Midland Reelects Mayor Ulmer And Three Councilmen

New City Government To Convene This Afternoon On Bad Traffic Problem Mayor M. C. Ulmer, and Councilmen Ralph Barron, D. H. Roettger, and Tom Sealy were reelected by citizens of Midland yesterday as a light vote of 113 ballots was cast.

Each candidate got 112 votes. One ballot was mutilated. City officials hold office for two-year terms. Ulmer enters a fourth term as mayor. Barron has been a councilman since 1929, and Roettger since 1934. Sealy was voted to his second term.

The city council will meet at 5:30 p. m. today in the city hall, when action on a uniformed police department and a new traffic ordinance for the city is expected. Also a chief of police may be chosen.

The traffic ordinance may be passed as an emergency measure. The new city charter provides that an ordinance can be passed on the date it is introduced if it is declared an emergency measure. A model traffic ordinance was submitted by the Midland Safety Council for members of the council to study.

First New Charter Vote Under the new city charter, the council is empowered by ordinance to establish and maintain a police department and to prescribe the duties of the members. Also, the head of the police department of said city shall be known and designated as "Chief of Police," and other members thereof shall be known as "police," all of whom shall be appointed by the city council.

Yesterday's city election was the first held under the new charter, adopted in November.

Four Workers Die From Shot Wound At Mine Location

HARLAN, Ky., April 2—(AP)—Four men were shot to death and five others were wounded today at a mine in a violent outburst of gunplay in the Harlan County Bituminous coal fields.

By The Associated Press Scattered fights in which more than 20 persons were hurt led to state police being ordered to stop disorders today at the huge Ford Rouge plant at Dearborn, Mich., where a CIO union called a strike last night. The plant employs 86,000 persons.

Governor Murray D. Van Wagener ordered the full strength of the police to be used, if necessary, to restore order. Reports were that 250 officers stood nearby for service.

The fighting broke out when workers attempted to climb fences at the plant to get inside. Pickets fought them with bricks and clubs. Later some 200 workers came out of a plant gate and pelleted pickets with metal missiles, which the pickets picked up and threw back.

Riots forced the closing of the defense-important Allis - Chalmers factory at Milwaukee and a wage dispute paralyzed most of the nation's soft coal mines.

AUSTIN, April 2—(AP)—The Texas Senate today ordered an investigation of asserted violations of state election laws with special reference to expenditures by and in behalf of candidates.

The resolution creating an investigating committee, by Senator Joe Hill of Henderson and others, declared the election laws regarding expenditures had been ignored to the extent of scandal.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that the election laws of Texas, and particularly those with reference to the expenditure of money in political campaigns have been "ignored," the resolution stated.

The resolution further said it was a matter of common knowledge that "money has come in many instances from corporations in violation of the laws of Texas and contrary to public policy until such expenditure of money has become scandalous."

Bloodworth To Speak On Tourist Contacts At Tonight's Session

Pointing out how the tourist spends his dollar and showing that retail merchants get the lion's share, Lloyd P. Bloodworth, El Paso, secretary of the Associated Southwestern Chambers of Commerce and of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, will be instructing a two-day tourist school in Midland, urged attendance at tonight's closing session of representatives from city retail firms.

Bloodworth depicted the Southwest as a tourist haven in his lecture at Hotel Scharbauer. "Tourism" is a big business, one of the biggest businesses in our nation, he said. "It is 45 per cent greater than the printing business, 60 per cent greater than the lumber business, 185 per cent greater than the packing industry. Last year five billions of dollars was spent by tourists."

Lists Three Essentials He described the spirit of the Southwest with what he was told by Clarence Scharbauer, Midland hotel owner and rancher. "Anything you want in the outfit, come and get it," Bloodworth outlined three essentials of getting the tourist business as: courtesy, alertness, and intelligence.

Behind The Headlines

Monahans Votes Back Mayor Hill And Incumbents

At a press conference the former head of the American Youth Commission asserted that if persons making charges against the school had no evidence they were "little less than rumor mongers and guilty of reckless defamation."

He referred specifically to Rep. Martin Dies and J. E. Winfree of Houston, a member of the Texas House of Representatives, in a written statement claiming that various investigations had shown no evidence of Nazism, Communism or Fascism at the university.

