Carter signs public works, economic stimulation bills

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter today signed a bill authorizing $20 billion for general economic stimulation and a $4 billion public works bill, calling the legislation "a major move in the right direction."

With mayors from some of the nation's major cities and congressmen and senators looking on, the President said in a White House Rose Garden ceremony that the legislation demonstrated "in a vivid way the close cooperation that has evolved" between the White House and Congress and the local and federal governments.

The $4 billion appropriation bill for public works is among the spending plans authorized by the larger

President signed.

The economic stimulation bill also authorizes $8 billion for public service jobs and $1 billion for a program to boost employment by 200,000 among young people. Bills actually appropriating the money for those programs are still moving through Congress.

The President said that in talking with foreign leaders in Europe last weekend, he found that "the most unified concern expressed was for jobs for young people.

Also included in the economic stimulation bill is authorization for $631 million in general financial assistance for state and local governments.

Administration officials have create 300,000 jobs directly in the construction industry and another 300,000 jobs indirectly

AFL-CIO President George Meany, who had criticized the proposal as being insufficient, was in the crowd in the Rose Garden. He did not take part in the ceremony.

The President said that the drop of one percentage point in the national unemployment rate since he took office was not attributed to anything he, his administration or the Congress has done, but that it was a reaffirmation of the faith of the American people in the American system. The unemployment rate was 7 per cent

Commerce secretary Juanita Kreps said that the public works bill "will give the people in towns and countries new public facilities, schools, libraries, water facilities, which they very much need.

Carter mentioned the jobs bill Thursday as he held a nationally televised news conference in which he discussed his summit trip to Europe and defended his domestic policies.

The President was asked about Democratic liberals' criticism of his economic policies. In turning aside such complaints, Carter listed the jobs bill as an accomplishment, then also listed appropriations for local governments, a summer jobs program and his proposal to revamp the funding of the Social Security system.

"I do not consider these moves to help people to go back to work and have a good life to be incompatible with a balanced budget before my own term of office is over," he said, linking a balanced budget and "the right of people to have a job.'

The $4 billion jobs bill will provide money for road repairs, construction of hospitals, libraries and police stations and other projects designed to benefit communities and put the unemployed to work, especially those laid off from construction jobs.

Carter had been criticized by Sen George McGovern, D-S.D., who said in a speech last weekend that Carter was willing to sacrifice important social programs in order to balance the federal budget.

in an informal question-and-answer session with reporters after the televised conference, the President also said he thought former President Richard M. Nixon "was guilty of impeachable offenses" in the Watergate scandal, but "he has rationalized in his own mind that he did all of these things for the benefit of his staff members and that he didn't have any criminal intent."

Senate GOP adopts plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Republicans, rejecting all new tax proposals contained in President Carter's energy program, are offering a rival plan aimed at "incentives rather than punishment."

The energy proposal, adopted without dissent by Senate GOP members on Thursday, calls for removal of price controls on oil and natural gas and tax breaks for Americans who conserve energy in their homes and businesses.

It calls for some of the same energy conservation measures advocated by the President, but none of the taxes.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said elements of the GOP counter-offensive to Carter's energy package will be introduced in the Senate piece by piece in the

If the 38 GOP members of the Senate stand solidly behind the plan - as Republican leaders say they will it could pose a major obstacle to enactment of some of the more

controversial elements of the administration's energy program.

"We do not have a tax on gasguzzlers and we specifically reject a standby tax on gasoline," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, "Our provisions are positive, incentives rather than punishment."

Carter asked for authority to impose a gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon if gasoline consumption continues to rise rapidly, and for a tax of up to $2,500 on fuel-inefficient

But Senate Republicans rejected the President's proposal for taxes on utilities that continue to use oil and natural gas.

The GOP plan for deregulation would allow domestic oil and gas prices to rise to worldmarket levels. Deregulation has been a goal of the

U.S. energy industry and members of Congress from oil-and gas-producing states, who claim the current federal controls keep prices artificially low and discourage exploration for new

The Republican plan advocates an immediate end to price controls on newly drilled oil and natural gas and on petroleum products such as gasoline and heating oil.

But energy companies would have to reinvest their anticipated extra profits in further exploration and development or face a possible them in the currently unregulated markets in gas-producing states. Like Carter's plan, the GOP version

FBI teaches lawmen to shoot straight

It doesn't matter what the weather does. The targets are going to be posted and shot full of holes — all in the name of self-preservation and, yes, law and order.

U.S.-Soviet conflict foreseen by China

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) - Chinese Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying predicts a "big war" soon bet-ween the United States and the Soviet Union and says China 'must race against time" to build up industry in the interior

before it happens. In a speech in Peking on May 9 to a nationwide industrial conference, Yeh said the United States and the Soviet Union "are locked in an increasingly fierce struggle for hegemony" and "a war will break out some day."

"We must be clearly aware of this situation," Yeh continued, "keep war in mind and get prepared for it, for a big war that will break out at an early date.

"We must race against time and work as quickly as possible so that we can build industry in the interior well before the outbreak of war."

Party Chairman Hua Kuofeng echoed Yeh, saying, "We must definitely be ready for war. We cannot afford to let time slip through our fingers as it waits for no one. Accelerating development of our national economy at a rapid pace is a task which brooks no delay."

The texts of the speeches were published today by Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency. Observers in Tokyo interpreted the talk of management at the talk of management. the talk of war as an attempt to impart a sense of urgency to plans to develop China into a major industrial power by the end of the century.

Mao Tse-Tung's industrial-

Yeh, a 79-year-old associate of the late Premier Chou Enlai, said the transfer of industry "is not merely a question of industrial distribution; it is a question of strategy that affects the whole situation."

"We must build the interior ... as fast as possible so that it can make greater contributions to the development of our national economy and our preparedness against war in peacetime and operate as our strategic rear base area in time of war.

He also stressed the need to "ceaselessly strengthen national defense capabilities" as long as American and Soviet imperialism exists.

Price controls also would be renseved from oil from older wells and from some gas from older fields, but more gradually.

In contrast, the administration plan would allow the price of domestic oil to rise to world-market levels, but through a complex tax placed on oil at the wellhead. The Carter plan also would continue federal price controls on natural gas, raising prices in the interstate market while lowering

Aramco says exports won't dip

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The pipeline fire in one of Saudi Arabia's major oil fields was still burning today, but the operators said the country's oil exports would not be seriously affected. The president of the company operating the field ruled out sabotage.

"The fire is practically, for all intents and purposes out, and the situation is under control," said Frank Jungers, president of the Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco).

Exports will decline temporarily, Jungers added, "but it's not a major lessening of production."

The fire erupted Wednesday following an explosion on a pipeline in the Abgaig field. It halted production from the field, estimated at 875,000 barrels of crude oil daily. But its major effect was to curtail the flow of oil to the Persian Gulf port of Ras Tanura from the Ghawar field, the world's largest, which is 15 miles south of Abgaig.

The Ghawar oil moves via the complex of pipelines that crosses the Abgaig field, but there was no reliable information on how much the flow was reduced.

Oil industry sources in Nicosia said the ruptured pipeline could carry up to 6 million barrels a day, nearly twothirds of the total Saudi production. But Jungers said there was "not that kind of loss at all."

"We have a lot of pipelines that come up in that area so the number is erroneous," he added.

Other Aramco officials said they were rerouting the crude from Ghawar via other pipelines to Ras Tanura. The industry sources in Nicosia said it was believed there is enough oil in the storage tanks at Ras Tanura and other gulf ports to continue loading tankers without interruption.

Last month, Saudi Arabia produced almost 10 million barrels of crude oil daily. Of that, about 5 million barrels went to Western Europe, 2 million to Japan and 1.5 million to the United

Asked if saboteurs may have caused the explosion, Jungers replied, "Absolutely not. It was a pipeline failure. It definitely was that." But American diplomats said the possibility of sabotage was being investigated.

An Aramco statement said the fire was caused by an explosion Wednesday afternoon that ruptured a section of pipeline between two pumping stations and sprayed oil over a nearby processing area, "causing a fire to erupt and spread rapidly. Officials said one of the pumping stations and one or two gasseparation tanks were damaged.

One worker was killed and 13 others were injured, the company said. A U.S. Embassy official said the dead man was a Saudi foreman, and it was believed no Americans were among the injured.

In a taped interview with British television personality David Frost, Nixon said he had to overcome the reservations of Henry Kissinger to maintain U.S. military operations in Cambodia in 1970, despite demonstrations at Kent State and other universities

And, again over Kissinger's warnings of possible political and diplomatic implications, Nixon said he ordered the Pentagon to "send everything that flies" to Israel to help the Jewish state snap back from the 1973 Yom Kippur attack by Egypt and Syria.

Thursday night's telecast over an informal network of 155 television stations was the second of five programs expected to bring Nixon approximately $1 million.

Nixon appeared as confident discussing world affairs in Thursday's taped interview as he had appeared uneasy in dealing with his Watergate downfall in last week's Nixon, the only man to resign the presidency, assessed the world leaders he met while president and called Kissinger, who became both secretary of state and national security chief, "a genius" who had to have things his way.

Of the world leaders he met, Nixon said:

—The late Chairman Mao Tse-tung of China had "a devilish sense of humor" and lived very simply. Despite debilitating strokes he maintained control over China until his death last year.

—The late Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev was both brilliant and boorish, with "a terrible inferiority complex."

—Khrushchev's successor, Leonid I. Brezhnev, is not as quick intellectually, but also is not as volatile "and in that way a much safer man to have sitting there with his finger on the (nuclear) button."

Nixon called Kissinger an emotional intellectual who "likes to say outrageous things." He said Kissinger, who likes being a celebrity, constantly feuded with William P. Roger's before succeeding him as secretary of state.

After the Watergate scandal forced Nixon's resignation, Kissinger was sometimes critical of his old boss. In a dinner conversation in Ottawa, Canada, in October 1975, for instance, he was overheard describing Nixon as an odd and artificial man.

"Quite candidly," Nixon said, "it drives my family right up the wall and it's only because it bothers them that it would bother me at all."

Besides, he went on, "after such accounts appear, I know that I always get a call from Henry on the phone explaining that there's been either a misquotation, or misinterpretation, or what have you.

"And, I have always said to him, 'Forget it.'"

Kissinger could not be reached for comment on Nixon's observations. An assistant in his downtown Washington office said the former secretary of state would have nothing to say. A call to his home in Georgetown was taken by an answering service and not returned.

Surveying his achievements, Nixon said he conceived of the possibility of an initiative toward China before he ever met Kissinger, who nevertheless pursued it "with enormous en-

Israel to get special aid treatment

By KENNETH J. FREED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel and its congressional supporters have won a significant victory over the State Department with President Carter's decision to grant the Jewish state special treatment on weapons aid.

Carter signaled the Israeli accomplishment when he disclosed at a Thursday news conference that the Jerusalem government would be given high priority in obtaining new U.S. weapons and military technology

American-designed armaments.

Carter's announcement came just two hours after he and a group of senators who support Israel worked out an agreement to grant Israel special treatment. The senators agreed in exchange to shelve an amendment aimed at giving lawmakers the power to circumvent Carter's arms policy.

Thursday's events capped an all-out lobbying battle between the State Department and the Israeli embassy and its backers. The department wanted to exclude Israel from a category of preferred nations that receive priority consideration in arms matters.

Led by Undersecretary of State Lucy Wilson Benson, department lobbyists argued that including Israel in that category would upset the Arabs at a sensitive point of Middle East negotiations.

They also argued that the United States needed to adopt an "even-handed" policy toward the Middle East antagonists.

President returns

a new man

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, home from his first summit conference, is coming across as a man with reinforced confidence in his ability to lead the United States and the free world.

The weeks before he headed for Europe were difficult ones for the Carter presidency. His disarmament proposals received a brusque rejection in Moscow. His tax rebate fared no better on Capitol Hill.

But at his seventh news conference, Carter seemed to be a man with renewed confidence. He sounded more like the candidate who told countless campaign audiences: "I don't intend to lose."

His manner also contrasted with his first presidential press conference when he was a pologetic toward congressional critics and then left the room quickly after the traditional "Thank you, Mr. President" ended the questioning.

When he was asked Thursday about criticism from within his own party, Carter brushed it aside with no apologies. Questioned about whether he was emphasizing style rather than substance, the President discoursed on why style is substance in his administration.

And when the questioning was over, he lingered among reporters and said he thought Richard M. Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense, a question he had ducked a week earlier.

Carter opened the news conference by hailing the results of his European summit meeting with the heads of other major non-Communist industrial nations. He said he found a "renewed spirit of hope and confidence" in the ability of western-democracies to compete with the Communist world.

While upbeat in his answers to foreign policy questions, Carter cautioned that "the chances for Middle Eastern peace are still very much in doubt."

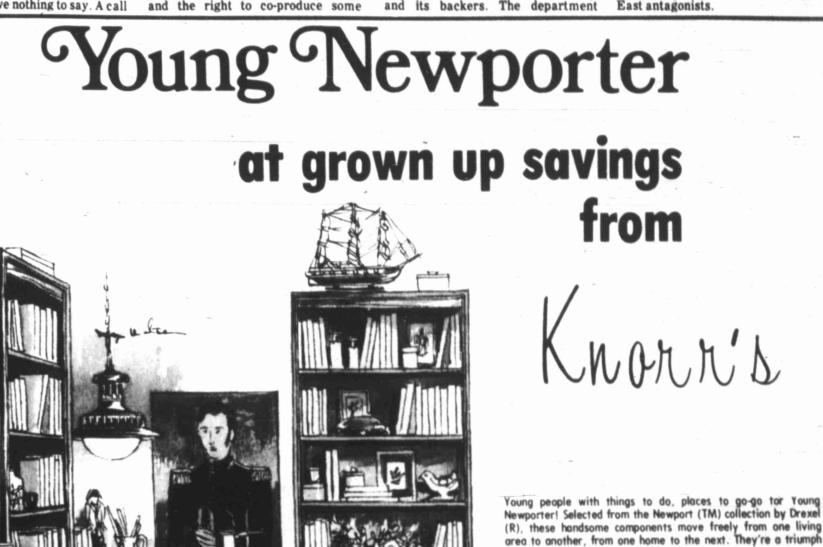

It was when he dealt with domestic criticism that Carter sounded like a man who is convinced he knows what he is doing.

While Carter was in Europe, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., addressed Americans for Democratic Action and questioned whether Carter's commitment to a balanced budget would take precedence over traditional Democratic social welfare programs.

A month before he took office, Carter received a memorandum from pollster Patrick Caddell which advised him not to subvert style to substance and also warned that Carter might face more political danger from Democrats like McGovern and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., than from Republicans.

"I don't see either McGovern or Gov. Brown as an adversary or threat," said Carter

Then he drew laughs by adding, "I feel quite secure in my position."

Welfare objectives

Yes, everybody knows or should know what's wrong with the welfare system. But nobody has been able to do much about it.

Perhaps President Carter will have better luck. We hope so.

It seems obvious that simplification of the welfare system would reduce administrative costs and limit the opportunity for fraud. A more effective program would operate in the long run to reduce the spirit-crushing dependency which keeps generation after generation of poor families on the welfare rolls. This would reduce the tax burden.

But the system is massive. It has massive built-in inertia. It will not yield to the sweet voice of reason. There must be shouts, a public outcry, a demand for ac-

Otherwise, those special interests with a selfish stake in the present system will prevail, permitting no changes or only insignificant changes.

It is a matter of persuading the welfare recipients and their organizations, the welfare workers and their organizations, the welfare system administrators at every level of goverenment, the various states and regions, the liberals and conservatives in Congress - all the diverse interests - to agree on reform. Yes indeed, that's a tall order. Mr. Carter may have underestimated the resistance. He has not been able to come up with a specific reform program by the date he set. Instead he presented only a general program of desirable goals. The specifics now are promised in August.

The Carter goals are good - the consolidation of federal benefits into a simple cash payment, incentives to encourage the employment of welfare recipients, incentives to keep families together instead of driving fathers from their homes.

