Are You Qualified?

Many young Americans are interested in becoming fliers or aircraft mechanics. The aircraft industry is expanding rapidly and offers opportunities to many men. But are you qualified? Some men never learn to drive an automobile successfully. Some never learn to drive a golf ball accurately.

No trade school—however good its training course may be—can guarantee employment. The quality of personality is an important factor in the aircraft industry as in other businesses.

Any reliable trade school will be glad to put prospective students in touch with its graduates so they may ascertain if they will be satisfied with the course offered and the future possibilities.

Donald Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft, Inc., recently wrote "We do not hire men unless they are well acquainted with at least one phase of airplane work."

His company even provides extension courses for its employees so they may keep abreast of latest developments in the industry.

The lack of all trades still is out and so are thousands of untrained high school and liberal arts college graduates who are storming manufacturers' personnel offices.

Stories have been written of the acute shortage of skilled labor in plane plants. These have produced many unhappy results. Men unqualified for the work hurried to cities where plants are located and found only disappointment. They had hoped for work at high wages.

There is need for skilled labor and only for skilled labor.

The unskilled workers probably didn't read the stories closely. Labor which is skilled in ordinary services of the world is not necessarily skilled in aviation work.

And the pay is not high to men first entering aircraft work. Most of them, after graduating from trade schools, get jobs paying about fifty cents an hour.

Use caution. Find out before you start for an aircraft center if you can meet the requirements.

Investigate the trade schools. Some are good. Some are not up to standard. Investigate before you spend your money. Legitimate schools welcome investigations and will cooperate to determine if you can qualify for the work you desire.

End Of An Era

The other day a Seattle man was doing a bit of jitters with his wife when he slipped on a rug and dove out the window.

Maybe the rug-cutting craze had already ended before this incident. Maybe it will drag on a little longer. But the symbol is clear: The jitterbug is leaving the American scene. And there are no laments.

What forces in American life caused him to spring up in the first place? Psychologists advance the theory that all dance crazes reflect something of the social attitudes of people. What brought about his demise? Maybe he just ran out. What will take his place? Perhaps it's too early to tell. The jitterbug has not yet been decently interred.

Only this much is certain. Something new will come along. It always has. Americans would find life pretty dull without their successions of Charlestons, Black Bottoms, and Jitterbugs.

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

Copyright, 1940, NEA Service, Inc.

YESTERDAY: Sidney meets police, Captain Plowman and Sergeant O'Connor. He reviews the case, then accompanies Plowman to the jungle. Plowman finds footprints of a small dog. Later he discovers the key of the jungle door, hidden in the mouth of the lioness. The gun that killed Adam is also found in the upraised hand of the Orang, beside the door.

A LETTER FROM AFRICA Chapter X

AFTER establishing his headquarters in the 18th century drawing room, Captain Plowman questioned each member of the house party. Braitwood, as their lawyer, was present throughout.

The captain sent first for Nella Langdon. With a little tremulous sigh the girl sank into a chair, her thin hands locked in nervous tension.

"Don't be upset, Miss Langdon," the big policeman reassured her. "This is all routine. I need your help to get at the facts."

Her account of what she had observed differed little from Sidney's except that she had arrived the day before he came and had observed a great change in Adam Langdon.

"I have never seen my uncle so depressed and nervous as he was when he reached home," she told the two men. "He brightened a little while we were having coffee in the Jungle, and appeared more his usual self."

"What cheered him, now?" Plowman asked.

"Being with his old friends again, I imagine. They had christened the lioness he had shot 'Martha' and we laughed about her being a foil for the big old lion we'd named 'Lesencoff'."

"Lesencoff? I have heard that name somewhere."

"Mr. Lesencoff directed Miss Hempfield's last play, Nella explained. "He left her in the middle of the season."

"I recall reading about that. Wasn't there a quarrel?"

"Lesencoff had ideas about what her vehicles should be which differed from her own," Sidney interrupted hastily. "Temperament, you see—on both sides."

"Does Lesencoff visit here week-ends, too?"

"No," Nella hesitated. "He and my uncle were never intimate."

"Did you happen to be standing near the closed door when Togi was putting in lights?" Plowman went on.

