ROOSEVELT AND HULL TICKET IS FORECAST

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—A Roosevelt-Hull ticket was forecast today in high democratic circles which have become convinced that the president will accept a third term nomination.

Although Mr. Roosevelt has given no public hint of his intentions, usually authoritative sources declared that he has made up his mind to run and that he wants Secretary of State Hull for the vice presidential nominee.

Hull has been spoken of frequently by the chief executive should not run, but only recently has his name come to the fore in vice presidential talk.

Those who believe Mr. Roosevelt will break precedent and agree to carry his party's standard once more contend that he will be impelled by the European crisis and American defense needs. For that reason, they picture Secretary Hull as a logical running mate, since he is the cabinet member handling foreign relations.

One small group of politicians has expressed the theory that the president might accept renomination with the understanding that if elected he would serve only while an emergency existed. In such a case, the vice president would step into his office.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the democratic floor leader, made light of this last conjecture in talking with reporters.

While asserting he did not know what the president would do about the nomination, Barkley said that "confusion and chaos" were likely to result if he declined to run after the balloting started week after next.

Vice President Garner, Senator Wheeler of Montana, and Postmaster General Farley, or their supporters, have said in the past that their names would be presented to the convention no matter what the president does.

But friends of Garner said yesterday that the vice president would leave it to his managers whether to place him in nomination and that he was not planning to go to Chicago for the convention.

Senator Wagner of New York, who will head the convention resolutions committee, said he would have a rough draft of a platform ready to take to Chicago early next week for preliminary conferences with some committee members-designate.

Marine Strike on West Coast Called Off Near Deadline

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP).—The long-feared West Coast Marine strike was cancelled today, minutes after the midnight deadline which was to have sent CIO Marine cooks and stewards to the picket lines to blockade 175 American flag ships.

The union, in full membership meeting, at 2:30 a. m. voted with a unanimous roar of approval to ratify the memorandum peace formula adopted after midnight by its negotiators. They won a 10 per cent wage adjustment.

The formula was based on a proposal by Harry Bridges, and acceptance came half an hour after secretary of Labor Frances Perkins wired an urgent plea for peace to the union.

Bridges, California CIO director, had been asked to intervene by Sidney Hillman, CIO vice-president and member of the national defense committee.

Youth Group at Door Of Congress to Seek Communism Riddance

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., July 4 (AP).—A group of young men and women, sent to the American Youth Congress conference here by Gene Tunney, prepared today to press their fight "to rid the congress of Communists," but were not sure whether they would get into the sessions to accomplish their purpose.

The credentials committee announced it would make a decision on the group before the first business session gets under way today.

Max Weiss of New York, president of the young Communist league and Carl Ross, Communist national secretary of public relations, were among the 500 delegates who registered last night. Weiss said at least six more members of the young Communist league would attend from New York and others were expected from other sections of the country.

Heading the Tunney-bloc was Murray Plavner, New York, and F. Stephen McArthur, of Kearney, N. J., who were ejected from an AYC meeting in Washington when they insisted on the adoption of a resolution denouncing the Russian aggression in Finland.

More Bar Associations In Texas Counties Sought

FORT WORTH, July 4 (AP).—President Fred Brewster of newly-created Texas State Bar mapped a program today that called for organization of a local Bar Association in each county.

The Temple man, here for the three-day joint convention of the Texas Bar Association and the State Bar, said forming such units would be one of the chief aims of his administration.

The association is being merged with the State Bar which was formed by legislative statute and makes Texas lawyer memberships mandatory.

Justice W. O. Douglas of the United States supreme court and United States Senator Tom Connally of Texas will be principal speakers at a luncheon today.

"Ma" Defends Her Gross Receipt Tax

LONGVIEW, July 4 (AP).—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, candidate for governor, appealed to Gregg county voters last night not to be deceived by attempts of some opponents to class the gross receipt tax she proposes with a sales tax.

She has requested the gross receipts tax to raise money for old age pensions. James Ferguson explained the tax, and asserted:

"We now witness the spectacle of our grand and glorious state being ruled by a flour sack as an emblem of our proud history. We have descended from the sublime to the ridiculous."

Ferguson referred to Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel as a "Johnson grass statesman."

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson went to Lufkin, where they will speak at a rally tonight.

GO TO DALLAS.

R. M. Barron and daughters, Marjorie and Dorothy, are spending the rest of the week at Dallas where Mrs. Barron has been for some time at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. J. L. Carter.

CALLED TO ABILENE.

Dr. Homer B. Johnson was called to the bedside by his mother in Abilene Wednesday night.

Jefferson Was Too Jittery to Defend Declaration Draft

By NEA Service.

Thomas Jefferson was so stage frightened he couldn't defend his draft of the Declaration of Independence when it was debated in the Continental Congress; his views had to be presented by John Adams.

Biggest "scoop" of early colonial journalism was full text publication of the Declaration by Virginia Gazette, Williamsburg, July 26, 1776.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident," is not Jefferson's wording. He originally wrote, "We hold these truths to be sacred and undeniable," the change was made by Benjamin Franklin, along with 10 others.

