents which taken many lives and cause much pain and loss of work, time and money each year. It's true objective, however, is to promote a year-long observance of safety practices which would make farm life safer and happier.

Co-sponsored on the national level by the National Safety Council and the U.S. Department of Agriculture and on the state level by the Texas Farm & Ranch Safety Council, the Texas Farm Bureau, and the Extension Service, the 19th annual Farm Safety Week has as its theme "Family Safety — At Work and Play." The Journal is glad to be among the many newspapers helping in the campaign to draw attention to the need for the year 'round observance of safety practices on the farm and ranch.

Accidents in American farm homes take about 2,700 lives a year, according to the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, and some 3,400 persons are killed each year doing farm work. This is in addition to the 4,700 farm residents who die on the highways in non-work accidents.

An extra measure of carefulness could prevent many of these tragedies. Proper observance of Farm Safety Week should make farmers and ranchers more alert to the hazards to which they are commonly exposed.

Medicare Opposed

Advocates of the proposal to provide medical services to everyone drawing social security benefits — whether they need them or not, or want them or not — often say that the opposition comes from a relative few, who are motivated by selfish economic or political reasons.

What is the actual case? (The bill was killed in the senate Tuesday, but President Kennedy says he will take the issue to the people between now and the November elections.)

Senator Goldwater of Arizona offers an answer. His mail, he writes, has been running three-to-one against the bill.

And he is not alone. He cites the mail received by two other Senators — one from Nebraska, the other from Indiana — following the President's Madison Square Garden speech urging passage of the bill in dramatic and impassioned words. One Senator's mail ran 298 to two against. The other's racked up a 274 to 28 opposing votes. Similar trends were demonstrated in letters from other states.

From this Senator Goldwater concludes that "the American people know perfectly well the dangers of socialized medicine and want no part of it." The American people have every reason to take that view. The experience with socialized medicine in Britain has hardly been reassuring — it has been characterized by soaring costs and a grave decline in the standards of care. And the enormous growth of voluntary health insurance, including the new plan, sponsored jointly by Blue Shield and the American Medical Association for providing it for the elderly at very moderate rates, is another potent element in cementing opposition. Finally the Kerr-Mills bill, passed by the last Congress, answers the question of how to help the truly indigent, by setting up a joint federal-state plan that has been widely accepted in the brief span of time since its enactment.

Farm Bureau Leader Urges Wheat Farmers to Vote in Referendum

Bailey County Farm Bureau is urging all eligible wheat producers in the county to cast their ballots in the July 24 wheat referendum.

"Only by exercising their right to vote in this referendum can wheat growers actually have a voice in their farming operations," Jack Schuster, president of the Bailey County Farm Bureau, said. He emphasized that the organization is not attempting to tell farmers how to vote.

"The Farm Bureau believes that all producers should know the facts, then vote their own convictions," the county farm leader said. "Basically, the choice in the referendum is between and more freedom in individual Schuster said that only a small percentage of eligible growers had voted in past referendums. Across the nation, only 20.2 percent of those eligible voted in 1960, and only 26.7 percent last year.

In Bailey County, only 22 percent of eligible voters participated last year in the 1962 wheat referendum. Out of an estimated 400 eligible voters, 48 voted in favor of marketing quotas and allotments while 40 voted against.

The county farm leader urged wheat growers to consider the following facts before casting their votes:

(1) Quotas have not prevented surpluses—after nine crops have been produced under marketing quotas, the wheat carryover is about 1.3 billion bushels and total supply about 2.4 billion bushels. The surplus has increased because the price support for wheat encouraged increased production and the acreage allotment program has not been effective in curbing production.

(2) Wheat is in trouble with taxpayers—Some 34 percent of the $7.2 billion in CCC stocks is invested in wheat. The wheat export program, costing an export subsidy of 57 cents per bushel, is most expensive feature of the entire farm program. Cost of wheat program has become a serious public relations problem for all of agriculture.

(3) Controls lead to ever-increasing restrictions—In the past many growers have been willing to go along with the wheat quota program because acreage cuts were limited by the 55-million-acre minimum provision, and also because diverted acres could be used for feed grain production. If the 1963 allotment had been set according to the supply formula in the law—that is, without the 55-million-acre minimum—it would have been 10 million acres. In the bill just rejected by the House were provisions to eliminate the 55-million-acre minimum allotment so that allotments could be 20, 30, 40 per cent or more, and to require producers to idle land with rental payments made at a declining rate.

