STRONG TONESTEERS

GENERAL TRADE, UNDER LIGHT SUPPLIES, STRONG TO 10c HIGHER.

HANDY WEIGHTS AT $8.30

Plain Heavy Beaves Rather Slow—Cows Steady to Lower—Best Heifers Strong—Stockers and Feeders Active.

Beef cattle trade displayed activity and strength today with a rather meager supply on sale. Estimates called for only 100 head of cattle all told at this point, a decrease of 300 compared with last Thursday.

Steers formed a good share of the marketable offerings today and general quality was not as good as yesterday. Buyers all seemed to be looking for the handy weight and yearling kinds, and there was little delay in getting the market under headway.

Everything considered ready, but there were a few exceptions where plain heavy beaves and some of the lighter classes lacking in fat and weight.

The top for the past two weeks on steers other than yearlings. A drove of mixed yearlings, weighing around 1,000 pounds, brought $8.15, and another lot of lighter weight yearlings went to the scales early at $8.10.

Two cars of 1,300-pound beaves at $8.10 were regarded strong and possibly 10c higher by the salesman. A drove of unfinishes steers and stags that sold at $7.55 were quoted merely steady to strong and some rather plain steers selling around the $8.00 notch were thus regarded by a portion of the selling talent.

COWS, BULLS AND MIXED. This department of the trade drew a light supply of cattle today with a few exceptions, however, was dull and lifeless. Buyers extended further pressure on the better classes of cows and sales at $8.25 and up were regarded weak to 10c lower than yesterday.

CATTLE AND HOGS SCARCE. H. C. Brandt Reports Little Marketable Stock in Worth County.

The supply of both cattle and hogs in Worth county, Missouri, is below normal for this season of the year, according to H. C. Brandt, who was in from that county with a carload of light, short-fat steers.

Relative to crops, he said: "Our prospects for good crops, as a whole, are excellent. Corn is a little late but is coming along at a rapid rate and the acreage that required replanting is not a large one."

There was a strip of country about a mile wide and several miles long in the northwestern part of the county that was visited by a disastrous hailstorm a week ago Sunday.

FOREST LAND TO FARMS

GOVERNMENT UNABLE TO UTILIZE 350,000 ACRES IN WESTERN NEBRASKA.

ARE TOO MANY SAND HILLS

But Tract Is, However, Valuable for Agriculture and Will Be Thrown Open for Settlement.

North Platte, Neb., June 3.—Ten years ago the national government started to grow a great forest in western Nebraska. Nearly half a million acres of land were withdrawn from homestead entry and the announcement was made that within a few years western Nebraska would have a vast forest which would provide lumber and fuel for the balance of time.

The great plan has proved a failure. Nebraska's prospects of becoming a great lumbering state are becoming dimming. The government has acknowledged it cannot make trees grow in the sand hill country, and the experiment has all completely failed.

Thousands of acres have been planted on the project, and all there is to show for the expense are a few puny trees. So complete is the failure the government just has announced 350,000 acres of the lands destined to become "forests" have been returned to the public domain and soon will be thrown open to settlement as farming and grazing lands.

At the rate the work has been carried on more than 35,000 acres would be required to make forests of the size of the one at North Platte. After ten years of work about thirty acres have been planted to trees and about twenty acres are used for nursery purposes. This is at a rate of about ten acres each year. And there were 350,000 acres to be made into a forest.

And even these eighty acres do not show returns for the big sums invested. Instead of the giant pines promised by the department when the work was undertaken, the species known as "jack pine," of which many thousands were grown, are from one to two feet high. Poplar, cottonwood, and locust trees are from five to seven feet. Only about 40 per cent of the jack pines lived at all. The remainder dying shortly after being planted. And the few that do survive only those which could be irrigated have proven of any worth at all. Those which could not be irrigated are stunted in growth and show every indication of degenerating to such a degree as to be fit for neither use nor ornamentation.

