Jury indicts Odessan

An ex-vice president and computer analyst for the First Savings and Loan Association of Odessa was indicted in Midland late Thursday by a federal grand jury on charges of embezzling more than $2 million of the association's funds.

The defendant, Warren Boydston Moore, 38, of Odessa, was cited in a five-count indictment with "misapplying" the funds in 1976 and 1977. He is accused of transferring most of the funds to a brokerage firm in Atlanta, Ga. However, "substantially all of the misapplied funds' have been recovered, said U.S. Attorney John E. Clark of San Antonio.

Moore was taken into federal custody more than two months ago, March 8, when he was arrested on suspicion of embezzlement by Federal Bureau of Investigation special agents in Midland.

Subsequently, he lost his job with the association.

Moore's $1 million bond set by U.S. Magistrate Don E. Williams of Midland was reduced to $40,000 three days later.

Moore, who is married and is the father of five children, ages 17 to 6, is free on bail.

He has retained Odessa lawyer H. Thomas Hirsch.

Moore was arrested at the downtown Odessa savings and loan institution after a bank teller in Midland reportedly tipped off officers of the

The indictment charges Moore with depositing $21,691.24 of the association's funds into his account at the Commercial Bank and Trust Co. in Midland and with depositing an additional $47,387.77 of the association's funds into his account at Western State Bank in Midland.

Funds in the Atlanta accounts were $402,217.69, $989,163.89 and $651,238.67. Shortly after his arrest, a spokesman for the Odessa savings and loan association said the alleged embezzlement, though complex, was not a "computer crime."

The maximum penalty on conviction of each of the five counts in the indictment is a $5,000 fine and a fiveyear prison sentence.

dicated they should know today or Saturday whether the two superpowers are going to be able to agree on their second treaty - SALT II - to limit or reduce their arsenals of longrange nuclear weapons

Informed sources said the compromise formula, reached in a fivehour meeting Thursday and subject to approval by President Carter and the Kremlin, was a blend of a Russian proposal and the U.S. package rejected by Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev last March. The sources gave this outline of the compromise: 1. Each government would make a modest reduction in its nuclear arsenals and would agree to hold another round of talks on further

2. Development of the U.S. Cruise missile would be limited, and restrictions would be put on where the Soviets could base their Backfire

The Backfire and the Cruise have been the chief obstacles to agreement in negotiations for the past two years to incorporate the 1974 Vladivostok agreement by President Ford and Brezhnev into a treaty. It provided for each nation to be limited to 2,400 longrange bombers and intercontinental missiles. But the two governments could not agree whether the new Soviet bomber and the new American missile should be included in these

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim told reporters "deep differences" remained between the U.S. and Soviet positions and predicted it would take "quite a long time" before they reached an agreement to replace SALT I, which expires in October. But his assessment was based on a breakfast meeting with Vance before the long negotiating session Thursday.

Christie may run for Senate

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Joe Christie's term as chairman of the State Board of Insurance doesn't end until 1981, he plans to resign that post in September - and he may run for U.S. Senate.

Christie was in Midland today to speak to the Midland Bar Association. Christie has served on the board since 1973, when he was appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to a two-year term. He was reappointed to a sixyear term in 1975, but, he said, he believes the "public is best served by a turnover" in office. Such turnover brings in "fresh ideas and fresh enthusiasms," Christie said.

Previously, Christie was state senator from El Paso six years. When he leaves his post at the insurance board, Christie said, he will enter a law practice, become involved in the petroleum industry or run for the U.S. Senate seat which will be up for election in 1978.

Christie said he expects Sen. John Tower to face a "significant struggle" for the Republican nomination, with former state Sen. Henry Grover as a likely opponent.

In the Democratic primary, Christie expects a "crowded field," which would include "names we haven't even thought about." Among those he expects to enter the race are former U.S. Senate candidate Barefoot Sanders, Rep. Bob Krueger and possibly former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough.

Of Tower, Christie said, "I haven't seen his program. I don't know why he's running." Christie said Tower is not a leader, either in the state Republican Party or in the Senate. I don't like the idea of professional office holders," he said If he enters the senatorial race, he said, he will have stands on a variety of issues, including energy. Christie said he has thus far not had time to fully analyze the entire Carter energy package, although he has listened carefully to Briscoe's

"It doean't take long to be an expert in this field (energy)," Christie said, and he believes he can "persuasively argue" in the Senate "and in the White House" the energy policy that is best for Texas and the nation. Christie cited his training as a geologist and his having been "raised and trained in the oil business" as advantages in that subject.

For the moment, he said, he is concentrating on killing a bill that is one of the most flagrant examples of self-interest."

That bill would strip protections the insurance board has enacted in the area of mail order individual accident and health policies, he said.

If passed, the legislation would "put the small-print boys back in business." The proposed law, which has passed the Senate and is in committee in the house, would write into law many of the practices "used to deny millions of dollars of claims," he said.

Christie said it also reverses the (Continued on Page 8A)

She's no idle dreamer, though her heart is on stardom. Sometimes she fears that she might be "washed up," although she is so young and virtually untried. Occasionally, she worries about her songwriting inspiration.

Lindbergh teacher recalls first lessons

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) -Charles A. Lindbergh rode up on an old motorcycle, strode in to the president of a Nebraska airplane company, plunked down $500 and said he wanted to learn to fly, says one of the men who taught him.

Seated on the edge of his bed in a rest home here, Wilbur "Pete" Hill, 88, reminisced about the lanky 20-year-old he met in 1922, five years before Lindbergh electrified the world by flying alone from New York to Paris, 50 years ago today.

"He was very brilliant and a devoted student," said Hill, who then managed the Lincoln Standard Aircraft Co. in Lincoln, Neb. "He was an apt student because he wanted to learn and gave of his time:"

Describing his thoughts about Lindbergh's landmark flight, Hill said, "I didn't necessarily think he was crazy, but I thought he was taking an awful chance."

Hill said he was one of four or five employes who instructed Lindbergh, who once wrote he was never near a plane until he went to Lincoln.

Hill began flying in 1913 and gave it up only last year. He has papered his room with aviation memorabilia, including clippings about Lindbergh. "Those days we didn't do much teaching, just showing them how to take it up and get it down." Of the era's single-engine biplanes, Hill said, "They took off at 80, flew at 80 and landed at 80.

Hill said Lindbergh's lessons came to an abrupt halt when the company president refused to allow him to solo unless he put down a cash bond on the plane. His son, Harold Hill, 64-year-old manager of the Idaho Falls Airport, said the young student's quiet nature made him the perfect foil for the roughedged, veteran barnstormers.

"He was always the goat, the pigeon of practical jokes. He was more quiet, unassuming, not like the hellraisers most of that group were," he said.

Court bill probably

AUSTIN - The bill to create a county court at law in Midland was expected to be passed in the Texas Senate today, Sen. W. E. "Pete' Snelson said.

The legislation was amended by Snelson "to meet the concern of a possible adverse impact in the state district court in Midland." The bill was approved by the Senate Com-mittee on Government Relations Thursday.

Under the amendment, it will be up to the Midland County commissioners to make the finding as to impact. They will have the option of holding a referendum on the matter, Snelson

The county commissioners could activate the court any time after Jan.

After it receives Senate passage, the bill will go back to the House for concurrence in the amendment. The county court at law bill passed the House April 7 under the sponsorship of Rep. Tom Craddick.

Craddick said today he does not anticipate any problem in getting the House to concur today or Saturday.

FROM TEXAS to Minnesota, showers are forecast Friday. Temperatures will be mild in the West and cool in the northern plains. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Lighting control money saver, conference told

Although lighting makes up only five per cent of total energy consumption, proper planning of lighting can result in significant savings for the home and business, according to H. G. "Casey" Jones, residential lighting specialist for Texas Electric

"If we cut out lights altogether, we would reduce energy consumption only by five per cent. But crime would go up, and food processing, clothing manufacturing and furniture manufacturing, among other things, would all come to a halt," he added. Jones was one of three speakers at

Jones went on to say that for years, businesses did not care about the cost of energy, but when the Arab oil embargo came about, it became necessary to control the cost of lighting.

Lighting can be controlled by a normal switch, time clock and photoelectric cell, he said. All three controls used at the same time is an advantage, he added.

In comparing the efficiency of different types of light bulbs, Jones said that Thomas Edison's original bulb put out eight lumens while using eight watts, while the average incandescent light bulb will now put out 20 lumens of light per watt with the fluorescent putting out 70 lumens per watt and the high pressure sodium bulb now putting out 140 lumens per

Rotarians hear Alliance plan

The Midland Alliance is a tri-ethnic group of Midlanders banded together in an effort to insure a safe and orderly transition of the federal courtordered school integration plan which will he instituted here this fall, members of the Downtown Rotary Club were told Thursday noon at their meeting in the Midland Hilton.

The purpose, program organization, objectives and general procedure of the Alliance were reviewed for the Rotarians by several Alliance representatives, headed by President Parker Humes.

"Midland Together" is the theme of the community-wide effort.

Humes discussed implementation of the school plan and told how the Alliance program fits into the program in an effort to insure that no unfortunate incidents occur during the transition period. He said the endorsement and support of the entire business community, financially and otherwise, is needed in the all-out effort. The city's financial institutions and other organizations, including the Midland Association of Churches, the Midland Ministerial Association, the Midland City Council of the Parent Teacher Association, and others already have endorsed the program, Humes said.

"We intend to make the school plan work for the betterment of our public schools and for the community," he

Ted Kerr then reviewed the background of public school integration in Midland and cited the various court orders handed down through the years, culminating with the most recent one issued last summer.

Wallace Craig outlined the three phases of the integration plan, as

1. The first four grades, kindergarten through third, of the elementary schools will continue as neighborhood schools.

2. The clustering of Midland's 19 the best educational program.

elementary schools will include grades four through six, with fourth graders going to a certain school, fifth graders to another and sixth graders to yet another.

3. All students through the third grade will make cultural enrichment field trips during the school year.

Roger Robles discussed transportation plans and schedules and said that adeguate provisions for safety will be made. He said the bus drivers and supervisors will be trained especially for their jobs.

Margaret Titus, in her remarks concerning the school's program as planned, said that it will give every child opportunity to develop to his or her full potential.

She said that greater emphasis will be placed on reading and math, with ability groupings in both subjects to be instituted. She cited other benefits, including more time for reading, each teacher will have one grade level. more material resources will be available, and music and art also will

Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, in his "wrap-up" message, said that the Alliance project undoubtedly is the most significant program under way here at this time, a program which will have "far-reaching effect on the lives of everyone in the community. He sounded a call for communitywide support in order to assure a "safe and orderly transition in August," along with the "creation of additional programs and services in the schools to further educational excellence.

Dr. Smith said the program offers many advantages and presents a new thrust in education in the community.

"Everyone can and should become involved in the program," he said. "If we respond as we should, we will assure every child in the city an opportunity to achieve his full potential, and we will continue to have the best community, with the best schools and

Officials searching for grey cat

Midland Animal Shelter officials are looking for a cat which bit a young girl. It was last seen Saturday in the 3200 block of Hill

Avenue. The cat is a large male with long dark grey hair and a scar

over his right eye. The girl's family has started shots for her, Jane Yarger, animal shelter director, said. As a general rule, she said, animal bite victims wait 10 days before starting shots. However, the girl had developed an infection on her hand where the cat bit her, Mrs.

Yarger explained. When found, the cat will be put to sleep and its brain will be sent to a state lab for examination for rabies, Yarger said. If the cat is found to have rabies, she said, other animals may have come in contact with it. An animal may contract rabies from a rabid animal by being bitten or by drinking from the same water source, such as a bowl or puddle because the disease is transmitted by means of saliva, she Charges of felony marijuana possession were filed today against Ricardo C. Garcia, 19, of 1905 E. Front St. after Midland police arrested three suspects Thursday night.

According to reports, police began pursuit of a car about 8:14 p.m. near the intersection of Wadley Road and Lamesa Road for not displaying the front license plate.

Police said the car was stopped in the 1100 block of E. Spruce Avenue. Officers retrived a brown bag they said was thrown from the car. Officers said the bag contained what they believed to be marijuana. Bond for Garcia was set at $5,000 by Justice of the Peace John H. Biggs.

Carter calls officer on carpet for story

WASHINGTON (AP) - On orders from a displeased President Carter. the third-ranking U.S. Army general in Korea is flying here for a face-toface White House confrontation triggered by his public criticism of Carter's plan to withdraw American ground forces from South Korea.

At issue is Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub's public statement that adherence to Carter's plan for withdrawing U.S. ground forces from South Korea over a period of four to five years "will lead to war.

Singlaub was to arrive in Washington today, but White House officials said Thursday they did not know if Carter would see the general Saturday or make him cool his heels until Monday.

The 55-year-old Singlaub, chief of staff of the United Nations Command in Korea, was believed to be the first high-ranking officer called home from overseas by a President since Harry S. Truman recalled Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Korea, during the war there, in 1951.

Although Carter spokesman Rex Granum declined Thursday to say what the President has in mind for Singlaub, another White House official said, when asked if the President was displeased:

"He wasn't happy. Here you have a general making a policy statement when he (Carter) is the commander

Another Carter aide suggested you could guess the President's reaction "toward one who said something like that" by keeping in mind the fact that Carter once was a professional Navy

The quick White House reaction was dramatized by the speed of his recall. A Pentagon spokesman said Singlaub received, through the chain of command, his order from Carter by 10 a.m., Washington time, Thursday - the same day the general's comments were published.

The general boarded a commercial airliner in Seoul on Thursday night for the long flight home

The Pentagon said it was not known if Singlaub would return to his Korean

Singlaub reportedly said of Carter's withdrawal plan, which was among the President's oft-repeated campaign pledges:

"If we withdraw our ground forces on the schedule suggested it will lead

Likud garners majority

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Late returns from the Israeli election give Menahem Begin's conservative Likud bloc and its potential coalition partners enough votes for a small but effective majority in the 120-member Knesset, Israel's parliament, election committee sources said today.

The unofficial count of civilian ballots from Tuesday's election gave Likud 43 seats in the 120-member parliament while the religious and right-wing partners that are expected to support it had 19 seats. This would give the coalition a total of 62 and a majority of four.

The sources said Likud was expected to pick up another seat from the still incomplete military returns for a total of 63, or a majority of six.

Meanwhile, the Labor party, which dominated Israeli politics from the founding of the state in 1948 until the election, rejected Likud leader Begin's invitation to form an all-party unity coalition. The late returns gave Labor 32 seats, one fewer than earlier returns indicated it would win and 19 fewer than its count in the 1973 election.

Begin, first in line to become prime minister, emphasized his opposition to Israel's relinquishing any of the West Bank of the Jordan river with a visit on Thursday to an unauthorized Jewish settlement at Kaddum, near Nablus, the volatile Arab capital of the West Bank.

Begin proclaimed the West Bank the "liberated land of Israel" and promised more Jewish settlements to cement Israel's hold on the territory, which it captured in the 1967 war.

The leader of the Labor party, Acting Prime Minister Shimon Peres, cited this stand in rejecting Begin's invitation to join in a coalition.

"Likud offers no alternative for peace," he told his party's central committee. "The gulf between us is

The Laborites say they would release some of the territory but planned to ring it with military posts and paramilitary settlements.

The Arab states demand return of all territory captured by Israel in the 1967 war, and they want the West-Bank for a Palestinian state.

Meanwhile, Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Hafez Assad of Syria met Thursday with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, to discuss the results of the Israeli elections "and a common Arab stand should there be any changes in the Middle East situation," Cairo Radio reported.

Strip mining bill to receive final vote in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) - After six years of fierce legislative battles and two presidential vetoes, Congress is ready to pass tough strip mining controls that are almost certain to become law. The Senate strip mine control bill due for a final vote today closely resembles one already passed by the House. Backers of the Senate bill, thus far able to turn back weakening amendments, are predicting easy passage

Although differences in the Senate and House versions would have to be ironed out, the proposal's backers are hopeful the final draft will soon be on President Carter's desk.

Carter has promised to sign the legislation Environmentalists claim the Senate bill is more lenient than the House version in several respects.

The Senate version would give most Appalachian strip mining companies a 30-month exemption from restoring surface areas once the coal is mined. The House bill has a nine-month exemption.

And the Senate bill would allow more leeway in strip mining on western valley ranch and farmlands. The House bill has an outright ban on such mining.

However, sponsors of the measure in both houses say they feel compromises on these issues can be

Watergate gets blame for collapse of South Vietnam

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former South Vietnam Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky blames Watergate for his nation's fall, saying that a strong Richard Nixon would never have let South Vietnam collapse. Ky, now operating a liquor store-delicatessen in suburban Norwalk, viewed former President Nixon's and said, "I don't want to blame Mr. Nixon. 'If Nixon had stayed in, and with the power of the United States president intact, he could have put a lot of pressure on the Communists to respect the treaty. What happened was Watergate, and the power of the American president was no more. By the time Ford came to power, Ky said, "He had another situation on his mind. Ford had nothing to gain by sticking to the (South) Vietnamese.

