Swim team splashing away

By RICHIE REECER

City of Midland Swim Club members passed the 94-mile mark this morning in their attempt to set a record speed for swimming 100 miles. The swimmers, about 15 minutes ahead of the record pace at 8 a.m. today expected to reach the 100-mile mark by 1 p.m.

The team set out at noon Monday to break four world records in swimming as recognized by the "Guinness Book of World Records."

The group achieved its first goal — to swim a longer distance in 24 hours than any other relay team ever has. At the end of the 24 hours, Tuesday at noon, the team had swum 73 miles, 1,050 yards, breaking the old record by approximately 800 yards, team coach Doug Ingram said.

At the end of the 24 hours, distance counting started over as team members set out to garner their second record.

Ingram said he believes the team has a good chance to set the record for the fastest 100 miles.

Other records the team hopes to set are the record for the 300-mile swim and the record for the longest continuous time swum by a seven-member team.

Only seven swimmers are attempting to set the continuous time record, each swimming an hour at a time. One member of the team must be swimming at all times. By the end of the scheduled seven-day endurance swim, each member of the team will have been in the water a total of 24 hours.

Members of the seven-day team will also participate with the other members of the club who are attempting the 100-mile swim record and the 300-mile swim record.

Ingram said he feels confident the team can break the old record for the 300-mile swim. The record for this event will not be as difficult to break as the other records will be, Ingram said.

Ingram said the club has contacted officials from the "Guinness Book of World Records" to assure the club of recognition. The club has complied with all the regulations set by the Guinness officials.

The Midland Jaycees are handling the authentication of the records, Ingram said. The Guinness rules require the club to have the approval of a local civic organization.

Clay Spears, 16, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Spears of 2004 Seaboard, is one of the seven-day swim team members. He also was a member of the team which set the 24-hour distance record Tuesday.

Spears said he swam a total of four hours during that event, one hour at a time.

Concerning the likelihood of the club setting the other records they are attempting, Spears said, "They (the records) didn't seem that hard at first. I think we can do it." Ingram said the club members decided in February to attempt to set the records. Some of the club members had read in a swim magazine of a club in California which had set the total swim time record. The California group had swum for approximately five days, Ingram said. Local members decided to attempt to swim a week, since they would have to swim five days anyway, in order to set the record. Club members range in age from 12 to 20.

Council approves shuttle system, agrees to designate bus stops

By JIM STEINBERG

After the city agreed to provide designated bus stops in the downtown area, the Midland City Council approved on second reading Tuesday a proposal to shuttle people in and out of the downtown area during rush hours.

The designation of these loading zones was the only stumbling block that remained in a shuttle service proposal by Ghis Realty and Management Corp. that would move an estimated 600 to 800 people from the congested downtown area to parking lots on North Big Spring Street and West Wall Street.

It was agreed that operation of the 10-year franchise would begin by Nov. 1, and that Ghis could use any or all of the designated zones in the downtown area.

The shuttle is a commercial venture by Ghis in conjunction with parking lot operations, and is not related to possible public transportation being studied by a committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

These zones will be the 100 and 400 blocks of West Illinois Avenue; where Wall Street intersects with Colorado, Big Spring and Loraine; the intersection of Loraine and Texas, and where Marinfeld intersects with Wall, Texas and Illinois.

The bus service would operate between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m., and between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The franchise will become final after the ordinance is approved on third reading at the next council meeting.

In another action, the mayor and council approved an ordinance establishing a Building Code Review Committee to make recommendations concerning the adoption of building policy and conduct a review of the present city building practices.

Among the first tasks of the new committee will be to tackle the question of Mexican brick use in Midland homes.

Selected for this committee was Wayne LaGrove, architect, representing the Board of Appeals.

Building industry representatives include Glenn Pine, general contractor; John Cappadonna Jr., electrical contractor; Bill Hickey, home builder; Corky Bosworth, plumbing and mechanical contractor. Listed as nonbuilding industry members were Scott Davis, T. June Melton, and Doug Bursleson.

The mayor and council approved a contract for a new 12-inch water main

Midland man dies in fray with police

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

A 29-year-old man was killed in a shootout with Midland police late Tuesday night, and another man was listed in serious condition Wednesday with wounds suffered early in the fray at the Desert Inn West motel.

The dead man was identified as Edwin Jewel England, 29, whose most recent address was listed as the West Wind Motel.

Loy Blanscett, 52, of the 900 block of West Tennessee and a customer at the bar, suffered gunshot wounds to the chest and hand. He was listed in serious condition at noon today at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The incident reportedly began as a barroom argument over a pool game between England and two men identified by police as his brothers. England reportedly pulled a pistol and started firing at the other two.

One of the men involved in the argument suffered a wound to the arm and fled the scene. He had not been located by noon today, police said.

The two remaining men, who were patrons of a bar at the Desert Inn West motel, took their fight to the motel's parking lot in the 3000 block of West Wall Avenue where they exchanged gunfire. It was not known where the other man obtained his gun, police said.

Police summoned to the scene were drawn into the battle when one of the men refused to throw down his gun, officers said.

Police ordered the two men to drop their guns. England refused the order, officers said.

Police then fired two warning shots into the air. England reportedly fired at the officers and was felled by a blast from one of the officers' shotguns. England received a wound to the head above the ear, police said.

Chief of Police Wayne Gideon refused to say which officer was believed to have fired the fatal shot until autopsy results show what type of bullet felled England.

"There was an awful lot of shooting going on out there and we won't definitely know who killed him until the autopsy results show what kind of bullet was in him," Gideon said.

England was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

The other man, who was not injured in the shooting, was taken into custody.

At one time there were 15 officers at the scene including Gideon, Maj. John Corley, Det. Capt. Billy Ray and Det. Lt. Earl Luckey.

Bryant's triumph lopsided

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Anita Bryant danced a jig, delighted with the repeal of a county homosexual rights law. Some 300 disappointed supporters of the measure sang "we shall overcome, someday."

Dade County voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to reject the four-month-old law. The final unofficial tally was 202,319 to 89,562, with voter participation setting a record for special elections here.

Political observers expressed surprise at the high turnout—45 per cent of the county's registered voters — and at the lopsided vote.

The campaign had drawn national attention, and both sides said they would continue the battle elsewhere.

"All America and all the world will hear what the people have said," Miss Bryant declared to cheers at a Miami Beach Holiday Inn.

The law, outlawing discrimination based on sexual preference, was passed in January. But Miss Bryant, a singer and the spokeswoman for the state's citrus industry, led a drive for 50,000 signatures, forcing the county commission to annul the law or put it up for a referendum. The commissioners refused to annul it.

The organization Miss Bryant formed and led, Save Our Children, Inc., charged that the ordinance would allow homosexuals to recruit children and serve as role models.

"Anita danced a jig," when she heard the results, said Mike Thompson of Save Our Children.

Homosexuals and other supporters of the law gathered at the Fontainebleau Hotel for what they had hoped would be a victory party, but ended up singing the civil rights hymn "We Shall Overcome."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan to give a special tax break to Americans who insulate their homes is still alive, but its passage is far from assured.

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively agreed Tuesday in a close vote to allow a tax credit of up to $400 for the purchase of insulation and other home energy-saving devices.

The 13-12 vote could be an indication of more trouble than expected for Carter's entire energy-tax program, parts of which the administration concedes already face strong opposition.

Most Republicans and liberal Democrats opposed the tax break. At least three of the 13 congressmen who voted for it indicated their votes cannot be counted on when the proposal comes up for final consideration in the committee later this month.

The vote was the first by a congressional committee on any of the tax portions of Carter's energy program. The size of the opposition was surprising because the insulation credit had been regarded as the part of Carter's plan most acceptable to Congress.

20-year sentence given city man in slaying trial

Midlander Dwight G. Blaylock Tuesday was sentenced to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine after having been found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting death of Radell Johnson.

The sentence is the maximum for voluntary manslaughter.

Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., urged deletion of the provision from the big energy bill. He said it would clutter up the tax laws and waste federal money on unnecessary subsidies. Rising fuel prices provide ample incentive for insulating homes, he contended.

Johnson was shot Oct. 26, 1975, at 307 S. Carver St. in Midland. Earlier, Johnson and Blaylock had a dispute at a Midland barbecue restaurant.

Johnson was shot in the back with a .38 caliber pistol.

Blaylock already is serving a four-year sentence in federal prison for a drug conviction.

Britons in Uganda ordered to remain

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Ugandan government barred all British citizens in Uganda from leaving the country today in an apparent attempt to force Britain to let President Idi Amin attend the Commonwealth summit conference in London.

Amin was believed to have spent the night in Libya en route to try to crash the conference. But there was some speculation in London that Ugandan reports of the burly dictator's trip were a hoax.

Radio Uganda said a decision on the "plight" of the British in Uganda would have to await Amin's return from London. The Commonwealth conference opened there today without him or any other Ugandan delegates.

The embargo on the British in Uganda was similar to a ban placed on about 240 American nationals in the country last February after President Carter said reports of a wave of mass murders by Amin and his supporters "disgusted the entire civilized world." That ban was lifted after four days.

The British Foreign Office in London said about 300 British citizens live in Uganda, most of them missionaries. They elected to stay in the country against British advice when diplomatic relations between the two countries were broken last July.

There was no word today on whether Amin was on the move again or whether he was approaching Britain.

Prime Minister James Callaghan recently wrote Amin that it would be "inappropriate" for him to come to London, and privately British officials said he would be kept out.

Diplomat reportedly still in good graces

By RICHARDE E. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Young is in good graces at the White House even though he says the last four presidents were racists and the Russians are racists and Abraham Lincoln was a racist, too.

"He's absolutely in no trouble," said one administration source in a position to know. The administration official spelled out President Carter's attitude after the U.N. ambassador spent half an hour Tuesday with Carter in the Oval Office.

The ambassador, black and a former lieutenant to civil rights leader Martin Luther King, emerged from the meeting with Carter saying that the President told him "in context he understood what I was trying to say" about racism.

Did he encourage Young to keep speaking out?

"No. I don't think he has to encourage me. But he didn't tell me to shut up, either."

Does Carter share his views on racism?

"I think he understands my views on racism."

Does he share them?

"Oh, I doubt that, no."

But the administration source said Carter "for the most part" thinks Young is saying things that need to be said. "They had a very cordial and friendly meeting," the source said. "He (Carter) is not upset by what the Republicans are saying."

Indeed, the administration went to some lengths to show that Carter will not buckle under to Republican demands that Young apologize for his remarks or be ousted. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., told reporters Young should never have been appointed.

