General must take fate, colleague says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former U.S. commander in South Korea said Friday Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub "has to be prepared to take the consequences" for challenging publicly President Carter's decision to withdraw troops from Korea.

However, Retired Gen. Richard G. Stilwell, who chose Singlaub as chief of staff in Korea, indicated he agrees generally with Singlaub's opposition to the troop withdrawal.

Meanwhile, Sen. Frank Church, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, suggested that Singlaub should be disciplined or dismissed for his remarks.

And Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., said he has told the Pentagon he wants Singlaub to testify Wednesday before the House Armed Services Committee's investigations subcommittee in connection with the panel's "over-all review of U.S. defense strategy."

Stilwell commented in an interview as the 55-year-old Singlaub flew to New York on his way to Washington. Carter ordered Singlaub home Thursday after the general's remarks were published in a Washington Post story from Seoul.

The story quoted Singlaub as predicting: "If we withdraw our ground forces on the schedule suggested it will lead to war."

It was uncertain when the Army general would be called before Carter, and the White House gave no hint as to what action the President might take after he speaks to Singlaub.

The episode brought to mind the last time a president called home a general for disagreeing publicly with policy. That was 26 years ago when President Harry S. Truman relieved Gen. Douglas MacArthur as U.S. commander in the Korean War for espousing attacks into China.

Stilwell, who said, "I have great admiration for Jack Singlaub as a soldier," avoided any criticism of the general or of Carter.

"It's perfectly within the prerogative of the commander in chief to do that," Stilwell said. "The military establishment is rooted in discipline."

"This was a direct public challenge to the decision. There always is that dilemma — with full compliance with orders on the one hand and expression of one's deeply felt convictions if one believes a decision was not a sound one.

"When one speaks out, one has to be prepared to take the consequences."

At the Pentagon, Singlaub's abrupt recall aroused mixed reactions among professional military officers.

Some were angry and suggested Carter was following a double standard in ordering Singlaub home while, as they viewed it, allowing U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young to speak out sometimes in apparent conflict with administration policies.

But other officers said Singlaub should have stayed within the accepted rules under which military men express policy dissent only through internal channels.

Many military professionals agree generally with Singlaub's opposition to the planned withdrawal of some 32,000 U.S. Army troops from South Korea.

However, few have gone so far as to predict the scheduled withdrawal would lead to war.

Stilwell, who is not bound by restrictions that apply to officers on active duty, told a reporter he believes the pullout of American ground troops from South Korea "would mean a greatly increased likelihood of conflict."

Mondale warns South Africa on apartheid

By JIM HOAGLAND
The Washington Post

VIENNA — Vice President Walter Mondale strongly warned South Africa Friday that continuing racial discrimination and denial of political rights to blacks will bring a "worsening of relations" with the United States and increased violence in southern Africa.

Moving to end an eight-year period of increased American accommodation of the white minority government by the Nixon and Ford administrations, Mondale delivered the blunt American rejection of South Africa's "apartheid" racial-separation policies to Prime Minister John Vorster during two days of discussions that ended Friday morning.

"We cannot accept, let alone defend, the governments that reject the basic principle of full human rights, economic opportunity and political participation for all its people regardless of race," Mondale said shortly before leaving Vienna for Brno, Czechoslovakia.

The two leaders appeared at separate press conferences that clearly reflected the unyielding stance of both sides during the eight hours of talks. Each acknowledged they had made no progress toward resolving what Mondale called "fundamental and profound disagreement" on the need for change inside South Africa.

Projecting a strongly activist approach on southern Africa for the Carter administration, Mondale said the United States would "take actions based on our policy and to the detriment of the constructive relations we would prefer with South Africa" if there is not significant racial change there.

He said he had not listed for Vorster any specific actions the United States would take to express its disapproval, and he declined to discuss them with newsmen.

Despite the stinging public criticism of his policies, Vorster endorsed American efforts to arrange a settlement to Rhodesia's guerrilla war and said that some progress has been made in negotiating a settlement in the disputed territory of Namibia (South West Africa).

Asked if the new American pressure on him would impede South Africa's efforts on Rhodesia and Namibia, Vorster sternly told newsmen that he "would not out of pi-

AIRBORNE BETWEEN MIDLAND AND DALLAS — The passengers on Southwest Airlines maiden flight between Midland and Dallas nursed 10 a.m. scotch and waters served with heart-shaped swizzle sticks and roasted almonds called "Love Bites."

For those who cared, and few probably did, the clouds below looked like upside down egg cartons on the day commemorating the 50th anniversary of the day Charles Lindbergh made his historic flight.

"What would you like to drink?" asked a stewardess wearing what are described as "Southwest orange" hot pants, which match the color of the aircraft.

The stewardesses, or more properly, flight attendants, are as important a force in the drawing appeal of the company as the Pratt & Whitney JT8D-9 engines are in propelling the aircraft.

(Please note that is the romantic-sexist theory of marketing. In a more realistic approach, tangible factors like flight schedules and prices count more. Although if the world operated solely on this level, one would not find the shell of an airplane and the clothes of its crew bearing identical colors.)

Anyway, back to the crew. There is a pilot and a co-pilot. But never mind them. There are three flight attendants. And considering this is a budget-priced flight, that's rather surprising.

Moments before the first Boeing 737 roared off the runway at Midland Regional Air Terminal, officials from the cities of Odessa and Midland got together in a rare spirit of unity to clip the ceremonial ribbon.

"Come on Joe, let's do something together," Midland County Judge Barbara Culver said jokingly to her Ector County counterpart, Judge Joe Connolly.

On take-off, the two powerful engines growled so loudly into the Midland skies and into the fuselage of the plane's rear section that it drowned out information given over the loudspeaker. Although in fairness, a plane traveling to Midland from Dallas early Friday afternoon was either less noisy or had a more powerful speaker system, because announcements could be heard in the back.

Seats on the Southwest airplanes are positioned three on each side of a rather narrow aisle. The positioning of the seat makes a passenger not quite 5-foot-6 feel Texas tall.

However, for those more traditionally Texas in height, the airplane has five lounge areas.

On the return trip from Dallas, after the plane had settled into its cruising altitude, a passenger asked one pretty flight attendant for her guess at the craft's altitude.

After looking out the window, she answered, "I don't know. I've never been to Midland before. How long is the trip?"

"About an hour," the passenger replied.

"Gee, I wonder what it's like in Midland?" the flight attendant said apprehensively.

For those who have never been in the thick-bodied, stubby-winged 737, it appears to handle like a fine European sports car and can turn, land and take off in incredibly short distances.

Although the actual flying time for a Midland to Dallas trip is only about 50 minutes, and that goes by very quickly, the back seats of the plane are loaded with a company publication designed with appeal for the commuting business executive.

One article in the magazine offered "some tips to help you save time and find peace of mind." Another began, "middle age in a man actually begins at 26 years of age. After that it's a downhill slide for the body."

"Could I get you a drink?" another pretty flight attendant asked, smiling.

"Well, not all downhill, thank you," seemed like the best answer.

Fisher offers antidote to retirement blues

If your interest in life is geared to your work-a-day routine, then what are you going to do when and if you are forced into retirement?

And if you get bored to shame and idleness during your leisure hours away from the job, how in tarnation are you going to keep your sanity in retirement?

That definitely can be a problem: sustaining value to your life. And Marion Fisher, director of Senior Services here, offers a suggestion to bypass boredom — planning.

"Develop something early in life that can be turned into a full-time hobby or another career," she said on growing old.

Life comes in stages, and each should be lived to the fullest. No one's life should be forsaken just because the so-called twilight years are setting in.

"Cause," Mrs. Fisher said, "on the day that you're 65, you don't stop the interest and care you've had up to that point. You keep caring about things... doing things."

"You live all your life. You don't stop living just because you've hit 65," she said.

Some people may retire from their first career around age 40. Others may be forced into it by some government mandate at age 55. And some never do retire. They just work and die — or fade away, as in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's tribute to old warriors.

"Retirement is not a stage of life that has to be uncomfortable," said Mrs. Fisher, who plans never to retire.

"There should be a time when you can do all of those things you haven't had time to do before... It can be

PBPA reelects Fraser

By JOE SALMAN

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association, at its annual business meeting Friday afternoon in the Midland Hilton, reelected Charles D. Fraser of Midland to a second term as president of the association and heard a pitch for the organization of a political action committee in the Permian Basin.

Joining Fraser as officers for 1977-78 are four vice presidents, Ted Collins Jr. of Midland, Charles D. Perry of Odessa, Joe McGee of Monahans and Ben Alexander of Hobbs, N.M.

Joseph I. O'Neill III of Midland was elected secretary, and Arthur Dinsmore of Midland was elected treasurer.

Lloyd Unsell of Washington, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, and Jack Allen of Perryton, president of Alpar Resources, explained the advantages of a political action committee (PAC) and how it works, and the steps necessary for the organization of such a committee.

The Congress of the United States is a liberal leaning, lopsided leftist body that is slowly socializing this country," Unsell said, and he added "it has selected the oil industry as its first target."

Unsell said that during the formation of the President's energy policy that "Schlesinger and others in the White House listened politely to the oil industry but the energy package came out just like the rumors that preceded it said it would. They didn't seriously consider anything we had to say."

And, Unsell pointed out, the last 15 votes on energy legislation have been the same.

Unsell said the IPAA and other oil industry organizations are going to have "a difficult time in modifying what the President has advocated for the oil industry — but we are going to make another run at it Monday."

Fraser will be among those who testify at that time before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Unsell said the energy industry is losing out in Washington because it has been sitting on the political sidelines. "We must get in and play the same game our political enemies are playing."

"To give you an idea what happens when you don't play the game, take the depletion allowance for example. When the question of doing away with the depletion allowance first was brought up by opponents of the oil industry, only nine votes were cast against the industry. They kept it at until now there is no such allowance on 85 per cent of production," Unsell said.

And, during the last election business was able to contribute $7 million to its candidates. Organized labor contributed $16 million. The oil, gas and coal industries combined contributed only $800,000 to its candidates.

"That is one area in which political action committees are very effective. Business has many such committees.

Twisters dart about Basin area

A tornado dipped into an open field near Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring late Friday afternoon, a funnel cloud was spotted in Glasscock County, but all Midland mustered tornado-wise was a brief severe weather alert in the eastern part of the county late Friday afternoon.

The tornado near Webb was grounded for about three minutes but did no damage, a spokesman for the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal said.

A Department of Public Safety trooper sighted the funnel cloud from the Garden City Highway in Glasscock County.

While the tornado warning was in effect in Howard County and adjoining Glasscock County, golf ball-size hail pelted Big Spring. Heavy rains were reported over the city.

Most of the rain clouds Friday were to east of Midland, although the Tall City was under a heavy cloud cover for a while that afternoon.

The tornado alert for the eastern corner of Midland County was posted between 6 and 7 p.m.

The weather service measured no rainfall here Friday.

At Andrews Friday night, thunderclouds were overhead and the sand was blowing. That city caught no rain Friday.

Lamesa reported winds and dust but no rain. Thunderheads were building up to the east.

Neither Crane or Rankin reported rain Friday.

Thunderclouds were overhead, however.

Showers and slight hail fell over Stanton.

The area forecast for the weekend calls for fair skies and temperature readings in the upper 80s in the afternoons.

The low temperature reading tonight is forecast for the upper 50s.

Show attracts kin of Webb

BIG SPRING — The brother and daughter of the late 1st Lt. James L. Webb Jr., for whom Webb Air Force Base here was named, will be here Sunday for Webb AFB's final Armed Forces Day celebration.

They are Taylor Webb of McKinney and Karen Webb Friesen of Freehold Township, N.J.

Joining the two will be an aunt of Webb's, Nina Rose Webb Walker of Levelland.

Webb, then 25, was killed in 1949 when the P51 Mustang he was piloting on a weather mission crashed over Japan.

The celebration Sunday will commemorate the 25th anniversary of the base being named after Webb, who was a combat pilot in World War II.

Open house Sunday afternoon at the base will feature showmanship maneuvers of the Thunderbirds, an Air Force flying team.

The open house and air show will be from noon until 4 p.m. Sunday.

Private pilots are to fly in to Webb Saturday morning for a tour of the base.

October, added: "I don't believe that either air or naval power can substitute for ground power for assured deterrence" of a North Korean attack on South Korea.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell restated Carter's South Korean policy at a news briefing Friday.

There are about 8,000 U.S. Air Force personnel in Korea along with squadrons of fighter bombers armed with nuclear weapons.

According to Stillwell, the U.S. ground troops represent "a very important lever and a big blue chip" for the United States and South Korea.