Ky said that what Nixon claimed to be his "solution" to the war — the Vietnamization program was in fact a policy that Ky himself thought of and Nixon implemented at his suggestion. "I personally convinced them (Nixon and Pentagon staff leaders) to accept the Vietnamization plan, to pull out and let Vietnamese fight the war," Ky said Ky agreed with Nixon's assessment of the 1970 invasion of Cambodia as being necessary, but said Nixon was wrong in calling it "one of the most effective" operations of the war.' "It was successful, but only halfway," said Ky, who claimed to have crossed the Cambodian border himself at the time. He said there were three divisions of North Vietnamese across the Cambodian border at the time, and while the U.S.-South Viet namese offensive was successful in dispersing part of the sanctuary, it failed by stopping short of wiping out all three divisions. Nixon, while saying Presidents Kennedy and Johnson were right in entering Vietnam, criticized their conduct of the war, and Ky agreed.

"I told President Johnson that the best way to fight the war is to have Vietnamese fight the war themselves, to defend themselves," Ky said. "They didn't listen to me.

Social Security fund

The Social Security System is not going broke, for the simple reason that too many American voters are depending on it. So Social Security is here to stay. The system never is going to wither away. Instead it is likely to spread and expand.

But the system is in trouble. Congress generously has raised the benefits beyond what the system can pay from present revenues. The statesmen on Capitol Hill always have been more eager to vote for spending programs than to vote for the taxes to pay for them. And Social Security is no exception.

Public attitudes reflect the same inconsistency. The prospect of increased Social Security taxes irks the average man. And yet when his mother reaches retirement age, he wants every benefit of the system paid on time and in full, with regular adjustments for the cost of living and program enrichment if possible.

A sensible and sound check on irresponsibility has been built into

That check should be retained, if possible. President Carter's proposal to tap the general fund of the federal government to bail out the Social Security fund in periods of high unemployment should be resisted. It would only introduce the camel's nose under the fiscal tent. Soon Congress would be blithely voting higher Social Security benefits before every election and kiting the federal debt to pay for them. This wasn't the way the program was intended. And it still isn't the proper procedure.

Bombs shatter peace in Chilean capital

BY WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

The two bombs that were detonated in Santiago one night in late April were the first reported terrorist explosions in the Chilean capital in over a year and a half.

That was a record probably unexcelled in Latin America. Even in the few countries that are considered democracies, bombings are much more frequent than that. In Bogota, Colombia, alone, eight incendiary devices were hurled at public buildings early Monday, May 2.

But the bombings in Chile did serve to shatter the relative peace and quiet that help explain why foreign visitors to that beleaguered South American country had been coming away amazed at the composure of the Chilean people and their apparent satisfaction with the militarydominated government that runs the

Even Latin Americans, who should know better, have been propagandized into expecting to find Chile a battleground, with innocent people cowering in their homes out of fear of arrest by secret police, with frequent gunfights in the streets, and, above all, with lots of bombs, which are a favorite terrorist weapon.

A few hours later, at 3 a.m. Friday, about an hour after curfew cleared the streets, the second bomb went off, breaking windows in the front of the Palace of Justice in downtown Santiago.

There have been several subsequent bombings, too. Authorities blame them on "extremist elements who are trying to disturb public or-

Still, the terrorists definitely are a minority and what they stand for is not what Chileans want.

The latest Gallup poll, one of several taken in Chile in recent years. suggested that Chileans prefer a strong military government to an elected civilian regime, at this time at

Only 12 per cent of those polled indicated preference for prompt elections. Eighty two per cent did not want elections yet.

The point is academic. The government has "dissolved" all political parties in Chile. Ihe Communists and other Marxists were outlawed in 1973; the non-Marxist parties were officially shut down in March. Clearly, the Chilean armed forces are not planning to turn the country back to partisan civilian rule for awhile

It seems that Chileans fear that were elections to be held in the near future, they might turn out much like those of 1970

Then President Salvador Allende, candidate of the Marxist coalition, Popular Unity, gained power with just over a third of the popular vote. He won the three man race for the presidency with 36.3 per cent of the ballots cast. Former President Jorge Alessandri came in second with 34.9 The left-leaning Christian Democrat, Radomiro Tomic, finished third with 27.8 per cent.

The Chilean people give evidence of having learned a lot during the nearly three years that Allende tried to implant socialism in Chile. However. there has been no indication that non-Marxist political leaders yet recognize that the Marxists are quite capable of using democratic methods to try to destroy democracy.

The Christian Democrat Party, Chile's largest, is split.

The left wing would join forces with the Communists and other Marxists against the current military government. The right wing resists overt alliance with the Marxists but, at the same time, has refused to cooperate with the armed forces' junta. The half-dozen Marxist groups that participated in the Allende government have been making some effort to maintain a united front. But their top leaders are now living in exile, and the Communists have not stopped blaming the hot-headed Socialists who provoked the Chilean armed forces into toppling Allende.

That being the case, few thoughtful Chilean democrats seem to see anything to be gained by holding elections that would predictably result only in renewed political chaos.

Better to wait a few years until, hopefully, Chile's economic health has been regained and political passions and ambitions have cooled.

Business rocked by Carter's one-two high-tax punch

BY ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Little more than a week after conservative business consultant Pierre Rinfret informed corporate clients that he was going bullish on the economy thanks to a reformed . Jimmy Carter, the President dulled the euphoria by asking $30 billion in new Social Security taxes on employers.

The Social Security program, like the energy program, was conceived not as part of the overall Carter economic strategy of mollifying business but as a detached proposal. Just as the delighted surprise in Dr. Rinfret's memo to his clients was spreading among investors, they were rocked by the one-two high-tax punch of energy and Social Security.

On top of this came the higher interest rates induced by the Federal Reserve Board, an act incomprehensible to many economists and infuriating to administration officials. However, no matter how bad the impact of this ill-advised interest rate hike may be, it would not be as. damaging as an open break between the Fed and the administration.

At best, this triple punch merely undercuts slowly growing confidence of business in the new Democratic President. At worst, it could abort the recovery before 1977 is ended. The culprit is a government lacking a coherent economic strategy, taking back with the left hand what the right

President Carter's peak of credibility with business came April 14 when, by abandoning his unloved $50 tax rebate, he convinced Wall Street and Main Street that he really meant to balance the budget. Dr.

Charls Walker, Republican deputy treasury secretary in Nixon days, praised Mr. Carter in his economic newsletter for "a stunning and politically courageous act."

Two weeks later, praise came from an even more unlikely Republican source. Rinfret, sometime economic adviser to Richard Nixon and John B. Connally, had forecast anti-business bias in the Carter administration. Now, Rinfret informed his clients in a 'confidential' memo, he was becoming a bull for the first time since Vietnam made him a bear in

"Our perception of Carter has changed materially," Rinfret wrote. Budget Director Bert Lance and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal "are sympathetic to the private sector" and were responsible for opposing organized labor's common situs picketing and minimum wage proposals. "The administration is working to restore. the confidence of industry in the future of the United States." Most important, Rinfret concluded, the administration "is willing to do something to help create new

Such sentiments were building a new business climate which one key figure in the Ford administration privately predicted was generating a capital investment boom. Antibusiness aspects of the energy program, which largely bypassed Lance and Blumenthal, tempered the exuberance but did not stop it.

Much more dampening was the Social Security proposal to add $30 billion in taxes on business, viewed even by pro-Carter businessmen as irrational. This attempt to juggle the Social Security books from red to black ink was devised by Secretary Joseph Califano, former architect of the Great Society, and his bureaucrats at Health, Education and Welfare. Domestic aides in the White House, not happy about the Lance-Blumenthal policy anyway, endorsed Califano's ideas.

Once again, Lance and Blumenthal. were late arrivals in considering Social Security. Blumenthal certainly restrained his enthusiasm on ABC's 'Issues and Answers' last Sunday Asked "what do your friends in business" think about the $30 billion tax hike, Blumenthal bluntly replied: "They don't like it...they don't like it at all." He then fired a shot over Califano's bow by suggesting business would simply pass the tax on to consumers - a notion vigorously rejected by Califano.

Nor is the ill effect limited to corporate America. Pollster Albert Sindlinger reports that confusion over the energy program and unin-tentionally induced fear over the bankrupt condition of Social Security are undermining consumer confidence. But what worries Sindlinger. most is the impact of the Fed's higher interest rates. Although the Fed was probably no more than reacting automatically to dubious new figures on the money supply, its action on interest rates is viewed in upper reaches of the Carter administration as the betrayal by Chairman Arthur Burns of Carter's sincere moves toward fiscal conservatism. Lance has expressed his displeasure. Blumenthal, seeking to maintain his scrupulously cultivated relationship with Dr. Burns, has held his tongue rather than reflect the outrage at the Treasury.

Paradoxically, much of this is spirits and shadows. The Fed's action may be taken in stride; much of the energy program will never be passed; the Social Security tax boost is far away, if ever. But business moods are shaped by style as much as substance, and Mr. Carter - so much the stylist - has faltered in his style just as he neared success, with economic recovery at stake.

Doctor aid bills to receive votes

AUSTIN (AP) - State representatives vote today on bills continuing stopgap measures to protect Texas doctors in case efforts to write a compromise medical malpractice, insurance bill fails.

Also up for action was an oral confessions bill that touched off fiery oratory Thursday when it won preliminary House approval.

The malpractice bills continue the risk-sharing pool, or Joint Underwriting Association, for doctors who can't obtain coverage on their own; retain State Insurance Board power to veto rates; and give patients three years from the date of an injury or one year from its discovery to sue their doctors.

House-Senate negotiations over a bill providing permanent malpractice legislation are at a stalemate.

The oral confessions bill would require that a defendant's statement be tape recorded and include his answers to the usual warning of his right to silence and counsel. Prosecutors would have to prove the tape was not tampered with

Before it won tentative approval Thursday, the bill was blasted as an attempt to impair defendants' rights and praised as an effort to protect > Hofheinz said Thursday he is willing to "let a few days go by" if the U. S. Justice Department acts swiftly to prosecute those responsible for the May 6 death of Jose Campos Torres Jr., 23, whose body was found floating in a bayou.

Houston policeman Terry W. Denson, 27, has been charged with murder. Four other policemen were fired and another placed on tem-

"I think it is a crucial test of the prosecution system," Hofheinz said. "I'm not going to sit by and see this thing go unprosecuted."

Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol S. Vance has said he will temporarily delay seeking indictments in state court because he thinks the case can be better handled first as an alleged civil rights violation under federal law.

Mondale launches effort to extend rights campaign

By JIM HOAGLAND The Washington Post

VIENNA - Vice President Walter Mondale launched an effort to extend the Carter administration's human rights campaign into southern Africa Thursday in six hours of talks with South African Prime Minister John

Both sides refused any comment on the meeting as they left the Hofburg Imperial Palace in Central Vienna. Mondale and Vorster will meet there Friday for two final hours of talks.

In their public statements going into the meeting — seen by both sides as a crucial factor in resolving guerrilla wars in Rhodesia and Namibia and in the future of white rule in South Africa - the two men appeared to promise an unyielding exchange of conflicting views.

But they announced unexpectedly that they were adding a second hour of talks Friday morning, indicating that an immediate impasse had not developed. Mondale leaves for Belgrade Friday afternoon.

South African officials fear that the Carter administration intends to chill relations at least as deeply as did the Kennedy administration's "Africa for the Africans" policy of the early

South Africa's new foreign minister, R.R. (Pik) Botha, set in motion the process that led to Thursday's meeting in large part to let Vorster explore this troubling prospect first

Botha, South Africa's ambassador to Washington until April, sat at Vorster's right as the two delegations faced each other over a long conference table at the start of the fourth high-level meeting between the two countries in less than a year.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met Vorster three times last year and implicitly relaxed American pressures on South Africa in return for Vorster's support in an abortive effort to settle the Rhodesian

Mondale's guarded statements to reporters since he left Washington Saturday suggest that he came to Vienna to stress to Vorster that the Carter administration, while eager to get his help on Rhodesia will not offer tolerance for apartheid as a guid pro

Cambodian government again seeks foreign trade

By GEORGE McARTHUR The Los Angeles Times

BANGKOK, Thailand - The Cambodian government, which abolished money and preached self-reliance when it came to power two years ago, is getting involved again in foreign trade.

To what extent the government in Phnom Penh is buying and selling abroad is difficult to ascertain. Some of the trade is thought to be with Communist countries and some of it involves smuggling, apparently with official sanction.

What seems clear is that the government has recognized that it cannot achieve any real growth or recovery without imported machinery, vehicles and other equipment, and that it has retreated somewhat from its insistence on selfreliance

It seems clear, too, that increased foreign trade will mean further suffering for the already hard-pressed Cambodian people. Ieng Sary, Cambodia's deputy prime minister, said recently in Malaysia that his government wanted to export 100,000 tons of rice this year, even though last January's rice crop fell short, according to Western officials, of meeting Cambodia's own needs. Most of Cambodia's trade, apart from possible Iron Curtain deals that are not made public, has been carried on through Hong Kong, but Western experts are intribued by the volume that apparently passes through the Thai border town of Aranyaprathet.

Independent Mozambique complicated

MAPUTO, Mozambique - After two years of independence. Mozambique is complicated and contradicory, a little like its flag.

The flag has varicolored rays radiating from the national emblem in the top left corner - a gear wheel around a book, plus a rifle crossed with a hoe.

A foreigner, one of the few allowed to stay on after the black majority came to power with independence, explained this way:

"The flag tells the whole story. The government is trying to do everything at once, but every effort is at loggerheads with some other effort."

Still, to a first-time visitor, this city of about 300,000 looks a lot better than expected, at least on the surface.

A former Portuguese colonial capital, it is laid out much like the mother city, Lisbon, with shade trees and lots of sidewalks for promenading. This week, during a United Nations conference, the city is serene, and a cleaning brigade is keeping the streets spotless.

But economic problems are obvious. There are sidewalk cafes, but the waiters bring only tea. Coffee is imported and expensive. You can order ham for breakfast at the Hotel Tivoli, but there are no eggs.

airlines, passengers must wait weeks for a seat. A real crunch is expected Saturday. Hundreds of conference participants will be leaving, and no one knows how many others will be trying to get out.

Mozambique's president, Samora Machel, has ordered most of the remaining foreign businessmen to leave the country. These men and their families began pulling out several weeks ago and, by the end of the month, the number leaving may total 15,000. Most are Portuguese.

In another move to purify the Marxist state. Machel's government has taken over the oil industry from its Portuguese and French owners.

The government still welcomes tourists, but there are few. The department of tourism, trying to save money, distributes old maps and brochures that still show Maputo as Lorenco Marques, its colonial name. Streets have been renamed for Socialists like Mao Tse-tung and Friedreich Engels, but the old street signs are still up, so finding one's way is difficult. There are surprises at almost every turn. Posters and slogans adorn the walls with messages to the people from the Frelimo, the nation's only political party. There are billboards with handprinted news that is updated daily. The news items are interspersed with exhortations to work and continue the ideological struggle. Although the literacy rate is only 20 per cent in the country as a whole, it is much higher in Maputo.

Machel is known as a fiery speaker, in the style of Cuba's Fidel Castro, and he is credited with a hard-headed effort to rebuild the economy.

What construction was in progress when the Portuguese left two years ago continues, if at a slow

"There's hope that things will work out," the foreigner said, "if Machel would only establish priorities and not try to move ahead with everything at once.'

board's efforts to make policies more readable

Christie said he is "trying to bottle it (the bill) up in the calendar com-mittee" of the House. If that fails, the bill will be fought on the floor of the House, and, should it pass, he will ask Briscoe to veto the bill.

Christie said Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland voted against the bill in the Senate.

On the topic of medical malpractice insurance, Christie said the board's primary involvement has been to act as an adviser to the Legislature on what the effect of various measures will be. He said either the House or Senate versions of the bill will alleviate the crisis in the malpractice insurance field.

Christie said the likelihood is that a proposed bill to require purchase of automobile liability insurance before license tags are issued will fail.

Arab-Israeli peace affected by vote?

By H.D.S. GREENWAY The Washington Post

JERUSALEM — Any timetable for advancing an Arab-Israeli peace settlement this year, a major objective of the Carter administration, has most probably been thwarted by the Israeli election results.

The man most likely to lead the new government, rightist Likud party leader Menahem Begin, said Wednesday on the crucial issue of the ter-doubt and speculation.

-With only 41 seats out of a total of 120 in the next Parliament, Likud's chances of being able to put together a stable and lasting coalition govern-ment are exceedingly doubtful. This is of itself a major reason that progress toward a Middle East settlement may have to be postponed.