Approval of the resolution affirming independence was made possible when Caesar Rodney, delegate from Delaware, rode 80 miles through rain and mud from his home to break a deadlock.

Few of the signers were well-known outside their own colonies. Two of them, John Adams and Jefferson, were subsequently elected to the presidency; others in time were defendants in impeachment trials; one was killed in a duel; one drowned at sea.

While Jefferson was actually at work drafting the document, he was a grave doubt of his re-election to Congress, and believed opposition to him in Virginia was due to the belief that he was not wholeheartedly for independence. He was only 33 at the time.

The copy of the Declaration which was passed by Congress has never been found. Jefferson's original draft, with corrections marked in, was discovered in his papers when he died.

U. S. GIVEN WARNING BY JAPAN

TOKYO, July 4 (AP).—A Japanese naval spokesman asserted today that United States abandonment of "unwarrantable interference with and obstruction of" Japan's policies on the far eastern continent is among the "concrete facts and deeds" needed to relieve "grave concern" among the Japanese people over American-Japanese relations.

Other American "deeds" in which he said the Japanese would have more confidence than "mere verbal assurances" would include:

1. Abandonment of assistance to the Chinese government of General Chiang Kai-Shek.
2. Lifting of economic pressure against Japan.

Statements in Washington, he said, show "it is not advisable for the United States to attempt to intervene in far eastern issues beyond legitimate bounds."

He added, however, that "Japan likewise is not in a position to provoke the United States fleet, and therefore always has pursued a policy of non-provocation."

(In Washington, during questioning of Col. Frank Knox Tuesday by the senate naval affairs committee, Chairman Walsh said naval officers had informed the committee that the United States could not successfully wage war alone on Japan, and that the aid of Great Britain and France would be needed.)

(Col. Knox, President Roosevelt's choice for secretary of the navy, told the committee he had reconsidered his advocacy of a "strong policy" toward Japan.)

The Japanese spokesman also declared Japan's demand for closing of a military supply route through Burma to China, thereby "aggravating" Japanese feelings toward Britain.

More Billions for Defense Is Word of the Nation on July 4

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—Billions more for defense was the word today as the United States observed the 165th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and there were indications that the immense new preparedness request would be followed by recommendations for a youth training program.

Notice that a new $5,000,000,000 defense program was in the making came from the White House yesterday after President Roosevelt and his chief defense advisers gave their approval.

Matching in size the $5,000,000,000 already voted for the current fiscal year, the supplementary plans were mapped to hasten the nation toward the goal of a 50,000-plane airforce, and to procure tanks, artillery and other equipment in mass production quantities for the expanding army.

The immense expansion proposal will be placed before congress next week, officials said. Congress probably will be asked to make other appropriations for about half the new program, and to provide authorizations for the remainder, leaving the additional funds to be voted later.

With this new defense message from the president in prospect, well-informed legislators said that within 10 days Mr. Roosevelt will likely send congress another communication on the subject of compulsory national service for the country's youth.

Our compulsory service proposal the Burke-Wadsworth military training bill—already is pending on Capitol Hill.

General John J. Pershing and President James B. Conant of Harvard endorsed a compulsory military training law yesterday.

General George C. Marshall said today the army's armored corps of tanks and other mechanized weapons was being speeded into an actual rather than a "visionary" force.

Light and medium tanks, scout cars and most of the other vehicles and weapons already are available, the chief of staff reported, for a hard-hitting force which in some respects will be armed more heavily than its famous German "Panzer" counterparts.

As a result, General Marshall told reporters, the first armored corps should be complete in a few months. He said that other units of the same kind were possible in the future as the army is reinforced by men and arms.

"We might set up two or even three corps," he said.

Described by acting Secretary Johnson as a "self-contained force of great striking power," the First American armored corps will be made up of two divisions, each containing approximately 700 armored vehicles, 300 guns and howitzers of various calibers, and more than 6,500 automatic and semi-automatic weapons.

The complete corps will contain more than 18,000 officers and men. By comparison, each Nazi Panzer division which played a spectacular role in Poland, Belgium and France includes 50 officers, 11,000 men and 3,000 vehicles of all kinds.

Survivors Tell How Boat Was Sunk With 1,000 Killed

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 4. The first survivor of the torpedoed British prison ship Arandora Star to reach London today said the decks of the liner "were a sea of faces as she went down. A cloud of steam rose 100 feet into the air, and the suction dragged liferafts and men down with her."

The survivor was Martin Verinder, 18-year-old steward who was among the 1,000-odd landed yesterday at a port in western Scotland.

Their arrival left unaccounted for some 3,000 more of the 2,000 who were aboard—1,500 Germans and Italians being taken to Canada for internment and 500 members of the crew and British soldier-guards.

A torpedo launched by a German submarine ripped open the liner off the west coast of Ireland Tuesday morning. At least 800 Germans and Italians who fought to reach the lifeboats were believed to have lost their lives in the greatest passenger ship disaster since the Lusitania sank May 7, 1915, with a loss of 1,198 lives.

The owners of the Arandora Star announced a "fair proportion" of the crew was saved. Verinder, the young steward, said the last he saw of Capt. W. Moulton "was when he coolly asked a man to fetch him a glass of water."