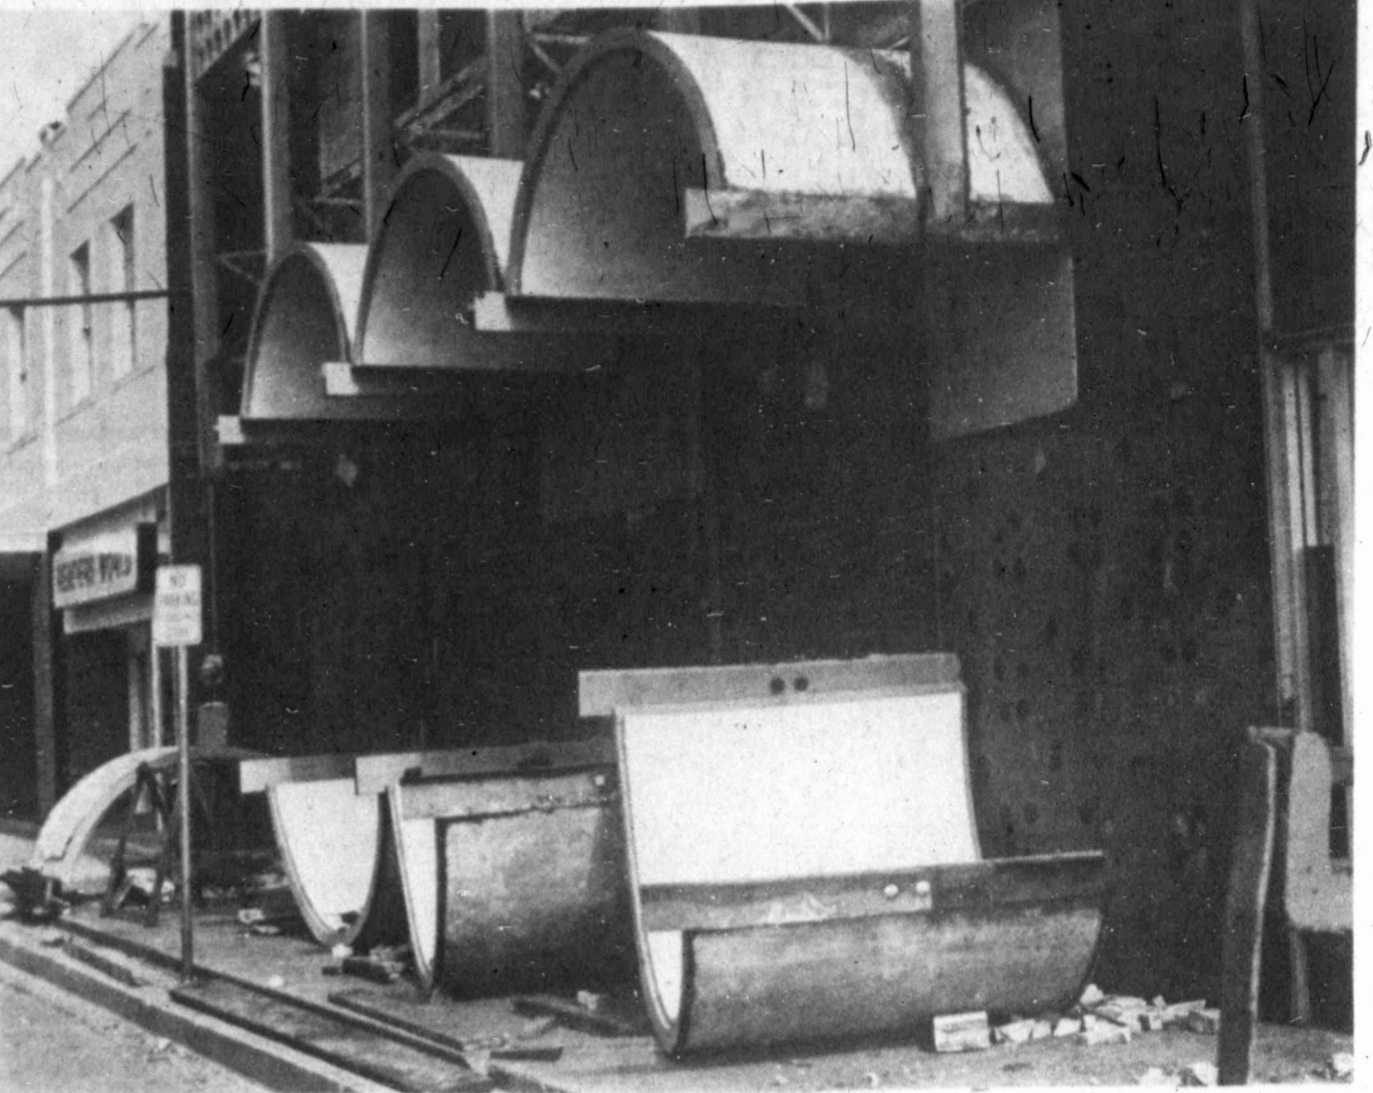

Grant to aid aging agency

AUSTIN — The Governor's Committee on Aging approved Friday a $148,841 grant to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission to support the establishment of a new "area agency on aging."

The grant was one of 14 approved Friday by the committee.

Also approved was a $90,381 grant to the Ector-Midland Counties (Nutrition Project in Odessa).

Area agencies on aging are to provide services such as information and referral counseling, medical and legal counseling, transportation systems, escort services, household assistance and other "individual care," a governor's committee spokesman said.

and the AFL-CIO alone has 160 PACs. The energy industry has only four," Unsell said.

He told the PBGS members that as individuals they can give only so much to a candidate, but through political action committee much more can be contributed.

Unsell said that the oil industry must get into the political game or "we will go the way Great Britain has gone. In that country, the coal, steel and health areas lost $1.7 billion last year through socialization."

"Politics is a matter of money. It takes money for a candidate to campaign, and often, the lack of money has been the main reason for a bright, young free enterprise-thinking candidate to lose in close races," Unsell said.

"The IPAA backed 39 candidates in the last election. Only six won. Sixteen lost by less than two per cent of the vote," he added. "We feel certain that had the money been available we could have gotten some of those 16 elected."

The IPAA executive said the oil industry has a real opportunity to get "many of our candidates in office in 1978."

"We must accomplish this for the good of the industry and for the good of the nation."

"I hope we don't continue to short change ourselves in this political game. We must get into it to help save our free enterprise system," he warned.

Allen followed Unsell with an explanation of how the Pan-PAC was organized last year in the Texas Panhandle.

"Although we got started late, we participated in 50 races through the organization. The IPAA helped us select the pro-energy candidates that we gave our support," Allen said.

He pointed out that Pan-PAC was not organized to support "local" candidates but candidates "from all over the country."

Bill Dutcher of Oklahoma City appeared at the business session to seek support for legislation being supported by the Independent Gas Producers Committee, a temporary organization.

The committee's proposal asks that all independent producers of natural gas be exempt from federal price controls with a gradual phase out of controls on gas produced by major companies. Dutcher described an independent as a producer with less than 200,000,000 cubic feet of production a year.

"We believe that for independents to continue to hold out for decontrol of all new gas could result in prolonged controls for the entire industry," Dutcher said.

Dutcher revealed that the committee's proposal called for a ceiling of $2.25 per thousand cubic feet on new gas and a ceiling of $1.45 on all special category gas — gas that is not classified as new.

After discussion by several PBGS members, the organization voted against supporting the proposals by Dutcher's committee.

"In my opinion, we can not afford to go on record compromising our position on complete decontrol of gas production," Fraser said.

In other business taken up in the business session, Membership Committee Chairman O'Neill said membership of PBGS had increased by 80 this year.

DEATHS

Ken Haynes dead at age 51

UPLAND, Calif. — Kenneth L. Haynes, 51, an Upland banker and a one-time Midlander who years ago clerked in the old Scharbauer Hotel, died Monday in a Pomona, Calif., hospital following a lengthy illness.

He was vice president and loan officer of the Glendora Bank of America. He had lived here the past five years.

Private cremation was held. Burial was at sea.

Haynes was born in Waurika, Okla. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include the widow, Nina L. Haynes of Upland; a son, Scott Haynes of Upland; a daughter, Jeanne Haynes of Upland; a sister, Mary Jane Cashion of Amarillo; a brother, Lovell Haynes of Amarillo, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Haynes of Amarillo.

In lieu of flowers, the family has suggested that friends may contribute to the American Cancer Society.

Midlander's mother dies

ROTAN — Mrs. A. W. Bowen, 63, of Sweetwater, mother of Mrs. Glenn (Anita) Noles of Midland, died at 5:30 p.m. Friday in Fisher County Hospital. Services will be at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Dan Burress, pastor of Westside Baptist Church of Sweetwater, officiating. Burial will be in Rotan Cemetery directed by Weatherbee Funeral Home.

Mrs. Bowen was born Oct. 21, 1913, in Sugargrove, Ark. She married A. W. Bowen Nov. 10, 1929, in Hugo, Okla. They moved to Rotan in 1947 and lived here until moving two years ago to Sweetwater. She was a member of Westside Baptist Church.

Other survivors include her husband, two other daughters, two brothers, a sister and nine grandchildren.

que stop doing what I think is right."

Mondale announced that Vorster had in fact "agreed to support" a new British-American initiative in Rhodesia "to get the directly interested parties to agree to an independence constitution" and free elections "so that Zimbabwe can achieve independence during 1978, and peace."

Zimbabwe is the name for Rhodesia used by the African nationalists waging a guerrilla war against the white settler government of Ian Smith, which depends ultimately for its survival on the South African government's willingness to let supplies cross its territory.

American officials asserted later that Mondale had succeeded in moving Vorster "into a somewhat more forward posture" on Rhodesia by getting him to agree to that the wording of Mondale's statement represented a joint position. His view was that Vorster was more directly involved in the move for independence in Rhodesia now.

But Vorster, speaking to newsmen immediately after Mondale at the ballroom of the Vienna Hilton Hotel, did not use that language himself. Moreover, he said there had been no change in his government's general support for peace efforts in Rhodesia while refusing to interfere in internal affairs there.

Vorster also declined twice to respond directly to questions about Mondale's description of "encouraging" movement on Namibia, the mineral-rich territory South Africa occupies in

Senate OKs court at law

AUSTIN — The bill to create a county court at law in Midland passed the Texas Senate Friday afternoon, Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson said.

The Senate agreed to an amendment to the bill to give the county commissioners the option of activating the court when they believe it is needed at any time after Jan. 1, 1978.

Snelson said he added the amendment because of "a division of opinion" among the commissioners on whether the court would be needed with the addition of a second district court and the probable conversion of the domestic relations court into a full district court.

The bill now goes to the House for

Work planned at Sandhills

Members of the West Texas Four-Wheel Drive Association Sunday are sponsoring a clean-up effort at the Kermit Sandhills.

The group will meet at 1 p.m. in Winwood Mall in Odessa. They will leave at approximately 6 p.m.

Purposes of the effort are to make the Sandhills clean and safe for area residents, to help the City of Kermit with the responsibility of maintenance and to demonstrate the conservation goals of the club.

Election today for Boys Ranch

TANKERSLEY — Election of officers and directors will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the annual meeting of the West Texas Boys Ranch board of directors.

The meeting's agenda calls for discussion of the 1977-78 budget and the presentation of reports on fund-raising and land improvements.

Jim Bob Altizer of Del Rio was chairman of the 1976 Roundup — the ranch's fund-raising campaign.

Buck Owens of Barnhart is to be renominated as board president.

Coalition key to shape of new Israeli government

By H.D.S. GREENWAY
The Washington Post

JERUSALEM — The shape of Israel's new government-to-be now appears to depend on which of two possible coalitions the Likud party, which won Tuesday's election with about a third of the votes, will be able to form.

The question is whether Likud will be able to form a broad-based coalition that includes the left-to-center Democratic Movement for Change or whether it will fall back on a narrow and precarious coalition with minor right-wing and religious parties.

The Labor Alignment, which came in second after 29 years in power, has ruled out the possibility of a government of national unity, preferring instead to lick its wounds in the unfamiliar surroundings of the opposition seats.

Much is at stake, for a coalition with the Democratic Movement would nudge the next Israeli government toward the center with a more flexible stand on territorial concessions and a respectability at home and abroad that the other alternative would lack. It would also give the government a comfortable majority, albeit an uncertain one because the two disagree on so many issues.

The narrow coalition with the right-wing and religious parties would be hawkish and nationalistic. Considerable power would flow to the religious parties, enabling them to exact a high price for their cooperation. The working majority of such a coalition would be hair-thin.

The real haggling will begin when the official election results are published in 10 or 12 days. Until then it is a time of unofficial contacts, soul-searching and policy meetings with just about all concerned playing the coalition numbers game. As one Israeli journalist put it, "prognosis must be written as much with a pocket calculator as with a typewriter."

Unofficial election returns Friday gave Likud 43 seats, the Labor Party 32, and right-wing and religious parties 19.

Likud's leader, Menachem Begin, would like to have the Democratic Movement in his coalition but not at the price they are likely to ask. The Democratic Movement would give Begin a crack at a comfortable majority and would provide the new government with administrative talent.

The Democratic Movement's leader, archeologist Yigael Yadin, for example, would be a valuable asset in calming the fears of Americans and of many Israelis as well. The Jerusalem Post said in an editorial, "People have long feared Menachem Begin not because they suspect him of disloyalty to principle, but to the contrary, because they viewed him as an unbending doctrinaire."

But Yadin and the Democratic Movement have insisted that any coalition partner accept many of their "sacred" principles, which include a platform against annexation of territory on the occupied West Bank and a demand that elections be held again within two years under a new electoral system.

Likud favors annexation of the West Bank and, although that disagreement might be resolved by both parties promising to go to the people before any final decision is made,

Begin is not about to accept new elections in two years. After 29 years in opposition he would like a chance at a full four years in power. So far the Likud has termed the Democratic Movement's principles as "unacceptable."

The Democratic Movement is torn. Some of its leaders say it would be better to stay in opposition and work to pull down the Begin government. Others say it is their duty to join the government and modify Begin's policies — "To save the state of Israel," as one of Yadin's more liberal supporters said.

They also realize that the Democratic Movement is a conglomerate of differing personalities who formed the new protest party on ly last November. It might soon dissolve in opposition.

On May 25 the Democratic Movement's central committee meets to debate whether or not it should join the Likud-led coalition as a matter of principle. A lot of agonizing is expected.

The maddening thing for Yadin's party is that although it came in third with 14 Parliament seats, unprecedented for a new political party, it failed in its main task. Yadin's stated purpose was to become the balance of power between Likud and Labor — the indispensable coalition partner to anyone trying to form a government. This has not happened and, if necessary, Begin can form a coalition without the Democratic Movement.

McManus given death penalty by jury

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court jury assessed the death penalty on Vernon McManus, the former football player and coach who was convicted of conspiring to murder a prominent Baytown couple.

McManus sat motionless as the verdict by the nine men, three women jury was read three and a half hours after the panel began its deliberations.

During the punishment phase, the jury heard a witness testify McManus once threatened to have a "hit" man kill her husband.

As was the case during the eight-day trial, defense lawyers called no witnesses during the punishment phase hearing before State Dist. Court Judge I. D. McMaster.

The jury deliberated about 10 hours in returning verdicts of guilty Thursday on two counts of capital murder alleging McManus, 34, conspired to kill Paul Cantrell, an electrical contractor, and his wife, Mary. The bodies of the couple were found July 25 in their home. Police said they had been strangled and their throats slashed.