(4) Producers need to look ahead—The alternatives facing producers in the forthcoming referendum are heavily weighted on the side of a "yes" vote, if pro-

Doctor, Lawyer, Merchant, Chief All May Strike But Not Farmers

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm considers some new aspects of the strike, his letter this week reveals.

Since I don't even know very much about what's going on in Muleshoe, I'm in no position to know what's going on in that province up in Canada where the doctors struck, but the thought has occurred to me that a strike by doctors opens up a vast and baffling new field.

Farmers aren't likely to go on strike, for a very simple reason. They have built up such a huge surplus that it would last longer than they would. With enough food already on hand to run a couple of years, farmers would have to strike for three years at least to make the pinch felt, and they aren't in financial shape to do it. This is just another edge the doctors, movie queens, labor bosses, etc. have over farmers.

By the way, the newspapers aren't planning on striking, are they? I need to know, as there's no sense in me writing you if you're going to shut down in protest against something.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Farm Facts

Of 12 to 13 inches of average annual precipitation in the 17 Western states, only about 30% contributes to the fresh water supply.

According to J. S. Robbins of the Agricultural Research Service, much of the moisture evaporates from soil, water, and plant surfaces. The rest infiltrates the soil and is transpired back into the atmosphere by vegetation.

An additional inch of water for plant use could increase Western wheat production up to five bushels per acre.

Scientists are studying plastic or mechanical barriers to control water or vapor flow to the soil surface and are testing chemical or physical treatments of soil to inhibit water loss.

At Tempe, Ariz., they're experimenting with sprays to sterilize the soil and kill weeds, stabilize it to prevent water infiltration, and make it water repellent to control erosion.

Ground covers of butyl rubber sheeting or asphalt-coated jute fabric are being used in Utah to move runoff from small areas into reservoirs or special basins.

'Big Tex' To Welcome World To Texas Fair In October

Big Tex, the gigantic cowboy who symbolizes the biggest State Fair of them all, will "welcome the world to Dallas" in October.

"Exposition of Nations" will be the theme of the 1962 State Fair of Texas, October 6 through 21 in Dallas. Now in its 77th year, the Fair is the nation's largest annual exposition in terms of attendance.

The "Exposition of Nations" theme, which will be carried out in exhibits and activities, will emphasize the international flavor and world renown of the State Fair. Foreign exhibits will be featured at the 1962 exposition in the Texas International Trade Fair.

A nightly special event will be the "Torchlight Parade of Nations" around the fairgrounds. The twilight parade will be elaborate with marching bands, beauty queens, gaily decorated circus animals and illuminated floats, including one for each foreign nation exhibiting at the Fair.

The international theme will be carried out in music and pageantry in the Fair's major special events—the Texas Music Festival, Dallas Symphony Spectacular Circus Night, and East Texas on Parade.

For Fair-time the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts has scheduled one of the most important exhibitions in its history. This will be "Arts of Man" a survey of the entire art history of the world.

Decorations at the main gates to State Fair Park and throughout the fairgrounds will mirror the "Exposition of Nations" theme, as will downtown Dallas decorations at Fair-time.

As the oldest of the State Fair's international features, the tenth Exposition will be an integral part of the "Exposition of Nations" celebration.

A folder listing highlights of the 1962 State Fair may be obtained by writing Publicity Department State Fair of Texas, Dallas 26.

EASY TO SET UP TAKE DOWN TAKE ALONG

By VERN SANFORD
This column is going to be about Old Micropterus Salmoides. He's better known as the black bass, and is called the large-mouth by many.

But "black bass" more nearly expresses the intimacy of the affection with which he is held by almost all Texas anglers.

In other states, he is known by such names as the bronzeback, the green trout, just plain ole trout, linessides or bigmouth.

He's a scrapper — peculiar, temperamental, greedy — but a real prize on any fisherman's line. There's no mistaking what's got your bait when Old Micropterus latches on and heads for the nearest cover.

Texas lakes, rivers creeks and tanks harbor uncounted millions of black bass. Far too many of them are much too smart to be caught. Everybody wants to catch them but not everyone is successful. And no fisherman catches blacks every trip out.

