

Ray's 'Ritin'

By RAY MARTIN

Last Sunday this corner started a discussion on why senior high school pupils drop out of school before receiving their diplomas. But the issue covered, we found, had too many facets to be covered in one single column. So, I put a "continued-in-our next" on Sunday's column.

So, this is part II. The World Book says there are two principal factors responsible for this drop-out problem. It says: "As society becomes more and more highly mechanized, certain jobs disappear. The remaining jobs, as well as the new ones that are created, require an increasing degree of skill. That is one factor in the picture. The second is a human problem."

"Almost all of the youngsters included in the current legion of the unemployed are so-called 'dropouts,' students who left school before they earned a diploma. Theirs are the faces that were missing from the high school yearbooks."

"If present predictions hold true, moreover, their number will increase in the years ahead. As matters stand today 40 out of every 100 youngsters in the United States either fail to attend high school or drop out before they have finished. If this trend continues, says Abraham Ribicoff, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, the number of unskilled, and unskilled and unemployed youths will have soared to 7.5 million by 1970. Of these, some 2.5 million will not even have finished grammar school. They will represent, roughly, 30 percent of all the young workers who are expected to enter the labor market between 1960 and 1970."

Now the problem of these young drop-outs, such as Joe whom I mentioned last Sunday as a point in case, are dropping out just at a time when education is a "must." Check the help-wanted ads, and all say "high school education required as a minimum" — or, at least, the great majority do, even if the job itself might seem not to require such a qualification. That's the trend today; just at a time when more and more pupils are dropping out of high school. This same source I've been quoting, goes on to say: "Unkilled, they will struggle to find employment in a labor market in which jobs often disappear at the click of a switch. 'In New York City alone, automatic elevators have already displaced an estimated 40,000 operators. In one large automobile plant, a manufacturing operation that used a require 39 workers and 39 machines is now handled by only nine each."

"Nor is the 'blue collar' workman the only one whose job is threatened. Some types of 'white collar' jobs also are disappearing, largely because of office automation. Altogether, 1.5 million of the jobs vanished between 1953 and 1960. Of the jobs available today, according to a reliable source, only a small number — four out of every 100 — do not require an education."

"The problem the unemployed dropout faces, then, becomes painfully clear; he is caught in a squeeze play. Unable to qualify for the skilled jobs that are open, the supply of unskilled jobs he might be able to fill is drying up."

And the article goes on to say that there is another irony in the picture. "Because of automation, and . . . technical devices says one authority, professional and technical jobs are going to grow by 3 million — or about 40 percent — during this decade. Jobs in clerical and sales fields will grow by about 3.7 million. Skilled occupations are expected to provide 2 million additional jobs by 1970. Implicit is the fact that these 8.7 million new jobs would more than absorb these 7.5 million dropout youngsters, who, because they lack skills and schooling, will know want in the midst of plenty."

"Educational requirements for any kind of job are higher today than ever before. According to most personnel directors, they will rise a notch or two each year from here on out. One personnel director said that within the next 10 years, post-high school education for two years — at a junior college or technical institute — will replace the high school diploma as a basic requirement. Today a high school diploma is the least most employ-

Muleshoe Band Again is Winner In Enid Events

Muleshoe high school band added new laurels last weekend to its long string of victories when the "Mighty M" group participated in the southwest's toughest contest series—the Enid (Okla.) band festival. The band is directed by Kathy Phillips.

Muleshoe won first division rating in concert and marching and second in sightreading. Sweepstakes was won by Castlebury high school, Fort Worth. This top prize is based on total number of points earned in all contests. Muleshoe was second highest in number of points.

In addition to band, several musicians from the Muleshoe band won first division rating for solos. These included Linda Scott, W. S. Hatfield, Charlotte Garney and Susan Birdsong.

Library Fund Here Nears $4,000 Mark

By computation, solicitation, donation, and just plain hard work, the Muleshoe library funds have grown to a grand total of $3,817.17!

Midweek figures announced include the general fund of $202.67 in deposit by the Muleshoe Study Club, library trustees, including library book fines and book card dues receipts.

Memorial fund gifts are announced at $276.50 for the Lillie Hunke and L. T. Green memorial book shelves; $1,000 memorial gift by the Clark Foundation, Dallas, in memory of Anson L. Clark, Jr., and $500 memorial donation by Celia Mathiesen and Mrs. Vera Engleking, the total memorial S. S. (Bill) Mathiesen and Harry Engleking. The total memorial contributions stand at $1,776.06 to date.

The Epsilon Sigma Alpha benefit dance proceeds and contributions will put more than $1,838. into the coffers of the library funds, over and above expenses, Mrs. Charles Lewis, ESA treasurer, announced Tuesday morning. She added that not all ticket sales money and other donations promised had been turned in, but the group of 24 young women are well pleased with the support given this worthy cause. They will look forward to continued interest and donations for the library project funds, she said. (See page of pictures of dance on page 1-B).

Included in the ESA library fund is the $500 contribution by the Muleshoe State Bank, made through solicitation of ESA members, which is given to be used at the discretion of the library board of trustees. Then, approximately $1,338 is the beginning of a building fund initiated by the ESA members, with the $500 donation to be used in the general library fund. Additionally, money from the sale of a pen-fed beef will be a donation to the ESA fund, compliments of Al Cassidy.

Muleshoe area is doing its share in making the fund drive provide a headway toward providing a badly needed library for Muleshoe, and Bailey county and surrounding area. The initiated during National Library week, only two weeks ago, by the active participation of the ESA members for their benefit dance.

The interest of the community by cooperation and donation is evidence that many have felt the need for better and expanded library service for this area, Mrs. Gilbert Lamb, co-chairman with

Debate Duo Wins State Title

Muleshoe Senior High School girls' debate duo came home this week from Austin with the top prize for Class AA squads—the first-place plaque.

The duo—Nine Ed Bovell and Shirley Smallwood — is coached by Kerry Moore, Muleshoe high school debate and speech coach for the past three years. Both girls are sophomores.