The bridge was protected with barbed wire, and I knew as I saw him standing there that the captain would never get away."

Verinder said the prisoners "were frightful. If they had not panicked so completely, many more men, particularly Englishmen, would have escaped."

"As they rushed to the lifeboats with the idea of every man for himself," he related, "the soldiers and crew had to threaten them. I even saw one German sailor, who seemed to have a lot more sense than the rest, take a rifle and club his compatriots."

"In the lifeboats the internees were selfish too. When a plane dropped bread and bully beef, they grabbed it and a few started to wolf it as fast as they could. The soldiers had to seize it from them before it could be shared evenly among us."

"I saw the ship's doctor, apparently wounded in the leg, stand up and salute the ship and the captain as the vessel turned half over and sank within about two minutes."

"The decks were a sea of faces as she went down and I could see windlasses and other objects moving into the crowd of men as she made her final heel over."

The steward said the Germans and Austrians among the prisoners began fighting on the first day out, when the Austrians objected to the Germans raising a Nazi flag in the deck space allotted the internees.

James Frost, another crew member, said 100 survivors in one lifeboat sang "It's a Lovely Day Tomorrow" as they pulled toward a message dropped from a circling plane.

Frost said the party then sang "Pennies From Heaven."

Frost, whose boat was the last to leave, said the soldiers fired their rifles as a warning to keep away Italians who "were fighting on deck and trying to clamber down the lifelines. Otherwise our boat would have suffered the same fate."

ITALIANS RUSH TO AID FRENCH

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Terrific sea battles between British and French fleets, with the Italian war fleet rushing to aid the French, were reported raging in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic today as Britain fought to keep her surrendered ally's navy from falling into axis hands.

DNB, the official German news agency, gave an account of the apparently major fight at the Mediterranean port of Oran, 275 miles east of Gibraltar, on the north African coast, which indicated that the British had all but smashed the backbone of France's navy—fourth largest in the world.

Dispatches from Geneva said a fierce battle was also in progress between the British and French at Casablanca, French Morocco, 400 miles from Oran.

French Are Told To Scuttle Ships By Adolf Hitler

BERLIN, July 4. (AP).—Adolf Hitler gave the French navy virtual permission to do anything it pleased against the British fleet, authorized German sources said today.

A communique referred to the scuttling of such French ships as cannot escape seizure by the British as one measure permitted by Hitler's order.

A German authority added that the Germans "certainly would not object" if a French submarine sank a British warship although such action was not specifically mentioned in the communique.

DNB, the official German news agency, said the French government informed the German armistice commission of its intention to sink French warships if they were attacked and unable to escape the British fleet.

The French decision was said to have been communicated to the German commission at Wiesbaden before orders were sent to the French ships.

Germans pointed out that Germany had no intention of bringing the French fleet into German possession but only to prevent its being used against Germany in the war.

An authorized German spokesman asked whether France must now be regarded as at war with Britain, said sarcastically:

"Certainly it is not a state of friendship between the two."

These quarters left no doubt, however, that France would be given a free hand for anything she might want to do against Britain.

One informed source said triumphantly:

"England is our strongest ally now. There is no stupidity which Churchill will not commit. His perfidy is unparalleled in history."

To attack an ally of yesterday without warning and without scruples is something concerning which it is difficult to find words to express one's disgust."

Churchill Scores French Government In Talk to Commons

LONDON, July 4 (AP).—Two French battleships, two light cruisers, some submarines, eight destroyers and 200 small mine sweepers and anti-submarine craft have been taken over by the British navy in the ports of Portsmouth, Plymouth and Sheerness, Prime Minister Churchill announced today.

Telling the house of commons of measures taken by Britain to prevent the French navy from falling into axis hands, Churchill said fighting started on the big French submarine Surcouf, one of the ships taken in a British harbor.

One British seaman was killed, two British officers and one seaman wounded and one French officer killed. There was no more bloodshed, Churchill said.

He said a portion of the French fleet, unable to reach African ports, "came into Portsmouth and Plymouth 10 days ago."

"It is with sincere sorrow that I must announce to the house the measures which we have felt bound to take in order to prevent the French fleet from falling into German hands."

"When two nations are fighting together, one of them may be stricken down and overwhelmed and forced to ask its ally to release it from its obligations."

But, he said, the least that could be expected was that the French government, in abandoning the conflict, "would have been careful not to inflict needless injury upon those in whose final victory the sole chance of French freedom lay and lies."

"We offered to give full release to the French from their treaty obligations if their fleet was sailed for British harbors before a separate armistice was complete."

TOBACCO-CHEWING WILLKIE CALLED RADICAL AT COLLEGE

Third of six stories on the life of Wendell Willkie.

BY TOM WOLF
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

MOST people who remember the undergraduate Wen Willkie think of a tall, husky boy, invariably clad in a brilliant red sweater, who chewed tobacco to show how tough he was. He was widely considered a radical.

Actually young Willkie's radicalism boiled down to a great interest in socialism of the Jack London variety (including the abolition of all inheritance); a great respect for trust-busting Teddy Roosevelt; and a worship of "Fighting Bob" La Follette.

