Enthusiasm creates pleasure in business. Why not enthrust?

Take a crack at Mr. High Cost of Living by producing more hogs and cattle.

The business man who does not advertise is much like the man with blue goggles winking at a girl—he knows what he is doing but the girl don't.

The great live stock question of today is visible supply and distribution. Avenues of distribution are much greater than visible supply, therefore, produce.

One of the greatest qualities for the success of men in the live stock business is sincerity. They are about the only class of business men whose word is as good as a bond.

This is an age of publicity and everyone is an involuntary advertiser. Advertise your business and advertise your city and utilize The Stock Yards Daily Journal to do your advertising.

An optimist is a man who has learned to make orangeade from lemons other people had them. You can also accomplish the same result by making the sun shine on the shady side of the street.

POCKET MONEY FOR BOYS. Young men who can get ten dollars or sometimes twenty dollars a week in the city, are attracted away from the farm. We should give them something of their own to induce them to stay, and let them keep the profit for pocket money. Boys should be allowed a certain amount to spend as they like, although not foolishly. They should have bank accounts. If the young men are given some interest in the farm or the market garden, that would help very materially in solving the vexed labor problem.

THE VILLAGE CLUB ROOM. Every village should have a club room where the men and boys of the place and the farms can meet their companions. Such a place would do more to advance the cause of temperance than any other one thing. The saloon with its gilded bar and cheerful fire and lights to snare and rob boys of their money and character would soon lose its charm if they had a club room in which to meet their friends and companions. People who talk loudly against the saloon evil might open up the basements of their churches, provide a good reading and rest room, furnish coffee, papers and books and run in opposition to the saloon. If elimination fails meet the saloon evil by direct competition.

BANK SYSTEM FOR FARMERS. David Lubin, the California capitalist, who is America's delegate to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, believes strongly in the European co-operative banking system for farmers in this country as well as abroad. He came from Rome to speak to the Southern Commercial Congress at Nashville on the plan, setting it forth in very attractive form. In Mr. Lubin's judgment the farmer's principal grievance is that outsiders control the marketing of his products because he is unable to borrow money sufficient to finance him, and enable him to hold his products himself, instead of letting them go for what he can get for them and turning over to "big business" the advantage of holding them and thus cornering markets or fixing prices. And the reason, he points out, that the farmer is unable to get the money is that he lacks the proper rating at the banks. Now, under the "Raiferson system," as he describes it, in Daddy's Bedtime Story—The First Frail Butterfly Of Spring.

Daddy smiled. Jack and Evelyn had been telling him that just that morning they had seen a butterfly. "It's pretty early for butterflies to be out, isn't it, daddy?" they asked. "Yes, it is, but little Spring Azure likes to get up early. He is the first butterfly to wake in the spring. As soon as the first wild flowers bloom in the woods you will see the little blue creatures flying gayly from flower to flower. "Now, where do you suppose the little blue butterfly comes from? Well, last year the babies of the Azure butterflies tied themselves up in little silk blankets and went to sleep. Not all of them lived through the winter, but some of them did, and when the warm sun that woke the flowers was felt by the sleeping babies they began to force their way out of the little cradles. "Like all butterflies when they wake up thus, they were quite weak and had to perch for awhile on the plant to which the cradle was hung while they got their wings into shape for flying. At first the wings were wet and wrinkled, but by shaking them out the air soon dried them. "The wings are a delicate blue, so like the color of the sky that the butterfly has been named the Spring Azure. Another name given to the butterflies is Lycaon. It is their family name. "Lycaon was a king of long ago. He lived in the far off time about which now we have only stories that sound like fairy tales. It is said that he had a great many sons. Some say that he had as many as fifty. "Lycaon was not a good king. He did not treat his people well. He had cruel ideas about religion. He thought it pleased his god to kill people, so whenever he went to pray, which he did at an altar builded on a beautiful high mountain, some poor creature, generally a prisoner he had made in one of his wars, was killed on the altar. "But Lycaon's god hated these awful killings. He loved all human beings, and he was so angry with Lycaon for his wickedness that one day he turned the wicked king into a great ugly great old man with long white hair and a long white beard and became the father of all wolves that have lived ever since. And Lycaon's sons were also changed in form, and some persons thought that they became butterflies and lived among the flowers, because in their lives they had been so fond of pleasure and seemed to have so little good sense. "Of course this is only a story, but when the dainty blue butterfly was named some one may have thought of this old story and named these little winged creatures so because at different seasons there is quite a change in their looks." "vogue for many years abroad, farmers for miles around combine their resources, pool their interests and get a financial status and rating on which they may borrow the money they need at reasonable rates of interest. How well the system might work in the United States is debatable, but the principle of it really does seem commendable. We have been hearing a good deal about how the "middle man" and the "big business" baron were usurping the fruits of the farmer's labor. Whether such a system would tend to release the farmer from their grasp a trial of it would soon demonstrate. Yet, as a whole, the lot and opportunity of the American farmer are far ahead of those of the European.