To reach the finals, the Muleshoe girls defeated one of the state's top debate squads, Pine Tree high school of Longview. The Longview duo has won the debate series for Class AA for several years, and Pine Tree is considered one of the top speech schools of the state.

In the finals, Nine Ed and Shirley bested West Orange High School, Orange, also one of the top debate outfits of the state.

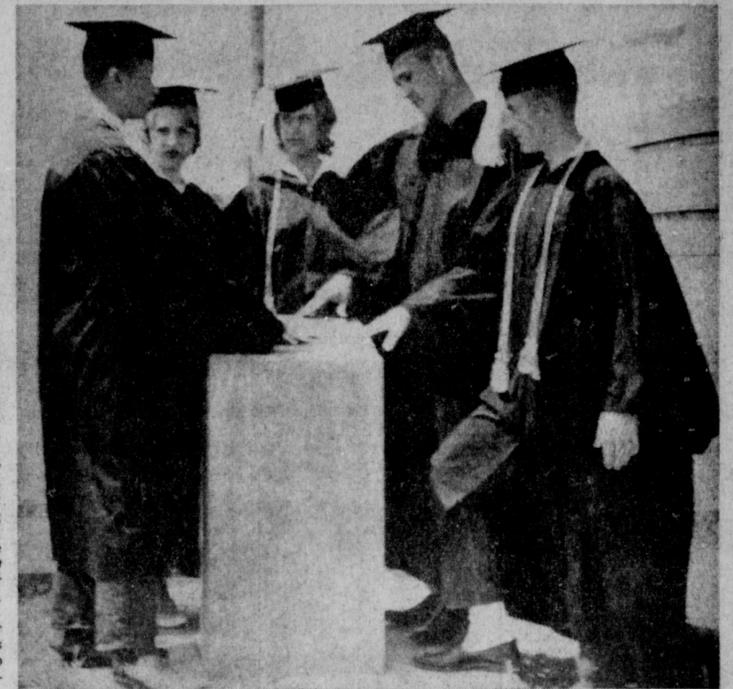

Winning the state title is the top honor which any debate squad can receive, and this is the first time a Muleshoe duo has come home with the top prize.

This year's subject is one of the most difficult which any high school squad has ever used: "Resolved: The United States Should Promote a Common Market in the Western Hemisphere."

To defeat the Longview pair, the Muleshoe girls took the affirmative side of the question, while in the finals they debated on the negative side.

The Muleshoe boys' debate duo, Barry Lewis, Jr., and Don Williams, was bested in the semi-finals by Pine Tree High School of Longview. The Longview duo, like their girls' team, has gone to the state contest several years in succession.

The Muleshoe debate teams are winding up a highly successful year. Earlier this spring both the boys' and girls' teams won both district and regional honors. The Muleshoe teams, both A and B squads have wound up the year with 25 wins and only four losses, and for the three years that Moore

Motorists Again Pay Heavy Fines For Speeding

Speeders continued to pour money into the Bailey County coffers this past weekend after 12 had been picked up by officers and brought before Justice Joe Vaughn a check of the records revealed.

The 12 charged with speeding paid fines of $20.50 each for using the highways in Bailey County for speed strips, Vaughn said.

As in past weekends, speeders held the top spot in traffic violations over the weekend. In addition to the speeding charges, one person was brought before Judge Vaughn for failure to have an operator's license and one person for "jumping" a stop sign.

One person was arrested for vagrancy, one for giving a worthless check and two persons for allegedly forging and passing a worthless check for $50. That case, of course, will be turned over to county court since a charge for giving a check for $50 or more constitutes a felony.

Affray Leaves One Hurt, Two in Jail

A knife-wielding spree on Main Street in downtown Muleshoe Sunday by three young Latin Americans wound up with two of the young men in the county jail and with the other nursing severe back wounds.

And before the two were taken, there was a gunshooting spree down Main Street's back alley by one of the alleged participants and Garland Freeman, deputy sheriff. Freeman said he had taken the young men into custody when one of them jumped out of the sheriff's car and fled down the alley. Freeman fired several shots into the air before the fleeing Latin American was finally retaken.

Arraigned Monday on a charge of assault with intent to kill were Gilbert Aquiano and Leopoldo Anguiano, Jr. Justice of the Peace Joe Vaughn set their bonds at $2,000 each. At mid-week they were still in the county jail, unable to make bond.

The two are alleged to have attacked Jose Mendoza with "hook-

Karen finished with a four-year average of 95.476. Jim had a four-year average of 95.039, and David's average was 95.238.

CHARACTERS DEPICTED — Mrs. Russell Haberer enthusiastically reviewed the book "The Rosary," one that she remembered the gist of from early childhood reading. After searching through almost 20 books for something suitable for the occasion, she thought of this one by Florence L. Barclay and prepared her review from it. Those attending said Mrs. Haberer's description all but brought the characters to life. (Journal Photo & Engraving)

Mrs. Russell Haberer Presents Book Review At Luncheon Here

Mrs. Russell Haberer, in her introduction to her review of Florence L. Barclay's "The Rosary" told mothers, guests and members of Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority Tuesday afternoon that she chose "this exquisite love story" to defy the current trend of "realistic" contemporary writing.

In searching for a book suitable to review, Mrs. Haberer, the former Arvilla Davis, Springlake, said she read almost 20 books. "I say almost, because there were so unpalatable I never completed them. I would close each with varying degrees of depression. Their people were all like fish, flopping on the bank, desperately seeking something, not knowing what, completely without direction, so utterly unaware of God they were unable to even deny and exist."

Unexpectedly, she explained, memories of this book from her aunt's library, read when she was a child, came to mind. Her brother had bought the book for nine cents in a second-hand bookstore in San Francisco; it was last published in 1910.