La Follette liberalism meant fighting a system under which Big

Willkie always liked an argument, so he joined the debating society at Indiana. He is on right, front row, in this picture of the society.

Julia Willkie at the University of Indiana. A brilliant student, she kept house for her three brothers at the Bloomington school.

Business poured money into political machines to elect men who would do its bidding. Much of Willkie's fight with the present administration is based on his hatred for this kind of system.

In the present situation Willkie sees Big Government doing exactly what Big Business did in the systems which La Follette found so insidious.

Though usually at odds with the "soft shoe" group at Indiana, Willkie was very much of a campus leader. For the major part of his undergraduate years he led the fight on the fraternities because of their snobbishness. He eventually resigned himself to the existing system and joined elegant Beta Theta Pi.

TRAINED AS SPEAKER IN COLLEGE
His powers as an orator were vastly enhanced as an undergraduate, and his brilliance as a debater and speaker earned him the position of senior orator for his class (1913). His family dinner table had stood him in good stead.

During his college and law school summers, Wen worked as a jack of all trades throughout the west. Money was a secondary object to travel and experience.

He worked variously as a dishwasher, short order cook, harvester, dresser of oil tools, vegetable picker, and even as a barker for a tent hotel in a rush town in Colorado. His work took him into nearly every state in the west.

Since all his later work has confined him east of the Mississippi, these summer experiences are proving invaluable to Candidate

Willkie.

LOST FIRST CASE TO HIS FATHER

WHILE he was still an undergraduate Wen got his first law training. At 16 he helped his father prepare the defense of two laborers who had violated an anti-picketing injunction. The Willkies won their case.

In his first case after graduation from law school, however, Wendell had his father as opposing counsel. The summation of Wendell's defense was a masterpiece. It took three hours to deliver.

His father's reply was two sentences: "I'm sure my son will make a great lawyer. He can make so much out of nothing."

Father's prophetic words won. About this same time a new assistant librarian came to Elwood. Her name was Edith Wilk. She had been a classmate of Wen's at Indiana, although they had hardly known one another there.

Posterity has it that when Wen met her in Elwood, he said: "Miss Wilk, I'd like to add three letters to your name." But the obviousness of this bon mot does its supposed author an injustice.

Pretty young Miss Wilk was not swept off her feet. She thought blue-eyed, shaggy Mr. Willkie was something of a dreamer. America was in the war before the knot was tied.

Captain Willkie came home

Willkie as a slim, serious and high-collared student at Indiana. This picture was taken when he graduated from law school in 1916.

from Officers' Training Camp in a blizzard which delayed the wedding two days. His bride's bouquet, picked up en route, was still frozen stiff when Edith Wilk marched down the aisle on Jan. 14, 1918, "to add three letters" to her name.

DEFENDED SOLDIERS WHILE AT WAR

HIS grandparents' hate of Prussianism was strong in Wendell Willkie, and he volunteered for the U. S. Army the day after America declared war. He served in France as a captain in the 325th Field Artillery.

Captain Willkie stayed in France half a year after the war ended to defend many of his over-ambitious colleagues who had wound themselves into courts-martial for comparatively minor offenses.

Back in America in 1919, Wen-

A few days ago I reprinted a mathematical mystery from the column of The Plainsman, in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, promising that I would see that the person answering it correctly would get some publicity in both papers. Herewith is a clear cut, and apparently correct explanation by Ivy Lee Epley. I knew Mrs. Epley was married to a mathematical genius, J. Homer, but I believe she demonstrates here she can take care of her own arithmetic.

Mrs. Epley writes: "The problem in your column of July 2nd, stated that the men in two groups of five each, treated each of the other men in his group to drinks costing 5¢ each, making a total cost of $2.50. This total cost is, of course, correct as each group purchased 25 drinks and the two groups purchased a total of 50 drinks. Each of the ten men, therefore consumed five drinks. "The men in the second two groups consisting of 6 men and 4 men, respectively, likewise treated each of the men in their groups. The first group of 6 men purchased 36 drinks and each man consumed 6 drinks. The second group of 4 men purchased 16 drinks, each man consuming 4 drinks, making a total of 52 drinks purchased and consumed by the second two groups and at a cost of 5¢ per drink the total cost would be $2.60.

The discrepancy is, of course, due to the fact that a greater total number of drinks were consumed by the second two groups than by the first two groups, and as the total number of drinks consumed by each group is equal to the square of the number of men in each group, the mathematical fallacy may be pointed out by remembering that the sum of the square of two numbers whose sum is the same as two other numbers, does not necessarily equal the sum of the square of the latter two numbers. That is to say, 5-square plus 5-square does not equal 4-square plus 6-square."

A Fourth of July Editorial

By WILLIS THORNTON.

All day, from the early morning, the streets of quiet Philadelphia were filled with a throng of people. Earnestly they talked in little groups, but ever their eyes swept back to the door of the state house. There the Continental Congress was meeting.

The waiting people knew that debate on Mr. Jefferson's resolution was coming to a head. It was a declaration of complete independence, no less. Some were not prepared to go so far. Many had doubts. The very foundations of the world they knew seemed slipping away.