DISCOVER NEW WATERFALLS

One Has a Fall of 500 Feet—in California's New "Yosemite."

Orville, Cal., April 3.—Bringing back reports of wonderful new waterfalls discovered and of great trees fifty feet and over in diameter, Walter Braden has returned from an expedition into the Bald Rock Canyon district of the middle fork of the Feather river, which has acquired fame as California's new Yosemite. According to the reports brought back by the Braden party, the great waterfall which was recently discovered, is but one of a number of giant cascades which are reported upon a tributary stream to the middle fork in an even more inaccessible portion of the district, that another fall, fully 500 feet in height, was found. The falls have a "vertical drop" about as great as the first fall, but carry less water. In the same district another waterfall with a drop of 50 feet was found, while there were several falls with a drop of over 50 feet. All the foot of each fall were magnificent cascades extending great distances. In addition to the great waterfalls and towering precipices of the Bald Rock Canyon, giant pine trees were found, some of them fifteen feet and over in diameter.

HIGH COST UNDER KNIFE.

seventeenth Operation to Be Performed at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 2.—The high cost of living, that scourge which has been eating the vitals of society since clam shells first came into use as a standard medium of barter, has been chosen for discussion by the savants who go to make up the roster of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, which will hold its seventeenth annual convention here on April 4 and 5.

LULU LONG BUYS STARMORE

Well-Known Horsewoman Picks Up a Champion Roadster.

San Antonio, Tex., April 2.—San Antonio as a center for fancy horse breeding is rapidly coming to the front with victories at various horse shows for local animals as well as with the steadily growing interest in the affairs of the San Antonio Driving Club. One of the latest demonstrations of the growth of the horse game here was the sale last week of Starmore, owned by W. C. Lane, to Miss Lulu Long of Kansas City, one of the best horsewomen in the Middle West. Starmore with Starlight was exhibited by Mr. Lane at the Port Worth horse show as the champion pole team entered. Starmore won eleven blue and one red ribbon during the show. Owns Lane bought Starmore a few years ago and himself developed the animal over San Antonio roads.

ORGANIZE MICROBE FIGHT

California Cities Arrange for Sanitary Spring Cleanups.

Sacramento, Cal., April 2.—Several cities in California have begun making arrangements for spring cleanups as a sanitary measure for the summer, the breeding time for microbes. Dr. W. F. Snow of the state board of health is keeping a record of these cities and has noted that Bakersfield was the first to take up the work. Sierra Madre, Berkeley, Coram, Chico and Richmond also have commenced campaigns.

HAS FUN WITH SPEEDERS

Missouri Boy Makes Life Miserable for Fast Autojuts—Rifle Sounds Like a Puncture.

