An Anton man was fined $500 and court costs on charges of negligent homicide the day after he was involved in an accident which killed a Hobbs man.

The accident took place Sunday afternoon when a car driven by Joseph C. Jezisek passed through a stop sign at the Needmore intersection and smashed into a car driven by Cecil H. Allan, Hobbs. Allan was killed.

According to Department of Public Safety officers, the Jezisek car was traveling about 30 miles per hour when it struck the Allan car. Both cars were totally demolished.

The following day Jezisek pleaded guilty to the negligent homicide charge, was fined $500 by County Judge Glen Williams and freed.

Jezisek's brother, Edward, was riding with his brother at the time of the accident. He was not injured, according to reports.

Commissioners And City Will Debate TT Link

Bailey County Commissioners this week took under consideration a plan to join the newly formed police teletype hookup linking many High Plains cities.

The machine which would be serviced by the Bell Telephone System would cost $98.40 a month. The cost would be split between the city and county.

The advantages of the machine over radio contact are speed, accuracy and the impossibility of anyone monitoring police information transmitted over it.

Decision on whether or not to contract for the teletype installation was tabled pending future conference with the city.

Coach Taylor Resigns McAlpin Named Head

Muleshoe Mule Line Coach Wilburn "Willie" McAlpin is today the new head football coach.

His appointment followed closely on the heels of the resignation of ex-head coach William "Bill" Taylor. Taylor stated in his resignation he was leaving for personal reasons, and that he had enjoyed the 10 years he'd been connected with the Muleshoe School District.

In a telephone interview he said, "I'm just getting a little old and think its time to move over for younger blood. When you hit 38 it's a little rough to be chasing those 17-year-olds around the field."

Taylor is subject to re-assignment in the school district, but no decision has yet been reached by the school board as to where he might be re-assigned.

McAlpin is a 1960 graduate of West Texas State University. He attended Howard Payne College in Brownwood where he played guard for three years. He played the same position through three years of ball while in the service.

His first coaching position was with Silverton where he served as line coach for two years. He has been line coach here for the past two years.

The new head coach stated he plans no drastic changes and will use the same successful system which made football history here last season when Muleshoe fought its way from early season underdog to 3-AA champs.

Although Muleshoe is moving into tougher competition this year, Coach McAlpin doesn't see a dark picture. "I feel we've been playing four of them every year. We know what to expect and I don't think we'll have any surprises. This year's team looks pretty

Library To Stand Or Fall On Commissioners Vote Friday

Parmer County's Decision Expected At Tues. Meeting

The question of whether or not Bailey County will have improved library service through a proposed state bookmobile program will be decided at a special meeting of the commissioners court Friday morning at 10:30 A.M.

Meeting in the District Courtroom to accommodate the expected crowd, the commissioners will hear Charles A. Gholz of the Texas State Library give details of a plan whereby that state agency would begin operation of a bookmobile next month. The portable library would bring library service to the smallest rural communities, as well as the more populous areas, in a group of two or more counties. Parmer County commissioners court will entertain the state proposition at the court house in Farewell Tuesday at 2 P.M.

Under the plan, the State Library would bear the expense of the program during "demonstration" period extending through December of 1966, after which the participating counties would assume pro rata shares of a $14,000 annual budget determined by their relative populations. The state would continue to give certain valuable "post demonstration" aid to all library operations in the area for an indefinite period.

Fire Causes Heavy Damage To Fireplace

Defective installation above an open fireplace was blamed by firemen for a blaze that caused fire and smoke damage Saturday afternoon to the home of Arnold Alcorn, 522 East Dallas.

Fire Chief Earl Ladd said "the fire caught from the heat in the fireplace which was not properly insulated in its installation."

The wall studding and insulation behind the wall above the fireplace was burned. A four by six foot mirror was broken in half and the gold-leaf mirror frame was damaged by the fire.

Firemen noted that the fire had been smoldering before this time. The Japonica plants planted near the fireplace's outside chimney were budded from the heat. The outside chimney bricks were warm to touch, they noted.

