No Economics In A Vacuum

There has been a great deal of discussion of the possible economic position of the United States in the case of a Hitler victory in Europe.

Could the United States, or could it not, compete with an economy managed from Germany which included slave populations and resources throughout the whole of economic Europe?

One side of the argument says, no, that it would be the death of free enterprise in the United States, which would have to adopt totalitarian principles in order to do business with the world at all. The other says, yes, the United States, with all its resources, efficiency, and skill, could compete with Germany under any circumstances, provided it keeps prices low, develops technique, and builds military strength.

A great deal of this argument is unrealistic in that it avoids the central fact of trade under the Nazi system. That fact, and it is a new fact in the study of economics, is the complete intermingling of foreign policy, local politics, and economics with what used to be a simple com- New Armored Division CRANIUM petitive trade matter.

It might well be argued that the United States could compete with the best a Nazi Germany could offer, even Blow At Army Games if that system had the resources of a forcibly-united Europe at its disposal. Provided free competition were possible, and provided that the United States were willing to adjust its standard of living in some relationship to whatever standard of living the Nazis might impose on Europe, it might be possible. An apple box was the only piece of furniture in the reception room. Conditions all over the camp were in the hurry-up stage because of the national emergency, and the nurses accepted the fact, joking and wise-cracking about the situation instead of running to the commanding officer with a wail that home was never like this.

Now the nurses' rooms are furnished comfortably with beds, writing desks, dressing tables and large sitting chairs. The apple box has disappeared from the reception room, which has a divan, radio and home-life furnishings.

Transporters Will Apply For Permits

AUSTIN, June 16—(Special) — More than 1,200 transporters of special commodities in Texas, representing over half of the commer-cial truckers in the State, must make application for a new permit within 60 days from June 4, as the result of the signing last week by Governor O'Daniel of the new 'Specialized Motor Carrier Act,' Lynn B. Shaw, general manager of Texas Motor Transportation Association announced today.

The act sets up a new type of carrier, the "Specialized Motor Carrier," in place of the old carrier of special commodities." By provisions of the new law, all carriers who were under "special commodity" permits, transporting household goods, wool, mohair, livestock, oil field equipment, farm machinery, used office equipment, livestock feedstuff, milk, timber in its natural tate, and grain, must now make application for a new certificate of onvenience and necessity, the transportation official said.

Into Crucial Week AUSTIN, June 16-(AP.) - A crucial week faced the legislature today with a showdown imminent in the battle between the House and Senate on a quitting date for the general session.

Another meeting of a conference committee, which failed to agree on recess or adjournment last week, was slated. The conference group, appointed to break the apparent deadlock, was the first of its kind within memory of Capitol oldsters.

Reasons given for failure to adjourn the overtime session included: The lawmakers want to remain long enough to try to override possible vetoes of governmental operaappropriations; stay after the June 28 senatorial election; act with care on major oil legislation still before them.

WASHINGTON, June 16-(AP.)ago, went before the board of Army engineers today to urge that the meandering, black-bottom Trinity River be made navigable upstream as far as Dallas and Fort Worth. They prepared to support recommendations of the army's district and division engineers that an expenditure of approximately $115,-000,000 to construct a canal with a minimum depth of 9 feet and mini-mum bottom width of 150 feet, would be economically justifiable.

The group was so large that the hearing could not be conducted in the board's usual chamber. Instead, it was moved to the much larger auditorium of the north interior department building.

All championship tournaments have a tournament director in charge, who also acts as referee. The National Laws Commission drafts the rules of the game, but they must be interpreted by the tournament director.

Russell J. Baldwin of Cleveland is the tournament manager of the American Contract Bridge League and is in charge of its staff of directors. With the millions of combinations of hands, it is diffcult for the laws commission to prepare rules for every situation, and the tournament directors are often confronted with baffling problems. You will note on the fifth round of bidding on today's hand, North made an insufficient bid for five hearts. North and South were using the Blackwood convention, in accordance with which North's five diamond bid showed one ace. When South bid five no trump, asking for the number of kings in North's hand, the correct response would have been six hearts to show two kings.

When the insufficient bid was made, Baldwin was called to the table, and explained that North must make a sufficient bid and that in any event, South would have to pass. Now North had to try to decide upon the correct contract, and bid six clubs. West protested at once and asked for a neutral score, but Baldwin correctly ruled that the hand should be played out before he gave a debe played out before he gave a de-

CALIBAN FROM CALEB

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Angus MacPhillips, truck driver, wants to marry address in a roadside diner. But address in a roadside diner. But address are not the stage or in the movies. Customers encourage this idea, and address is convinced that New York is waiting to cheer her entrance. But she can't see settling lown to life as a truck driver's wife on $125 a month. She promises to give Angus an answer on his next trip.

CHAPTER II

TUST as soon as Angus coaxes his ton-and-a-half truck over the top of Dunbar's Hill, he can see the lights of Herbie's Curbside Cafe about a mile down the road. Usually Angus takes the truck out of first gear and lets it coast down the slope in second, but tonight he doesn't bother.

He is in no particular hurry to get there. He hates to admit it, but he is afraid. Nothing that he can handle with his fists can scare him like this, but Adoreen can put him out for the count by flicking an eyelid.

He isn't sorry he asked Adoreen to marry him, and he hopes the answer will be yes. But he is afraid it might be no, and he is in no hurry to get jilted by the cutest little package that ever slid a platter of eggs across a marble coun-

Promising Hurlers Acquire Form With White Sox; Reason---Ruel

Ex-Senator Catcher Helps Dykes Bring Out Best In Stars By Harry Grayson NEA Service Sports Editor

CHICAGO.—Why do pitchers who can't get themselves arrested elsewhere suddenly get tough in White Sox livery?

Jimmy Dykes is the first to tell you the answer is Herold Ruel.

When Lee Ross joined the

That wasn't at all complimentary to Connie Mack and the Athletics' coaches, but the Chicago staff, currently the best in the American League, is something in the way of evidence that Coach Ruel rehabilitates hurlers.

Bespectacled Bill Dietrich and

Clint Brown was just another dealer with the Tribe. Ruel made him one of the more effective relief workers, and Dykes finally gave him back to the Indians for Johnny Humphries. Don't be sur-prised if Humphries develops a > 2. The entire plan would be instituted, at least in the beginning, on a purely voluntary basis within any given industry, without compulsion or penalty of any kind, for there is no definite statutory provision to cover any such industrial revolution as this plan involves.

> The plan has been under consideration in Washington for some months. It has been presented to the President and is supposed to have his approval. Only reason it has not been promulgated, according to Nelson is that press of immediate matters has prevented it. Announcement of the basic ideas of the plan came rather unexpectedly at a press conference held by Nelson. He had not intended to reveal the plan in such detail at this time, but under questioning by reporters about the speed of letting contracts and carrying out the defense program production, Nelson brought out this idea as one of the means by which production could be speeded—by freeing productive capacity through simplification of styles and designs and variations of the more or less common items

Texas Company To Play Wilson In Tilt Tonight

The Texas Company, loser only to Mackey Motors, seeks a win tonight over Wilson Dry Goods in city softball league play to remain in the running fo rthe title.

Wilson's has bordered on a great club the first two weeks of play and may find themselves tonight at the expense of Texas. Central Pharmacy and Southern Ice will scrap it out in the women's loop.

Pete Pace or Curley Elrod will do mound chores for the Texans with Jones catching. The Wilson gang presents Riley pitcher and Warren