Kansas City, Mo.—Farmer boys in the vicinity of Oak Grove have a new trick which they are playing on city autojuts who burn up the county road in that section. Henry Sieben, with Mrs. Sieben and William Wolf, former alderman, and Mrs. Wolf, while motoring along the rock road in the eastern end of the county recently had the trick played on them. "I guess we were hitting it up at about a 50-mile clip," said Henry, "when I distinctly heard a puncture. I whistled for brakes and stopped the machine so suddenly I nearly lost my guests. "Did you hear anything?" I asked Billy Wolf. "You've got a tire puncture somewhere here," he informed me, thereby confirming my worst suspicions. It's a puncture sure," said the women, and then I knew I was on the right track." Sieben said he got out his testing apparatus and other tools and started in to locate the trouble. All of the tires were found intact and the former wharfmaster was puzzled and somewhat worried, when Wolf discovered the cause of the "tire trouble." It was a grinning boy who stood behind a convenient tree by the roadside in his hand he held a rifle, which he evidently just had exploded into the air as Henry's machine whizzed by. "What'll we do, drown him?" asked Wolf. "Never," ordered Henry, climbing out from beneath the machine where he still was searching for a break of some kind. "Be a good sport. Let him nail the next sucker."

BELL 200 YEARS OLD FOUND

Believed to Have Been Presented to Queen Anne to Trinity.

Newport, R. I.—There has recently been found here a bell bearing the date of 1712 and marks that would indicate that it once belonged to Queen Anne and was presented by her to Trinity church of this city. The bell has been stored away for years under a stage in the church guild hall. While a few knew that there was an old bell there, no one thought that it was of any importance until it was hauled out and examined by Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, now rector of the parish, a few days ago. It has the appearance of being made of bronze and silver and is in an excellent state of preservation. It is two and a half feet high and besides the date has a broad arrow mark, which is understood to have been on all the bells given by Queen Anne to the American colony churches. Another bell the church got from Queen Anne was melted up some years ago and used in moulding another, now used in the church clock. No record of the other bell can be found. Another Trinity church historic relic has also recently come to light. Years ago in the church there were two quaint mahogany armchairs that had been brought from England. These later were stored away and when the late Henry Morgan Stone was rector he found one and put it in use again. No trace of the other chair could be found until this week, when a local dealer in antiques found it in his shop. He has since presented it to the church.

BREATHE LIFE INTO BODY

Doctor Restores Infant That Had Been Pronounced Lifeless by Physician.

New York.—After a family physician had pronounced dead a baby born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rafets of No. 339 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street, the husband telephoned Sydenham hospital and Dr. Harry Fried responded. He sought to induce respiration by various means and was unsuccessful after an hour's effort. "I'm sorry," he said, "but I can do nothing." The mother's tears roused him to renewed efforts. He breathed into the baby's lungs, and a half hour later, when the physician was almost exhausted, the baby began to cry. That was Thursday night. Friday Doctor Fried called at the Rafets house and both parents embraced him. The baby was equally lustily. Little Josephine will live, the physician assured them.

STRANGE REQUEST IS MADE

Woman Asks Government to Repair Piece of Paper, Apparently Torn From Bill.

Washington.—The capitol of the United States is in receipt of one of the most extraordinary requests received in many years. It comes from an Ohio woman whose name the secretary of the senate has for obvious reasons declined to make public. It calls upon the "Capitol of the United States" to repair a piece of paper, about two inches wide, evidently torn from the end of a dollar bill. The secretary, who has fallen heir to the mission, says he has handled many documents, delicate communications and "has his goat." It has been recommended that the communication be referred to the senate committee on banking and currency, but the secretary does not look upon the suggestion favorably, and retains the letter.

BELL STIRS A BALKY TEAM

Minnesota Man Gets Out of a Deep Rut by Fooling His Horses With Fire Alarm.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Columbia Heights is a suburb of Minneapolis and for fire protection depends principally upon a volunteer organization, with Maude and Dick, a team owned by Phil Stack, to pull the department's wagon to the few fires. Both horses have come to know the tone of the fire bell and what it means for them. Recently Stack was hauling stone and the wagon dropped into a deep rut. Maude and Dick refused to move the load. Then Stack tried a new plan and sent a boy to ring the fire bell, one block away. The result was instantaneous. Maude and Dick yanking it to the next block on the gallop.

