Army's Yellow Card Probably Is Key To Training Efficiency

By William T. Rives CAMP WALLACE, Hitchcock, Tex., May 10—(AP)—A big yellow card may decide the prowess of the United States army. The card holds the key to the army's plan to put every soldier in the place best suited to him.

Gone is the old custom of fitting a square peg into a round hole, or the belief of World War days that soldiers and water find their own

The big yellow card is the nerve center of the army's great training When a prospective soldier reports, an officer equipped with the card interviews him Considers Occupation The questions lead the interviewer deep into the history and qualifications of the soldier. The boy giving the answers to the card's questionnaire may think the whole thing is pretty silly.

The army, however, believes the card is eminently important, on the theory that a soldier will be most valuable if his duty approximates his civilian occupation, if he is given the opportunity to indulge his hobbies, if he has a chance to play his favorite sport.

On the basis of the man's answers, he will be assigned to one of two general classifications: Either he will be a soldier with purely military duties, such as handling a gun or he will qualify for other duties requiring a more or less specialized background.

We Are In The Army And We Like It

FORT BLISS.—A soldier's day is pretty well taken up, yet there is time for leisure here in camp. Our schedule calls for reveille at 5:50 a. m. and each soldier must report. Breakfast comes at 6:15 a. m., and after that every one cleans up his tent if he has not had time before breakfast. Tents are easily cleaned unless they have been neglected for a few days.

At 6:45 a. m. the tent street is cleaned and ten minutes is allowed for that work. We then have until 7:30 a. m., for leisure. Then we go to the stables, saddle horses, pack machine guns on pack horses and leave the stables at 8:20 a. m., for the drill field. For two and a half hours we practice or drill.

Then we return to the stables, groom our horses and complete this task by 11:20., giving us time to cleanup before we eat. Two afternoons a week we have dismounted drill from 1:30 until 3 o'clock. Then we are through work for the day. On other afternoons we have instruction on field activities such as scouting. We also have special details such as tent repair-ing, cleanup of the grounds and handling of supplies.

At times we catch some hard duty such as long hikes. On these our riding with the rhythm of the horses walking and 10 minutes of trotting. Not A Meteor,

We always ride in formation, keeping horses four feet apart. We must ride in the military manner, of course, and must post in the saddle while trotting. Motherhood Tells Of The Divine Love That Never Faileth

By R. A. Weaver Upon the pages of the past there are written in letters of gold, memories that stir the deepest emotions, and cling to us tenderly, breathing a benediction upon our path. There is one memory that soothes the hurts and fills cloudy days with warmth and sunshine. It tempers the wind along the stormy way; and goes with us through the valley of the shadow. It is the memory of a good mother.

As we retrace life's pathway, every step is seen to be empowered with mother's smile and tender words. pastor will speak on "Echoes Rocked to sleep by crooning hullof the International Conven- abys, tucked away by tender hands and nursed and kissed through 3:30 p.m. Monday. Terming Midland's Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Week, which ended yesterday, one of the most successful here in recent years, Miss Elma F. Graves, chairman of the city beautification committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event, Saturday expressed appreciation of civic and service clubs, city officials, school officials, instructors and students, women's organizations and other organizations and individuals who as-

Miss Graves pointed out, however, the clean-up work in Midland is far from completed and that there are still many unsightly spots which must be cleaned up before Midland can lay claim to being "West Texas' cleanest city." The co-operation extended by organizations and individuals during clean-up week and efforts given by committee members in arranging the campaign were excellent, and the results gratifying, Miss Graves said. Collins Speaks At Waco; Others Campaign Hard

By The Associated Press
Hai H. Collins of Mineral Wells, political pal of Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, opened his senatoral show on the public square at Waco Sat-urday night, climaxing a week of steady campaigning by the other other candidates in the 12-man race.

Another opener in the senatorial campaign was Arlon B. (Cyclone)

Davis, Jr., of Dallas, bearded son of a politically-famous father. He spoke at Mount Vernon, Sulphur Springs and Greenville.

Collings mentioned O'Daniel's name twice in his speech but had nothing to say about the governor's senatorial intentions. Making his official political bow with music, as O'Daniel once did, Collins used support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, called for prevention of strikes and limitation of profits in defense projects.