-Whatever the international considerations, Tuesday's vote was far more a defeat for the ruling Labor party than a victory for Likud. With 39 seats in the last parliament,

Likud picked up only two seats while the labor alignment dropped to 33 seats from the 54 it held in the last parliament, a dramatic loss of 21

There has been talk here Wednesday, and Labor's leader Shimon Peres hinted Tuesday night, that the Carter administration's loose talk about Palestinian homelands, borders with only minor adjustments plus other statements and actions frightened Israelis and took votes

The prognosis that progress toward peace has not been enhanced by Likud's victory Tuesday is based on more than the fact that Likud is more hawkish than either Labor or the third-place party, the Democratic Movement for Change.

Likud is opposed to any territorial concessions on the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, while the Labor Party and the Democratic Movement are on record as favoring territorial concessions in all the occupied territories in exchange for peace.

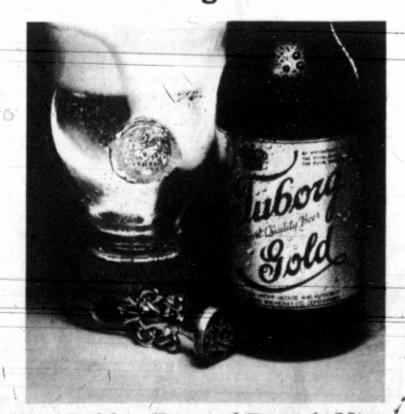

Begin argued Wednesday that neither the Americans nor the Arabs have ever shown any enthusiasm for the various trial balloons floated by Labor's leaders, such as the Allon Plan, which envisions keeping about a third of the West Bank. Therefore, Begin said, the Labor Party's relative dovishness meant very little in real terms, as neither party intended that Israel return to the 1967 borders.

It has also been argued that the responsibilities and realities of power, as opposed to years in opposition, will have a moderating effect on Likud, so that foreign policy will not fluctate wildly. Even if Labor had won, it would have had to hold new elections before it could have ceded territory on the West Bank.
Ranged against these consideration, however, is the fear that the relative inflexibility of Likud on territorial concessions may make it difficult even to begin a process of serious negotiations.

OSHA to crack down on hazards

By HELEN DEWAR The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A new govern-ment drive to crack down on major occupational health and safety hazards instead of "nitpicking" small businesses with "Mickey Mouse" regulations was announced Thursday by Labor Secretary Ray Marshall.

"There will be no more petty regulations like those dealing with coat hooks in bathrooms ... We're going to stop the absurd practice of printing 15 pages of regulations, in small type, on the safety of ladders," said Marshall in outlining what he described as a "new era" for the often criticized and ridiculed Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Industry has criticized OSHA for harassing businesses with trifling but burdensome safety rules, and organized labor has accused OSHA of ignoring serious health hazards and both are right, said Marshall.

"The worst thing about wasting time and money on nitpicking regulations," said the secretary, "is that you shortchange the fight against the most serious dangers to human life and limb in high-risk workplaces."

Key elements of the new policy, as unveiled at a press conference by Marshall and Eula Bingham, the new OSHA chief, include:

-Devoting 95 per cent of OSHA's inspections, instead of the current 80 to 85 per cent, to such high-risk industries as construction, manufacturing, transportation and petrochemicals.

-Stressing development of health regulations for broad catagories of potentially deadly dangers, such as cancer-causing substances, rather than detailed prescriptions for individual job risks

-Epitomized by OSHA's existing 35 pages of rules on the desdign of "exit"

-Simplifying existing regulations that are "needlessly detailed, complicated or unclear" and eliminating others that are outdated or unnecessary, many of which were designed as guidelines by private groups or other governmental agencies and imposed as OSHA regulations by congressional directive.

-Lifting penalties for violating standards that "have nothing to do with worker health or safety" until they are formally rewritten or revok-

Marshall said Thursday's anto hold up nouncement was aimed at part in proving that "we mean business" to OSHA's critics, some of whom have been pushing in Congress for repeal of the 6-year-old program.

He said the OSHA reform effort had the "strong backing" of President Carter, who has said he wants to "enforce the law rigidly" but with "a maximum amount of support from labor and industry." Said Marshall with a smile: "What the President has a strong interest in I have a strong

Diabetics must severely restrict their intake of sugar and carbohydrates to avoid a condition known as aketoacidosis, which can lead to such complications as kidney disease, heart failure, stroke, blindness and gangrene.

The toothpaste industry and dentists joined the fight against the ban, saying that the tiny amounts of sacchrin ingested as people brush their teeth are insignificant. Banning the sugar substitute would increase tooth decay because people wouldn't brush if their toothpaste didn't taste good, the witnesses said.

Some 600 prescription drugs also contain saccharin to make them more palatable.

During a 1969 tour of Vietnam, Nixon smiles his way through a visit with American troops.

Nixon's aid agreement claimed 'not binding'

By RICHARD PYLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressman who disclosed Richard Nixon's secret agreement to give up to $5 billion in U.S. aid to North Vietnam says the promise is not binding on the current administration.

Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y., said the agreement is "an historical document, null and void." His opinion is shared by Nixon, and more importantly by President Carter, who has said he does not feel bound by any of Nixon's commitments.

Details of the four-year-old agreement were revealed officially for the first time Thursday in a previously classified document released first by the State Department and then by Wolff, who also made public a recent letter from Nixon explaining his views on the subject.

While asserting that the documents proved Nixon and senior State Department officials "consistently misled" Congress and the public about the aid agreement, Wolff said the disclosure should not give the Vietnamese any "false hopes" that the aid is forthcoming.

"As has been firmly indicated by the Carter administration, by the Congress and by Mr. Nixon ... events of the past have no bearing on any future agreements which may be negotiated. The Paris peace accords have been breached and therefore voided by the actions of all signators," Wolff said.

agreement was a Feb. 1, 1973, letter from Nixon to North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, declaring that under the peace pact signed three days earlier, the United States would contribute about $3.5 billion in postwar reconstruction aid to his regime "without any political conditions." Talk impasse eased, compromise plan set

By BARRY SCHWEID

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A breakthrough is reported in the nuclear arms talks between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, and a compromise formula has been referred to Moscow.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators indicated they should know today or Saturday whether the two superpowers are going to be able to agree on their second treaty — SALT II — to limit or reduce their arsenals of longrange nuclear weapons.

Informed sources said the compromise formula, reached in a five-hour meeting Thursday and subject to approval by President Carter and the Kremlin, was a blend of a Russian proposal and the U.S. package rejected by Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev last March.

The sources gave this outline of the

1. Each government would make a modest reduction in its nuclear arsenals and would agree to hold another round of talks on further weapons cuts

2. Development of the U.S. Cruise missile would be limited, and restrictions would be put on where the Soviets could base their Backfire bombers.

The Backfire and the Cruise have been the chief obstacles to agreement in negotiations for the past two years to incorporate the 1974 Vladivostok agreement by President Ford and Brezhnev into a treaty. It provided for each nation to be limited to 2,400 longrange bombers and intercontinental missiles. But the two governments could not agree whether the new Soviet bomber and the new American missile should be included in these ceilings.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt
Waldheim told reporters "deep differences" remained between the U.S. and Soviet positions and predicted it his assessment was based on a breakfast meeting with Vance before the long negotiating session Thursday.

Vance and Gromyko on Thursday also discussed the Middle East, but it was apparent that their hopes of reconvening an Arab-Israeli peace conference this year were dimmed by the victory of the hard-line Likud bloc in Tuesday's Israeli election.

Gromyko told reporters the situation there "is not normal" and is "potentially dangerous," but Vance said the region "has continued dangerous for a long while" before the Likud victory.

Lighting control can save money, meeting told

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

Although lighting makes up only five per cent of total energy consumption, proper planning of lighting can result in significant savings for the home and business, according to H. G. "Casey" Jones, residential lighting specialist for Texas Electric Service Co.

"If we cut out lights altogether, we would reduce energy consumption only by five per cent. But crime would go up, and food processing, clothing manufacturing and furniture manufacturing, among other things, would all come to a halt," he added.

Jones was one of three speakers at an energy conference Thursday night sponsored by Texas Electric Service Co., Pioneer Natural Gas Co. and The U.S. Small Business Administration.

Jones went on to say that for years, businesses did not care about the cost of energy, but when the Arab oil embargo came about, it became

Lighting can be controlled by a normal switch, time clock and photoelectric cell, he said. All three controls used at the same time is an advantage, he added.

In comparing the efficiency of different types of light bulbs, Jones said that Thomas Edison's original bulb put out eight lumens while using eight watts, while the average incandescent light bulb will now put out 20 lumens of light per watt with the fluorescent putting out 70 lumens per watt and the high pressure sodium bulb now putting cut 140 lumens per watt, he said.

Jones quoted George Carnig, a former lighting specialist, as saying if the auto industry had kept up with development in efficiency as has the light bulb, cars would be getting 700 to 800 miles per gallon today.

In order to get the most efficient use of lighting, he noted, more efficient types of light bulbs should be used, along with highly reflective walls and ceilings.

"I was once in a room with brown carpet and walls along with walnut furniture. In order to get the proper lighting for that room, you would have to run everyone out because of the heat," Jones said.

Incandescent bulbs are the most

Incandescent bulbs are the most ineffecient type because they put out more heat than light. The more efficient types are fluorescent, sodium and metal halide, he said.

Bob Brewer, regional marketing manager of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. in Lubbock, said proper insulation of homes and businesses can also provide significant energy savings. "Insulation has gone from 2 per cent to 18 per cent in the past several years," he said, "and I don't know where the amount is going to stop." The only worry about too much insulation is the possibility of con-

Lindbergh teacher recalls first lessons

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Charles A. Lindbergh rode up on an old motorcycle, strode in to the president of a Nebraska airplane company, plunked down $500 and said he wanted to learn to fly, says one of the men who taught him.

Seated on the edge of his bed in a rest home here, Wilbur "Pete" Hill, 88, reminisced about the lanky 20 year old he met in 1922, five years before Lindbergh electrified the world by flying alone from New York to Paris, 50 years ago today.

"He was very brilliant and a devoted student," said Hill, who then managed the Lincoln Standard Aircraft Co. in Lincoln, Neb. "He was an apt student because he wanted to learn and gave of his time."

Describing his thoughts about Lindbergh's landmark flight, Hill said, "I didn't necessarily think he was crazy, but I thought he was taking an awful chance."

Hill said he was one of four or five employes who instructed Lindbergh, who once wrote he was never near a plane until he went to Lincoln.

Hill began flying in 1913 and gave it up only last year. He has papered his room with aviation memorabilia, including clippings about Lindbergh.

"Those days we didn't do much teaching, just showing them how to take it up and get it down." Of the era's single-engine biplanes, Hill said, "They took off at 80, flew at 80 and landed at 80." Hill said Lindbergh's lessons came to an abrupt halt when the company president refused to allow him to solo unless he put down a cash bond on the plane.

His son, Harold Hill, 64-yearold manager of the Idaho Falls Airport, said the young student's quiet nature made him the perfect foil for the roughedged, veteran barnstormers.

"He was always the goat, the pigeon of practical jokes. He was more quiet, unassuming, not like the hellraisers most of that group were," he said.

Court bill probably will pass

AUSTIN — The bill to create a county court at law in Midland was expected to be passed in the Texas Senate today, Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson said.

The legislation was amended by Snelson "to meet the concern of a possible adverse impact in the state district court in Midland." The bill was approved by the Senate Committee on Government Relations Thursday.

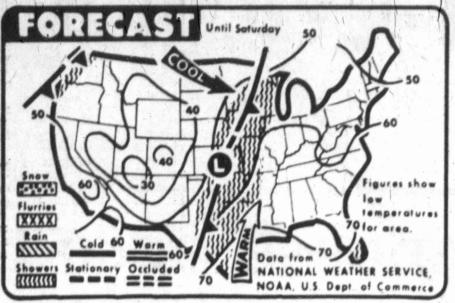

Under the amendment, it will be up to the Midland County commissioners to make the finding as to impact. They will have the option of holding a referendum on the matter, Snelson said

The county commissioners could activate the court any time after Jan. 1.1978.

After it receives Senate passage, the bill will go back to the House for concurrence in the amendment.

The county court at law bill passed the House April 7 under the sponsorship of Rep. Tom Craddick. Craddick said today he does not anticipate any problem in getting the House to concur today or Saturday.

FROM TEXAS to Minnesota, showers are forecast Friday Temperatures will be mild in the West and cool in the northern plains. (AP Laserphoto Map)

But she's really counting on an airing in Houston or Dallas-Fort Worth to send her into the fame

However, convincing a disc jockey to play a Matney record can be taxing

"It's getting even tighter with the DJs now in getting any action off of them without any payola," Matney

Once her voice gets around the state and country, maybe Billboard magazine will take note of her and then, perhaps, the major recording companies. They have the connections, the marketing know-how, to help boost a promising artist.

It takes luck, too.

"No matter how good you are, you still have to get the lucky breaks. Matney is optimistic. She has confidence in her talent. At the same time, she's realistic. It's a rough 'n' tough business.

'It's real competitive, because there are so many people that have talent and so many that get by without having any (talent), but they get the lucky breaks.

Rotarians hear Alliance plan

The Midland Alliance is a tri-ethnic group of Midlanders banded together in an effort to insure a safe and orderly transition of the federal courtordered school integration plan which will he instituted here this fall, members of the Downtown Rotary Club were told Thursday noon at their meeting in the Midland Hilton.

The purpose, program organization, objectives and general procedure of the Alliance were reviewed for the Rotarians by several Alliance representatives, headed by President Parker Humes

"Midland Together" is the theme of the community-wide effort.

Humes discussed implementation of the school plan and told how the Alliance program fits into the program in an effort to insure that no unfortunate incidents occur during the transition period. He said the endorsement and support of the entire business community, financially and otherwise, is needed in the all-out effort. The city's financial institutions and other organizations, including the Midland Association of Churches, the Midland Ministerial Association, the Midland City Council of the Parent Teacher Association, and others aiready have endorsed the program,

"We intend to make the school plan work for the betterment of our public schools and for the community,

Ted Kerr then reviewed the background of public school integration in Midland and cited the various court orders handed down through the years, culminating with the most recent one issued last

Wallace Craig outlined the three phases of the integration plan, as

1. The first four grades, kindergarten through third, of the elementary schools will continue as neighborhood schools.

2. The clustering of Midland's 19 elementary schools will include grades four through six, with fourth graders going to a certain school, fifth graders to another and sixth graders to yet another.

3. All students through the third grade will make cultural enrichment field trips during the school year.

Roger Robles discussed transportation plans and schedules and said that adequate provisions for safety will be made. He said the bus drivers and supervisors will be trained especially for their jobs.

Margaret Titus, in her remarks concerning the school's program as planned, said that it will give every child opportunity to develop to his or her full potential.

She said that greater emphasis will be placed on reading and math, with ability groupings in both subjects to be instituted. She cited other benefits, including more time for reading, each teacher will have one grade level, more material resources will be available, and music and art also will

Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, in his "wrap-up" message, said that the Alliance project undoubtedly is the most significant program under way here at this time, a program which will have "far-reaching effect on the lives of everyone in the community.' He sounded a call for communitywide support in order to assure a 'safe and orderly transition in August," along with the "creation of the schools to further educational excellence. Dr. Smith said the program offers many advantages and presents a new additional programs and services in thrust in education in the community. "Everyone can and should become involved in the program," he said. "If we respond as we should, we will assure every child in the city an opportunity to achieve his full potential, and we will continue to have the best community, with the best schools and the best educational program.

Officials searching for grey cat

The cat is a large male with long dark grey hair and a scar over his right eye. The girl's family has started shots for her, Jane Yarger, animal shelter director, said. As a general rule, she said, animal bite victims wait 10 days before starting shots. However, the girl had developed an infection on her hand where the cat bit her, Mrs. Yarger explained. When found, the cat will be put to sleep and its brain will be sent to a state lab for examination for rabies, Yarger said. If the cat is found to have rabies, she said, other animals may have come in contact with it. An animal may contract rabies from a rabid animal by being bitten or by drinking from the same water source, such as a bowl or puddle because the disease is transmitted by means of saliva, she said.

The National Junior College Athletic Association's Women's Tennis Tournament held at Midland College this week should be renamed the Sandy Collins Show, after Thursday's final round.

Collins, of San Bernadino Calif. and a freshman at Odessa College, calmly destroyed teammate Andrea Galloway in the singles final, 6-3, 6-1. Later in the day, Collins teamed up with doubles partner Debbie Phillips to take the doubles crown. Collins and Phillips defeated Jana Hanks and Ann Layman of Midland College in the finals match, 6-1, 6-3.

Regarding her play in the two finals matches, Collins said, "I played well.

extremely well and we've had a good tournament together," Phillips said.

Collins, who committed only one double fault all day jumped out to a quick 3-0 lead in the first set of singles final. Galloway then came back to tie the set at 3-3.