While declining to bring Young to the White House press room because that might appear too staged, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell arranged for him to face reporters in the driveway, escorted Young out to meet them and escorted him away afterward.

Young, however, appeared less than eager to talk long.

The Republicans, mainly national chairman Bill Brock, want an apology for Young's remark in a Playboy magazine interview that former Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford were "racists." Both Nixon and Ford are Republicans.

In testimony Tuesday before the House International Relations Committee, Young extended that description to former Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson as well. They were Democrats.

But Young said he didn't intend his remarks to apply to the personal character of any of the presidents.

Then, in remarks to reporters at the Capitol, Young added Lincoln to the list.

"I say it's very hard to have lived in the 20th century and not some way be contaminated, that I, myself, am constantly subject to racial attitudes. Everybody is, you know," Young said. By that token, the reporters asked, was the Great Emancipator a racist?

"Especially Abraham Lincoln," the reporters quoted him as saying.

Carter's use of tax break told

Newday

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service has spent three months auditing President Carter's income tax returns for 1975, the year the former peanut farmer got a $41,702 tax break related to farm machinery purchases.

White House officials confirmed the IRS audit after a series of questions by Newday.

"Apparently they are not looking at any single item, just the 1975 return as a whole," a Carter aide said. "So far, there is no indication that the President will have to pay additional taxes. But if it is required, he will pay them promptly."

Initially, there was some White

House suspicion the audit of Carter's taxes was a political move, engineered by the Ford administration. The President got the notice of the IRS audit in February, less than a month after his inauguration.

"But politics doesn't appear to be involved," a Carter aide said. "We believe it was routine, but we still don't know how it was started. The audit was not triggered by a routine computer check. We know that."

IRS officials, including Jerome Kurtz, the man Carter appointed as IRS commissioner, refused comment.

The IRS suffered a black eye in its most celebrated audit of a president — Richard M. Nixon. The agency tracked down and fired an IRS employee who told a newspaper that Nixon had paid little or no income tax during his White House years.

During the Watergate investigation, it was revealed that the IRS had accepted Nixon's claim of a $576,000 deduction for giving his vice presidential papers to the National Archives. Eventually, Nixon associates were imprisoned for backdating documents to make them eligible for the deduction. Because the statute of limitations expired, Nixon was not liable for $148,080.97 in back taxes. He had promised to pay those taxes, but never has.

President Ford was also audited by the IRS for previous returns but it was a relatively minor matter. As a result, he was assessed $840.

So far, IRS agents have not personally met with Carter. Aides to the President said the "field audit" was being handled between IRS officials and an Americus, Ga., tax accountant, Robert Perry, who has prepared Carter's returns in Plains, Ga., since the 1950s.

During the 1976 campaign, Carter released copies of his IRS form 1040 for the years 1970 to 1975. In the 1975 return being audited, Carter paid $17,484.14 in tax on an income of $136,138.92, or at a rate of 12.8 per cent.

There were two big reasons why Carter did not pay more than 50 per cent of his income in taxes as the statute sets for someone at his income level. One was use of the investment tax credit that permits farmers and others to deduct from their final tax bill up to 10 per cent of the money invested on new equipment.

Terrorists free man needing doctor's care

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan terrorists holding 53 hostages on a train in northern Holland released a 46-year-old man today and said he needed immediate hospitalization.

The man, Theo van Hattem, was the third hostage freed by the extremists in an ambulance.

Dutch officials said they did not know yet what was wrong with him.

The terrorists telephoned the government's crisis center and asked for an ambulance.

"They told our listening post that in their opinion the man needed immediate hospitalization," Justice Ministry spokeswoman too Faber said.

The ambulance drew up about 500 yards from the train. Van Hattem stepped off the train alone and walked down the embankment but "couldn't go any further," an official said. A stretcher was brought, and he was taken to a hospital in Groningen.

The terrorists on the train released two pregnant women on Sunday.

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet met until late Tuesday debating whether mediators should make another attempt at public pressure mounted for a quick end to the 16-day-old sieges of the train and a school in which four hostages are held.

The cabinet met in The Hague after Justice Minister Andries van Agt conferred with Josina Soumokil and Dr. Hassan Tan, the two leaders of the South Moluccan community who met last Saturday with the gunmen on the train. The meeting produced no progress toward a settlement, officials said.

Authorities said an increasing number of citizens are demanding decisive action to end the twin sieges, which began May 23. Van Agt said Sunday if the terrorists held out much longer, the government would consider "hard action."

Letters, telegrams and telephone calls were pouring in demanding some type action and suggestions ranged from dynamiting the train to snaring the terrorists in mansize mousetraps.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said the gunmen appeared to be "much tougher" than previous Moluccan terrorists and apparently are capable of withstanding a strategy of waiting them out.

Seven to 10 terrorists are holed up on the commuter train, which is surrounded by troops and police in the countryside about eight miles north of Assen. Four more South Moluccans are holding four teachers in the Bovensmilde elementary school on the outskirts of Assen. The gunmen freed 105 children and one teacher after four days when half the youngsters became ill.

Probers seek secret reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators are seeking super-secret U.S. intelligence reports in an effort to determine if South Korean agents made payoffs to members of Congress.

The efforts to obtain the intelligence information were revealed in a staff report to the House ethics committee, which is investigating alleged Korean influence-buying in Congress.

The report says the committee's staff has negotiated access to CIA reports and is "hopeful of similar cooperation from the National Security Agency and the National Security Council."

Meanwhile, several committee members said they expected the panel to vote to ask all 434 members of the House of Representatives to fill out questionnaires detailing any cash, gifts or trips they or their aides accepted from South Korean officials.

The questionnaire also reportedly would ask congressmen what they know about the activities of former Washington social figure and Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park, from whom a number of present and former congressmen acknowledge accepting cash and gifts.

The ethics committee's staff report says hearings on the Korean influence-buying case may begin as early as the end of summer.

Published accounts have quoted U.S. intelligence reports as saying Korean President Park Chung Hee directed Tongsun Park to pay off U.S. congressmen to keep them friendly and assure continued U.S. aid to Korea.

If proved by the intelligence agency reports, that would provide the missing link that so far has left investigators with no proof of misconduct by the present and former congressmen who acknowledge accepting money and gifts from Tongsun Park.

The Constitution prohibits congressmen from accepting substantial gifts from foreign agents. But accepting gifts from foreign businessmen was legal until 1974 and the congressmen involved say they thought that is all Park was.

The ethics committee's staff report says the investigators are piecing together 600 documents that other sources say Tongsun Park tried to shred.

The report says seven federal agencies have cooperated, with the State Department allowing investigators to see 200 documents and the Justice Department providing a small amount of information.

Meanwhile, another House investigating panel is trying to arrange public hearings with a former director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

The former KCIA director is Kim Hyung Wook, quoted in a number of news interviews as saying Tongsun Park was one of several agents directed to buy influence among U.S. congressmen.

Gas leak forces evacuation

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Leaking lethal chlorine gas forced police in this border city to evacuate persons from a three-block area Tuesday, but no one was injured and residents were allowed to return home about four hours later.

The gas began leaking when a six-foot cylinder of gas, believed to be empty, began spewing a small stream of pea green gas after an employe of a scrap metal company struck the valve.

No injuries were reported.

City policemen and firemen converged on the scene, roping off a section of the industrial district near the downtown area of this border city for about four hours.

Firemen donned masks and oxygen tanks and doused the escaping gas with water while policemen toured the residential section, urging residents to flee.

"We evacuated about three blocks of people," said Brownsville Police Sgt. Prax Eparza. "The persons downwind from the incident had to leave. Everything went smoothly. No one was injured."

After all of the gas escaped and the situation was under control, officers told residents they could return home.

Anti-Cuban activist refuses to testify

By GEORGE LARDNER Jr.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — An American soldier of fortune once active in attempts to overthrow Cuban Premier Fidel Castro refused to testify Tuesday before a House assassinations subcommittee about the slaying of President Kennedy.

The witness, Loran Eugene Hall, 47, of Los Angeles invoked the Fifth Amendment at the first question put to him and told the subcommittee that he had no intention of answering any other inquiries he had in mind. Hall told reporters later that he was not about to make any statements to the committee because committee investigators had voiced suspicions that "I was somehow involved in the assassination" of Kennedy and then tricked him into a meeting in which they served him with a surprise subpoena.

"I was willing to talk to them in Los Angeles," he said. "But they lied to me and they lied to Art Kevin (the radio newsman who arranged the meeting)."

Hall, who demanded that Tuesday's session be held in public, was asked only one question — whether he had been in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 22, 1963, the day President Kennedy was assassinated there — when his refusal to talk cut the hearing short.

Rep. Richardson Preyer (D-N.C.), the chairman of the subcommittee investigating the Kennedy murder, ruled that any further questioning would be inappropriate "since the witness has invoked his rights under the Fifth Amendment."

The subcommittee then voted to keep Hall under subpoena and ordered him to come back to Washington for another hearing Sept. 14 — which committee aides said will be the first regular meeting day for the panel after Congress returns from its summer recess.

Hall was originally named in the Warren Commission's report on the Kennedy assassination as an anti-Castro activist who visited the Dallas apartment of Sylvia Odio in late September, 1963, with two other men. Odio told the committee that the visitors spoke to her of killing the President and that one of them, whom she later identified as Lee Harvey Oswald, was introduced to her as "Leon Oswald."

The FBI said Hall admitted in September 1964 that he had visited Odio but he later denied making any such statements, and his two alleged companions denied any such meeting.

A dapper, mustachioed ex-mercenary who now works as a real estate dealer in Los Angeles, Hall has since told acquaintances that he occasionally stopped in Dallas in 1963 on various anti-Castro undertakings, but that he never took part in a conversation or meeting such as Odio described.

Hall is only the second witness to be summoned before the House Assassinations Committee in public session since it was first set up nine months ago to re-investigate the murders of President Kennedy and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

The first was Mafia leader Santo Trafficante Jr., once the kingpin of syndicate gambling in pre-Castro Cuba, who also invoked the Fifth Amendment. Trafficante and Hall were once confined together in Havana briefly in 1959 after Castro rose to power.

As to his professed whereabouts on the day President Kennedy was killed, Hall has made no secret of that over the years despite his refusal Tuesday to tell it to the committee. He said he was in his apartment in Monterey Park, Calif., "in my shorts, shaving," when the news blared forth on television.

Hospital earns reaccreditation

Midland Memorial Hospital has been re-accredited for the 27th year by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) following an in-depth survey conducted in February. Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich announced.

"The Joint Commission's accreditation surveys are completely voluntary," Ulrich said. "It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited, but health care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a benchmark of quality that is higher than governmental licensure alone," he said.