But these also were the goals of the Nixon-Moynihan Family Assistance Plan (FAP), a forward looking comprehensive welfare reform program proposed in 1969 and promptly shot down by a coalition of conservatives and liberals in Congress.

The test of Carter's commitment and his ability to lead will come after he announces the specifics in August.

The lesson came in the glare of ublicity for four youngsters of Ramona, Calif., who had a run-in with the California State Board of Equalization over sales tax on the compost which they have been and are selling.

If Richard, Ne-Ne, Bette and June Cessna had settled for a lemonade stand and its modest prospects, the state tax collector perhaps would have looked the other way. Their problem, however, came from sniffing the bigger profits lying on the ground around their father's equestrian center and developing a business with a gross in four figures.

PERUVIAN MILITARY:

Degenerating, but much more tolerant

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Peru's revolutionary military government is "degenerating," Latin intellectuals say.

Under the presidency of Gen Francisco Morales Bermudez, most of the Socialist reforms that had been the admiration of Latin American and other leftists have been dropped.

Still, since Morales took over Aug. 30, 1975, there is more freedom of expression in that west coast South American country than there had been for years.

The communications media are restrained in what they write and say about Peru's problems and politics. But nevertheless, voices of dissent are to be heard and are more tolerated now than they had been since 1968 when the Peruvian armed forces dumped the last elected president, Fernando Belaunde Terry One such dissenter is Carlos Delgado, U.S.-educated (San Deigo State University and Syracuse), who held an important position during the presidency of Gen. Juan Velasco

Delgado is one of those who protests that "the Socialist component (of the Peruvian revolution's ideological basis) was deliberately abandoned as was its participatory component, after Morales replaced Gen. Velasco.

However, Delgado recently told the newspaper Jornal de Brasil, "that does not mean that the current government has turned to the ultraright or to fascism. I believe there is a degeneration toward conservatism, but this regime respects freedom of expression up to an important limit."

Although he spoke of the degeneration of the military regime. from the ideological point of view, Delgado does not seem to expect a return to purely civilian government in the foreseeable future.

"A center-rightist or rightist civilian regime based politically on the APRA Party (of Victor Raul Haya de la Torre), or the Popular Action Party (of former President Belaunde Terry), with military support, with U.S. support," is one of four alternatives for coming years that he mentioned.

But the other three are military: "the continuation of the current government...for quite awhile; ""an even more rightist military intervention...a Peruvian version of the Southern Cone;" "and finally, the most remote but not impossible alternative, in my opinion, is the possibility that somehow conditions similar to 1968 may return to make possible a new composition of military and civilian leftist forces in the country.

Subsequent to Delgado's comments, announcement was made in Lima of the decision of the commanders in chief of the Peruvian army, navy and air force to keep Gen. Morales Bermudez in the presidency even after he retires from active duty Jan. 31, 1978.

While that disclosure prompted some protest from Marxist quarters, the news was greeted with approval by the other side.

Although a career army man, Morales Bermudez also served as treasury minister in both the Belaunde Terry and Velasco Alvarado governments, as well as minister of planning and prime minister during the Velasco regime.

Many Peruvians seem to feel that, if they must have a military government, the continuation of the Morales regime for quite awhile would be less objectionable than the rule of many of his comrades in arms

by the Italian Communist party (PCI) for U.S.-Soviet detente, now in some disarray under President Carter's human rights campaign and the nuclear arms deadlock, illustrates its fear of twilight detente. "Carter's human rights talk isn't helping Soviet dissidents," a non-Communist leader told us, "but it surely is making life hell for the Communists here."

As long as the U.S.-Soviet dialogue was progressing smoothly — as during the Nixon-Ford-Kissinger years — the PCI basked in the warmth of detente. But today it is in a posture of embarrassed ambiguity, compelled to make odious choices that expose and widen contradictions between a "democratic" Western party (governed internally by authoritarian centralism) and one tied to the Communist center in the Kremlin.

An equally insoluble problem afflicting the PCI are the due bills to its working-class base. These IOUs stem from the PCI's courtship of the Catholic center and its self-portrait as the salvation of an Italy torn by violence in the streets, raging inflation, massive deficit spending and group hatred. That self-portrait is the PCI's pass into the "historic com-

With a steely eye on that still-distant goal, PCI leaders have opened a widening gap between themselves and the 1,712,084 card-carrying party members (down by 6,000 from one year ago) "who want to behave like Communists," in the words of a political operative.

This explains the phenomenon of violence against PCI leaders by university students (radicalized by the incredibly stupid education policies of the Christian Democrats) and by workers infuriated at the PCI's tentative bourgeois approach to curing inflation.

If the maneuver of the Christian Democrats to gain formal support of the PCI for a "common program" — limited to public order, education and the economy — actually works, these contradictions between the PCI leadership and its rank-and-file may enlarge, further postponing the party's payment of those IOUs to its natural working-class-student consti-

As for the party's working-class base, Giorgi Benvenuto, head of the third-largest union (particularly strong in the auto plants), told us that 'disillusioned workers are paying too high a price for the historic compromise. No PCI leader could risk making a speech at the Alfa-Romeo auto factory today. He would be driven off."

Some politicians here are convinced that internal debate over the party's predicament extends deep into its ruling 36-member directorate, perhaps endangering Secretary General Enrico Berlinguer, sponsor of the party's courtship of the Catholic center and hence held accountable for the présent dilemma.

Berlinguer recently made four speeches in little more than two weeks - far more than usual. One was in an industrial suburb of working-class Naples, but it failed to stop the flood of defections in last month's municipal election which defeated the Communist incumbent and cost the PCI a 12-point drop in its Likewise, the unusually precise pro-Soviet speech of Armando Cossutta, a leader of the PCI left wing, sounded like a complaint and a call to greater militancy. While proclaiming "complete autonomy" from Moscow, Cossutta said that "it is unthinkable, and whoever thinks so is utterly unrealistic, for a party of workers, a party like ours, to break its ties of solidarity with the Communist party of the Soviet Union and to go in for anti-Sovietism.

Business leaders fairly optimistic about 1977-1978

By RHONDA SEEGAL

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) - The nation's economy, with growing strength in its investment sector, is on a "sound growth path" that should continue well into 1978, economic consultants to the Business Council predicted today.

In a fairly optimistic forecast, the group said the biggest problem areas for 1977 were the possibility of another spurt in inflation and potentially negative effects of President Carter's energy program on consumer and business confidence.

About 100 members of the Business Council, composed of the chairmen and officials of some of the nation's largest and most influential corporations, opened their spring meeting here Thursday night.

"The only way the economy is going to keep its upward trend is to keep capital goods moving," council members said.

The council forecast also expected that the real gross national product would grow 4.9 per cent this year and 4.4 per cent in the first half of 1978.

Unemployment, now at 7 per cent, would continue to decline, approaching 6.5 per cent by mid-1978, according to the forecast. The council looked for consumer prices to rise 5.9 per cent this year about the same as last year — but said that in the first half of 1978 inflation should go down. The outlook for the business community was for an 11 per cent increase in corporate profits.

It also predicted an 11.8 per cent rise in current dollar outlays for nonresidential fixed investment.

During an informal press briefing Thursday night, the business leaders offered to do everything they can to help the Carter administration, but they said they are worried about President Carter's "on again-off again" policies toward business.

'We worry there are no positive signs he is going to back the business community," council members said in remarks that were on the record but not for attribution.

The group said it was a good sign when the President dropped his plans for a $50-per-person tax rebate, but they did not like the elimination of business investment tax credits.

And they were unhappy about proposed changes in the Social Security program that would put a greater financial burden on employers.

"These are the things that cause uncertainty - uncertainty is the biggest enemy of business. They make business stop and think before making big capital investments," council members said.

"Now we want a strong signal from the administration of its concern' about business and the need for

The group was most concerned about the need for a tax revision package, saying the administration "must lower the tax burden on the productive sector of the economy." However, in a news conference

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) - Union and company spokesmen now say the possiblity of a Communciations Workers of America strike against General Telephone Co. of the Southwest is "greatly reduced." A joint release Thursday said a major Strike ballots had been mailed to employes in Texas, Arkansas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

According to the statement, the new proposal agreed upon by both parties offers "full protection under the life of the agreement" for employes in the top wage schedule. For the lower-ranked jobs in which the company wants to slow down wage increases "several options have been developed but details have not been finalized," the statement said. The company's original proposal, termed retrogressive by the union, had called for approximately seven per cent of the employes covered by the contract to receive slowed wage increases over the three-year contract term. In previous negotiations, the union had empressed dissatisfaction with the total dollar amount of the wage and benefit package presented by GTE. The union and company differed on the exact percentage increase contained in the benefits. No statement has been issued on the progress of HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) - Texas Department of Corrections medical officers have a wide spectrum of lethal substances to choose from for use in the new injection method of execution.

The variety ranges from barbiturates to poisons, such as liquid cyanide and curare, and even injection of air into the blood stream, according to Ron Taylor, administrative assistant to TDC Director W.J.

The idea of the injections, Taylor said, is to make the execution as painless as possible.

Taylor said medical and security personnel will be appointed by Estelle to "study and develop the method and circumstances" of the execution.

Derese denies complicity in slaying of her parents

HOUSTON (AP) — Paula Cantrell Derese says she never aided in an alleged plot to have her parents killed nor intended for them to be slain.

Mrs. Derese completed testimony Thursday in the capital murder trial of Vernon McManus who is charged in the last July 25 slaying of Paul and Mary Cantrell. The prosecution alleges Mrs. Derese, 27, an only child, conspired with McManus, 34, in the slayings.

conspired with McManus, 34, in the slayings.

The state contends Mrs. Derese and McManus conspired to kill her parents for proceeds from the estate and insurance money.

Mrs. Derese also was charged with capital murder but entered pleas of guilty to lesser charges of murder and agreed to testify for the state.

During Thursday testimony Don Smith, attorney for McManus, said Mrs. Derese either lied throughout 16 hours of questioning about an alleged murder plot with McManus or pleaded guilty to a crime she never com-mitted.

"Either your testimony is the most incredibly unbelievable lie, or the greatest injustice that ever has been done to you," Smith shouted.

Mrs. Derese sobbed as she saw the photographs of her slashed and beaten parents for the first time.

Smith presented news articles describing her parents' love for her.

The remark sent prosecutor L. H. Stewart leaping to his feet.

"Paula, if you are a maggot, I don't know what that man is." Stewart said, pointing at McManus.

Judge allows Hunts to receive soybeans

CHICAGO (AP) - A federal judge's order lifting delivery restrictions on the May soybean holdings of the millionaire Hunt family has been upheld by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The court voted 2-1 Thursday to uphold a ruling by Judge Frank McGarr of U.S. District Court that the Hunts may accept delivery on their entire May soybean holdings of 22.7 million bushels.

McGarr's ruling last week, came one day after Judge Joel M. Flaum ordered that the Hunts not accept delivery of more than 3 million

Flaum had ruled in favor of the Commodity Futures Trading Com-mission which filed suit April 28 against seven members of the Hunt family and Hunt Holdings Corp. contending that their soybean holdings exceeded the legal limit of 3 million bushels.

The suit charged that the Hunt be entitled to future holdings on soybeans of not more than 3 million bushels.

Judge Thomas E. Fairchild of the Court of Appeals upheld Flaum's order imposing delivery restrictions last Saturday.

Police chief suspends five; orders force to keep quiet

HOUSTON (AP) - Police Chief B. G. Bond has indefinitely suspended five of six men allegedly connected with the drowning death of a young prisoner and ordered members of his department to make no statements concerning the case.

An aunt of the dead man says relatives will not be satisfied until all the officers are brought to trial. A state legislator called the incident "just another

However, Asst. Chief B. K. Johnson said officer Carless Eugene Elliott, who was also relieved of duty earlier but was not indefinitely suspended Thursday will remain relieved of duty with pay status until the outcome of a grand jury investigation of the case.

A grand jury is expected to begin investigaing the case next week after the newly formed internal affairs unit of the police department has completed its probe of the matter, Bond said.

Bond said he could not explain why the officers were fired nor could he explain why Elliott was the only officer of the six not fired. Bond said he could not talk because of an agreement reached between State District Court Judge Allen Stilley and Asst. City Atty. Al Levin.

Bond ordered all members of his department to make no statements concerning the case.

Heavy work day faces legislators in both houses

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Legislators had an agenda today that ranged from outlawing pay toilets to cracking down on violent criminals.

House members planned final votes on bills they debated Thursday that would:

-Automatically deny probation and lengthen prison time for criminals who injure their victims during sex crimes, robberies or kidnappings or who use guns in committing any crime.

-Raise maximum unemployment compensation benefits from $63 to $84 a week.

—Outlaw pay toilets.

-Exempt church-related child care centers from state regulation.

-Merge the Texas Water Development Board, the Texas Water Quality Board and the Texas Water Rights Commission. Both House and Senate had heavy work days

Thursday. The House sent to the Senate, 100-34, a bill virtually dislike for A7E outlawing abortions after the first 22 weeks of pregnancy and making them harder to get before the After the 22nd week, an abortion would be legal only to save the fetus or the life of the woman, to prevent "grave impairment" to her health or to prevent the birth of a defective child. Two physicians would have to certify that analysis of the amniotic fluid indicated a defective fetus in order for an abortion on that ground to be legal.

Before the 22nd week, an abortion could be performed "on the basis of the best medical judgment of a physician that (abortion) is necessary under all attendant circumstances" or if pregnancy resulted

The House approved and sent to the voters a constitutional amendment that would allow cities to sell have been laboring to use the proceeds to lure industry building plants. Rentals from the industrial firms would pay off the bonds.

day care center issue due vote

Church-related

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State representatives take a final vote today on a bill to exempt churchrelated child care centers from regulation by the Texas Department of Public Welfare.

It advanced Thursday on a tight 68-67 vote after more than an hour of debate that played off horror stories of child abuse in the name of religion against claims that the state was interfering in religion.

There are no regulations they (the welfare department) could promulgate that would not contain elements of secular humanism, and this is repugnant to fundamentalist Christianity," said sponsoring Rep. Kenneth Vaughan, D-Garland.

Under his bill, state welfare workers would have the right — but not the duty — to inspect the institutions. If they found a violation of health, safety or child abuse laws, they would be required to report it to "the appropriate enforcement authority.' Both secular and religious child care institutions — including day care centers — were brought under state regulation by a 1975 law, passed largely in response to allegations of mistreatment of children in homes operated by evangelist Lester Roloff.

Vaughan, a Baptist, said regulations adopted by the welfare department "invade the seaparation of church and state and infringe on the free exercise of religion.

Vaughan claimed the rules require a child care center to provide training in social living, "sex education, consumer education, and career plan-

But fundamentalist denominations, he said, "find that repugnant to their beliefs."

Rep. Dave Allred, D-Wichita Falls, said a House committee heard testimony in 1975 about a school operated by a religious organization that made 5-and 6-year-old children take several cold showers daily "because that would remove lust from their hearts.'

That school, he said, was driven out of the state by the 1975 law.

Speaking at a press conference Thursday, Carter called the A7E 'obsolescent at best ... we have superior planes now to replace it," in answer to a question about his reaction to congressional efforts to restore the A7E to the fiscal 1978 defense budget.

Reps. James Mattox and Dale Milford, both Democrats, disputed the President's contention about "superior planes." The proposed replacement for the A7E is the A-18, which is not scheduled for delivery to the Navy until 1983. Milford pointed out that it will cost at least $9 million per plane, compared to $4.5 million for the A7E.

Milford expressed "shock and amazement" after the President spoke. but Mattox remained confident that congress will appropriate some funds for the program. Earlier this year, Mattox helped pass an amendment to the House budget resolution to make room for the construction of six new planes.

Others who have helped the A7E program going are Reps. Jim Wright, the House majority leader; George Mahon, chairman of the Appropriations Committee and its defense subcommittee; and Sen. John Tower, who prodded the Senate Armed Services Committee to authorize 12 planes instead of the six originally proposed by President Ford and cut by Carter.