The government planted its own seed, which was the first undertaken by the government and western Nebraska was chosen for the tryout of the plan because conditions were so favorable out in this country. The experience showed three years would be required to grow plants large enough to transplant to the hills, if such was used. Plants by the thousands were shipped in from South Dakota and Minnesota. Employees of the department visited the forests whence these seedlings came in order that they might see that the trees were properly cared for when they were removed from the ground. Every precaution was taken to insure their safe removal to the forest reserve.

For the first three years all went well. The trees lived, thrived, and grew. In one of those years—1906—Charles A. Scott, then chief of the Nebraska forestry station, said: "Let me say that we cannot attribute any of our failures to weather conditions. In fact, the summers have been favorable and the winters dry."

Now for several years the great body of land has been leased to cattle men as a "range," while those in charge watched the slow growth of the trees and their fellow workers made planted.

According to official reports from Washington on the land, with the exception of a paltry sheep ranch, is to be opened for settlement later on in the year. The land lies in a body owned by the Burlington railroad, is known as the best grazing lands in the state.

GOT $8.15 FOR BEEVES. Robert Thompson—Markets Lead of Heavy Steers at Good Figure.

Robert Thompson, who handles considerable live stock on his farm in DeKalb county, Missouri, was here Wednesday with a load of heavy western bred steers, showing good flesh, that sold at $8.15. Mr. Thompson had but $1.15 per head margin to feed this drove of steers on but was pretty well satisfied with the outcome as the cattle made an unusually good increase in weight while in his hands.

The feeders were bought in Nebraska about the first of last October. They weighed at that time 1,000 pounds per head and cost $7.00 per head. Mr. Thompson reports a very promising outlook for crops in his section of Missouri.

TOP LAMBS FOR KANSAS. H. A. J. Coppins Markets Double of 70-Pounders at $7.15.

Top clipped lambs on the market yesterday were furnished by H. A. J. Coppins, who is in the sheep commission business at the Wichita, Kan., stock yards. There were 277 head in the shipment which averaged 70 lbs. and brought $7.15. Mr. Coppins bought these lambs about a month ago at $5.00 per head, just about the same as they realized him here. He still has, however, the wool shorn from them, amounting to seven pounds per head, which is worth twenty cents per pound. Mr. Coppins, who was here looking over the yards, says that he will come out a little ahead on the deal, when the wool is sold.

Nebraska is the second state in the union in producing alfalfa. Kansas takes first place with an average of 1,900,000 tons.

Nebraska and Kansas really have no rivals in the production of alfalfa. Colorado is third, with an average of 500,000 tons.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Why the Fairy Thought She Would Stay at Home.

THE FAIRY STARTED TO HUNT A HOME.

THERE was a faraway look in daddy's eyes as Jack and Evelyn came over to his chair. Daddy had heard a good deal of loud talking from the corner where they were working over a new puzzle.

"This so!" "Tain't so!" "Once upon a time," daddy began, with that faraway look still in his eyes, "there was a dear lovely fairy who got tired of her pink rose petal palace in fairyland and thought she would go a-visiting among mortals."

"A family of wasps had come to live on a tree near the palace, and she said that the buzzing of the wasps disturbed her."

"Very well," agreed the fairy queen; "you just take a look around anywhere you choose. If you think you can find any place nicer than fairyland you are welcome to live there."

"Well, this little fairy flew away from fairyland till she came to a nice white house in mortal land. She lighted on the windowsill."

"I don't wan' to a very cross little voice replied. "Dear, dear, I shouldn't want to live in that house!" the fairy cried and spread her wings and flew on till she came to a nice dark green house with vines growing all over it.

"This looks nice and peaceful," she said, and she settled down on a honeysuckle vine near the door.

"But, oh, alas, a little boy and girl were on the porch, and the little boy and girl couldn't agree at all. The little girl screamed, and the little boy stamped his feet on the porch."

"Well, the fairy looked around a good deal. But at the end of the day she made up her mind that she would go back to fairyland. She said that while the wasps did make a good deal of noise she could stand it better than the quarrelling of human crosspates."

WHAT FAMOUS SIEGES COST

Reduction of Fortified Places, Stubbornly Defended, Means a Fearful Loss of Human Life.

No details are yet available of the losses incurred in the reduction of Adrianople by the Balkan nations, but they are bound to be enormous.