Her intimate and moving presentation of the story revealed the fact that "its characters lived and moved and had their being in Him," Jane, the pious good girl; the English Dutchess aunt, the artist who painted by memory "The Wife" and "The Mother" expressing his feelings for Jane; and continuing success in support of the library expansion program. She spoke of the proposed pioneer memorial library project-idea and expressed the desire of the Muleshoe Study Club for ESA continuing their work toward that goal.

Guests, including mothers and members, were Mrs. John Gregg, Mrs. Elvon DeVaney, Mrs. Karl Fryer, Mrs. Precure, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Lois A. Schoenberger, Mrs. Haberer, Mrs. T. R. White, Mrs. Wagnon, Mrs. J. J. Davis, Mrs. Jim Freeman, Mrs. Tom Morgan, Mrs. Marjorie Platt, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Benedict, Mrs. Clark Polson, Mrs. Buck Campbell, Mrs. John Gilbreath, Mrs. Neal Eubanks.

My Mother Is Best Pupil's Story Tells

(Editors Note: Pupils in Mrs. Arch Fowler's fourth grade class, Mary DeShazo School were given the subject "My Mother Is the Best" for writing constructively in class. The following is one written by Randy Duckworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Duckworth.)

My mother is the best because she knows how to take care of me.

One day at the age of four, I was playing with matches and I got a whipping from my mother. I didn't know why, because she is always playing with matches in the kitchen.

When I was 6, I got out the starch and starched my shirt. I got another whipping I didn't know why because she is always starching Daddy's shirt.

When I was seven, old enough to read, I went to church on Sunday. The preacher got out his Bible and said, "All who will, get their Bibles and follow me in the reading." So I got out my Bible and went where the preacher was. He went down from the Bible stand to read. Sure enough I followed him. When I got home, I got a whipping. I didn't know why because the preacher said "to follow him."

Now that I am ten I am glad that my mother whipped me, because she was helping me to learn what words meant.

JENNY SLIPPER POINTS—

Muleshoe is no different from other towns, such as Denver City, in the number of committee meetings which go on ad infinitum. There's always one or maybe more in action, for they're a necessary ingredient of community life and progress . . . .

So — we just couldn't resist reprinting Berle's "Over the Coffee Cup" comments from Denver City's Sunday Press. Berle's columns are always filled with up-to-date and original writings; we hope that she won't mind Jenny Slipper reproducing these two ideas for the Muleshoe area readers — taken from her column Sunday:

A number of papers have recently been publishing a clever interpretation of expressions used in newspaper reports on such meetings. No indication is given of the author, but just so you readers won't be in doubt any longer about just what is meant, here's the key:

"The committee met and evaluated the situation." Half the members showed up and talked for a while.

"We explored all possible solutions to the problem." Everybody talked too much.

"A great deal of additional work will be necessary before the proposal can be acted upon." Nobody understood it.

"The results were inconclusive." Nothing was accomplished.

"While no agreement was reached, we feel that definite progress was made toward resolving differences." Nobody budgeted an inch.

"The estimate has been that." Somebody guessed.

"It is suggested that the wisest and more feasible course." This is what I think.

"It is widely accepted that." One other person agrees with me.

"Therefore the consensus is." A couple of others think so too.

"As yet, it has not been possible to provide definite answers." Nobody understood the questions.

"Further investigation is recommended." Delayed indefinitely.

"This concludes the committee's appraisal of the situation." We absolve ourselves of all future responsibility.

"It is hoped that this report will stimulate increased interest in the problem." Let somebody else do it next time.

Did you happen to read the UPI report carried by many daily papers this week which brought the happy news that now the post office is getting in the act of the numbers jumble?

Seems as though the US post office doesn't want its patrons to think it is neglecting them, so it has decided to issue each of them a number. If we observe reasonable orderliness, we ought to find room for that one right between the Social Security number and the bank account number.

This, of course will mean squeezing the new all-digital telephone number over a little, and might necessitate throwing out a few direct dialing area codes.

But a minimum of juggling ought to preserve the license tag number, the insurance number, the credit card number, the book club number, the record club number and the dog's tag number in proper order.

The post office number will run to five digits and will speed the delivery of the U. S. mails through any adversity except a broken computer.

The whole thing is giving me a terrible inferiority complex. Here I have three perfectly good names — four if you consider my maiden name, and they're not going to be worth a flip if this keeps up. Even my middle name, which I've kept safely under wraps for these many years, is beginning to sound better all the time, now that I'm in jeopardy of losing it.

And how a person who can't even remember her own street address or telephone number, can be expected to cope with this new trend is beyond me.

The only ray of sunshine in the latest announcement by the post office is that the numbers will be given first to large volume mailers such as insurance companies, magazine publishers and banks. It'll probably be a long while until you or I receive one. But, time marches on, tempus fugit, and all that sort of thing. Maybe the generation coming up will be better able to cope with it all.

Rose Hiraga Chosen Design Winner By Group

Japanese — American Rose Hiraga has never had the luxury of considering what she'd like to do in the way of art she says. But she is a good design award winner chosen by the American Society of Interior Designers. She designed a modern fabric.

"I like to do things that are stylized, simple and free, modern in the sense that it is not bound by traditions," says Miss Hiraga. She was born in Portland, Oregon, and draws and paints in spite of a large handicap. She is a four limbs. In 1947, a year after she graduated from the Rhode Island School of Design her neck was broken in an automobile accident. She spent two years in a hospital trying to reuse her limbs to continue her art work. Then she designed a leather glove to wear over her paralyzed fingers. With it she can hold a brush through an aperture in the leather and control it with the muscles of her upper arms. She cannot move her fingers.

"I'm mainly interested in designing whatever will bring in Hiraga whose warm, placid smile lights the tiny room where she lives and works.

"My training was in industrial design, the applied arts rather than fine art, so most of my designs are done to order. I am told how large to make the flowers and the leaves, whether the fabric should look well with traditional, whether it is to be used outdoors and indoors was well."

Miss Hiraga works with a few get out for months at a time. She needs a strong man to wheel her down steps, to visit the companies.