The turning point in the first set came in the seventh game. With the set tied at three games apiece, Galloway served. Collins broke Galloway's service, but only after the game had gone to deuce seven times.

Collins played flawlessly the remainder of the match, winning the next three games to close out the set, and winning the last set 6-1.

In the doubles finals match, Collins and Phillips built up an early 4-0 lead in the first set over Hanks and Layman. The Odessa pair went on to win the first set by a 6-1 count. Hanks and Layman appeared to be making a comeback early in the second set, and at one point the set was tied at two games apiece. However, Collins and Phillips overpowered the pair and won the set 6-3.

In other matches, Becky Beggs of Palm Beach, Fla. defeated Jana Hanks of MC 6-0, 6-0 for third place in the singles division. Galloway and Cindy Menna of OC defeated Blanca Barriga and Karen Schuchard of MC 6-2, 6-2 for third place in the doubles

A&M, Baylor shoot all I can say is that we played down SWC opponents

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Tom Chandler mentioned his sophomore pitcher, Mark Ross, in the same breath with San Diego Padres hurler Randy Jones, last year's National League Cy Young award

Chandler didn't even think twice about it.

"He's kind of like Randy Joneshe's not overpowering but he's got that good sinker ball," the Aggies coach said. "Mark looks like the type of pitcher you watch from the grandstand and want to get a bat and go up and hit against him-but he's a

Ross convinced the Arkansas Razorbacks of that and, after losing to him and the Aggies 5-2 in the first round of the Southwest Conference postseason baseball tournament Thursday, they just might prefer to stay in the grandstand and watch him. He yielded five scattered hits.

In the other first round game Baylor nipped Texas 3-2 after jumping into a 3-0 lead. Baylor relief pitcher Shane Nolen coaxed two fly balls from Texas batters for the triumph after Wendell Hibbett led off the ninth inning with his fourth hit of

Travs two out attack sinks Midland Cubs

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Midland Cubs' pitchers learned an important lesson at Cubs Stadium Thursday night. There are three outs to an inning-not two.

The Arkansas Travelers got the two-out hit attack going and pulled out a late inning 9-5 Texas League victory over the Cubs. The Travs now own a 2-1 lead in the five game set as both teams meet again tonight at 7:30.

What had been a tight fisted 3-3 game heading into the eighth frame turned out to be a sinking ship for the Cubs as the Travs scored four runs with two outs in the top of the inning. The Cubs never recovered although they made a game effort.

MIDLAND'S JACK Ledbetter and Arkansas' Steve Waterbury were locked in a 3-3 duel for seven innings with both pitching strong games. Ledbetter was lifted in the seventh for a pinch hitter, however, and replacement Andy Muhlstock, who has been the Cubs chief stopper this year, came in to absorb the loss and the humiliation of the two-out blitz by the Travs. .

Arkansas' Scot Boras opened the eighth with a single to left, but Muhlstock got Nick Leyva on strikes and Mike Ramsey on a sacrifice as the Travs tried to play for the one-run

Muhlstock then suffered through five straight hits, including a two-run triple by John Yeglenski, before it was all over. The Cubs never made up the 7-3 deficit.

THE CUBS got back in the thick of the fight in the bottom of the eighth when Duane Gustavson's single plated two runs to cut the margin to 7-5. Aaron Randall set up Gustavson's key hit with a double to left, moving Steve Davis to third, who had reached Arkansas made it 3-1 in the fifth when Terry Landrum produced a run scoring single.

MIDLAND TIED the score at threeall in the bottom of the fifth with two runs. Ledbetter got a gift triple to center when outfielder Garcia misjudged the ball to open the inning. Ledbetter scored on Kurt Seibert's single to left, and Seibert rode home on a single to center by Karl Gordon.

Two big defensive plays in the seventh kept the Travs from doing a diving stab and perfect throw and rebuilt.

Lee at the plate when Lee tried to score from second on a single by Landrum.

The Cubs killed rallies in the fifth and ninth frames by hitting into double plays, and Joe Hernandez was left at third after a two-out triple off the centerfield wall in the seventh.

CUB PAWS: Midland will send

Wayne Doland against Bret Houser in tonight's special two-bit beer night. Arkansas will end the series Saturday by sending Andy Replogle to the mound against the Cubs. Replogle is the one that lost a no-hitter to Jackson earlier this season in the ninth inning. Replogle was carrying a 2-0 lead in that game with two outs in the ninth and two strikes on Ed Cipot of Jackson. Cipot belted a two-run homer to tie the game and send it into extra innings. The Travs went on to lose that heartbreaker although Replogle was not charged with the decision. Cub players will be in Groover Save—Bashaw. HBP—Leyva Groover Time-2:42 Attn.—549.

Irony study in NBA finals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The matchup of Portland Coach Jack Ramsay against the Philadelphia 76ers for the National Basketball Association title is a study in irony.

It was Ramsay and former owner Irv Kosloff who destroyed the champion 76ers of a decade ago, trading such stars as Wilt Chamberlain and Chet Walker, allowing Billy Cunningham to jump to the American Basketball Association.

In six years with Ramsay as either general manager or general manager-coach or just plain coach, the 76ers fell from the top to the Arkansas put the game safely away bottom of the NBA. In 1972-73,

It never really has been clear who was responsible for wrecking the 76ers of the late 60s. The suspicion is that Ramsay and Kosloff share the

Chamberlain left because he was tired of Philadelphia and wanted the California scene. Ramsay says that the 7-foot-2 Chamberlain turned down a chance to be his co-coach, that nothing could have kept Wilt here.

Ramsay has to bear the onus of trading Walker, who went to Chicago for Jim Washington. Walker continued to be an NBA all-star. Washington was just a journeyman performer. Cunningham wanted to renegotiate his contract and the 76ers refused. So, he jumped to the ABA Ramsay blames Kosloff. Kosloff never has spoken out on the issue.

The 76ers have been rebuilt, partly under Kosloff's ownership before he sold out last year to Fritz Eugene Dixon. With Pat Williams as general manager, the 76ers, who are favored more damage. Davis at shortstop to beat the Trail Blazers in the best-ofrobbed Yeglenski of an infield hit with seven series starting Sunday, were Doug Collins, Lloyd Free, Darryl Dawkins, Harvey Catchings, all came via the draft. George McGinnis also was a 76ers' draft choice but went to the ABA. He jumped to the 76ers for the 1975-76 season. Caldwell Jones also was an ABA refugee, originally cast aside by Philadelphia. Steve Mix was signed as a free agent. Henry Bibby was acquired in a trade. So was Joe Bryant. Mike Dunleavy and Terry Furlow were draft picks.

And then there is Julius "Dr. J." Erving, acquired in that momentous $6 million deal last fall from the New York Nets. Dr. J. was the icing on the cake. Basketball's greatest one-onone combatant meshed into Coach Gene Shue's system.

The 76ers have almost completed the cycle from champion to doormat to champion. Only Ramsay and his Trail Blazers stand in the way. It would be irony if Ramsay had a hand in destroying them again, this time on the floor, instead of off.

Erving is the key to the 76ers' hopes. He's been the team's standout in the playoff victories over Boston and Houston. Erving has averaged 25.8 points, 6.2 rebounds, blocked 16 shots, handed out 55 assists, made 25 steals, shot 51.3 from the field and 80.0 on the foul line.

No, he doesn't pump the ball up before each game.

Erving has had to take over. His fellow super star, McGinnis, has been handicapped with a groin injury. He hasn't played to his potential in the playoffs, with just a 14.7 average. He's shot a poor 36.8 from the field and 59 per cent at the foul line. McGinnis has rebounded at a 10.9 clip

Nissalke, 42, already had driven the surprising Houston Rockets to the NBA's Central Division championship and to the Eastern Conference finals with the fourth best record in the NBA. After covering all that hazardous territory without win and too much flak when they lose," said Nissalke, who turned the Rockets from a 40-42 record to a 49-33 champion. "This is the biggest personal honor that has ever come to me and it's a reflection of the job the team did." Nissalke beat out Los Angeles Coach Jerry West by a first place vote margin of 26-21 and became the second pro coach to win coach of the year honors in both the NBA and American Basketball Association. Former Utah Stars and Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman also was a dual winner. Nissalke won ABA

Nissalke took charge of the floundering Rockets prior to last season and immediately started wheeling and dealing. He traded Joe Meriweather and Gus Bailey to Atlanta in exchange for the No. 1 El Paso Amarillo Choice in the 1976 NBA draft. That selection was used to take Maryland All-

The Rockets came back to win 118-107.

Stone stones Royals

By The Associated Press

Steve Stone was a 1976 free agent who didn't have to change his address when he changed teams. He went from the Chicago Cubs to the Chicago

The difference, however, has been like night and day—and it has nothing to do with the Cubs' Wrigley Field having no lights.

"The key to my success has been our offense," said Stone, who was supported by three White Sox homers in Chicago's 8-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals Thursday night. "It's been devastating.

Stone, 3-6 with a 4.08 earned run average in 17 games with the Cubs last season, is on a hot streak of his own right now. He has hurled five complete games, compiling a 4-3 record and a 2.34 ERA

"When the hitters are hot, it gives you a lot more confidence that if you can hold your opponent to three or four runs you'll win," he said.

Stone kept the Royals within that limit, while scattering nine hits. 'It seems that this team will get a few runs and keep adding a run here and there," Stone said. "It never lets up and because of that the other team doesn't get a chance to get going." Jorge Orta, Oscar Gamble and Chet

Lemon each slugged solo homers for the White Sox, who moved within one game of first-place Minnesota in the American League West

The Royals, last year's AL West champions, slipped a game below .500 with the loss. Jim Colborn, making his first appearance since tossing a nohitter against Texas last Saturday, hurled 22-3 innings and was charged with his fourth loss in nine decisions.

'There's no explanation other than that they hit the ball. And man did they hit it," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, referring to Colborn's turnabout.

Mariners 3, A's 0 Dave Pagan made Seattle history. giving the expansion club its first shutout victory with a six-hitter against Oakland.

'Before the game, I thought if I went six innings I'd be satisfied," said Pagan, who struck out eight and walked one in gaining his first major league shutout and only his third complete game in 15 career starts. Pagan, making his first start of this

"They've been throwing me inside a lot this year, and I've got to do something about it," Munson said.

Willie Randolph scored four runs and contributed four of New York's 14 hits in support of Ed Figueroa, 5-2, who coasted to his fifth straight complete game triumph with a sixhitter while lowering his leagueleading ERA to 1.22. Brewers 5, Blue Jays 3

Milwaukee scored four runs in the third inning on six walks and a tworun single by Cecil Cooper.

Dodgers feel Gossage's Rocky Mountain Heat

PITTSBUEGH (AP) - Rich Gossage introduced the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday night to "Colorado Rocky Mount ain Heat."

"He can throw that ball-man, can he throw that ball!" said Los Angeles Manager 7.'om Lasorda after watching the Pirates' relief pitcher strike out eight batters in three overpowering innings

That gave Gossage 24 strike-outs in the last 40 hatters he has faced. One of Gossage's strikeout victims was Boog I owell, who concurred with the pitcher's baseball philosophy. "It psyches me up," said Powell, who gets a natural high facing a hard thrower of Gossage's caliber. 'I love

While Gossage was throwing the ball by the batters, Rennie Stennett was hitting the ball through the fielders. He broke a tie with a 10thinning, trases-loaded single through the right side, off reliever Charlie

The Pirates had loaded the bases with two out off Hough on walks to pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick, Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell.

The victory was the 15th in 18 games for the National League Eastleading Pirates, while the West Division-leading Dodgers sustained only their fifth loss in the last 16

Braves 6, Cubs 0 Knuckleballer Phil Niekro fired a three-hitter, recording his first victory as a starter this season in pitching Atlanta over Chicago. The victory snapped a six-game Chicago winning streak and was only the Cubs' second setback in 14 games. Atlanta, which had a 17-game losing streak earlier this year, extended its winning

Niekro, 2-7, had picked up a victory / in relief against Montreal Tuesday night. He was in control most of the way, working out of a one-out bases loaded jam in the second inning. He fanned five and walked two.

"These last two victories don't make up for the seven I lost," said Niekro, "but it does tell me I've still got the Niekro knuckler of the last few Noted Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol: "I just think he went through a slump like a batter does. He had never had one before and he just didn't know how to cope with it. It looked like he had his dancing knuckler tonight.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Notre Dame now has the name of Gilbert Salinas, the 6-foot-11 high school All-American center, on a letter of intent that ends a recruiting war that once included almost 200 schools.

WITH

WASHINGTON -- When Jimmy Carter became President and started turning the federal government over to lieutenants unfamiliar with the hot house environment of Washington, he made one glaring exception - Joseph Anthony Califano Jr.

The new Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare has more Washington connections than a switchboard. In the last 15 years, he has probably looked into more nooks and crannies of government than anybody else except the four men who have served as President.

He was tinkering with reorganization of the federal bureaucracy when Jimmy Carter was still getting a start in the state Senate of Georgia. He was a man with clout in the Oval Office when Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell — Carter's dynamic duo - were still college

Last year, he paid more in income taxes ($275,900) than a good many of the young men around the President have earned in all their working years put together.

Washington is Joe Califano's turf. He is at home in the company of its leading businessmen, lawyers, lobbyists, journalists, politicians, bureaucrats and socialites. He is pal Joey to the likes of humorist Art Buchwald, Ethel Kennedy, and Vice President Mondale. He is sufficiently established that he has the Georgetown look about him - though he appears in a wash-and-wear suit, driving a six-year-old station wagon. He can walk through a crowd of reporters and equal Jody Powell the White House press secretary - in calling them by name.

Yet he persists in disputing that he is a member of the Washington Establishment. He tells people of his origins in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn more often than President Carter speaks of his roots in

But regardless of his demurrers, Califano is indisputeably an insider in an Administration of outsiders.

While veterans of Carter's long march to the White House reflect a great deal of the President's own personality, their common Southern heritage, and their skepticism of Washington's permanent people, Califano bears more resemblance to Lyndon B. Johnson, Robert S. Mc-Namara, and people in government and out, to whom Washington is

It is not surprising, then, that some of Carter's "country smart" good ole boys have deep down enjoyed seeing Califano skewered while they shuffled about establishing their own areas of

And there has been plenty of Califano-skewering to watch. The HEW secretary has been the most visible, controversial, and embattled member of the Carter Cabinet. He took on his job as though he intended to carry out every Carter campaign promise before Congress even went home for summer vacation.

At times during the early weeks his momentum carried him off the

For one reason or another, he managed to irritate veterans groups, the handicapped, blacks, pro-abortion groups, diabetics, Ohio Democrats, and Hamilton Jordan.

He announced a reorganization of his bewilderingly complicated department, shelled Congress and the White House with proposals to put the lid on hospital costs, shore up the Social Security system and reform the welfare bureaucracy.

He put in 12-hour days, six days a week, exhausting two shifts of secretaries. He installed a hot line putting him in instantaneous contact with top officials in the department, and raced to Capitol Hill at a frenetic pace to keep lawmakers apprised of what he was doing.

"The only trouble with ole Califano," said a Texas friend who watched him work for Lyndon Johnson, "is that he hasn't figured out that when you go to gather the eggs, you have to pick 'em up one at a time."

The things that have put Califano into the spotlight most conspicuously, however, have had little to do with his performance as secretary.

His troubles started before he was even confirmed, when, in the name of open government, he had to disclose that last year he earned more than $555,000 — more in a week than the average American worker makes in a year. That caused people to suggest it would be impossible for anybody making so much money to have much empathy for the poor, the han-dicapped, the pensioners and minority groups that make up HEW's constituency.

If that weren't enough, Califano later made the mistake of signing a government job description hiding the fact that one . Wiley Barnes, hired as a personal assistant to the secretary, was in fact a chef, at $12,763 a year

Before the dust settled on the chef, there was another report, which turned out to be misleading at best, that Califano had hired Thomas L. Johns, LBJ's top Secret Service agent, as a personal bodyguard, at $43,923 a year.

By that time, some of the secretary's friends and departmental lieutenants were wondering whether somebody was out to get him. And Washington being Washington, the first line of speculation was that it was somebody in the White House.

"People are out to get him," said Jack Valenti, President Johnson's appointment secretary and one of Califano's closest friends. "Anybody who has been in the Washington political jungle can see that. There is no question about it."

As it turned out, Califano did have a problem at the executive mansion but it had nothing to do with the chef, or the story on the bodyguard (who turned out to be a legitimate administrative assistant).

It had to do with his picking John Ellis, an active Ohio Republican, to be a Deputy Commissioner of Education. The White House learned of it when Ellis held a press conference in Columbus to confirm rumors that he was getting the job.

