Says Europe Invasion Impelled Labor Order

By The Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 22. — Winston Churchill disclosed today that behind Britain's decision to conscript labor lies an intense demand in the next six months for man and woman power to supply an army on a scale for fighting both overseas and

Before the House of Commons Churchill said the size of the army was settled within a few weeks after war started; that the only change had been to provide equipment for ten more divisions and that "the scale of the army is the same as that in November, 1939 . . . A very large and formidable force both for fighting overseas and defense." Now, he explained, "this great nation has got into its war stride" and most of wartime munitions and supply plants, planned in 1939 to provide the army "with all the equipment it required in continuous action on the continent of Europe against the Germany enemy," are coming into production.

FDR Will Form Defense Agency

By Irving Perlmeter WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP) A tederal agency entrusted with the responsibilities of economic defense is being planned by President Roosevelt, authoritative officials reported today.

One of the main tasks of the unit, it was said, may be to keep dollar exchange and essential materials out of the hands of the Axis powers. The projected agency, officials stated, would be charged with coordinating all economic phases of the defense program and would constitute, in effect, a companion organization to the office of pro-quetion management—the Knudsen-Hillman board which has been placed in charge of the nation's armaments manufacture effort. Idea Started In 1939

The idea for such a component in the defense setup was understood to have been broached first in the economic preparations which followed a series of secret pre-war conferences at the treasury in April, 1939. The duties of the new unit, it was said probably would include supervision of such activities as: The treasury's control over foreign funds and ships; the federal loan agency's purchase of strategic materials; the justice department's surveillance of Axis business connec-Associate Justice of the Supreme tions here, certain state department functions in the economic field, the

Eighty Appointments To State Legislature

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Jan. 22 (AP) - More than 80 recess appointments, those made since the last legislature adjourned, were sent to the Senate today with a request by Governor W. Lee O'Daniel for confirmation.

Although some were for terms that have expired, others were for highly important posts on appointive boards and commissions.

The names which must be confirmed by a two-thirds vote of the Senate membership, were grist for the committee on governor's nominations whose chairman, Jesse Martin of Fort Worth, called an immediate meeting for organization pur-

Rumanian Chief Throws Army In Charge Of State

Antonescu Appeals For Guard's Help In Order To Prevent Outbreaks

By The Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 22. -Strife-torn Rumania was under army control today as Chief of State Ion Antonescu worked desperately to restore order following the outbreak of widespread street fighting.

He appealed directly to dissident Iron Guardists to "forget their hatreds" and help him hold his nation in unity, and backed this up with an ultimatum last night that order must be restored in 24 hours.

The chief of state, who has headed Rumania's government during what he called four months of the 'most bitter, most terrible and mos devastating turmoil that a man could live through for his country,' acted swiftly on his declaration that calm would be strictly enforced.

He placed the army in charge of police, brought 87 important indusunder military control, ordered a 10-p.m. curfew to clear the streets of Bucharest and other cities where blood was spilled during 24 hours of disorders and ordered the death penalty for anyone committ-ing crimes against members of the German military mission in Rumania

Think Fast, Uncle Sam, Think Fast!

There is always time to be right.

The United States is today in much the position of Captain Flagg in "What Price Glory" when Sergeant Quirt flung at him the exultant and challenging "Think fast, Captain Flagg, think fast!"

On the "lease-lend" bill we must think fast. But that does not mean that we should not think at all. There is time to be right.

There are perfectly earnest, sincere men and women on both sides of this argument, and to impugn their sincerity is not the best tactic for their opponents to adopt. It is far too serious to answer every criticism of the bill with a piercing attack of "Appeaser! Ap-

Coldly, wisely, and quickly, the American people must approach the problem laid before them here. This is definite, practical. It is of no service to wish we could render aid without risk of war—it is crystal clear that the only course entailing no present risk is to cut off aid completely. Few would wish to go so far. On the other hand, as new means of extending aid are devised, and that aid becomes a greater and greater factor in the struggle, the risk of being involved increases. This weighing of more effective aid against greater present risk, this weighing of less effective aid against greater future risk, every man must do for himself.

SERIAL STORY

CONSCRIPT'S WIFE

BY BETTY WALLACE

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Martha decides to spend week ends in camp, gives up the apartment to save money. She meets Suzanne Decker and the girl threatens to tell Bill of the Country Club dance. Martha realizes that Bill might believe even the most malicious gossip. She determines to tell Paul to stop Suzanne. A telegram summons her to her sister's. Helen is ill. Martha must come at once.

mons her to her sisters. Hereill. Martha must come at once. AUNT MARTHA TAKES OVER

CHAPTER XVI THE hour and a half on the train, after hurried packing and a quick dash downtown in the cab. was like a nightmare to Martha Marshall. The rumbling wheels seemed to be saying, over and over, the words Eugene had used in his wire. "Helen critically ill. Helen critically ill. Helen criti-

The sick shock, the sudden allconsuming fear for her sister, drove everything else out of Martha's mind. Helen had never been strong, but she stood up to life and battled so valiantly! There was Eugene, and his little garage that seldom made money. There were the three small children, the oldest only 7. Helen did her own housework, her own washing, her own ironing. And now, she was in the hospital.