Late Saturday afternoon the household of smoke was discovered by the Alcorns upon returning from an absence from their home of "only 30 minutes or so". The Muleshoe Volunteer Fire department was notified and arrived on the scene at approximately 4:30 p.m.

County residents involved in the movement for improved library service are anxiously awaiting the commissioners' decision. Affirmative action would make bookmobile service available beginning about March 24.

During 1963 the growing demand for increased library service was demonstrated by work and fund-raising by the Muleshoe Study Club, ESA Sorority, Jaycees, and the Chamber of Commerce. These and other interested groups then joined forces in December by organizing a "Friends of the Library" to focus and coordinate their efforts. This new association has held a number of informational and organization meetings and now has members throughout the county.

The bookmobile hearing Friday will represent the culmination of only one phase of the library supporters' work. The other basic phase is the improvement of the fixed library facilities and ser-

No 'Free' Poll Tax Receipts Issued Yet Here

No "free" poll tax receipts have yet been issued in Bailey County, according to the latest report from Dess Stafford, tax assessor-collector.

The local office has received detailed instructions governing the new law, two closely typed pages of instructions, in fact. The notice was received from the office of the Texas State Comptroller, and states the period of issuing the free receipts will be for 30 days. The period began Feb. 5th when the constitutional ratification was officially read into the law of the land. The last day Bailey County residents may obtain the "free" poll tax is March 6th at midnight.

Persons who have not received their receipts by that time will not be eligible to vote even for federal candidates, according to the state letter.

The letter was implicit in its statement regarding fees. "No fee of any kind shall be charged for these receipts," it stated.

Persons who paid their poll tax by the Feb. 1st deadline will not have to be issued another poll tax to vote in federal elections. Those persons will be allowed to vote in all elections.

Poll tax payments here topped out at a record.

Fire Calls

The letter was implicit in its statement regarding fees. "No fee of any kind shall be charged for these receipts," it stated.

Persons who paid their poll tax by the Feb. 1st deadline will not have to be issued another poll tax to vote in federal elections. Those persons will be allowed to vote in all elections.

Bulletin

The county commissioners may have corrected two money problems spotlighted by recent articles in the Journal when they passed two motions requiring the county attorney to take collection steps.

However, because of ambiguous wording of the most important of the two motions, no one knows if the commission is serious or kidding.

In a motion for the county attorney to take steps to collect all past due monies owed the county for farm contract labor work, the commissioners directed that the county attorney draw up letters requesting payment of those debts and then take any other steps (See Bulletin Page 6)

Jehovah's Witnesses Resumes Meetings Following Convention

The Muleshoe Congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses are resuming all meetings this week after attending a three-day convention in Levelland, Feb. 7-9, it has been announced.

According to Boyd Lowery, presiding minister here, 893 heard the district supervisor, Harry A. Fitzik give the Bible discourse, "The Bible Triumphs in a Scientific World".

Fitzik stated in his address that "The Bible does not conflict with facts, but with unproved theories. Unproved theories cannot stand alongside the convincing record of the Bible."

"Theories, to the uninformed, too often are accepted as proven fact. However, theory is not of that definition. An associate professor of Biochemistry at Boston University, quoted in the July, 1962 Science Digest, states: "No theory is considered more than, at best, an interesting speculation until it is backed by experimental evidence. . . . Hence, the Bible is at variance with unproved theory, but it is in direct accord with scientific fact."

"The Bible triumphs when put to the test of facts in four basic issues for which there are a variety of theories: (1) origin of life, (2) origin of man, (3) solution to life's problems, and (4) what the future holds."

"The evidence from observation and logic, from mathematics and from laws of nature confirms the Bible to be correct when it speaks of a First Cause that always existed."

"Man's origin by God is verified by fossils, the races of mankind, his language, earliest drawings and writings, his place of origin, time of origin and the testimony of Jesus, the apostle Paul and others."