"This is to the hospital what the Good Housekeeping 'seal of approval' is to consumer products," he said.

Judges request modest clothing

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Polk County District Court Judge Anthony Critelli says he and his fellow judges are tired of seeing bra-less females and "muscle-shirted" males in the jury box.

"You're not on the beach. You're not on vacation," Critelli told a jury panel of about 300 persons Monday. "You are a court officer involved in a judicial proceeding."

Critelli said the situation, which arose last month with the arrival of warmer weather, had been discussed by the judges.

"We most certainly don't expect you to go out and purchase new clothing, or even to wear your finest," he said. "We merely request that you choose your daily attire with the thought in mind that you are an important part of the judicial proceedings."

Lawyer reveals memos

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer who represented dead billionaire Howard R. Hughes has revealed he has a secret collection of memos in which Hughes said he had left a will.

The disclosure, noted in legal papers filed here Tuesday, came when Chester Davis testified for a pre-trial deposition in Las Vegas last May 17.

The New York attorney confirmed under questioning by lawyer Harold Rhoden that a secret file of Hughes memos existed. Excerpts from the deposition showed that Rhoden, representing former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich, questioned further:

Q. Who has them, sir?

A. I have them, the memos addressed to me.

Q. Concerning the writing of a will?

A. With reference to existence of a will, yes.

Davis acknowledged that he had not shown the memos to Hughes' cousin, Richard Gano, who conducted a year-long search for a will after the billionaire died in April 1976. Gano issued a report last March 28 saying no authenticated will could be found.

However, attorney Paul Freese, who represents three Hughes cousins in the estate litigation, says the Gano report may be meaningless in light of the undisclosed Davis memos.

Democratic machine cranks up for easy victory

The Los Angeles Times

CHICAGO — At the firehouse polling place, firemen stopped their early morning jogging and shouted "Vito!" Tuesday, when Vito Marzullo, leader of the 25th Ward, rolled up in his black Cadillac limousine.

Alderman Marzullo, the trim, 79-year-old dean of Chicago Democratic politics, hopped from the car, joined in their jogging for a moment, and then hurried to deliver his customary gift to election judges — a two-pound box of Chocolates.

Starting his day at 6 a.m., Marzullo made 48 such visits to polling places Tuesday to present "some nonfattening candy for the boys and girls" and to check for himself the size of the vote.

A political machine that is not run may rust from neglect, so Chicago's organization Democrats kept their operating Tuesday, even when they knew that they could not help but score a massive victory for their candidate, acting Mayor Michael A. Bilandic.

Keeping tabs on the size of the turnout during the day, Marzullo told one precinct captain, only partially facetiously, "That's not enough votes; you'll have to jack it up."

"This is what the so-called news media calls the Democratic Machine. I call it the organization," Marzullo told a reporter good-humoredly. "Some people call what we do politics. I call it service."

After delivering his box of candy, Marzullo told the judges and precinct workers "Thank you very much. God bless you all," before driving off in his limousine, driven by his nephew, Renaldo Cozzi, a Chicago police lieutenant.

Marzullo hands out the candy regularly every election, including those elections when he runs without opposition for alderman and committeeman. Election laws in each polling place sternly proclaim: "Judges of elections and police officers must prevent electioneering at the polling place and within 100 feet of the polling place."

If having an alderman handing out a box of candy with his card attached is electioneering, it doesn't seem to occur to those assembled.

Touring the polling places with Marzullo gives graphic indications why this very savvy South Italian immigrant who never went beyond the fourth grade in school can deliver Democratic votes, which customarily range up to 9-to-1 against the hapless Republicans.

Carter listens hard to bomber proponents

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter neared the first crucial defense policy decision of his administration Tuesday amid signs he is reconsidering his campaign opposition to production of the controversial B-1 bomber.

Last July, Carter told the Democratic National Committee platform committee, "The B-1 bomber is an example of a proposed system which should not be funded and would be wasteful of taxpayers' dollars."

But Tuesday, the President met with a group of congressional supporters of the B-1, one of whom, Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), said afterward, "I think he's becoming convinced we can't live without the B-1."

At the Pentagon, sources said studies commissioned by Defense

He p-r-o-n-o-u-n-c-e-s it, they s-p-e-l-l it

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year the fatal word was y-a-r-b-o-r-o-u-g-h. The year before it was "brilliantine."

With those roadblocks clearly in mind, 94 local champions set out today in the 50th National Spelling Bee, determined to survive two days of grueling (g-r-u-e-l-i-n-g) competition for the $1,000 first prize and the color television and engraved plaque that accompanies it.

To get to this level, the finalists outspelled an estimated eight million others locally. All were younger than 16, and none was higher than the eighth grade. None of this year's finalists is over 14.

Survival in the national spelloff is no small feat. Yarborough, a bridge hand containing a card no higher than a nine, is not a word that trips off a sixth grader's tongue. And it's a cinch few have used brilliantine, a hair preparation.

The concentration is on the misspelled words, because that's how the competition is played. Miss a word and it's O-U-T.

Last year, "narcolepsy" was the winning word for the contestant who managed yarborough when the other semifinalist missed it. Narcolepsy was the 525th word tossed out by the official pronouncer.

The contest rules bar champions from returning for another go. But other finalists may be entered again and there are six this year.

The pronouncer is Dr. Richard Baker of the University of Dayton. This is his 17th year in the job. The first word he tossed out, the Spelling Bee assures, was his 9,799th in the contests — not counting 1,230 warm-up words.

The contestants are sponsored by Scripps-Howard newspapers in 13 cities and by 77 other daily and Sunday newspapers.

Federal probe may get action

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Dist. Atty. Carroll Vance says a grand jury investigation into the drowning of Joe Campos Torres Jr. may lead to federal action.

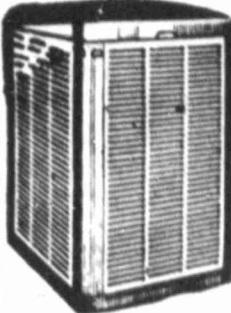

"Federal officials wanted us to take the lead and proceed with the matter," Vance said after the probe got underway Tuesday. "Perhaps their investigation is contingent on what we are able to do or unable to do with it."

One policeman has been charged with murder and four other officers have been fired in connection with the death of Torres.

"THINKING" with ODOM PHILIPPIANS 4:8

It seems rather strange to me that two different groups of religious people claiming that they have been baptized with the Holy Spirit, making claim that God deals today as He did in the first century directly upon the heart of a man separate from the word, and can be so far apart in their teachings. One group who claims to receive the Holy Spirit in a manner separate and apart from the Word declares that there is ONLY one person in the Godhead. The other claims that they, too have received the baptismal measure of the Spirit and declares that there are THREE persons in the Godhead. Has God sent one group to affirm something that He has sent the other group to deny? If so, would this not make God a fickle God?

The plain truth is, my friend, that God does send out His people to affirm something which He sends part of a promise given to the apostles and fulfilled when THEY received the baptism of the Spirit on Pentecost, Acts 2: (Luke 24:49). This enabled these apostles to preach the gospel and confirm what they preached with miracles. When the last apostle died these gifts past away since perfect revelation had been given and there was no further use to "confirm" that which had been preached. (Mark 16:17-20)

The point made just here, good reader, is this fact: it is difficult for people to accept the truth when we have in our great nation 350 different religious bodies, all of which claim to be authorized by the Almighty, and all of them teaching things contrary to the teaching of any other. Is God the author of such confusion? I say that He is not! However, if all denominations have His approval He must be the most inconsistent God that man has ever read of or heard of or worshipped. The reason being that He sends one group to affirm that which He sends another to deny. Can you believe that?

Friend, the church of Christ at Cuthbert and Austin streets believes that there is only one answer to this problem in religion. Back to the Bible. No perversions, but a simple holding to the sacred text. You have an invitation to meet with us, even this evening, as we are engaged in a gospel meeting with Floyd Thompson of Santa Ana, California. I know that you will appreciate his good lessons.

Death delayed

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Convicted murderer Robert Excel White, who once said he wanted to die in the Texas electric chair, has had his June 15 date with the executioner delayed at least two months.

U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice agreed Tuesday to hold a hearing on White's writ of habeas corpus request, granting White a stay of execution.

White was convicted of capital murder in the 1974 slaying of an employee of a McKinney area grocery store.

In requesting the habeas corpus hearing, which has been scheduled for Aug. 15, defense attorney J.E. Abernathy of McKinney claimed that potential jurors were dismissed because they expressed opposition to the death penalty and that White was not adequately represented.

Carter has promised to decide by the end of the month whether to go ahead with production of the controversial bomber, which would be the first American combat aircraft to cost more than $100 million a plane. It would cost $101.7 million. The Air Force, which had the support of former President Ford, is seeking production of 244 B-1 bombers at a cost of $24.8 billion.

White House press secretary Jody Powell insisted the President has not changed his mind about the B-1 because "he has not made a decision." "Obviously he is willing to be convinced, or is open to argument that it should be funded," Powell said in explaining the meeting Tuesday with proponents of the plane.

News, not propaganda

Things didn't look too bright for freedom of the press when the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization decided last year to mount an attack on the way news is being circulated around the world. UNESCO began discussing a plan to give Third World governments more control over news dissemination at a meeting in New Delhi where Indira Gandhi, prime minister at the time, was giving a graphic example of how a Third World government can muzzle the press.

At a later conference in Nairobi, UNESCO backed off from pursuing state control of news on the Soviet model and ushered in a period of study of Third World complaints. Roger Tatarian, a former editor and vice president of United Press International, suggests that some good may yet come from the UNESCO effort.

There may be some grounds for people in developing countries to feel they are orphans when it comes to news. The world's four largest news agencies — Associated Press, UPI, Agence France Press and Reuters — are based in the United States and Europe. Although they are committed to objectivity, their editors and writers may tend to see the world through Western eyes, both in their judgment of news being reported from the Third World and news they disseminate to the Third World.

This leads some Third World critics to argue that natural disasters, political coups and other developments deemed significant to America and Europe are being reported at the expense of more positive news about the Third World. They want the successes and achievements of developing countries to get as much attention as their problems and failures.

Bad news always tends to crowd good news off front pages and newscasts, of course, but the critics may have a point, and Mr. Tatarian suggests some cooperative efforts to keep our various worlds in perspective.

If there is to be a new Third World news agency, or more home-grown news organizations within Third World countries, the Free World newspaper and broadcast industries and agencies should not hesitate to encourage their development. With the proviso, of course, that government agencies continue to let reporters from outside do their work freely without censorship a la Indira Gandhi.