WITH THE WOUNDED

Victims of Balkan War Saved From Death by New Surgery.

Wonderful Work of Doctors and Nurses at Hospital in Belgrade—Men Shot Through Head or Heart Often Recover.

Belgrade, Serbia.—The human side of war, as shown in the improvised military hospitals of Belgrade, presents many touching scenes. Every school in Serbia has been turned into a hospital. Here, where there are a great many wounded from the battle of Koumanova, and from the skirmishes about Monastir, not only the schools, but every available building, including the local barracks and a sugar factory, has been transformed into wards with neat rows of white beds. Practically every country in Europe has sent a corps of surgeons and nurses to the war. The United States has done its share by contributing to the work of these devoted Red Cross tollers about $12,000—more than any other nation. The surgeons are all greatly interested in their cases, for modern warfare, with small, powerfully driven steel bullets, presents remarkable wounds. At the time of the American Civil war arms and legs were lopped off by thousands to prevent blood poisoning. In these days of antiseptic surgery there is almost no amputation. One soldier was shot through the middle of the finger; his whole finger has been saved. A number were struck when firing from lying posture, the bullet passing through the head, straight down through the heart and out at the thigh. The lives of several so wounded have been saved. It used to be considered fatal to be struck in heart or head. In these hospitals there are men who have been shot right through heart or head and who will recover. Often it is not considered necessary to extract bullets which have lodged in the body. The wound is simply disinfected and allowed to heal. Nothing is more significant of the fine quality of the Serbian peasantry than the speed with which their wounds have cicatrized. The surgeons are amazed, and lay the phenomenon to pure blood, untainted by alcohol. Many brought here within the last two months have recovered, and gone back to the front. One of the most interesting hospitals is in charge of the Russian corps, in the local exposition building. Nearly all the nurses here are women of good family, a number of whom got experience in the Russo-Japanese war. Enter this ward. That blond young woman ironing sheets near the door in the corridor is the daughter of the Russian ambassador. These are wounded Serbian officers in here. It is the visiting hour. In Serbia, it is the custom to congratulate a soldier who receives a wound. In comes a dumpy old peasant woman, her wrinkled face beaming, and drawing forth an orange from her clothes she toddles straight toward one of the beds, where follows a tender greeting between her and her soldier son. Speak to this handsome young fellow. "Yes, sir, I was one of the 60,000 Serbians who went to help the Bulgarians around Adrianople after our own work was done. I was wounded in a skirmish in the trenches. But you should talk to that officer over there. He is a major and a hero." "I got my wound at Koumanova—or, rather, my five wounds." His face lighted up with pride as he spoke. "We had driven the Turks back that day and at night they tried to retaliate. We charged them through the dark and I was caught in their volley. The Serbian officer, sir, is always at the head of his men." In the next ward are some private soldiers nearly well. One is playing a rustic flute and other are dancing "kolo," the national country dance, with some of the pretty Russian nurses. Here are more serious cases. That old man—what is he doing here? "Yes, sir, I am a 'last defense' man. I was engaged with others in the rear guard, burying some dead, when a band of Moslem villagers suddenly fell upon us. I was shot before I could drop my spade. We drove them off, though, and they ran up into the hills." Upstairs is a large ward of Turkish wounded. Do not imagine because Russian sympathies are with the Serbians that these stricken enemies get any the worse treatment. On the contrary, it is almost as if the doctors and nurses took a pride in being kind to these vanquished ones.

AS TOLD BY A DANCER

When She Danced, Her Brain Was as Busy as Her Nimble Toes.

By JOHN FRANCIS MACKENZIE.

When Lottie danced her brain was as busy as her toes. Her famous snake dance had been the rage in London and New York during the season.