Property tax measure referral riles Peveto

By GREG THOMPSON

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) -Rep. Wayne Peveto is trying to decide whether to resume his private war against the Texas Senate.

Their uneasy truce was shattered Thursday when the Senate Economic Development Committee torpedoed Peveto's bill to restructure the Texas property tax appraisal system, sending it to a subcommittee to die.

"I feel like I've been double-crossed," stormed a livid Peveto, D-Orange. "I feel like the House has been doublecrossed. I was the most surprised person in the world when it was sent to subcommittee. I had a commitment."

The committee refused 4-3 to send the Housepassed bill to the Senate floor, visibly stunning Peveto and senators who supported it.

Peveto accused Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Sen. Tom Creighton, chairman of the committee, of reneging on a verbal commitment to give the bill "a fair run" on the Senate floor.

"They, in effect, have killed the bill," fumed Peveto.

Asked what Peveto could do to help his bill in the Senate, Hobby answered, "He could shut up. That'd be a good first step to repair the damage."

The commitment, relayed to him by two other senators, was given in order to stop him from blocking legislators' local and uncontested measures until senators gave in, Peveto said.

Peveto's blocking action last Friday was prompted by Creighton's refusal to send the bill to the Senate floor unless Peveto produced a list of 21 senators who will vote to take it up. It passed the House three weeks ago.

Creighton, D-Mineral

Union claims impact order hurts business

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In March, 1976, the oil and chemical workers union filed suit in federal court to strike down a Gerald Ford executive order under which every new federal regulation with important economic consequences had to be preceded by an "inflation impact statement."

The order's purpose was to keep government regulations from driving up business costs and an up business costs and prices.

But the union said the order was also illegally delaying the issuance of federal standards limiting worker exposure to elthal chemicals. Standards governing exposure to ammonia, arsenic and lead had been held up 8 months, the labor group told the court, a beryllium standard 9 months, one on noise at least 13 months.

one on noise at least 13 months.

The suit made little progress, but then Ford lost the election and the union allowed itself to hope the executive order would be rescinded.

Instead of rescinding it, however: President Carter has tentatively decided to perpetuate it. His decision has touched off a small but furious piece of infighting.

On one side are such groups as the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, other affected industrial unions and Ralph Nader's Health Research

Ralph Nader's Health Research Group. Their champions in the administration's inner councils are Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Eula Bingham, the assistant labor secretary in charge of Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Among the units on the other side is the President's Council of Economic Advisers, fearful of a revival of inflation and almost weaponless to prevent

Efforts are under way to work out a compromise — a procedure that would ensure that agencies issuing regulations take into account their economic costs, but would not unduly delay regulations. Whether such a magic middle ground exists is not yet clear. Carter is supposed to make a final decision in two weeks.

OSHA has still not issued standards of ammonia and the other chemicals the chemical union named in its suit. Bingham, who has promised greater speed in the promulgation of stan-dards and firmness in their enforcement, says she thinks there is no question that the economic-impact regulation has contributed to the delays.

Marshall, she said, thought the issue was "of such concern that he has not just left it to the assitant secretaries to deal with," and instead has made the case himself. "His comments to me all along have been it can really be a great waste of time," she said, "and that there is not an economic analysis that exists that he can't tear holes in, being an economist."

With no staff of its own to assess economic impact, OSHA had to hire outside consultants in the past. Bingham said OSHA spent $3.5 million preparing economic impact statements last year, "three and a half times as much as was programmed for the education of workers. Now that's an appalling thing, isn't it? ... Funds are so tight and we don't

The chemical union makes the further claim that the economic impact order is illegal executive interference with congressional intent.

"Congress mandated very specifically that the workplace should be free from hazards," said Anthony Mazzocchi, the union's legislative director. "It didn't say the workplace should be free from hazards only if the employer could afford it, or only if it wouldn't cost him too much money."

The same issues that trouble OSHA and the union also troubled Carter administration economic policy-makers when they began looking at Ford's executive order, which the former President extended for another year just before leaving office.

They decided that the goal of trying to force agencies to look at the economic consequences of their regulations was worthwhile, but that the procedure should be changed to make it more efficient, less costly and less prone to slowing up the issuing of

Carter to sign $4 billion public works bill today

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is preparing to sign a $4 billion public works bill that supporters say could create as many as 600,000 new

With 25 mayors from some of the nation's major cities expected to look on, the President planned to sign the legislation this morning in the White House Rose Garden.

Carter mentioned the jobs bill Thursday as he held a nationally televised news conference in which he discussed his summit trip to Europe and defended his domestic policies.

The President was asked about Democratic liberals' criticism of his economic policies. In turning aside such complaints, Carter listed the jobs bill as an accomplishment, then also listed appropriations for local governments, a summer jobs program and his proposal to revamp the funding of the Social Security system.

"I do not consider these moves to help people to go back to work and have a good life to be incompatible with a balanced budget before my own term of office is over," he said, linking a balanced budget and "the right of people to have a job.'

The $4 billion jobs bill will provide money for road repairs, construction of hospitals, libraries and police stations and other projects designed to benefit communities and put the unemployed to work, especially those laid off from construction jobs.

Carter had been criticized by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who said was willing to sacrifice important social programs in order to balance the federal budget.

The President has been similarly criticized by AFL-CIO President George Meany. Carter said that despite the labor chief's criticism administration proposals affecting organized labor were unexcelled. 'even going back to the early days of Lyndon Johnson.

In an informal question-and-answer session with reporters after the televised conference, the President also said he thought former President Richard M. Nixon "was guilty of impeachable offenses" in the Watergate scandal, but "he has rationalized in his own mind that he did all of these things for the benefit of his staff members.... and that he didn't have any criminal intent.'

On his European trip and on other foreign topics Carter said: -"I can report substantial success" as a result of "a renewed spirit of hope and confidence" coming from meetings in Europe with the leaders of the major industrial nations.

-The United States will not recognize the Palestinian Liberation Organization as long as the PLO refuses to accept the right of Israel to exist. And providing a homeland for the Palestinians is of crucial importance in arriving at a peace settlement in the Middle East.

Senate GOP adopts plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Republicans, rejecting all new tax proposals contained in President Carter's energy program, are of-fering a rival plan aimed at "incentives rather than punishment.

The energy proposal, adopted without dissent by Senate GOP members on Thursday, calls for removal of price controls on oil and natural gas and tax breaks for Americans who conserve energy in their homes and businesses. It calls for some of the same energy conservation measures advocated by the President, but none of the taxes. Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said elements of the GOP counter-offensive to Carter's energy package will be introduced in the Senate piece by piece in the

If the 38 GOP members of the Senate stand solidly behind the plan - as Republican leaders say they will - it could pose a major obstacle to enactment of some of the more

controversial elements of the administration's energy program. "We do not have a tax on gas-guzziers and we specifically reject a standby tax on gasoline," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas. "Our provisions are positive, incentives rather than punishment. Carter asked for authority to impose a gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon if gasoline consumption continues to rise rapidly, and for a tax of up to $2,500 on fuel-inefficient automobiles. But Senate Republicans rejected the President's proposal for taxes on utilities that continue to use oil and natural gas.

The GOP plan for deregulation would allow domestic oil and gas prices to rise to worldmarket levels. Deregulation has been a goal of the

U.S. energy industry and members of Congress from oil-and gas-producing states, who claim the current federal controls keep prices artificially low and discourage exploration for new

The Republican plan advocates an immediate end to price controls on newly drilled oil and natural gas and on petroleum products such as gasoline and heating oil.

But energy companies would have to reinvest their anticipated extra profits in further exploration and development or face a possible but more gradually.

In contrast, the administration plan would allow the price of domestic oil to rise to world-market levels, but through a complex tax placed on oil at the wellhead. The Carter plan also would continue federal price controls on natural gas, raising prices in the interstate market while lowering them in the currently unregulated markets in gas-producing states.

Like Carter's plan, the GOP version offers tax breaks for home insulation and for various other energy conservation measures in homes and

Saudis' production cut

President Carter responds to reporter's comment at conference

By THOMAS W. LIPPMAN The Washington Post

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia - More than half of Saudia Arabia's oil production was shut off again Thursday as a stubborn, smoky fire continued to burn in a pipeline and pumping station complex of the Arabian American Oil Company.

The sky was black over the Abgaig oil field, some 40 miles south of Aramco headquarters here, as the remaining crude oil in the pipes and overflow dykes was allowed to burn it self out. Spokesmen for Aramco said that "all production in the area has been temporarily halted." That means they said that the flow of oil from Abqaiq and from the world's largest oil field, at Ghawar south of the point of the fire, has been shut down. About six million of the daily Aramco production of approximately 10.2 million barrels a day comes from the Abgaig and Ghawar fields.

Saudi Arabia's oil exports will probably not be affected immediately, Aramco officials said. because production is continuing in other fields, storage tanks contain enough oil for at least three days, and engineers are working to install new temporary pipelines from Ghawar before that reserve runs out.

"Engineers are already working on plans to bypass a large portion of the crude oil which normally passes through the affected area." an

Aramco statement said. Aramco officials said the fire began when a pipeline ruptured near a major crude oil pumping station in the Abqaiq processing area. At that point, they said, oil gathered from Abqaiq, Ghawar and some smaller fields is collected and processed for shipment by pipeline to tanker terminals on the Persian Gulf coast at Ras Tanura. Several oil and gas pipelines were damaged, Aramco officials said, and others were shut down as a precautionary measure. There have been several major industrial fires in the eastern (Continued on Page 2A)

TOKYO (AP) - Chinese Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying predicts a "big war" soon bet-ween the United States and the Soviet Union and says China "must race against time" to build up industry in the interior before it happens

In a speech in Peking on May 9 to a nationwide industrial conference, Yeh said the United States and the Soviet Union "are locked in an increasingly fierce struggle for hegemony" and "a war will break out some day."

"We must be clearly aware of this situation," Yeh continued, "keep war in mind and get prepared for it, for a big war that will break out at an early date.

"We must race against time and work as quickly as possible so that we can build industry in the interior well before the outbreak of war."

Party Chairman Hua Kuofeng echoed Yeh, saying, "We must definitely be ready for war. We cannot afford to let time slip through our fingers as it waits for no one. Accelerating development of our national economy at a rapid pace is a task which brooks no delay.

The texts of the speeches were published today by Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency. Observers in Tokyo interpreted the talk of war as an attempt to impart a sense of urgency to plans to develop China into a major industrial power by the end of the century.

FBI teaches lawmen to shoot straight

It doesn't matter what the weather does. The targets are going to be posted and shot full of holes — all in the name of self-preservation and, yes, law and order. Crime favors no season.

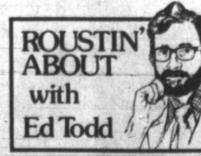

"The FBI contends that you don't pick the day of a gunfight," Midland's police chief, Wayne Gideon, said under the threat of rain.

So, why should lawmen particularly favor a pleasant, breezy, sunshiny day for a one-sided "shoot-out"? They didn't. It just turned out that way. The darkening clouds had faded

An hour later, Federal Bureau of Investigation firearms expert Ralph Decker was calling the shots.

The transformation of the bill's status from certain to insecure largely has been the work of the administration itself. Privately, Democratic senators are highly critical of Justice Department witnesses, who gave Republican opwithholding a Justice Department memo which said the measure would make it difficult to prosecute voter

The memo, when it was finally released, did not prove influential with either the Senate Rules Committee or the House Administration Committee. It is more a position paper than a reasoned analysis of the bill itself, which in any event has been heavily amended since the memo was written.

But the memo has stiffened the resistance of elections officials in several states who are themselves worrid about fraud possibilities.

Shorty before the Rules Committee approved the bill Thursday, .Committee Chairman Howard Cannon (D-Nev.) predicted that these officials would renew their efforts to defeat or postpone the legislation. A similar prediction on the House side came from Rep. William Frenzel (R-Minn.), the GOP expert on voter registration issues.

Despite the self-inflicted damage to the bill caused by administration witnesses, the measure still is favored to win congressional approval because the majority Democrats regard the legislation as favorable to the Democratic and harmful to the Republicans.

"Regrettably, I think there's much more of a party lineup on this bill than anything else," said Frenzel Thur-

This view also is held by Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D-N.J.), chairman of the House Administration Committee. Thompson predicted Thursday that the bill would pass largely on party lines but said there would be "a very close vote" on a proposed amendment that would make the entire bill voluntary until the 1980 elections.

The institute is an American Association of Petroleum Landmen approved event and is presented in cooperation with the Institutes for Energy Development.

Lewis G. Mosburg Jr., a director and vice chairman of the board of the law firm of Andrews, Mosburg, Davis, Elam, Legg & Bixler, Inc., of Oklahoma City, will be the instructor.

Fee for the institute is $200 per person. The fee includes two luncheons, social hour, coffee and course materials. American Association of Petroleum Landmen will get a $25

Registration will be from 8 to 9 a. m. June 2 in the Hilton Inn.

The welcoming address will be at 9 a. m. by Wesley H. Mowery, executive vice president of the AAPL. Sessions will be conducted from 9 a. m. to noon and from 1:15 to 4:30 p.m.

Culberson gas opener takes potential test

A deep gas strike finaled in Culberson County and field extenders have been completed in Pecos and American Quasar Petroleum Co. completed No. 1 Bateman, a Silurian gas strike in East Culberson, 15 miles west of Orla, for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 8 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Completion was effected natural through perforations at 15,418-15,441 feet, in 5-inch liner hung from 9,866-15,630 feet. The well was drilled to 15,650 feet, and plugged back to 15,600

Tops reported under kelly bushing elevation of 3,303 feet were Rustler, 767; Lamar, 2,630; Cherry Canyon, 3,595; Bone Springs, 6,160; Dean, Wolfcamp, 9,130; Strawn, Cherokee, 13,110; Atoka; 13,350; Morrow, 13,810; Mississip-

PECOS EXTENDERS

Monsanto Co., operating from Midland, completed a %-mile southeast extension to Ellenburger oil production in the Yucca Butte, West field of Pecos.

No. 3-B Bernice had a daily pumping potential of 20 barrels of 35gravity oil and 22 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,500-1.

Completion was through perforations at 10,592-10,688 feet, after the section had been acidized with 4,000 gallons. Total depth of the well is 10,765 feet.

Location is 850 feet from north and 1,750 feet from west lines of section 34, block A-2, TCRR survey, 11 miles west of Sheffield. Exxon Corp. No. 3 John May has been finished to extend Wolfcamp gas production 1/2 mile northeast in the Gomez field of Pecos.

The calculated, absolute open flow gauge was for 1.3 million cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 3,925-1. Gravity of the distillate is 54.1

Completion was through perforations at 10,861-11,043 feet, after acidizning the pay section with 10,000 gallons and fracturing with 49,300 gallons and 45,900 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 11,202 feet, the well spots 2,900 feet from south and 1,500 feet from east lines of section 69, block OW, C. M. Foster survey, 13 miles northwest of Fort Stockton. STERLING OILER

Bright & Schiff of Dallas No. 5-29 Glass, a 1/2-mile northeast and northwest extension to the Big Salute (Canyon) oil pool of Sterling had a daily flowing potential of 55 barrels of 47.5-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 4,545-1.

It finaled through perforations at 7,536-8,069 feet. The pay had been fractured with 85,000 gallons and 85,000 pounds.

Location is 1,825 feet from north and 2,340 feet from west lines of section 29, block 22, H&TC survey, 15 miles west of Sterling City.

Loving, Winkler, Ward gain oil, gas projects

Exploration has been planned for Loving County, a field test is slated in Winkler, and a reentry is planned as attempt to extend a field pay in a Ward area.

Exxon Corp. has filed application to reenter and plug back to 5,450 feet as a wildcat to test an oil zone, at No. 1 C. G. Ludenan, Strawn gas opener in the Linebery field of Loving County.