All those letters Helen had written later-those letters asking her to come and stay with them while Bill was in the Army-had they been Helen's indirect, hesitant way of telling her that she needed help' Help for which Eugene was unable to pay?

MOUNTING panic shook her as the train neared Bayville. She was standing on the platform, suitcase beside her, her hat on, her gloves on, clasping her handbag very tightly, when at long last the train rolled in. Eugene was waiting for her. He was a short, stocky man, whose usually ruddy face looked pasty and green. There were deep rings under his eyes. He was worn. haggard, as if he hadn't slept for "How's Helen?" Martha shot at him immediately. "What was wrong with her? How long has she been in the hospital?" "She's had a hard time," Eugene evaded. "They operated this morning and I-I kept hoping I

Her fingers were tight on his arm. "Do you mean Helen's— Helen's—" Her voice seemed to give out. She couldn't utter the horrible word which was searing into her. No. No. It couldn't be that bad. It couldn't be.
"She isn't rallying," said Eugene

"She isn't rallying," said Eugene tidying up the house, putting the dully. "They're doing everything, children to bed for their naps. pened to you? You look all int"

"What was it?" He couldn't look at her. He muttered, "Complicated. She didn't tell me right away—"

It was after visiting hours at the hospital, of course. The quiet lobby was dark, with a pool of light over the switchboard. A nurse sitting there looked up. She recognized Eugene, for she said at once, "Go right up, Mr.

Nugent." A nurse at the chart desk rose and walked toward them. Her rubber heels were almost soundless on the tile floor. "She's not sleeping, Mr. Nugent. You may go right in."

Martha braced herself as the nurse opened the door of a room just beyond the bay-windowed waiting room. She tried to pin a smile to her lips, in case Helen should be lying there, watching the doorway, waiting for them. But Helen wasn't caring who came or went, she realized in the next shocked second. Helen lay white and bloodless on the bed, with parched lips, with tumbled hair to which the odor of ether still clung. Her fever-bright eyes were fixed on the ceiling.

"Oh, Helen! Helen!" The cry was torn from her.

NEXT morning, Martha waited for the doctor in the hospital corridor. "How is my sister?" she asked him bluntly. "She seemed so strange last night—for a little

The doctor had kind, shrewd eyes, and a reassuring smile. "She wasn't doing very well yesterday. But she's better now. I think your coming has helped her." "Is-is she out of danger?"

He made a tent of his fingers and said carefully, "It's hard to judge. But if she has nothing extraneous to worry about-if she can be made to think of nothing but getting well-" So she telephoned Air Transport from the coinbox in the hospital lobby. Paul wasn't in his office. She talked to the chief engineer. 'My sister's very ill in the hospital. Very ill. I must stay here. There are three children, and she's been worrying. . . . I don't know how long I'll be gone. Until she's well. He was very kind, then. "All right, Mrs. Marshall. Don't worry about anything. I'll get a girl from Sales to help with your work until fearful of the baby's safety, you're back."

But when she flung the Swiftly she planned her days.

Morning visits to Helen, bringing the children. She'd bring them his new car parked at the curb, neat and clean! Then home, lunch, and his eyes startled. "My God, At 4, she'd slip back to the hospital, alone. By 6:30, when Eugene came home, dinner would be fixed, the children rested. In the evening, Eugene could see Helen while Martha stayed with the children.

It was a good plan. But it didn't work.

GENIE, who was 5, and Sister, who was 7, could dress themselves all right. But the effect was weird. And Martha had to be dressing the baby, getting breakfast, feeding the baby, and somehow straighten herself out before they could go. By then the baby had to be changed, Genie had gotten his blouse dirty, the baby was crying, and it was 10:30 and they were nowhere near the hospital. In despair, she commandeered a taxi.

Genie and Sister had to be desisted, violently, from climbing up on Helen's bed. "Oh, darlings!" Helen whispered. "Sweeties. Helen wanted the baby lifted so she could kiss him. There were tears of joy in her eyes as she thanked Martha. "It's so good of you, Marth'." "Nonsense!" Martha cleared her throat. "How are you feeling this morning? Chipper?"

The pinched white lines of pain around Helen's lips belied her brave "Fine."

BY Friday, with Helen definitely getting better, if slowly, Martha was almost in command of herself and the children. The baby had learned that "No!" meant he mustn't pull the tablecloth, dragging all the dishes to destruction with it. Genie had learned that a big boy 5 years old could wash his own face and hands, must not jump on the sofa, must drink all his milk, and must never, never let the water run in the bathroom until it overflowed the bowl and made an ocean on the floor. And Sister had learned that a 7-year-old young lady took her own baths and wheeled her little brother up and down the sidewalk -without a single spill-for an hour every afternoon. She also dried dishes with hardly any accidents.

Martha was cutting up a chicken, Friday afternoon, and hoping fervently that the no-spill record for baby-rolling had not been broken, when the doorbell rang. She raced to answer it,

But when she flung the door open, it was Paul. Paul Elliott, his hat in his hand,

FIRST in Miles per Gallon

With its marvelous Fourth Speed Forward it delivered More Miles to the Gallon than any other 6, 8, or 12cylinder car entered in any class, regardless of size, price, weight or equipment.