Paula Cantrell Derese, 27, a daughter of the couple, also was named on capital charges but she entered pleas of guilty to lesser charges of murder. She is free under bond while awaiting sentencing after having testified for the state during the McManus trial.

The prosecution called only two witnesses during the punishment phase.

Joyce St. Clair, 36, testified McManus knew she was wealthy and indicated he wanted her husband out of the way so he could share her fortune.

"I'll have his brains blown out at your kitchen table," she quoted him as saying in a telephone call early last year.

A few weeks later, she said, McManus tried to extort $200 a week from her for a period of 25 weeks, threatening to burn down one of her husband's liquor stores if she failed to do so.

She testified she and her husband, Don St. Clair, reported the threats to police but were told there was insufficient evidence to file charges.

St. Clair, owner of several liquor stores, confirmed much of his wife's testimony.

Houston police may institute new program

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston police department, a recent target for investigations and accusations of brutality, may soon have in operation a program to evaluate those divisions which deal directly with the public.

Police Chief B. G. Bond ordered creation of the new program in an effort to increase accountability of the department's various units.

Houston police, accused in recent months of acts of brutality, were brought into the spotlight again early this month when an officer was charged with the murder of a young prisoner.

The body of Joe Campos Torres, 23, was found May 8 floating in a bayou near downtown Houston. He had been arrested three days earlier during a disturbance at a tavern.

Officer Terry W. Denson, 27, was charged with murder. Four other officers were fired and another temporarily suspended.

A citizen committee was formed to investigate the case and both state and federal officials have indicated they would probe the events leading to the death of Torres. Asst. Police Chief Harry Caldwell said Friday the new program also would provide training officers for the instruction of new police academy graduates during the six-month probationary period.

Caldwell said officers are "in a position to deprive citizens of their liberty and perhaps their lives."

"You put your hands in their pockets (to search them), so you have to have accountability. Anytime an officer exercises the authority of his office, he will be required to account for that action," he said.

Although the inspection teams may go into any division, Caldwell said the first priority will be those units that deal most directly with the public — patrol, traffic and dispatch.

Caldwell said the program for training probationary officers will "be tightly structured. We do not feel we have in the past adequately utilized the probationary period as a training period."

Governor optimistic

"I believe we can put off and defeat any extension of federal controls over oil and gas," Gov. Dolph Briscoe said in Austin Thursday as the national energy policy debate got under way in the United States Senate.

The governor also expressed the belief that the Carter energy program will be changed to become more favorable toward producing states.

Briscoe was not bashful in leveling another attack against President Carter's energy proposals, while promising to continue his assault until the proposals are changed.

And Gov. Briscoe is the very one who should be leading the attack against the Carter energy package. The governor had much to do in carrying Texas for Carter, after Carter had promised to seek deregulation of natural gas. Then, after he was elected, the President went back on his word. Briscoe has not forgotten this — and neither have most Texans.

"They are horrible," the governor said of Carter's proposals in addressing an East Texas Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Conference on State and National Energy Policies. "The energy proposals, if adopted, constitute a disaster for Texas."

He said further that the philosophy behind the energy plan is wrong, and that "if this program is fully implemented, the federal bureaucracy will have a death grip on the energy resources of our nation."

House Speaker Bill Clayton, in addressing the same meeting, said, "It is time for Texans to get hard-nosed and tell people what we think about the energy policy ... about getting away from free enterprise into a regulated system."

He termed the Carter program "unthinkable...unbelievable."

Here's hoping that Briscoe, Clayton and other state officials will keep hammering away at the Carter plan.

'Urgent study'

Some equivocation is detected in the London summit's declaration that Western nations should fight unemployment and inflation with equal vigor. And there was some finessing of another thorny problem on the agenda — President Carter's effort to restrain traffic in nuclear technology for power plants as a means of controlling the proliferation of atomic weapons.

"We agree on the need to increase nuclear energy to help meet the world's energy requirements," said the declaration, in deference to West Germany's Helmut Schmidt and others who aren't inclined to abandon any nuclear options.

"We commit ourselves to do this while reducing the risks of nuclear proliferation," the declaration continued, in deference to Mr. Carter.

The task obviously is to make those statements compatible, and the issue has been sidetracked temporarily through the device of an "urgent study." Buying time in this manner can be beneficial both to Mr. Carter and to those in Europe and Japan who are balking at his policy.

For Mr. Carter it is by no means a closed issue that the United States can safely forego the development of a breeder reactor and reprocessing technology to utilize plutonium as a power plant fuel. This aspect of his energy program is still subject to a close examination by Congress of our energy options in the 1980s and 1990s.

For Europe and Japan, the study can shed light on what has been a neglected area of international trade and diplomacy — the policing of the burgeoning traffic in nuclear materials and technology. While Mr. Carter may be shortsighted in assuming that other nations would be willing to risk future energy shortages for the sake of controlling weapons proliferation, he has made it impossible to ignore the potential link between surreptitious weapons programs.

A European nuclear community which allowed an entire shipload of uranium to disappear in 1969 — cannot argue that security in the handling of nuclear materials can be taken for granted.

THE CARTER ERA:

Dark clouds already are gathering

By V.H. KRULAK
Copley News Service

OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT: Dear Mr. President:

I want to tell you I'm sorry things aren't running too smoothly for you.

When you and your kin hiked down Pennsylvania Avenue just like regular folks and when you sat in front of the fire in that old sweater and told us all how it was going to be I got the feeling that the sun would always shine and the lions and lambs were going to lie down together.

Now, here we are just a few months later with clouds all over the sky and the lions howling for more lambs.

I'm sorry that the Russians brushed off Mr. Vance and told him that if we won't play the nuclear arms game by their rules, they'll go off and play it all by themselves with the biggest and fanciest bombs they can build. That's disappointing, but maybe you're just going to have to accept them for what they are — a bunch of international spool-sports — and go ahead and make darned sure we are stronger than they are and never mind the lions and lambs business.

I'm sorry that so many of our countrymen have taken to fussing about your trying to make friends with the likes of Fidel Castro, the Red Chinese, the North Koreans and the North Vietnamese.

Having a lot of people call the leaders of these countries a bunch of cutthroats and slavers must make your job a lot harder but that's the way a lot of folks down here do feel about it. I guess what they're trying to say is that maybe you ought to cool it a bit with the old olive branch before one of them turns around and sticks it in our eye.

The other night when I saw Andy Young let fly another one of his dizzy blasts on TV about Africa my heart went out to you. What's a poor President to do? Gosh knows he can't be expected to preview everything everybody in the government says. It's tough, that's all, but you can take a little comfort that you're not the first — don't forget, Jerry Ford had his Earl Butz.

It might be a good idea to profit from Jerry's mistake and dump Mr. Young right now before he triggers some sort of international mud slide that gets all of us dirty. If you don't feel like telling him, get your brother Billy to do it. He's got the right moves.

And talking about international things, I think you're getting a bum rap on the business of giving the Panama Canal away. Anybody who can twist a channel selector knob that Henry Kissinger really did it, and that all you are doing is standing behind his commitment.

I'll bet you are frustrated with those hard-headed senators who say they are going to blow you out of the water if you try and get a giveaway Panama treaty approved. But you know, sir, they could do it.

Now I don't feel like I ought to go around trying to tell Presidents what to do, but I just wonder if this wouldn't be a good time for you to show some of that old Carter spunk and dig your heels in; you know, tell the folks down in Panama that we like it the way it is and hope they aren't too unhappy, because the way it is is the way it's going to stay.

But the place where I think fate really dealt you a cold hand is in this energy business. You'd get the idea that absolutely nobody loves you and nobody wants to help you.

The environmentalists say they're not going to stand for your messing up their atmosphere by burning dirty coal.

The oil people say you're off the beam when you won't deregulate prices so that they can afford to go out and find more oil and gas.

The nuclear energy people just seem to have no patience at all with you when you say you're going to turn

THIRD WORLD PERSPECTIVE: Shift in favor of strong U.S. presence

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — While this island (Ceylon) republic and some of its Third World neighbors retain residual fears of a U.S.-Soviet confrontation in the Indian Ocean, a clear political thrust to the right is reducing once shrill opposition to the vastly expanding American naval base at Diego Garcia island, 950 miles south of this capital port city.

There are a number of reasons for the shift in thinking about once-denounced "Western imperialism" in favor of a strong U.S. presence in the ocean that is a vital shipping route for Mideast oil to Japan, Australia, New Zealand and some U.S. ports.

Three of these reasons are:
1. The mood of Sri Lanka leaders is one of realism as a summer election approaches, an election that seems likely at this time to topple pro-Communist Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike. There also is a voter shift to the more rightist opposition party, partly as the result of India's ouster of pro-Communist Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. Sri Lanka, while fiercely independent, takes many a cue from its big brother nation to the northwest. And, with Sri Lanka the strongest economically of Third World neighbors like Burma, Thailand and the Seychelles, the thinking here spills over to other areas.

JOHN PINKERMAN

2. There is disaffection for the Soviet Union, chief critic of the U.S. base at Diego Garcia.

Sri Lanka has found, as any recipient of Moscow aid has learned, that Red aid often is a one-way street. Russia has sought to establish strong influence here while being miserly in assistance. Also, Red China has been generous with assistance, vital rice included, and Peking is most anxious that the Soviets do not create a powerful political and military base in the Indian Ocean. Insofar as the shade of communism dominant in Sri Lanka today, it definitely is Peking Red rather than Moscow Red.

3. Shades of Red notwithstanding, Sri Lanka now is cultivating rather than antagonizing the West. Simple economics have required this and it is self-interest oriented — but it is real. This country is in desperate need of foreign exchange and it knows that the dollars and the marks and the money of Scandinavia will come in much faster than will funds from Moscow or Peking.

West Germany currently is the darling of the Sri Lanka politicians, even Bandaranaike, and new overtures are made almost daily to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Sweden, even the United States.

"We need peace to improve our economy," a Sri Lanka official said over a cup of tea (no government official desires to be identified in these tense pre-election days). "We have the best economy in this area and if Russia and America get into a confrontation we will be the big losers — just when we are moving ahead finally in building a good tourism business. However, the trend here is away from the Soviet Union and toward the West. This reduces the nervousness about Diego Garcia. If the opposition wins the election later in the summer there will be a complete turn to the West and Diego Garcia will be no issue at all."

Sri Lankans know also that the United States is a more reliable friend than either of the two big brothers of communism, and the state of the island's military forces are clear evidence that this nation of 14 million people will need some strong friend should the occasion come to resist aggression from the outside.

The nation's military force, all volunteers, totals only 13,600 (army, 8,900; navy, 2,400; and air force, 2,300). Its air fighting force totals 5 old Soviet MIG-17s and 15 helicopters, the latter used mostly for civilian and political chores. Thirty vessels comprise the navy, one frigate being the largest. Tanks total zero and armored personnel carriers 10.

Neighboring Third World nations are not much better off, some worse off.

All this adds up to worry about war in the Indian Ocean area and the quick end to freedom from the equivalent of colonialism. For this and the other more specific reasons, the trend is away from Red influence, particularly the Moscow brand, with a quickening thrust toward the West, including the United States. For the United States this means a friendlier "neighborhood" atmosphere regarding Diego Garcia.

INSIDE REPORT:

Spain's Communists plan 'push' after June election

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

MADRID — As one of the self-proclaimed sponsors of democracy for a country with a violent political history, Spain's Communist party has done nothing yet to merit criticism from other political parties guiding Spain out of the Franco era, a record that shows calculation for the present, not future intentions.

Claiming a total of 170,000 card-carrying members, the party of aging Enrique Carillo has opted for this sensible policy: give up illusions about restoring the old flag of republican Spain (permanently lowered when Gen. Franco took power 38 years ago); accept the newly-restored Spanish monarchy; cooperate in electing a new 581-member parliament in the June 15 election.

Further, the party's official platform is modest. Communist operatives told us they are pressing for nationalization only in the manufacture and distribution of electrical power "for the time being." But even this would have to wait their coming to power. There is not the slightest chance of the party capturing even a small corner of the government that will take over after the election next month. Indeed, the Communists expect no more than 10 per cent of the vote, if that.

With a record so deceptively benign, and parading its declaration of independence from Moscow, the Communist party of Spain has persued some politicians of the non-Communist left that not only is it not a threat but that it will be a positive advantage to the left-of-center political spectrum. Such conclusions, obviously premature, are certainly not held by the center, the right and the not inconsiderable far right.

When Adolfo Suarez, King Juan Carlos' personal choice as prime minister last July and his choice to remain prime minister after the June elections, legalized the party early this year, the rumble in the military was far deeper and more explosive than generally understood. "The king personally persuaded the chiefs of the army and air force not to resign," one insider told us. "It was not easy."

Sitting as the army's supreme advisory board, 22 three-star generals accepted legalization of the party but "reprimanded" the government for doing it. In any other Western country, such criticism would be tantamount to sedition.

The Communists know how much the military hates and fears them, which partly accounts for their good behavior (the May Day riots here were inspired by anarchists, Trotskyists and Maoists).

Making trouble now while still weak, could be disastrous for the party. But the more important reason for good behavior is different: the really critical period for democracy — and hence the Communists' opening — is not during the election campaign but immediately following.

"As soon as we install a democratically-elected government," a centrist Suarez-backer told us, "most Spaniards just assume Europe and America will move in and make everything all right for us. They blame Franco for our international exile all those years. They are wrong. Europe and America had solid economic reasons for not helping us and those reasons still exist."

These economic reasons are: dangerous balance of payments deficit; up to 4 million overseas workers now beginning to return, unemployed (with a consequent decline in remittances to families); stagnant growth; an external debt of $12 billion; huge inflation. That is the kind of running room made for a highly organized, centrally directed party like the Communists, ready to move as voters react to the bid news after the election. The Communists' potential for trouble will then come into view.