"While science improves the living standards, it has created its by-products. Such by-products show up in the form of anxiety, tension and age of neurotics. This offsets and gains science has made through the years. On the other hand, the Bible provides the answers to life's problems. It improves the social, moral and spiritual life necessary for peace and happiness."

The purpose of the 16-congregation meet was to analyze the approximately 600 reporting minister's activity, and lay plans to eliminate existing weakness so that their activity will be brought up to national and district levels.

The Old Cowpoke

By JESS KINSER

Tucson, Arizona

He's ridin' along on an unpaved street, Paying no heed of the summer's heat.

For his head is high and his back is straight As his mount steps out in a lively gait.

A merry twinkle is in his eyes His voice devoid of tears or sighs, As he gives Old Bill just a playful stroke;

For that is the way of an old Cowpoke! He is brown and tanned with the summers sun, The wrinkles are gathering one by one.

As the hands of time has begun to grace, With care, the image of an honest face.

Now the battle's most over, the work near done, When the cattle's corralled and the west is won.

Still the cowbell's ringing with a friendly stroke, A welcomed call to this old Cowpoke!

The range that he rode in a younger day, Has been but to the plow and eroded away, And the old windmill, of no longer use,

Stands falling apart with the wind's abuse. The cattle which roamed O're the windy plain Of the long ago, now fatten on grain

In a big corral, made of solid oak, Not much in need of an old Cowpoke. But yonder afar in a misty sky He sees a vision of the bye and bye.

Where a brand new world with a sea of grass, That the prophets predicted will come to pass, When horse and man from this land is sprung Into another that is fresh and young; And the killing spell of the past is broke, Where youth is eternal for an old Cowpoke.

Motor vehicle inspections are lagging behind with less than thirty per cent of the required vehicles in the Muleshoe area displaying a 1964 inspection sticker, according to Captain Alan Johnson, Motor Vehicle Inspection supervisor of this area. "With the deadline for obtaining inspection stickers drawing near only 22 per cent of the vehicles in Bailey County have been inspected," the Captain said. "If this trend continues, vehicle owners can expect to have to wait in line in order to get their vehicles inspected by the April 15 deadline."

The key words in the motion are past due and reasonable. When asked how old a bill had to be to be considered past due, the county attorney stated he had not been informed by the court. When asked was a "reasonable" period he replied that he had not been advised by the court.

In a meeting several weeks ago which followed a story by the Journal, the commissioners were unable to state how old a bill had to be in order to be considered past due.

The other motion directed the county attorney to proceed as the law directs in collecting any county taxes past due for three years.

If executed as directed the motion should promptly cure the back taxes situation in Bailey County.

County Judge Glen Williams was unable to define how old a bill had to be in calendar days in order to be considered past due. He did state, however, that all the past due bills on the books would be acted upon.

He was likewise unable to define what a reasonable length of time was in calendar days. He stated that each case would be considered individually by the commissioners court before further legal was taken.

Can The Small High Plains Cattle Feeders Survive The Competition Of Big Operators

What is the present status of small scale farmer-feeding operations on the Plains? A brief look at trends of the past decade might suggest large-scale feedlots in this region will soon have all the business.

Not necessarily so, according to Area Extension Livestock Specialist Dixon Hubbard. He says a close look at the relationship of costs to return for the small-scale feeding operation indicates the opposite might be true. It's well known on the farm feeding has worked for the Corn Belt cattle feeder for many years — and it's still working, he points out. One reason small feeding operations might look to be on the way out is because the large feedlots in Texas and other western states have persuasive percentages on their side. On January 1, 1959, about 19 per cent of all cattle on feed were in the 11 Western states — Texas included. Twelve years later the figure had risen to 27 per cent. The growth of cattle feeding in the West is due primarily to the rise of a relatively few operations but each with a huge feeding capacity.