In 1877 the Russians besieged two fortified places held by the Turkish troops. Kara was carried by a surprise night attack, at which the Russians lost 2,300 men.

The great siege of Sebastopol in 1855 was a desperate affair. It lasted 11 months, and in that period the Russians had 84,000 men killed and wounded, while the French and British besieging forces lost 69,000.

At Delhi the British loss was 4,350 killed and wounded. The siege of San Sebastian cost 2,900 men, and the famous siege of Rochelle, carried out over four centuries ago, cost no fewer than 20,000 men.

GOOD TIMES OF THE PAST

Peddler Laments Fact That Easy, Living Has for Him Been Left Far Behind.

He came towards me over a shoulder of the lonely South Downs, a little old man with back bent beneath the weight of the pack he carried.

"Mornin', mister," he remarked. "She"—with a wave of his arm towards a distant cottage—"she called me a 'awker!'"

"Oh, indeed?" said I, rather at fault, for a hawker was exactly what I took him to be.

"A 'awker!' he repeated, as one who strives against incredulity. "And me a peddler, with my father a peddler afore me, and 'is father afore 'im!"

"All the difference!" he snapped. "Why, I'm known as a peddler in 'most every South Down village between 'ere and Eastbourne. I covers this ground reglar, winter and summer, year in and year out. I peddle —I don't 'aw'k!"

"Peddlin' ain't what it was though," he went on, good temper returning to him as he spoke of his wares. "Now, in my father's time, there was 'good money to be made—specially if you was at all friendly with the smugglers, like 'is was. But now," he added sarcastically, "what with edification what helps folks to write direct to shops for what they wants, and what with advertisements in the papers, and the pos'office and moty cars—why, it's lucky for me I ain't got no family to keep, that's all."—Answers, London.

THAT YELLOW ROSE

Also a White One—Emblems of Success Love and Happiness.

"You have my ultimatum, daughter. When young Randall makes a man of himself and shows some pluck and ability in business, I may change my mind. Until then—"

Examined the Object. While her tender heart ached to think of sending Selden away like a lamb among the Philistines, she knew that it would try and test him, and make him the stronger for the real battles of life.

"I'm an old bear!" growled the colonel, left to himself. "Spoiling the happiness of those two children! As if I couldn't afford to start them out in life, with all fortune has favored me! Of course, Selden has no income, but a good deal will finally come out of the estate in litigation.

"The colonel fell into a sad reverie. He winced as he thought of the jolly, big-hearted Daniel Randall, the father of Selden. He recalled how, in the old days, he himself had reveled in the high play of anti-reconstruction times, when a man afraid to bet was thought a cad.

"Dear," she said, "we must respect papa's wishes—no correspondence until you have made a business record. When you feel that you have conscientiously made it, send me a token—a rose."

"No, a white rose," replied Marcia. "I have read a pretty story somewhere that white was the emblematic guerdon of a soul strong to meet and master temptation. The red rose is too much the color of wine," she added, meaningly. "When the white rose comes I shall go to papa, and then—come back."

privations meant. He was too proud to send to home friends for money. For a week he descended the scale—from hotel to lodging, from that one bleak, stormy night to the shelter of a vacant building, hungry, faint and discouraged.

It must have been nearly daylight when a shot in the street without startled him, then shouts. And then one of the shabby windows of the place was crashed through. A heavy object struck him, nearly stunning him.

It was a valise. It bore several travel-worn tags. On a silver plate near its handles were the words, "Woodbridge, Palmer Terrace."

One glorious morning just six months after that, Marcia Danvers received from the postman at Lisle a little box. With a fluttering heart she ran up to her room. The writing upon the box she recognized at once. She tore off the wrappings, removed the cover, and viewed the first token received for over half a year from her lover—a rose.

A rose, but a yellow rose. What did it mean? Puzzled, then perturbed, and then anxious, she tried to solve the enigma—in vain. And then, the next morning, Selden Randall himself appeared.