"If anyone has any evidence it's about time to produce it," Dr. Rainey declared.

Attached Crazy Ideas "We've done all we can to turn up any such activities," Winfree recently criticized a student newspaper review of a book by Dies and in a speech from the House floor attacked "crazy ideas" at the school.

Answering questions, the university head described charges of un-Americanism at the school as "shadowboxing," probably inspired by a disagreement with the ideas of certain professors.

Also the federal district attorney at San Antonio and representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said they had no evidence against the institution, Dr. Rainey continued.

Briton Expresses Alarm Over Japan's Policy In Regard To China Trade

By The Associated Press British troops were reported today to have trapped nearly 100,000 Italian soldiers in East Africa in twin drives into Emperor Haile Selassie's African rooftop kingdom of Ethiopia and the Italian colony of Eritrea.

Dispatches from Cairo said the British seizure of Asmara, capital of Eritrea, had thrust the survivors of 40,000 Italian troops from the bloody battle of Cheren into a pocket with their backs to the Red Sea—where the British navy bars retreat.

In Ethiopia, conquered by the Italians in 1935-36, British columns striking inland from captured Dire-dawa were reported pressing towards Addis Ababa, the capital. About 60,000 Italians, led by the Duke of Aosta, were said to be encircled there.

Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that Fascist troops were putting up "stiff resistance against numerically superior British forces" in the Awash River valley between Dire-dawa and Addis Ababa.

Frowns On Japan Great Britain has given the Japanese end of the Axis a stiff expression of dissatisfaction over Tokyo's moves in China.

Richard Austen Butler, parliamentary undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today that the British government, in close collaboration with the United States on Far Eastern affairs, particularly was concerned over Japan's policy regarding the "open door" to trade in China.

Simultaneously, Virginia Gayda, Premier Mussolini's editorial spokesman, declared in Rome that Adolf Hitler and Di Tuce had reached agreements with Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka on Japan's action in the event the United States engages in hostilities against the Axis powers, "even without a formal declaration of war."

In North Africa, Axis communiques reported that German and Italian troops were pressing offensive operations against Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's Libyan desert campaigners and had advanced 30 miles eastward.

Diplomatic maneuvering kept abreast of warlike preparations in the Balkans today, with Yugoslavia apparently intent on plugging all aspects of the tangled international situation before clarifying her attitude toward the Axis powers.

Water System Job To Start April 10

A $60,737 waterworks improvement project in Midland is expected to get underway April 10, city officials announced today.

Panhandle Construction Company of Lubbock returned the signed contract yesterday. It had been awarded them by the city council several weeks ago. The company indicated it was ready to bring in machinery to put the project in action.

The project calls for construction of a 300,000 gallon reservoir at the Meissner Farms and also a pump-house there; laying of 16-inch mains from Cloverdale, through Meissner, to the city; extension of the city's main work of water mains at certain points; and installation of two new pumps.

The Meissner Farm source has been tested and engineers approved it. Two test wells have been drilled there. The city recently purchased the tract.

A Shared Duty
President Roosevelt, in naming his new National Defense Mediation Board, also set down the guiding principle of labor relations in times like these. He said, in his executive order:
'It is hereby declared to be the duty of employers and employees engaged in production or transportation of materials essential to national defense to exert every possible effort to settle all their disputes without any interruption in production or transportation.'
As a general guidepost that stands out fair and clear.
Neither employer or employee should take lightly today the responsibility for failing to exhaust completely every avenue of conciliation and mediation, including the newly created board, before allowing a defense industry situation to become a strike.

Canada Cuts Wheat
To those who remember the World War, nothing could more sharply underline the difference between this war and that, than the announcement that Canada, approaching the second year of today's war, is making a drastic cut in wheat acreage.
Like the United States, Canada has a tremendous wheat carry-over. The war has cut off as many markets as it has created. So, instead of the cry, "Wheat will win the war!" which was heard in 1917, the cry is "Cut down wheat acreage to reduce surpluses!"
There is a warning there for American farmers—especially those who remember the call to turn over virgin sod for wheat in 1917. The farmer, or anyone else, who tries to gauge today's situation by yesterday's measure, is in for trouble.

