MISS DEB

Q. How do you handle a phone call gracefully if a boy calls when you're entertain-ing another date? What if you like the guy on the phone better than the one in the living room? A. No matter who you like best, it's a matter of basic dating manners not to chat on the phone when you have a guest. When the phone rings, be brief. Tell him you have a guest and can talk only a minute. And remember-the same principle holds if that guest is a girl friend. Q. My parents have agreed that I can use makeup on special occasions. What color foundation is best to start out with? A friend of mine uses a deep tan and it looks great on her. Are dark tones the most flattering? A. What looks good on your friend may be wrong for you. The safest and surest way to select a flattering foundation is to choose a color closest to your own natural skin tone. There are three basic skin tones: rose, beige and ivory. Take a good, hard look at yourself in daylight and decide where you fit in the color scale. Rose-toned skins are warm complexions, brushed with a tint of pink. Beige-toned skins include complexions with light tan, This type of hostess gift rates olive and golden tints. toned skins are a creamy white gardenia. Another word about foundation and make up in general. Practice makes perfect -- so experiment in private before you make your first public appearance.

Q. When you're invited to dinner at a friend's home, is it necessary to bring a gift? My parents invited a friend mine to dinner and she brought a box of candy. I've been to her home several times, but never brought a gift. Was I impolite? A. If the invitation is just a casual . . . "stay for dinner,"

a gift would be out of place. But if the dinner is a special occasion, and the invitation is small hostess gift is both ap propriate and thoughtful. The gift should never be elaborate (it's the thought that counts), and gifts of food are always in good taste. Next time you're invited to a special dinner, why not make up a batch of fudge, or your favorite cookies? Demonstrate your artistic talents by pack ing the cookies in a colorful box that is a gift in itself. For example: cover a shoe box with pink Marvalon adhesive covering, line it with white adhesive and trim the lid with white daisy cutouts.

Use of a Grinder-Mixer in feeding livestock saves this farmer time and labor. Mechanizing his operation like this can also lower his total cost of feeding.

TS THE LAW

NO WILL? WHO INHERITS PROPERTY?

What will happen if you should die without executing a legal and proper will? Who will inherit your property? Your huband, wife, mother, father, children, your wife's relatives? The best way you can say who will have it is to provide a will which will protect your rightful beneficiaries and dispose of your property in accordance with your wishes.

When a deceased has no will or dies "intestate" as the law calls it, the property of that person is distributed according to a detailed formula fixed by law. In some cases this may be the way you yourself would divide it - but in many cases it is not.

The provisions of the law concerning the distribution of the property of a person who dies without a will are rather complicated, and all of the possibilities cannot be covered by a general statement.

There are different rules for real estate and for personal property, for community property and for separate property, for homestead property, and for all of the many possible combinations of surviving relatives. Each situation must be carefully studied to detrmeine the correct distribution of the property.

For example, here is a general idea of how the community property which you and your spouse have accumulated will be divided if you do not make a will prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and there are no children, the surviving spouse receives all of the property.

If, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of deceased children, they would divide one-half of the property. while the surviving spouse would receive the other one-half.

Of course, grandchildren do not share in the estate unless their parent who would inherit is deceased. And when descendants of reviously deceased children do inherit, they receive only the portion that the child would have received, regardless of the number of such descendants.

An odd note, perhaps, is that the surviving spouse already wns one-half of the communty estate prior to your death, and the law adds nothing to his share where there are children surviving.

When there are only children and their descendants surviving, they divide the entire community estate between them.

HISTORY OF WILLS

Courts see that your intention of "will" as to property is carried out after you die. Before then you may revoke or change

The passing of property to heirs is one of man's oldest transactions. As far back a the Egyptian, Asyrian and Jewish civilizations, we have wills written 4.00 and witnessed on papyrus, clay 4.00 tablets, etc. In one will an early 4.00 testator left some of his property to his wife and named a