"I had been showing Mr. Gundrum the collection of weapons in the gunrack near the door. Later, when I heard steps, I had crossed to the coffee table. I hear unusually well."

"Mr. Gundrum was your guest, then?" Plowman's manner had become paternal.

The girl flushed in embarrassment. "He and Mrs. Langdon were old friends. I hardly knew him," she said hastily.

"Old sweethearts, maybe?" "I object," Sidney interrupted again. "Miss Langdon said 'friends.'"

Plowman did not press the point, but sent at once for Patricia Langdon.

A PICTURE of modernity and sophistication, Pat entered quietly and answered Plowman's questions without emotion. It was impossible to believe that she, a bride, had been tragically widowed within the evening.

"When Hugh Langdon called to your husband to remain in the Jungle and take care of you ladies, did Mr. Langdon cross the table where you all sat and attempt to reassure you?" Plowman asked.

"He did not," Pat replied. "Nor did I hear Hugh call to my husband, though later Mr. Braitwood told me that he had."

"You have no idea what he did after the other men went upstairs?"

"I have not. I imagined he had gone with the others."

"You didn't suspect he had been shot?"

"I did not," Pat's dark eyes blazed indignantly.

"Did the thunder and lightning continue long after the men had gone upstairs?"

"Intermittently. Most of the time we could hear each other's voices, but on occasions we could not."

"Would it have been possible for a shot to have escaped your notice?"

"Yes, during the loudest crashes of thunder," Pat was cool, collected.

"Can you remember where each of the ladies sat?"

"I remained behind the coffee table. Miss Langdon sat next me, Miss Hempfield at the end of the table."

"Then no one moved?"

"I didn't say that, Captain Plowman. Miss Hempfield became nervous when the men did not return. We all did. Finally she insisted she couldn't endure the suspense any longer. She imagined someone had been hurt, and she had to know who it might have been."

"We tried to dissuade her, but she insisted upon going upstairs. I heard, rather than saw, her push back her chair. There was a flash of lightning then and I recall seeing her empty chair. Then came more terrific thunder, followed by a sharp scream."

"It was too terrified to move at first. I sat where I was until the man returned with candles and then I saw her lying at my husband's feet. I didn't realize he was dead."

"Had Miss Hempfield and Mr. Langdon cried out about the same time, would you have recognized two distinct voices?" Mrs. Langdon?" Plowman questioned.

Pat hesitated. Sidney could hear the beating of his own heart while he waited for her answer. Should she say she had heard two voices, the net would be tightened about Martha, for Adam would have cried in his death agony and Martha would have been at his side at the time.

"I cannot honestly say that I distinguished two voices," Pat admitted.

"Do you know any motive for the crime, Mrs. Langdon?" Plowman pressed.

AGAIN Pat hesitated. "At the time my husband was on his hunting trip, there was some gossip about his having a secret purpose in going into the African Jungle. One of his bearers said that he often slipped of alone. That is dangerous. I never believed the rumors. Adam has always hunted."

Sidney could not decide whether this was the truth or the build-up which Craig Gundrum had planned. He made no comment, and Plowman suddenly leaned toward Pat and demanded sternly:

YOUR NERVES

This is one of a series of special articles revealing typical cases of nervous and mental disorders and their treatment through thought control as carried out by the author and his associates at the Boston Dispensary, famous charitable health clinic.

By Winifred Rhoades

ONE'S always unfinished task, and therefore always imperative task, is that of learning how to live.

We don't know how to give different experiences their proper value. We don't know how to guide our thoughts or to govern our feelings.

We permit some mischief-making idea to become fixed in our minds returned to work, and in later reports declared himself to be doing well.

What was he taught at the Thought Control class? He was taught that if life is to be lived healthily and happily and studiously, it is necessary to have one's thoughts and emotions, and also one's habits of nervous reaction, under intelligent conscious control. He was taught that emotional dissipation can have as bad an effect upon life as alcoholic dissipation. He was taught the necessity of clear thinking and constructive feeling upon all things great and small.

Do you wish to improve in health and happiness? Correct your emotional bad habits.