The maneuver infuriated Hamilton Jordan, who, White House sources said, was already unhappy about the reception that some Carter political supporters were getting when they were referred to HEW for job in-

Jordan left it with Califano to make peace with the Ohio Democrats, who already felt they had been left wanting when the plums were passed out after Carter's victory. A series of meetings between key Ohio Democrats and Califano managed to sooth the ruffled feelings. Califano, sounding a good deal like a man who had been to the mountain top, said after the incident, "Over the long haul, something very good came of that ... Hamilton Jordan and I are much closer and have a great deal of respect for each other.

"I respected his saying, 'Look, you go ahead and work it out,' and I think he appreciated my ability to work it

Though he has been in Washington since 1961, Califano is still an enigma to most people who have followed his career - from the Defense Department to the White House, to the Democratic National Committee, to private law practice, to HEW.

There is, however, a common thread in the assessments of him by a wide range of people.

Califano is a man of extraordinary energy, who thrives on working ridiculous hours. He is a man, who, despite the remarks after disclosure of his earnings as a leading Washington lawyer, holds a deep liberal concern for the underprivileged.

OPEN SUNDAY

He is a man with unusual talents and a sensitive ego. He is a man still deeply influenced by his Roman Catholic upbringing and his upwardly mobile life as a youth. He is a man who obviously is ambitious; but it is impossible to guess his goals.

In 1960, he and his wife Trudy knocked on doors in New York for Sen. John F. Kennedy's presidential

The following year, finding himself bored in a Wall Street law firm (headed, incidentally, by Thomas E. Dewey, the two-time Republican candidate for President), Califano wrote Army Secretary Cyrus Vance about a job in the Pentagon.

He was hired on as a special assistant. Two years later, at the age of 32, he became general counsel of the Army, and less than a year after that he was appointed Deputy Secretary of Defense and special assisant to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

By the time President Johnson lured him away from McNamara in 1965, Califano had overseen the $1 billion construction program of the Army Corps of Engineers, had presented the United States' case to international jurists investigating anti-U.S. riots in panama, had acted as the Defense Department's liaison with the White House and had served as executive secretary of an interagency council advising the President on development of a supersonic transport plane.

At the White House he had been identified, a Johnson insider said, "as the finest sub-cabinet officer in the Pentagon.

African Peace try fails

VIENNA, Austria (AP) U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and South African Prime Minister John Vorster said today they had failed to agree on U.S. efforts to change South Africa's race segregation policies. Mondale told a news conference that Vorster agreed in two days of talks here to help achieve black rule in Namibia and Rhodesia, but had stubbornly defended his government's policy of apartheid.

"We hope the South Africans will not rely on any illusions that the U.S. will in the end intervene to save South Africa from the policies it is pursu-Mondale said, "for ing. we will not do so."

Vorster, in a news conference immediately following that of Mondale, said there was a "vital difference" in the U.S. and South African positions.

Vorster said the black South Africans were never slaves and have never been deprived of their nationality. He claimed blacks in his country have their own government and the right to vote

Critics of South Africa dispute that blacks enjoy rights and opportunities comparable to that of whites. Mondale said, "I think

Namibia is a former German colony administered by South Africa under a League of Nations mandate now held invalid by the United Nations. "The policy which the President wished for me to convey was that there is need for progress on all three issues — majority rule for Rhodesia and Namibia and a progressive transformation of South African society to the same end," Mondale said.

The Vice President said he had stressed his argument that the United States had successfully dealt with the problem of improving the lot of blacks through civil rights legislation.

'There has been a transformation in American society of which we are very proud," Mondale said. "It affects not only our domestic life, but our foreign policy as well."

"We cannot accept, let alone defend, the government that rejects the basic principle of full human rights, economic opportunity and political participation for all of its people, regardless of race." Vorster said that, if the American vice president was speaking of full political participation of all people in South Africa, "this is the case now."

Jailed Mexican alien defends people's work

ANTHONY, Tex. (AP) — Domingo Manriquez thinks workers from Mexico are fulfilling a need in the United States by accepting jobs that most Americans spurn.

"I can outwork just about any man and I know for sure some of the jobs I've had no one here (in the U.S.) would want," the 38-year-old Mexican

Manriquez has been arrested four times for violation of U.S. immigration laws. He is serving a sixmonth term in La Tuna Federal Prison in Far West Texas, he says, 'just because I came looking for a

Manriquez believes Americans are lazy. "They don't want to work. So they get people like us to do the dirty jobs. And since most of the people who are coming across are hungry, desperate and scared, all an American boss has to do is scream orders and we'll work harder." he

Some prison officials say illegal aliens are not thought of as criminals. Jerry Edwards, La Tuna's case management chief, said they are repeat offenders of immigration laws, "not hardened criminals like one would think."

U.S. Bureau of Prisons figures show that about 860 illegal aliens are now in prison. Ninety per cent are being held on immigration violations.

The prisoners earn wages while at La Tuna working in a furniture refinishing factory, a brush factory and a dairy operation. A supervisor agreed that the illegal aliens work harder than Americans.

"There is one man here who makes anywhere between 220 to as many as 250 brushes in one day. At three cents per brush, he stands to make pretty good money every month," he said.

But the inmates know they could be making more money outside the walls of the medium-security prison.

Hilario Martinez, 27, said: "If Americans didn't want us here, then they wouldn't hire us."

"I'd rather be suffering on some terrible job than to be here," Martinez said. "Here I am doing nothing for myself or my family. And it's frustrating.

Martinez has a wife and four children in Monterrey

"I can't see why they put a man in jail for trying to better himself. They don't treat us bad here, and it is easy. But I'd rather be abused in the fields than be here. At least there the money you make softens the pains you have to take," he said.

Social rites issues affect productivity

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Absenteeism and the social rites of work - coffee breaks, washup time, retirement parties — may be among the reasons why U.S. productivity isn't as high as it might be, suggests Ar-

to the list of reasons why production isn't as efficient as we would like to see it, and some of those reasons relate directly to the chairman and his colleagues. Balanced budget expectation based on assumptions

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The expectations of a balanced budget by 1981 are based in part on the administration's assumption that business capital outlays will grow at a rate of 9 or 10 per cent a year for four or five years.

A casual reader — or to be blunt, the disinterested ordinary citizen — might not pay too much attention to that assumption. He or she probably wants a balanced budget, but not the explanation.

But in this case the assumption in itself is interesting. Except for the 1962-1966 period, nobody seems able to recall when such a level of business spending was achieved before.

Even Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, concedes the assumption "is an ambitious objective." Not overly ambitious, he said in answer to a newsman's question. Just ambitious, he said. It is probably based also in a good deal of hope.

Nobody can say that the next few years won't turn out to be as economically vigorous as were those years in the 1960s, when we didn't have so many environmental and other considerations thwarting capital spending.

The next few years might indeed produce a renewal of confidence by business investors in plants and equipment. But the signs aren't that clear right For the past two years capital commitments haven't been anywhere near 9 to 10 per cent. Business people have been uncertain, unwilling to design expansion plans. They complain about the lack of incentives. Month after month the statistics watchers waited for the latest indicators, and the figures almost always disappointed. The ruffle of business spending just wasn't heard. Perhaps a few rat-a-tats, but little

But now, Schultze seemed to say in an address this week to the New York Financial Writers, business is ready to go on a spending parade, and a very long one too. He might be right; he might be wrong. What is obvious is that spending cannot be postpon-ed forever, and that some industries seem finally to be making their moves. A McGraw-Hill survey of spending plans suggests a hefty 18 per cent rise — inflation included — this year. While the survey findings were greeted with joy by those who had waited so long for good news, they were as quickly criticized as exaggerated by those who have seen too many false signals over the past

Even Business Week, a McGraw-Hill publication, commented that "all through the present recovery, companies have shown a perverse tendency to spend far less than they plan — reversing the usual recovery pattern in which actual outlays often exceed earlier projections."

11 Korean women jailed for strike

By JOHN SAAR The Washington Post

SEOUL, Korea - Eleven women workers who make garments for the American market were sent to prison in Seoul Thursday after striking for a raise in their 25-cent-an-hour wages. Alleged ringleaders of an illegal strike, the workers were arrested at a factory gate and sentenced to prison terms of 15 to 20 days for causing a disturbance.

The girls are paid $62 a month to produce stockings and other items sold in Europe and America. Labor organizers claim the court action was taken to break a justified strike against 'starvation-level wages.'

Industrial action is rare in South Korea because the country's booming export trade is heavily dependent on low wages and strikes are prohibited by law. Fellow-workers of the imprisoned strikers called on a Seoul police station Thursday and plan a further appeal for their release Friday. They say the struggle will continue.

"We are fighting for a minimum living wage so we can't accept the jailing of our friends,' said an angry girl who asked not to be identified.

Dissatisfaction is running high among the 1,200 women employes at the Namyeong Nylon Co. in the industrial suburb of Yongdongpo. They are resisting the pressures from factory owners, govern-ment Labor Bureau officials and management-influenced unions, which generally stifle industrial unrest in this country. When male executives forcibly broke up a sit-in by the strikers earlier this month, one man was stabbed in the thigh with a pair of scissors. A girl is awaiting trial for wounding him.

Most of the workers were women in their early 20s who are paid 25,000 to 30,000 won a month for working six days a week (one dollar equals 477 won). The Rev. Cho Chi Song, staff worker at a Christian Urban Industrial Mission that counsels the women, says they eat "very poor food mostly just rice and kimchi (pickled cabbage). "They budget minutely and can spend only $10 to $17 a month on groceries. For comparison, a modest dinner in a family-style Seoul restaurant is

Trouble started when the women asked for a 35 percent raise this year to offset inflation in the price of essentials. The company offered 18 percent. Korean labor law endorses the rights of the worker to bargain collectively and strike, but workers are banned from doing so by a national security law that takes precedence. So the Namyeong workers were forced to accept the government arbitration a award of 25 percent.

When they collected their pay packets two weeks ago, the women found the company was awarding varying raises on productivity rather than the accepted principle of seniority. They were angered to action.

General disagrees with pullout

By JOHN SAAR The Washington Post

SEOUL - The third-ranking U.S. Army general in South Korea says President Carter's plan to withdraw U.S. troops here in the next four to five years is a mistake that will end in war with North Korea.

"If we withdraw our ground forces on the schedule suggested, it will lead to war," said Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, chief of staff in the U.S. Forces Korea headquarters.

Singlaub said he and many other senior military officers challenge the wisdom of Carter's plan, and predicted that withdrawal of the warready 2nd Infantry Division in that time-frame would seriously weaken defenses in the South and encourage North Korean President Kim Il-sung to attack.

The unusual situation of serving generals openly differing with the President's declared policy arises on the eve of talks to implement that policy.

Philip C. Habib, under secretary of state for political affairs, and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, are to arrive in Seoul May 24 as the President's special representatives.

Some military officers, saying the planned withdrawal may jeopardize gains made here over the past 24 years and pose serious military and credibility problems, are trying to influence Washington policy decisions.

"I don't know anybody who is not staggered by it," a headquarters Ar-my officer said of the planned withdrawal. "There's no military or strategic logic for withdrawal. In fact, there's a very good case for reinforcing" American strength in South

Senglaub, a World War II veteran with a distinguished combat record, said he is deeply concerned that decision makers may be working from outdated intelligence that substantially under estimates current North Korean strength.

'The question asked after U.S. setbacks in China and Vietnam was, 'Did the military people in the know ex-press themselves loudly and clearly enough that the decision-makers understood?' We want to make sure,' he said. "If the decision is made, we will execute it with enthusiasm and a high level of professional skill.'

The apprehensions voiced by Singlaub are echoed to some degree by many, if not all, U.S. military leaders in South Korea. "No one understands why they are being pulled out," said a well-informed American source. "Carter says the withdrawal won't endanger South Korean security or upset the military balance. Our military people say that would be a miracle. They think it can't be done.

The commander-in-chief of United Nations and U.S. forces in South John W. Vessey, has Korea, Gen expressed his misgivings directly to President Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown, sources here say.

Singlaub and Vessey's deputy, Lt. Gen John J. Burns, expressed their concerns in separate lengthy interviews Wednesday.

Burns said he would prefer the ground troops to stay.

"The withdrawal must be managed to avoid any disastrous change in the military balance on the Korean Peninsula or credibility of the American commitment. American Air Force units which Carter has said will stay in Korea should be reinforced," added Burns, who flew 102 combat missions as a fighter pilot in the Korean war.

Some officers stress the fear that despite all assurances to the contrary - the reductions in troops will be interpreted in South and North Korea as a disengagement.

A well-connected U.S. colonel says South Korean officers who believe that the United States abandoned South Vietnam are asking: "Why are you giving up everything you've ac-complished here? They quote the old Korean proverb, 'Don't trust the Russians and Don't believe the Americans," he recounted unhappily.

The concern centers around the 14,000-man 2nd Division, which has a vital role covering the main southbound invasion route to this capital.

Arts pull together for ballet

By PATSY GORDON

The important thing about the arts is their working together. And Midland is small enough that this is possible. The arts in Midland are working together for the benefit of the Permian Civic Ballet.

These are some of the feelings

MEET THE PRESIDENT of the new president of the Permian Civic Ballet Guild. Mrs. H. A. deCompiegne Jr. also believes that the ballet in Midland has grown to its original strength since its split with Odessa some years ago because of the cooperation between the various cultural arts active in the Tall City

Other officers installed with Mrs. deCompiegne at the annual spring luncheon held in the Racquet Club were: Mrs. Tom Coffman, president-elect; Mrs. Bill Gau, first vice president; Mrs. L. C. Slape, secretary, and Mrs. George Clark, treasurer. Mrs. Wes Perry Jr., the retiring president, presided over the installation of the new board.

Appreciation plaques were presented two past presidents of the guild, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. E. F. Motter.

Purpose of the guild, said Mrs. deCompiegne, is to support the Permian Civic Ballet by serving as the "working hands" of the Permian Civic Ballet. This is accomplished by way of financial projects to raise money, hospitality, working on productions through costumes and sets and by ticket selling, she explained.

"I think you become more aware of dance as an artistic expression and become more involved with dancers themselves through working with productions. It is very satisfying work," said the president, who has two daughters, Ann, 15, and Elise, 10, who have been involved in the Midland ballet company for five years.

Mrs. deCompiegne is associated with the Midland Symphony Guild and in the past has worked with the Museum of the Southwest and the Midland Community Theatre. Right now, she is doing interior design for the new MCT center, but hopes to become involved again in the future on a greater scale.

Next spring, revealed Mrs. deCompiegne, the ballet association will celebrate its 10th anniversary, and the spring performance of the company, hopefully, will tie in with the opening of the new theatre center, she added

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market lost more ground today on some early selling prompted by word of another jump in consumer prices.

Losers held a 5-3 edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed As the market opened the International Business Machines, long one of Wall Street's favorite glamor issues, tumbled 25% to 2495% hitting a new low for the year. The stock has fallen about 30 points in less than two months, in part because of a disappointing first quarter earnings report. Among other actively traded glamors, Xerox dropped ½ to 47; Sears Roebuck lost 1 to 58%, and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing was down 1 at 51.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .20 to 54.39. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .22 at 114.70.

Social rites issues affect productivity

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Absenteeism and the social rites of work - coffee breaks, washup time, retirement parties - may be among the reasons why U.S. productivity isn't as high as it might be, suggests Ar thur Burns.

Burns is a man of unquestioned integrity, which is one of the reasons he sits as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, which to some degree controls the money supply, and again to some extent the level of interest rates. But there is very much more that might be added to the list of reasons why production isn't as efficient as we would like to see it, and some of those reasons relate directly to the chairman and his colleagues. What is happening to the innovative spirit, to the inventiveness, the creativity of individuals? This is the well from which big improvements in productivity have always sprung, a well some people think is running low. A little money would help, but the creative individual seeking a first loan is often told by a condescending banker that "while we agree your idea is excellent, we suggest you try to raise such a small amount from relatives. Venture capitalists are hardly venturesome;

despite their name, they aren't very willing to take risks in order to obtain potentially large rewards. And the stock market today is hardly the place for new companies to raise cash. The haven for the Edisons of today too frequently

s the large concern rather than the type of small company that would generate ideas and products that would challenge the larger organizations and keep them alert and efficient. Oligopoly contributes. Protected from competition because of the large share of the market they control, some large companies may be a lot less priceefficient than they could under more challenging cirumstances.

There are other possibilities to consider

Burns talks about the coffee break. But what should we say about the so-called management conference that is held thousands of miles away, where the weather is warm, the golf course is short and the iquor is smooth?

Would the management ripoff, as it's coming to be called, have something to do with lowered productivity? Most likely. Shareholders are growing more distressed at the manner in which some corporate officers enrich themselves at their expense. Our concern for the health of our earth and the people who inhabit it contributes. Enormous expenses have been added to the cost of products because of these two considerations.

Our concern for the unemployed and the elderly contributes. So does big government. Bureaucracy often is non-productive, and thus the cost of supporting it must be borne by products and people that pay their way. Our use of laws and lawyers contributes. Product liability insurance has become overwhelmingly costly for some companies. Almost everyone contributes to the less-thansatisfactory level of productivity, and almost anyone can do something about it, albeit in a small way.