"But the rose—not the white one?" challenged Marcia, as soon as the first greetings were over. "Selden reached into his pocket and drew forth his hand, overflowing with bright, shining golden pieces. "The yellow rose," he said, "means success. The white rose," and he drew a box from his pocket—"I dare not give it to you until I know that I am forgiven."

"For what?" asked Marcia, in fear and trembling. He told her of his first downfall in the city—his last in that line forever, and then of returning to the wealthy Joseph Woodbridge a valise containing over ten thousand dollars looted from his house by a burglar, who, hotly pursued, had flung it through the window of the old rookery.

"Mr. Woodbridge has become almost a father to me," explained Selden. "I have a settled position, my path in business life is a sure one. Can you take the rose, Marcia?" "Yes, and wear it next to my heart. Oh, my dear, I am so happy, so grateful!" "And orange blossoms, too!" said Selden, proudly. (Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman.)

MAKES RECORD OF 'QUAKES

Invention of Italian Scientist is Said to Be an Improvement Over the Seismograph.

The seismograph is not the last word in the matter of being accurate and immediate in recording earthquake tremors has been proven by the invention of an Italian scientist, who, through a simple instrument, by the aid of Hertzian waves, has been able to obtain records of disturbances throughout the earth. It has been generally known that earthquakes, besides giving rise to the mechanical waves such as are registered on the seismograph, also have been the cause of great electrical disturbances in the form of wireless waves. The invention consists of a metal-filing coherer, which operates a bell that acts as an annunciator of the disturbances sought for record. This invention several times has registered vibrations down in the earth at small and great distances anywhere from 5 to 15 minutes ahead of the best seismographs. The United States government has taken the device into consideration and is about to have it installed in the several bureaus where seismographs have been relied upon for records. Profession of Letters is Passing. There is an evil tendency for books to be written by spare-time professors of other pursuits; for articles to be written or dictated by men who "know the subject," but have no gift of the pen. One looks with doubt towards a future of fictitious values in which a man of letters will not be desired because he is ousted by laborers who dig about Parnassus, and by persons notable for quite other qualities, but just able to string words together readably. Already, perhaps, the time has come when a poem or a book will fall to interest merely because it is written by an author—Rupert Hyde in T. P.'s Weekly. Hope to Exterminate Flies. Two English physicians are experimenting with a new parasite with which they hope to exterminate the flies of their country in a very few years.

DIVORCE IN DECLINE

Los Angeles Plan Lowers Records in Court 50 Per Cent.

Homes Are Not Broken Up and City Enforces Payments of Alimony, and Soon Husbands and Wives Make Up.

Los Angeles, Cal.—That 50 per cent. of the cases of trouble between man and wife, which formerly would have ended in divorce and the breaking up of a home, now end in reconciliation under the system of "divorceless" alimony, is the statement of Hugh C. Gibson, chief probation officer, and that a much larger percentage could be saved from divorce if a larger staff and more means were obtainable is the opinion he advances as a result of trying this system for two years.

The "divorceless" alimony consists in the payment of alimony without divorce proceedings, and has been in effect since January 1, 1911, when it became a law that failure to provide for a woman had on this ground was divorce. Now she may apply to the courts or the probation department, if there are children, on the ground of felony—and "hubby" must pay up, the alternative being the rock pile.

And if he goes on the rock pile at $1.50 a day—more than the average man makes, according to Gibson—the court collects the entire amount and pays it to his wife and children. "I believe fully half our cases are saved from divorce now," said Mr. Gibson. "In a year we must average 500 cases where there is failure to provide; we easily save 250 out of that number from divorce. Unless the trouble is very real and hard a man's heart is apt to soften toward his wife and babies within a few months, and in five per cent. of the cases, within sixty or ninety days he makes overtures of peace and effects a reconciliation. Of course we continue to keep supervision over the families—particularly if there are children. And sometimes the peace business doesn't go, and they are back on our hands; but usually it sticks, and instead of a divorce a ruined home and children without a father, there is a happy home with everything as it should be.