Large or small, black bass put up a battle that tires a strong man's arms and breaks good tackle.

Black bass are found nearly everywhere in Canada, in the Mississippi Valley, the plains of North Carolina, the swamps and glades of Florida, south of the Border down Mexico way, and in most all the lakes and rivers of the Lone Star State.

He gains enormous size in Florida. Even though the world's record black — 22½ pounds — was caught in Georgia, Florida is known as the Black Bass State.

You'd never guess it, but the black bass is related to the sunfish family. However, he doesn't look very much like his pee-wee relatives.

The black bass is a pot-bellied rascal with a large mouth. His jaw extends back beyond his eyes. He has vertical bars and dark spots on his sides, and soft spiny dorsal fins that are almost separated.

When taken from clear-water lakes and streams, black bass are dark green on back and sides, shading to silver and yellow-white belly. In clear water the broad black band on each side is very distinct. If the water is muddy, however, all colors are paler and the stripes rather indistinct.

Black bass usually spawn in Texas during the second year of life. Slow developing fish may hold off until the third year. They spawn in two to six feet of water.

Like many fish, the male takes charge of the family raising. For a nest he fans out an indentation in the sand or mud two or three feet wide and about six inches deep. Once the nest is completed the male defends it ferociously.

Only when the water reaches 65 or 70 degrees temperature does spawning begin. Two to seven thousand eggs are laid to each pound of female, with the large females producing the larger the plastic worm—the most successful bait for many big-bass fishermen. Fish the deep holes under rock ledges, backwater and sluggish tributaries, especially where dead tree stumps, lily pads and brush abound. From day-light to 8 or 9 a.m., and from 4 p.m. to dark, ordinarily, are the best hours to fish.

Learn to be a good black bass fisherman and you will be considered tops among your contemporaries. More prestige is attached to having black bass know-how than to any other form of Texas fresh-water fishing.

It takes lots of casting practice, many days of fishing, and a concentrated study of black bass habit to make you an expert black bass fisherman. So go out and start fishing for black bass now.

Spawning is irregular, but when the nest is filled with eggs, the male takes over during the eight to ten days of hatching time. He doesn't eat, but lies still, or gently swims back and forth across the nest, watching for any predators. During the nesting period the black bass is especially susceptible to lures dragged across the nesting area. He will attack with unusual force and ferocity.

Ordinarily a nest produces about 5,000 young. Papa takes charge of the small fry until they are about an inch long, then turns them loose on their own. After that they are not only the lawful prey of ot her fish, turtles, garfish, and other predators, but also supply the own brothers and sisters with easy meals.

Black bass eat all sorts of things as a natural diet. These include insects, crawfish, small fish, frog, mice, and sometimes little ducks and goslings. The small fry, however, eat insects almost exclusively.

Most fish grow rapidly, and black bass are no exception. On the average they grow to about five inches during the first year. In an environment where there is lots to eat, a young bass may—in one year—reach up to eight inches, sometimes even more. After three years, most bass, unless in an overcrowded lake, will tip the scales at more than two pounds.

Black bass are perhaps the angler's most prized catch. Certainly so if you exclude such localized species of game fish as rainbow trout, pike, salmon, and a few others.

Because the black bass is so widely distributed and is so well known by so many fishermen, live-bait and artificial-lure devotees alike, he is the first one thought of when game fish are mentioned.

Artificial lure anglers take black bass on just about every sort of tackle. Bait casting rods from five and one-half to six feet were once very popular. Now, however, the spinning rod has found wide acceptance. Then, of course, there is the fly rod.

Bait-casting rods should be equipped with fast-tip action, a lightweight reel and 10 to 20 lb. test nylon line.

Spinning rods of six and one-half to seven-foot lengths, with fast-tip action, and 6 to 19-lb monofilament line are popular among bass fishermen.

As for fly fishers — tubular glass fly rods from seven and one-half to nine feet in length with either fast-tip or power-plus action are recommended.

Proper bait covers a wide range for this voracious fish. All the live baits previously mentioned, plus the following artificial lures and flies are sure-netters: wet and dry flies, bass bugs, sinking lures, floating diving and surface lures. Also, spoons, spinners, bucktails, and pork rind. And let's not forget

Miss Maxine Maltby will arrive Thursday from Sterling, Colo., for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Maltby. She will be accompanied by Miss Sally Johnson, who will spend part of summer here.

in Marketing

COLLEGE STATION — James E. Kirby on July 1 became economist-marketing and policy for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service with headquarters at College Station.