Balanced budget expectation based on assumptions

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The expectations of a balance ed budget by 1981 are based in part on the administration's assumption that business capital outlays will grow at a rate of 9 or 10 per cent a year for four or five years.

A casual reader — or to be blunt, the disinterested ordinary citizen — might not pay too much attention to that assumption. He or she probably wants a balanced budget, but not the explanation.

But in this case the assumption in itself is interesting. Except for the 1962-1966 period, nobody seems able to recall when such a level of business spending was achieved before.

Even Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, concedes the assumption "is an ambitious objective." Not overly ambitious, he said in answer to a newsman's question. Just ambitious, he said. It is probably based also in a good deal of hope.

Nobody can say that the next few years won't turn out to be as economically vigorous as were those years in the 1960s, when we didn't have so many environmental and other considerations thwarting capital spending. The next few years might indeed produce a renewal of confidence by business investors in plants and equipment. But the signs aren't that clear right For the past two years capital commitments haven't been anywhere near 9 to 10 per cent. Business people have been uncertain, unwilling to design expansion plans. They complain about the ack of incentives. Month after month the statistics watchers waited for the latest indicators, and the figures almost always disappointed. The ruffle of business spending just wasn't heard. Perhaps a few rat-a-tats, but little

But now, Schultze seemed to say in an address this week to the New York Financial Writers, business is ready to go on a spending parade, and a very long one too. He might be right; he might be wrong. Nobody can say. What is obvious is that spending cannot be postponed forever, and that some industries seem finally to be making their moves. A McGraw-Hill survey of spending plans suggests a hefty 18 per cent rise — inflation included — this year. While the survey findings were greeted with joy by those who had waited so long for good news, they were as quickly criticized as exaggerated by those who have seen too many false signals over the past

Even Business Week, a McGraw-Hill publication, commented that "all through the present recovery, companies have shown a perverse tendency to spend far less than they plan - reversing the usual recovery pattern in which actual outlays often exceed earlier projections.

Little-known labor leader may influence UAW

The Los Angeles Titons

"Wimpy" Winpisinger isn't one of the nation's well-known labor leaders, and the tough-talking, militantly liberal high school dropout isn't even a member of the 1.4-million United Auto Workers Union.

Yet Winpisinger, 52, who will soon become president of the International Association of Machinists, could have a profound impact on the future of the UAW and the rest of the labor movement in this country.

The UAW is in the middle of a sometimes heated internal argument over whether to reaffiliate its relative progressive, politically active union with the 14 million-member AFL-CIO.

Douglas A. Fraser, who was elected president of the UAW Wednesday to succeed retiring Leonard Woodcock, conceded that he and Woodcock have failed so far in their efforts to bring the UAW back into the nation's only labor federation.

But the effort isn't over, and if it does succeed in ending one of the major division in the labor movement, it will be due in part to William (Wim-

Fraser and other proponents of af-filiation with the AFL-CIO believe one key reason many UAW members want to remain outside the federation is that they don't know what changes are going on in the AFL-CIO itself.

Fraser believes that when others in the UAW come to know the views of men like Winpisinger, significant opposition to affiliation will diminish if not disappear altogether.

The UAW already works closely with such AFL-CIO unions as the American Federation of State, County and Municipal workers, headed by the fiery libery Jerry Wurf.

And during the last election the UAW, AFSCME, the machinists, and six other unions formed a political coalition outside the AFL-CIO to help elect President Carter.

But Fraser feels that the more liberal members in the AFL-CIO leadership ranks, bolstered with help from the huge UAW, could make the entire labor federation into a more progressive force in the nation. And prominent among the liberals within the AFL-CIO will be Winpisinger, a little-noticed visitor to the UAW convention here this week, who is urging the UAW to rejoin the labor

There are other issues involved than the degree of liberalism of the AFL-CIO, such as the fact that it will cost the UAW about $2 million a year in dues to be a member of the "House

But there is little question, apparently, that it will take a fuller understanding of the views of such AFL-CIO leaders as Winpisinger to persuade the majority of the UAW that they want to be part of the federa-

And if there is one certainty about

Winpisinger, its that he is not reluc-tant to let his views be known, no matter how controversial.

For example, Fraser has said the image of organized labor has been hurt because George Meany hasn't retired as President of the AFL-CIO even though he is a lively 82.

Winpisinger, unlike others inside the labor federation, agrees with Fraser, and is even more frank in his discussion of that delicate issue:

"The time for George Meany to retire has long since come along. He passed his peak some time ago.

"I prefer to save my contempt for the guys up there on the top who have control of so much in this country, and the 82-year-old cigar-chomping character with a Brooklyn accent isn't doing enough about that." One key difference between the UAW and the AFL-CIO in the past has been over foreign policy, and Fraser has called "ridiculous" an AFL-CIO position that union representatives from the Soviet Union should not be allowed into the United States as visitors because there are no true unions in Russia.

Winpisinger, sounding the way some UAW leaders talk in private, said in a wide-ranging interview with The Los Angeles Times:

"I'm not one of those who sees a Communist under every bush, every flowerpot, or lurking behind every

Because we want to be your favorite

"Hell, yes, we should stand up for democracy; hell, yes, we should stand up for human rights. But we shouldn't be ostracizing ourselves from contacts with the rest of the world."

Would the presence of the UAW in the AFL-CIO change things? "Absolutely," Winpisinger insisted. "There are several like-minded members in the executive council (of the AFL-CIO) now, but, in the absence of more help, they haven't been able to make much of an impression. We need people on the council who will raise their voices in opposition to the status quo, and to help crystalize the opinions of the dissenters from what has been the majority view.

Graham Central Station Opry star determined to carry on big hit at high school

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Grand Ole Opry star Wilma Lee Cooper vows to continue performing despite the death of her husband, Stoney, who teamed with her for 30 years.

"I'm going right on," she said. "I don't plan on retiring. I have good health and as long as I keep my health, there's nothing to keep me from going on.

Her husband, a bluegrass fiddler, died March 22 of a heart condition, a pinched nerve, phlebitis and emphysema after being hospitalized 46

The two were pioneers in traditional country music and appeared on the Grand Ole Opry for 20 years.

"Entertaining is my life," Mrs. Cooper, 56, said in a luncheon interview. "If I had my life to live over, I'd do the same thing. "I'm not going to change my style. I'm one of the few traditionalist women left. The music I do needs to be carried on." She said it was difficult at first to continue entertaining after her husband died. "We depended on each other. I got the feeling of being lost. He'd do most of the talking; he was sort of the emcee.

Her band is helping select a fiddle player to replace Stoney.

"I'd like to have a younger man for the days of television," she recalled. that," she said. "I want to keep my band young."

Deeply religious, she regards her husband's death as God's will.

'Death is not the terrible thing we've been brought up to believe, she said. "It's another step in living.

"I told God to put him in His hands. I told Him that I was giving Stoney to Him. I knew that in God's hands he was in perfect hands. When I told God that, I felt a peaceful feeling."

Bluegrass music has surged in popularity in recent years, which Mrs. Cooper attributes to a periodic change in tastes.

"Everything goes in cycles. There is a season for everything. When rock took over, country was left behind. The college kids brought bluegrass in when they got interested in the five-string banjo. Earl Scruggs had a following and had alot to do with the banjo part of it.

Jailed Mexican alien defends people's work

ANTHONY, Tex. (AP) - Domingo Manriquez thinks workers from Mexico are fulfilling a need in the United States by accepting jobs that most Americans spurn.

'I can outwork just about any man and I know for sure some of the jobs I've had no one here (in the U.S.) would want," the 38-year-old Mexican national said.

Manriquez has been arrested four times for violation of U.S. immigration laws. He is serving a sixmonth term in La Tuna Federal Prison in Far West Texas, he says, "just because I came looking for a

Manriquez believes Americans are lazy. "They don't want to work. So they get people like us to do the dirty jobs. And since most of the people who are coming across are hungry, desperate and scared, all an American boss has to do is scream orders and we'll work harder," he

Some prison officials say illegal aliens are not thought of as criminals. Jerry Edwards, La Tuna's case management chief, said they are repeat offenders of immigration laws, "not hardened criminals like one would think.'

U.S. Bureau of Prisons figures show that about 860 illegal aliens are now in prison. Ninety per cent are being held on immigration violations.

The prisoners earn wages while at La Tuna working in a furniture refinishing factory, a brush factory and a dairy operation. A supervisor agreed that the illegal aliens work harder than Americans.

"There is one man here who makes anywhere between 220 to as many as 250 brushes in one day. At three cents per brush, he stands to make pretty good money every month," he said.

But the inmates know they could be making more money outside the walls of the medium-security prison.

Hilario Martinez, 27, said: "If Americans didn't want us here, then they wouldn't hire us.'

"I'd rather be suffering on some terrible job than to be here," Martinez said. "Here I am doing nothing for myself or my family. And it's frustrating.

Martinez has a wife and four children in Monterrey.

"I can't see why they put a man in jail for trying to better himself. They don't treat us bad here, and it is easy. But I'd rather be abused in the fields than be here. At least there the money you make softens the pains you have to take." he said.

HEW secretary very much at home in Washington

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - When Jimmy Carter became President and started turning the federal government over to lieutenants unfamiliar with the hot house environment of Washington, he made one glaring exception - Joseph Anthony Califano Jr.

The new Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare has more Washington connections than a switchboard. In the last 15 years, he has probably looked into more nooks and crannies of government than anybody else except the four men who have served as President

He was tinkering with reorganization of the federal bureaucracy when Jimmy Carter was still getting a start in the state Senate of Georgia. He was a man with clout in the Oval Office when Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell — Carter's dynamic duo — were still college

Last year, he paid more in income taxes ($275,900) than a good many of the young men around the President have earned in all their working years

Washington is Joe Califano's turf. He is at home in the company of its leading businessmen, lawyers, lobbyists, journalists, politicians, bureaucrats and socialites. He is pal Joey to the likes of humorist Art Buchwald, Ethel Kennedy, and Vice President Mondale. He is sufficiently established that he has the Georgetown look about him — though reporters and equal Jody Powell -

Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y., said the agreement is "an historical document, null and void." His opinion is shared by Nixon, and more importantly by President Carter, who has said he does not feel bound by any of Nixon's commitments.

Details of the four-year-old agreement were revealed officially for the first time Thursday in a previously classified document released first by the State Department and then by Wolff, who also made public a recent letter from Nixon explaining his views on the subject.

While asserting that the documents proved Nixon and senior State Department officials "consistently misled" Congress and the public about the aid agreement, Wolff said the disclosure should not give the Vietnamese any "false hopes" that the aid is forthcoming.

"As has been firmly indicated by the Carter administration, by the Congress and by Mr. Nixon ... events of the past have no bearing on any future agreements which may be negotiated. The Paris peace accords have been breached and therefore voided by the actions of all signators," Wolff said.

The declassified paper defining the agreement was a Feb. 1, 1973, letter from Nixon to North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, declaring that under the peace pact signed three

BIG SPRING — At a recent awards ceremony at Big Spring State Hospital, a former Midland resident was honored posthumously for outstanding work.

Charles H. McCall Jr., who died Dec. 29, 1976, at the age of 34, was cited for his work as a personal adjustment instructor from Jan. 1, 1976. until his death.

hoppin' to Houston, only Southwest flights will do. Our fares are low, so come on, let's go. Southwest loves flying with you.

On Southwest Airlines you can fly for less than it costs for you to drive. Just $15 start our fares for fun, and from $25 get your business done.

For reservations in Midland/Odessa call 563-0750

They're sugar and spice and naturally nice when they serve you a drink or two. But more than smiles and curls, they're Southwest girls and they love taking care of you.

The spirits are high on Southwest Airlines, and Executive Class drinks are free. So forget today's fuss and have a couple on us and see just how happy you'll be.

The Boeing 737's that Southwest flies are the most dependable planes in Texas skies. They're safe and efficient for the longest run, but on all our flights we load them with fun. So when you spy our 737's in the skies above, you'll know Southwest has come to spread a little love.

WE'RE SPREADING LOVE ALL OVER TEXAS.

African peace try fails

VIENNA, Austria (AP) U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and South African Prime Minister John Vorster said today they had failed to agree on U.S. efforts to change South Africa's race segregation policies.

Mondale told a news conference that Vorster agreed in two days of talks here to help achieve black rule in Namibia and Rhodesia, but had stubbornly defended his government's policy of apartheid.

"We hope the South Africans will not rely on any illusions that the U.S. will in the end intervene to save South Africa from the policies it is pursu-' Mondale said, "for ing. we will not do so.

Vorster, in a news conference immediately following that of Mondale, said there was a "vital difference" in the U.S. and South African positions.

He claimed the United States wants to equate the position of the American Negro with that of the South African black man and said, "This is where the difference comes in."

Vorster said the black South Africans were never slaves and have never been deprived of their nationality. He claimed blacks in his country have their own government and the right to vote

Critics of South Africa dispute that blacks enjoy rights and opportunities comparable to that of whites.

Mondale said, "I think the message is now clear to the South African government. They know that we believe that perpetuating an unjust system is the surest incentive to increase Soviet influence and even racial war, but quite apart from that, is unjustified on its own grounds."

DECEASED

Notice is hereby given that original Letters of Administration for the Estate of RONALD DEAN LANGLEY, deceased, were issued on May 18, 1977, in Cause No. 5542, pending in the Probate Court of Midland County. Texas, to EVA IRENE LANGLEY.

The residence of such Administrativa is 1200 South Webster. Midland, Midland County. Texas. All persons having claims against this estate which is currently being administrative are resolved to research. government. They know

He said he hoped South Africa would consider the American experience with civil rights and reassess its apartheid policy of racial segregation.

"But I cannot rule out the possibility," Mondale "that the South African government will not change, that our paths will diverge and our policies come into conflict should the South African government so

"In that event we would take steps true to our beliefs and values.

Mondale said he had not threatened Vorster with a list of possible American reactions if apartheid remains intact.

The Vice President described the talks as 'quite difficult at times' but they retained a "basic civility.

Vorster, Mondale said, agreed to support the U.S.-British initiative to bring about independence and peace for Namibia, or South-West Africa, and to achieve black majority rule in Rhodesia by 1978. Namibia is a former German colony administered by South Africa under a League of Nations mandate now held invalid by the United Nations.

The policy which the President wished for me to convey was that there is need for progress on all three issues - majority rule for Rhodesia and Namibia and a progressive transformation of South African society to the same end," Mondale said.

The Vice President said he had stressed his argument that the United States had successfully dealt with the problem of improving the lot of blacks through civil rights legislation.

"There has been a transformation in American society of which we are very proud." Mondale said. "It affects not only our domestic life, but our foreign policy as well."

"We cannot accept, let alone defend, the government that rejects the basic principle of full human rights, economic opportunity and political participation for all of its people, regardless of race." Vorster said that, if the American vice president was speaking of full political participation of all people in South Africa. 'this is the case now.

The National Junior College Athletic Association's Women's Tennis Tournament held at Midland College this week should be renamed the Sandy Collins Show, after Thursday's final round.

Collins, of San Bernadino Calif. and a freshman at Odessa College, calmly destroyed teammate Andrea Galloway in the singles final, 6-3, 6-1. Later in the day, Collins teamed up with doubles partner Debbie Phillips to take the doubles crown. Collins and Phillips defeated Jana Hanks and Ann Layman of Midland College in the finals match, 6-1, 6-3.

Regarding her play in the two finals matches, Collins said, "I played well. My volleys were good in doubles today for a change. Debbie makes our doubles team. If she's not playing well, we don't do well."

extremely well and we've had a good tournament together," Phillips said.

Collins, who committed only one double fault all day jumped out to a quick 3-0 lead in the first set of singles final. Galloway then came back to tie the set at 3-3. The turning point in the first set came in the seventh game. With the set tied at three games apiece, Galloway served. Collins broke Galloway's service, but only after the game had gone to deuce seven times.

Collins played flawlessly the remainder of the match, winning the next three games to close out the set, and winning the last set 6-1.

In the doubles finals match, Collins and Phillips built up an early 4-0 lead in the first set over Hanks and Layman. The Odessa pair went on to win the first set by a 6-1 count.

Hanks and Layman appeared to be making a comeback early in the second set, and at one point the set was tied at two games apiece. However, Collins and Phillips overpowered the pair and won the set 6-3.

In other matches, Becky Beggs of Palm Beach, Fla. defeated Jana Hanks of MC 6-0, 6-0 for third place in the singles division. Galloway and Cindy Menna of OC defeated Blanca Barriga and Karen Schuchard of MC 6-2, 6-2 for third place in the doubles

Odessa College, which clinched the team championship Wednesday, had a final total of 27 team points. Midland College was in second place with 24

The NJCAA named its women's All-American tennis players Wednesday.