Thus, the campaign is deceptively quiet with two coalitions competing for power in the first election in 41 years: Suarez, a non-ideologist backed by the center privately backed by the king and perceived by most voters as backed by President Carter (because he agreed under heavy pressure to give Suarez a state visit in Washington); and the savvy, tough-minded, center-right candidate, Manuel Fraga, unfairly accused of being a Francoist even though he was fired from Franco's cabinet in 1969 for liberalizing press censorship, among other courageous actions.

In prospect is a Suarez-Fraga coalition government probably headed by Suarez, with no clear ideology but with towering problems for which Europe's most volatile electorate will demand solutions. That's when the Communist party will show its real face, and the betting here is strong that, before long, the party's claim to follow the democratic path will disappear. It will emerge as the instrument of revolutionary change in a post-Franco era for the country that had seven constitutions and 14 different governments between 1812 (the end of the Napoleonic era) and 1931.

That is not exactly a promising foundation to support the gallant effort by the new Spain to achieve true democracy. Despite their present good behavior, the Communists must be factored in as a major additional threat to future democratic government.

THE BIBLE

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. From Jubal, the inventor of the organ and the harp, comes the words "jubilate, jubilee and joyful." Our own Benjamin Franklin is claimed as inventor of the harmonica. This is doubted, however he did arrange what is known as "water harmonica" (glasses of water filled at different levels to make the scale). Name the musician, credited with writing most of the Psalms. See Psalms.

2. The 100th Psalm is known as the "Jubilate." This is not credited to David, but is a favorite with many. Complete, "Serve the Lord with—"

3. "Make a ——— unto the Lord, all ye lands." Ps. 100:1

4. "Enter His gates with ——" Ps. 100:4

5. "For the Lord is good; His mercy is —; and His truth —." Ps. 100:5

Governor signs laetrile bill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe signed a bill Friday that legalizes the manufacture, sale and use of the controversial cancer treatment, laetrile.

The measure was one of more than 50 signed by the governor in ceremonies Friday. Also in the hefty stack of new laws was one allowing motorcycle riders over 18 to go without a protective helmet if they want.

The Food and Drug Administration has banned laetrile, made from apricot and peach pits. Its manufacture, sale and use is legal only in the few states that have passed such bills.

Many cancer patients told lawmakers in committee hearings that their lives were saved by laetrile, also known as vitamin B-17, they either secured in Mexico and other states or from "black market" sources in Texas.

The American Cancer Society and the American Medical Association say laetrile is worthless as a cancer treatment. They contend it should be banned because some cancer patients will postpone the use of accepted means of treatment to take laetrile.

The motorcycle helmet bill goes into effect 90 days after the legislature adjourns.

Grand jury said probing theft of maps

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury was reported Friday to be investigating the theft of oil maps that led to lease sales at enormous profits.

The FBI and other federal authorities would not discuss the matter but other sources said the maps belonged to the Houston office of Union Oil Co. of California.

The investigation was reported to center around a former Houston oilman, now out of the country, who was described by a business associate as being a "wheeler dealer, entrepreneur, and promoter."

A longtime secretary to the oilman said she resigned after FBI agents with a search warrant seized records at his downtown office in late April.

Tom Stoy, Union's Houston vice president, would say only that the company became concerned about "leaks" of maps and turned the matter over to security officers who placed the matter before the FBI.

Stoy would not say when the "leaks" occurred but one source suggested they may have started about two years ago.

The maps were said to detail potential oil areas in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama and the information reportedly led to the acquisition of leases that were sold for large profits.

Federal authorities are now believed to be trying to determine whether companies or individuals who purchased the leases were aware the leases were based on information acquired from stolen maps.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas would have a statewide probation system with standards and money flowing from Austin to county courthouses — under a bill that the House tentatively approved Friday.

Representatives advanced a statewide probation bill, 106-27, despite opposition claims that its $19 million cost would cut the funds available for teacher pay raises.

Sponsoring Rep. Lyndon Olson, D-Waco, promised to delay a final vote until the amount of money left "on the table" by the general appropriation bill is known.

HEW wants Marlin faculty change

MARLIN (AP) — The Department of Health Education and Welfare has asked the Marlin Independent School District to submit a faculty recruitment program whereby half of its faculty would be black within the next three years.

The letter, sent by Frederick T. Cioffi in the Civil Rights Division, was the latest development in a battle over alleged desegregation practices in the district.

The practices, first mentioned four years ago following an investigation by HEW's Dallas office, included desegregation in the student assignment programs and in the hiring of teachers. A specific case referred to the demotion of a black school principal.

The letter received this week contained no threat that Marlin's federal funding would be cut off, and it referred only to the faculty situation.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed a $170 million bill increasing benefits for retired teachers. It returns to the House for approval of amendments.

Under the bill, a teacher who retired in 1976 after 40 years' service would get a $30 monthly increase. One who retired in 1952 after teaching for 40 years would receive a $50 increase.

Teachers who retire this year and in the future would receive a 14.5 per cent across the board increase, financed by higher contributions to the retirement system by active teachers and the state. State contributions would rise from six to 7.5 per cent and those of active teachers from six to 6.65 per cent of salary.

Senators sent to the governor a bill requiring new apartment houses to have either individual electric meters or submeters for each unit. The idea is to encourage tenants to save electricity by making them pay for what they use.

Landlords of existing "all bills paid" apartment complexes could install submeters and collect from their tenants for electricity used. But they couldn't make a profit from it and would have to keep open books to prove they were not.

The statewide probation bill would create a Texas Adult Probation Commission to set standards for such things as probation officers' caseloads and ethics and to dole out state aid.

Olson said probation costs 97 cents a day while it costs $7 a day to keep a convict in prison.

"In the long run, the cost benefits to this state are going to be overwhelming. . . . This is as much a law and order vote as you will cast this session," he said.

But Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said he feared spending even $19 million would hurt the chances of both active and retired teachers to get more money.

specific legislation. The Senate bill covered less than half as many agencies.

House members tentatively approved a bill upgrading the 33 domestic relations courts to "family district courts," meaning they will be subsidized by the state and their judges will come under the generous Texas Judicial Retirement System.

Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, called it "blatant self-interest legislation" to benefit existing judges but sponsor Charles Evans, D-Fort Worth, accepted an amendment saying that the governor would appoint the judges. He could return those now sitting.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing overtime pay for deputy sheriffs and constables when they must testify in court on their days off.

Working through a list of local and uncontested bills, the House sent to the governor a measure saying a defendant who pleads guilty or no-contest cannot appeal his conviction unless the sentence did not conform to a plea-bargaining agreement.

Spokesmen for HEW in Dallas said the federal agency found as recently as two months ago that the district was creating racial isolation through its student assignment program.

"For instance, in the English classes, the school would have four classes, one which was all white, one all black with one or two whites and two more that were minimally desegregated," said Dr. John Bell, HEW's education chief for the Dallas office.

He said that in special education classes also, the percentages of minority youngsters assigned to classes for mentally retarded was "significantly higher than the national average."

The 1973 study was submitted to Washington, but no action was taken. When the Carter Administration took over the Dallas office of HEW was asked to investigate again to determine if the issues had not been resolved.

Bell said HEW officials spent several days visiting the Marlin school whose enrollment is about 50 per cent black and then asked the district to submit a plan for a new student assignment program.

The plan that was sent to Washington, but HEW again asked for modifications.

Superintendent Sam Gray said Friday district officials have had several telephone conversations with HEW officials, "but we are told different things."

This week the school board ordered a study designed to change election procedures for trustees from an at-large system to one that would include several single-member districts.

Senators rejected House changes in a "sunset bill" and called for a conference committee to work out the differences. The House version would wipe out 179 state agencies, including the railroad commission and agriculture department, over the next 12 years unless they are extended by

Helicopter crash kills pilot

DALLAS (AP) — A helicopter used to feed traffic reports to a Dallas radio station crashed Friday, killing the pilot. It happened moments after a reporter had disembarked the craft because of high winds.

Elliot Cohn, 30-year-old pilot for Helix Transport Inc., was the only person in the helicopter at the time of the crash. A spokesman for station KVIL said Cohn had let out reporter Suzy Humphreys and was fully airborne when it sunk to the earth.

The spokesman said Miss Humphreys had asked to be taken off when she became nauseous because strong winds were buffeting the craft.

Becky Nugent, spokesman for the Highland Park School District, said the helicopter crashed in the backyard of a residence about a block from an elementary school in the suburb of University Park. No one on the ground was reported injured.

Diane Iverson, working at a travel agency near where the helicopter crashed, said, "It was in the sky about 10 stories high when it started to tip over and the rotor just stopped. Then there was a big coughing sound and pieces started flying out. Then it just fell straight down."

The helicopter narrowly missed hitting a nursery-day school at the University Park United Methodist Church, where 120 children aged 2 to 5 were cared for.

No cause for the crash was determined on scene.

Church to honor organist

George L. DeHart, longtime organist and choir director for Midland's First United Methodist Church, Sunday will be honored by the congregation for his 27 years in the post.

The "Silver Anniversary-plus-two" observance will be marked with a reception in the church parlor immediately following the 27th annual Choir Recognition Service in the sanctuary. The service is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m.

All members of the congregation and all friends and associates of DeHart in various music and civic endeavors in the city are invited to the reception.

DeHart, a native of St. John's, Mich., grew up in Grand Rapids. He served in the U. S. Army during World War II, being stationed most of that time in England. After his discharge, he enrolled in Westminster Choir College at Princeton, N. J. Westminster is a non-denominational school specializing in the training of professional church musicians and music teachers. The college has the largest organ department in the world.

DeHart came to Midland's First Methodist Church in late summer of 1950. He has served under five ministers: Dr. Howard Hollowell, Dr. Luther Kirk, Dr. Marvin Boyd, Dr. Timothy Guthrie and the present pastor, Dr. Charles Lutrick.

Through the years, DeHart has been active in various music organizations and endeavors here. He was the founding dean of the West Texas chapter, American Guild of Organists, and has served several additional terms as dean and as treasurer. He is a past president of the Midland Civic Concert Association (now Midland Community Concerts Association) and has been the association's treasurer for a number of years. He has sung in the chorale of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and has sung in several musical productions at Midland

George DeHart

Community Theatre. He has served as pianist for the Downtown Rotary Club for many years.

INTERNATIONALLY-ACCLAIMED ORGANIST
Dr. John Obetz of Kansas City will come to Midland to play a recital at 8 p.m. Monday in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, North Main and Ohio streets. The recital is presented under auspices of Midland's West Texas chapter, American Guild of Organists, as its annual public program. Admission will be free.

Choir Recognition Service slated

The 27th annual Choir Recognition Service at First United Methodist Church is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Sunday to conclude the 1976-77 choir season there.

Participating in the event will be the three singing choirs and the two handbell ensembles at First UMC.

The program is under direction of George DeHart, organist-choirmaster.

As in previous years, the choral service is titled "A Festival of Psalms," presenting numerous Psalms, or verses from Psalms, which have been set to music by composers through the centuries.

In the service, each of the singing choirs will offer a different setting of the text, "Clap Your Hands," as found in Psalm 47. The Carol Choir will present a setting by Christopher Thomas, the Junior Choir will sing a version by Ronald A. Nelson, and the Chancel Choir will offer a setting by Nancy Robert. The junior and Chancel ensembles will join in presenting "Antiphonal Psalm" by Hal Hopson, based on Psalm 150, while the Chancel group will offer "Know That the Lord Is God," by G.

F. Handel, as arranged by Lloyd Pfautsch, which is based on Psalm 100:3. Flute and violin accompaniment will be played by Paula Beshears and May Adelaide Barber respectively.

The three singing ensembles will join in presenting the familiar "Lead Me, Lord," by Samuel S. Wesley. The work has become a traditional part of choir recognition services at First UMC.

The Youth Handbell choir will play "The 19th Psalm" by Benedetto Marcello and "Jubilation" by Myrna Vaughan. The Adult Handbell Choir will present "Rejoice in the Lord Always," by Henry Purcell, as arranged by Alinda Couper.

The vesper service will be open to the public. The church nursery will be available for the care of infants and children.

Alliance's objectives endorsed

The Midland Ministerial Association and the Midland Association of Churches have unanimously endorsed the two objectives of the Midland Alliance, a spokesman said today in a prepared release.

The Alliance's objectives are: First, a safe and orderly transition in August to the court-ordered integration plan, and second, the creation of additional programs and services in the schools to assure educational excellence.

The Midland Ministerial Association is an in-terdenominational fellowship of ministers representing nearly all religious groups in Midland. The Midland Association of Churches is an ecumenical organization of churches working together to enhance the worship and work of the Christian churches of Midland, the spokesman said.

Both associations have also taken actions encouraging their congregations to endorse the objectives of the Midland Alliance. The Alliance is "a group of citizens, joined together from all racial and ethnic groups, from all political parties and persuasions, who are interested in Midland's children and their schools."

Special presentations by individuals or panels from the Midland Alliance may be scheduled for local churches by telephoning 682-0024.

"It seems to me that it would be impossible for any sincere Christian to oppose the two objectives of the Alliance," said the Rev. Robert Boynton Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Smith is a member of both the association of churches and the ministerial association.

Music programs set

Musical programs presented by a group from Living Sound, International will be presented in Midland next week.

The Tuesday and Wednesday night events are sponsored by the Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave. However, because of a major construction and renovation project under way at Gardens Assembly, the 7:30 p.m. programs will be in the nearby Trinity Presbyterian Church, located on West Louisiana Street near Andrews Highway. The public is invited.

According to the Rev. Paul Coxe, pastor of Gardens Assembly, the 15 members of the "LS-1" troupe coming to Midland represent many years' experience in the field of contemporary music and missionary outreach, and in concerts exert a powerful musical force with a freshness and enthusiasm that captivates audiences everywhere.

Since its founding in 1969 by a group of university students, most of them from Oral Roberts University, Living Sound International has sent teams to 37 nations, including a number of trips to Iron Curtain countries. Living Sound International now has offices in the U.S., Canada, Britain and South Africa.