In making the announcement, Extension Director John E. Hutchison said Kirby would give general leadership to the Service's educational programs in marketing and policy and would work with the county extension agents of the State on problems and programs in his field. He will also work with organizations in the same areas, Hutchison added.

The new specialist is a native of Alabama but has spent most of his life in Deaf Smith county. He is a graduate of Hereford High School; attended West Texas State College before graduating from Texas Technological College with a BS degree. He has completed a 11 formal class work at Texas A&M College for a doctorate in agricultural economics and sociology. In 1960, he was a member of a team from the United States which was sent to Europe by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to study market operation under Public Law 480.

From 1940-57, Kirby operated his own farm in Deaf Smith County and specialized in steer grazing and feeding. His experience in practical agricultural programs has been very extensive, Hutchison said.

The Kirby family resides in College Station.

- Your Health -

Ever since the first spark of life appeared on this earth, cancer has been one of the most fearsome, most enigmatic diseases mankind has had to contend with. But we know more about it than is generally realized. We know enough, in fact, that a diagnosis of cancer need not be considered a sentence of death.

We know that all types of cancer are different since they affect different tissues of the body. We know cancer has no respect whatever for age, although it does occur more frequently after 40. Conversely, we know it ranks high as a cause of death among children.

Cancer is not inherited, although at times occurs in families.

We know that cancer is not contagious or communicable from one person to another. We know that certain agents or conditions will cause certain types of cancer or are factors in causing cancer.

For example, exposure to sunlight over long periods of time (farmers, seamen) is known to cause skin cancer. Certain chemicals such as aniline dyes may cause cancer in experimental animals.

An injury or prolonged irritation of the mouth or lip area such as sometimes comes with habitual pipe smoking is also a factor in causing cancer. Prolonged exposure to x-ray or radium may also cause cancer of the skin or other parts of the body.

Perhaps the most important thing we know about cancer is that many cases can be cured by irradiation with cobalt, x-ray, or radium or a combination of these techniques. Rapid strides are now being made in treatment of certain types of cases with chemical compounds.

Since it can be cured, why do more than 10,000 persons die in Texas with cancer each year? Because by the time the disease is recognized it is too far advanced for effective treatment. Many of these persons could be saved by early diagnosis and treatment.

If this one cardinal fact could be dimmed into the minds of people until it moved them to have periodic health check-ups, cancer deaths could be greatly reduced.

TODAY'S MEDITATION

When Christ taught the apostles the Our Father, He gave them the one great prayer which He wanted us to use as the regular and ordinary way of speaking to God. The Lord's prayer is the only prayer that Christ composed for our usage.

Christ used other prayers too, as we see from the Gospels like the high-priestly prayer after the Last Supper. These prayers were His own, and Christ did not enjoin them on us, although we may use some of them.

We have many prayer formulas—the liturgical passages, the psalms, the Hail Mary, the rosary, and any number of prayers composed by our spiritual writers. They are good and helpful.

Every good man will have the highest respect for them and use them with fervor and devotion. The Our Father has the unusual distinction of being the only prayer composed for us. It is so small wonder the apostles considered it one of the most precious gifts of their beloved Master.

From the very beginnings of Christianity, the people were taught to recite it three times a day with great devotion, substituting it for the Old Testament prayers which the Jews said every morning, noon and night.

Thus the original morning and evening prayer in the early centuries of the church consisted of the Our Father.

If you consider the meaning of each petition, if you try to understand what it contains and what follows from it; you then realize the truth of that statement which a hermit made in the fifth century: "The Our Father is the greatest book of meditation that the Lord gave us. I have continuously used it for my meditations in the past and I am still a long way from exhausting the spirit."

From the earliest centuries, the Lord's prayer that was recited before the faithful received Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. Why is the Lord's prayer so closely connected with the Apostles considered it fitting to use this hallowed prayer, which the Savior Himself had taught them just before receiving the Holy Eucharist.

If you truly wish to live with Christ, you will make the Our Father, the precious jewel of your prayers, both at public liturgical functions and in your private prayer.

The Reverend (Fr.) Clifton J. Corcoran, Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, Muleshoe, Texas.