LOS ANGELES (Jan. 19th) - Today, when Gilmore-Grand Canyon Run results were officially published, it was revealed that the Nash Ambassador "600" had delivered more miles to the gallon than any other 6, 8, or 12-cylinder car in America's official economy race.

AMAZING ECONO

Scene of Nash victory . . . 599 miles of high speed travel . . . in desert heat, over mountain ranges.

NEVER before, in Gilmore competition, had a car so big gone so far, so fast, on such little gasoline!

But equally remarkable is the driver's own report of the race.

Even over rough mountain stretches, this Nash almost floated along — on its soft, four-wheel coil springs. And with its new Two-way Roller Steering it gripped the sharpest curves, as if it were geared to rails.

High above the snow line, drivers were kept warm by its Weather Eye Conditioned

You've got to see and drive this Nash yourself to know what it's like.

It's the result of three years' testing, and an investment of many millions of dollars.

Built with its body and frame welded together as one twist-proof, rattle-proof unit of amazing strength — it has the widest seats of any low-price car.

When you discover the $70 to $100 a year it saves you —— the extra things it does—and the extra fun it offers...you'll change to Nash. Come on in today and go for a Weather Eye ride.

Kovacs Wants To Capture Singles Title Five Times NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)-The

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 22 (AP)-Unpredictable Frankie Kovacs, the good humor man of tennis, turned serious long enough today to disclose that his ambition is to win the national singles tennis title five times, no less.

The Oakland, Calif., youngster declared that he wouldn't quit playing tennis unless or until he does, and added that he would never turn pro. That's quite an order for a fellow who until recently was better known for his clowning than his playing, but Frankie has these encouraging facts to enhance his prospects for realizing his ambition: Ranks Third In Nation

He is only 21 years old, already is the nation's third ranking player, has the rangy physique and the powerful strokes—when he uses them—of a great player, and he is fresh from triumphs in the first two tournaments on the Florida winter circuit.

It ws an upset when Kovacs eliminated National Champion Don McNeill of Oklahoma City in the Dixie Tournament at Tampla early this month. He was serious for that match, a semi-final, but resumed his clowning when he breezed past Eddie Alloo of Rollins College in the finals. Frankie turned serious again yesterday in the finals of the Florida State Tournament to crush McNeill by scores of 6-2, 6-4,

Oil Business Shows Improvement As Some Prices Take On Rise

By Edward Curtis

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 22 (AP)-The oil business showed continued signs of improvement today. Prices for some finished products were higher, with bright stock and other lubricants gaining a half cent a gallon at Western Pennsylvania refineries and some tank car gasoline prices in the New York territory up .2 to .3 of a cent a gallon. Magnolia Petroleum Co., also announced that 98 per cent tank tables used in purchase of crude oil in Lea County, N. M., and 97 per cent tables in buying Oklahoma crude would be displaced by 100 per cent tables. The Texas Co., and the Texas Pipe Line Co., initiated the 100 per cent tank table basis in Oklahoma and Kansas.

Another sign of better times ahead vas the revival of rumors of big W. Alton Jones, president of Cities Service Co., denied a report that it would sell some of its oil holdings to Consolidated Oil Corp.

pany operating in the mid-contin- cles in the Forest City Basin region, business trip. ent area.

The lease brokers and small independents appeared to be the last to benefit by the uplift in the industry. Many of them reported that good farm-out deals were scarce, but some supply men declared that in-dications were that the industry was preparing to do more drilling in the early months of this year than in a long time.

In the field, the Oil and Gas Journal reported 464 completions for the week, compared with 462 the previous week, and 475 a year ago. The Romulus pool of Pottawatomie County (Okla) got a new producer . . . A wildcat nine miles west of the Apco pool of Northen Pecos County (Tex) was drilling in dolomite and showing for oil . . . Cowboys To Play Regional Battles

ABILENE, Jan. 22 (AP)-Hardin-Simmons University, one of the nation's few undefeated, untied college teams last season, will play one Southwest Conference team and also has arranged three intersectional tilts for next fall.

Included in the card are Long Island University, Catholic University and Arizona State. Ten games already have been scheduled and G. B. Sandefer, graduate manager, said one more may be added.

The schedule announced by Sandefer follows: Sept. 20—Texas Wesleyan at Fort Worth, Sept. 27—Baylor at Waco, mates of Root's worth to the club in 1941. Winner of only two games last season when he was used mainly as a relief hurler, he was asked to take a heavy cut this year.

"I've tried to be fair with the Cubs for 15 years," Root said while here to confer with Gallagher, "and I want them to be fair with me prow"

Worth, Sept. 27—Baylor at waco, Oct. 4 or 11—Centenary at Shreve-Doct. 18—Texas Mines at El Paso or Odessa, Oct. 25—Long Island at New York, Nov. 1—West Texas State at Abilene, Nov. 8—Catholic University at Abilene, Nov. 15—Louisiana Tech at Rouston, La., Nov. 20—Arizona State a Temple, Nov. 20—Howard Payne at Abilene