During the Midland visit, the "LS-1" troupe will appear at the Bible and Book House in The Village, from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday. The group will visit Austin Freshman School at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Music group to give concert

New Song, a music group from Oral Roberts University, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Sunday in St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave. The public is invited to attend at no charge. New Song, directed by ORU senior student Chuck Wilson, is made up of five men and three women, students at the university. The ensemble's goal is to present a "new song" — the message that Jesus Christ came to give everyone life. According to one member of the ORU ensemble, "music is my special way of expressing my love for God; my hope is that through our music and lives, we can reach out to those we sing for." The New Song group is part of the summer music ministries program at Oral Roberts University, a program that was begun two years ago.

Author to be guest speaker

Mrs. Charles Dixon, author of "God's Chosen Woman", will be guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Midland Chapter of THEOS Club on Friday May 27, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas.

Mrs. Dixon has written about how the First Baptist Church of Borger, Texas has begun to minister to the widowed. Since an article about her book appeared last month in the Baptist Standard, Mrs. Dixon says she has been swamped with telephone calls and letters, some from as far away as Oregon, Florida and Arizona.

All widows and widowers and those interested in this ministry are invited to hear Mrs. Dixon. For further information, please call Mrs. Leigh Cerboskas, 694-7659 or St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 694-2571.

Phillips to be guest speaker

Jerry Phillips of Lubbock will be guest speaker tonight at the monthly fellowship meeting of the Midland chapter, Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International.

The gathering in the Midland Hilton will begin with dinner, served at 6:30 p.m., to be followed by the meeting at 7 p.m.

The guest speaker is currently serving as college pastor of the Trinity Church, an interdenominational organization, in Lubbock. He is a native of Hart, in the Texas Panhandle, and was graduated from Wayland Baptist College in Plainview. He spent 11 years as a public school teacher before entering the ministry on a fulltime basis.

Tonight's meeting will be open to all interested persons in the city and surrounding area.

Rev. Rogers returning to pulpit

The Rev. B.A. "Buck" Rogers again has come out of retirement to serve the Tanglewood Baptist Church of Santa Maria, Calif., as its interim pastor for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, who reside in the Greenwood community, left Wednesday for the West Coast.

Mr. Rogers helped organize the Baptist Church of Lompoc, Calif., which he served seven and one-half years as pastor. He later held an interim pastorate there. He also has served as interim pastor of the Baptist Church at Ventura, Calif.

The veteran minister held pastorates in Midland and at other West Texas points' before his initial retirement several years ago. His most recent retirement was two years ago. Mr. Rogers several years ago conducted tent revival services throughout the Southwest.

Conference scheduled at church

A Christian communications conference interested in improving skills. Additional information their communications formation is obtainable at and public relations 682-1646.

The meeting will be conducted by the public relations staff of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the state organization of Southern Baptists. According to Richard P. McCartney, BGCT's director of public relations, the conference will cover such topics as audio-visuals, writing for the media and church newsletters.

The conference will be open to all church leaders

Church to host music programs

Crestview Baptist Church, Thomas at Midkiff, will host two programs of special musical interest Sunday, May 22, 1977.

At 3:15 p.m. Mr. Harrell Slack, consultant with the Church Music Department of the Baptist general convention of Texas, will conduct a Handbell Clinic during which he will critique three handbell teams and give a demonstration of ringing technique.

At 7:00 p.m. Mr. Slack will be featured as soloist in the Sanctuary Choir's presentation of "Jesus Is Coming," a cantata by John W. Peterson. This work recalls the events of the Ascension and the scriptures which tell of Christ's promised return. The public is cordially invited to attend both musical programs.

Church plans Bible meeting

Dellwood Baptist Church is planning its first Bible conference on prophecy and Israel next week.

The conference will begin Wednesday and continue through May 29. There will be sessions at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and at 10 a.m. on Saturday, May 28. On Sunday, May 29, services are scheduled for 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. All events will be open to the public, said Dr. Chapmond Davis, host pastor.

Speakers at conference sessions will include Dr. Davis, Dr. Leon Gaylor, the Rev. Marty Peterson, the Rev. Curtis Williams and the Rev. James Schoenrock.

Dellwood Baptist Church is at West Ohio Street and North Midkiff Drive.

Foursquare convention set

PORTLAND, Ore. — The 1977 international convention of the Foursquare Church will be held here May 25 through 31.

The convention is themed to "A Festival of Praise." Sessions will be held in the new $1.5 million Foursquare Church of Portland, with Dr. Allan Hamilton, host pastor, as general chairman of the event.

Workshops, seminars, general meetings, training sessions and special assemblies and luncheons are on the agenda. Expected to be in attendance at the conclave is the Rev. Pete Adcock, pastor of the Foursquare Church in Midland, Tex., and superintendent of the Permian Basin division of the denomination.

Dr. Rolf K. McPherson, president of the denomination, will lead business sessions and will officiate at a special service of ordination and conferring of degrees, which will highlight the week-long conclave.

Training lab scheduled

AUSTIN — The fifth annual Southwest Training Lab, co-sponsored by the Texas Conference of Churches and Consultant-Trainers Southwest, will be held July 31 through Aug. 6 at the Briarwood Presbyterian Retreat Center near Argyle.

The annual Southwest Training Lab offers quality experiential instruction for church and organizational leaders throughout the state. According to Sister Anne Finnerty, S.H.G., of Brownsville, who heads TCC's division of education, the 1977 event will be divided into two learning experiences.

Depending upon previous laboratory training, participants will spend the first half of the week in either a "basic human interaction" or a "personal growth" group. During the remainder of the week they will participate in an open "learning fair" where each person can focus on a specific area of development — values clarification, life planning, assertiveness, leadership styles and decision-making processes.

Dean for the laboratory will be Eleanor Hill of Tulsa. All lab staff will be drawn from approved leadership personnel of Consultant-Trainers obtained from the offices of the Texas Conference of Churches, 2704 Rio Grande, Austin 78705. Deadline for registering brochure and registration for the workshop is July applications, may be 6.

Dear Neighbors,

A Chinese typist on a Chinese typewriter zips along at the rate of 11 words a minute. Why so slow? Because the typewriter has 150 characters to select from! But in whatever language we read the words of Christ, we are impressed by their simplicity and depth. Children understand Jesus' words and yet the wisest and oldest of us continue to appreciate His spiritual genius. Come and study Jesus' words with us this Sunday morning at 9:30!

Avoid a finesse that cannot gain

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

How do you know whether a particular opponent has the ace or queen of a suit? Sometimes this looks like a sheer guess when in reality there is an absolutely correct play.

South ruffed the third club, drew two rounds of trumps and then led the singleton heart.

West played low, and South had to guess: should he play the jack or the king from dummy? After some thought, South took a coin from his pocket and tossed it.

It was a bad coin. The toss told South to play dummy's jack, and East won with the queen. Declarer had already lost three tricks and still had to lose a diamond.

PLAIN TO SEE

As every reader can plainly see, South should play dummy's king of hearts.

The jack of hearts cannot be right because even if this play drives out the ace, South can later discard only one diamond on the king of hearts. The contract will still depend on the diamond finesse.

The play of the king of hearts is right because if it happens to win South will not lose any heart trick at all and can afford to lose a diamond. If the king of hearts happens to lose, South's contract will depend on the diamond finesse—exactly as though he had played dummy's jack of hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S93 H9742 D63 CAQ73. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1 NT. The hand is not strong enough for a response of two hearts but is far too strong for a pass. This leaves 1 NT as the only possible response.

Cathy Rice termed real dancing dynamo

By BILL HAGEN
Copley News Service

"I'm in pantyhose now, you know," Cathy Rice said. When she is not in pantyhose she is dancing or singing or acting.

It was evident that the brains behind this ad campaign had certainly arrived at the perfect subject. I mean, this lady has legs. She makes Cyd Charisse look spindly.

We were assembled to discuss her rather frenetic and successful career, from her work in Broadway shows to her efforts to teach opera star Joan Sutherland to dance. She had much greater success with Sutherland.

Her last Broadway show was the ill-fated and short-lived Jerry Lewis fiasco. "Hellzapoppin." "I guess it is classified as a flop," she said, "but it got to Broadway. How can any show that gets to Broadway really be a flop? There are so many that try and so few that make it."

It is the same with her chosen profession. She sings and acts, but it is dancing and choreography that are her passions. "If you're an artist, you always want to get better," she said. "And if you want to get better, you can never stop taking classes. You can never stop working. The days of the spear-carriers are gone. A performer now has to be well-versed in all aspects of her profession."

Rice, a very elegant 5 feet, 8 inches, is yet another in a growing list of top creative people emerging from Texas.

There is Preston Jones, a remarkably talented playwright, for instance. And Randy Quaid, a remarkably talented actor. And now Rice, an absolute dynamo who considers anything less than 14 hours of work a wasted day.

"I can never remember not being active," she said. Among rehearsals, performances and classes in acting, singing and dancing, she still tries to find time for horseback riding and fencing.

Because her father was a former member of the American Ballet Theatre and owner of a dance studio, she had a definite leaning toward the dance.

"My father's studio was closed on Sundays," she said, "so I would go up to the empty room and dance out my childhood fantasies, using Isadora Duncan scarves and Margot Fonteyn tutus as my costumes."

She moved on to the University of California at Irvine and was awarded a master's degree after an apprenticeship with choreographer Eugene Loring, who created the ballet for "Billy the Kid."

"Studying with Loring was like getting a Ph.D.," she said. "I was given the responsibility of teaching new dances and rehearsing groups of dancers. I learned how to audition, what qualities to look for, how to spot excellence and, most importantly, intelligence. The experience was invaluable when I started choreographing and auditioning myself."

How well Rice learned her lessons at college was evident in the fact that she was signed as an assistant to Gene Kelly, who was making a movie in New Mexico.

"How to describe Gene Kelly?" she mused. "He exudes respect and love. The attitude of a company comes from the top, and a Kelly company is a happy company. He is a rare and wonderful human being."

Rice later went to work choreographing the Metropolitan Opera production of "Tales of Hoffman." One of her duties was aiding Sutherland in the dance scenes.

"Yes, indeed, I did feel more than a little nervous teaching one of the world's greatest divas," she said. "But she was really gracious and put me at my ease. What's more, she was a quick learner, too."

Career girl Cathy Rice, a transplanted Texan, excels at dancing and choreography. She's also well versed at singing and acting, with Broadway shows to her credit. (CNS Photo)

Army newspaper pulls no punches

By WARD SIMS

FT. WAINWRIGHT, Alaska (AP) — Along with its spit and polish GI stories, the brash and breezy Yukon Sentinel wades with abandon into subjects seldom found in an Army newspaper.

The Ft. Wainwright weekly has delved in depth into wifeswapping at this Army post in Alaska's interior, teenage drinking, drugs, rape and alcoholism among the troops.

It has also focused issues on contraceptives, suicide, military unions and "irresponsible intimacy" among men and women soldiers.

Robert L. Konicki, the paper's editor, says he and his staff of three military writers try to "tackle subjects of real importance to the soldiers here, things that affect their everyday lives."

Konicki, a staff sergeant, gives a great measure of credit for the leeway the paper has in its choice of subject matter to Col. John R. Black, the post commander. Konicki quotes Black as once telling him:

"I don't care what you print, as long as it's the truth."

Konicki says some of the paper's articles have "caught flak from all over." He remembers particularly an issue devoted to alcoholism among the troops at Ft. Wainwright, adjacent to Fairbanks.

The paper's staffers took on their superiors in that one.

"Officers and NCOs (noncommissioned officers) on this installation are responsible for the health and safety of their men," the Sentinel said.

"Is this responsibility being discharged properly? Or are people getting killed because no one in a position of responsibility took the time to insure they received adequate care for an often fatal condition, alcoholism."

"In the past few weeks there has been a dramatic increase in the number and seriousness of alcohol-related incidents on Ft. Wainwright. ... And in far too many cases, the NCOs and officers who could have done something to prevent or reduce tragedy ... did nothing."

Says Konicki: "We really caught it from the unit commanders and the NCOs on that one. They said, 'We're not killers.'"

"But Col. Black's response was: 'I don't give a damn. Anger I can channel, but apathy I can't do a damned thing about.'"

Konicki says Black told a staff meeting that he'd get rid of any officer who took an apathetic attitude toward alcoholism.

In an article on wifeswapping, the Sentinel said it had found that "wifeswapping exists on Ft. Wainwright, but to what extent is questionable."

Included was an interview with four couples — whose names were not used — who admitted to wifeswapping.

One of the men said he and his wife had been part of two groups, totaling about 16 couples, which engaged in wifeswapping. "and that's all I know about on post."

'Lipstick' producer being sued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paramount Pictures Corp. and movie producer Dino DeLaurentis are being sued for $6 million in federal court for an alleged copyright violation.

The suit by author W. Ware Lynch claims the book and movie "Lipstick" were based on his book, "Rape! One Victim's Story. A Documentary."

Lynch said his book was written more than three years ago and much of the material was used in the highly publicized "Lipstick."

Konicki, a staff sergeant, gives a great measure of credit for the leeway the paper has in its choice of subject matter to Col. John R. Black, the post commander. Konicki quotes Black as once telling him:

SMOTHERS brother into wine

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Dick Smothers has walked away from the bright lights and applause into the dusty world of irrigation and sugar content as a wine grape grower.

Since July, when Dick and Tom Smothers broke up their famous brother act after more than 17 years, he, his wife, Linda, and their three children have lived quietly on a ranch in the Santa Cruz mountains, where they are cultivating 13 acres for premium white wines.

He expects the first bottling of his wine, under the label Vine Hill Wine, to be done this fall.

McGee, Player sharing lead in Memorial golf tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jerry McGee and Gary Player matched four-under-par 68s Friday and moved into a tie for the lead in the second round of the $225,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

Host Jack Nicklaus, the sponsor, course designer, builder and guiding force behind this event, also shot a 68 and moved within two strokes of the lead halfway through the tournament that aims for eventual major-championship status.

"For the last 365 days I've been waiting to get back to this tournament," said McGee, an Ohio native. "I know my wife will be glad when this week is over, because all she's been hearing is Memorial, Memorial."