"In the last year we have handled approximately $15,000 in this divorceless alimony money. We cannot take more than sixty per cent. of a man's earnings, and we have no set ratio. The amount is fixed in accordance not only with what he makes but with his wife's condition, the number of children, and other matters affecting their needs. "Could we handle other specific divorce charges, such as drunkenness, or 'adulteries,' and save fifty per cent.?" I don't know about the fifty per cent., because we haven't experimented, but we certainly could prevent many cases of divorce—many cases."

ODD FACTS ABOUT HEREDITY

Color-Blindness Descends from Male to Female, or Vice Versa, Declares London Professor. London—Lecturing at the Royal Institute on "Heredity of Sex," Prof. Bateson relates some curious facts which have been discovered as a result of examining several generations of a family in which color-blindness appeared. A color-blind woman, he said, is very rarely found and she always is a daughter of a color-blind man. Her sons and daughters would be normal, but if her daughter had sons, they would be found to be normal and color-blind in equal numbers.

A curious anomaly with reference to color-blindness appeared in twins. They were girls, exactly alike in appearance, but one was color-blind and the other was not. No explanation of this exception had been found. Prof. Bateson said there is a popular belief that sons in certain respects took after mothers and daughters after fathers. Within a reasonable range of speculation this is true, he said.

MORMON SHAFT FOR SEAGULL

Brigham Young's Son Plans Memorial to Sacred Bird of Sect—Exterminated Grasshoppers. New York.—It is learned that Mahorri Young, a grandson of Brigham Young, leader of the Mormon church, is at work in this city modeling a unique monument to the seagull. This bird is sacred to the Mormons because it saved the first immigrants to Utah from a plague of grasshoppers. It is said that the monument, which will be carved, will cost $40,000. It will be placed in the grounds of the Mormon temple at Salt Lake City. With such a costly monument the seagull apparently has a greater tribute of this kind paid it than any other bird. At the base of the monument one side is to be devoted to an inscription and the remaining three will have low relief sculptures depicting the arrival of the Mormons in Utah, the saving of their first crop by the seagulls and the first harvest.

Festivities beginning in the middle of March and continuing until December 8, will be held in every diocese in this country, including celebrations of great pomp in Washington and New York. The celebration commemorates the victory of Constantine over Maxentius, which assured the political recognition of Christianity in 313 through the edict of Milan.

HOBOS THREW J. E. HOW OUT

They Didn't Like the Millionaire Leader's Ideas of Philanthropy—A "Philosophical Anarchist," How Says.

New Orleans.—James Eads How of St. Louis, the self-styled "millionaire hobo leader," who first organized "the Casual, Unskilled and Migratory Workers of the World," and called the first national hobo convention, was repudiated as a leader by the hobos in convention here recently. How tried to inject socialism into the proceedings and was told to get out. Tired of How and the fight between him and President Jeff Davis over the question of socialism, the hobos broke up the convention of the "International Brotherhood Welfare Association," threw How and his principles out and organized a "hobo mass meeting."

How said he was not a Socialist, but merely a "philosophical anarchist," and tried to tell the delegates that Jeff Davis was himself a dyed-in-the-wool Socialist. The hobos, however, howled How down and stood by Davis. "Down with How and his postage stamp philanthropy, he has never given us any of his mythical millions," shouted Davis, and the hobos yelled. "This ain't no political hot air gang," shouted one of the delegates, "and we ain't going to let you fellows spoil our convention."

SAYS CONGRESS IS HONEST

Victor Berger, Socialist Representative, However, Asserts Only Capitalists Are Represented. New York.—"I have lived among the congressmen long enough to know them. The only trouble is they won't admit there is any other class."

WOMEN ACT ON GRAND JURY

Men Inquirers Gossip Too Much, Remarks a California Judge at Redwood, Cal. Redwood City, Cal.—In accepting the qualifications of seventeen women for the San Mateo county grand jury venire, Superior Judge George Buck in effect placed at least six women on the grand jury. Only thirteen men were named and the membership of the grand jury is limited to nineteen. This will be the first instance in this state of women serving on a grand jury. Judge Buck accepted married women, most of whom appear as "housewives" on the voting register. "I've always wanted to get a jury that wouldn't gossip," said Judge Buck. "There never has been a grand jury in San Mateo county that could keep a secret, and now we'll give the women a chance."