Hitler's Rise To Power Is Discussed By Dr. Kurt Lekisch In Address Before Meeting Of the City-County Federation

Hitler's rise to power was discussed before the City-County Federation meeting in the Crystal Ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer, Thursday afternoon. He described the situation after the signing of the Versailles Treaty, when the one aim of the German government was to break or disregard the covenant. The beginning of Hitler's power was the training of small units in military lines, he said. This work appealed to youths who entered it before they knew what it was, the speaker explained. In closing, Dr. Lekisch paid tribute to living in the United States and declared that he is trying to master the language and that he wants to be a loyal citizen of this country.

Mrs. J. Howard Hodge, Federation president, presided, introducing Mrs. Hal Peck who was in charge of the program. Mrs. Fred Fuhrman introduced the speaker. During the business session, Mrs. Louis Thomas, as representative of the Junior Woman's Wednesday Club, presented the Federation with $150 for the student loan fund.

The Federation contributed $15 to the milk fund sponsored by the chamber of commerce, after Mrs. N. A. Lancaster had made a plea for the fund.

Ten dollars was also voted for a patron membership in the Civic Theatre.

Mrs. J. A. Haley was elected delegate to the state Federation meeting with Mrs. Jas. H. Goodman as alternate. Announcement was made by Mrs. Peck that Midland women wishing to attend the convention in Austin may board a special bus from Plainview at Big Spring and make the roundtrip from there for five dollars. Reservations should be made with Mrs. E. H. Perry of Plainview by November 4.

About 60 women were present for the meeting.

Coed Dances in Flarechute Dress

Military influence is not exclusive with Paris couturiers this season. Norva Gene Cate, Texas State College for Women senior from Austin, is wearing an evening gown that she made from a flarechute. A Kelly Field cadet, whose nightly work includes letting loose a flarechute, smaller than a parachute and designed to show him whether he's going to miss the city water works or hit the landing field, sent one to Miss Cate. Upon receipt of the aerial souvenir, she made this dress which might well put professional stylists to blush, and unless you're in on the secret, you'd never guess that the modish creation was first turned out at Picatinny Arsenal, September, 1939.

Junior High School News

Written By Students of John M. Cowden Junior High School

OUR SPORTS SPIRIT

We Junior high football boys have been working hard, trying to make our team perfect. We still have about ten boys from high school. We appreciate their lining up with us. Our club includes boys from the fifth to the ninth grades. Many are showing possibilities, and some, no doubt, will become stars some day. Football is a rough game, but we don't care. We're Bullpups, and we're going to do our best to keep up the good work that the Bulldogs are doing.

JUNIOR STUDENTS HEAR MRS. NEWCOMB

All of the Junior high school students, went to high school last Thursday, October 10th, to hear Mrs. Franc Johnson Newcomb tell about the Navajo Indians. We sang "The Star Spangled Banner," read "The Pledge to the Flag," and "Love of Country." Mr. Lackey made us a short talk. We enjoyed it very much, and would have been glad had it been longer. Mr. Gilbreth introduced Mrs. Osburn, President of the PTA. We surely did enjoy the Indian stories and were glad to hear Mr. Lackey's praise of us, and just as glad to meet Mrs. Osburn, who has done so much for our school in her PTA work.

OUR NEW PET

All of us in Junior high are of the opinion that we should have an Edgar Allan Poe to immortalize the brazen black bird, better known as an old crow, that haunts our building each day. At first he was bold enough to venture to an open window and perch upon the sill. But in the past few days he has come right into the building, pecking up Miss Price's music books, and fluttering over our heads, scaring the wits out of us. Miss Latham said she expected some gruesome happening the other day when we got into line to march over to high school. That pesky old crow hovered over us, flying from one end of the line to the other. Perhaps he felt as if he were just one of us instead of a bad omen or a forerunner of tragedy.

H6 HAS NEW CLASSIFICATION

After some deliberation our Superintendent and Principals thought it best to do away with what is called the high sections. Some pupils in Mr. Johnson's home room, which was originally the high 6th, took a test to see whether they could be promoted to the eighth grade. Out of fifteen who took the test only one passed. Rose Beth Shirey was promoted, but put in the 8C section, Miss Lowry's room. The pupils of 8C are glad to have Rose Beth in their class, and we who remain in 7D, are sorry to lose her.