The Western agencies can provide technical expertise to the Third World and help develop a corps of journalists with a sense of professionalism and a striving for neutrality in their news coverage. If news agencies operating in the Third World are to have credibility their journalists — and their governments — must hew closely to the distinction between propaganda and news. That distinction is one which some government leaders prefer to overlook.

Editors everywhere can do a better job for their readers and viewers if neglected but important developments in the Third World can find their way into the stream of the day's news. If getting more balance into the news is what UNESCO really has in mind, the tempest stirred up at New Delhi last year could have a productive outcome.

Not 'rodeo weather'

This is one year the World Championship Midland Rodeos of years past could have gotten by without having a single performance rained out.

The big, under-the-stars Western extravaganza, which, in its latter years, was staged the first week in June, usually could be counted upon to produce thunderstorms, heavy rainfall, with occasional hail, on at least one of the five nights of the show. Performances occasionally were rained out, but they usually went on, regardless of moisture, and the rodeo fans loved it.

The "open-to-the-world" Midland Rodeo attracted some of the world's top performers, and long was recognized as one of the largest and best anywhere.

The big event was cancelled a number of years ago now, awaiting the building of a coliseum here. It is still waiting.

Anyway, this year's weather would have been ideal for the big celebration. And the American Junior Rodeo held last week at the Joe Tharp Arena took full advantage of it.

INSIDE REPORT:

Drastic change in U.S. policy in Southern Africa

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Powerful new evidence of how far and how quickly U.S. policy in southern Africa has changed came in Vienna last month when Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa got nowhere in an unpublicized request that Washington discourage black guerrilla activity in white-ruled Rhodesia.

According to authoritative U.S. sources, Vorster asked Vice President Walter Mondale whether the U.S. would "lean toward restraining" Zambia, the most pro-Western of the "front-line" African nations, in sponsoring guerrilla raids into Rhodesia. He was turned down flat. Yet, the U.S. has raised the devil with Rhodesia for launching cross-border raids into African states.

This ought to shatter any illusions remaining in Pretoria or Washington that the Carter administration intends to take an even-handed position on racial conflict in southern Africa. The new position adamantly favors strict black majority rule everywhere on the continent, by peaceful means if possible but through violence if necessary.

This entails moral support by the U.S. government for black guerrillas in Rhodesia, the most effective of them avowedly Marxist and using an increasing supply of Soviet arms. The theory is that pro-Moscow Marxists, not only those in power but guerrilla leaders fighting for power in Rhodesia, can be won over to friendship with the U.S. So, while Washington is even less color-blind than it used to be, it is now blind to ideology.

All this demolishes talk that the selection of Mondale to conduct the Vienna talks meant defeat for UN Ambassador Andrew Young and his policies. In truth, Mondale came to Vienna relying on Young's aides and like-minded National Security Council staffers rather than old-line Foreign Service officers. The State Department's African Affairs bureau and Assistant Secretary William E. Schauffele, who is being reassigned as ambassador to Greece, have not really been in the policymaking picture since January.

While the South African government may not have thought Mondale any more friendly than Young, it did envision the Vice President as prepared to negotiate with Vorster. But Mondale did not deviate an inch from prepared positions; he carefully checked with his staff, or back to Washington if necessary, before responding to Vorster. Consequently, there was never any chance for Vorster's appeal that the U.S. attempt to restrain Zambia's support for Rhodesian guerrillas. Some U.S. officials think Vorster was asking that as a condition for applying South African pressure to Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime. But senior U.S. officials believe the South African was not bargaining and would not pressure Smith.

In any event, Mondale made no promise of restraint on Zambia. "We can't do it," a U.S. official explained to us. "It is not U.S. policy to turn off the armed struggle." One highly influential U.S. policymaker put it this way: "We recognize it is very difficult to tell these people to stop fighting."

But "these people" do not include the white Rhodesians. Although Washington does not maintain diplomatic relations with Salisbury, it has issued vigorous protests to Rhodesian officials in South Africa about cross-border raids aimed at black guerrilla bases in Mozambique and Botswana.

While clearly taking sides in Rhodesia, the U.S. keeps hands off the continuing civil war in Angola between the Marxist government (not even recognized by Washington) and anti-government guerrillas. The fact that Congress prevented meaningful U.S. help for the government in neighboring Zaire against insurgents invading from Angola is now considered providential by the administration.

The new policy thus becomes clear: support for black armed efforts to dislodge the last white minority footholds in southern Africa; non-involvement in battles between blacks anywhere on the continent. This results in U.S. support for black Communists against white non-Communists (as in Rhodesia) instead of insistence on peaceful settlement; neutrality in struggles between black Communists and black non-Communists (as in Angola).

The doctrinal authority cited for this policy is President Carter's declaration at the University of Notre Dame May 23 that "we are now free of that inordinate fear of Communism which once led us to embrace any dictator who joined us in our fear." Therefore, in the case of Angola, this means the enemy of our enemy is no longer our friend. But this also entails hope that victorious armed Marxists in Africa can be induced to turn away from Moscow toward Washington, as cold war revisionists have always claimed that Ho Chi Minh and Fidel Castro would have done had they been given half a chance.

This portentous shift in policy deserves more public debate than it has been given. Certainly, Andy Young is not a loose cannon, as was widely thought in Washington a few weeks ago. Rather, his January statement over television that he feared racism much more than Communism has been elevated into U.S. strategy, a departure from over 30 years of policy with far-reaching implications for this nation's course in the world.

LOOKS LIKE A GOOD BROOM TO ME

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Case of the Murdered Maitre D'

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — At two in the morning of May 12, the body of restaurateur Alexis Goodarzi, the self-styled "prince" of Capitol Hill, was found slumped behind the wheel of his orange Porsche sports car. There were three .32 calibre slugs in his head, the work of a professional killer.

Investigators now suspect that the flamboyant Goodarzi was an undercover operative for Iran's dread secret police. One investigator close to the case called him the "Tongsun Park of Iran," a reference to the man-about-Washington who allegedly tried to buy influence on Capitol Hill for the South Korean government.

Like Park, Goodarzi was a social swinger who packed a big bankroll and entertained congressmen. Both men were in their 30s; both moved at a fast pace; both reportedly had tens of thousands of dollars scattered in Washington bank accounts. Park reportedly had ties to South Korea's KCIA, Goodarzi to Iran's Savak.

But Goodarzi surpassed Park in dash and daring. On the night Goodarzi died, two beautiful women were waiting for him — one in a late-night joint, the other in his condominium. He also provided exotic beauties, our sources say, for congressmen with a taste for illicit romance.

Because one of the women was whispered to be a Korean, House investigators have been asking questions about Goodarzi. Their only interest, as we reported last week, was to determine whether he had any direct connection with the Korean scandal. The House Standards Committee is not investigating his alleged Savak activities nor his Capitol Hill call girl operations.

Ostensibly, Goodarzi was the maitre d' at the soigne Rotunda restaurant on Capitol Hill, a place where congressmen can dine discreetly with their lady friends. But the police believe he was keeping a quiet watch on his prominent clientele and reporting spicy tidbits to Savak contacts in the Iranian embassy. Our sources say he was in touch with two embassy contacts.

We have also made another significant discovery. Months ago, Iranian sources furnished us with a list of 14 top Savak agents in the United States. They are headed by Col. Mansour Rafizadeh, an Iranian diplomat in New York, whom U.S. intelligence sources confirmed is a Savak bigwig.

The fifth person on the list, an attaché at the Iranian embassy, helped arrange to return Goodarzi's body to Iran. He has also made persistent efforts to gain possession of Goodarzi's effects, which include tapes, correspondence, lists of names and other contents from safety deposit boxes.

We have agreed to withhold the name of this embassy official, because we have been unable to corroborate from U.S. sources that he

MEXICAN DEPRESSION: Tourism decline sent unemployed to U.S.

By VI MURPHY
 Copley News Service

TIJUANA, Mexico — The flow of illegal aliens into the United States from Mexico should drop considerably when Mexican tourism recovers from a catastrophic three-year depression, says Guillermo Rosell de la Lama, secretary of tourism.

Rosell de la Lama and other Mexican officials say thousands of the aliens crossing illegally into the United States are among the unemployed from Mexico's depressed tourism industry.

"Many illegal aliens are displaced workers from hotels, restaurants, stores and other businesses that depend on tourism for sales and income," said Rosell de la Lama.

He said thousands of the illegal aliens now thronging across the American border from Mexico are store clerks, taxi drivers, bellhops, waiters, waitresses and even hotel and restaurant management personnel who have lost their jobs because of the severe tourism depression.

"With the entire tourism industry in such desperate straits, there is no place for these people to go for other jobs so they turn to the United States where they hear there is work," he explained.

One out of every three persons in Mexico is supported by tourism — approximately 20 million people — which is Mexico's second-largest industry, next only to the government-controlled petroleum industry, he explained.

Tourism brought in $2.3 billion annual income before it was devastated by a series of bad political judgments and economic misfortunes beginning in the fall of 1974.

Since then, Mexico has lost 1.8 million tourists, or an average of 600,000 a year, Rosell de la Lama said.

He observed, "If we could get our normal flow of tourists back, the hotels and other businesses would once again run at full capacity and need all their workers once more."

"When this happens, the United States will see thousands and thousands fewer Mexicans crossing the border illegally."

"I do not believe Americans realize how disastrous the drop in tourism has been or how devastated the Mexican economy is because of its failure."

Eighty-seven per cent of the more than four million tourists who visit Mexico annually, during normal years, are from the United States, he explained.

Sixty-five per cent of these American tourists are from the four states bordering Mexico, Rosell de la Lama said.

"When American tourism drops off, the loss is reflected immediately in the Mexican economy," he said.

Tourism began dropping in 1974 after Mexico cast a vote in the United Nations supporting a Third World bloc resolution condemning Zionism as racist.

Thousands of outraged persons in the American Jewish community organized a boycott against Mexican tourism and goods.

Acapulco, one of Mexico's major resort areas for American tourists, felt the effects almost immediately.

Hotel occupancy fell alarmingly. Some boutiques and discotheques closed and retail sales dropped.

The pattern was repeated soon in every major resort area in Mexico.

When the Mexican peso was floated and devalued last September, panicked Mexicans rushed the banks, decapitalizing the country as they deposited withdrawn funds in foreign banks or hid their money at home or in private vaults.

A wild spate of rumors, including a potential military overthrow of the government, were circulated throughout Mexico and the United States, creating more panic among Mexicans and heightening the country's image of instability and despair.