"I want to win this tournament more than any other in the world, including the four majors. And if this doesn't become a major, then you can scratch the others," said McGee. "The man, the course, the state.

Those are the reasons I want to win it. The man (Nicklaus) is the greatest player ever to put two hands on a club. The course is the greatest in the world. Incredible. And Ohio, well, I'm a Buckeye all the way. Ohio has everything in the world"—he paused briefly and flashed a mischievous grin—"except a passing quarterback."

Player was prompted by the muggy heat to abandon his usual all-black clothing in favor of an all-white ensemble. He didn't make a bogey and missed only one green in matching McGee's 136 total for two trips over the Muirfield Village Golf Club course that has been hailed by the select international field here as one of the world's finest.

"Actually, I've played very well all year," said Player, a South African who hasn't taken a title in this country since 1974.

"I've won $60,000 and played in only eight tournaments," Player said. "That's a lot of finishes in the top 10."

"In America, if you finish in the top 10 you've played almost as well as the man who wins. The only difference is that, over 72 holes, he's made four or five more putts than you did."

"If I win one, and I feel I should very soon, I'll jump up to about fourth on the money-winning list and everyone will be saying, 'my, how well he's playing.'"

Fuzzy Zoeller shot a 67, five under par and the best round of the tournament, and advanced to within one stroke of the lead at 139.

Bobby Wadkins, one of two mentored for the first-round lead, slipped to a 72 and was tied at 140 with Nicklaus.

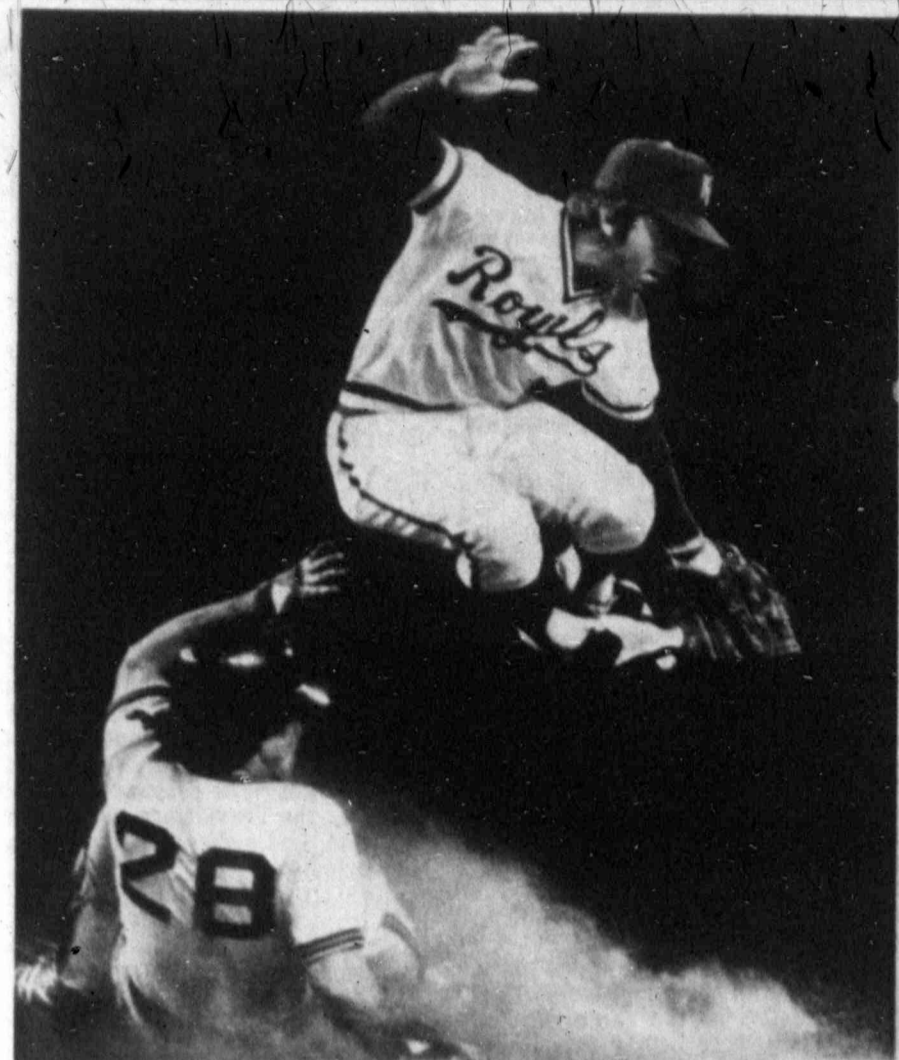

Masters champion Tom Watson, fifth or better in nine tournaments this year and easily the outstanding player of the season, moved up with 70-141. He was tied with rookie Mark Lye, the other first-round leader, who played his second 18 holes in 73.

Tom Weiskopf, once within a single shot of the lead, bogeyed his last three holes for a 71-142. He was tied with Gibby Gilbert, 70, and Hubert Green, 71.

Johnny Miller shot 72-146. Lee Trevino was 74-146. Defending champion Roger Maltbie, Hale Irwin and Ray Floyd all were 75-147.

Ben Crenshaw improved 14 strokes from the incredible 87 he shot in the first round but, at 160, failed to make the cut for the last two rounds.

Arnold Palmer just made it at 74-153, the cutoff score. He'd thought he had missed and was in his plane, taxiing down the runway to return home, when tournament officials reached him by radio and told him he'd qualified for the last two rounds. He taxied back to the apron and will compete.

Kansas City blanks Cleveland by 4-0

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cookie Rojas collected four hits and Fred Patek knocked in two runs to boost the Kansas City Royals past the Cleveland Indians 4-0 on Paul Spittorff's eight-hitter Friday night.

Spittorff notched his second victory in six decisions as the Royals snapped a three-game losing streak.

The Royals took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Al Cowens tripled to lead off and came in on Darrel Porter's groundout.

The Royals scored two more in the sixth against loser Dennis Eckersley, 3-3. A single by Porter, walk to Pete LaCock and Rojas' base hit set the stage for a two-run single by Patek.

The Royals loaded the bases with one out in the seventh, but were shut down by reliever Sid CLEVELAND KANSAS CITY

Whites top Purples, 19-13

By GREG WATSON

Southwest Airlines wasn't the only group getting off the ground Friday.

Sparked by aerial antics of quarterbacks Doug Atnipp, Joe Mowles and Tracy Gann, Jerry Hopkins' Midland High Bulldogs displayed a new-found love of the friendly skies in their annual Bill Mims spring football game at Memorial Stadium.

Ironically, though, tackle Don Gleghorn's interception of a Mowles' screen pass and subsequent 25-yard ramble to the Purple 40 gave the Whites the necessary field position in the final minutes to pull out the contest, 19-13.

Atnipp bulled in from the one with 56 seconds for the winner. Two tosses to wide receiver David Isby, recipient of the two other White touchdowns, put the visitors within scoring range and ruined determined efforts by Gann, then Mowles, for the Purples in the second half.

At the outset, the sky looked like it might be the limit as the Purple's converted a Charles Miller fumble recovery of an errant Atnipp pitch at the White 33 into 27-yard touchdown scamper around left end by tailback Walter Bryson. Gann booted the point after.

Seven plays thereafter, halfback Alvin Price rolled left, stopped, then flipped a spiral to Isby darting down the left sideline. A defender never touched Isby as he galloped in for a 72-yard strike. Bryson wrestled down Atnipp on the fake conversion try.

The first series in the second quarter, the Purples retaliated. Mowles connected with end Steve Cole for a 45-yard gain to the White 10. Jimmy Zachry completed the two-play scoring drive by zigzagging off left tackle with 11:15 left before the half. Todd Liberty blocked the extra point try.

Not to be outdone, Atnipp marshalled the Whites to a 13-12 deficit the next set of downs with the help of a fumbled punt by the Purples that John Davis pounced on at the Purple 44. Given the new life, Atnipp spotted Isby deep right and presented him with another paydirt pass. Robert Montgomery banged through the tying point.

Mired in poor field position, the Whites never really threatened in the third and fourth quarters. For example, in three straight possessions, Atnipp's men up front lined up on first down at the 19, 10 and 5. And once they got beyond the specter of their own goal post, they too frequently traipsed right back with a variety of penalties, mainly holding.

Fortunately, the Purples never quite pulled off the big play, although Gann did his best. The Purples missed a solid opportunity the first series after half when Craig Heineman cradled a fumble at the White 42. Halfback John Robles' running moved the Purples to the 23 before the movement fizzled. Not finished, however, Gann directed his charges on a lengthy, time-consuming march at the start of the fourth quarter that eventually progressed to the White nine.

A critical fourth-down scramble by Gann for 11 yards and a first at the 15 appeared to give the Purples the necessary drive for the go-ahead score, only to have an offsides penalty and an eventual interception by Bobby Floyd spoil the effort.

Even before the Gleghorn interception, the Purples were revving up once more following Heineman's punt return to the White 33.

Such land acquisition pleased Coach Hopkins in the long run, regardless of the outcome exhibited on the scoreboard.

"I think we will throw more," the former president of the Texas High School Football Coaches Association said afterward with a smile on his face.

Whereas QBs Atnipp and Mowles had already proven themselves, Hopkins said, Gann joined the trio with his performance. Hopkins preferred not to pin the No. 1 "signal caller" label on either of the three, saying he would have to evaluate.

As for areas of improvement, Hopkins cited the numerous infractions. "The penalties kept it from being a good first half scrimmage," he said. Hopkins also mentioned that the Bulldogs had not worked that extensively in the precision area, thus the lag.

Hopkins also wanted to check the films to judge the line play. "You can't say the offense did a good job until you see the defense on film."

On the whole, Hopkins praised the effort of his youngsters during spring workouts.

As a further reason for pleasantness on Hopkins' part, no players were seriously injured in Friday's scrimmage. At worst, Isby sprained an ankle, that injury on the next-to-last play of the game after he snared a pass at the one and was knocked out of bounds immediately.

Rankin called best golfer in the world

By STEVE BISHEFF Copy News Service

It should come as no major shock that the best golfer in the world at the moment is a cool, intense blonde with a textbook swing and a beautiful touch around the greens.

The surprise is that her name is Judy, not Jack or Johnny.

Judy Rankin, a petite, freckled, green-eyed, 31-year-old wife and mother from Midland, Tex., has been the most overpowering player in her sport the last 15 months.

She not only has dominated the women, she has been more consistent than any of the men, too.

The diminutive Rankin is quietly becoming a giant, a superstar.

She already may be the Chris Evert of professional golf, the unquestioned queen of the fairways.

She won five tournaments and more than $150,000 last year, the first time anyone this side of the men's tour has taken home that much money. She had a total of 17 finishes in the top 10.

And this year, she has started as if she merely intends to eagle every hole. After tying for first place and losing in a play-off at Miami, she won at St. Petersburg and then again at Sarasota, where she walked out the first day and calmly shot a 63.

"I know that course," said Laura Baugh. "I've shot 68 there, and I know, if everything goes right, 66 is possible. But not 63. That's nine birdies and nine pars. I can't believe she shot 63. I really thought it was impossible."

Nothing, it seems, is beyond the realm of possibility anymore for this regal lady who was unanimously selected as the women's player of the year in 1976.

"The one thing that's changed most in my life the last year," Judy says, "is the fact I've been far busier than I ever was before. Some of it you like, some of it you don't."

"What bothers me most, I guess, is that there's very little time to do nothing anymore. For me, there really wasn't any winter this year, and I kinda missed that."

Instead, there were victories and parties and interviews and, oh, yes, occasional checks that had to be cashed.

"It isn't so bad," she says, grinning. "For instance, my banker is awfully happy."

Midland rally in 8th topples Arkansas, 6-5

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The Midland Cubs' 6-5 eighth inning come-from-behind victory over the Arkansas Travelers at Cubs Stadium Friday night would have been a good ending for any Agatha Christie novel.

It was the unexpected twist at the end that turned the trick—like the five-hit, four-run eighth the Cubs produced to even the series with the Travs at 2-2.

Arkansas' starting pitcher Bret Houser seemed to be coasting to victory, and even though Houser couldn't stop hard hitting Cub first baseman Tony Pepper, who had four hits including a homer and double, he seemed very much in control. That is until the fatal eighth.

It was only after Steve Davis made the first out of the inning when Karl Gordon delivered the game winning blow, a single to center that easily scored Pepper.

Midland reliever Bryan Wilkerson pitched the final two innings for the Cubs to pick up his first win of the season.

He was helped out of a jam in the top of the eighth by the Cubs third double play of the night.

THE VICTORY was even sweeter since Chicago Cubs general manager Bob Kennedy arrived just before game time to see the Midland farm in action for the first time.

Arkansas led this one almost from the beginning after John Young's RBI single in the first inning gave the Travs a 1-0 lead. Pepper's towering homer, no cheap shot, tied it in the second frame, but Arkansas took the lead again in the third when catcher Steve Haug threw the ball away with a runner at third base.

The Travs added three runs in the fourth with two coming on a two-run shot over the right field fence by Terry Landrum and another was scored on Ron Farkas' right field shot. Farkas was playing his first game for the Travs since getting the call from the Cardinals' AAA farm in New Orleans.

Cub starter Wayne Doland had little help from Midland bats early in the game, but the Cubs did score in the fourth on another Gordon single.

DOLAND AND Houser rocked along with shutout ball until the eighth. Doland was lifted in the Cub seventh for a pinch hitter, but Wilkerson was there to save the day. Wilkerson did leave two men stranded in the Travs' scary ninth as he walked Landrum and gave up a single to Farkas. Landrum, however, was cut down on a throw from left field by Pagel when he was caught between third and home on Farkas' single. Pepper was the big stick for the Cubs, and for a while it looked like the only big gun until the eighth when the Cubs filed out five hits. Pepper homered, doubled, singled twice, scored three times and drove in two runs. Pagel's triple also drove in two runs and Gordon matched that effort with a key single and double.