PTA SOCIAL

The Junior high PTA had a second meeting last Thursday night in the form of a social. The main feature of the evening was an interesting talk by Mrs. Newcomb on Navajo Indian life and customs. After her lecture the visitors gathered in the lower hall of the building where they enjoyed refreshments of ice cream and cake. In spite of the downpouring rain many parents were present. This social meeting at night is an annual event for our PTA so that the fathers may attend and meet the teachers and other members of the organization.

END OF BICYCLE TROUBLE (MAYBE)

It seems that our bicycle trouble grows worse each year, and something had to be done about it. The fact that Junior high has so many bicycle riders (to be exact 150) we do not have any place in which to keep them. Mr. Gilbreth, our principal, has a good idea about how to park them. Last week in assembly he asked if all who owned bicycles and rode them to school would pay twenty-five cents to help build a rack where they might park their wheels. All but about five or six students agreed to bring the money. So if things turn out as we have them planned, we shall soon have a modern parking lot for our bikes.

NEWS IN GENERAL

The first six weeks exams ended Thursday. Now everyone is waiting, somewhat impatiently, until next Wednesday for that report card.

The visitors this week were Mrs. Deffeyes, Mrs. Clyde Cowden, Mrs. Frank Cowden, and Mr. Prothro. We are always glad to have our patrons call, and welcome them back.

A number of our students rode the special last Friday to see the football game. The teachers who went were Miss Price, Miss Stout, Mrs. Phillipus, and Mr. Gilbreth. The librarians on duty at the PTA social were Ann Ulmer, Camella Jane Crawford, Billy Ann Hill, Eileen Eiland, Garrett Sindorf, and Bobby Conkling. Their duties were to show the visitors the bookroom and the library.

Miss Latham spent this past week and with her mother on the ranch near Brady. Says she found out that she isn't quite the same cowpuncher she used to be.

Bernice Leftwich has been out of school for some time. She told some of her friends that she would return after ooton-picking season.

Mr. Johnson was absent Friday, and Mrs. Conner taught in his place. As usual he was out snooping on one of our football enemies.

Junior high students are selling tickets to our game with San Angelo Saturday afternoon. This is the first time there has been an admission price to a Bullpup game. The idea is to raise some money for our boys' sweaters. The price is only fifteen and twenty-five cents. Get behind this ticket sale, all of you! We need your support.

The Glee Club and the Choral Club are practicing from 8 until 8:30 o'clock twice each week. We are learning some very pretty songs. Before long we're going to sing in assembly and extend on invitation to all of you to come and hear our song birds. Bert Hemphill is president of the Glee Club, and Ann Ulmer is the Choral Club president.

We boast of an annually good fire drill last Tuesday. Mr. Tidwell, W. F. Prothro, R. C. Conkling, P. F. Bridgewater, C. D. Vertrees, and L. C. Link were present, and complimented us very highly for our hasty and orderly exit when the fire bell rang.

Germany's Bigger Bertha

Out of the mouth of this big babe come shells, headed for the coasts of Britain.

It is one of the huge guns, emplaced on the Nazi-held French coast, that for two months have been engaging in cross-channel duels with British artillery. Bigger than the Big Berthas of World War I, this gun is said to have a range of up to 125 miles.

The World War Berthas were first heard from when they sent shells showing in the midst of surprised Parisians one Saturday morning in 1918. They were firing from battle lines 76 miles away.

The guns were 90 feet from breach to muzzle and fired a 264-pound shell, using a 50-degree elevation to obtain the range.

The new Nazi weapons are 120 feet long. When they speak, they hurl a 10-inch, 660-pound projectile into the stratosphere at a 55-degree angle. To reach a target 125 miles away, the shell would travel a 140-mile trajectory through space in about 4 1/2 minutes.

Many guns like these have been spotted and bombed by R. A. F. flyers along the French coast from Calais to Cape Gris Nez to Boulogne, closest points to Britain. As yet there has been no verified shelling of London, less than 100 miles away, but experts agree it would be possible for guns like these to shoot this far.

United States Has Areas Not Part Of Country, Land Office Reports; Surveyors Erred After Purchases

By Eddy Gilmore
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Dusty files in the general land office disclose the strange fact that five states contain whole areas which, as far as the county's title goes, are not a part of the United States.

Only one of the states, Colorado, has taken the trouble to do anything about the situation, hoisting a flag several years ago and claiming the area in the name of the federal government.