Shark attacks only 'happen in movies?'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — "This isn't really happening. This happens in the movies," Dan Baen Jr. said in describing his feelings when he was attacked by a shark as he stood in chest deep water of the Gulf of Mexico near Aransas Pass.

Baen expressed his feelings about the attack from his hospital bed here where he is recovering from the attack in which he suffered a cut artery and 14 tendons.

Baen, who said he has seen the movie "Jaws," a film about a shark that attacked humans, said he couldn't believe he was actually being attacked.

"When the shark first hit me, I thought to myself 'This isn't really happening. It happens in the movies,'" Baen said.

Baen, 25, was removing fish from a net at the time of the attack.

The shark was apparently a stray from the group of more than 2,000 that gathered offshore along the northern section of Padre Island last week for several days before they swam out into the Gulf of Mexico Sunday.

Baen's father, a physician, said he was "cut up pretty bad."

Baen was with a group of Texas A&I University marine biology students at the time of the incident.

Doctors at Spohn Hospital here said Baen is in good condition and likely will not lose much, if any, use of the arm.

The students were working with a 350-foot net for an experiment at the time of the attack.

The Sinton man said he was working on the net when he first noticed something brush against his leg.

"I kiddingly thought to myself something about a shark when I felt it, but then I saw it coming at me with its mouth open," Baen related. Although Baen and others agreed that the shark was about four feet long, they were unable to say what type it was.

"It grabbed my arm and I started screaming and hitting it with my other arm. Then I jumped over the net and pulled my arm loose. The other students helped me out of the water," Baen recalled.

Baen said the professors with the group told the students to find a pressure point to prevent him from losing too much blood.

"I was pretty lucky," he said.

"The surgeons that worked on me did a great job. They only had me on a local anesthetic. I was awake the whole time they worked on it," he continued.

Asked if he will be afraid of sharks now, Baen replied "I don't know. I'll be a little nervous for a while when I start going back out there."

Texas' economic growth superb

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texas' economic growth in 1977 will surpass that of the rest of the nation by a significant margin, according to predictions of the Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc. of Houston and the First City Bancorporation Inc.

"Consistent increases in production, employment and population produce growing local markets and opportunity," reports "Texas '77," the Texas Commerce forecast publication. "As state output increases, so does the level of income generated by that production."

Texas residents should have ample means for "increased spending and improved standard of living," according to the forecast.

"Texas '77" reports the outlook for the Dallas-Fort Worth area is bright, featuring continued success and expansion in all economic areas. The area is expected to gain 19,000 new nonagricultural jobs in 1977, a gain of 1.7 per cent over last year.

Personal income in the Metroplex is expected to climb 10.9 per cent, and Dallas-Fort Worth will be third among the nation's metropolitan areas in construction in 1977.

In 1977, Texas manufacturing should surpass $25 billion for the first time, which indicates an increase of 11 per cent over 1976. Mineral production should rise to $19 billion from $17.5 in 1976 and Texas farm receipts should reach a record $7.8 billion.

Non-agricultural wage and salary employment should add 135,000 jobs in the coming year, while total employment should reach more than five million. The strong economic performance will lead to an almost 12 per cent gain in personal income to $85.5 billion.

Trio after Tower

DALLAS (AP) — They haven't officially announced, but three Texas Democrats considered to be prime challengers for U.S. Sen. John Tower's seat in 1978 were talking like candidates during a television interview here.

The three, Joe Christie, chairman of the State Insurance Board, Congressman Bob Krueger of New Braunfels and Barefoot Sanders, who lost to Tower in 1972, all said they have not decided whether they will seek the Senate seat in 1978.

However, they unloaded a verbal blast at Tower's record in a taped interview Tuesday on Dallas' KERA-TV.

It will be September, Christie said, before he makes his decisions.

"I promised Gov. (Dolph) Briscoe I'd stay until June of this session. My next promise is to talk to my wife and family about it. I will definitely leave the state insurance board in September," Christie, whose term expires in 1981, said.

Krueger said he will make an announcement at a July Fourth New Braunfels barbecue. Sounding as if he has already made up his mind, Krueger said that there is "not much question" as to what the announcement will be.

Sanders said his decision will be made in September.

The three potential candidates said the political climate is right for a Democratic defeat of Tower. Sanders based his chances on Tower's record since the last race.

"He has been there that much longer and what does he have to show for accomplishments. It seems to me the senator has a way of staying very distant from his constituents until the year before an election," Sanders said.

Krueger said Tower's tenure in the Senate has provided Texans with "one vote, not a voice."

Judge, attorneys discuss releasing Davis on bond

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge George Dowlen and attorneys involved in the upcoming capital murder trial of Cullen Davis have discussed the possibility of temporarily releasing the Fort Worth millionaire.

No action was taken Tuesday, however, and Davis remained in the Potter County jail.

The discussion centered around the possibility that Davis be released temporarily in the custody of the 101st District Court before a bond hearing is held next week.

Davis is awaiting trial in connection with the slaying last August of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, at a shooting spree in his lavish Fort Worth mansion.

His first trial ended in a mistrial. Davis is also charged with killing his estranged wife's boyfriend, former Texas Christian University basketball player Stan Farr, and wounding his wife, Priscilla Davis, and another man.

since September for Davis' bond to be set.

The second bond hearing, however, will be in Judge Tom Cave's 213th District Court in Fort Worth, and Cave has said he will hear the motion on the writ "late this week or early next week."

Davis was moved from the Tarrant County jail to Amarillo Sunday.

Under an obscure and seldom used provision of the Code of Criminal Procedure, Dowlen could order Davis' release between now and the date of the bond hearing.

"Basically, a writ (for bond) has been filed and it is returnable to Judge Cave," said Dowlen. "In the interim, I could grant a temporary bond which would be returnable day to day — meaning from the day I granted it until the day he was to report to Cave's court."

The provision allowing for the temporary release is in Article 11.32 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and concerns "custody pending examinations."

Cave said the provision is "little used" and usually is employed only in cases in which the defendant intends to plea insanity or is seriously ill.

In those cases, a judge often remands the defendant to a hospital.

The wording of the code, however, allows the judge to release the defendant prior to any examination.

Cave said a motion for such an order could be filed either with him or with Dowlen, but admitted it is unlikely defense attorneys would make such a request of him.

Judge Dowlen of Amarillo discussed a motion for such a release with defense attorneys and Tarrant County Asst. Dist. Atty. Marvin Collins on Tuesday.

There was no indication as to when any decision will be made and lawyers did not indicate late Tuesday if the discussion would resume today or if the matter is closed.

Davis' attorneys have filed a motion for a second bond hearing in Amarillo and have asked repeatedly

Teamster arrested, released

DALLAS (AP) — A member of Teamsters Union local 745 was free on a $200 bond today following his arrest on a misdemeanor assault charge in connection with the Sunday attack on television newsmen outside the local's meeting hall.

Carl Wayne Branch, 34, was arrested on a misdemeanor assault warrant Tuesday. The charge accuses him of striking newsmen Byron Harris of WFAA-TV during one of three incidents Sunday outside the union hall. Branch was free after posting a $200 bond Tuesday night.

Investigators have tentatively identified two more persons and expect to take them into custody today, according to Police Capt. Don Milliken, head of the crimes against person section.

Jack Kenneth Tucker, 37, was arrested on a misdemeanor assault Sunday and is free on a writ of habeas corpus.

Newsman injured in the assaults included Harris, WFAA-TV cameraman Mike Coscia, KDFW-TV reporter Greg LeFevre and cameraman Jack Weber of KDFW-TV.

Also injured in one incident was 745 local member Paul Nichols, who sustained minor leg injuries when members of a crowd estimated at about 400 slammed a police car door on his leg.

Impersonally recording the swimming speeds of City of Midland Swim Club members is a digital electronic timer. Club members are swimming for one week in an attempt to break several marks in the "Guinness Book of World Records".

Swim team splashing away

By RICHIE REECER

City of Midland Swim Club members passed the 75-mile mark this morning in their attempt to set a record speed for swimming 100 miles. The swimmers, about 15 minutes ahead of the record pace at 8 a. m. today, expected to reach the hundred 100-mile mark by 1 p. m. The team set out at noon Monday to break four world records in swimming as recognized by the "Guinness Book of World Records."

The group achieved its first goal — to swim a longer distance in 24 hours than any other relay team ever has. At the end of the 24 hours, Tuesday at noon, the team had swum 73 miles, 1,050 yards, breaking the old record by approximately 800 yards, team coach Doug Ingram said.

At the end of the 24 hours, distance counting started over as team members set out to garner their second record.

Ingram said he believes the team has a good chance to set the record for the fastest 100 miles.

Other records the team hopes to set are the record for the 300-mile swim and the record for the longest continuous time swim by a seven-member team.

Only seven swimmers are attempting to set the continuous time record, each swimming an hour at a time. One member of the team must be swimming at all times. By the end of the scheduled seven-day endurance swim, each member of the team will have been in the water a total of 24 hours.

Members of the seven-day team will also participate with the other members of the club who are attempting the 100-mile swim record and the 300-mile swim record.

Ingram said he feels confident the team can break the old record for the 300-mile swim. The record for this event will not be as difficult to break as the other records will be, Ingram said.

Ingram said the club has contacted officials from the "Guinness World Records" to assure the club of recognition. The club has complied with all the regulations set by the Guinness officials.

The Midland Jaycees are handling

the authentication of the records, Ingram said. The Guinness rules require the club to have the approval of a local civic organization.

Clay Spears, 16, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Spears of 2004 Seaboard, is one of the seven-day swim team members. He also was a member of the team which set the 24-hour distance record Tuesday.

Spears said he swam a total of four hours during that event, one hour at a time.

Concerning the likelihood of the club setting the other records they are attempting, Spears said, "They (the records) didn't seem that hard at first. I think we can do it." Ingram said the club members decided in February to attempt to set the records. Some of the club members had read in a swim magazine of a club in California which had set the total swim time record. The California group had swum for approximately five days, Ingram said. Local members decided to attempt to swim a week, since they would have to swim five days anyway, in order to set the record. Club members range in age from 12 to 20.

Council approves shuttle system, agrees to designate bus stops

By JIM STEINBERG

After the city agreed to provide designated bus stops in the downtown area, the Midland City Council approved on second reading Tuesday a proposal to shuttle people in and out of the downtown area during rush hours.

The designation of these loading zones was the only stumbling block that remained in a shuttle service proposal by Gihls Realty and Management Corp. that would move an estimated 600 to 800 people from the congested downtown area to parking lots on North Big Spring Street and West Wall Street.