"Even if I could get more work, it wouldn't be easy getting around to discuss changes in the design, as you must from time to time. Some people come here for the discussions or I send work by messengers. Others discuss an idea with me on the telephone." Some people like her designs because they are uninfluenced, she says. She doesn't do Oriental things because the market is flooded with such good stuff.

"If you are in the mass market you must keep up with the season's trend, but an original version of the trend is what they seek, a paradox. You never know what people are going to like," she says.

cheerful. Her "Jacks" wallpaper, a series of Xs in a Jacks pattern has a sar-bright glimmer in its cards, some to order.

One must design on a steady basis to make a good living. Design fees are less than the un-talented would imagine. Wallpaper designs are in the $100 bracket, fabric designs earn more but tops would be about $250.

"Companies operate in different ways in purchasing designs," Miss Hiraga points out. "There is no formula. Some companies buy from the outside, some buy from artist studios, some employ artists for a minimal but steady salary, a retainer feed."

Farmers Use Their Heads In Salvaging of Tailwater

Parmer County farmers, in cooperation with the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District, have hit upon various effective means of salvaging irrigation tailwater.

In some instances where the lay of the land is favorable farmers have devised means of catching tailwater from neighboring farms. Land leveling and installation of pumps in lakes help to reap the bonuses in irrigation water in the county.

The tight nature of Parmer farm land complicates water control and the declining water table are among considerations that have prompted Parmer County farmers to start hoarding irrigation water before the wells grow weaker.

Curtis Murphree operates a 320-acre farm four miles south of Friona belonging to Si Darling, Pratt, Kan. Murphree recently installed a recirculating pump powered by a 10 hp motor to salvage tailwater which in the past has gone to waste.

There are two good 8-inch wells on the farm. Darling paid for digging the collection pit which measures approximately 40 feet wide by 100 feet long by 14 feet deep, and installed 2640 feet of 6-inch underground plastic pipe. Murphree bought the pump and motor. When operating, the system will recirculate about 400 gallons of water per minute at a cost of approximately 18 cents per hour, or enough water to irrigate 7 or 8 one-half mile long rows per day.

Phillips Tips

"Haven't you Policemen heard of Madacol?"

"Poorest service in town, but we sure are friendly."

BUCK'S "66" SERVICE STATION

Cross Roads — Ph. 6830

The system starts and stops automatically. Total cost of the installation, $3300. Murphree states, "I think that the best thing about the system is that now we can irrigate the bottom part of our farm and not lose any water. From these acres we should be able to increase production enough to pay for the installation."

W. S. Ingram lives 5 miles south of Friona. He operates 320 acres of land which is owned by David Moseley of Friona. On the farm is a lake which covers about 80 acres if you include the land which slopes rather sharply to the center of the depression. Run-off water from a considerable area surrounding the farm drains into the lake. Ingram and Moseley built several earthen tanks to intercept irrigation tailwater before it gets to the lake bottom.

They obtained a used 3-inch self-priming centrifugal pump and air-cooled engine. The pump is mounted on the bed of a trailer which is pulled by an old tractor from tank to tank. Eighteen acres of land that was formerly worked without benefit of irrigation is now watered with salvaged tailwater. Dirt work cost $400, 320 feet of 4-inch plain aluminum pipe and 180 feet of 4-inch gated aluminum pipe cost $367, and the engine, tractor and pump together cost only about $200. About one hour is required to move the system from one tank to another. The pump uses about 3/4 of a gallon of gasoline per hour, and pumps approximately 300-400 gallons of water per minute.

Walter Mabry operates a 320-acre farm located 1 mile south of the Hub Community. The farm is owned by James Mabry. Two 8-inch wells are located on the farm. During years gone by, tailwater from the cropland spilled out into the road bar-ditch and was not salvaged.

Recently, however, a pit was constructed at the low end of the farm for collecting tailwater and a turbine-type pump with a 6-inch discharge and a 10 H. P. electric motor was installed in the pit. The pump operates automatically as the pit fills or empties. Mabry installed 1/2 mile of 6-inch underground plastic pipe from the pit to a previously installed pipeline so that the tailwater can be used anywhere on the 1/2-section. The pump will handle about 350 g.p.m.

J. D. Kirkpatrick operates a 160-acre farm which is owned by Jack Dunn of Clovis. The place is located about 2 miles southwest of Bovina. Kirkpatrick also owns and operates a farm which is about one mile farther southwest. In years past, tailwater from Kirkpatrick's place, and tailwater from the land of a neighboring farm escaped and was lost into a draw. The water passed through Dunn's farm.

Today, however, it is salvaged by using the new pit on Dunn's farm to intercept it. Water from 450 acres of land drains into the 15 feet deep by 150 feet long by 50 feet wide pit and is pumped to the cropland on Dunn's farm by using a 4-inch centrifugal pump and 7-1/2 H. P. electric motor. The system does not operate automatically.

About one day is required to empty the pit. It fills in about three days. The pump has a capacity of approximately 700 G.P.M. Kirkpatrick states that the cost of digging the pit was about $500, pump and motor $1200, and that about 1800 feet of underground concrete pipe was installed by Dunn in order to use the tailwater.

A. P. (Porter) McGee owns and operates a 320-acre farm located 2 miles north and 2 miles east of the Hub Community. He irrigates the farm with tailwater which comes to his place from about 1600 acres of adjoining land. He supplements the tailwater with water from one 3-inch well.

The tailwater is pumped from a rather large reservoir created when a dam was built by McGee to hold the water on his farm and keep it from continuing into a large dry lake. An old-style 10-inch centrifugal pump is utilized at the reservoir, and water is pumped through.

Besides the pipelines, McGee estimates that he has spent about $600 for dirt work and about $500 for the used pump and butane-powered engine. Chief problems encountered by McGee during the 3-year period he has used tailwater — wild grass and weeds are bothersome, and silt collects in the reservoir that has to be removed. Chief advantage in utilizing tailwater says McGee, "I would have to drill and equip another well if I didn't use the tailwater, and that would cost me around $8,000, plus my pumping expense would increase."