It was hot. The crowd waited as the house passed and the sun swept through the zenith. At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon the door opened, and a voice was heard to cry excitedly, "It has passed!"

The old bellman, waiting dejectedly in the belfry, caught the signal from a boy sentinel shouting, "Ring! Ring!" And he threw the iron clapper of the bell against its side.

Over quiet Philadelphia the sonorous tones of the bell floated as the bellman rang it in a tumult of joy.

The people of the United States had cut forever the ties that bound them politically to Europe. The metallic voice of the old bell was a song of a new world to be. It rings in our ears today as it rang in the ears of those people before the hall of Congress on that July 4 afternoon 164 years ago.

Hancock, signing the declaration first with a bold flourish, and all the others who signed, were men unafraid. They took their lives in their hands, they risked their security. But they were not afraid. They closed their declaration with these words:

"And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor."

We, their descendants and heirs, can do no less. On this 164th anniversary of that famous day, let us again dedicate ourselves to preserving, by whatever methods the needs of the day suggest, the freedom they won.

Listen! Can you not hear the echo of that wildly-clanging bell? Can you not remember the words graven around it:

"Proclaim Liberty to All the World and the Inhabitants Thereof."

LIFE, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness... These were the principles which made our history-building forefathers the architects of a new future... Today we honor their courage and their Declaration, more conscious of our birthright than ever before. In their spirit America marches forward amidst the tumult and the turmoil of a war-torn world. To America belongs the heritage of bringing solace and order to weary men. This is the spirit of America! To that spirit we pledge ourselves.

Indians Slip Back Into Lead as They Win, Tigers Are Defeated

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The nation's baseball parks are going to bulge today from force of habit, but the supreme test may be lying in wait for the girders of Briggs stadium, Detroit.

The Michigan metropolis generally is known as the best baseball town in the land, and the fans have something to see there today—a doubleheader between the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians that will decide first place in the American League.

The Tigers had the lead for 24 hours ending yesterday, but they couldn't hold it, losing a 12-7 decision to the Chicago White Sox.

The Indians took advantage of this loophole to regain the lead with a 5-2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns, and now the whole question will come up for argument again today. There probably won't be more than 50,000 kibitzers on hand. That's the park's capacity.

Bob Feller was the fellow who stopped Cleveland's three-game losing streak. He scattered seven hits and fanned 11 in earning his 13th victory of the season.

The Boston Red Sox bunched six runs in the last of the ninth to edge out the Philadelphia Athletics, 12-11.

The Brooklyn Dodgers reinforced their first place position in the Na-

Sports Roundup

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP)—The press already is lambasting the Louis-Baer return... Putting on the gloves for his putting's sake... How come Jimmy Braddock, one of the most popular champs we've ever had, was overlooked Tuesday night when every other pug in the park was introduced.

PAY-OFF ON EIGHTH

The official verdict was Baer won in the eighth round... Therefore, the fellow who picked Max to win in that round should be paid off... This leaves the guys who picked the "lucky seventh" holding the bag.

Joe Louis referees in Baltimore tonight, then goes to Utica, Mich., to open his new dude ranch July 5. Why not match Baer with Russell Galenton? They both looked Tony, didn't they? Golfers in the metropolitan district are giving the Red Cross a percentage of all today's winnings.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Writ Gannon, Chattanooga Times: "Headline in Atlanta newspaper: 'Eyes of Boxing World on Dempsey-Luttrell Fight'... Also the noses, Bud."

From now on every college in the Pacific coast conference will get a cut of the Rose Bowl gravy. Hereafter the sugar has been divided among the competing teams... There'll be enough Brooklyn fans at the Polo grounds today for the double bill with the Giants to pay Terry's $40,000 salary.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY

Before Tuesday's game in Washington Bill Dickey called the Yanks together, told them it was Lefty Gomez last stand and implored them not to let Gooey down... The Yanks blasted 14 hits (four by DiMaggio) fielded like demons and didn't make an error.

national League by scoring six times in the last inning to beat the New York Giants, 7-3.

The Boston Bees unwound six runs in the ninth to beat the Phillies, 8-3, in what was to be the first game of a doubleheader. The second game was halted by rain after three scoreless innings.

The Chicago Cubs won a see-saw struggle from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-5.

Changed Habits

The kingfisher bird comes from a family of insect catchers. Long ago, the bird discovered that fish were easier to catch and far more filling than insects, so it renounced the family habit, and became a fisherman.

New "Death Ray" Of Socket Type

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (U.P.) — A weapon, described as a "death ray" which has killed a bull at a distance of 2 1/2 miles, has been invented by frail 91-year-old Marion McWhorter, onetime affiliate of James J. Hill, "Empire Builder" of the Northwest.

McWhorter, stooped but alert physically and mentally explained his "death ray" involves a method of forcing X-rays to move in parallel lines. He said the weapon easily kills birds and small animals.