Former Governor Jim Fergusor announced at Houston Saturday that he would not be a candidate. "My wife and I will vote for Governor O'Daniel," Farmer Jim said in a statement. "If he does not run we will endeavor to select the one that will do least harm in office."

Honor Paid To Mother

Mrs. T. O. Midkiff One Of Midland's Pioneer Mothers

By Kathleen Eiland.
One day of the year has a special quality which marks no other—a call to render homage where homage is due and to pay tribute to the noblest form of love-mother love That is Mother's Day.

Whether she is aged and gray, bowed down with the cares of many years, or still young in body and spirit, whether her clothes are the newest creation for the modish matron or a simple garment made by her own fingers, Mother for one day receives the honor which she merits through all the other days of the year. Today, on Mother's Day, she reigns supreme.

As each Midland citizen turns to honor his mother, so do her children today honor Mrs. T. O. Midkiff. Representative especially of the pio neer mother who is so dear to the hearts of West Texans, Mrs. Midciff has reared twelve children 11 of whom were born here and ter of whom still live here, either i the town itself or on ranching an farming properties near. NEW YORK.—Washable sports clothes and washable dresses for both day and evening point the way to the crisp-as-lettuce look that the smart woman has resolved to achieve during the hot summer months. Coats, suits, dresses and accessories, as well as slacks, play suits and beach robes, which come out of the wash looking as fresh as dew, can be counted on to simplify summer grooming problems.

Furthermore, washables solve the budget problems of the girl who has to have a country as well as a city wardrobe. They permit her to have a good selection of gay, colorful slacks and shirts which, although well tailored, are not expensive. They permit her enough shorts, bathing suits, golf and tennis dresses to see her through any amount of week-ending in fine style.

New and smart in the collection of washable summer fashions are coveralls—for fishing and sailing. These were inspired by the uniforms of garage mechanics and are one-piece with set-in belts between shirts and trousers.

Cotton corduroy sports coats are a boon to the budget-minded. A well-designed corduroy swagger — in red, sandy beige, royal blue or gray—may be worn over everything in a summer wardrobe, from slack suits to evening dresses. And cordurov is easy to wash and press back into shape.

I guidance you may not find in the copybooks — but that doesn't subtract one whit from its truth.

Because when you buy a new car this spring you want one that will see you through many a summer.

So while you're trading it's good sense to trade up - up to something solidly good through and through.

Trade up, for instance, to the FIREBALL power of Buick's more efficient valvein-head straight-eight.

Trade up to the thrift of Compound Carburetion† - exclusively Buick's, and as much as 10% to 15% more economical of gasoline than last year.

Buick's bodies are roomier, its frames huskier—its steering gears go three to four times as long without adjustment and its main bearings have half-again the service life in them.

Things like that really count these days - yet they're yours in a Buick for a

I have awarded a great many trophies for victories at bridge, but I believe one of the most pleas ant tasks I had to perform was at Coral Gables, Fla., this year, when I was able to present the original secretary of the American Bridge League the trophy for his victory in the mixed pair championship.

E. J. (Ned) Tobin was secretary in 1927 and 1929; I took over the task in 1930. Ned is well up in his seventies and has been winning champions of the seventies. ning championships for many years. It was most gratifying to see him win this important title

His partner, Mrs. J. H. Meyering of Ft. Lauderdale, and he played excellent bridge to win the title. Tobin's experience offset any advantage tile youngsters might have had in quick thinking. Here is an example of his fine defensive

The king of hearts won the jack South led the queen of diamonds, which rode to East's king. East led a heart and Tobin correctly let South win. South then cashed the jack and ten of diamonds, East discarding the deuce of spades.

The next play was a low club to the jack, won by East's queen. East led the third heart and Tobin was in with the ace.

Now Tobin could have cashed the long heart for the fourth defensive trick. But he saw that if East held enough stoppers in the black suit to prevent declarer from making game in top cards, then East would be squeezed when the last heart and the diamond ace were cashed.

The only hope was to abandon the long heart. Tobin therefore switched to the ten of spades, and this play resulted in the declarer's losing two more tricks.