As far as the land office knows, the others—Minnesota, North Dakota, Louisiana and South Dakota—have neither claimed nor "conquered" their non-man's lands.

The land office files tell this story of the Paradox which has existed of 137 years.

When Napoleon peddled that large sub-division known as the Louisiana purchase to America he could have used a better surveyor to say the least.

Broadly, the territory included the western drainage basin of the Mississippi river. The negotiators made mistakes, though.

They believed certain sections drained into the Mississippi when actually they drained into the Great Lakes. So, under terms of the treaty, parts of what became Minnesota, North and South Dakota are not properly parts of the purchase.

The same thing happened in Louisiana.

Not in 'ole Miss' A portion of this state—thought to drain into the Mississippi—turned out to drain into the Sabine river.

A part of Colorado was a little more involved.

A small part near Estes Park was discovered not to drain into the Mississippi, and hence was not a part of the Louisiana purchase. On the other hand, it was east of the continental divide and not a part of what Mexico ceded to the United States in 1848.

All these areas may not be parts of the United States according to strict official interpretation, but as an expert at the land office said: "I'd like to see someone outside of these states try to claim them."

Methodist Conference May Reduce Districts

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Southwest Texas Methodist Conference today had before it the question of reducing the number of districts by two.

Under the proposal each district superintendent would receive $4,000 annually of which $400 would be for expenses.

At the present time the superintendents of the eight districts receive salaries ranging from $3,500 to $5,000.

INTERPRETING THE WAR

By DeWitt MacKenzie
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW ITEM: ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 18—The Turkish raid (government controlled) warns the Axis powers that if they attempt a drive across the Dardanelles to Egypt and the Suez Canal they will find Turkey a tougher nut to crack than the Netherlands, Belgium or France.

The threatened Axis thrust down the Balkans into the Near East naturally creates another danger to the life of the British empire but, on the basis that it's a nasty wind which doesn't cool the fevered brow at all, I can see some benefit for England—much benefit if Hitler and Mussolini start their rush and are stopped at the Dardanelles.

Banks On Blockade

England is depending on her control of the seas to pull her through the war. She's banking on her naval blockade to strangle the enemy.

This being so, the destruction or dissipation of enemy supplies, while the blockade prevents replacements, is all to the good for Britain.

When Hitler occupies a country (as he has Rumania, for example) it's true that he may profit at the outset by fresh supplies. However, the occupied country soon is exhausted by this extra burden and becomes a liability to Nazidom.

That's only part of the picture. When Hitler occupies a country (as he has Rumania, for example) it's true that he may profit at the outset by fresh supplies. However, the occupied country soon is exhausted by this extra burden and becomes a liability to Nazidom.

What has happened in every one of the countries Hitler has overrun in Western Europe.

Shot The Goose

There's still more of it. Every one of these countries when free was working like a beaver to create supplies for the omnivorous German market. In rendering them impotent the Nazis have killed the geese which were laying the golden eggs.

Complete stoppage of supplies, due to the holocaust which bids fair to sweep the Balkans, would put Herr Hitler on a tough spot—providing that Turkey, with the naval aid of Britain, holds the Axis forces at the Dardanelles. But supposing the dictators do break through into the Near East?

Will Increase Danger

That will increase Britain's danger and add to the resources of the Axis powers. Still, it doesn't neces-

God Always Provides The Right Person At The Right Time

16 John answered, saying unto them all, I indeed baptize you with water, but there cometh he that is mightier than I, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he shall baptize you in the Holy Spirit and in fire:

It whose fan is in his hand, thoroughly to cleanse his threshing-floor, and to gather the wheat into his garner; but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire. John 3.

By R. A. Weaver.

To study the life of Jesus it is necessary to know something about the facts connected with his advent into the world. Without this understanding, one may accept the teachings of Jesus as originating from a mere man. But Jesus was more than man, for he was a teacher sent from God. His advent was well authenticated by Luke who took great pains to set forth the historical facts connected with Jesus' birth and incarnation. To begin with, it is pointed out that the messenger who should go before the Master to announce his coming was also a man sent from God whose name was John. John's birth was also a miracle, for he was born of parents whose ages were prohibitive of child bearing. John's birth was foretold by the Angel Gabriel, and the parents selected to become John's father and mother were those whose lives had been lived in devotion and labor to God. Throughout the Bible it is indicated that God always selects the proper parents for His leaders.