The inventor said X-Rays normally move uncontrolled in all directions. However, by use of a mysterious substance obtained from Sweden, McWhorter said he had concentrated X-ray into a solid, projected beam of lethal rays.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, physicist at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena and a Noble prize winner, has contended that X-rays cannot be refracted, an accomplishment which McWhorter claims for his invention.

McWhorter said he was reluctant to discuss his invention in detail because the War Department has evidenced its interest and a department representative paid the aged inventor a secret visit.

Brown U. Adds To Large List Of Lincolniana

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (U.P.) — Brown University seeks to become the nation's principal reference source for information about Abraham Lincoln.

Dr. Henry B. Van Hoesen, university librarian, is sponsoring a project in which newspapers and magazines published in the 19th century are being combined for forgotten information about the Civil War President.

Already the collection has 1,700 original papers and 800 mounted sheets of newspaper clippings concerning Lincoln, largely the gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of the class of 1897. Four thousand more items have been found by the WPA Historical Records Survey in Illinois papers published between 1833 and 1870.

The university also has 700 letters, documents and other manuscripts in Lincoln's own handwriting, ranging from a page of his school copybook through his years as storekeeper, surveyor, lawyer, legislator and President. Part of the project is devoted to photographing rare Lincoln clippings and books. Other workers are making a "systematic and thorough analysis" of Federal government publications so that Lincoln references may be photographed and catalogued.

FEMININE FANCIES

By Kathleen Eiland

Since today is July Fourth, it seems a very appropriate time to give thanks that we live in a land of liberty and peace. And to resolve that we shall preserve that peace and thereby that liberty.

For those who find sun-tan oil a necessity for summer vacation trips but who dislike lugging a bottle of same about, a clever cosmetics manufacturer now puts sun-tan oil up in capsules containing enough for one application. These are not the regulation-shaped capsules that the doctor delights to prescribe but souatty containers ending in a tin which is "tweaked" off when one is ready to apply the oil. The little receptacles are thrown away afterward, of course. Two or three may be put into the sun-worshipper's bag when she starts on a day's outing—and the inconvenience of carrying a bottle about therefore avoided.

We're told these capsules are so convenient that even the men of the family like them. Which is something.

Being accustomed to a household of adults, we don't often notice the newest things in the way of equipment for the youngest generation.

But we did see something recently that impressed us. It looked like the usual baby's high chair until the mother concerned began demonstrating its special characteristics. By some slight-of-hand, the chair suddenly turned into a low chair and an attached play table, all on rollers. It also doubled as a nursery chair. All in all, it was a super-example of that tendency of this present age to make one thing do the service of a whole group of things.

What we're most interested in along this line is making one dollar do the service of a whole group of dollars. But we've never learned the trick properly.

Chemist Finds Plastics Ready To Serve U. S.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—Even if war should cut off all imports from America, Dr. Robert C. Hockett promises that no one will have to wear old clothes, cotton stockings or give up driving an automobile.

Dr. Hockett, chemistry professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, asserts that scientists have made the United States virtually self-sufficient.

He says the use of plastics as substitutes for rubber, wood, glass and metal are "practically limitless." Rayons and acetates, he explains, are supplanting silk and cotton in all kinds of fabrics.

If some one wants a glamorous gown, a fur coat, tiles for the bathroom or a set of false teeth, says Dr. Hockett, a scientist can make any of these by taking a few lumps of coke, a pinch of lime, some soy beans or sour milk and perhaps a little formaldehyde and carbolic acid.

Foreign Bonds Crumble, Domestic Issues Steady

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Crumbling values of foreign worldwide war repurchases contrasted with relative steadiness in domestic bonds throughout the first half of 1940. Deterioration for foreign bond values sliced two-thirds to more than three-quarters from the market prices of many European government issues. Obligations of Finland were the first to feel the war's blight. They lost about 80 per cent of their market value but recouped a major portion on the subsequent Russo-Finnish peace.

Bonds of Denmark, Norway and Belgium plummeted in turn as their respective countries were invaded. Holland and Luxembourg the other invaded countries had no obligations listed here. Italy's entrance into the war found its securities so depressed that many issues advanced following an initial dip. South American loans eased on the Italian move, reflecting a further loss in export trade. Italian and German bonds spurred on the French capitulation.

Free Sterling Trading Virtually Eliminated

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Virtual elimination of free trading in the pound sterling highlighted a chaotic foreign exchange market during the first six months of 1940.

Initial steps in this direction were reported in May after the unit plunged to $3.00, a record low, following the first severe German thrust. Free sterling subsequently recovered to $3.85 within 15 cents of the year's high price recorded in January, as the first rumors of pegging brought a stampede of shorts. The price then receded after this demand was filled.

The French franc linked to sterling by the Stabilization fund, swung between a high of 2.26 7/8 cents and a record low of 1.70 cents coincidentally with the fluctuation in the pound. Franc dealings stopped with the French bid for peace.

Chaotic foreign exchange conditions wrought by German invasions have caused the disappearance of several world currencies in the past few months. The Norwegian and Danish kroner, the Holland guilder and Belgian belga this year followed the fate of the Polish zloty and the Austrian schilling and the Czechoslovak koruna—in losing their world market.

German marks and Italian lire were quoted at pegged rates which did not reflect war changes.