A whole generation of people is growing up who have never been to a masked ball, never known the gaiety of fine and exotic clothes, the thrill of the mask lifted at midnight.
Why, we asked? "The psychology of masquerading," he mused, "was probably grounded in an attempt to become for the moment someone else, someone more glamorous, just for an evening. But the world's too small for that now. Who wants to be an Italian flower girl or a Japanese Mikado today? You know they aren't having any better time than we are."
There you are. Sometimes we think we are having a thin time, what with the draft, and taxes, and all. If you

Nurses Needed
The army needs nurses. By June, when the army personnel will have greatly increased, some 4000 additional reserve nurses will be required for duty in army hospitals. The response, Gen. I. J. Phillipson has told the Red Cross, has been rather slow, simply because the need has not been appreciated. There are plenty of opportunities in the army nursing service, in both reserve and active status, for all qualified nurses who wish to serve.
The loyalty of nurses during the World War was one of its brightest pictures. As soon as the need is clearly understood, there is no doubt that it will be filled today, even though the crisis is not as acute or the need as pressing.

Postscript
The story has often been told of how the Nazi in-vader has been looting occupied France in a genteel way, by buying up with "funny money" at arbitrary exchange relation with the French franc (and thus at their own prices), all the goods in sight.
But the ultimate finessness of this technique now comes to light. If the silk stockings and fine shirts came to rest on the legs and backs of German frauleins and workmen back home, it would be bad enough. But there is now evidence that they are being offered instead to presumably sympathetic Americans, in an effort to get some more of those detested American dollars into Germany for foreign exchange purposes. Thus the circuit from the German printing press money around to actual U. S. dollars would be completed, at French expense.