Lottie had always known that she could dance. But that money was to be made in dancing had seemed an absurd idea—would have seemed so, if anybody had suggested it to her.

The young fellow in the second row of the stalls, with the foolish, dissipated face, was watching her again. She knew him, though he did not know her; in fact, she knew him intimately, and she reflected on this with a little smile of amusement which the audience mistook for a stage ploy.

Seven years before she had been a saleswoman in Bryant & Jones' department store. It was a big store and treated its employees fairly well.

She had been looking forward to the time when they were to be married and live in their little home, when Lottie would not go to work any more.

Then Young Mr. Jones—the one with the foolish face, in the second row—had seen her and asked who she was. And he had taken her out to supper.

Can a girl love two men at the same time? Perhaps Lottie really loved neither. She was very fond of slow, easy-going Joe, but this was different. Joe soon discovered where she spent these evenings.

"Not unless your mother and father are willing," said Lottie. Poor, simple Lottie! Here she was practically refusing the only son of a millionaire, and just out of foolish principle.

But that was the way in which she had been trained. Stay, though, how very unprincipled it was to throw over Joe, just for the comfort that Young Mr. Jones could offer her!

She was sure now that she had always been in love with Joe. But eight years ago Lottie had not been certain at all, and Young Mr. Jones, with his foolish face, had possessed an indescribable glamour.

Anyway, her action was disastrous for Joe, because he did just the sort of thing his easy-going, slow-moving mind would have been expected to suggest to him.

"Indeed! Does she nibble the stub of her pen while in the throes of composition?" "Worse than that. She not only nibbles the stub of her pen, but she nibbles chocolate creams as well."

No Frills on It. "Was the testimony in that case cumulative?" "No, sir; it was just the plain stuff."

Goes the Limit. "Indeed! Does she nibble the stub of her pen while in the throes of composition?" "Worse than that. She not only nibbles the stub of her pen, but she nibbles chocolate creams as well."

No Frills on It. "Was the testimony in that case cumulative?" "No, sir; it was just the plain stuff."

My dear, you are far too capable a young woman to throw yourself away on a foolish boy like Alfred. Look at him. Do you see the limited cranial index? Meaning to say, don't you perceive that you have hooked a bad one?"

Old Mrs. Jones said: "The store is in my name, and if Alfred marries you he will get nothing. And Alfred could never earn an honest dollar in his life."

FARMERS HIRE SOIL EXPERTS

Illinois Agriculturists Accept Offer of Federal Aid. Bloomington, Ill., April 3.—Illinois farmers are rapidly awakening to the importance of soil conservation and maintaining the fertility.

"I'll leave it to Alfred," said Lottie, and Alfred burst into tears and knelt at mamma's knee; and old Mrs. Jones petted him and caressed him, and Alfred did not look up at Lottie. When she had left the room old Mr. Jones stopped her in the hall.

"Will a couple of thousand dollars settle it, my dear?" he asked. Lottie shook her head and walked out of the house, and for weeks old Mr. Jones lived in daily fear of receiving a lawyer's letter.

"You had your chance years ago and lost it, I'm Lottie!" Young Mr. Jones looked as though he was going to cry again. But Lottie had already forgotten him.

She got into the taxicab that always waited for her and was driven rapidly to the modest little flat that she rented in Harlem.

Then she went into the living room and bent over a man who sat reading in an arm chair, and kissed him. She had come in so softly that he had not heard her.

"I've got good news, Lottie," he said. "The doctor thinks I'm getting better. He says I'll be as strong and well as ever in six months more."

"You dear old Joe," said Lottie, brushing away her tears and kissing him again. (Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman.)

THIS BURGLAR WAS WELCOME

Victim Would Give Anything for Another Visit From the Night Marauder.

"I know a burglar—that is, I met him once—who can have anything I've got if he will only visit me again," said the hollow-eyed man.

"I was in bad shape. For months my arch-enemy, insomnia, had held me in a death grip. I was in the midst of one of my very worst nights when the burglar came."

