The Paradox Of Unemployment

Despite mounting employment, despite labor shortage in certain skilled fields, despite the prediction that labor shortage may become general by next spring, there is still "unemployment." It is estimated today at around five million. And the relief problem, while less pressing, is still with most communities.

Why?

Possibly because, for one thing, we have been allowing the word unemployment itself to deceive us. What is a reasonable meaning for the word "unemployed"? It ought to mean a person who needs a job, is able to do it, and

On that basis we may have been fooling ourselves all along. Let's see. The peak of unemployment in the U.S. came in 1933. Nobody knows how many "unemployed" there were then. We have to guess, and the best guesses seem to run around 12,000,000.

Now, with that figure in mind, let's look at a little study which Cleveland recently made of its relief problem. Naturally, with mounting employment, Cleveland's relief problem, desperate like that of all large cities during the Defense Speeds depression, is less pressing today. But in spite of the better conditions, Cleveland still had 21,321 people on relief in Development In

The startling thing shown by the Cleveland survey is that of these, 15,526, or three-fourths of the total, were judged totally unemployable. And 9000 of these were children under 16, scarcely to be considered "unemployed" in any man's statistics.

Something over 4000 were partially employable (aged, handicapped) and getting partial aid; 461 were classed as "temporarily unemployed", and of the whole 21,321 people on relief only 92 men and 111 women were classed as zie. Utah mining expert. fully able to work, but not working at all.

Whether these percentages would hold throughout the an authority of mining economics nation, we have no notion. Assuming something like them to be true, what do we find? We find a large industrial than talking about development. community partially supporting by relief 21,321 of its Many of the larger companies members, yet only 203 of them need, can do, and haven't he said, had already brought expansion projects into production got jobs.

That strongly suggests two things:

1. Relief is not primarily a matter of ameliorating a m. Montana. The international Smelting and Refining company has condition due to or even closely connected with unemploy-ment; it is now largely a matter of aid to those unable to

2. The labor reserve, of which we once thought we had an inexhaustible supply, is not as great as we thought, and a real shortage may impend.

The Church is one of the six great all-inclusive institutions on which our civilization is built. It contributes to all five of the others, namely, the home, the school, the neighborhood, industry, and the state. Conviction s the great dynamo of human driving power. It is the constant agitator that stirs to action the desires and hopes of mankind. A great conviction is the unifying principle of all great institutions and organizations, brnging man into one accord with one purpose. The Church today needs a revival of conviction sufficient to supply the impetus of a long and steady march toward the goal ahead-winning the world for

The mighty works done by the early Church testify to the divine origin of this Kingdom of Heaven on earth. The Midland high Bulldogs were scheduled to open the basketball season here at 7:30 p. m. Friday night in two games against the Kermit Yellowjackets.

A warmup tilt with B teams of the contesting schools was scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym and A teams tee off at 8:30 p.

Coach Dewey Johnson with only four days of drill, could not definitely pick a starting five for the A tilt. However the lineup was expected to include Charlie Kelly, Billy Richards, H. G. Bedford, and possibly Jimmy Watson, or Frank Troseth and Charles Funk. Bill Stickney and Buddy Davidson were sure to see action.

Johnson packed fast drills into the four days of practice. The team is inexperienced. Midland will go to Kermit Dec 12 for return games.

There are many ways to settle your difficult gift problems. But none easier than selecting "American." For here is a crystalware pattern that has fascinated many generations. It sparkled once upon a time in ancestral homes. Recreated, by Fostoria, it sparkles again in modern homes which are sympathetic to colonial traditions.

Rightly, "American" has proved to be America's most popular pattern. Its fascination derives from sheer simplicity of design, and its jewel-like capacity for reflecting light and color.

You will be proud to give "American" gifts to everyone. Prices are exceedingly attractive; some individual pieces costing as little as 50c each. And; in our displays, you will find a great variety