In the Midwest, for example, there are many feeders, but usually lot capacity is small in comparison to areas such as the High Plains. For example, in 1961, Texas had only 254 feedlots. But capacity of over 80 per cent was 1,000 cattle or more. Not only that, but less than half the feedlots had 95 per cent of the cattle. . . . As a contrast, in Illinois, over 35,000 farms marketed feed cattle during the same period. But less than 1 per cent turned over 500 head or more annually.

The question, says Hubbard, is why can't the Plains' feeder make money feeding small groups of cattle if the Corn Belt feeder can?

The large feedlot operators in the Plains and other western areas attribute their growth directly to large-scale operations. Large capacity and effective, fully utilized, high quality facilities are a basic and accepted fact of a successful large-scale feeding operation. However, the big operator's real strength comes from knowledge of the cattle business and great bargaining power. They are big enough and smart enough to bargain effectively. This something the typical small farm feeder usually cannot do. But in some areas small farm feeders have combined their efforts by livestock pooling — both buying and selling — to overcome the disadvantage of buying and marketing small groups of cattle.

Cost and return figures for the average farmer-feeder appear to weigh heavily in favor of the larger operators — at first glance.

Based on a nationwide average of 68 head fed by the "average" farmer-feeder between 1955 and 1960, costs per 100 pounds of beef cattle produced were $19.16 for feed, $4.52 for other capital, and $1.77 for labor according to USDA estimates. This gives a total cost per hundred pounds gain of $25.45. Returns, including credit for manure, averaged $24.29, leaving the farmer with a net deficit of $1.16 for every hundred pounds of beef cattle produced.

On the surface it seems a losing proposition for the small feeder. However, it's often a different story when the methods by which the smaller feeder operates are analyzed.

One of the biggest advantages the small farmer-feeder has is his versatility. Generally his capital invested in cattle and feeding facilities is small in contrast to amount of money the commercial feeder has tied up. If the price-cost squeeze loosens, the small feeder can get into the feeding business quickly — and vice versa. The large commercial feeding operator usually must feed cattle consistently to keep his overhead costs paid.

Typically, the small operator buys his cattle in the fall and runs them for several weeks on grass stalks, wheat pasture, and other crops. Though such feed shows up in cost figures, the value would be lost in most cases were it not for the cattle feeding operation.

Later in the season, the farmer moves the cattle into an otherwise unused lot that was probably constructed at low cost. Once again, the lot shows up as an expense item, but without the cattle it would stand idle.

Aeration Of Grain Necessary

COLLEGE STATION — Farmers who experience trouble maintaining quality in farm stored grain are advised by W. S. Allen, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, to consider grain aeration. Aeration is simply a matter of forcing air through the grain, and only a small air flow is required to do the job, Allen says. The air is supplied with a motor-driven fan. Allen describes the process as a practical way to improve grain storage conditions.

But the engineer points out aeration and grain drying are not the same. The purpose of grain drying is to remove moisture. Large volumes of air must be forced through grain to dry it. Aeration is not used to dry grain, but mainly to cool it. The initial and operating costs of aeration equipment are relatively low.

A motor and fan unit is the heart of a grain aeration system. A duct system distributes the air. An air flow of only a fifth to a twentieth cubic or air per minute per bushel is adequate — only a fraction of air needed for drying.

Allen says the aeration fan should run when the air temperature is 10-15 degrees below the grain temperature. Cool the grain to about 50 degrees, he says. Cooling below this point is usually not advisable, especially if the bin will be unloaded in the summer.

Aeration helps maintain grain quality without moving the grain. Handling damage is reduced, and there is less wear and tear on conveying and elevating equipment. Too, a good system will help to remove off-odors, retard mold growth, reduce insect activity and prevent moisture accumulation, Allen explains.

The labor farmer-feeders use during the winter feeding period is in the same category as the lot and pasture. How else could he sell his high quality labor year-round time from harvest to spring planting? Also, if the operation is looking for a way to keep high-quality labor on the farm year-round, cattle feeding might serve to make this possible.

These same calculations hold true — in part — for other items such as land and equipment. The result is small-scale cattle feeding on many farms can mean a profit of $4 up to $9 per hundredweight gain if forages, lots, building, equipment, and labor are assumed to have no other productive use, according to USDA economists.