Originally drilled by Exxon as No. 1-1 Linebery Gas Unit, the old total depth is 21,130 feet. it was completed in March 1976 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 10 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 14,839-14,921 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 12, block C-25, PSL survey, 18 miles northeast of Mentone and six miles northeast of the Pinal Dome (Delaware) oil field. WINKLER PROJECT

Shell Oil Co. filed application to drill No. 150 Sealy-Smith Foundation, a location northeast offset to the Mississippian lime pay opener and 134-mile northwest outpost to lower Devonian oil production in the Monahans field, and a 1/2-mile southwest stepout to upper Pennsylvanian detrital oil production in the Monahans, Northeast field of Southeast Winkler County.

Drillsite for the project, slated to 9,800 feet, is 1,980 feet from north and 2,030 feet from west lines of section 55, block A, G&MMB&A survey, five miles north of Monahans.

Highland Resources and G. R. Brown, Houston, have rescheduled depth from 14,000 to 15,000 feet at No. 1 Ewell McKnight, Jeff Davis venture, 20 miles northeast of Fort Davis.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 78, block 11, GH&SA survey.

Extension completes

Amarex, Inc., Oklahoma City, has completed No. 1 Phillip Brown, as a 1%-mile southwest extension in the Jameson field of Sterling County, 10 miles east of Sterling City.

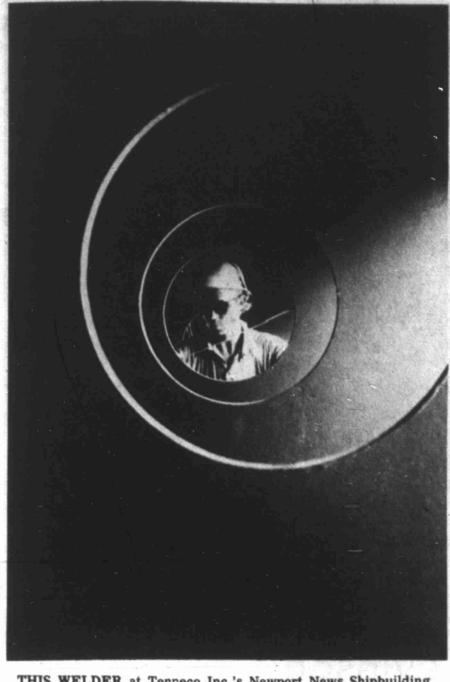

It was completed on the pump for 74 barrels of 45-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 4,404-1, through perforations at 7,356-7,385 feet, after acidizing with 1,000 gallons and fracturing with 40,000 gallons and 48,500 pounds of

Stripper abandoning shows 1976 decline

TULSA, Okla. — A substantial decrease in abandonments of stripper oil wells in Kansas. Texas and Oklahoma during 1976 has been reported by the National Stripper Well Association.

Preliminary data states also indicate a net decline in production and in the number of active stripper wells as of Jan. 1.

Attributed directly to the economic stimulus of price decontrol of oil produced from stripper wells, those which average 10 barrels daily or less, 3.839 fewer wells were abandoned in 1976 than in the prior year.

By states, abandonments for Texas were down 2,539, for Kansas 442 and for Oklahoma 858

There also was a decline in the number of stripper wells operating in these states, down 7,201 for the year. Kansas reversed the downward trend, gaining 1,240 wells. Texas producing stripper wells were down 3,095 to 85,392, Oklahoma was off 5,346 to 53,390, and Kansas, with its increase. counted 41.837 wells producing. The three-state region accounts for approximately 50 per cent of stripper

A reduction also was reported in production from stripper wells in the three-state area, although Kansas and Oklahoma production increased 819,401 and 976,235 barrels respectively. Texas was off 3,319,726 for a

Average daily production per well in the area surveyed was shown to be 3.53 barrels

The substantial reduction in the number of actively operated stripper to be evident in national data now being assembled, and will establish a record in minimizing abandonments.

The net result is more wells being kept alive with these wells providing more domestic production for the consumer, it was reported to NSWA.

Clear Fork well finals

The Clauene, North field of Hockley County gained its fourth Clear Fork well and a location south extension to that pay with completion of Hytech Energy Corp., Midland, No. 1 Palmer, seven miles south of Levelland.

It finaled to pump 51 barrels of 24.8gravity oil and 13 barrels of water per day, with gas-oil ratio of 176-1. Perforated section is 6,300-6,494 feet, which had been acidized with 1,500

Offshore leasing plan getting stiff opposition

for a government-sponsored program to make sure proposed offshore oil leases will yield oil is encountering stiff industry opposition.

The hearings continue today with officials from coastal states scheduled to appear.

Currently, oil companies bid for leases without knowing if oil will be discovered. The proposed legislation would permit the government to finance exploratory drilling before leases are sold.

John L. Loftis Jr., senior vice president of Exxon Co., told a special committee on the outer continental shelf that he believed governmentfinanced exploratory drilling would lead to establishment of a "federal oil company."

"If the government made a significant discovery prior to a lease sale, there would be tremendous political pressure for the government to develop and produce the reserves,' Loftis testified.

At least qualified support for the legislation came from the National Association of Counties, several labor unions and the environmentally oriented Sierra Club, Wilderness Society and Energy Action.

Louisiana Atty. Gen. William J. Guste Jr., said, "To the extent that (provisions of the bill) protect the environment, provide for cleanup of spills and assess damages and instill responsible conduct, they are good, but to the extent that they delay exploration and drilling, they are bad and undermine the purpose of the

Carl H. Savit of the International Association of Geophysical Contractors said the bill would bring the drilling of offshore production wells to a halt for from three to six years while the government exploration work was underway.

Roger Hedgecock, a county supervisor from San Diego, Calif., represented the counties, saying the present lease sale process "is a travesty to open and responsible government."

In addition to providing for explratory drilling, the bill would require that only two thirds of the area leased each year could be awarded on the basis of cash bonuses to the government. That system requires oil companies to pay the government before they Possible alternatives are royalties and profit sharing, -- u money would be paid after oil is

James F. Flug, director of Energy Action, said the cash bonuses "effectively rule out the possibility of any but the largest oil companies competing effectively and independently for leases."

Loftis, the Exxon official, denied this. He said that in 24 general lease sales since 1954, companies other than the eight largest have acquired an average of more than 40 per cent of

At the same time, the system gives the government "an excellent financial return," he added.

Wells final; project set in Gaines area

A confirmation has been completed in a Terry field and an extender finaled in Hockley. Also a stepout site was staked in a Gaines oil area.

Watson & Cox, Midland, No. 1-1 Noble, second Yates gas producer and location west extension to that pay in the Tokio field of Terry County, gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.730 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Completion was effected from open hole at 3,345 feet, where 41/2-inch casing is seated, and 3,410 feet, total depth. The section had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Carter's agent would 'rather sell than eat'

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tandy Rice, Billy Carter's agent and the booker for 20 or so country music stars, has a motto on his desk: "There is no limit to what can be done if it doesn't matter who gets the credit."

There appears to be enough credit to pass around among Rice and his five salesmen at Top Billing, Inc. With the signing of Carter this spring to supplement a booking billboard boasting more Grand Ole Opry acts than any other agency, Rice's firm has become the trailblazer among Nashville agents.

Nashville agents.

Rice, 38, is a fast-talking, dynamic businessman with a background in public relations and selling. With his sudden emergence as a pace-setter, he's the happy booker.

"I love sellin' better than anything else," he said among the clicking typewriters and ringing telephones at his agency. "I'd rather sell than eat." Since becoming Carter's agent, Rice has been beseiged by requests for interviews and has refused nearly all of them. He granted one recent

"The real Billy Carter is a decent, fine, good man. I can't say enough good things about him. He's a good father, a decent husband and a feet-on-the-ground businessman. That's the side that impresses me.

"He never sought to become a celebrity and has no desire to be one.

We have never made a news release on him and probably never will.

"He did not choose us to capitalize on his celebrity status. Billy has turned down 99 per cent of the business opportunities that came his way."

Rice, who talks to Carter as many as five times a day, believes Carter chose his agency because "we out-hustled everybody."

"I would guess 30 individuals were after him. But I don't think they had follow-through. They wrote him a letter, then forgot about it.

"He's unique. There's a facade. then there's a serious, disciplined businessman. The other overtures were not made to him in a serious vein and weren't impressive to him. We didn't approach him that way."

Things weren't always so dandy at Rice's agency.

"I used to go get the mail and if we had four or five pieces, I would hoot and holler. Today, you can't get it all

They're in "Hard Times," his 1854 novel about life, love, poverty, pedantry, the union movement and more in the grimy, smoke-befouled mill city called Coketown during England's Industrial Revolution.

Both the characters and his broad, richly textured story will be on public TV in most areas (check local listings) when the book's four-part, made-in-England dramatization starts tonight.

It's good viewing, though I must say that the dialogue in the version I saw occassionally was hard to follow. It seemed either the audio track had flaws or the actors were lapsing into High Welsh. But take a look, anyway, at "Hard

In time, we meet his teenaged offsprings, Louisa and Tom (Jacqueline Tong and Richard Wren), and his close friend, Bounderby, an industrialist-banker who started dirtpoor and came out filthy rich.

He's superbly played by Timothy West, who fully captures Dickens' description of Bounderby as "a man who could never sufficiently vaunt himself a self-made man ... a man who was the bully of humility."

Keep an eye out, also, for the fine portrayal by Harry Markham of Mr. Sleary, the hoarsevoiced, brandytippling circus man to whom Gradgrind and Bounderby come to ask about the homeless Jupe girl.

Prince Fahd kills deal

By JIM HOAGLAND
The Washington Post

PARIS — Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Fahd has killed a sales deal that would have brought a Saudi middleman commissions totaling more than $100 million out of a $7 billion contract for telephone service in the kingdom.

The Saudi agent who lost what rivals were calling "the commission of the century" because of Fahd's decision is Prince Mohammed bin Fadh—the son of the crown prince.

Fahd's action is depicted by Arab and European sources as one of the first serious moves by the Saudis to curb the frenetic government spending and exorbitant payoffs to local agents by foreign firms that have accompanied Saudi Arabia's amassing of enormous wealth for its oil exports.

"It must have been a painful moment for Fahd, but he wanted to set the example that would show that the time of wild spending had come to an end." said one business source close to the negotiations between Phillips, the giant Dutch conglomerate, and the Saudis for the installation of a nationwide automatic telephone system.

If it had been granted, the Phillips contract would have been perhaps the largest single commercial deal yet to be made in the newly wealthy Middle East oil-producing lands. The Phillips estimate was $6 billion over the Saudis own projection.

Sales commissions have been a sensitive issue in Saudi Arabia since staff today in the Flame Room investigations for the U.S. Senate and the Security Exchange Commission Gas building. The produced admissions from American meeting is open to incompanies that they paid some Saudi terested persons with middlemen exorbitant commissions access to a four-wheel which in a number of cases were in- drive vehicle.

Neither Prince Fahd nor his son was named in those investigations. The crown prince, who is also prime minister, has reportedly been con-cerned, however, about the image being given the country by highly placed princes receiving large commissions from foreign firms. Fahd's role in killing the Phillips deal and his son's commission is also an important sign of his determination to change his own image as he moves closer to the throne. Once known as a playboy, he dropped $6 million at a Monte Carlo gambling casino in one night three years ago.

He has given up all gambling and other pastimes that might draw criticism in the rigidly Islamic socie-ty of Saudi Arabia since King Faisal was assassinated in 1975 and Fahd became crown prince to King Khalid.

Fahd's decision to break off exclusive negotiations with Phillips after technical experts told him that Saudi Arabia should spend no more then $1.2 billion on the telephone system has opened the race for a scaled-down but still lucrative contract to other companies.

International Telephone and Telegraph, the American multinational, is one of an estimated 11 companies being asked by the Saudis to submit bids for the work.

Upton water bill passes

AUSTIN - A bill creating a water district in Upton County has received final passage from the Legislature and will go to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for his signature, state Rep. Tom Craddick said Thursday.

Craddick said the bill passed the Senate Wednesday, having previously been passed by the House. The bill was introduced in the House by Craddick and sponsored in the Senate by state Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Losing weight

Dear Dr. Solomon: I absolutely have to lose weight. I want very much to go on a diet, but my friends tell me that there has been a lot of talk about how your hair falls out if you start dieting. Would you please tell me whether or not this is so? Would vitamins help?—Gladys P.

Dear Gladys: There have been stories in the papers to the effect that people who go on "crash diets" tend to lose a noticeable amount of hair. And while you might think that a drastic cut in calories would make your hair fall out, it really isn't quite MAD Cyrus support march

If a diet is so severe that there is a protein deficiency, you could indeed have a loss of hair, as protein is what hair is made of.

A Harvard group, headed by Dr. George L. Blackburn, has been studying the effect of semifasting on more than 200 obese patients who have been losing half a pound a day over periods ranging up to 11 months. Dr. Blackburn reported recently that hair loss had been noticed, but only when there was such a protein shortage that the patient's muscle mass was getting broken down. The abnormal hair loss stopped almost completely when an adequate amount of protein was put back in the diet.

The Harvard patients are, of course, special cases being handled under special medical supervision. Be sure that any diet you decide to go on is varied and well-balanced. Don't go in for any of those highprotein or low-protein, all-carbohydrate or no-carbohydrate gimmick diets. And don't try to lose more than two pounds a week, to be sure you won't do your body any harm.

No vitamin has any magic influence on hair growth. If you eat a good variety of foods, you will doubtless be getting all the vitamins you need. Protein supplements won't do your hair any good either, if your diet is not deficient in protein.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been told that megavitamin therapy can work wonders for a child with learning disorders, and that there are ever so many cases to prove it. Have you found this to be so?—Mary Beth T.

Dear Mary Beth: The Committee on Nutrition of the American Academy of Pediatrics says megavitamin therapy as a treatment for learning disabilities and other psychological problems in children is not justified on the basis of welldocumented use. Reported benefits, the committee says, are largely hearsay and should be viewed with skepticism-at least, until there is some real

Next benefits may be home, auto insurance

By JOCA CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The next significant employe benefits to be added to a growing list might be automobile and home insurance.

While no large employers have made real movement in those areas, the time soon may be ripe, says a spokesman for a firm that advises scores of blue chip companies on employe benefits.

"There is a big void to be filled," said Leonard Mactas, a recognized authority on corporate benefit

Tracing the development of benefits since the end of World War II, Mactas feels that by 1980 some companies may begin to include these two insurances. "The trend among employers has been to respond to identifiable employe needs," said Mactas. And while homeowners' insurance costs might not have become painfully expensive, auto insurance most certainly has. It's a need. Other factors are involved also, says Mactas, who heads the Consulting Actuaries Division of Kwasha Lipton, an international firm that helped develop many of today's largest employe benefit programs.

Having sustained repeated losses, automobile insurers are wary of the business, to cite one factor. And large corporations — even smaller ones — can help keep costs in line through the efficiences of

In Mactas' view, the inclusion of these insurances would be in keeping with a trend toward using the corporation as a vehicle to make life more secure for Besides volume buying power, or to state it and employes are aggressively interested in benefits rather than wages alone. Most benefits are taxdeductible for the employer and tax-free for the

Over the years the portfolio of employe benefits has developed from pensions and profitsharing to health and disability insurance, dental insurance, and most recently legal insurance. Except for some life insurance costs, these expenses are totally tax deductible to the employer. It is partly for this reason that the standard among large companies today is to pay in full for such benefits. And the result, in effect, is to provide the worker with tax-sheltered income. Neither automobile nor homeowners insurance is now eligible for similar tax treatment, but in Mactas' view some companies might be inclined to offer the plans anyway.

MADRID - U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance reinforced American support for the Spanish monarchy's march to democracy in a busy over-night visit that ended Thursday after-

Vance arrived in Madrid Wednesday for meeting with King Juan Carlos, Premier Adolfo Suarez and Foreign Minister Marcelino Oreja on the U.S.-Spain bilateral defense treaty, this week's London NATO Council meeting and last weekend's London conference of the world's industrial

But the secretary, according to U.S. officials, spent much of his time in talks with the king, the premier and the foreign minister obtaining "intelligence" on the political situa-tion and on next month's parliamentary elections.