Girl Harpist Studies To Be Air Mechanic

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—Unable to find employment in the music world, Miss Jessie Elinor Walzler, 25-year-old harpist, is taking lessons to become an airport "grease monkey."

Miss Walzler, who says she is "crazy about tinkering with motors," first discovered her mechanical inclinations when the 13-year-old family car broke down. Lacking funds for the necessary repairs, she overhauled the motor herself.

She is now taking a course in aviation mechanics under a scholarship extended by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Nation to See Southwest's Top Elevens

FRT WORTH, Tex., — (UP). — Southwest Conference football teams will travel to both coasts this fall to defend this section's fine record in inter-sectional games.

The Texas Aggies, unbeaten, untied, and winner in the Sugar Bowl last season, frankly are shooting for greater honors next fall — another undefeated season, with a Rose Bowl bid at the end. Coach Homer Norton has his great 1939 team almost intact, including all-America fullback John Kimbrough, and is hoping for two 'firsts,' to be the first school to win two Southwest Conference titles in a row and to be the first ever to play both in the Sugar Bowl and Rose Bowls.

Aggies Play U. of C.

Supporters of some of the other six conference teams have called the Aggies' schedule a "cream puff" affair, although it includes six league games, the University of California at Los Angeles, Tulsa University and Texas A. & I.

Compared with some of the others, the Aggies do have less impressive non-conference games. Southern Methodist also will journey to Los Angeles to meet U. C. L. A., opening the season in a night game, Sept. 27. S. M. U.'s schedule also includes Pitt at Pittsburgh, just two weeks after U. C. L. A., as well as Auburn and North Texas Teachers.

Coach Matty Bell's S. M. U. team, incidentally, is one of the best prospects to upset A. & M. It has a dozen first-caliber backs and excellent material for the line.

Down at Austin, Coach Dana X. Bible has quietly served notice that 1940 may be the year for the University of Texas to regain its place in the gridiron firmament. The Aggies play at Austin Nov. 28 (the Thanksgiving Day observed in Texas), and the home team—one of the best in a decade at Texas—will be striving to protect its record against the Aggies in Austin.

Texas to Go North.

Outside the conference, Texas will meet Florida at Gainesville, Fla., on Dec. 7; Colorado at Austin; Indiana at Bloomington, Ind., and Oklahoma at Dallas in early-season games.

Another team whose backers are confident is Baylor, which plays Denver University, North Texas Teachers, Villanova and Tulsa in non-conference games.

Arkansas and Rice are the two most unpredictable members of the conference, although both have impressive schedules. Arkansas' inter-sectional clashes include Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn., and Fordham at New York City.

Rice, coached for the first time by Jess Neely, plays Centenary, Louisiana State, Tulane and Texas A. & I. outside the conference.

WORLD EMPIRE IS BRITAIN'S STRENGTH-AND HER WEAKNESS

Some of Britain's troops who must man the watch far from the British Isles. . . . Scottish soldiers entrenched in the Egyptian desert.

BY THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer

THE next act in Europe's tragedy will be a test of Britain's fortitude as unprecedented as the Nazi military victory that made it grimly inevitable.

For nearly a thousand years John Bull's house has been his castle. Now, across a narrowing street he sees gathering a menace to tax all his stubbornness. Perhaps to overtax it, for he must defend not his house alone, but his barn, his garden and his yard.

The seas about his hitherto tight little island are patrolled by a mighty fleet; the air by a mighty air force. Its soil is defended by a million and a quarter soldiers, plus a half million "parashooters." But the far-flung empire, while a source of strength, drew off a full third of his peacetime forces. Today, here are the outstanding liabilities and assets.

The mighty British fleet itself, long the bulwark of the empire's strength, is divided. The main squadrons are stationed in the vicinity of the British Isles for the blockade of German ports; most of the remainder is in the eastern Mediterranean.

NORTHERN ISLANDS OPEN TO INVASION

VARIOUS northern islands, including Iceland, are like north Ireland, backdoors for air invasion. Ulster also has ports now doubly valuable. To guard them will require 50,000 men, including many Irishmen, plus 500 planes. Independent Eire is feverishly recruiting 50,000 men.

Gibraltar and Suez are next most important. They make possible southern blockade of Germany and Italy, and protect Britain's Near Eastern and African territories. The Rock's strongly fortified two-square miles require relatively few men — fewer than 10,000. En route to Suez, Malta has fewer troops because it is so hopelessly vulnerable to Italian attack. Cyprus, off Syria, may have 10,000.

Egypt and Palestine, guarding the Suez Canal, are in turn strongly guarded by more than 200,000 men, including 40,000 Egyptians. Trans-Jordan, the Sudan, Arabia and the Aden-Red Sea bottleneck take 50,000 more, mainly natives. The whole area requires probably a thousand airplanes and a powerful naval squadron.

EAST INDIES A SEVERE STRAIN

ITALY brought in South Africa against her, with a striking force of 50,000, plus 300 planes. Britain need keep few men at the Cape. The 25,000 in her other African territories are largely natives.