Named as All-American in the singles division were; Collins, Hanks. Layman, Beggs, Schuchard, Galloway, Susie Schafer of Schreiner College, and Vickie Yap Sam of Palm Beach College, Fla.

Named All-American doubles players were: Layman, Hanks, Collins, and Phillips.

Collins is currently ranked as the number four junior player in Southern California, according to her coach, Virginia Brown. She is also one of 16 girls chosen to play on the Junior Wightman Cup team, Brown said

A&M, Baylor shoot ell, we don't do well." "All I can say is that we played down SWC opponents of tremely well and we've had a good."

Chandler didn't even think twice about it.

"He's kind of like Randy Joneshe's not overpowering but he's got that good sinker ball," the Aggies coach said. "Mark looks like the type of pitcher you watch from the grandstand and want to get a bat and go up and hit against him-but he's a

Ross convinced the Arkansas Razorbacks of that and, after losing to him and the Aggies 5-2 in the first round of the Southwest Conference postseason baseball tournament Thursday, they just might prefer to stay in the grandstand and watch him. He yielded five scattered hits.

In the other first round game Baylor nipped Texas 3-2 after jumping into a 3-0 lead. Baylor relief pitcher Shane Nolen coaxed two fly balls from Texas batters for the triumph after Wendell Hibbett led off the ninth inning with his fourth hit of the game.

Texas faces Arkansas at 3 p.m. today at Disch-Falk Field in the elimination game and Baylor meets A&M at 7:30 p.m. in the winners' bracket with the victor advancing to

The Aggies' victory was interrupted by a 90-minute rain delay, but that didn't seem to bother Ross. He retired 12 batters in a row after Arvis Harper's leadoff single in the first inning. Then, after the rain delay, Ross retired 11 of the last 12 Razorbacks he faced.

"My arm felt super out there," Ross said. "I only threw 116 pitches they were just all beating my sinker

Travs two out attack sinks Midland Cubs

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Midland Cubs' pitchers learned an important lesson at Cubs Stadium Thursday night. There are three outs to an inning-not two.

The Arkansas Travelers got the two-out hit attack going and pulled out a late inning 9-5 Texas League victory over the Cubs. The Travs now own a 2-I lead in the five game set as both teams meet again tonight at 7:30.

What had been a tight fisted 3-3 game heading into the eighth frame turned out to be a sinking ship for the Cubs as the Travs scored four runs with two outs in the top of the inning. The Cubs never recovered although they made a game effort.

MIDLAND'S JACK Ledbetter and Arkansas' Steve Waterbury were locked in a 3-3 duel for seven innings with both pitching strong games. Ledbetter was lifted in the seventh for a pinch hitter, however, and replacement Andy Muhlstock, who has been the Cubs chief stopper this year, came in to absorb the loss and the humiliation of the two-out blitz by

Arkansas' Scot Boras opened the eighth with a single to left, but Muhlstock got Nick Leyva on strikes and Mike Ramsey on a sacrifice as the Travs tried to play for the one-run

Muhlstock then suffered through five straight hits, including a two-run triple by John Yeglenski, before it was all over. The Cubs never made up the 7-3 deficit

THE CUBS got back in the thick of the fight in the bottom of the eighth when Duane Gustavson's single plated two runs to cut the margin to 7-5. Aaron Randall set up Gustavson's key hit with a double to left, moving Steve Davis to third, who had reached

Arkansas put the game safely away in the ninth with two runs on only one hit. Boras scored on a wild pitch by Midland's second reliever, Larry Groover. Nelson Garcia plated the other tally with a single up the mid-

Midland led 1-0 in the second inning when Davis powered a 340-foot shot to left for his sixth homer of the year, but the Travs struck back in the third with a run scoring triple by Yeglenski, his first of two, and a single by Bad John Young. Arkansas made it 3-1 in the fifth when Terry Landrum produced a run scoring single.

a diving stab and perfect throw and rebuilt.

Karl Pagel in left field threw out Leon Lee at the plate when Lee tried to score from second on a single by

The Cubs killed rallies in the fifth and ninth frames by hitting into double plays, and Joe Hernandez was left at third after a two-out triple off the centerfield wall in the seventh.

CUB PAWS: Midland will send Wayne Doland against Bret Houser in tonight's special two-bit beer night. . . Arkansas will end the series Saturday by sending Andy Replogle to the mound against the Cubs. Replogle is the one that lost a no-hitter to Jackson earlier this season in the ninth inning. Replogle was carrying a 2-0 lead in that game with two outs in the ninth and two strikes on Ed Cipot of Jackson. Cipot belted a two-run homer to tie the game and send it into extra innings. The Travs went on to lose that heartbreaker although Replogle was not charged with the decision. . . Cub players will be in Winwood Mall Saturday between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., signing autographs and picture taking. . . Free tickets for Sunday's opening game of the Jackson series are available from Winwood Mall merchants. . . Keith Drumright has been called up to Wichita and was in the Aeros' starting lineup Thursday night.

Irony study in NBA finals

matchup of Portland Coach Jack Ramsay against the Philadelphia 76ers for the National Basketball Association title is a study in irony.

It was Ramsay and former owner Irv Kosloff who destroyed the champion 76ers of a decade ago, trading such stars as Wilt Chamberlain and Chet Walker, allowing Billy Cunningham to jump to the American Basketball Association.

In six years with Ramsay as either general manager or general manager-coach or just plain coach, the 76ers fell from the top to the bottom of the NBA. In 1972-73, Philadelphia posted a 9-73 record, the worst in the history of the league.

It never really has been clear who was responsible for wrecking the 76ers of the late 60s. The suspicion is that Ramsay and Kosloff share the

Chamberlain left because he was tired of Philadelphia and wanted the California scene. Ramsay says that the 7-foot-2 Chamberlain turned down a chance to be his co-coach, that nothing could have kept Wilt here.

Ramsay has to bear the onus of trading Walker, who went to Chicago for Jim Washington. Walker continued to be an NBA all-star. Washington was just a journeyman performer. Cunningham wanted to renegotiate his contract and the 76ers refused. So, he jumped to the ABA Ramsay blames Kosloff. Kosloff never has spoken out on the issue.

The 76ers have been rebuilt, partly single to left, and Seibert rode home under Kosloff's ownership before he sold out last year to Fritz Eugene Two big defensive plays in the Dixon. With Pat Williams as general seventh kept the Travs from doing manager, the 76ers, who are favored more damage. Doug Collins, Lloyd Free, Darryl Dawkins, Harvey Catchings, all came via the draft. George McGinnis also was a 76ers' draft choice but went to the ABA. He jumped to the 76ers for the 1975-76 season. Caldwell Jones also was an ABA refugee, originally cast aside by Philadelphia Steve Mix was signed as a free agent. Henry Bibby was acquired in a trade. So was Joe Bryant. Mike Dunleavy and Terry Furlow were draft picks.

And then there is Julius "Dr. J." Erving, acquired in that momentous 6 million deal last fall from the New York Nets. Dr. J. was the icing on the cake. Basketball's greatest one-on-one combatant meshed into Coach Gene Shue's system.

The 76ers have almost completed the cycle from champion to doormat to champion. Only Ramsay and his Trail Blazers stand in the way. It would be irony if Ramsay had a hand in destroying them again, this time on the floor, instead of off.

Erving is the key to the 76ers' hopes. He's been the team's standout in the playoff victories over Boston and Houston. Erving has averaged 25.8 points, 6.2 rebounds, blocked 16 shots, handed out 55 assists, made 25 steals, shot 51.3 from the field and 80.0 on the foul line.

No, he doesn't pump the ball up before each game.

Erving has had to take over. His fellow super star, McGinnis, has been handicapped with a groin injury. He hasn't played to his potential in the playoffs, with just a 14.7 average. He's shot a poor 36.8 from the field and 59 per cent at the foul line. McGinnis has rebounded at a 10.9 clip in the 13 games.

Stone stones Royals

By The Associated Press

Steve Stone was a 1976 free agent who didn't have to change his address when he changed teams. He went from the Chicago Cubs to the Chicago

The difference, however, has been like night and day-and it has nothing to do with the Cubs' Wrigley Field having no lights.

"The key to my success has been our offense," said Stone, who was supported by three White Sox homers in Chicago's 8-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals Thursday night. "It's been devastating.

Stone, 3-6 with a 4.08 earned run average in 17 games with the Cubs last season, is on a hot streak of his own right now. He has hurled five complete games, compiling a 4-3 record and a 2.34 ERA.

"When the hitters are hot, it gives you a lot more confidence that if you can hold your opponent to three or four runs you'll win," he said. Stone kept the Royals within that limit, while scattering nine hits. "It seems that this team will get a few runs and keep adding a run here and there," Stone said. "It never lets up and because of that the other team doesn't get a chance to get going. Jorge Orta, Oscar Gamble and Chet Lemon each slugged solo homers for the White Sox, who moved within one game of first-place Minnesota in the

with the loss. Jim Colborn, making his first appearance since tossing a nohitter against Texas last Saturday, hurled 22-3 innings and was charged with his fourth loss in nine decisions. 'There's no explanation other than that they hit the ball. And man did they hit it," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, referring to Colborn's turnabout.

Mariners 3, A's 0 Dave Pagan made Seattle history, giving the expansion club its first shutout victory with a six-hitter against Oakland

'Before the game, I thought if I went six innings I'd be satisfied," said Pagan, who struck out eight and walked one in gaining his first major league shutout and only his third complete game in 15 career starts.

Pagan, making his first start of this season, had made 14 relief appearances with Seattle, with a 5.56

Toronto starter Bill Singer, 26, was the victim of the big inning in which two runs scored on bases-loaded walks and another as Mike Hegan reached base on an error and came around on a balk, a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Jim Slaton, 2-4, gave up nine hits, but needed ninth-inning relief from Bob McClure.

Dodgers feel Gossage's Rocky Mountain Heat

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Rich Gossage introduced the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday night to "Colorado Rocky Mountain Heat."

"Power against power. I love it." Gossage, a Colorado Springs native, said after his overpowering relief pitching led the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-5 victory over the Dodgers in 10 inn-

"He can throw that ball-man, can he throw that ball!" said Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda after watching the Pirates' relief pitcher strike out eight batters in three overpowering innings. That gave Gossage 24 strike-outs in the last 40 batters he has faced. One of Gossage's strikeout victims was Boog Powell, who concurred with the pitcher's baseball philosophy.

"It psyches me up," said Powell,

Braves 6, Cubs 0 Knuckleballer Phil Niekro fired a three-hitter, recording his first victory as a starter this season in pitching Atlanta over Chicago. The victory snapped a six-game Chicago winning streak and was only the Cubs' second setback in 14 games. Atlanta, which had a 17-game losing streak earlier this year, extended its winning streak to four.

Niekro, 2-7, had picked up a victory in relief against Montreal Tuesday night. He was in control most of the way, working out of a one-out bases loaded jam in the second inning. He fanned five and walked two.

"These last two victories don't make up for the seven I lost," said Niekro, "but it does tell me I've still got the Niekro knuckler of the last few years.

Noted Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol: "I just think he went through a slump like a batter does. He had never had one before and he just didn't know how to cope with it. It looked like he had his dancing knuckler tonight.

Astros 3, Phillies 2 Willie Crawford's sacrifice fly capped a two-run uprising in the eighth, boosting Houston over Philadelphia. A walk to Cesar Cedeno, a single by Cliff Johnson and an error by losing pitcher Gene Garber on Joe Ferguson's sacrifice loaded the bases for Houston with none out.

After Bob Watson struck out, Ken Boswell beat out a slow roller to third base, scoring Cedeno. Crawford then lifted his sacrifice fly to right, scoring

Winner Joaquin Andujar, 3-3, scattered 10 hits in eight innings before leaving for a pinch hitter.

"Walks killed us tonight," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark. 'Also, we left a lot of men on base and didn't take advantage of the situations we needed to win.

Coach Jerry Hopkins' Purple Pack will stage their Purple-White game with proceeds going to Mims who suffered a serious injury while playing for Midland High in 1953.

Tickets are $1 each and may be obtained at the gate for tonight's kickoff and spring finale.

Hopkins starts his second year at the helm of the Bulldogs and is pleased with the work turned in by the 61 varsity candidates.

Midland started with 61 players and ended up with 61 as there were no serious injuries. The hard-working Midland staff put the Bulldogs through some long drills, but are satisfied with the results.

"We really got after it on Thursday and I like the attitude of this year's team," said Hopkins, who had a 5-5 LAST YEAR'S junior varsity had a 6-3-1 reading so Hopkins feels like his team will have a better record this coming football season.

Midland is running out of the Wing-T formation and now that they have had a year to adjust from the Wishbone, the Bulldogs could be off and running come Sept. 2 when they entertain the Amarillo Tascosa Rebels in Memorial Stadium.

"We plan to divide up the squads to try and make them as evenly-matched as we can, "said Hopkins.

Doug Atnipp will guide the White team while Jimmy Mowles most likely will be the Purple quarterback. Joining Atnipp in the White backfield will be Robert Montgomery at fullback. The halfbacks will include Gerald Dedrick and Alvin Price.

Up front it will be David Isby at split end and Brian Booker at the tight end slot. The tackles will include Billy Walker and Paul Boruff while the guards will be Frank Driskill and Kevin Murphey. The center will be Todd Liberty.

Linebackers will be Booker and Liberty with Price, Isby, Atnipp and Dedrick in the deep secondary.

For the Purples, joining Mowles in the backfield will be Walter Bryson and Jimmy Zachry at the halfback slots with Brently Jackson and Don Carr sharing the fullback position.

Steve Cole will start at split end with Link Grimes at the tight end slot. Tackles will include Michael Feldt and Tony McCarthy. The guards will be David Collins and Philip Wickman and over the ball at center will be Ricky Goode, a 220-pounder.

Winner take all match draws investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Communications Commission is considering an investigation into how much CBS knew about rigged prize awards in its televised "Heavyweight Championship of Tennis" series, Commissioner Joseph Fogarty said Thursday.

The nationally televised series was largely funded by the network.

Several newspapers and news magazines have disclosed that purses in these "challenge matches" were divided between the participants beforehand and were not "winnertake-all" as advertised.

Fogarty, a tennis buff who was captain of his high school tennis team at De La Salle Academy in Newport, R.I., said, "I bought it hook, line and sinker" and followed every match.

He said it was "reprehensible that such deceit would be practiced on the American public. He said that while it has not been determined how much CBS knew about the prize arrangement, enough has been published for the FCC to have a responsibility to look into it. Commissioner Robert E. Lee said he also thinks there is a need to ask questions about the situation. He said his office has received some com-

Fogarty said the FCC Broadcast Bureau "has under advisement" what action, if any, should be taken. William Ray, chief of the bureau's complaints and compliance division, would not comment on what he might recommend, but he noted that it does not have to wait for formal complaints but may act on its own if it considers it proper.

He noted a case of asking the net-works themselves to look into complaints a few years ago into charges that ABC and CBS were setting up staged news shorts.

The CBS series featured matches on April 26, 1975, between Jimmy Connors and John Newcombe, Feb. 28, 1976, featuring Connors and Manuel Orantes, and March 6, 1977, with Connors and Ilie Natasse.

All three matches were billed as having a $250,000 "winnertake-all" purse, but in fact, revenues were divided by prearrangement, said the Washington Post. As in a boxing title fight, it said, both participants were guaranteed fees regardless of the

Bullpup Whites nab 12-6 football win

The Midland High Bullpup junior varsity stagged their final spring football game Thursday afternoon in Memorial Stadium with the Whites posting a 12-6 victory over the Purple squad.

Both teams were shut out in the opening period as fumbles by both units kept each other from scoring, but in the second quarter, all three touchdowns were scored and in a short period of time.

The Whites drew first blood when the Purples fumbled in their own end zone with tackle David Simmons pouncing on the loose pigskin for a touchdown. This came with 6:33 left in the first half.

This seemed to fire up the Purple unit as quarterback Tracy Gann flipped a 70-yard TD pass to split end

Turner loses court battle on suspension

ATLANTA (AP) — Ted Turner's one-year suspension from baseball has been upheld by a federal judge. who said a casual observer might call the case "a comedy of errors" or "an Indian massacre in reverse."

U.S. District Court Judge Newell Edenfield ruled Thursday that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn had the power to suspend the outspoken owner of the Atlanta Braves, but voided Kuhn's elimination of the team's first-round choice in next month's amateur draft.

"In their encounter with the commissioner, the Braves took nary a scalp, but lived to see their own dangling from the lodgepole of the commissioner, apparently only as a grisly warning to others," Edenfield wrote. Turner said he had no intention of appealing the portion which upheld his suspension, but that Kuhn might want to appeal the decision denying his authority to remove Atlanta's first-round draft pick

"He wanted a total victory." Turner said. Meanwhile, in New York, Kuhn declined to comment on the order, saying he would have to see it first. Kuhn suspended Turner last Jan. 18, relying on a clause in the Major League Agreement authorizing him to act against any matter he considered 'not in the best interests' of baseball.