There are 6,000 candidates running for 350 Assembly and 207 Senate seats in the June 15 elections. They represent 18 political coalitions and other groups, including the recently legalized Communist party and still illegal left-wing parties.

The visit undoubtedly will bolster the candidacy of the Premier Suarez. Sources close to the premier predict that the Centrist coalition backing Suarez would win between 40 and 47 per cent of the seats in the lower house.

The secretary set the tone of the visit Wednesday afternoon when he arrived from London. "We have the greatest admiration for the actions taken under the leadership of the king to strengthen the institutions of democracy." he said.

At the request of Spanish officials, the United States played down that Spain's coming free elections, a free Parliament, and pledge of a new constitution opened the way for Spain's early entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But this was clearly the message implicit in the

Spain does not want NATO membership to become a major campaign issue. Communists, Socialists and far rightists are opposed to joining the alliance. The Suarez administration wants the debate postponed until the issue can be taken up in Parliament, sources said. Also opposed to NATO entry are senior military officers, who fear that the relationship will lead to a breakdown of the armed forces devotion to fighting subversion at home through control of the police

Vance and Foreign Minister Oreja took stock on how bilateral military, economic, cultural and scientific relationships are working under the provisions of the 15-month-old U.S.-Spanish treaty. They presided at the deliberations of the first session of the U.S.-Spanish Council. Vance was joined by Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, who stopped in Madrid Thursday en route to a NATO meeting in Brussels.

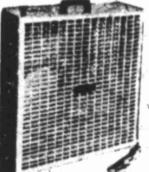

A U.S. official with Vance's party explained that the United States hopes that the provision in the treaty for a military council will help to teach the Spanish armed forces "planning" so that the Spanish defense establishment can eventually mesh with NATO. The treaty links Spain to the alliance through the United States.

There appear to be no major issues between the United States and Spain. Differences over the supply of enriched uranium and over licenses for eight nuclear power reactors, to be built by U.S. firms, have been settled for the time being.

Fleming continues court fight today

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Erin Fleming, seen by some witnesses as an ill-tempered menace to Groucho Marx and by menace to Groucho Marx and by others as the joy of his waning years, is resuming her legal bid for permanent control over the comedian and his property.

Opposing her is Groucho's son, Arthur, who succeeded last month in having Miss Fleming month in having Miss Fleming removed as temporary guardian after alleging she was a threat to the 86-year-old Marx' life. Miss Fleming, 37, who has served as secretary, manager, producer and companion to Marx for seven years, has hired a new firm of lawyers for the court battle which resumes at a hearing today.

Groucho, in failing health and frequently confused, remains confined to his Trousdale Estates home. J. Brin Schulman, attorney for Arthur Marx, said Groucho apparently is unaware that intimate details of his treatment by Miss Fleming which allegedly involved verbal and physical abuse and improper drugging — have been bared in hearing that ended April 22, Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie suspended Miss Fleming and appointed Nat Perrin, 72, a screenwriter and old friend of Marx, to care for the comedian and his multimillion dollar estate for the time being.

At the end of a week-long

Under the judge's order, Miss Fleming was to visit Marx only

Fleming was to visit Marx only as Perrin saw fit.

Judge Rafeedie said the hearing revealed "an extraordinary degree of domination and control by Miss Fleming over Mr. Marx' mind and his will." But there was no clear conclusion as to the validity of Arthur Marx's contention that evidence pointed to an effort by someone at the Marx house to overdrug

Marx's physician testified that Groucho responded well to Miss Fleming's behavior, and that he would be concerned for his patient's well-being if she were to leave him.

Zeppo Marx, Groucho's brother, went farther. He said Miss Fleming was "the greatest girl in the whole world" and that he believed Groucho might die without her.

DA accuses lawyers of double standard

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Bill Green has accused his colleagues on the Anderson County Bar of "adopting a double standard" where he is concerned.

Green was convicted last month of a public lewdness act. He is being investigated by a State Bar grievance committee and has been asked to leave his office by the Anderson County Bar until all criminal charges against him are settled.

"They go to the courthouse every day and argue their client is innocent until finally proven guilty, yet they would not afford me that same presumption," Green stated. Green was found guilty of public lewdness after he was charged with performing an oral sex act on a University of Texas student in a booth of an adult bookstore. Green is appealing the conviction.

The request that he stand aside was in a letter written to Green by Anderson County Bar Association president Jerry Calhoon and made public Thursday by Green.

In the letter, Calhoon had asked Green not to make the request public.

While Green was revealing the contents of the letter, a State Bar grievance committee was holding a closed-door meeting investigating charges against the district attorney arising from his trial and conviction in Austin last month.

Six witneses, including Travis County attorneys and the undercover officers who arrested Green, testified before the committee Thursday.
Calhoon noted in his letter to Green that "the bar requests during the

Shapp ordered to repay funds

WASHINGTON — The Federal Election Commission Thursday ordered Pennsylfederal campaign funds and said it would continue to investigate possible criminal violations by Shapp's 1976 presidential fundraising operations.

Among the targets of the inquiry, according to informed sources, is Eleanor Elias, a paid Shapp campaign fundraiser from Merian, Pa., who allegedly promised to reimburse a Georgia donor whose money was needed to help Shapp's campaign qualify for federal matching funds.

In another instance, according to

In another instance, according to sworn statements released Thursday by the commission, Elias allegedly asked an Alabama textile plant manager to supply her with letters from employees saying they had made $100 contributions to Shapp when they had not. There too, the Shapp group was attempting to meet the matching fund requirements.

Under the law, a candidate must raise at least $5,000 in contributions of $250 or less in 20 states in order to receive an initial $100,000 from the Treasury and one dollar of fedreal money for every additional contribu-tion of $250 or less collected thereafter.

Thursday the FEC released its report on a three-month investigation into the Shapp fundarising. It found that irregular contributions in five of 20 states, including Georgia andf Alabama, had permitted Shapp to claim on Jan. 21, 1976, he had qualified for federal matching funds. Based on the findings, the commis-sion Thursday ordered Shapp to repay $299,066.21 in federal matching funds his campaign received last year. Shapp was unavailable for com-ment Thursday but scheduled a press conference for Firday morning in Harrisburg. A press aide said he was studying the FEC investigative

A Philadelphia lawyer, Gregory Harvey, who has represented the of-ficers of Shapp's committee during the FEC inquiry, said he thought Shapp would appeal the ruling that the candidate, himself, was responsible for returning all the federal money given the campaign.

Under FEC rules, Shapp has 30 days to file such an appeal.

The FEC Thursday also appounced

The FEC Thursday also announced that ranging from $25 to $750 fines had been levied against 22 of 43 persons involved in the five state investigations disclosed Thursday. Other fines are expected as a result of the FEC con-ciliation system with violators of the campaign fund law.

In the case of possible criminal violations, the FEC investigates — it is doing with the Shapp fundraisers but must turn its findings over to the Justice Department before an actual prosecution can take place. Thursday's investigative report showed the following activities in five

Alabama: The plant manager of Winfield Manufacturing Co., Win-field, Ala., Hugh Walker, described in a sworn statement how he had been told by the firm's owner that Shapp needed "some contributions made and some letters."

Walker paid $2,000 of his own money for a $500 contribution in the name of his wife and himself and six $250 contributions sent by plant employes or their wives which Walker said he subsequently reimbursed.

Walker also testified he was called by Elias in January 1976 about furnishing letters from employes who supposedly were making $100 con-tributions to Shapp's campaign. According to Walker, Elias allegedly asked that he get the employes "to sign the letters but not to send any money and that she would take care of that."

Similar techniques were described in another Alabama textile plant. At both. Elias's husband was the accountant for the New York-based owners. Attempts to contact Eleanor Elias Thursday were unsuccessful. A woman who answered her phone said she was not available. Georgia: Stanley Sieger, secretary-treasurer of NOrstran Industries, Atlanta, and an old friend of the Elias family said he was contacted about contributing to Shapp.

Castillo may be in tough spot as head of immigration service

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, in a White House ceremony, is swearing into office a Mexican-American who will be responsible for curbing the flow of illegal aliens from his ancestral

Leonel Castillo, former controller for the city of Houston, has been selected to serve as commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Castillo will be charged with stopping the movement of illegal aliens into the United States. Although no reliable figures exist, the INS estimates that between four million and 12 million illegal aliens are in the United States, most of them from Mexico

His duties will require him to walk a fine line between enforcing the law and pleasing Mexican-American groups who lobbied for his appointment and will expect him to represent their views.

Meanwhile, Carter is considering a package of proposals to deal with the problem that were drafted by an administration task force. Carter is expected to send the proposals to Congress by the end of the Work on the package continues, but several administration sources say it will contain some elements that may not please Mexican-Americans. One such item is a penalty for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. It probably will be a civil offense punishable by a fine. The administration believes the penalty is essential to dry up the job market for aliens and destroy their incentive to sneak across the border.

But some Mexican-Americans say the penalty may give employers an easy reason to refuse to hire Spanish-speaking people, including legitimate residents. Mexican-Americans say they would prefer increased efforts to enforce minimum wage and work standard laws against employers who exploit alien labor, which the administration also proposes Controversy also may surround the amnesty proposal, which Castillo and Carter say must be part of an equitable program. The President will decide when to cut off the date for amnesty eligibility, but one proposal is to offer amnesty to all aliens who have been in the country since the early 1970s. No one knows exactly how many that would leave stranded.

Castillo has said immigration quotas for Mexico ought to be raised, but the task force has not recommended that, sources say.

Castillo's actions will be monitored by Mexican-American groups like Chicano Rights, Inc., which met with Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell on Thursday.

WASHINGTON - The National Arboretum will celebrate its 50th anniversary this year by expanding and opening a new entrance.

The new entrance, to open next month, will replace the small, sidestreet entrance that visitors have had trouble finding ever since Congress created the scenic 412-acre park in Northeast Washington in 1927.

A $5.5 million, 33-acre addition to the Arboretum — a former brick manufacturing plant purchased by act of Congress last summer — has made the new entrance possible.

SPECIAL SELLING!

A new $400,000 national herb graden also will be started this year at the Arboretum, the donation of the Herb Society of America. The Arboretum, which only last year opened a new Bonsai pavillion to house the $4 million Bicentennial gift of Bonsai

"Serious complication of sepsis (severe infection), septic abortion (infected miscarriage), and death have occurred when a pregnancy continues with an IUD in place," the brochure says. "Most of the oc-currences of these serious complications have been reported in the middle third of pregnancy.

"If your doctor confirms that you are pregnant, he should remove the IUD if the tail is visible," the text continues. "Removal of an IUD in pregnancy decreases the likelihood of serious complications.

"If removal of your IUD proves to be difficult, you and your doctor should disucss at that time the question of continuing the pregnancy in view of the serious complications that may occur. In reaching a decision as to whether or not to have an abortion, it should be remembered that the risks associated with terminating a pregnancy increase with the length of time you are pregnant." Influence of nation's farm cooperatives growing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The growth and importance of farm cooperatives was underscored last week with the completion of the merger of Far-Mar-Co., Inc., into Farmland Industries,

As a result of the merger, Far-Mar-Co, will become the grain marketing subsidiary of Farmland - which was the nation's largest cooperative even $1.08 billion and its net profit was $4.8 before the combination.

In its most recent fiscal year, Farmland had more than $1.8 billion in sales and net profits of $96 million. Far-Mar-Co., with headquarters in Hutchinson, Kan., already was the biggest grain marketing cooperative in the country. In the year ended Aug. 31, 1976, Far-Mar-Co.'s sales were

Together their sales will put Farmland into the ranks of the 100 largest companies in the United States. Farmland and Far-Mar-Co. are known as "federated regional cooperatives." That is, they are owned by local cooperative associations which in turn are owned by the farmers who trade with them.

Farmland's role is principally that of a wholesaler, with the local cooperatives acting as retail outlets for its farm supplies. Far-Mar-Co is a grain merchandiser, buying grain from its local cooperatives and reselling it to flour millers or other grain firms - principally the major private exporting companies.

Today's farm cooperatives are only distant cousins of the businesses that began in the early years of this century as small stores where farmers could buy a sack of feed and sell a few gallons of milk or a few dozen eggs.

Now the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that five out of six farmers are members of local cooperatives. In heavily agricultural areas it is difficult to find farmers who do not belong to at least one coop. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and Billy Carter, the President's brother, are cooperative members.

Farmland's primary business has been providing farmers with the feed and supplies. While many cooperatives have settled for being farm supply conduits, Farmland has gone much further. Through a group of subsidiaries, Farmland mines phosphate rock for fertilizer, searches for oil around the world and operates refineries, produces natural gas and processes it into nitrogen fertilizer, and manufactures batteries, steel storage buildings, paint and other supplies.

Ernest Lindsey, the soft-spoken Texan who has been Farmland's president since 1967, said the decision to be a manufacturer as well as distributor has been the key to Farmland's success.

"If we were to choose one decision that has contributed most to Farmland's growth, it probably would be the decision to become basic in the products Farmland supplies," he said. "Being basic' means controlling the products from the raw material in the ground through the manufacturing process to delivery of the product to the local cooperative. Controlling the raw material has always been important. As the world supply of basic raw materials diminishes at the same time that demand for them grows, being basic becomes vital.

Far-Mar-Co, which itself was created less than 10 years ago by the combination of four grain cooperatives, owns elevator storage space for about 106 millin bushels of grain. One of its elevators, located in Hutchinson, is reputedly the world's largest; it is nearly half a mile long and can hold about 18 million bushels of grain. In addition to its grain sales and storage operations, Far-Mar-Co processes soybeans, owns a spice production plant in Los Angeles and is deeply involved in food research.

But Far-Mar-Co's biggest current project - and one of the principal reasons for the merger with Farmland - is an attempt to increase its stake in grain exporting. Estimates are that cooperatives receive about 70 per cent of the grain produced in the United States, but have less than 10 per cent of the export market which has provided an increasingly large share of farm income in recent

Traditionally cooperatives have been hamstrung in their export efforts because they have not had the financial resources needed to buy and hold large grain inventories. Most attempts at creating grain pools have

In 1975, before the merger talks began, Far-Mar-Co launched a wheat pool called "Pro-Mark"

Export sales out of the pool began last fall. Far-Mar-Co officials say the grain sold from the pool has received on the average a higher price than farmers are receiving for grain they market on their own.

The merger of Farmland and Far-Mar-Co has been discussed several times in recent years. The latest round of talks began in May 1976. In late November, the board of each cooperative gave its approval; Farmland's members approved the action in December and Far-Mar-Co's locals followed suit in February. Completion of the merger was held up while the Internal Revenue Service studied a request that the stock exchange involved in the merger be considered tax free. IRS granted the ruling late last month.

Despite the size of the transaction. there was little opposition to the merger. Some farmers grumbled that the merged cooperative might be too big; in some areas, Farmland has a reputation for aloofness. But those arguments apparently were overcome easily. Officials held a series of meetings throughout the Midwest at which they pointed out that most of Far-Mar-Co's members already were also Farmland members. They also argued that greater size is necessary if the cooperatives are to compete with the giant private exporting

The growth of cooperatives has caused some questioning by antitrust officials, but the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice allowed the merger to pass without formal notice. It is known, however, that both agencies took at least cursory looks at the proposal and decided not to take action. Most actions of cooperatives have been efempted from antitrust laws because of the 1922 Capper-Volstead Amend-

Lindsey makes it clear he is not bothered by the growth of cooperatives and that this merger is not the end of Farmland's expansion.

"Growth, you know, is part of the American system. We're always finding something bigger and better. Maybe sometime we will run out of opportunities. But as for Farmland, we still have only a small market share so we still have lots of potential," Lindsey says.