It was agreed that operation of the 10-year franchise would begin by Nov. 1, and that Gihls could use any or all of the designated zones in the downtown area.

These zones will be the 100 and 400 blocks of West Illinois Avenue; where Wall Street intersects with Missouri, Big Spring and Lorraine; the intersection of Lorraine and Texas, and where Marienfeld intersects with Wall, Texas and Illinois.

The bus service would operate between 7 a. m. and 9 a. m., and between 4 p. m. and 6 p. m.

The franchise will become final after the ordinance is approved on third reading at the next council meeting.

In another action, the mayor and council approved an ordinance establishing a Building Code Review Committee to make recommendations concerning the adoption of building policy and conduct a review of the present city building practices.

Among the first tasks of the new committee will be to tackle the question of Mexican brick use in Midland homes.

Those selected for this committee include Wayne LaGrove, architect, and Glenn Pine, general contractor, both representatives of the Board of Appeals.

Building industry representatives include Glenn Pine, general contractor; John Cappadonna Jr., electrical contractor; Bill Hickey, home builder; Corky Bosworth, plumbing and mechanical contractor. Nonbuilding industry members include Scott Davis, T. June Melton, and Doug Burleson.

The mayor and council approved a contract for a new 12-inch water main

Dade County backs Bryant on gay stand

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Anita Bryant danced a jig, delighted with the repeal of a county homosexual rights law. Some 300 disappointed supporters of the measure sang "we shall overcome, someday."

Dade County voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to reject the four-month-old law. The final unofficial tally was 202,319 to 89,562, with voter participation setting a record for special elections here.

Political observers expressed surprise at the high turnout—45 per cent of the county's registered voters — and at the lopsided vote.

The campaign had drawn national attention, and both sides said they would continue the battle elsewhere.

"All America and all the world will hear what the people have said," Miss Bryant declared to cheers at a Miami Beach Holiday Inn.

The law, outlawing discrimination based on sexual preference, was passed in January. But Miss Bryant, a singer and the spokeswoman for the state's citrus industry, led a drive for 50,000 signatures, forcing the county commission to annul the law or put it up for a referendum. The commissioners refused to annul it.

The organization Miss Bryant formed and led, Save Our Children, Inc., charged that the ordinance would allow homosexuals to recruit children and serve as role models.

"Anita danced a jig," when she heard the results, said Mike Thompson of Save Our Children.

Jean O'Leary, executive director of the National Gay Task Force, said the defeat supplied "all the evidence anyone could need of the extent and virulence of prejudice against lesbians and gay men in our society."

However, she said, "The national debate provoked by the Dade County referendum has united and strengthened us as a national movement."

Miss Bryant said her organization would soon move into San Antonio, Tex.; Washington, D. C.; Minneapolis, Minn., and the state of California, all of which have laws like Dade County's.

Shootout leaves one man dead

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

A 29-year-old man was killed in a shootout with Midland police late Tuesday night, and another man involved in the fray was critically wounded.

The incident began as a barroom argument between four men, who took their fight to a parking lot where the four exchanged gunfire, officers said.

Police who were summoned to the scene were drawn into the battle when one of the men refused to throw down his gun, officers said.

The dead man was identified as Edwin Jewel England, 29, whose most recent address was listed as the West Wind Motel.

Loy Blanscett, 52, of the 900 block W. Tennessee, was listed in critical condition today at Midland Memorial Hospital. He suffered gunshot wounds to the chest and hand.

Another man injured in the gun fight left the scene and had not been located by noon today.

Police said an argument between four men who were patrons of a bar at the Desert Inn West motel erupted into a gun battle in the motel parking lot in the 3000 block W. Wall Ave.

Blanscett reportedly was injured during that fray.

When police arrived at the scene they ordered the men to drop their guns. All except England did, officers said.

Officers then fired two warning shots into the air. England leveled his weapon at the officers and was felled by a blast from one of the officers' shotguns, police said. England was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Robert Pine.

Officials today were awaiting the results of an autopsy.

A fourth man, who was not injured in the shooting, was taken into custody.

Services for England are pending with Newie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Insulation tax break barely passes committee

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan to give a special tax break to Americans who insulate their homes is still alive, but its passage is far from assured.

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively agreed Tuesday in a close vote to allow a tax credit of up to $400 for the purchase of insulation and other home energy-saving devices.

The 13-12 vote could be an indication of more trouble than expected for Carter's entire energy-tax program, parts of which the administration concedes already face strong opposition.

Most Republicans and liberal Democrats opposed the tax break. At least three of the 13 congressmen who voted for it indicated their votes cannot be counted on when the proposal comes up for final consideration in the committee later this month.

The vote was the first by a congressional committee on any of the tax portions of Carter's energy program. The size of the opposition was surprising because they inflation credit had been regarded as the part of Carter's plan most acceptable to Congress.

20-year sentence given city man in slaying trial

Midlander Dwight G. Blaylock Tuesday was sentenced to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine after having been found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting death of Radell Johnson.

The sentence is the maximum for voluntary manslaughter.

Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., urged deletion of the provision from the big energy bill. He said it would clutter up the tax laws and waste federal money on unnecessary subsidies. Rising fuel prices provide ample incentive for insulating homes, he contended.

Johnson was shot Oct. 26, 1975, at 307 S. Carver St. in Midland. Earlier, Johnson and Blaylock had a dispute at a Midland barbecue restaurant.

Johnson was shot in the back with a .38 caliber pistol.

Blaylock already is serving a four-year sentence in federal prison for a drug conviction.

Britons in Uganda ordered to remain

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Ugandan government barred all British citizens in Uganda from leaving the country today in an apparent attempt to force Britain to let President Idi Amin attend the Commonwealth summit conference in London.

Amin was believed to have spent the night in Libya en route to try to crash the conference. But there was some speculation in London that Ugandan reports of the burly dictator's trip were a hoax.

Radio Uganda said a decision on the "plight" of the British in Uganda would have to await Amin's return from London. The Commonwealth conference opened there today without him or any other Ugandan delegates.

The embargo on the British in Uganda was similar to a ban placed on about 240 American nationals in the country last February after President Carter said reports of a wave of mass murders by Amin and his supporters "disgusted the entire civilized world." That ban was lifted after four days.

The British Foreign Office in London said about 300 British citizens live in Uganda, most of them missionaries. They elected to stay in the country against British advice when diplomatic relations between the two countries were broken last July.

There was no word today on whether Amin was on the move again or whether he was approaching Britain.

Prime Minister James Callaghan recently wrote Amin that it would be "inappropriate" for him to come to London, and privately British officials said he would be kept out.

Diplomat reportedly still in good graces

By RICHARDE MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Young is in good graces at the White House even though he says the last four presidents were racists and the Russians are racists and Abraham Lincoln was a racist, too.

"He's absolutely in no trouble," said one administration source in a position to know. The administration official spelled out President Carter's attitude after the U.N. ambassador spent half an hour Tuesday with Carter in the Oval Office.

The ambassador, black and a former lieutenant to civil rights leader Martin Luther King, emerged from the meeting with Carter saying that the President told him "in context he understood what I was trying to say" about racism.

Did he encourage Young to keep speaking out?
"No. I don't think he has to encourage me. But he didn't tell me to shut up, either."

Does Carter share his views on racism?
"I think he understands my views on racism."

Does he share them?
"Oh, I doubt that, no."

But the administration source said Carter "for the most part" thinks Young is saying things that need to be said. "They had a very cordial and friendly meeting," the source said. "He (Carter) is not upset by what the Republicans are saying."

Indeed, the administration went to some lengths to show that Carter will not buckle under to Republican demands that Young apologize for his remarks or be ousted. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., told reporters Young should never have been appointed.

While declining to bring Young to the White House press room because that might appear too staged, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell arranged for him to face reporters in the driveway, escorted Young out to meet them and escorted him away afterward.

Young, however, appeared less than eager to talk long.

The Republicans, mainly national chairman Bill Brock, want an apology for Young's remark in a Playboy magazine interview that former Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford were "racists." Both Nixon and Ford are Republicans.

In testimony Tuesday before the House International Relations Committee, Young extended that description to former Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson as well. They were Democrats.

But Young said he didn't intend his remarks to apply to the personal character of any of the presidents.

Then, in remarks to reporters at the Capitol, Young added Lincoln to the litany.

"I say it's very hard to have lived in the 20th century and not some way be contaminated; that I, myself, am constantly subject to racial attitudes. Everybody is, you know," Young said. By that token, the reporters asked, was the Great Emancipator a racist?

"Especially Abraham Lincoln," the reporters quoted him as saying.

Carter's use of tax break told

Newsday

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service has spent three months auditing President Carter's income tax returns for 1975, the year the former peanut farmer got a $41,702 tax break related to farm machinery purchases.

White House officials confirmed the IRS audit after a series of questions by Newsday.

"Apparently they are not looking at any single item, just the 1975 return as a whole," a Carter aide said. "So far, there is no indication that the President will have to pay additional taxes. But if it is required, he will pay them promptly."

Initially, there was some White

House suspicion the audit of Carter's taxes was a political move, engineered by the Ford administration. The President got the notice of the IRS audit in February, less than a month after his inauguration.

"But politics doesn't appear to be involved," a Carter aide said. "We believe it was routine, but we still don't know how it was started. The audit was not triggered by a routine computer check. We know that."

IRS officials, including Jerome Kurtz, the man Carter appointed as IRS commissioner, refused comment.

The IRS suffered a black eye in its most celebrated audit of a president — Richard M. Nixon. The agency tracked down and fired an IRS employee who told a newspaper that Nixon had paid little or no income tax during his White House years.

During the Watergate investigation, it was revealed that the IRS had accepted Nixon's claim of a $576,000 deduction for giving his vice presidential papers to the National Archives. Eventually, Nixon associates were imprisoned for backdating documents to make them eligible for the deduction. Because the statute of limitations expired, Nixon was not liable for $148,080.97 in back taxes. He had promised to pay those taxes, but never has.

President Ford was also audited by the IRS for previous returns but it was a relatively minor matter. As a result, he was assessed $840.

So far, IRS agents have not personally met with Carter. Aides to the President said the "field audit" was being handled between IRS officials and an Americus, Ga., tax accountant, Robert Perry, who has prepared Carter's returns in Plains, Ga., since the 1950s.

During the 1976 campaign, Carter released copies of his IRS form 1040 for the years 1970 to 1975. In the 1975 return being audited, Carter paid $17,484.14 in tax on an income of $136,138.92, or at a rate of 12.8 per cent.

There were two big reasons why Carter did not pay more than 50 per cent of his income in taxes as the statute sets for someone at his income level. One was use of the investment tax credit that permits farmers and others to deduct from their final tax bill up to 10 per cent of the money invested on new equipment.