Once Upon A Time--

Highlights From the Week's Oil News

Spring drilling campaigns were getting under way this week and reflected the continued rise of the number of completions as well as the increase in new locations in most areas. While there were 58 more wells reported as completions this week than last, the gain was not so striking in view of the fact that Illinois reports delayed by bad weather last week were included this week. There was an appreciable increase, however, even when adjustments are made for this.
West Texas seemed to be one of the first areas to start the spring pickup. Forty-five wells were completed, only one of which was a failure, as compared to the usual 20 to 25 each week. That this increase was a trend was shown by the fact that 30 completions a week ago was above average, and also by the fact that 73 new locations were made as compared to 46 a week ago.
Oklahoma was also showing more activity, particularly in the southwestern part of the state where traditional state-line barriers were broken down and exploration was pushed across the Red River from North Texas. Operations along a northwest-southeast trend in North Texas have proved highly successful and observers have predicted for many months that sooner or later they would be extended into Oklahoma. Generally the two areas are believed to be very similar.
Discrepancies in crude prices in California, especially those for heavy crudes, were causing producers some concern and it was believed heavy-crude production would not be increased in line with demand until price adjustments were made.
SOUTHWEST PENNSYLVANIA: Hopes for important Bradford sand production on Fayette anticline were nearly gone after a test on the Clifton farm in Franklin Township of Fayette County had only a slight show of gas.
WEST TEXAS: Drilling activity showed a marked upturn with 45 completions and 73 new locations. The Watson field of Yoakum County had the greatest number of starts and the Slaughter field of Hockley and Cochran counties was next. Six wildcats were under way in scattered areas.
KANSAS: The state's potential production, as calculated by the Corporation Commission, reached a new peak and a record daily allowable of 210,700 bbl. was recommended. New oil was found in several areas and oil shows were reported in Kearny County's wildcat.
WYOMING: Another large well is nearing completion in the Wertz dome and the area is fast coming into first place in new developments. Some of its oil, together with that of lost Soldier and Mahoney, is moving east.
SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Showings of oil and gas drew attention to several areas, but no outstanding developments were reported.
LOUISIANA GULF COAST: Production from a new sand in the Westwego area, about 12 miles west of New Orleans, was opened 1/4 mile from proven production. The well, which opened the area in January of this year, has since been abandoned because of salt water. The newly opened St. Gabriel field in Iberville Parish was also extended, and a possible pool opener on the Port Allen prospect was being tested.
OKLAHOMA: Leasing and wildcatting in the southwestern part of the state showed a decided gain in spite of the inadequate outlets at the present time for such producing fields in the same general area as Hobart and Altus. Two outposts to test limits of the new Guthrie pool were started and prices paid for Osoage County leases were the highest in 8 years. East Stroud added a new producing horizon in the Frie sand.
TEXAS GULF COAST: Completed for 110 bbl. of 28.7-gravity crude was the discovery well of the first field offshore from the Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico. It is located off Jefferson County close to the Louisiana line. Earlier tests in the same field failed to get through the heaving shale, but favorable results of extensive geophysical work and opening of an offshore field near the Louisiana coast caused operators to persist. A wildcat west of the Hamman field caused a stir when pipe was set after an electrical survey.
CALIFORNIA: Steps were taken unofficially by the Producers Conservation Committee to boost production of heavy crude which has come into demand but operators in the San Joaquin Valley hesitate to drill because of low prices. Some changes in the price structure have been made, but not enough to encourage new production. Wildcatting have moved into the coastal district and the Newhall-Castaic region is expected to become the most active area in the state. Meantime, another wildcat was testing the Cantua district of the San Joaquin Valley.
ILLINOIS: There was news from the west side of the Illinois basin for the first time in many weeks as a structure in the sandstone was reported from a test in the McKinley field. It is a mile north of a dry Devonian test drilled some time ago, but may give the newly opened McKinley field a new pay. Should the well pay off commercially, it would be the first time in the state's history that the Devonian produced where shallow horizons were dry. A second well was completed in White County's new pool.
NORTH LOUISIANA: A new gas field along the Wilcox trend came in with a wildcat blowout, and while there was no sign of oil in the well, there were predictions oil might be found further down structure. Shows of oil were reported earlier in the level which was perforated, and also in the higher Sparta horizon.
EASTERN TEXAS: Drilling at Hawkins was up to the point that only the East Texas field had more operations under way. The thick-section section of the Hawkins townsite, 221 ft. was logged in a well nearing completion.
NORTH CENTRAL TEXAS: A development campaign was launched in the Coleman area of Clay and Archer counties as a Mississippian lime discovery was being tested 8 miles southeast of Henrietta.
WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Humble Oil & Refining Co.'s discovery in Throckmorton County bore the greatest promise of any well in the district in several years after it gauged 1,488 bbl. flowing. Production was found in a 31-ft. section of Caddo lime.

O. E. M., Sired By Executive Order No. 8248, Is Washington's Dandiest Mystery; Works With Twelve Agencies

By Peter Edson
The Reporter-Telegram
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, April 2.—You may have seen in this column reference to an alphabetical agency known as O. E. M., which stands for Office of Emergency Management. Such references may have struck you as being magnificently vague, and marked more by what they didn't tell than by what they did. The slight, you can be assured, was intentional, for what O. E. M. is and what it does is one of the dandiest little mysteries of Washington.
If you will tag along, however, perhaps some light can be shed on the matter. At the same time you may have a better idea of how your government works for O. E. M. is government to the nth degree. By a little oversimplification it may be said to be a creation intended to keep the government out of the hair of the defense agencies trying to do a job without benefit of government red tape.
O. E. M. will be one year old come May 24, and it was sired by Executive Order No. 8248, out of section I (6). The functions were stated to be, (a) to assist the President in the clearance of information with respect to measures necessitated by the threatened emergency; (b) to maintain liaison between the President and the Council of National Defense and other agencies; and (c) perform such additional duties as the President may direct.
That (c), you'll notice, is broad enough to cover such functions as conveying the fleet to Singapore or taking Falls, the President's Scottish for his pre-bedtime stroll on the White House lawn.
One Office to 16 Buildings
O. E. M. started as one man, William H. McReynolds, one of the President's administrative assistants. It now has 200 employees and is growing. It got its first money from the President's emergency funds, got some more when the President took a couple million away from the Council of National Defense, and will have available part of the $10 million earmarked for administration of the $7 billion British aid bill.
Starting with one office which McReynolds had in the State Department building, the outfit has grown now until it reaches into 16 different government buildings, and it is doubtful if anyone except the messengers and a few of the executives have been in all the 16.
Twelve different government agencies connected with the defense efforts are co-ordinated through the O. E. M.:
Office of Production Management, the Knudsen-Hillman outfit.
Division of Defense Housing Coordination under Charles F. Palmer.
Cultural Relations with South America, under Nelson Rockefeller.
Defense Research Committee, under Dr. Vannevar Bush.
Division of State and Local cooperation under Frank Bane.
National Defense Mediation Board under Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra. Then come five divisions of the Advisory Commission (experts) to the Council of National Defense (six cabinet members who shape the broad outlines of war policy):
Division of Labor under Sidney Hillman.
Division of Agriculture under Chester C. Davis.
Division of Price Stabilization under Leon Henderson.
Division of Transportation under Ralph Budd.
Division of Consumer Protection under Miss Harriet Elliott.
Created For Harmony
Now, the heads of all these 12 organizations don't have to run to O. E. M. every time they want to talk to the President. Each is an independent agency, and the idea of O. E. M. is not to cramp the style of any of the agencies, but to help them get along with each other and with other government agencies, and guide these emergency, civilian agencies through the maze of government procedure.
O. E. M.'s service department is now in one of the old temporary buildings built for World War I. The building has been condemned for years, smoldering in a fire, and fire drills are regular. That's typical, perhaps of all the construction there has been about O. E. M.
Simple, isn't it?