For example he said, Far-Mar-Co's grain pool likely will be extended to other commodities, perhaps corn and soybeans, because those are the principal crops grown in Farmland's area. Lindsey also said it is possible Far-Mar-Co's processing activities will be expanded

It's the old American Indian canoe, and 110 companies in this country and Canada are busy making them at the rate of 100,000 a year.

Not that canoeing is one of those pastimes that has shown a spectacular increase in popularity in recent years.

"We're growing at a rate maybe of 6 per cent a year,'' Peter Sonderegger, editor and publisher of Canoe Magazine of St. Paul, Minn., said of canoe "We have had increases of 15-20 per cent in one year, but it hasn't been as dramatic, for instance, as crosscountry skiing or tennis.

'A few years ago when the book and movie 'Deliverance' came out, there was a dramatic increase in canoeing interest," he said. 'Deliverance' was the violent adventure of a group of men canoeing down a wild river.

Sonderegger said canoeing is an old, established recreation with new twists, including new emphasis on wilderness trips, whitewater canoeing and racing.

Canoes can be equipped with small motors and double as fishing boats, and can be rigged for sailing, too.

A survey by Canoe Magazine showed that 70 per cent of the canoes owned by Americans are aluminum. That doesn't mean the other materials aren't coming on strong the survey showed canoes now come in 20 different materials.

Syria seeks removal of troops in Lebanon

By STUART AUERBACH The Washington Post

DAMASCUS - More than a year after it entered the Lebanese civil war. Syria finds itself with almost 30.000 of its crack troops stuck there enforcing a shaky peace. Government officials and diplomats here say Syria wants to get them out as soon as possi-

Before the troops pull out, Syria wants to make sure it is leaving behind a Lebanese government that is strong, stable and — above all friendly to Syria.

While some officials here may harbor the dream of rebuilding the Greater Syria of the pre-World War I Ottoman Empire with Damascus as its capital, there is no indication that they want to achieve it through occupation.

Rather, diplomats here believe, they are trying to extend their hegemony over this part of the Middle East through political means. They have already forged close ties with Jordan that could blossom into a full fledged federation. The Palestine Liberation Organization is firmly under Syria's control, and presumably Syria would be influential in any Palestian state set up on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

With Lebanon under its influence. Syria would once again have a major outlet to the sea, as it had during the 500-year Turkish rule during the Ottoman empire.

Right now Syria's control in Lebanon is exercised primarily through its troops, which make up the bulk of the Arab peace-keeping force that ended 19 months of civil war in November. There is no effective Lebanese army. The religious, social and economic differences that divided the country before the fighting still prevail, and the Palestinian presence continues to be heavy

Syrian officials here express doubt that they can pull their troops out of Lebanon until the government of President Elias Sarkis - who is considered pro-Syrian - has firm control over the country.

"We want to get out," said Assad Elias, press secretary to Syrian President Hafez Assad. "But we don't want to leave chaos. We want to leave Sarkis strongly in control.

Assad has said he expects that his troops will have to remain in Lebanon for at least another year.

Faced with the delicate job of keeping a balance between leftists and rightists, Christians and Moslems Palestinians and Lebanese, Syria has hit first one faction, then another.

The Palestinians were the first target. Syrian tanks and troops, ringing their camps, assisted by the Syrian-backed Saiqa Palestinians, moved in on the leftist Rejection Front groups who oppose any settlement with Israel. At the same time, Syria forced the mainstream Palestinian groups to go along with its policies and gained control over all weapons and supplies going to Palestinian fighters.

More recently the Syrians have begun cracking the whip over rightist Christians, first by subtly moving troops into Christian parts of Beirut and harassing leaders such as the Phalange Party's Beshir Gamayal.

Last month the Syrians actively supported Palestinian fighters along Lebanon's southern border with Israel. They broke a security belt set up by Israeli-supported rightist Christians along the border, and then Syria called the Palestinians off.

With the Soviet Union finally giving its imprimatur to the Syrian intervention in Lebanon - after strongly opposing it a year ago — Syria began to crack down on the Lebanese left three SINGAPORE (AP) — The "happy talk format" is definitely not for television newscasters here. In fact, one lawmaker complains they are gloomy, like zombies."

Ahmad Haleem told parliament recently that those who delivered news on the government-owned TV station seemed a somber bunch who looked as if they had just returned from a funeral.

'They look so deadpan, like zombies and not human at all," Haleem said. Not surprisingly, those he criticized disagreed with this assessment. "News reading is a serious job. We can't be looking lighthearted when we read news about earthquakes, conferences involving peace talks, negotiations and other missions which are all serious matters," said a part-time announcer who declined to be identified.

'To register the impact of such news items, we have to sound serious and at the same time not sound emotionally involved.

Bell evidently going after FBI agents for break-ins

By RONALD J. OSTROW The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Justice Department investigators are enlisting the aid of a new federal grand jury here to pursue FBI higher-ups allegedly responsible for illegal break-ins — the first sign that Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell has given a go-ahead to the controversial probe.

The status of the case has been wrapped in unusual secrecy since the furor following last month's indictment of John J. Kearney, a former FBI supervisor in New York, on wiretapping and mail opening Bell has been asked recently by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) about further indictments in the case during a hearing of the Senate Judiciary antitrust subcommittee.

Bell, in reply, referred to "another grand jury that I suspect will develop other information. I'm not quite ready to say (whether more indictments will follow) until I get more facts."

The investigation so far has been handled primarily by a federal grand jury in New York that returned the Kearney indictment. It was learned subsequently from knowledgeable sources that the panel Bell referred to would operate in Washington and take testimony about alleged roles of present and former FBI headquarters officials.

One of those officials, W. Mark Felt, former No. 2 man in the bureau, said the empaneling of a grand jury here "makes sense," because the investigation is looking into his role and that of former Assistant FBI Director Edward S. Miller and "two or three officials (still at) bureau headquarters.'

Felt and Miller, in interviews, said they had not been contacted by the new grand jury. Both men testified before an earlier grand jury last summer after they publicly declared they had approved burglaries by FBI agents in 1972 for intelligencegathering purposes.

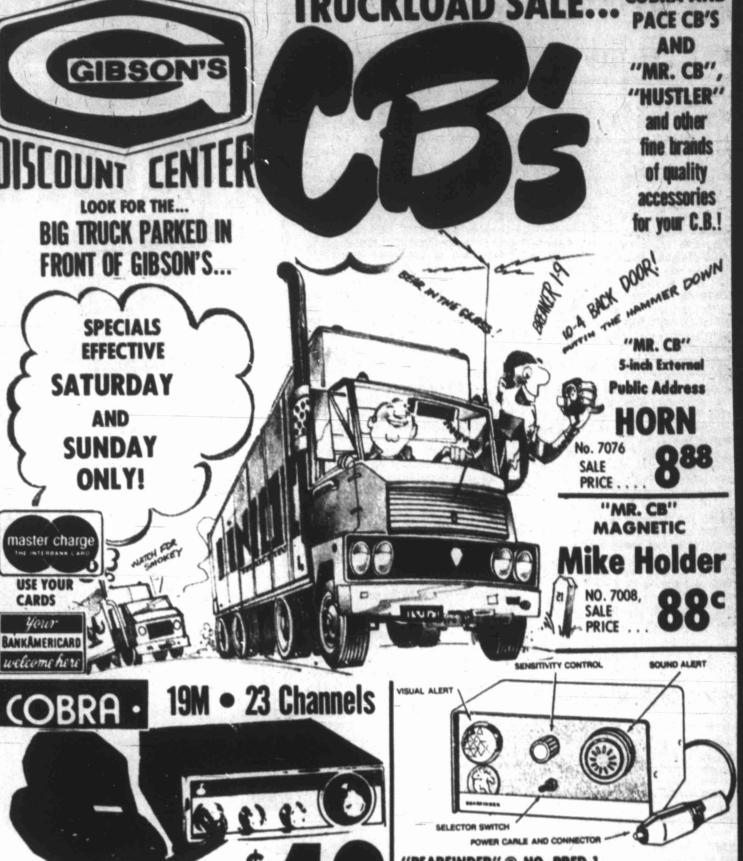

At that time, however, Justice Department investigators said testimony was sought from the two men only because they made public statements, and not because the inquiry had developed to the point where their questioning was a logical step in the

In a related development, the defense fund being raised by the Society of Former FBI Agents has spurted to $80,000 since the Kearney indictment, a source familiar with the fund-raising said Wednesday. Before the indictment, the fund totaled less than

The campaign against the indictment and further investigation took a new turn Wednesday when Rep. Eldon Rudd (R-Ariz.), a former FBI agent, charged that "some members" of the Carter Administration sought to drag federal law enforcement officials through the mud.

"It is clear that some members of this new Administration, who were linked with the New Left activists of the anti-Vietnam era, would like to see federal law enforcement officials dragged through the legal mud of indictment and trial in cases like this," Rudd said in a speech here to the American Security Council.

Asked about the basis for his allegation, Rudd said he read it in Human Events, an ultra-conservative publication, and that he could not specify individuals in the Administration.

Bell orders internal probe over news leaks

JEAN HELLER

WASHINGTON - Attorney General Griffin Bell has ordered an immediate inquiry to try to learn the sources of sensitive newspaper stories about the Justice Department's investigation of allegedly illegal internal security operations by New York FBI agents.

Calling the leaks "one of the worst breaches of ethics that probably has occurred in this department in many years," Bell disclosed during an inerview with Newsday that he had called in Justice Department personnel from Washington and other cities on Tuesday and ordered them to track down everyone who had access to a prosecution memorandum about the FBI investigation.

The meeting was called after Bell read a story by New York Times reporter Nicholas Gage which said the prosecution memorandum had recommended a criminal indictment for perjury against J. Wallace LaPrade, head of the FBI's New York regional office. The memorandum reportedly was prepared by Justice Department lawyer William L. Gardner, who is supervising the FBI investigation, and said that LaPrade had given false testimony to a federal grand jury investigating illegal break-ins, mail openings and wiretaps conducted in New York in the early 1970s by FBI agents trying to track fugitive members of the radical Weather Underground.

AP promotes 2 executives

NEW YORK (AP) - Keith Fuller, president and general manager of The Associated Press, has announced the promotion of veteran news executives Robert H. Johnson and Burl Osborne to key management

Johnson, 53, managing editor since 1973, becomes assistant general manager for administration and special assistant to the president, a new position.

Osborne, 39, assistant chief of bureau in Washington, D.C., since 1974, succeeds Johnson as managing editor. Osborne reports to Vice President and Executive Editor Louis D.

Wednesday are effective June 20.

Johnson, a native of Colorado City,
Texas, joined the news cooperative at Dallas in 1946, after assignments with he Phoenix Gazette, Arizon Republic, Phoenix Radio Station KOY and the Dallas Times Herald.

He served as a U.S. Marine officer World War II and the Korean War. Johnson was appointed chief of bureau at Salt Lake City in 1954, was put in charge of the Indianapolis bureau in 1959 and became chief of bureau at Dallas in 1962. In Dallas, he directed AP coverage of the assassination of President Kennedy, filing the first bulletin on the shooting.

Claiming the Times story on Tuesday was the final straw, Justice Department sources say Bell has been fuming for weeks over a series of stories about the FBI probe printed in the Times, Newsday and The Washington Post. On several oc-casions, the sources said, Bell had Justice Department lawyers on the carpet over such leaks, but was unable to stop them. Bell said in the interview Wednesday there might be prosecution of the news sources if there were any law violations by members of this department.'

Bell insisted, however, he was not moving against reporters covering the story. "I'm not criticizing the press," he said. "If I was in the press, that's what I'd be doing; I'd be trying to get a leak. It would be my business."

Bell declined to comment on the accuracy of any of the stories about the FBI probe, although department officials acknowledge existence of

The attorney general said he thought the sources of the leaks were one or more persons trying to box him into a hard-line attitude on pursuing the investigation to its fullest in the face of criticism that it is seriously

damaging FBI morale
"Somebody makes up a program of how we ought to handle the case and if I don't meet their schedule, they immediately leak to the newspapers what we're going to do next, or what we should do next," Bell said. "The greatest problem is the way it denies due process to the defendants. While we're investigating somebody for having denied constitutional rights to other Anerican citizens, the very people we're investigating are being denied their rights by the Department of Justice, by these leaks ... I think the leakers probably are trying to control me."

The first step in the internal investigation, Bell said, would be to track down all copies of the prosecution memorandum about the FBI probe and to determine who had access to them and who might have seen them. "I had two copies," he said. "I had one locked up in my safe and Mr. (Benjamin) Civiletti (head of the Justice Department's criminal division) has the other one locked up in his safe. We're determining now how many copies there were and if any copies were given to people outside the department, outside the government."

Despite reports that the prosecution team has recommended several indictments in the FBI case, the only indictment to date came on April 7 when a New York grand jury indicted John J. Kearney, a former supervisor in the New York FBI office, on charges that agents reporting to him had participated in illegal wiretaps, break-ins and mail openings. That indictment precipitated an outcry from present and former FBI officials across the nation, and from FBI Director Clarence Kelley himself, that pursuing the case would destroy bureau morale. Bell has met with several groups of agents and has acknowledged their feelings, West took the king of spades and led a heart to his partner's queen. East then returned the queen of diamonds.

If South ruffed high, West would later win a trick with the ten of spades; and if South ruffed low, West would over-ruff. Either way, South

CUT COMMUNICATIONS
When West leads the king of diamonds at the second trick, South should discard the losing heart in-stead of ruffing. This gives the op-ponents two diamonds instead on one diamond and one heart. The advantage is that East can never gain the lead. Therefore East can never lead a diamond through

South, and West's ten of spades can never be promoted North was wise to say nothing about his partner's misplay. Bridge players should follow the old-fashioned advice: If you can't say something good, don't say anything at all. (Just break a few dishes now and then to make sure that you don't explode!)

As dealer, you hold: S-QJ982; H-3; C-KQJ96. What do you say?

Schlesinger reveals windfall admission

WASHINGTON (AP) - Natural gas producers privately concede they would reap $20 billion in windfall profits under the Carter administration's new pricing plan, energy adviser James R. Schlesinger

Schlesinger told the House energy and power subcommittee Thursday that unidentified companies also say privately they would rather have a lid on prices than deregulation, fearing the embarrassment a sharp price increase they foresee under deregulation would bring

The administration has proposed a uniform national price of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet. 30 cents more than the current interstate rate and about 50 cents less than the rate for gas produced and sold within one

Schlesinger estimated the price could increase to $2.98 by 1985.

Schlesinger and other representatives of the Carter administration appeared before two separate committees to push Carter's energy plan.

Industry spokesmen disputed Schlesinger's contention about anticipated profits. David H. Foster, vice president of the Natural Gas Supply Committee, told the subcommittee Carter's natural gas plan was a "composite of disincentives"

A.V. Jones, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said the Carter package "contains all the elements for economic chaos at home and political nightmares on the international

Schlesinger estimated that deregulation, or letting the free market determine the price, would result in a $20 billion windfall for producers. That would shift the gross national product by about 1 per cent and could raise the price of gas to $6 per thousand cubic feet.

Carter's chief energy adviser said deregulation was "particularly inappropriate" because prices historically have been controlled by monopolies and international companies or cartels.

Reminded by Rep. James M Collins, R-Tex., that candidate Carter pledged to work toward deregulation, Schlesinger responded that the uniform price proposal was a step in

The total energy plan is expected to increase inflation slightly, but have no impact on unemployment or the nation's economic growth rate, according to Charles Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic

Basin sectors draw wildcat operations

Wildcats have been staked in Upton, Tom Green and Kimble counties, and Schleicher, Crockett and Terrell areas drew stepout sites.

R. L. Burns Corp of Dallas plans to drill a 14,000-foot Ellenburger explorer in Upton, 10 miles southeast of Crane and % mile east of shallow production in the McElroy field. It is No. 1-177 McElroy.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 177, block E, CCSD&RGNG survey, 34 mile east and slightly south of the McElroy, Southeast (Devonian) oil field. TOM GREEN SITE

Simpson-Mann Oil Producers, San Angelo, No. 1 Harper Estate is slated as a 7,200-foot wildcat in Tom Green, about two miles east of the Demere (Canyon) gas field.