Kenneth Cass lives 4-1/2 miles south of Friona. He owns and operates a 320-acre farm which formerly sloped sharply along the mile-long south side. In the past, Cass ran water through the field and into the road ditch for a period of time long enough to allow sufficient water to penetrate the soil. The tailwater was not reclaimed by Cass.

Now, however, he has uniformly levelled a 400-foot-long strip of land along the end of his rows. His rows still run down the slope, but when the water comes to the levelled strip, 400 feet from the row ends, it slows considerably, allowing sufficient time for proper penetration. No irrigation water leaves the farm. To level the strip he had 12,000 cubic yards of soil moved at a cost of $2400. Cass says, "I believe that the added crop production I can obtain from the 24 or 25 acres which used to slope pretty sharply will repay my investment over about a 3-year period."

Dwain Menefee, who farms 320 acres of land south of Friona, has constructed a re-circulation pit on his farm. He has installed a 3-inch centrifugal pump at the pit and 1/2 mile of 10-inch rubber gasket underground concrete pipe. He can use the tailwater that collects in the pit anywhere on the lower quarter. He hopes to water about 30 acres of land with tailwater. If there is a need, Menefee plans to install another re-circulation on the upper quarter.

Gilbert Wenner owns a 320-acre farm about 5 miles south of Friona. He has one 8-inch well on the farm, with which 200 acres can be irrigated. Near the center of the farm is a rather large lake. He has recently installed a 6-inch centrifugal pump and engine at the lake.

He purchased 1600 feet of 8-inch aluminum pipe and 1/2 mile of 12-inch underground pipe. The pumps, engine and their installation cost $1286 — the aluminum pipe cost $1630. Wenner pumps irrigation tailwater and rainwater from the lake — he can pump about 1200 gallons per minute and water all but about 48 acres of the farm by using the well and lake pump.

The parsnip is strictly a winter and early spring vegetable for it takes about two weeks exposure to near freezing temperature to change its starch to sugar.

Channel cats are the only fish of the catfish tribe to be considered truly game fish by Texas anglers. They rate on a par with white bass and crappie, and just below the lordly black bass. More pugnacious than crappie, they equal white bass as scrappers and measure only a few notches below black bass when it comes to putting up a fight. Also, they are the only cats to constantly strike on plugs and spoons.

Channel cats go by many names — mostly according to geography. Besides their ritzy Latin moniker, Ictalurus lacustris punctatus, they are known in some sections of the country as fiddlers. Other states call them spotted cat, fork-tail cat, marble cat, silver cat and white cat. But in Texas they are just plain channel cat, a very descriptive name.

Distributed all over Texas, the channel cat is most abundant in streams that have swift currents and channels. However, the species often is taken from the big lakes and quiet rivers.

This succulent fish is similar to the blue cat that grows to such a size in the Mississippi River and its tributaries. This same blue is found in almost all Texas lakes and rivers, though in somewhat smaller sizes than the Mississippi River variety.

You might say that the channel cat is the blue cat's little brother. Where the blue cat sometimes reaches 50 or 75 pounds in weight, the world record channel cat only tipped the scales at 57 pounds. A five pound channel cat is considered good size. Two or three pounds are most common, and make better eating.

So alike are the channel and blue cats that they often are mistaken for each other. Both are slim shaped with rather narrow heads and forked tails.

You can distinguish the species by the shape and structure of the anal fins. In channel cats the outer edge of this fin is rounded and has 25 to 30 rays. Blue cats have 31 to 33 rays in a straight anal fin. Also, the coloring is different in the two fish. Where channel cats are a darkish blue, or muddy green on the back, going into whites on the sides and stomach, the blues are a much clearer blue on top and more striking white underneath. Channels under five pounds also have dark spots along their sides. These spots tend to disappear when the fish grows beyond five pounds.

Nesting habits of channel cats are similar to those of most fish. Nests are laid in bank hollows or in other secluded spots such as underwater brush, sunken logs and stumps. Spring is spawning time . . . usually in May but sometimes earlier or later, depending upon water temperature. Like humans, the menfolks generally mind the youngsters and do most of the housework, after the eggs are hatched. The 5,000 to 7,000 eggs laid are each about the size of a buckshot. They stick to the nest in a gold-colored, jelly-like lump. It takes about seven days for these eggs to hatch, which job the old man tends to, hovering over and fanning them with his tail, always alert to chase away predators.

Small fry stay in the nest about a week under daddy's care before going out into the wide, cruel world—usually followed by the old man for several days who sees they aren't gobbled up.

Channel cats, like the other cats, eat just about everything when they are hungry. The young feed on insects, insect larva, and other such light diet. The adults go for crawfish, dead fish, small animals such as mice, carrion, or anything else that drifts by, providing it has a strong odor.

During daylight hours channel cats siesta in sheltered spots such as deep holes, overhanging rocks and underwater brush. At dark they move out into the swift and shallow water.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

By VERN SANFORD

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION
AUSTIN — Gov. John B. Connally signed 27 bills into law . . . then he and Lt. Gov. Preston Smith left the state.

Their departure was to permit Sen. Martin Dies, Jr. of Lufkin to take over as "Governor for a Day."

Each bill applied to a special area of interest. For example:
1. House Bill 16 by Rep. Olen R. Petty of Levelland interests State banks. It exempts them from the State sales tax and franchise tax so long as federal banks are exempt. Saves them $1,000,000 a year.

2. House Bill 588 by Houston Rep. Tom Bass interests firemen and policemen. It enables them to credit toward "job seniority" time taken off for military service and guard duty. This speeds up their promotions.

3. House Bill 614 by Rep. Amado Canales of San Diego and Rep. Jerry Butler of Kenedy interests hunters. It puts a "No-Hunting" sign on Duval County for the next five years. These laws will go into effect late in August.