Laughs In Solemn Senatorial Study

By The Associated Press
AUSTIN, April 2.—Interspersing laughs in the otherwise solemn business of hearing protests against proposed additional taxes on the Texas oil industry were these senatorial wise-cracks:
After a marginal oil field operator painted a dismal picture of conditions in his area, asserting many leases would close down if additional levies wiped out small profits, Senator R. A. Weinert of Seguin declared:
'I believe I'd rather have a good watermelon patch instead of some of those leases.'
A witness instead of a senator brought smiles when he boldly termed the proposed oil tax "silly."
"This thing," he said, "is just as silly as the notion that most oil men are rich."
Another witness brought a roar when he suggested:
'Why the heck don't you tax our cows?' They bring in more money than some of our oil wells.'
Insisting he was serious, the witness challenged the Senators to force cattlemen and farmers to render all their stock for taxes.
'Till sign the bill with you,' he asserted.
It had just been announced in the House, one day recently, that the St. Louis Browns were about to pay a visit.
Fassing the press table, a wag remarked:
'Maybe they'll have a little batting practice. They might as well. We've had everything else this session. Then we ought to have a review of planes from Randolph Field.'

FEMININE FANCIES

By Kathleen Eiland

The glass shoes that we heard so much about last year or the year before seem to have gone the way of Cinderella's fairy coach at midnight. But spun glass is being used in an increasing number of other ways. Heavy, pliable, smooth and transparent it is a really handsome fabric. First we saw it in raincoats. Now these first garments are joined by a flock of other things including smokettes for laboratory wear (and why not for the kitchen?), rain hats, zipper bags, and even, believe it or not, by pillow cases. We draw the line at the last, however. We've never seen pillows handsome enough that they wouldn't look handsome covered with non-transparent cases. Especially the every-day striped-tick variety of pillows.

Easter is on the way. Just two more weeks now to balance budgets, plan wardrobes, and frantically try to bring hair, figure, and complexion to perfection for the annual style parade on Easter Sunday. Along with the more important and expensive dress accessories, we've noted such Easter fancies as colored eggs tied with metal ribbon to use as wee lapel ornaments or huge buttons. Ditto there are figures of chicks just coming out of eggs, and gay little Easter hats, and even tiny carts filled with flowers.

As for the younger fry's Easter party (or for an Easter touch to the adult luncheon), we've seen the widest assortment of aluminum molds we've ever laid eyes upon. In addition to the usual round and ring molds, there are those with the figure of a bunny on top or the figure of a bird. Then there are molds shaped like the Liberty Bell and like stars. All calculated to make any woman's fingers itch for a chance to putter around in the kitchen with salads, gelatines, or cookey dough. Well, one can't run a typewriter and cook at the same time. So we'll run the typewriter.