The commissioner contended Turner violated a directive prohibiting owners from talking money to opposing teams' players before the free-agent draft last Nov. 4.

Kuhn said Turner violated it when he told San Francisco owner Bob Lurie at a cocktail party during the World Series last October that he would outbid the Giants for outfielder Gary Matthews, who was playing out his option with San Francisco.

Turner did sign Matthews after the draft, and the contract was approved by Kuhn, who used the suspension and removal of the draft choice as punish-

Run Dusty Run eyes Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) - Trainer Smiley Adams can't pull another major Preakness surprise Saturday, but there are indications his entry is again being overlooked.

Two years ago, Adams saddled Master Derby to victory in the second race of the Triple Crown series, with the son of Dust Commander going off at 23-1 despite having finished out of the money only twice in

Now Adams is back at Pimlico Race Course with Run Dusty Run, another Dust Commander colt who has finished worse than second just once in 15 career starts but is listed at only 8-1 in the early odds.

Run Dusty Run has finished second in his last four outings including the Kentucky Derby May 7, leading many observers to conclude the colt merely is a perennial runner-up. But Adams disagrees.

'I think I've got a good shot," the veteran trainer said. "Only this time, I don't want to be 10 or 12 lengths back."

That was in reference to the Kentucky Derby when Run Dusty Run came from far off the pace and lost to unbeaten Seattle Slew by 1% lengths in the 14-mile

For the Preakness, one-sixteenth of a mile shorter. Seattle Slew is expected to be on the lead along with two colts who missed the Derby because of illness, Cormorant and J.O. Tobin.

Frustration over losing his job to rookie Bump Wills led to Randle's well-publicized punchout of Texas Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi. That produced a 30-day suspension, a heavy fine and ultimately his placement on waivers.

hitting 413 through Wednesday's game and has forced the veteran Millan to the sidelines.

"The second baseman is phenomenal," said Mets pitcher Jon Matlack after Randle scored the first run, set up the second and made three strong fielding plays to back the lefthander's 2-0 triumph over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night.

"He's got a magic wand. He's great to have on the ball club," added

"He's playing great baseball," said veteran first baseman Ed Kranepool. 'He hustles, works hard. He's not a problem on the club. I wasn't even concerned when he joined us. Only Joe Frazier had to be concerned."

The reason for that may have been two-fold. Frazier, the manager, might have had worries about the reputation that preceded Randle's arrival. He also might have had to worry about the second baseman's left hook

Those concerns abated quickly. "Randle is playing like heck," says the Mets' manager. "We were fortunate to get him.

"We," of course, does not include Millan. "If they don't want me here," Millan is quoted as saying, "they can trade me. I know I can still play every day for somebody.

Right now, Randle is playing every day for the Mets.

"You can't help but love the fans in New York," says Randle. "They pump you up. I feel I owe the fans my best as an entertainer. I don't cheat

He didn't Wednesday night, that's for sure. With the game scoreless in the third inning, Randle doubled and went to third when outfielder Darrell Evans threw behind him.

"The ground was wet, so I figured I'd gamble by running to third on the play," said Randle, referring to the rainsoaked field at Shea Stadium. The gamble paid off when pitcher

Jim Barr threw a wild pitch and gave the Mets a 1-0 lead. Then, in the eighth inning, singles by Roy Staiger, Randle and Jerry Grote gave New York its other run.

Play like that is making the days dark for Millan.

"Randle plays third and the outfield and we have a catcher (Jerry Grote) playing third base. Why is he (Randle) playing second base?" asked

Briscoe stumps state against energy plans

By GREG THOMPSON

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who once tirelessly campaigned across Texas for Jimmy Carter, is now vigorously stumping the state against Carter's energy proposals.

Briscoe leveled another bitter attack at Carter's energy plan Thursday and promised to continue his assault in a series of speeches "until 'They are horrible,' Briscoe said of Carter's proposals. "The energy proposals submitted by the President would, if adopted, constitute a disaster for Texas.

'The philosophy behind this energy plan is wrong," he added. "If this program is fully implemented the federal bureaurcracy will have a death grip on the energy resources of

"I will be making more speeches," Briscoe promised later. "It will be an ongoing effort until the Carter proposals are changed.

Carter's proposals include provisions for the federal regulation of intrastate natural gas. This is bitterly opposed by Briscoe and other Texas leaders who say the energy problem could be solved by deregulation of oil and natural gas

Asked if he would support a federal suit to block the federal control of intrastate gas, Briscoe answered, "If we lose in Congress, we must keep all of our options open. We will use every available means to prevent federal control of intrastate gas.

Briscoe's latest attack on the proposals came at the first East Texas Chamber of Commerce Conference on State and National Energy Policies. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., was scheduled to speak, but said he was unable to attend because he had obligations in Washington.

"The President's energy team has little concern for the producing states and a deaf ear to our legitimate requests," charged Briscoe. "The bias in Washington against Texas and other producing states is neither a figment of our imagination nor provincial over-reaction to criticism.

Texas produces nearly 40 per cent of the nation's oil and natural gas.

"The President contemplates a tax collection of approximately $27.3 billion in 1980 as part of his plan," said Briscoe. "Approximately $6.6 billion or 24 per cent of this total will be collected in Texas and 60 per cent of this cannot be passed on to other

"That figure of $6.6 billion amounts to the annual value of all agricultural production in Texas; that's how great an impact we are talking about.

"You can be sure that our most important fight is to prevent the allocation of gas within Texas to other states," Briscoe added. "If this is carried out it would close factories and put tens of thousands of Texans out of work at a time of peak demand for gas.

The ETCC conference, called the nation's first to be conducted for both consumers and the energy industry, was held to examine Carter's proposal and it's impact on Texas. Representatives from the ETCC's 72 counties attended

End of energy dilemma remote under Carter's plan RRC member says

Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim C. Langdon today said ability to attract operating capital and prudent operators is a paramount need of the nation's energy industry.

But, the veteran oil and gas regulatory official maintained, resolution of the twin-requirement and an end to the country's energy dilemma is remote under the month-

> ENERGY OIL & GAS

old program proposed by President

Langdon made that assessment of the White House conservation and tax-pegged program in a speech at the noon session of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association's 15th Annual Meeting which got under way here today in the Midland Hilton.

Other events of the annual meeting will include a business session at 2 p.m., the President's Reception at 6:30 p. m. and the annual banquet at 7:30. All events will be in the Midland Hilton.

Charles D. Fraser, PBPA president, will be honored at the reception

'More than at any time in the past. our energy producers must be able to attract capital," Langdon told the PBPA members and their guests.

"Moreover, the industry must be able to attract prudent operators the shrewd, the provident, the practical."

But, he said, that is "hardly a likely prospect under a program which has excluded industry experience from participation in every policy-making role" of the Carter energy forces.

"No one possessing the experience. the skill, good judgment, discipline and wisdom essential to the proper management of energy production and resources was, to my knowledge. selected or invited to participate in the drafting of the nation's energy policy," Langdon explained.

The RRC member insisted that the prudent operator, as he has in the past, would take on normal high risks in searching for oil and gas under appropriate economic and political Therefore, said Langdon, 'government energy policy must either permit or provide economic conditions that meet accepted prudent investment standards.

'Such a policy would assure greater energy supplies and would permit a level of exploration and development in Texas and throughout the United States that most earth scientists agree would result in the discovery of more new oil and gas reserves than were found in the first 100 years of petroleum history," he predicted

Bud, said Langdon, this will not happen under the Carter energy

'His program has excluded the prudent businessman, the prudent investor and the prudent operator from any such participation," contended the Texas official.

Under the Carter program, he said, "the normal high risks have been made much higher; the number of uncertainties have been increased; costs have been raised, and rewards for success have been reduced.

Langdon said the President's call for "almost immediate phaseout" of the use of natural gas under boilers would result in chaos, particularly in

"Compliance will result in a precipitous and costly effort on the part of industry and electric utilities to make mandated conversions," he

"Capital requirements will be enormous, and manufacturers of the necessary machinery and equipment required to make the conversions will be caught up in converting their own plants and may be rendered unable to produce at all.

Langdon said time has expired for "political fun and games" in dealing with energy policies.
"It has long been a favorite pastime of certain members of Congress and their staffs, as well as some media representatives, to see how many new, demogogic, inflamatory, and rhetorical words and phrases could be coined for use in attacking and destroying even the most constructive and essential legislative programs providing for a timely national energy policy," Langdon said.

He warned that regional differences will likely become more volatile as inept government efforts to equalize domestically produced energy supplies are applied to take energy away from states that produce it and give it to politically determined areas of higher priority.

"If this happens, inequities will occur, industry and civil unrest will result, jobs will be shifted, and the polarizing effect on the nation could become critically explosive," Langdon said.

The noon luncheon was sponsored by the Lone Star Steel Co.

The President's Reception will be sponsored by Cardinal Industries, the Fort Worth Pipe & Supply Co. and the Permian Corp.

The annual business meeting will feature a two-member energy panel including Lloyd Unsell, Washington, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, and Jack Allen of Perryton, president of Alpar Resources.

Special breed officers makes arrests stick

By RONALD J. OSTROW The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - He's a bulky cop with a Fu-Man-Chu moustache and easy-going ways. He disdains handcuffs because they "make a person uncomfortable.

But when Officer Robert R. Raffety arrests someone, that person generally is as good as convicted. With nearly seven years on the District of Columbia force, Raffety, 28, is a seasoned officer who knows how to make an arrest that sticks.

"I don't want to lock someone up on a charge that can't be made in court," Raffety said. "If I lock somebody up, they have violated the law.'

A new computer study shows that Raffety's attitude and his arrestconviction skills make him a member of a surprisingly rare breed among police in Washington and probably many other cities — the small percen-tage of officers who make almost all the effective arrests, those that lead to convictions.

The study, conducted by the In-stitute for Law and Social Research, focused on 1974 data in Washington. But the researchers think the results can be applied elsewhere, and a similar inquiry in Indianapolis has produced similar results.

The study suggests that too many officers think their job is done when they make an arrest. It says these officers fail to come up with two elements pinpointed by the inquiry as vital to convictions: tangible evidence and witnesses willing to testify Interviews with five of the District of Columbia's top arrest-conviction producers for 1974 supported the findings of the computerized study financed by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration-and added a few wrinkles on what makes a cop one of the best.

At first glance, the study's results border on the incredible. It found that 368 of the Washington department's 4.505 sworn officers - or 8 per cent made more than half of all arrests that led to conviction. To be sure, this figure needs some adjustment because only about 60 per cent of the city's policemen are "on the street," or had assignments where an officer would make an arrest as part of his normal duties. But even adjusting for this factor, the study shows that a small number of police make the bulk of the conviction producing arrests. And the Washington results are butressed by an analysis of robbery and homicide cases filed by the Indianapolis police in 1976. James Kelley, prosecuting attorney for Marion County (Indianapolis), Ind., who conducted the study, said recently "Slightly more than one-half of the cases were produced by one-fourth of the officers.

Raffety's service on the warrant squad in one of the capital's busiest police districts illustrates the value of tangible or physical evidence.

According to the study, the 1974 conviction rate for the violent offenses of homicide, sexual assault and aggravated and simple assault stood at 30 per cent when tangible evidence was recovered. When it wasn't, the rate fell to 24 per cent. As a self-described "bounty hunter," Raffety would seem only to have to pick up individuals who jumped bail or failed in other ways to meet court orders. But having studied every appeal decision under federal and District of Columbia bail law, Raffety learned the value of documentary evidence.

As a result, Raffety invariably asks the fugitive he places under arrest whether he has "any court papers." Most often the defendant volunteers that he or she does have copies, and Raffety seizes as evidence the papers that demonstrate the person knew he was violating a court-set obligation.

"If you've got that slip, you've got a locked case under the Bail Reform Act," Rafferty explained in an interview last week

Robert A. Catlett, a member of the Metropolitan Police Department's sex squad, characterized such techniques of arrest as "the little tricks that work like a charm" that the successful officer learns from experience.

Catlett's emphasis on experience ties in with another of the study's major findings: That the conviction rate climbed with experience, the most notable difference occuring between officers with one year of service and those with two to three on the force.

"The length of an officer's service was the single most important factor" related to conviction rate, said Brian Forst, who managed the Washington

The age or sex of an officer. however, had no apparent effect on conviction rates.

Catlett drew from his own bag of "tricks" in contending that the more experience an officer has, the more he knows "what they want." The "they" are the prosecutors and the courts.

As a sex squad officer, Catlett, a 10year policeman, has found that "you have to do a lot of handholding" with rape victims. "A lot of times, girls get scared and don't want to testify," he

"You have to educate them so they can say things they wouldn't normally say aloud," Catlett said. "You don't want them to be nervous because they might laugh" under questioning on the witness stand. "If they laugh, the jury will think it's a farce.

Such witness preparation normally would fall within the prosecutor's province. But the conviction-minded Catlett said: "If he (the prosecutor) doesn't do it, I do."

Persuading witnesses to come forward is a major problem for police. The study found that the conviction rate for violent offenses, other than robbery, more than doubled when two or more "lay witnesses" were available - 39 per cent against 18 per

Lorraine D. Paradise, who has spent part of her six years with the department riding buses in search of pickpockets, recalled one case where the thief stood above a sitting victim and rifled through her purse. "He had a trenchcoat on and reached through his pockets," Ms. Paradise said. "Everybody in the bus saw it, but the victim wouldn't tell us anything. She was too afraid."

Witnesses, even when they won't testify, can be crucial in pursuing the lawbreaker. Genevieve Marino, who patrols a high-crime area of Washington aboard a motor scooter, recently lost a youth she was pursuing through alleys.

"A guy sitting on his porch nodded his head toward where he went," Officer Marino said, and she ordered the 18-year-old purse-snatcher to come out from undermeath an auto where he was hiding.

In this instance, the man on the porch was unwilling to testify. But police said they had a good case anyway.

Interviews with the top convictionproducers, dubbed by researcher Forst the "supercops," indicate that some of their success could be attributed purely to their attitude about their job.

James L. Black, a vice detective who has been on the force for eight years, thinks that nine out of 10 suspects can be persuaded to plead guilty in the precinct house.

"After being advised of their con-stitutional rights, 95 per cent of them will talk to you - if you treat them like human beings," Black said. "If you're hard and, say, won't let them drink a Coke while you're doing the paperwork, they're not going to tell you anything. Black and other police interviewed stressed that self-preservation also motivated them to treat suspects as human beings. Black recalled an incident in which he and two other plain-clothes officers pulled their Volkswagen to the curb in a section of Washington where the 1968 riot began.

"I pulled out a wad of cash - my whole paycheck — and three hookers came right over," he said. "They got greedy and we arrested them for soliciting."

Federal workers on 'flexitime'

By MIKE CAUSEY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It is now possible for at least 1 white-collar federal worker in every 13 to avoid the worst of rush-hour traffic, take a long lunch or midday break for personal business or arrange child care coverage — and still work and be paid for an 8hour day.

The quiet revolution in federal stop-and-go times results from the growing use of flexible work schedules. Civil servants in fields from codebreaking to check-writing and law enforcement are now setting their own hours.

This virtually has eliminated tardiness in some agencies, cut sick leave use and resulted in longer service hours to the taxpayers.

Although "flexitime" is still not the official policy of the U.S. Government, experts estimate that at least 90,000 civil servants - and maybe as many as 150,000 - are already setting their own hours under

Use of the flexitime concept ranges from conservative (50 employees involved) experiments at the National Archives to the Geological Survey, which has virtually all of its 10,000 workers on the stretched-to-fit work day, and generally loving it. Flexitime has taken a back seat to the four-day week in getting the media spotlight. But the 4-day week (with 10-hour days) is still some time off. It must overcome staunch and unbending opposition from the AFL-CIO's aging Washington leadership.

The AFL-CIO opposes a government plan to test the four-day week for a three-year period because it would mean the voluntary waiver of overtime pay on the part of employees who wanted to work an extra two hours a day to qualify for a three-day weekend. Hearings on legislation that would permit the three-year test of flexitime programs, including the four-day week begin May 24 before the House Employee Ethics and Utilization subcommittee. It is headed by Rep. Patricia Schroeder (D-Colo.).

But if the four-day week is still facing legislative and political stumbling blocks, the set-your-own hours program is here now and growing every day. Thousands of Washington-area government employees are involved in it, and other agencies are planning tests of the system with selected parts of their operations. Flexitime is a catchword for many varying work schedules. But typically an agency will set up a work day of 12 hours, say from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. During the 'core-day'' period, all workers must be on duty - say from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. But within those times they can arrange to come in later, leave earlier or take a longer mid-day break, so long as they put in the required eight-hour day.