Terrorists free man needing doctor's care

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan terrorists holding 53 hostages on a train in northern Holland released a 46-year-old man today and said he needed immediate hospitalization.

The man, Theo van Hattem, was the third hostage freed by the extremists on the train.

Dutch officials said they did not know yet what was wrong with him.

The terrorists telephoned the government's crisis center and asked for an ambulance.

"They told our listening post that in their opinion the man needed immediate hospitalization," Justice Ministry spokeswoman too Faber said.

The ambulance drew up about 500 yards from the train. Van Hattem stepped off the train alone and walked down the embankment but "couldn't go any further," an official said. A stretcher was brought, and he was taken to a hospital in Groningen.

The terrorists on the train released two pregnant women on Sunday.

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet met until late Tuesday debating whether mediators should make another attempt as public pressure mounted for a quick end to the 16-day-old sieges of the train and a school in which four hostages are held.

The cabinet met in The Hague after Justice Minister Andries van Agt conferred with Josina Soumokil and Dr. Hassan Tan, the two leaders of the South Moluccan community who met last Saturday with the gunmen on the train. The meeting produced no progress toward a settlement, officials said.

Authorities said an increasing number of citizens are demanding decisive action to end the twin sieges, which began May 23. Van Agt said Sunday if the terrorists held out much longer, the government would consider "hard action."

Letters, telegrams and telephone calls were pouring in demanding some type action and suggestions ranged from dynamiting the train to snaring the terrorists in mansize mousetraps.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said the gunmen appeared to be "much tougher" than previous Moluccan terrorists and apparently are capable of withstanding a strategy of waiting them out.

Seven to 10 terrorists are holed up on the commuter train, which is surrounded by troops and police in the countryside about eight miles north of Assen. Four more South Moluccans are holding four teachers in the Bovensmilde elementary school on the outskirts of Assen. The gunmen freed 105 children and one teacher after four days when half the youngsters became ill.

Probers seek secret reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators are seeking super-secret U.S. intelligence reports in an effort to determine if South Korean agents made payoffs to members of Congress.

The efforts to obtain the intelligence information were revealed in a staff report to the House ethics committee, which is investigating alleged Korean influence-buying in Congress.

The report says the committee's staff has negotiated access to CIA reports and is "hopeful of similar cooperation from the National Security Agency and the National Security Council."

Meanwhile, several committee members said they expected the panel to vote to ask all 434 members of the House of Representatives to fill out questionnaires detailing any cash, gifts or trips they or their aides accepted from South Korean officials.

The questionnaire also reportedly would ask congressmen what they know about the activities of former Washington social figure and Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park, from whom a number of present and former congressmen acknowledge accepting cash and gifts.

The ethics committee's staff report says hearings on the Korean influence-buying case may begin as early as the end of summer.

Published accounts have quoted U.S. intelligence reports as saying Korean President Park Chung Hee directed Tongsun Park to pay off U.S. congressmen to keep them friendly and assure continued U.S. aid to Korea.

If proved by the intelligence agency reports, that would provide the missing link that so far has left investigators with no proof of misconduct by the present and former congressmen who acknowledge accepting money and gifts from Tongsun Park.

The Constitution prohibits congressmen from accepting substantial gifts from foreign agents. But accepting gifts from foreign businessmen was legal until 1974 and the congressmen involved say they thought that is all Park was

The ethics committee's staff report says the investigators are piecing together 600 documents that other sources say Tongsun Park tried to shred.

The report says seven federal agencies have cooperated, with the State Department allowing investigators to see 200 documents and the Justice Department providing a small amount of information.

Meanwhile, another House investigating panel is trying to arrange public hearings with a former director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

The former KCIA director is Kim Hyung Wook, quoted in a number of news interviews as saying Tongsun Park was one of several agents directed to buy influence among U.S. congressmen.

Gas leak forces evacuation

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Leaking lethal chlorine gas forced police in this border city to evacuate persons from a three-block area Tuesday, but no one was injured and residents were allowed to return home about four hours later.

The gas began leaking when a six-foot cylinder of gas, believed to be empty, began spewing a small stream of pea green gas after an employe of a scrap metal company struck the valve.

No injuries were reported.

City policeman and firemen converged on the scene, roping off a section of the industrial district near the downtown area of this border city for about four hours.

Firemen donned masks and oxygen tanks and doused the escaping gas with water while policemen toured the residential section, urging residents to flee.

"We evacuated about three blocks of people," said Brownsville Police Sgt. Prax Eparza. "The persons downwind from the incident had to leave. Everything went smoothly. No one was injured."

After all of the gas escaped and the situation was under control, officers told residents they could return home.

Anti-Cuban activist refuses to testify

By GEORGE LARDNER Jr.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — An American soldier of fortune once active in attempts to overthrow Cuban Premier Fidel Castro refused to testify Tuesday before a House assassinations subcommittee about the slaying of President Kennedy.

The witness, Loran Eugene Hall, 47, of Los Angeles invoked the Fifth Amendment at the first question put to him and told the subcommittee that he had no intention of answering any other inquiries they had in mind.

Hall told reporters later that he was not about to make any statements to the committee because committee investigators had voiced suspicions that "I was somehow involved in the assassination" of Kennedy and then tricked him into a meeting in which they served him with a surprise subpoena.

"I was willing to talk to them in Los Angeles," he said. "But they lied to me and they lied to Art Kevin (the radio newsmen who arranged the meeting)."

Hall, who demanded that Tuesday's session be held in public, was asked only one question — whether he had been in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 22, 1963, the day President Kennedy was assassinated there — when his refusal to talk cut the hearing short.

Rep. Richardson Preyer (D-N.C.), the chairman of the subcommittee investigating the Kennedy murder, ruled that any further questioning would be inappropriate "since the witness has invoked his rights under the Fifth Amendment."

The subcommittee then voted to keep Hall under subpoena and ordered him to come back to Washington for another hearing Sept. 14 — which committee aides said will be the first regular meeting day for the panel after Congress returns from its summer recess.

Hall was originally named in the Warren Commission's report on the Kennedy assassination as an anti-Castro activist who visited the Dallas apartment of Sylvia Odio in late September, 1963, with two other men. Odio told the committee that the visitors spoke to her of killing the President and that one of them, whom she later identified as Lee Harvey Oswald, was introduced to her as "Leon Oswald."

The FBI said Hall admitted in September 1964 that he had visited Odio, but he later denied making any such statements, and his two alleged companions denied any such meeting.

A dapper, mustachioed ex-mercenary who now works as a real estate dealer in Los Angeles, Hall has since told acquaintances that he occasionally stopped in Dallas in 1963 on various anti-Castro undertakings, but that he never took part in a conversation or meeting such as Odio described.

Hall is only the second witness to be summoned before the House Assassinations Committee in public session since it was first set up nine months ago to re-investigate the murders of President Kennedy and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

The first was Mafia leader Santo Trafficante Jr., once the kingpin of syndicate gambling in pre-Castro Cuba, who also invoked the Fifth Amendment. Trafficante and Hall were once confined together in Havana briefly in 1959 after Castro rose to power.

As to his professed whereabouts on the day President Kennedy was killed, Hall has made no secret of that over the years despite his refusal Tuesday to tell it to the committee. He has said he was in his apartment in Monterey Park, Calif., "in my shorts, shaving," when the news blared forth on television.

Lawyer reveals memos

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer who represented dead billionaire Howard R. Hughes has revealed he has a secret collection of memos in which Hughes said he had left a will.

The disclosure, noted in legal papers filed here Tuesday, came when Chester Davis testified for a pre-trial deposition in Las Vegas last May 17.

The New York attorney confirmed under questioning by lawyer Harold Rhoden that a secret file of Hughes memos existed. Excerpts from the deposition showed that Rhoden, representing former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich, questioned further:

Q. Who has them, sir?
A. I have them, the memos addressed to me.
Q. Concerning the writing of a will?

A. With reference to existence of a will, yes.

Davis acknowledged that he had not shown the memos to Hughes' cousin, Richard Gano, who conducted a year-long search for a will after the billionaire died in April 1976. Gano issued a report last March 28 saying no authenticated will could be found.

However, attorney Paul Freese, who represents three Hughes cousins in the estate litigation, says the Gano report may be meaningless in light of the undisclosed Davis memos.

"It is clear," Freese said, "that if he has records that would lead an investigator to proof of a lost or destroyed will or to an existing will, then much of the thorough search purportedly done by the estate representatives has been meaningless."

Freese filed a legal motion asking that Davis and Cox, the New York firm headed by Davis, be removed as counsel to Gano.

Hospital earns re-accreditation

Midland Memorial Hospital has been re-accredited for the 27th year by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) following an in-depth survey conducted in February. Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich announced.

"The Joint Commission's accreditation surveys are completely voluntary," Ulrich said. "It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited, but health care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a benchmark of quality that is higher than governmental licensure alone," he said.

"This is to the hospital what the Good Housekeeping 'seal of approval' is to consumer products," he said.

Busing balk to mean funds loss

By GRAYSON MITCHELL

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In a significant development in federal policy, the Carter administration has decided the government can cut off federal aid to force local school systems to accept busing as part of a solution to some classroom segregation problems.

In documents released Tuesday, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano, supported by the Justice Department, said he intends to skirt a 1975 congressional amendment limiting federal authority to take actions that would lead to busing students beyond their neighborhood schools to achieve desegregation.

Califano's decision is potentially significant for the nation's school desegregation process because it appears to commit the Carter administration to a more aggressive policy on the use of busing than had been adopted by the Ford and Nixon administrations.

The decision will not affect the Los Angeles school desegregation case because the order in the case was mandated by a state court.

At issue is the so-called Byrd Amendment passed two years ago that prohibits HEW from withholding federal aid funds as a means of forcing school systems to transport pupils beyond available public schools nearest their homes.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.), now Senate Democratic leader, bans "transportation of any student to a school other than the school which is nearest to the student's home, and which offers the courses of study pursued by such student."

Califano, in a letter to Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) released Tuesday, said he did not interpret the amendment as prohibiting the busing of pupils to schools that had restructured grade levels to facilitate desegregation.

According to Califano's most literal interpretation, students could be legally bused to more distant schools if the grade structure had been changed for the school year in which the busing occurred.

In a local school district where a dual racial system existed, for example, two nearby schools, one largely black the other white, would coordinate grade levels and eliminate duplications. One school would contain grades first through third, perhaps, and the other, third through sixth. Government officials refer to such restructuring as "pairing" and "clustering."