Despite the growth of the large scale feeding enterprise, the farmer feeding a small number of head is apt to remain in strong competitive position. Cattle feeding, Hubbard adds, might offer him a means to turn many of his resources into cash income.

Today's Meditation

"Thou hast healed me, saved me from death. All bitterness turned to confidence; thou hast rescued me — turned thy back on the record of my sins. — Isaiah viii, 17.

These are the words Ezechias the king of Juda wrote falling sick and recovering from his illness. Wrote Isaiah, "With bitter heart I pass my years in review, said the King, as he looked death in the face. "Lord so frail a thing is life on so little does my mortal breath depend. Cotton Stretch Fabrics Will Be Introduced Soon

COLLEGE STATION — By Spring, men will be wearing stretch cotton shirts and slacks, fabric industry leaders predict.

There should be a variety of men's clothing made from the new all-cotton stretch fabrics by fall. The fabrics, developed by U. S. Department of Agriculture utilization research, were used initially for women's and children's wear, says Rhea Merle Boyles, Extension clothing specialist.

The stretch-cotton invasion of the men's wear field is just beginning, however, leaders say.

hast healed me. The Reverend Clifton J. Corcoran Immaculate Conception of Mary Catholic Church

Two companies will market dress shirts made of cotton oxford cloth this spring, and a third manufacturer will market men's slacks in cotton stretch fabrics.

Dozens of other firms are testing fabrics for use in men's socks, sport shirts, sport jacket and hunting jacket, as well as shirt and slacks.

MEDICARE OPPOSITION

The health problems of the aged have grown more critical during the six years Congress has been discussing a social security-based system of care, AFL-CIO President George Meany said.

The House Ways and Means Committee was reported still predominantly opposed to a health care system based on the social security pay roll tax. Chairman Mills (D., Ark.), an opponent of the measure, has given assurance it will be allowed to come to a vote.

National League third basemen were led by Milwaukee's Ed Mathews last season. He made only 13 errors in 121 games.

Chemicals Emerge As A Third 'Farm Hand' But Will Present Applications Pay-Off?

The scarcity and cost of "hoe labor" in the Muleshoe area has caused farmers to look with favor on chemicals as a means of weed control. Accurate data, stresses John Seibert, area extension farm management specialist, is the most important factor in considering economic advantages of chemical versus other weed control methods. The specialist in a recent report discussed chemicals and their role as an added "farm hand." 1963 results from the application of Diuron (Karmex DL), Herban, and Prometryne were comparable on both broad leaf weeds and grasses in Oklahoma — about 50 per cent kill within 33 days after application. Both Dacthal and Trifluralin (Treflan) gave better than 60 per cent control of both broad leaf and grass weeds after the same period of time. (Treflan was incorporated in soil with a rake.) Comparable results from applications of Diuron, Herban, and Prometryne were received at Lubbock and Amarillo. At both locations control was 80 per cent or better. Dacthal and Treflan gave very good weed control (93 per cent plus) when incorporated. Postemergence and Lay-by. With two applications (second treatment applied first of June) of Diuron, Prometryne and Dac-thol with DSMA, (applied with surfactant) broadleaf weed control was almost 100 per cent in Oklahoma research. Directed application of Diuron and Prometryne (with surfactant) as post-emergence treatments gave very good weed control at Amarillo. Diuron was used at two rates as a layby treatment with varied results at Amarillo. Only limited research is presently available from the application of herbicides in and near the Plains. However, each of the chemicals mentioned show promise along with others still in the experimental stage. To determine the profitability of using herbicides, we must know their costs, their effectiveness, and how much hand-hoeing costs and or cultivation costs are reduced as a result of their use. Also, it must be known if there is any reduction in cotton yield or residual effect. Seibert uses these guidelines to compare the profitability of herbicides versus hand-hoeing, cultivations and other practices. Conventional methods of weed control on the High Plains are hand-hoeing, knifing and cultivations. Seibert reports the per acre costs listed below are "averages" for these practices:

Hand hoeing	$3.50 to $6.00
Knife	.24 to $3.50
Cultivation(s)	2.50 to 5.00
Total	$6.24 to $11.50

Where chemical weed control will reduce any of the above costs (separate or in combination) below that of the cost of the chemical and its application, it will normally be a profitable practice, the specialist emphasizes. Where herbicides are being considered for weed control, additional investment must normally be made in equipment. This can range from $8.50 per row for pre-emergence application to well over $5 per row for pre- and post-emergence application equipment. Most farmers can use their own insecticide application equipment with minor adjustments and modifications for herbicide applications. In any event this added investment capital increases fixed cost per acre, depending on farm operation size. With chemicals recommended to be soil-incorporated, Seibert believes additional equipment would not have to be purchased. Rotary hoes, sand fighters, and or cultivators can do a satisfactory job, he points out. As an example of how chemicals can reduce costs, assume a chemical weed control cost throughout the season of $8 per acre (includes chemical, labor, repairs, fixed costs, etc.). In order to economically justify this cost, conventional weed control methods must be reduced at least $8 per acre. It's possible to economically justify the application of herbicides even where a slight reduction in cotton yield results, the specialist continues. A 2 per cent reduction in yield (assuming a 650 pound yield per acre at 30 cents) plus an $8 herbicide cost per acre could be profitable where costs of conventional weed control methods are reduced below $11.90 per acre. Chemical weed control should — and will — be used where it is unprofitable, Seibert adds. This is just another way of saying that substituting capital for labor is often a profitable alternative.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

By J. Frank Peery

Conspiracy Against God?

A telephone call brings many and varied things to one in a twenty-four hour span of time. Even more interesting are the things that turn up in one's mail. Some time ago, I received a folder from the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism. I first noticed the organization in an article by Congressman Frank Becker of New York in the Congressional Record. The AAAA states that it must exist because the United States is not a Christian nation and the Constitution is Godless. The organization demands such things as:

1. Elimination of chaplains and sectarian institutions from the public payroll;
2. Repeal of laws restricting rights of atheists and those enforcing Christian morals;
3. Abolition of oaths in courts and inaugurations;
4. Erasure of superstitious inscription, "In God We Trust" from our coins and the removal of the church flag from above our national flag on battleships."

This is only four such demands among ten that appeared in the Congressional Record of August 14, 1963. An even more startling piece of mail came to my desk last week. The postmark is Baltimore, Maryland and comes from one Madalyn Murray. Madalyn Murray is the woman who carried her fight against prayers in public schools to the Supreme Court and proposes to set up an Atheist Center near Stockton, Kansas. She is editor-in-chief of The American Atheist, published in Baltimore by the Free Thought Society of America, Inc. She also sends out a monthly newsletter. Here are some direct quotes from the latest newsletter: "We need publicity. I have worn myself thin getting it for us — but we must invest some money in it also. As an example, on November 12, 1963, I spoke on W-PEN (Philadelphia) for our position against clericalists, for 2 1/2 hours. The subject was "Should Prayer — Bible be banned from the schools?" (Yes, some people do not know this fight is over!) On November 5th, I spoke to about 6-9 college students at The University of Maryland on the topic of 'Atheism'. Each month, I give from two to four speeches of this kind. We need to have money to purchase mailing lists. We need to make a direct mail campaign. We need to advertise. It seems to me that a budget of about $25,000 would not be excessive for these diverse aims. We are fighting the Roman Catholic Church and they can put in $25,000,000." "We need to get about 25,000 Atheists of the 70 million people who do not go to church, and of the 6 million people who told of 1962 census takers that they did not believe in God, and to have them subscribe to our publication." "I want what you want: to make this a wonderful country, superstition free, in which we can live, work, enjoy the fruits of the abundance we produce. We can have heaven — for us, now, in America . . . so that we can become an example to the rest of the world, which can in good conscience follow."