LOOPHOLE IN THE LOOP

Municipal annexation bill, which has passed both houses, is ready for Governor Connally's signature. It gives every city an "extra-territorial jurisdiction" from five miles for cities of more than 100,000 population to one-half mile around cities of 5,000 or less population.

It sets up an extra-territorial area of one mile around cities of 5,000-25,000; two miles around cities of 25,000-50,000; and three and a half miles around those with populations ranging from 50,000 to 100,000.

Under this proposed law a city could annex in a year no more than an acreage equal to 10 per cent of its size on the first day of that year. In computing this, many have drawn concentric circles around sample cities.

But this is not the limitation it would appear to be.

Actually, instead of extending its whole perimeter, a large city could annex a five mile strip along major highways without approaching the 10 per cent limit.

VOTERS REGISTRATION

A registration system to take the poll tax's place is all but decided by the Legislature.

Senate-passed bill by Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells calls for a 25-cent registration fee in lieu of the $1.50, or $1.75 poll tax. It retains the present system of registering voters each year.

El Paso Rep. Malcolm McGreggor tried to include the Texas League of Women Voters' plan for permanent registration, but it was turned down.

House took the 25-cent fee provision out of the bill. So a House-Senate conference committee will have to settle this dispute. Another House amendment would require rural people and those residing in small towns to register every year, if they are over 60 years of age.

At present, these people are allowed to vote without registering at all.

Entire registration revision hinges on a constitutional amendment to repeal the poll tax. This bill, by Rep. Abraham Kazen of LaFado, passed the Senate, but is tied up in a House committee.

GOVERNOR FOR A DAY

Sen. Martin Dies, Jr. wanted only a simple ceremony when his time came to be Governor for a Day. So he managed to hold the celebration down to a day of greetings in the governor's reception room in the Capitol.

But the simplicity of the event didn't keep the folks from coming to shake his hand and pay their respects. Among nearly 1,000 visitors were many relatives including the senator's well known father and mother from Lufkin.

More than 400 friends came all the way from East Texas in private planes and cars. Only side celebration was the traditional luncheon in the Governor's Mansion. It was attended by kinfolk of both Senator and Mrs. Dies.

CRIMINAL CODE REVISION

The much-opposed revision of the State Criminal Code now has the approval of the District and County Attorneys' Association, through an endorsement by its president, — more minor highlights. Alton Griffin of Lubbock.

Endorsement applies to the House Criminal Jurisprudence committee's version of the State Bar Association's plan for streamlining the code. House version is so different from San Angelo Sen.

Honore Ligarde told the House Appropriations committee that a program of basic education — gradeschool level reading, writing and arithmetic would be available to you today — the renovation of human beings in such a way that they cease to be a burden to the state and assume the dignified role of contributing taxpayers.

Ligarde has introduced alternate bills to set up an educational program under the Texas Education Agency, through the urging of the Texas Committee on Migrant Farm Workers.

There are about 127,000 illiterate migrant farm workers in the state. In addition there are 890,000 other adults who rate as illiterates and who would also be eligible for courses if a plan is adopted.

Rep. Will Smith of Beaumont introduced both measures.

This included 1,654,805 poll tax payments and 365,378 exemption certificates, to be used in any elections held through January 31, 1964.

Loving County issued the least poll tax receipts — 90. Harris County, the most — 282,768.

TEAMWORK TOO GOOD? — Sen. Murray Watson of Mart said the 58th Legislature is by-passing many major issues in its "mad-rush" to adjourn by May 27.

He praised the teamwork of House and Senate, but said, "All this good teamwork and this great speed is fine and good, but in our mad rush to set records—to avoid controversial issues — and to adjourn within the 140-day period, we are overlooking many vital problems."

Sen. Watson said the Legislature "seemingly is avoiding any positive approach to the growing water pollution problem — to traffic safety, crime, delinquency, divorce and other problems relating to our society's health and welfare."

Men Do Attend Cooking Course

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
When married men go to cooking school (and they do), they want to learn how to make good salads, buffet meals, meat dishes, says Ruth Norman, she conducts gourmet, cook-book author and lecturer, Jim Beard.

"Men are not interested in learning to bake, nor in making deserts," she says. Good advice for the bride-to-be is to learn these things well. "But they all want to learn how to make good main dishes, and hurry-up meals that are tasty."

Interest is so keen men often out number women in the cooking classes she says. Lawyers, doctors, architects along with advertising women, secretaries, writers, are likely to comprise a typical class of 12.

"If there is just enough money for one course, it's the man of the family who goes," says Miss Norman, "and then he can't wait to get in his own kitchen and show off."

One hungry man, who is the manager of a large store, rubbed his hands gleefully together and said, "I can't wait to throw my wife out of the kitchen when I get home," which may have been why his wife budgeted those cooking school funds in the first place.

The school removes what they consider the psychological barrier to cooking at the first lesson. "Fear of failure in what keeps people from oven and stove. People who can't cook are afraid to cook," Miss Norman says.

"We start them right out making Crepes (French pancakes) with all the fillings and sauces. It's just about the last thing an artist in the kitchen wants to cook. When they're over that hurdle, the rest is easy."

Even people who collect cook

BUSINESS ACTIVITY DOWN AGAIN — the seasonally adjusted index of Texas business activity went down in March for the second month in a row, according to the Bureau of Business Research, which bases its index on the 1957-59 average.

Business in general in March was seven per cent below February's level and four per cent below that of March, 1962.

Only three cities — Beaumont, Tyler and Texarkana — showed increases. El Paso and Lubbock remained at their February levels, while other cities showed declines from two to 16 per cent.

An entire evening is devoted to souffles, another culinary achievement for any amateur chef. "When they learn how to whip egg whites so they can turn the pan over their heads, there is no stopping them," she says.

Students eat what they cook during the three hour lesson, and drink the suggested beverages.

A typical evening meal from the second (general) lesson is Seafood Mediterranean, Sicilian veal roll, green noodles, salad, Bha Bha cognac.