It spots 660 feet from north and east lines of section 17, block 16, H&TC survey, three miles northwest of Carlsbad townsite.

KIMBLE PROSPECTOR Production Operators, Inc., of Houston, filed application for a 2,600foot wildcat in Kimble, 13 miles north-

Stripper abandoning shows 1976 decline

TULSA, Okla. — A substantial decrease in abandonments of stripper oil wells in Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma during 1976 has been reported by the National Stripper

Preliminary data for the three states also indicate a net decline in production and in the number of active stripper wells as of Jan. 1.

Attributed directly to the economic stimulus of price decontrol of oil produced from stripper wells, those which average 10 barrels daily or less. 3,839 fewer wells were abandoned in 1976 than in the prior year.

By states, abandonments for Texas were down 2.539, for Kansas 442 and for Oklahoma 858

There also was a decline in the number of stripper wells operating in these states, down 7,201 for the year. Kansas reversed the downward trend gaining 1,240 wells. Texas producing stripper wells were down 3.095 to 85.392. Oklahoma was off 5,346 to 53,390, and Kansas, with its increase. counted 41,837 wells producing. The three-state region accounts for approximately 50 per cent of stripper wells in the U.S.

A reduction also was reported in production from stripper wells in the three-state area, although Kansas and Oklahoma production increased 819,401 and 976,235 barrels respectively. Texas was off 3,319,726 for a three-state total decrease of 1,524,090 Average daily production per well in the area surveyed was shown to be 3.53 barrels.

financial adviser, will talk on "Oil Analysts Criteria for Disclosures," as Evaluation the final talk of the number of actively operated stripper wells for the three states is expected to be evident in national data now being assembled, and will establish a record in minimizing abandonments.

The net result is more wells being kept alive with these wells providing more domestic production for the consumer, it was reported to NSWA.

Belco tests Eddy well

Belco Petroleum Co., Midland, was testing through new perforations at 10.510-10.517 feet at No. 1-B Pennzoil-State, Eddy County, N.M., project, 1/2 mile south of Belco No. 1 Jones, Morrow gas strike, 15 miles south of Lake Wood

It flowed one barrel of condensate and gas at the rate of 1.15 million cubic feet per day, in 14 hours, through an 11-64-inch choke.

Earlier, the test flowed gas at the rate of 1.1 million cubic feet, time unreported, through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations at 9,619-9,625

Drilled to 10,850 feet, it has been plugged back to 10,784 feet. It is 913 feet from north and 2,193 feet from east lines of section 16-22s-

PB energy committee formation announced

ODESSA — The announcement of the formation of the Energy Coordinating Committee was made in Odessa this morning by Dr. Ed Sward of Odessa who is the current chair-man of the new committee.

"The purpose of the committee will be to serve as a communications vehicle between numerous civic and energy-related organizations in the Permian Basin," Dr. Sward, who is with El Paso Products Co., said.

Sward said the committee will keep a file of all political and promotional activities relating to energy in the Permian Basin in order to enhance communications and cooperation among the various groups involved.

"By functioning in this manner," Sward said, "we will not re-invent the wheel. We will avoid duplication of effort and be able to solicit full support for many promotional, educational and political activities and projects aimed at increasing the stature and economy of the Permian

The committee also expects to function as a "think tank" to arrive at new and vital ideas to promote the Permian Basin energy industry and the basin in general.

Sward listed several objectives under consideration by the com-mittee. One primary objective will be to enhance the image of the oil and gas industry among northern and eastern states.

Another, Sward pointed out, will be to establish procedures to educate area students and others as to the role of the energy industry in the Permian Basin and the nation.

Members of the coordinating committee are Sward, who also serves as chairman of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce Oil Industry Committee: Joe Womack of Midland, vice chairman of the new committee and chairman of the Midland Chamber of Commerce Oil and Gas Committee: Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr.; Odessa Mayor Dan Hemphill: Judge Darrell Glover of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Committee: Jay Alvey of Odessa, executive director of the Permian Basin Oil Show: Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, and John Pitts, managing editor of Drill Bit Magazine.

The committee will extend membership participation to other in-dividuals and organizations in the near future, Sward said.

Carter's agent would 'rather sell than eat'

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Tandy Rice, Billy Carter's agent and the booker for 20 or so country music stars, has a motto on his desk: "There is no limit to what can be done if it doesn't matter who gets the credit.

There appears to be enough credit to pass around among Rice and his five salesmen at Top Billing, Inc. With the signing of Carter this spring to supplement a booking billboard boasting more Grand Ole Opry acts than any other agency, Rice's firm has become the trailblazer among

Nashville agents.

Rice, 38, is a fast-talking, dynamic businessman with a background in public relations and selling. With his sudden emergence as a pace-setter, he's the happy booker.

"I love sellin' better than anything else," he said among the clicking typewriters and ringing telephones at his agency. "I'd rather sell than eat."

Since becoming Carter's agent, Rice has been beseiged by requests for interviews and has refused nearly all of them. He granted one recent

Keep an eye out, also, for the fine portrayal by Harry Markham of Mr. Sleary, the hoarsevoiced, brandytippling circus man to whom Gradgrind and Bounderby come to ask about the homeless Jupe girl.

Prince Fahd kills deal

By JIM HOAGLAND The Washington Post

PARIS — Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Fahd has killed a sales deal that would have brought a Saudi middleman commissions totaling more than $100 million out of a $7 billion contract for telephone service in the

The Saudi agent who lost what rivals were calling "the commission of the century" because of Fahd's decision is Prince Mohammed bin

Fadh—the son of the crown prince.
Fahd's action is depicted by Arab and European sources as one of the first serious moves by the Saudis to curb the frenetic government spending and exorbitant payoffs to local agents by foreign firms that have accompanied Saudi Arabia's amassing of enormous wealth for its oil exports.

"It must have been a painful moment for Fahd, but he wanted to set the example that would show that the time of wild spending had come to an end," said one business source close to the negotiations between Phillips, the giant Dutch conglomerate, and the Saudis for the installation of a nationwide automatic telephone system.

If it had been granted, the Phillips contract would have been perhaps the largest single commercial deal yet to be made in the newly wealthy Middle East oil-producing lands. The Phillips estimate was $6 billion over the Saudis own projection.

Sales commissions have been a sensitive issue in Saudi Arabia since staff investigations for the U.S. Senate and the Security Exchange Commission produced admissions from American companies that they paid some Saudi middlemen exorbitant commissions access to a four-wheel which in a number of cases were in- drive vehicle tended as bribes to high officials for getting contracts.

Neither Prince Fahd nor his son was named in those investigations. The crown prince, who is also prime minister, has reportedly been con-cerned, however, about the image be-ing given the country by highly placed princes receiving large commissions rom foreign firms.

Fahd's role in killing the Phillips deal and his son's commission is also an important sign of his determination to change his own image as he moves closer to the throne. Once known as a playboy, he dropped $6 million at a Monte Carlo gambling casino in one night three years ago. He has given up all gambling and other pastimes that might draw criticism in the rigidly Islamic socie-ty of Saudi Arabia since King Faisal was assassinated in 1975 and Fahd became crown prince to King Khalid.

Fahd's decision to break off ex-Fahd's decision to break off ex-clusive negotiations with Phillips after technical experts told him that Saudi Arabia should spend no more then $1.2 billion on the telephone system has opened the race for a scaled-down but still lucrative contract to other companies.

International Telephone and Telegraph, the American multinational, is one of an estimated 11 companies being asked by the Saudis to submit bids for the work.

NEW YORK (AP) - The market rose slightly today in less active trading, despite banking announcements of a hike in their prime interest rate.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks advanced 1.95 to 927.49, after showing a net loss of more than 18 points since last Friday.

Among issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange, three gained in price for every two that lost.

Citibank of New York, the nation's second largest. announced an increase in its prime rate from 64 to 64, as the NYSE opened today. Other major banks quickly followed with identical increases.

The increase in the basic lending rate, which has been unchanged since January, means business expansion will be more expensive. But analysts noted that the move had been somewhat anticipated by the market which today showed signs of some bargain hunting by buyers. Sony Corp., up 1/4 at 9, was the most actively traded issue on he NYSE. Others included RCA Corp., off ¼ at 30½; El Paso, up ¼ at 18; Occidental Petroleum, up ¼ at 28¼; and Pittston Co., unchanged at The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks advanced .10 to 54.06.

On the American Stock

Exchange, the market value index lost .09 to 113.60. Volume on the Big Board was 7.17 million shares over the first two hours, down from 9.14 million shares the previous day.

Eastman Kodak, which showed a steady decline during the week, was up % at 58% in active trading.

Petroleum issues were mostly higher. Prices included Atlantic Richfield, up % to 58%; Exxon, up ¼ to 51%; Mobil, up % to 66¼, and Standard Oil of California up 14 to 4114. But Texaco was down 1/4 to 261/2 and Standard Oil of Indiana declined 1/4.

Cotton NEW YORK (AP) - Cotton futures No. 2 NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were miexd at midday.

An Agriculture Department report released after the market closed Thursday which indicated 128,000 bales of cotton was shiped in the week ending May 1 up from 68,500 bales a week earlier and up from 68,500 bales a year ago prompted buying of futures contracts, brokers said. The department also reported that China had purchased 47,600 bales of U S cotton. Limit gains in soybean futures also inflenced # 25 25 25 4 4 1 45 45 45 4 purchased 47,000 bales of U S cotton. Dear Dr. Solomon: I absolutely have to lose weight. I want very much to go on a diet, but my friends tell me that there has been a lot of talk about how your hair falls out if you start dieting. Would you please tell me whether or not this is so? Would vitamins help?—Gladys P.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dear Gladys: There have been stories in the papers to the effect that people who go on "crash diets" tend to lose a noticeable amount of hair. And while you might think that a drastic cut in calories would make your hair fall out, it really isn't quite

If a diet is so severe that there is a protein deficiency, you could indeed have a loss of hair, as protein is what hair is made of.

A Harvard group, headed by Dr. George L. Blackburn, has been studying the effect of semi-fasting on more than 200 obese patients who have been losing half a pound a day over periods ranging up to 11 months. Dr. Blackburn reported recently that hair loss had been noticed, but only when there was such a protein shortage that the patient's muscle mass was getting broken down. The abnormal hair loss stopped almost completely when an adequate amount of protein was put back in the diet.

The Harvard patients are, of course, special cases being handled under special medical supervision. Be sure that any diet you decide to go on is varied and well-balanced. Don't go in for any of those highprotein or low-protein, all-carbohydrate or nocarbohydrate gimmick diets. And don't try to lose more than two pounds a week, to be sure you won't do your body any harm.

No vitamin has any magic influence on hair growth. If you eat a good variety of foods, you will doubtless be getting all the vitamins you need. Protein supplements won't do your hair any good either, if your diet is not deficient in protein.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been told that megavitamin therapy can work wonders for a child with learning disorders, and that there are ever so many cases to prove it. Have you found this to be so?-Mary Beth T.

Dear Mary Beth: The Committee on Nutrition of the American Academy of Pediatrics says megavitamin therapy as a treatment for learning disabilities and other psychological problems in children is not justified on the basis of welldocumented use. Reported benefits, the committee says, are largely hearsay and should be viewed with skepticism-at least, until there is some real

Next benefits may be home, auto insurance

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The next significant employe benefits to be added to a growing list might be automobile and home insurance.

While no large employers have made real movement in those areas, the time soon may be ripe, says a spokesman for a firm that advises scores of blue chip companies on employe benefits. "There is a big void to be filled," said Leonard

Mactas, a recognized authority on corporate benefit Tracing the development of benefits since the end

World War II, Mactas feels that by 1980 some companies may begin to include these two insurances. "The trend among employers has been to respond to identifiable employe needs," said Mactas. And while homeowners' insurance costs might not have become painfully expensive, auto insurance most certainly has. It's a need. Other factors are involved also, says Mactas, who heads the Consulting Actuaries Division of Kwasha Lipton, an international firm that helped develop many of today's largest employe benefit programs Having sustained repeated losses, automobile insurers are wary of the business, to cite one factor. And large corporations — even smaller ones — can help keep costs in line through the efficiences of In Mactas' view, the inclusion of these insurances would be in keeping with a trend toward using the corporation as a vehicle to make life more secure for individuals.

Besides volume buying power, or to state it another way, the ability to benefit from lower group rates, the employer also has the ability to analyze complicated contractual plans and provide bookkeeping services as well. Moreover, the tax laws are such that employers and employes are aggressively interested in benefits rather than wages alone. Most benefits are taxdeductible for the employer and tax-free for the employe. Over the years the portfolio of employe benefits has developed from pensions and profitsharing to health and disability insurances dental insurance. and most recently legal insurance. Except for some life insurance costs, these expenses are totally tax deductible to the employer. It is partly for this reason that the standard among large companies today is to pay in full for such benefits. And the result, in effect, is to provide the worker with tax-sheltered income. Neither automobile nor homeowners insurance is now eligible for similar tax treatment, but in Mactas' view some companies might be inclined to offer the plans anyway.

Gerulaitis grabs big WCT triumph

DALLAS (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis is not sure that clean living is a ticket to success, but he is going to have to live without the nightlife as long as his father is with him at the World Championship Tennis finals.

Gerulaitis, 22, known as somewhat of a playboy on the WCT circuit, outlasted Woitek Fibak of Poland in a marathon five-set quarter-final match Thursday night 1-6, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3 and wondered aloud if he was getting too much sleep.

"I've been sleeping 11 hours a night and I'm used to three," Gerulaitis said with a grin. "My dad's here and rooming with him isn't my idea of a hot night on the town. But as long as he's here, I don't have much Gerulaitis is an underdog in tonight's semifinals against second-seeded Dick Stockton, who beat Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 7-5, 6-7, 7-6, 6-2 Thursday In the other half of the draw, top-seeded Jimmy Connors is favored against giant-killing Eddie Dibbs, who earlier upset Ilie Nastase of Romania. The final is scheduled Sunday on national television with $100,000 going to the winner and $40,000 to the runner-up in this seventh WCT championship. Defending champion Bjorn Borg did not play on the 1977 WCT tour. Gerulaitis can't be taken lightly because he pulled off the biggest comeback in the WCT's short history. The New Yorker was so far down that his father, Vitas Gerulaitis Sr., told him after the first two sets: "Son, if Fibak plays three sets in a row like this, then he's the greatest player in the world.'

The younger Gerulaitis decided "I know Fibak isn't the greatest player in the world. Then when he

Texas State Varmint shoot this weekend

The Texas State Light and Heavy Varmint shoot Saturday and Sunday will attract shooters from not only Texas, but from California, New Mexico, Louisiana and Arizona, according to Bob Maberry of the host Midland Shooters' Associaton.

'We really don't know how many shooters will participate until they show up," said Maberry, "but we expect anywhere from 50 to 100."

Competition at 100 and 200 yards is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Light Varmint competition while a 9 a.m. start is also scheduled for Sunday's Heavy Varmint competition. Firing should cease sometime around 4 p.m., but it will depend on the number competing.

"We have a lot of visitors coming to Midland." Maberry, "but some of the finest rifle shooters in the state live right here in Midland and will be competing."

The shoot will be held at the MSA range, 9 1/2 miles southeast

Seattle Mariners sweep series with jumpy New York Yankees

By The Associated Press

It was difficult to tell which was the expansion team as the Seattle Mariners recorded their first-ever series sweep Thursday night ...over the New York Yankees, no less.

"We just played bad and they played well," Yankees Manager Billy Martin explained after his defending American League champions fumbled their way through an 8-6 defeat at the hands of the 35-game-old Mariners on the heels of a 5-2 setback Wednesday night.

In the only other AL games, the Texas Rangers blanked the Kansas City Royals 2-0, the California Angels overtook the Baltimore Orioles 7-5 and the Detroit Tigers swamped the Milwaukee Brewers 9-1.