India's vast expanse requires 300,000 troops, of whom 50,000 are British regulars, but some native troops have come to the Near East. Ceylon needs a couple of thousand. But the East Indies are a severe strain. To protect Shanghai, Hongkong and Tientsin, and the great naval base in Singapore takes nearly 50,000, mostly white and only lightly strengthened by conscription. The China squadron has been increased from its peacetime strength of six cruisers, one carrier, etc.; and planes total several hundred, with a new Fiji air base. Japan looms daily nearer.

CANADA HAS SENT 50,000 TROOPS

THEREFORE Australia and New Zealand, although they have sent 25,000 to 50,000 troops to Britain, must keep most of their potential 600,000 at home. Both have naval and air forces, the latter expanding to provide help for Britain, mainly through Canada.

The Canadians intended their main contribution to be in air and industry, but have sent nearly 50,000 troops to Britain, are training 100,000 more, and have voted conscription. They garrison Iceland and Newfoundland and may even relieve Britain in the West Indies, Honduras, Guiana and the Falkland islands—using, say, 5000 troops. In these waters Britain keeps perhaps a half dozen cruisers.

College Woman Found to Earn $28.50 Weekly

PHILADELPHIA, (UP) — A 10-year survey of women college graduates conducted by the Philadelphia Women's University Club has revealed that the majority of college trained women are earning $28.50 a week while the average hosiery worker earns $21.

A report on the survey, which was supervised by Dr. Susan Kingsbury, club president, expressed doubt regarding the economic worth of college education.

The report said that while a few women with doctor's degrees earn upward of $10,000, only eight out of every 100 ordinary college graduates earn $3,000 a year.

"The time and investment seems not to have been justified, except among those with the highest type of preparation, that is, those who have obtained a doctor's degree," the report said.

Several Philadelphia educators pointed out, however, that the value of a college education should not be measured in dollars and cents.

Big Time Golf Has Wisconsin Debut Aug. 1-4

By ANTHONY G. DE LORENZO.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP). — Wisconsin's first attempt at staging big time golf will attract the nation's top-ranking money players here on Aug. 1 to 4.

A $5,000 pot awaits sharpshooters after 72 holes of medal play over North Hills country club's exacting course in the first annual Milwaukee Open.

Already pro players have dubbed the Milwaukee tournament the "last stop" on the "railroad circuit," which includes the Medinah Open at Chicago, July 19-21, and the St. Paul Open over the Keeler course, July 25-28.

Little Expected to Play.

Lawson Little and Gene Sarazen, champion and runnerup, respectively, of the National Open played over the Canterbury course at Cleveland last month are expected to top the entry list.

Others probably include the veteran Walter Hagen, Byron Nelson, 1939 National Open titleholder, Horton Smith, Ralph Guldahl, Jimmy Thomson, Wisconsin open champion, Sammy Snead, Al Watrous, Ed Dudley, Ky Laffoon, Lloyd Mangrum, Dick Metz, Tommy Armour, Craig Wood, Jimmy Demaret and Phil Greenwald host club professional.

Course Is Short.

North Hills is regarded as a good competitive course. Although not long—it's only 6,300 yards—the course should offer a fair test of golf ability. These are several blind holes and a few water hazards.

The traps aren't easy to dig out of and tricky. Par has been cut to 71 and fairways have been narrowed.

Only reason the North Hills course isn't as tough as Canterbury, according to Hieron Biber, in charge of tournament arrangements for the Milwaukee Junior Chamber of Commerce, the sponsor, is because it's "shorter."

"North Hills is a sporty course and it won't be a pushover for the pro stars," he said.

More Tulane Students To Take Law Courses

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — Tulane University hereafter will offer its commerce students courses in law.

Dean Leslie J. Buchan of the university's college of commerce announces four innovations beginning next fall. They will be a combined commerce and law course; a graduate program leading to the Master of Business Administration degree; a larger number of non-professional elective courses for the Bachelor's degree, and organization of an augmented research program.

Whitney Farm Taxed to Keep Proud Record

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP) — Whenever a Whitney horse races across the finish line out front, chalk up one more mark for "the farm."

Probably more consistent money winners have come from the 916 acres of blue grass owned by C. V. Whitney just outside Lexington than from any other racing stable.

A combination of scientific breeding, sportsmanship and good business seems to be the answer, but each year the competition gets tougher. The more winners turned out by the Whitney stud, the harder it is for its owner to carry on his self-imposed job of upholding the reputation of the string.

One thing is certain. Whitney's heavy burdens as board chairman of several large corporations have not altered his devotion to the farm, but instead have been an aid to him in injecting business methods into the farm.

Since its establishment at Lexington as the only Whitney breeding farm, Whitney horses have included such names as Equipoise, Top Flight and Whitchone.

The Whitneys — C. V. and his father, the late Harry Payne Whitney — have won every one of the historic American stakes at least once, some of them several times. The farm led all American breeding establishments 10 times in the annual summaries of "leading breeders in money won."

The stud actually was founded by C. V. Whitney's grandfather, William C. Whitney, secretary of the navy under President Cleveland.

In 1915, Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched four successive one-hit games for the Philadelphia National League team.