Seafood Mediterranean, a first or main course takes 10 minutes. Here's the recipe: Put oil in a heavy pot that has a cover. Saute minced garlic in it. Stir in chunks of lobster tails. Add some thyme, bay leaf, an stir in shrimp. Pour a can of Italian tomatoes over all. Cover. When boiling add clams in the shell, mince parsley and a cup of white wine. Serve when clam shells have opened.

The Sicilian veal roll has a man - gimmick also. It may be served hot or cold, made in advance. It is stuffed with minced meats and hard boiled eggs, topped with cheese, and served with green noodles and an orange, onion and chicory salad. The dessert is cognac.

"Men like to make dessert that aren't really dessert, such as a cognac ignited — concoction that has a flare to it," she says.

Textile Chemical Forms Fabric Base

In chemistry's continuing war against dirt a major laboratory has compounded a new flourine-based textile finish. Applied to the fabric fibers before production, it forms a chemical shield. Liquid agents like coffee, ink, and salad oil roll off the producers say. Many spots can be blotted up. Stains that have been allowed to stand and dry can be laundered or dry cleaned free of the spot.

Raincoats are expected to be the first to be treated. They will be marketed next fall. Later on among all types of clothing and home furnishings.

Despite an abundance of jewels and dresses in spring collections, bibs of beads are out. Pins are in, that is if the pin is pinned anywhere than where you would traditionally pin a pin.

Not at the shoulder or at the Adam's apple (how prosaic can you be?) but at the jugular vein is the favorite pinning place of many manikins. Another is on the hipbone. Then occasionally the pin is placed on the midriff or on one sleeve.

Christian Churches Make Merger At 76th Annual State Convention

SAN ANTONIO — Some 800 delegates to the 76th annual Texas Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) voted here Friday to "terminate the autonomous character" of five separate Christian Church agencies, directing and empowering officials to "take all necessary steps to effectively complete with all deliberate speed" the new Texas Association of Christian Churches.

Effective date of the new association is July 1, 1963.

It is the first merger of Christian church organizations at the state level since 1955 when the Texas Disciples established the Texas Board of Christian Churches by merging the old Texas Christian Men's Fellowship.

The five agencies merged by the action are: The Texas Board of Christian Churches, The Texas Convention of Christian Churches, The Texas Christian Missionary Convention (Negro), The Texas Christian Missionary Society Permanent Fund and The Texas Christian Women's Fellowship.

Three other Christian church agencies will hold membership in the Association but will keep their own names, assets and continue to operate as separate agencies. They are Texas Christian University, Jarvis Christian College, a Negro institution at Hawkins, and the Juliette Fowler Homes in Dallas, a benevolent home for the aged and children supported by the Christian churches.

Two separate ballots were cast by delegates, one for the constitution and another for the by-laws. Delegates cast only a few dissenting votes although debate on several issues took place on the floor. Most floor motions were defeated including one which would have required the annual assembly to approve the hiring of the Association's executive director, another which objected to the tenure of the six-member board of trustees and a third concerning women holding top offices of the Association.

One motion, presented by Scott Smith of Abilene, clarified the language of one provision and made it mandatory that the president, vice-president and secretary of the new Association to serve in the same capacity on the board of directors passed without opposition.

Delegates voted several changes in the 19-article by-laws before finally ratifying the new document.

Adoption of the new organization came after a five-year study by the Disciples' Commission to Study Coordination of Work, a 29 member group chaired by Dr. Dudley Strain, minister, First Christian Church, Lubbock.

The new association will be administered by a board of directors elected by each of the 21 Christian Church districts in Texas. Chief administrative officer will be an executive director who will supervise staff and execute policies adopted by the Association.

At the final business session on Saturday, Dr. Travis A. White, president of Midwestern University, Wichita Falls, was named the president of the TACC. He served as president of the 1963 convention, one of the agencies merged into the new structure.

First annual assembly of the new association will convene at Houston April 15-19, 1964 in the Music Hall. The 1965 convention will meet in Austin.

In a final action delegates tabled "for further study" a resolution which asked President Kennedy to provide surplus grain to the "starving Chinese."

The convention closed with an ecumenical session Sunday afternoon with Dr. Charles L. Allen, pastor, First Methodist Church, Houston, as principal speaker.

New Material To Common Items

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Men's undergarments have never been a fashion inspiration to the ladies.

Neither have babies' rompers. The garments per se are still not, but the fabrics from which some of these are made will be cropping up everywhere in the summer wardrobes of women who are smart, chic and lazy.

The material is composed of a durable fiber, a two-ply double knit cotton which is lustrous and slinky without being saggy.

For years men's T-type undershirts of such material have been stuffed into duffel bags or tossed into laundry tub without being the worse for the wear. And mothers, lacking time to pamper infants' play clothes, have been equally careless without ill effects.

Why not, decided designer James Kenrob, share the blessed easy care with womankind?

He, as well as other sportswear designers, utilized the yarn for Chanel type suits and dresses, or classic sweater and skirt combinations. Every now and then Kenrob let the knitting machines run they grew to the hemlines into waistless shifts.

Sports clothes—shorts for the beach and long pants for everywhere—were also shaped out of the same type of material.

Because the yarn gives with body movement, knits are a natural for sportswear. In fact, this give or take quality which makes knit dresses and sweater costumes so comfortable and perfectly fitted is what brought about knit popularity within the past decade.

From an upkeep and climatic point of view, cotton knits would seem to be more practical than anything. Yet, until very recently certain kinds of these have been as tricky to wash as cotton candy. A size 15 one fine laundry day could easily be a size 3 the next.

The not new but newly stylish type of fiber doesn't work itself into that kind of deception at all. Material made of it remembers its size and stays that way.

Like all its fiber knit cousins, these cotton knit garments of durable unselfishly relinquishes previous closet space, remaining as happy and wrinkleproof in a drawer, or a suitcase as on hangers.