CUB PAWS: The rubber game of the series will be tonight at 7:30 with George Riley of the Cubs going against Andy Replogie, the guy that lost that no-hitter earlier this year after getting two outs in the ninth against Jackson. Jackson will enter Midland Sunday for the first of a five-game stand, and free tickets for Sunday's game can be picked up from any of the Winwood Mall merchants. Cub catcher Steve Haug picked off two runners on first base in Friday's game, but when he tried for a third pickoff, he overthrew Gordon at third with Steve Ramsey off the bag. The ball went into left field, and Ramsey scored easily.

The split end will be Doug Guthrie and the tight end Herb Pearce while the tackles will be Rodney Taylor and Pat Calhoun.

The guards will be Terry Padgett and Stan Carter with Brian Briscoe over the ball at center.

Lee has lost three players to knee surgery. They include halfback Jerry Moore along with starting linebacks Lee Medley and Brent Bates.

"We have worked hard and I feel like the younger players are coming along real well," said Acree.

Jeff McCowan also looks great at a fullback slot and at linebacker too.

Tanana not happy with mark

ANAHEIM (AP) — Frank Tanana, California's outspoken and outstanding young lefthander, is 6-1 with a 2.70 earned run average, but he's not exactly doing handstands.

"It's hard for me to be real excited when we're not doing well as a team," said the stylish 23-year-old Tanana. The Angels, although they signed Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor from the free agent draft, are currently in sixth place in the American League West and well under .500.

"I know we have the people," Tanana said, "and I predict that come September, we're going to be right in the thick of things. But nothing seems to be falling into place for us right now."

"We've been losing a lot of one-run games," he said, "and we haven't been winning at home. But I know, with the people we've got, we're going to score runs. We've got a lot of games left, and I know this is a good ball club."

"Once we get started, there should be no stopping us."

While the Angels' fortunes are sagging, Tanana's 6-1 record puts him at the head of the class among AL pitchers and his 70 strikeouts rank second only to his teammate, Nolan Ryan.

But, a perfectionist, he's not even completely happy even with that.

"I should be 8-1," said Tanana, who finished third in the Cy Young balloting last season.

"The one loss, we were shut out. But I went out early after giving up a bunch of runs in two other games when we ended up scoring a lot."

Junior girls tourney set

The Midland Junior Tennis Association and the Midland Tennis Club will co-sponsor a girls round robin singles tournament June 4 and 5 at the Midland High tennis courts.

There will be divisions for all ages of girls. Play will begin at 9 a.m. June 4.

Those interested in entering the tournament must sign up with S. A. Armstrong at 906 W. Tennessee Street before 5 p.m. Thursday, June 2.

Balls and trophies will be furnished by the Midland Junior Tennis Association.

Lee spring game today

Due to numerous injuries, this year's Robert E. Lee spring football game this afternoon will be a game-control type situation.

The junior varsity game will start at 3 p.m. with the varsity contest at 4:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Todd Clements will guide the first unit at the quarterback slot with the tailback being Marvin Iglehart and John Marks at fullback. The other back will be Alan Funderburg.

The split end will be Doug Guthrie and the tight end Herb Pearce while the tackles will be Rodney Taylor and Pat Calhoun. The guards will be Terry Padgett and Stan Carter with Brian Briscoe over the ball at center.

MC men in nationals

Midland College headed west Friday in search of the men's National Junior College Athletic Association tennis championship. They are scheduled to compete in the tourney May 23-28 at Scottsdale, Ariz.

Last year, the Chaparral netters captured third in the men's national tournament.

Coach Brian Gilley has a seasoned squad this year, including two returning junior college All-Americans, sophomore Derek Edmonds and Denis McKeown. The other two players are freshmen twins Reg and Tony Luttrell. All four are from Australia.

The tournament, which attracts teams from all over the country, will have a 256-player draw in singles and a 128-team draw in doubles. Action includes two rounds of singles and two rounds of doubles per day.

In last year's NJCAA tourney, Edmonds captured third in singles and teamed with McKeown to win fourth in doubles.

Since depth becomes an important factor, the addition of the Luttrells to the team could be significant. Both have developed as singles players this year and their speed and quickness make them dangerous in doubles.

In doubles play, Edmonds teams with Reg Luttrell and McKeown plays with Tony.

The Chaps won the Western Junior College Athletic Conference title, captured the conference team crown, and then garnered the Region V title two weeks ago.

Strongest contenders for the title are expected to come from within Texas, where Odessa College and Central Texas College have fielded tough teams. One of the favorites to capture the singles title is Tsuyoshi Fukui, a former Japanese Davis Cup player now competing for New Mexico Military Institute. NMMI took second in the WJCAC and Region V tournaments.

Denis McKeown extended Fukui to three sets in the Region V semifinal, the first time the fast little Japanese player had lost a set since playing the number one player at the University of Arizona.

"The luck of the draw will have a lot to do with our success," Gilley said. "Last year, the team which won second place did not have a single player left after the quarter finals but had piled up enough points to almost win the championship. But our squad has prepared well and we have a lot of depth through all four positions."

Toronto edges past Texas Rangers, 4-3

ARLINGTON (AP) — Roy Howell came back to haunt his former teammates with a towering ninth-inning home run into a 30-mile-an-hour wind Friday night to give the Toronto Blue Jays a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Howell, who demanded to be traded because he was spending his time on the Ranger bench, blasted his first home run of the year on a 3-2 pitch from Ranger ace Bert Blyleven, 4-4.

Howell was traded to Toronto last month for pitcher Steve Hargan, shortstop Jim Mason and $250,000. It was his first game against the Rangers and his home run carried some 370 feet and landed 12 rows up into the right field stands.

Toronto's rookie left-fielder Jerry Garvin survived a shaky start to notch his sixth victory in seven decisions.

Ivie's grand slam paces Padre win

MONTREAL (AP) — Mike Ivie smacked a bases-loaded home run in the first inning Friday night to start the San Diego Padres to a 12-4 victory over Montreal and send the staggering Expos to their 10th straight loss.

The Padres loaded the bases with one out on an error and two walks before Ivie hit his second homer of the season and his second lifetime grand slam. The blast came off Montreal starter and loser Gerald Hannahs, 1-5, who left after getting only two out in the inning.

San Diego starter Bob Shirley, 3-5, went 5 1/3 innings to pick up the victory, giving up 10 hits and striking out five.

Milwaukee bombards Bosox in 15-7 rout

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers pounded out 17 hits, including home runs by Cecil Cooper, Sixto Lezcano and Ken Mullen, and had a six-run seventh inning Friday night to crush the Boston Red Sox 15-7.

Cooper and Lezcano each hit his sixth homer of the season and Mullen stroked his first as the Brewers pounded Boston pitching.

Cooper had four hits in five at-bats and scored three times. Lezcano set an American League record with 10 putouts, erasing the old mark of nine held by many.

Boston's Jim Rice hit his sixth homer of the year in the fourth inning and his seventh in the eighth frame when the Red Sox rallied for five runs off Jerry Augustine, 5-4. Rice drove in four runs in the game.

Robin Yount doubled and singled and Don Money doubled to highlight the Brewers' big seventh that featured 11 batters. Milwaukee added three runs in the eighth and another in the ninth on Money's third homer of the year.

Loser Louis Tiant, 2-3, left after three innings and singled and Don Money doubled to highlight the Brewers' big seventh that featured 11 batters. Milwaukee added three runs in the eighth and another in the ninth on Money's third homer of the year.

Baylor gains SWC finals

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Pinch-hitter Burl Coker drove in the winning run in the seventh inning while hurler Sammy Bickham held Texas A&M to seven hits Friday night as the Bears downed the Aggies to advance to the finals of the Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

Baylor will meet the winner of tonight's game between Texas A&M and Texas, which eliminated Arkansas 8-1 earlier Friday night.

The victor in tonight's contest will have to beat undefeated Baylor twice to claim the SWC crown in the double elimination tournament.

The scoreboard was blank until the sixth inning of the Baylor-A&M game. Then both teams sent one runner across the plate. The Aggies tallied on a sacrifice fly while Baylor followed with a run-scoring single.

In the seventh, Leonard Woods tripled off A&M lefty Mark Thurmond, who fell to 10-1 with the loss, and Coker hit a double over second base for

Midlander Brian Smith

Smith lands 3rd national weightlifting AAU title

By RICHIE REECE

Brian Smith, 18, already a champion weightlifter, added still another feather to his cap last weekend when he won the Amateur Athletic Union's Junior National Weightlifting Championship, his third national title.

Smith, who competes in the 123-lb. class, was hampered by a knee injury during the tournament. The same knee injury will prevent from competing in the AAU Junior World Championship meet in Bulgaria this year.

Smith said the Junior National meet, one step up from the Junior Olympic meet (which Smith has already won twice), is generally recognized as the second most important meet in the nation. The most important meet is the Senior National meet. Smith will compete in the Senior Nationals in Los Angeles June 12.

The injury to Smith's knee occurred about three weeks before the Junior National meet, when he was training. Smith said he was in the process of lifting 300 pounds. When he stepped on a piece of wood, twisting his knee.

"I immediately packed it in ice and went to a doctor," Smith said. The medical treatment he received helped him a great deal, Smith said. Without the quick, efficient treatment, Smith said he probably would not have been able to compete in the Junior Nationals.

Smith said he didn't really believe he would place in the meet because of the injury. However, as luck would have it, Smith's main competitor for the championship had sustained a similar injury, and was also lifting below par.

Smith was able to train only five times during the three weeks after his injury, and prior to the Junior Nationals. Badly out of shape, Smith lifted 200 pounds below his average total.

The winner in each division is determined by the total weight he lifts in two events, the snatch and the clean—and-jerk. Smith averages 185 pounds in the snatch and 235 pounds in the clean—and-jerk, for a total of 420 pounds. At the Junior Nationals, Smith lifted only 180 pounds in the snatch and 220 pounds in the clean—and-jerk, for a total of 400 pounds.

"I didn't think I'd do well. I go up there with the idea that if I don't win, whoever does will have to earn it," Smith said.

Smith will enter the Air Force August 16 and will serve in the Recreational Services Division, known as special services. By serving in the special services, he will be able to continue his weight training. He hopes to compete on the United States team in the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

Smith will be assigned to active duty in Maryland, after six weeks of basic training. He chose to go to the East Coast rather than to California because he will be in driving distance of a tournament every six weeks if he wants to compete.

Smith, who knows many trainers on the East Coast, said most of the good American weightlifters are trained in the East.

"The East Coast is still the place for weightlifting," Smith said.

Smith already holds several AAU records, and he believes he is capable of setting several more. Competing in the Senior Nationals this summer, Smith will face stiff international competition. The Senior National Tournament is actually a dual meet, combined with the U.S. Open.

Lifters from the U.S. will compete with lifters from Mexico, Canada and Japan. Smith and other Americans will compete in both meets. However, foreign lifters will only be eligible to compete in the U.S. Open.

Smith's final meet before he enters the service will be the Junior Olympics in Kansas City, Kansas, a meet Smith has won twice previously.

Astros topple Phillies with Gonzalez, Richard

HOUSTON (AP) — Julio Gonzalez's two-run double highlighted Houston's three-run sixth inning as the Astros topped the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Friday night.

J.R. Richard, 3-4, scattered seven hits as he picked up his fourth complete game of the season. Philadelphia starter Steve Carlton, 5-2, was tagged with the loss.

Cliff Johnson's ninth home run of the season, a fourth-inning solo shot into the left field seats, provided the Astros with a 1-0 lead.

Mike Schmidt's error on Gonzalez's fifth-inning grounder and a triple by Richard tallied Houston's second run. But Philadelphia came back to tie the contest in the sixth on a RBI grounder by Schmidt and a run-scoring single by Richie Hebner.

Walks to Caesar Cedeno and Johnson, a sacrifice fly by Joe Ferguson and an intentional walk to Bob Watson preceded Gonzalez' double to left-center field as the Phillies lost their fourth straight game.

Baltimore nips Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Lighthitting Mark Belanger tied the score with his first homer of the season, and rookie Eddie Murray doubled home the winner as the Baltimore Orioles scored twice in the sixth inning for a 6-5 seasaw victory over the New York Yankees Friday night.

The anticipated pitching duel between Baltimore's Jim Palmer and the Yankees' Don Gullett never materialized. Palmer was chased in the fifth, while Gullett left with a 2-0 count on Ken Singleton in the sixth after Belanger's one-out homer tied the score at 5-5.

Kathy Whitworth records 67 for one-stroke LPGA meet lead

JAMESBURG, N.J. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, the tour's alltime money winner with 77 career victories, fired a four-under-par 67 Friday to take a one stroke first round lead in the $77,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Classic.

Five players in the field of 86 pros were tied at 68, one stroke off the pace at the 6,056-yard Forsgate Country Club with its lush fairways, deep sandtraps and undulating greens. They were Sandra Palmer, Sylvia Bertolaccini, JoAnne Carner, Pat Bradley and Sandra Post.

Sally Little, Debbie Austin and Donna Young were two back at 69.

Miss Whitworth, 37, made two birdies and seven pars on her first nine holes of play and threatened to break her career low round of 65 when she birdied the first two holes coming back by dropping eight-foot putts.

Her tour pace was slowed, however, when she three-putted from 50 feet on her 14th hole of play for a bogey five. She made up for her miscue with a 20-foot birdie putt three holes later and finished with a 34-33.

Miss Palmer played the steadiest round of the five second-runners.

stroking 15 pars and three birdies while staying away from the course's deep bunkers and thick rough. Misses Bradley, Carner and Bertolaccini had five birdies and two bogeys each. Miss Austin had a 68 with six birdies and three bogeys.

The leader, a tall Texan who has been on the tour for 18 years, said she was right on the mark all the time, missing only one green in regulation.

"I picked the right club every time and it seems the pins were in the right place when I shot," said the veteran pro who has amassed more than $600,000 in tour winnings.

Miss Whitworth is the top money maker this year with over $51,000 in tour earnings. She has scored two victories over the past few years.

The other contenders said that to catch Miss Whitworth they would have to be good off the tee and keep the ball in play.