Hostesses will be selected according to army requirements, sponsors said. Details of the recreation will be worked out during the next few days.

Foreigners In Camps Of Unoccupied France Grow Bitter, Restive

MARSEILLE, France, April 2—(AP)—Growing bitterness and unrest among the 30,000-odd foreigners in refugee camps of unoccupied France were reported today adding to the troubles that beset this beaten nation.

Substitution of a dole system was suggested by one official as a way to cut administration costs that add to the camps' 1,000,000-franc daily budget. The increasing ill will of foreign statesmen, authors, journalists and artists interned in the cheerless compounds was another factor the French feared might cost them dearly, particularly in the future. Unoccupied France has perhaps 90,000 foreigners who were admitted under the third republic, one-third of them in eight refugee camps and the rest in 100 smaller camps and foreign soldiers camps.

Senate To Test Labor Bill Soon

AUSTIN, April 2—(AP)—Action by the Senate in the near future appeared imminent today on Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's bill intended to outlaw force and violence in labor disputes.

Senate approval would send to the governor a proposal making it a felony to interfere with anyone working at a lawful occupation and assess a penalty for violation of one to two years in the penitentiary.

Without a dissenting vote a Senate committee yesterday approved the anti-force and violence proposal which passed the House by an overwhelming margin.

The committee action followed an appeal by Brig. Gen. Preston A. Weathered of the Texas National Guard to pass the bill as an aid to the nation's defense program. Trouble at Plane Factory Senator John Lee Smith of Throckmorton, steering the bill, asserted there had been violence in labor troubles in Texas and declared a "CIO leader who was an ex-convict" figured in a Houston disturbance.

"Fifty CIO men went into an oil field near Wichita Falls . . . and men were beat up and sent to a hospital," Smith continued. "The new airplane factory near Dallas is being undermined by this same group of imported Communists from the north."

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Handwritten bridge scores and statistics including 'Swordlove' and 'Duplicate—None vul.'.

By Wm. E. McKenney America's Card Authority.

The amateur pair event at the Eastern championships this year almost doubled the attendance records of previous years.

Atkin and Sverdlow played in this amateur event a year ago and were so disappointed with their showing that they have not played duplicate bridge since.

Here is a hand Sverdlow played expertly. South put the jack of diamonds on the opening lead.

South switched to the five of spades and again declarer made a good play by ducking.

Now declarer avoided the pitfall of ruffing out his diamonds at once. This play would cost the contract if the club finesse was a loser.

When South won the trick with the king of clubs, he could do no better than lead a heart.

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: Bee successfully avoids meeting Jenkins but catches the full force of Miss Dane's anger when she returns to the floor. Bee knows she can't be fired now, pleads for her job. Suddenly Miss Dane bursts into tears, condemns the management that makes her act so sternly, and to Miss Getz: "It wasn't like this in the old days, was it, Getz?"

BEATRICE HUNTINGTON DAVENPORT backed off, slowly and unbelievably, from the spectacle of Miss Dane sobbing like a baby, her head on the capacious bosom of Miss Getz. Miss Dane's tortured words rang in her ears. "It wasn't like this in the old days. The store had some heart, then. Mr. Huntington wasn't hardboiled, he didn't drive people . . ."

This, she thought slowly, this was what's at the root of the whole trouble with this store. Everybody's being driven. The store has become a Frankenstein—running wild on the momentum of its own strength, its own power.

The store made money for Grandfather. But he loved it, too. It was his servant, his child—never his master.

And now it's making more money. Now the love is gone, there's nothing but profit behind it. Profit, no matter what the cost. She looked down at herself, her hands touching her sides curiously. "The store has been run to make money for me. For me. Because I was useless, because Bruce Sheldrake and the trust company thought it was what I wanted . . ."

A moment later, she denied that to herself. "No! They were doing it for themselves. Because they had the power over it. Because it made them strong and feared. They knew I didn't care. I simply didn't count. I got the money and they had the power."

Her lips tightened, grimly. "That's all over now. I'll show them!"

Miss Dane and Miss Getz had disappeared into the cubicle where Miss Dane worked over her purchasing records. Beatrice decided, "I'm going up to see Mr. Bruce Sheldrake right now!" She marched to the elevator, the light of battle in her eyes.