Benefit Dance Gives Library Fund a Husky Shot in the Arm

Mulshoe — and Bailey County — staged a benefit dance last Saturday night that gave the library fund a husky boost.

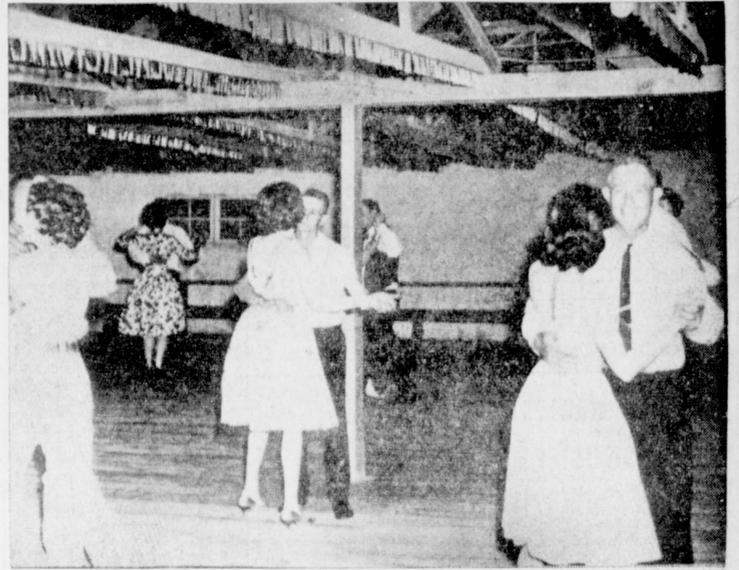

Sponsored by the Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority, aided by the Mulshoe Jaycees, staged the dance at $8 per couple. Hundreds turned out to make the affair one of the most successful events of its kind ever held here.

The pictures on this page show some of the activities at the dance, made at the height of the affair. Second picture, left (from top) shows the ticket line, composed of four members of the ESA group. Other pictures show many of the dancers in action. Dances ranged from twist to old-time western type, and the costumes of the dancers, too ranged all the way from dress-up to western, as the pictures indicate.

Several donations also are yet to be counted from people who wanted to help the library campaign. Mid-week count, made by ESA treasurer Mrs. Charles G. Lewis, set the total received to date of dance receipts and gifts to ESA library fund at more than $1,840.

Members of ESA sorority are Mrs. Robert Alford, Mrs. Vic Benedict, Mrs. H. W. Callan, Mrs. Buck Campbell, Mrs. Elvon DeYanoy, Mrs. H. A. Douglass, Mrs. James Freeman, Mrs. J. Charles Gilbreath, Mrs. Larry Hall, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Ernest D. ### Today's Meditation

Prayer was one of the important points in Christ's way of life. Christ told us to pray all ways. And He Himself sometimes prayed all night. Prayer is the lifting of our mind to God in some manner such as petition or adoration. As a means of obtaining grace, or Divine assistance, prayer is first on the spiritual person's list of tools. "There is nothing more useful than prayer," says Vincent de Paul.

Especially in church ought we to be absorbed in prayer, both as to mind and body. Christ blamed the money-changers for destroying this atmosphere. "My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations. But you have made it a den of thieves." The words of Antony of the Desert have come down to us: "Do not talk in the church," to which may be added, "especially during services," where by means of the holy liturgy we come in closest contact with our Savior. Prayer cannot be really called prayer unless there is some elevation of the mind to God. This is what gathers us together in church, as Jesus said: "Where two or three are gathered together for my sake, there I am in the midst of them." The words, "in my name," emphasize the elevation of the mind. "Some," says Thomas A. Kempis, "carry their devotion in their books." Shakespeare said "Words without thoughts never to heaven go". Besides, Christ must trust a condition for our prayers to be heard; especially when Christ said — "All things whatever you ask for in prayer, believing, you shall receive."

The greater our trouble, the more demanding our prayer ought to be, as Christ's was on the cross, when He asked His heavenly Father why He had forsaken Him. With these words Christ said "My God, my God why hast thou forsaken me?" The council of Trent said, "prayer is a duty. . . The more urgent our distress, the more fervently ought we to pray, and not give up. Nor should we forget that our prayers should be filled with sentiments of love, submission, and willingness as Christ taught so strongly in His prayer—the Lord's words, Forgive us our Trespases and "Thy will be done."

Breast Cancer To Kill 24,000 Women in 1963

Breast cancer is the leading cause of death from cancer among women. About 24,700 women will die of it in 1963.

But this great loss of life could be largely prevented.

The American Cancer Society says that 82 per cent of all breast cancer patients are saved when the disease is detected and treated while it is still localized. If the cancer has spread to other regions, the chance of cure is only 45 per cent.

According to Dr. Charles Lewis, of the Bailey County Cancer Crusade, "treatment too late" is the chief cause of death from breast cancer today.

He added that "women should realize that their best protection is to alert themselves about the disease so that they can be treated at the earliest possible moment."

Because the possibility of cure in cancer of the breast is so great, Dr. Lewis said, the American Cancer Society stresses two protective actions to be taken by women: breasts once a month for possible irregularities or lumps.

2. A health checkup once a year, including an examination of the breasts by a physician.

The American Cancer Society has published a leaflet on breast self-examination which illustrates the steps to be taken to discover possible thickening or lumps in the breast. The Society will send a copy free upon request.

Also, the Society has produced a film for women which illustrates the techniques involved in self-examination. The Society will arrange to show the film before any women's group wishing to see it and also supply a physician to answer questions.

Dr. Lewis said that an itching, redness or lump in the breast "calls for an immediate examination by a physician."

The medical spokesman for the American Cancer Society explained that breast cancer, once considered an almost hopeless disease, is potentially high curable. "Most breast cancers," he said, "are being detected early when they are most curable."

"A great deal, however, depends upon the woman herself. A physician can be of no help unless he is given a chance. A few precautions by a woman can increase the odds which are already in her favor."