Frankly Speaking — The boldness of the devil and evil seems to be coming out into the direct sunlight with full confidence. The Christian population must act now or we will have a genuine hell on earth. I know two places where the AAAA and Madalyn Murray and her kind can go and be right at home. One place is the Soviet Union; the other is — —! As a matter of fact, I believe they have already.

TEXANS AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Senator Yarborough of Texas and President Johnson exchange congratulations on enactment of the vocational education bill by the 88th Congress, in a White House bill signing ceremony. Others in the photograph immediately behind Senator Yarborough and the President are, left to right, Senators Javis, Randolph and Morse. This bill expanded vocational education; extended the National Defense Education Act three years, increasing funds for student loans in colleges and universities; and extended the law for aid to school districts in impacted areas. Senator Yarborough, a member of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee, was invited to the White House ceremony as one who had a key role in enactment of this bill.

perhaps the fact that a partially-printed form is used may contribute in causing the true importance of the act to be overlooked. At any rate, many are lulled into a lapse of good business judgment. Every significant detail of the bargain should be crystallized in unmistakable terms in the contract of sale. Land and fixtures being sold should be clearly described. A complete description of the property by lot and block, or by metes and bounds, is a must, the street number being inadequate by itself. Articles and fixtures included in the sale but not always sold with houses generally should be specifically listed. Included in this category are such items as venetian blinds, removable floor coverings, draperies, air conditioning units and others. In purchasing property under construction, complete plans and specifications form an essential part of the agreement. The price to be paid must, of course, be specified, along with method and terms of payments. If a certain-sized loan is a prerequisite to the buyer's ability to complete the purchase, this fact should be noted. Said indeed is the prospective purchaser who loses his earnest money when a contemplated loan transaction falls through, his contract requiring payment of the entire consideration in cash. The sales contract should also state the quality of the title to be conveyed to the buyer and the type of title evidence to be furnished.

The buyer's individual circumstances and desires may require that various matters not mentioned above be provided for in the contract. All too often people try to squeeze a sales contract to fit the type of printed form on hand, omitting or leaving to easily misconstrued or forgotten oral agreement many vital provisions. Do not fall into the "pitfall" of the printed form. For many unfortunate entanglements have been announced by clients to lawyers with the words, "I have just signed a receipt for a house on Blank Street. Will you take over now and see that everything is O. K.?"

(This newfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

RUSSIANS WATCH DRILL

Russian jet bombers and Soviet warships boldly snooped close to the United States carrier and six destroyers during anti-submarine drills in the Sea of Japan early this month. It has been reported the Russians were spotted by radar and kept under surveillance by Navy planes and ships. There were no hostile acts and no contact between the Americans and the Russians.

The signing of a contract of sale is an extremely important step in the purchase of a home. Once buyer and seller have signed, they are bound by the provisions of the contract. Their respective legal rights in the transaction are thereby set and determined. If the contract is poorly and haphazardly drawn, a harvest of regret may be reaped at a later date.

Sales contracts are often called by other names, such as earnest money contracts, binders, receipts, etc. All of them are for the same purpose and almost without exception involve the deposit of money by the buyer. Some require the seller to put up a good faith deposit. The fact that such deposited sums are usually to be forfeited in event the depositor later fails to go through with his specified contractual obligations lends additional weight to the oft-stated admonition that no contract should be signed without complete understanding as to its terms.

But many home purchasers (and sellers) rush to sign a hastily-prepared contract with very little knowledge of its contents. The pressure of time, the informality of the occasion, the casual appearance of the contract, and

CHANGE IN AID
Under President Johnson's orders, a blue ribbon panel of Administration officials have been conducting a reappraisal of the foreign aid program. Their aim is to change it into something more acceptable to Congress.

Representative Passman (D., La.) is against any proposal to give the foreign aid program a new look. One idea is to absorb the present aid organization into other agencies of the State Department. Another is to separate the military assistance and the economic aid components of the controversial program.