"I had been lying for I don't know how long trying to imagine I was asleep, which was the nearest approach to sleep I ever got these nights, and had just about succeeded, when my burglar scraped his foot against the wall."

"I opened my eyes and saw him sitting on the window sill. I knew he was a burglar, but I wasn't scared. 'You can run away with the house itself,' I said, 'if you'll let me sink into a doze again.'"

"He understood right off how it was. 'Tough, ain't it?' he said. 'I've been there. In fact, I'm just getting over a nasty attack and have half a dozen sleeping powders in my pocket now. A doctor I tried to hold up one night gave them to me. They're the best I ever tried. If you like, I'll let you have one.'"

"I did want one, so the burglar turned on the light and mixed the powder with a little water. I gulped it down. 'Thanks,' said I. Then, as I fell back on the pillow, I said: 'Go ahead and help yourself.'"

"He did, but he was very considerate. He only took my watch and a roll of bills from my trousers pockets. In payment he left the other five sleeping powders."

"They were worth the price. They put me into such fine condition that I have slept like a top up to about two months ago."

"Now insomnia has me again and I have no more powders nor the address of the burglar's doctor. I wish he'd rob my house again."

STRAWBERRY CROP IS HURT

In Ozark Country 1913 Yield Will Be Lighter Than Last Year. Monett, Mo., April 3.—According to reports made to the Ozark Fruit Growers' Association, composed of several hundred leading fruit growers in southwest Missouri and northwest Arkansas, the strawberry crop this season will not be as large as the bumper yield that was harvested last year.

A number of discouraging reports have been received from growers in many districts, the principal reason for the decrease this year being attributed to the drought during the latter part of the summer, which has caused the rows to become thin.

Many of the fields are spotted, the plants having been killed. The plants in all the fields are reported to be in excellent condition, bearing well crowned and rooted, and the berries are expected to be of good quality.

The full quart crates will be used by a majority of the growers this year. The season for picking will be about the usual time and shipments in car lots are expected to begin about May 10.

ROBS 'EM WITH FISH POLE

California Burglar Drags Trousers Through Open Window. Long Beach, Calif., April 3.—The burglar whose intrusion horse's hoofs covered his tracks to and from houses which he intended robbing, and the barefooted burglar, whose later mysterious appearance in Long Beach so puzzled the police, have shown more ingenuity than the "fish-pole" robber who has made his appearance here and by the aid of a long fish pole and a set of hooks, reached open windows and withdrew the trousers of the sleeping occupants.

In the pockets of the garments were bills amounting to from $5 to $20. San Francisco police officers in this novel manner, his trousers, which he found on the lawn, were riddled of $20 in greenbacks.

SAYS ICE KILLED CATTLE

Believes the Loss of 50,000 Head in Blizzard Due to Suffocation. Hastings, Neb., April 3.—That the 50,000 head of cattle lost in the recent blizzard in western Nebraska was largely due to suffocation instead of exposure to the extreme cold, is the belief of W. E. Merritt, who has just returned from his ranch in Custer county.

"There has never been a storm in the history of the state like this one," Mr. Merritt said. "It formed in the nostrils of the animals and completely checked respiration."

"With the aid of two hired men I saved my entire herds of about 200 cattle. We simply knocked the snow and ice from their nostrils and eyes and prevented the loss of the whole herd by suffocation."

OLD LANDMARK TO GO.

Historic Homestead of Van Winkle to Be Torn Down. Patterson, N. J., April 3.—Cornelius Van Winkle's homestead, built in 1770 close by the banks of the Passaic river, in Patterson, used by Washington and Lafayette as headquarters during the Revolutionary War, has been ordered torn down by the building department.

The old homestead of rough hewn timber and cut sandstone quarried by hand, has stood for 142 years, and now the stone walls threaten to collapse and injure visitors.

The floor timbers are twenty-two inches wide and three-fourths of an inch thick. The mill was carried away by the flood of 1814 and the old homestead flooded but not seriously damaged.