"The fairways are real lush and you don't get any roll," Miss Bradley noted. "It'll make it much easier if you're long off the tee."

Miss Carner, third on the tour money list this year, said, "You'll land in those awfully deep bunkers if you miss the green on your approaches."

MHS boosters meet Monday

The Midland High Bulldog Booster Club will hold its final meeting of the spring at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the MHS Cafeteria.

Parents who haven't picked up pictures of their sons or daughters who participate in sports at MHS may pick them up Monday.

Head football coach Jerry Hopkins will give a report on the spring football drills that just completed.

There will also be an election for new officers for the 1977-78 school year.

Skateboard finals are set for June

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The California Free Form World Professional Skateboard Association has picked Akron for its June 18-19 championship competition, the Akron Regional Development Board says.

A board spokesman said the competition on nearby Derby Downs, the hill on which the annual national soap box derby championships are run, will include a speed run and a g.ant slalom.

"That's where I intend to set some long-standing national records," Smith said.

There is not much reason to doubt him.

Hallberg joins Donald in finals of North-South

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Gary Hallberg overcame the putting heroics of Mike Holland to win a 23-hole North and South Amateur Golf Tournament Friday and join Mike Donald in the finals.

Donald, 21-year-old former national junior college champion from Hollywood Fla., trimmed Ken Krieger, of Aurora, Colo., 4 and 3 with two-under-par golf in the other semifinal.

Hallberg, who will be 19 May 31, is from Barrington, Ill., and has just completed his freshman year at Wake Forest.

Before gaining a place in today's 36-hole finals by winning the five-hole sudden-death marathon, one of the longest in recent tournament history, Hallberg saw Holland knock in six putts of 12 to 15 feet.

Holland, a University of South Carolina senior from Bishopville, S.C., canned four long putts through 10 holes, winning two and twice saving halves.

Twice in extra holes, he knocked home do-or-die 15-footers—for a par on the 20th hole and a birdie on the 22nd.

But in the final analysis, it was his putter that did him in. He three-putted the 23rd green, his third such lapse, to help Hallberg win. The teenager sank his five-footer after Holland was seven feet short from 40 feet and missed.

Dodgers take 6-1 triumph

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Reggie Smith rapped a three-run homer to lead a five-run fifth-inning surge that gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 6-1 National League victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

Burt Hooton, 4-1, who held Pittsburgh hitless over the first 4-1/3 innings and yielded a total of four hits before being relieved in the eighth inning by Stan Wall, got the victory. Wall held the Pirates to just one hit the rest of the way.

Steve Yeager's solo homer in the third gave the Dodgers a 10 lead off Pirate starter Larry Demery, who also was charged with all five Dodger runs in the fifth as his record fell to 5-2.

Detroit posts win, 7-4

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Corcoran's first major league hit—a two-run homer in the eighth inning—helped the Detroit Tigers break a three-game losing streak Friday night with a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Tigers jumped to a 4-0 lead before the White Sox rallied for four runs in the fifth to tie the game.

Tom Verzyer's run-

Nolan, Fryman tough on New York Mets

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gary Nolan, with two innings of relief help from Woody Fryman, won his third straight game without a loss as the Cincinnati Reds continued their mastery of Tom Seaver with a 6-2 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

Nolan, 0-3 against the Mets last year, struck out nine in seven innings while upping his lifetime mark against New York to 13-7.

Seaver, now 10-18 against Cincinnati for his career, suffered his third straight loss after a 4-0 start. He yielded five runs, four earned, on six hits in five innings before being relieved by Bob Myrick.

The Reds are the only team the four-time 20-game winner has a career losing record against.

The Reds' runs were driven in by five different players with reserve second baseman Doug Flynn, a last-minute replacement for Joe Morgan, chasing home two.

The nine strikeouts by Nolan were the most by the veteran right-hander since June 8, 1971, when he fanned 10 against Houston. He was tagged for a solo home run by Ed Kranepool in the sixth. Kranepool also drove in the first New York run with a first-inning single.

Seattle Slew running today on medication

BALTIMORE (AP) — Seattle Slew will race on medication for the first time when he runs in the Preakness at Pimlico today. "Yes, we put him on the Bute list," trainer Billy Turner said Friday. "I know the track is going to be as hard as a rock. It always is down here. A very fast track stings a horse." Turner's decision to use Butazolidin, which is sort of an aspirin for horses, means that under Maryland racing regulations Seattle Slew must run on the medication in the 13-16 mile Preakness. Although Butazolidin also is legal for racing in Kentucky, Turner said Seattle Slew did not have it when it won the Derby. "First of all, we had so much rain down there I didn't think the track would be hard," Turner said. "I didn't think it would even be fast."

Post time for the nationally televised race is 4:40 p.m. CDT, and if all nine start, the 102nd Preakness will be worth $191,100 with $138,000 to the winner. The field will be scaled to 126 pounds. The ABC telecast will run from 4-5 p.m. CDT.

SEATTLE SLEW was on the track for a blowout under exercise rider Mike Kennedy on Friday morning. He went three-eighths of a mile in 36 seconds, with fractions of 12 and 241-5, and galloped out a half-mile in 502-5.

"He's starting to relax more and more, especially with Mike," said Turner. "He knows that when Jean (jockey Jean Cruguet) is up it's time for business. That's why we only use Jean for serious work."

In another development Friday, Robert Gilbert was named to replace Herb Hinojosa as jockey on Hey Hey J.P., who has failed to win in eight starts this year. No reason was given for the change.

A VICTORY by Seattle Slew would make him the first Derby winner since Secretariat to go into the Belmont Stakes with a chance of winning the Triple Crown. Secretariat became racing's ninth Triple Crown winner in 1973.

In 1974, Derby winner Cannonade finished third in the Preakness won by Little Current. Foolish Pleasure, the 1975 Derby winner, finished second in the Preakness to Master Derby, who was trained by Smiley Adams. Adams trains Run Dusty Run in this year's edition.

Last year, Derby winner Bold Forbes was third in the Preakness won by Elucutionist.

Glance leading field in California Relays

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Tom Moore, a track meet director who runs things with a pistol, looks forward to sending Harvey Glance and other sprinters on their way at today's California Relays. "Glance did 10.24 in the Southeastern Conference 100-meter finals and that was into a pretty strong wind. He had a 10.001 earlier. He's ready," says Moore.

Glance also will anchor Auburn's 400-meter relay team in another of the events Moore feels will be among the best in the 36th running of the meet here. Auburn has covered 440 yards in 39.24 seconds. "Converted, that's under 39 seconds for 400 meters," Moore noted. "But they'll be going against teams like UCLA, Arizona State, the Macabi team anchored by Don Quarrie, and the Tobias team with guys like Maxie Parks and Benny Brown."

"We have 16 teams entered that have done 41 flat or better. That's a lot of speed." Moore, however, only gets a good look at that speed in its first and final stages. He is one of track's most respected starters and will be at the starting line with his gun for all the running events at this meet.

Other running events with excellent fields today should include the mile relay and the 110-meter high hurdles. Entrants in field events include Olympians John Powell in the discus, Dwight Stones in the high jump, Al Feuerbach in the shot put and medalists Randy Williams and Arnie Robinson in the long jump.

Texas A&I names Jonas head coach

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&I University, looking for a man who might take it to a fourth straight NIAA football title and extend a 39-game winning streak, named defensive coordinator Fred Jonas head coach Friday. Jonas, an assistant for 10 years with the Javelinas, replaces Gil Steinke, who stays on as athletic director after resigning as coach last week.

"Fred is a highly motivated, enthusiastic and hard-working individual and I know he will continue to make A&I an outstanding coach," said Steinke. "He has been a key member of our staff for the last 10 years and his record during that time speaks for itself." A&I has won the Lone Star Conference total defense, passing defense, rushing defense and scoring defense titles several times and swept all of those categories last season. Nine defensive players have been named to small college All-America first teams during his tenure.

Gerulaitis in upset victory over Panatta

ROME (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States beat top-seeded defending champion Adriano Panatta of Italy 1-6, 7-6, 6-3 Friday and entered the semifinals of the $185,000 Italian Open tennis tournament.

Gerulaitis' semifinal opponent will be Brian Gottfried, who defeated Australia's Kim Warwick 7-5, 6-2 to insure the United States of its first finalist in the tournament since 1960.

PHIL DENT of Australia beat third-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania, a two-time winner here, 6-3, 6-2 in another major upset of the day which turned the tournament wide open. Gerulaitis, of Howard Beach, N.Y., fell behind 4-0 in the first set and won 6-1 in just 20 minutes—never missing a shot.

Gerulaitis stood watching from the base line most of the time.

"We were too nervous to play well, but I felt the pressure very much in the first set because I could not get my first service shot in," the American said.

In the second set, Gerulaitis went to the net more often and began putting some pressure on Panatta, who was clearly annoyed by the crowd that often shouted when the players were in action or about to serve.

"The crowd really bothered me. It took quite an effort to keep from arguing with the fans," said Panatta.

THE ITALIAN dropped his service in the very first game of the second set with a double fault in the last point. Gerulaitis broke again in the fifth game and took a 4-1 lead. Panatta, however, rallied for service breaks in the sixth and 10th games and tied the score 5-5.

In the tiebreaker, the Italian was trailing 1-6 but he again rallied and moved to a 6-6 tie. Gerulaitis, however, remained cool and calm and took the next two points to win the tiebreaker 8-6.

In the third set, the American jumped to a 3-0 lead but Panatta fought desperately to a 3-3 tie with a break in the fifth game. The Italian, however, appeared tense and tired. Gerulaitis kept control of the net and scored another break in the eighth game and went on to win the set 6-3.

"It was a tough match," Gerulaitis said. "There were also a few people making noise in the crowd, forcing us to stop in between services and that rattled our nerves."

"I served very poorly throughout the match. That is why I was afraid to go to the net in the first set, but then I realized my mistake and I took the initiative in the second and third."

Gottfried, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had trouble checking his service in the first set against Warwick. But the Australian had his problems, too. There were nine service breaks, five for the American, who took a 6-5 lead in the 11th game and held on to a service to win the set 7-5. THERE WAS practically no competition in the second set as Warwick clearly faulted and Gottfried rolled to a 6-2 win.

Nastase appeared extremely tense. He repeatedly argued and gestured with his brother, Constantine, seated in the stands. Dent never complained and kept his mind on the court, forcing the Romanian to chase his shots down the line or into the corners.

A service break in the eighth game gave Dent the edge in the first set. He broke twice in the fifth and seventh games of the second set, when Nastase hit an incredible number of volleys out by several feet and even missed half a dozen of his best shots, his lob.

In the semifinals, Dent plays Tonino Zugarelli of Italy, who beat Victor Pecci of Paraguay with two tiebreakers, 7-6, 7-6.

TEE TIME

Good quail shot

By REX R. WORRELL

George Vannaman informed us the other day that his playing partner, Maurice Cox has no idea what a birdie on the golf course really is. Maurice hit his tee shot quail high and knocked a blue quail right out of the air. This not being quail season, it's lucky for Maurice that the bird was only stunned and flew away seemingly unharmed after the mishap. Nice birdie, Maurice...

Chet Powers, once again, lowers his career round score for 18 holes. This week, with a new driver setting up his second shots Chet scored an excellent 18 hole round of 73. Chet's Keenage playing partners are about ready to shuck him if his game keeps improving.

We had the opportunity to play Ranchland Hill Country Club's golf course this past Wednesday with new assistant Professional, Jeff Smith, and members Dan Bailey and Bill Lupardus. The company was excellent and our compliments to Jimmy Walker, golf course superintendent, for the superb condition of the Ranchland Hill's golf course. If you haven't played Ranchland in a while, don't miss the next opportunity you might have to play it.

The Hogan Park Men's Golf Association has secured their Club Championship tournament for May 28-30. Tee times will be starting at 1 p.m. each day. A barbecue is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. May 30, for the players and their wives. Entry forms are available for H.M.G.A. members at the golf shop and the entry deadline is 6 p.m. Thursday May 26. Entry fees for the event are $10 plus green fees.

The Hogan Park Women's Golf Association held their third annual Spring Fling this past Thursday and it was a huge success with 100 women golfers from Eastern New Mexico, West Texas and the Permian Basin participating. The results of the competition flights were:

award went to Tommie Williams from Kent Tex for a whole of a drive down the number 9 fairway. Closest to the pin award went to Betty Howell on the number 3 hole. Thirty-five Door Prize certificates were awarded to those women who were not from Hogan Park and did not win in their flights. Everyone had a great time and went away very happy, with many expressions of thanks to the Hogan Park Women's Golf Association for their hard work and generosity in making this one of the best tournaments held by the ladies at Hogan Park.

The M.P.M.G.A. will hold a Flag Tournament Thursday May 26 with the pairings as follows: 18 hole division—Jane Wagner, Cheryl Starovich & Connie Kern; Neil Kimball, Betty Cobb & Bernice Cox; March Davis, Gloria Deleback & Muriel Inman; Dottie Turk, Joyce Parker & Pat Barton; Margaret Hestand, Gail McCreary & Marilyn Philby; Shirley Edwards, Linda Ballard & Merle Kneer; Alvina Hill, Chata Mer, Dorothy Meiter & Jean Ekin; Golda Morgan, Della Olson, Florence Mailey & Gene Veltan.

Investigation on OHS star nearly over

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Athletic Director Harry Fouke said Friday the school's investigation into the financing of football recruit Darrell Shepard's new car is almost completed but Fouke declined to divulge any results.

"We'll turn over the information from all sources to the Southwest Conference and I'll have nothing to say publicly about it," Fouke said. Shepard, the 1976 Class 4A all-state quarterback from Odessa High School, received a new sports car shortly after signing a football scholarship with the Cougars in February.

Mrs. Rose Shepard, the athlete's mother, said she purchased the car for her son and got it financed by a Brazoria bank 300 miles across the state because she could not get financing in Odessa.

SWC Commissioner Cliff Speegle has said the SWC is conducting its own investigation into the case.