But when the elevator door opened, Anthony Bradley walked out. "Anthony, listen—" she began, before all the other considerations overwhelmed her. She stopped, and suddenly her heart stopped, too. For Anthony's face was bleak and tired, there wasn't even any joy at seeing her in his eyes.

"Anthony, what's the matter?" "He turned me down," Anthony said hoarsely. "He—he listened to it all. He made me explain a dozen times. And then—" he winced. "Then he laughed. He said I was crazy. He told me—" Oh, the pain in his voice, the bitter, bitter pain! "He told me to go back to floor-walking."

"He dared! He dared to—"

"Yes, he dared, all right." Anthony kicked me out, because he's the merchandise manager and I'm just a hired hand."

"Wait, Anthony! Come back here with me! I'll fix him!"

"What could you do?" Anthony asked wearily. "It's no use, Bee. I'm licked."

She stood very still, searching his eyes. Anthony's hands were curled into fists. He struck at a counter, savagely. "No, I'm not licked! I'll show him yet! I'll show them all!"

"Anthony," she said steadily, "if you could go right into Bruce Sheldrake's office—if you could take this idea straight to the Duchess herself—would you do it?"

"What did you say?"

"If you could march right over the head of the merchandise manager and convince someone higher up that you're right—"

"You don't understand!" he cried impatiently. "It's not the satisfaction of getting the best of him! It's not even the prestige of having an idea of my own tried out. That's not what I'm after! I want it proved, don't you see? Any crackpot notion might be presented to Sheldrake, or that Davenport girl, and tried out and it wouldn't mean anything. Just that the guy who presented it knew how to coax and flatter. This thing is mine. It's solid! It's good! I want to shove it down their throats, not have it put over on account of anyone's influence."

He lowered his voice, apologetically. "Oh, the deuce with it! I could have pussyfooted around, pulling strings, but I thought the hard way was better. So that leaves me holding the bag, and it leaves him laughing."

"How could you have pulled strings, Anthony?"

"There are always ways . . ."

He was striding to the Budget Department, and she had to run to keep up with him. "Never mind. Our idea's down a sewer. But I won't give up! I'll get another idea sometime."

BEATRICE realized then that she couldn't march into Bruce Sheldrake's office in the high-handed, devastating manner she had envisioned a moment ago. Something Anthony had said, a moment ago, stuck in her mind. "I want it proved."

She wanted her conclusions about this store proved, too. Just to descend on Mr. Sheldrake, screaming that the store was heartless and unjust, could too easily be put down to a temperamental vagary, she saw slowly. He'd soothe her, he'd get oily and unctuous after she had summoned Mr. Weeming and the president of the trust company. But they'd all be like growlups handing a child in a tantrum. They wouldn't take her seriously.

The indignity of realizing how richly she merited not being taken seriously was like a cold slap of water in her face. "But all they know about me is that I was wildly extravagant, and bought Clarence an airplane and suits and a string of polo ponies. They think I'm spoiled, stupid, and criminally irresponsible."

Unconsciously, she had slowed down her pace behind Anthony through the crowded aisles. She stopped at a counter, now, and stared at a shining chromium toaster. "I've got to do this the hard way, like Anthony. I must have proof. How can I get it?"

THROUGH her mind there whirled half-remembered details of financial reports, profit statements, employe turnover, loss of work hours. . . She couldn't straighten them out and realized, sadly, she wasn't fitted to cope with them.

"I need a lawyer. I need Weemie! But I can't go to him now. He'd think, too, I didn't trust his former stewardship. . ."

Only, Mr. Weeming hadn't had anything to do with the store. That was the trust company, and Mr. Sheldrake. "I need a lawyer. I need a brilliant, honest, humane lawyer. I need someone to go into every nook and cranny and every single detail of the organization and operation of this store. Accountants, maybe. Personnel experts. Dozens of people. . ."

Grandfather had always said, "Beatrice, the possession of great wealth is a tremendous, a solemn responsibility." She had never believed him. But now she stood at a counter of the store she owned, and tears stung her eyes. A voice inside her sobbed, "Oh, Grandfather, you were right! What shall I do?"