God Acts In Due Time
Always the kind providence of God supplies the needed men and women in given emergencies, and the pages of history are replete with the exploits of the prophets and teachers and leaders whom God has raised up to save our Holy religion. The greatest pains of all time may be sung to the leaders under God who have been in the world at the right time and at the right place. Among these may be mentioned Moses, Joan of Arc, Brigham Young and Ghandi, and the countless number of others whose light shone in the hour of darkness to guide a wavering people toward the day star of hope and realization. The economy of the Creator is visible everywhere—in every nook and hamlet, for in every village and every town there will be found a few whose labor of love and devotion keeps together the straggling few who desire to perpetuate the glorious message of the Christ in a world that is torn with strife and doubt and fear. The miracle of this is the manner in which the faithful are strategically scattered over the broad horizons of the fields of labor.

None Greater Than John

Of John it was said by Jesus that among the prophets there was none greater, and as we look back over the brief span of John's life, we marvel at the self-effacement and the utter abandonment of self that the Master might assume the role of King of Kings and Lord of Lords. John was only a Voice. That Voice having spoken the glad tidings of Jesus' coming into the world, ceased, and the tongue that brought the proclamation of a coming Kingdom of God was stilled in death at the hands of the Near East had been finished. In the mighty drama of God, John was only the herald who announced the approach of the central figure. His role was to go before the King, and having done he took his departure back to God.

A Faithful Servant
The word of God came unto John and he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. He sought no glory for himself, and denying any honor unto himself, he testified that he must decrease while Jesus increased. Here we have the keynote of the Christian ministry. The Gospel is the glad tidings of great joy. The faithful teacher will teach the Word—he will hew to the line and let the chips fall where they may. The power of a great conviction is the mightiest force in the world. It was this that raised up pioneers in the trek toward freedom and liberty that has established the church, opened up new fields of religious freedom and has enabled people to live in a democracy where religious liberty does not perish from the earth. The church will never go down so long as there are a few who are willing to face danger, death and martyrdom for their convictions.

The loss of conviction is the only danger facing the democracy of the world today. The loss of conviction is the only danger facing the church. For to lose conviction means to lose courage, and integrity and manhood and the things that make life worth living. A free people had rather choose death than slavery.

MIDLAND 14--SWEETWATER 7

The Midland Bulldogs, with most of the members of the first team at least slightly injured, face one of West Texas' strongest teams tonight out at Lackey Field when they meet the Breckenridge Buckaroos at 8:00.

The Bulldogs came out on the long end of the score with Sweetwater last week but they took a physical beating that has kept practically all the boys from getting in top shape for this game.

The game tonight will mark the first time the Bulldogs and Buckaroos have ever met. The Breckenridge team for several years has been a power in the Oil Belt district, several times copping the district championship. The Bucks have gone to the finals in the state race twice, winning one championship and tying the other time.

The Bulldogs will be outweighed tonight but that will be nothing new to them. Only one time this year have the Bulldogs been able to place as strong a team on the field as the opposition. However, the Bulldogs have copped four of the five games they have played and lost the one engagement by a lone touchdown.

Right now the Midland team is leading District 3-AA with two wins and no losses and stands no chance of losing their lead this week since the Breckenridge game is a non-conference affair. The Breckenridge team has won only two games while losing two but the victories came over the strong Wichita Falls and Abilene teams, stamping the Bucks as one of the toughest teams of this area.

The Midland coaches will be forced to start a different line-up tonight from the one that has started most of the games this year but the boys will be in there fighting from the word go. Don't miss the opportunity to see the Bulldogs in action.

Stock Market Regains Stride After Profits

By Victor Eubank
 NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP). — The stock market bumped into considerable profit taking today but managed partially to regain its balance after a forenoon slump. Losses of fractions to a point or more for steels and other recent industrial favorites were cut or replaced with small gains at the close.
 The pace quickened on the recovery attempt. Transfers were around 600,000 shares.
 The morning set-back was attributed by brokers mainly to the customary cashing in on the eve of a week-end following three successive rising sessions. Business news was still helpful.