The Yankees committed five errors-five more than the Mariners-including three on consecutive ground balls in the third inning, and handed Seattle six unearned runs while the expansionists ran the bases daringly, stealing three bases.

"I never get mad at players for physical errors," Martin said. "They dribbled the ball in the hole while we hit it right at somebody.

Right! In the first inning, Seattle's Dan Meyer and Bill Stein hit consecutive balls off Catfish Hunter into a couple of gaping holes otherwise known as the stands. The hits were called home runs and, coming in the wake of a two-out error by third baseman Graig Nettles, gave the Mariners a 3-1 lead.

A throwing error by catcher Thurman Munson helped set up a Seattle run in the second and the dribbling began for real in the third after Ron Guidry relieved Hunter with one out, runners on first and second and the Mariners ahead 5-2.

Guidry could only watch helplessly as first baseman Chris Chambliss, second baseman Willie Randolph and Chambliss again took turns muffing three straight ground balls which easily could have gotten the Yankees out of the inning but resulted instead in three more Seattle runs.

Rangers 2, Royals 0

Gaylord Perry ended a personal four-game losing streak with a fourhitter. The two teams, who fought a 20-minute brawl Saturday night at Texas, showed no inclination at renewed violence. The Rangers nicked Dennis Leonard for a run in the first inning on singles by Bert Campaneris, Willie Horton and Dave May. Jim Sundberg led off the fourth with an infield hit, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Claudell Washington's double

"He (Perry) told us to look for the greaser," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "He threw everybody a few, I guess. He uses it when he needs it. I ain't going to complain about it. You got to hit the dry side. We aren't swinging. Did you see all those feeble grounders? They could have played without gloves."

Angels 7, Orioles 5 Bobby Grich's two-run single capped a five-run eighth-inning rally. Jim Palmer took a 5-2 lead into the eighth but walked Dan Briggs, the first batter. After Gil Flores singled and was forced at second, consecutive singles by Dave Chalk and Joe Rudi made the score 5-4 and chased

Palmer. Bobby Bonds, who had a solo home run, another single and scored three times, greeted Fred Holdsworth with a game-tying single and the runners moved up on an error by centerfielder Larry Harlow. Grich then delivered his two-run single

"You get a special satisfaction from beating the best," said Grich, who must win PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - The team that won more games than any club during the 1976-77 National Basketball Association season must win tonight-or be eliminated in an embarrassing four straight games in the playoffs. The Los Angeles Lakers, winners of 53 regular-season games, trail the Portland Trail Blazers 3-0 in their bestof-seven semifinal series. Duane took wrong turn

If you blinked you missed it. The Great White Hope turned out to be the Great White Hoax.

It took Ken Norton less than a minute of haymaker rights, the kind even movies don't dare depict, to destroy the myth and legend of Duane

Duane Bobick was supposed to have been brought along slowly over the last five years, learning and mastering his profession, and entered the ring Wednesday night amidst the kind of hoopla usually reserved for the Super Bowl as a full-pledged contender to Muhammad Ali's heavyweight title.

The Super Bowl buildup was appropriate since the letdown was of Super Bowl proportions.

SO MUCH for propaganda. If a guy can fight, it doesn't take five years to get him ready. The five years were used, rather, to hide

Duane and let the public forget the Telefino Stevenson disaster in the 1972 Duane brought a 38-0 record into the ring, but against Norton it looked like a figment of Ring Magazine's imagination. It should have been on ABC, not NBC.

IT WAS the sad saga of Primo Carnera all over again. Mobsters maneveured the amiable giant from Italy into the world heavyweight championship with a series of fixes.

Bobick's benefactors carefully steered Duane through a series of bouts with nobodies hoping that the magic of his Olympic background would lead to some big paydays down

IT WAS Carnera-Max Baer all over again Wednesday with Norton, an aspiring part-time actor, playing the Baer role in a manner that would have made even old Maxie happy.

Bobick, the likable young giant from Bowlus, Minn., has been taken advantage of from the outset of his career. In his brief appearance Wednesday, it was obvious he couldn't fight and what's worse, couldn't defend himself.

Norton received more backtalk from the heavy bag.

The only surprise about the fight was that it took Norton so long. A year or so ago. Duane appeared on a preliminary to one of the heavyweight title fights on home tv and it was painfully obvious that someone was deceiving Duane even then.

His opponent obviously was a setup, but Bobick couldn't pull the trigger. He pushed his punches and was woefully slow. At the time it was mentioned that Duane had an offer to play pro ball and it was apparent even then that he had chosen the wrong

After the fight Wednesday, TV commentators asked Norton if he felt his victory earned him another shot at Ali's crown. He looked embarrassed at the question. If he deserves another shot, it's because he lost a questionable decision to Ali the last time they met. For what he did Wednesday, he should be made to go stand in a corner. Imagine, taking money for that.

The TV commentators also promised us that Duane would be back. Spare us. But most of all spare

THE FIRST impulse is to laugh derisively at the suggestion, but we are afraid they are right. Put a label on it and the American sports public will stand in line to buy it. They say Duane has a future in boxing. If he has, it's as a KO on some aspiring young boxer's record.

Duane is a nice kid who should have stuck to baseball. And it's a shame he didn't have a true friend to tell him

But Thursday was a remarkable day in every sense, uncommonly clear and calm, and a near-record 23 players seized upon the conditions to slip under par.

Behind Crenshaw and Geiberger, who birdied the final two holes, were a trio of 66 shooters-Roger Maltbie, Chi Chi Rodriguez and John Schroeder.

The happy-go-lucky Rodriguez wrecked a potential 64 with a six on the par-four 10th hole, but shrugged it off by saying: "A double bogey in golf is like death and life, it's going to Masters champion Tom Watson, the year's leading money winner with $190,940, headed a quartet of 67 shooters despite the fact that his putter "feels like a sledgehammer in my hands.'

Atlanta finally prevails after 17 straight loses

By The Associated Press

No, the Atlanta Braves didn't win the National League pennant Thursday. Yes, that was champagne in the Braves' dressing room after the

The bubbly was provided by Jeff Burroughs after the Braves snapped a 17-game losing streak by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1. "Let's play again right now. We're hot," Burroughs said. Pitcher Max Leon drove in three runs and combined with reliever Rich Camp for a four-hitter, snapping Pittsburgh's 11-game winning string.

"You win, you happy. You lose, you sad. You lose 17 times, you very sad," Leon said.

In other NL games Thursday, St. Louis crushed Cincinnati 101, Los Angeles defeated Montreal 8-2, Philadelphia blanked San Francisco 3-0 and San Diego topped the New York Mets 5-2.

The Braves, who had not won since April 22, scored in the third inning when Leon, 1-1, hit a sacrifice fly Loser Bruce Kison, 3-2, yielded a runscoring double to Brian Asselstine in the fourth inning, then the Braves put the game away with four runs in the eighth, two runs scoring on a single by Atlanta was playing under its third manager in three games. Third base coach Vern Benson took over when league President Chub Feeney ordered Braves owner Ted Turner to give up his one-day job of managing the team. Turner gave regular Manager Dave Bristol a 10-day leaver of absence after the Braves had lost 16 in a row.

Turner was suspended earlier this season by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, a decision that is being decided in the courts. But the millionaire owner said that despite his problems, he would not sell the team.

"Not a chance," Turner said. "I'm not walking out in the middle of this Cards 10, Reds 1

John D'Acquisto, Buddy Schultz and Al Hrabosky teamed for a onehitter while Tony Scott, Don Kessinger and Keith Hernandez drove in two runs each as St. Louis routed Cincinnati. The Reds' lone hit was a two-out, eighth-inning double by Ken Griffey.

Mike Tyson and Bake McBride drove in Cardinals runs in the fourth. then St. Louis erupted for six runs in the sixth inning, two on Kessinger's bad-hop double and two on a single by Scott. Hernandez singled for two runs in the eighth.

Dodgers 8, Expos 2 Dave Lopes and Reggie Smith slammed first-inning home runs. helping right-hander Don Sutton move into sole possession of second place on the all-time Dodgers' winning list with a victory over Montreal Sutton, who needed last-inning help from reliever Mike Garman, increased his season mark to 5-0 and earned his 181st career victory. Only Don Drysdale, who won 209 games, tops Sutton among Dodgers pitchers.

Sutton, who gave up two runs in the ninth before Garman came on with one out, earlier contributed a two-run double

A three-hitter by right-hander Larry Christenson gave Phiadephia its victory over San Francisco. Christenson, 3-3, outpitched Giants right-hander John Montefusco, 2-5, who suffered his fourth straight setback. Montefusco has had a total of three runs scored for him in the four games. Greg Luzinski, Rich Hebner and

Padres 5, Mets 2

San Diego's Tom Griffin, 3-1, hurled seven strong innings and smashed a homer, leading the Padres over the Mets. Griffin allowed only three hits before being relieved by Rollie Fingers after giving up a two-run homer to John Milner in the eighth. Griffin's seventh-inning homer off

Jerry Koosman, 2-4, gave San Diego a 2-0 lead. The Padres scored in the first when Gene Tenace walked with the bases full. They broke open the game with three runs in the eighth on RBI singles by Doug Rader and Mike Champion and a Mets error.

McGinnis set for Rockets in playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) - It was George McGinnis' turn to take some ribbing over the way his Philadelphia 76ers had played against Houston and the star forward took it well-there was little else he could do. The scene was an almost deserted 76er dressing room following Houston's 118-94 victory in the third game of their National Basketball Association (NBA) playoff series.

"Where's that gorilla?" asked a Houston fan who had found his way into the dressing room.

'No gorillas around here." McGinnis replied.

"I just wanted to see that Darryl Dawkins who calls his dunk shot a gorilla dunk," the fan needled. "We'll keep Mo Malone and you all can keep the gorilla.'

"I'd bett not comment on that." McGinnis said smiling. "But we will keep him.'

The Rockets, who had been ridiculed as too ponderous and slow to compete with the stream lined 76ers, definitely took their revenge against the surprised 76ers in Wednesday's game and silenced some of their

Asked about the Rockets being compared to water buffaloes and only being able to beat the 76ers if the game were played in tall grass, McGinnis said, again smiling, "Well, I guess they changed all that didn't "I don't think we ever did take the Rockets too lightly, that was just mostly newspaper talk. This is the Eastern Conference finals and you don't get that far without having something.

MADRID — U.S. Secretary of State yrus Vance reinforced American upport for the Spanish monarchy's narch to democracy in a busy overight visit that ended Thursday after-

Vance arrived in Madrid Wednesay for meeting with King Juan Carlos, Premier Adolfo Suarez and Foreign Minister Marcelino Oreja on he U.S. Spain bilateral defense treay, this week's London NATO Council meeting and last weekend's London conference of the world's industrial

But the secretary, according to U.S. officials, spent much of his time in talks with the king, the premier and the foreign minister obtaining "intelligence" on the political situation and on next month's parliamentary elections. There are 6,000 candidates running for 350 Assembly and 207 Senate seats in the June 15 elections. They represent 18 political coalitions and other groups, including the recently legalized Communist party and still illegal left-wing parties. The visit undoubtedly will bolster the candidacy of the Premier Suarez. Sources close to the premier predict that the Centrist coalition backing Suarez would win between 40 and 47 per cent of the seats in the lower

The secretary set the tone of the visit Wednesday afternoon when he arrived from London. "We have the greatest admiration for the actions taken under the leadership of the king to strengthen the institutions of democracy." he said.

At the request of Spanish officials. the United States played down that Spain's coming free elections, a free Parliament, and pledge of a new constitution opened the way for Spain's early entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But this was clearly the message implicit in the

Spain does not want NATO membership to become a major campaign issue. Communists, Socialists and far rightists are opposed to joining the alliance. The Suarez administration wants the debate postponed until the issue can be taken up in Parliament, sources said.

Also opposed to NATO entry are senior military officers, who fear that the relationship will lead to a breakdown of the armed forces devotion to fighting subversion at home through control of the police establishment.

Vance and Foreign Minister Oreja took stock on how bilateral military, economic, cultural and scientific relationships are working under the provisions of the 15-month-old U.S. Spanish treaty. They presided at the delibera-tions of the first session of the U.S. Spanish Council. Vance was joined by Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, who stopped in Madrid Thursday en route to a NATO meeting in Brussels.

A U.S. official with Vance's party explained that the United States hopes that the provision in the treaty for a military council will help to teach the Spanish armed forces "planning" so that the Spanish defense establishment can eventually mesh with NATO. The treaty links Spain to the alliance through the United States.

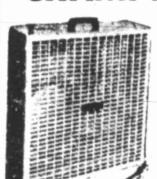

There appear to be no major issues between the United States and Spain. Differences over the supply of enriched uranium and over licenses for eight nuclear power reactors, to be built by U.S. firms, have been settled for the time being

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Erin Fleming, seen by some witnesses as an ill-tempered menace to Groucho Marx and by others as the joy of his waning others as the joy of his waning years, is resuming her legal bid for permanent control over the comedian and his property.

Opposing her is Groucho's son, Arthur, who succeeded last month in having Miss Fleming removed as temporary guardian after alleging she was a threat to the 86-year-old Marx' life.

Miss Fleming, 37, who has served as secretary, manager, producer and companion to Marx for seven years, has hired a new firm of lawyers for the court battle which resumes at a hearing today.

Groucho, in failing health and frequently confused, remains confined to his Trousdale Estates home. J. Brin Schulman, attorney for Arthur Marx, said Groucho apparently is unaware that intimate details of his treatment by Miss Fleming which allegedly involved verbal and physical abuse and improper drugging — have been bared in

hearing that ended April 22, Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie suspended Miss Fleming and appointed Nat Perrin, 72, a screenwriter and old friend of Marx, to care for the comedian and his multimillion dollar estate for the time being.

Under the judge's order, Miss
Fleming was to visit Marx only as Perrin saw fit.

Judge Rafeedie said the hearing revealed "an extraordinary degree of domination and control by Miss Fleming over Mr. Marx' mind and his will." But there was no clear conclusion as to the validity of Arthur Marx's contention that evidence pointed to an effort by someone at the Marx house to overdrug

Marx's physician testified that Groucho responded well to Miss Fleming's behavior, and that he would be concerned for his patient's well-being if she were to leave him.

Zeppo Marx, Groucho's brother, went farther. He said Miss Fleming was "the greatest girl in the whole world" and that he believed Groucho might die without her.

Carter believes Nixon broke law

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Toughening his stand on former President Richard M. Nixon's role in the Watergate scandal, President Carter Thursday told reporters, "I personally thihink that he did violate the law, and I think he did commit impeachable of fenses."

Last week, after the first David Frost television interview with Nixon, Carter said he thought Nixon while in office had lied to the American people. But Carter answered, "I don't know," when asked if Nixon had broken the law.

Carter's latest comments came several hours before the second Frost-Nixon show — which Carter said he did not intend to watch — and after publication of polls indicating that a majority of Americans now halieve Nixon was written.

believe Nixon was guilty. Carter spoke in response to reporters' questions after his formal televised news conference Thursday. In what has become a regular feature of such sessions, the President left the podium but allowed reporters to surround him and pepper him with questions before disappearing

Carter said a number of European leaders at the London summit this week expressed regret to him that the Watergate issue was once again a subject of public comment and interest in the United States.

"It was quite a blow to Europe, I think, to see our own country besmirched with the Watergate revelations, and I think they now are glad to see it over and just did not want to see that whole subject resurrected again," Carter said.

Ezzell-authored bill approved by Texas House

AUSTIN—The House gave final approval Thursday to a "bill of rights" for the mentally retarded, legislation which was defeated several weeks

House sponsor of the bill, Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder, says the author of the legislation in the Senate, Sen. Bill Braecklein of Dallas, will agree with floor amendments to the legislation, hopefully so SB 700 will go to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for his signature without need of a conference commit-

Final House approval of the legisla-tion, which was also turned down two years ago, came on a 101-41 vote. Ezzell, earlier this week, got the House to reconsider its vote of April 14, by which SB 700 was rejected,