"The language of the Byrd Amendment could be read as either allowing or forbidding grade reorganization under these circumstances," Califano said in his letter to Eagleton.

"If the grade structure has been changed for the school year in which the transportation occurs," Califano said in explaining the rationale for his decision, "then the school nearest the student's home may no longer be one which offers the courses of study pursued by such student."

A legal opinion Califano sought from the Justice Department supported his interpretation of the amendment.

"The language of the amendment does not clearly support one interpretation over the other," said a 17-page opinion drafted by Asst. Atty. Gen. Drew S. Days of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division.

Informed sources said the new decision will be first applied when HEW, in the near future, orders the school system in Kansas City, Mo., to desegregate its schools using a portion of the "pairing" and "clustering" method.

The school board there, under pressure from the federal government to desegregate its public schools, has submitted what sources described as an unacceptable desegregation plan that would leave many of the city's schools virtually all black.

Rosalynn's trip takes on rights overtones

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — A trip by Rosalynn Carter to northeast Brazil today took on human rights overtones, although U.S. officials hadn't planned it that way.

Mrs. Carter was going to Recife, a coastal city she visited in 1973 during a Georgia-Brazil exchange program. She was to visit a housing program and spend the night with friends.

But last month in Recife two Americans, Father Lawrence Rosebaugh, 41, and Mennonite missionary Thomas Capuano, 24, were arrested as they wheeled a vegetable cart through the city participating in a program of direct assistance to the poor. They were stripped, beaten and held incommunicado for three days. On the fourth day they were allowed to call the U.S. Consulate and were released.

Asked about the two men at a news conference Tuesday, the First Lady said the U.S. government was "very concerned" and the Brazilian government was investigating the matter.

Her press secretary, Mary Hoyt, first told reporters that Mrs. Carter had no plans to meet with the men. But later she said a meeting might be arranged.

A reporter asked Mrs. Carter if her failure to comment on the Brazilian government's current repression of student protests, which has resulted in hundreds of arrests and the closing of 10 universities, wasn't a "cop out."

"No, not at all," she replied. "You presume a determination that I am not in a position to make. I have stressed here as well as I have stressed in every other country the deep, deep commitment we have to human rights."

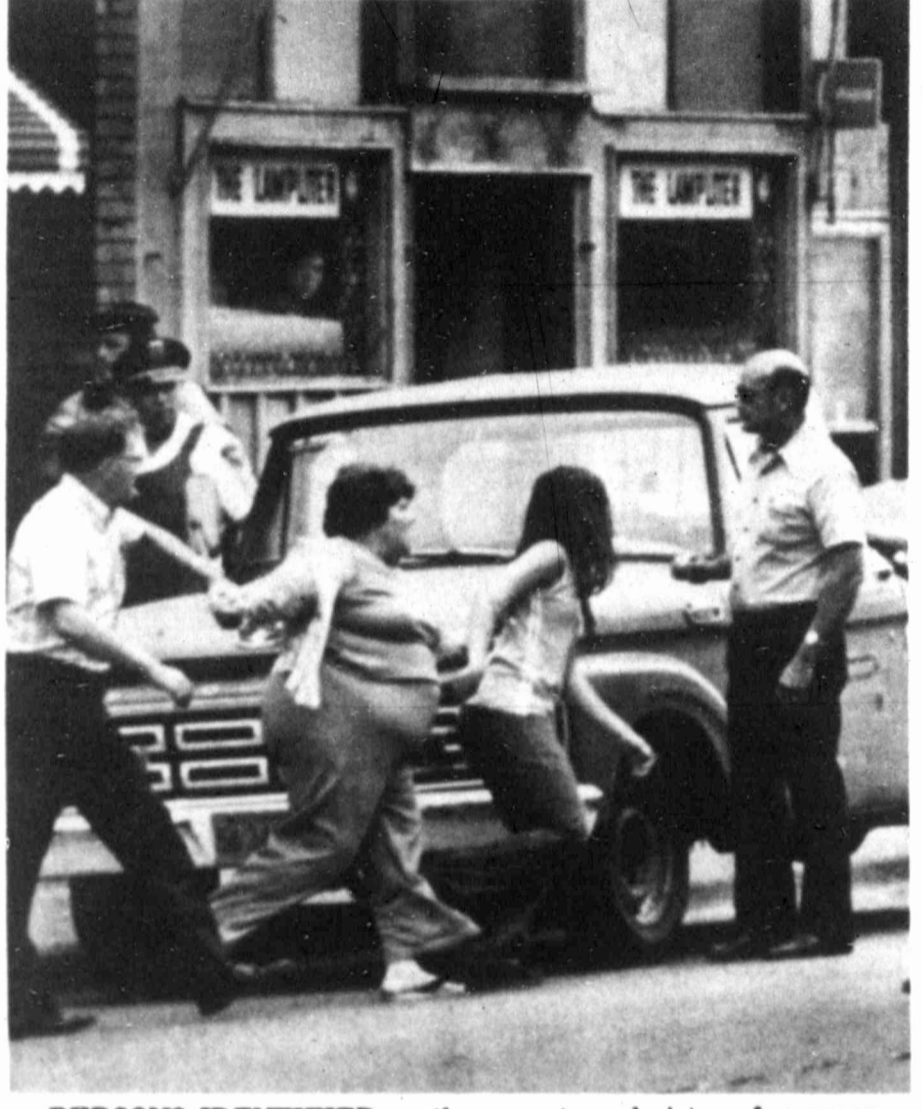

She told another questioner she "glanced briefly" at an open letter to her from Brasilia University students appealing for President Carter's support. She said she would take the letter to her husband, adding: "I am sure he will be glad to receive the perspective on human rights of the students."

Mrs. Carter met for 75 minutes with President Ernesto Geisel and discussed human rights, the U.S. government's opposition to Brazil's purchase of a nuclear reprocessing plant from West Germany, economics and all other problems between the two countries.

The First Lady said they had a "very good" conversation, and she made her husband's position "very clear."

Geisel honored Mrs. Carter with the first formal dinner he has ever given at his residence for a visiting dignitary. It was a private affair, attended by 24 U.S. and Brazilian officials and their wives.

House OKs Hatch Act repealer

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A controversial bill virtually repealing the Hatch Act of 1939 by lifting most restrictions on participation in politics by 2.8 million federal employees passed the House Tuesday, 244 to 164.

Whether that vote will be enough to overcome the problems the bill faces in the Senate was not clear. Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff (D-Conn.), chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee, which has jurisdiction over the bill, has opposed it in the past and said he would not push for it this year unless it passed the House by a wide margin, even though President Carter supports legislation and has announced that he will sign it.

Governor victorious in primary

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Gov. Brendan Byrne, counted out by many early in the year, has turned back nine challengers and won the Democratic Party's nomination for re-election.

Byrne, 53, will face state senator Raymond Bateman, who emerged the victor in the Republican half of Tuesday's primary.

"I fought like hell for it," Byrne said at his campaign headquarters in Edison.

With 98 per cent of the election districts reporting, Byrne had received 171,723 votes to 127,161 for the runner-up, congressman Robert Roe, who had spent $815,000 in his primary campaign. Former state senator Ralph DeRose was running third with 98,151 votes. The remaining Democrats trailed by substantial margins.

On the Republican side, Bateman, 49, had received 187,007 votes with 98 per cent of the election districts counted, to claim a nearly 64,000-vote margin over Assemblyman Thomas Kean, who used his family's wealth from banks and utilities to finance a campaign that relied heavily on television advertisements.

Trailing were former state senator C. Robert Sarcione, with 20,242 votes, and former Moorestown Mayor William Angus, with 11,620.

the bill, in Tuesday's voting largely recovered from a setback it suffered when the bill was pulled from the floor three weeks ago, after an anti-labor amendment had been adopted in a confused late night session.

The anti-labor amendment, offered by Rep. John Ashbrook (R-Ohio), would prevent federal employee unions, such as the Postal Workers or the American Federation of Government Employees, from using dues or fees for any political purposes whatsoever, including even voter registration or informing members of an upcoming election.

On a key 266-139 vote Tuesday, this Ashbrook amendment was largely nullified by an amendment saying that the bill could not make illegal any union political activity that is legal now.

Rep. Stephen Solarz (D-N.Y.) said the Ashbrook amendment was a "gag-rule on legitimate labor activity" and a "legislative lemon."

Rep. Phillip M. Crane (R-Ill.) said the vote nullifying the Ashbrook amendment showed "labor has really done their work in the intervening weeks."

The temporary withdrawal of the Hatch Act repealer three weeks ago was the second rebuff this year for labor in the heavily Democratic House. The first setback came when the House defeated a bill to allow expanded-picketing at construction sites, a bill labor had made its first legislative priority.

Opposing the Hatch Act repealer Tuesday were Republicans, Common Cause, the Civil Service League and Americans United Against Union Control of Government, a "cousin" of the right-to-work lobby.

They contended that the federal employees, including 347,000 who live in the Washington metropolitan area, wanted to keep the protection from political influence that the Hatch Act provides.

Passage of the bill would lead to politicization of the federal bureaucracy and a return to the spoils system which the civil service merit system was designed to abolish, they said.

Odor to call dance

Paul Odor, the original caller for the M-Squares square dance club, will return to Midland to call the club's dance Friday at 8 p.m. in the Square Arena on Warren Road.

Odor was caller for the club until about three years ago when he left Midland.

Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.) said the House was "turning loose a monster which could be used against any one of us" and warned that it was being "turned loose against its will."

Democrats, organized labor and the American Civil Liberties Union argued that preventing federal workers from actively participating in politics denied them a fundamental democratic right.

The merit system which covers two-thirds of the federal job holders is sufficient protection from political abuse of the bureaucracy, they said.

In addition, they cited restrictions built into the bill, prohibiting officials from using their authority to coerce employees politically, prohibiting political activity on the job and prohibiting solicitation of political contributions by superiors.

Under the Hatch Act, federal workers can vote, express their opinion, wear buttons, voluntarily contribute to political campaigns, and run for nonpolitical offices, but they cannot run for most state, local and federal offices or solicit funds for candidates.

The bill passed by the House Tuesday would allow them to run for political office, taking a leave of absence with a guarantee of restoration of their job or a similar one if they lose. They could solicit funds or campaign, but not in federal buildings or on the job.

A few workers, such as employees with audit, inspection, prosecutorial and law enforcement authority would stay "hatched," as would all workers involved in national security jobs.

President Theodore Roosevelt first issued the ban on political activity for civil service employees in 1970, but it covered only a quarter of government workers, since most weren't under civil service.

Assault under investigation

Midland police today are investigating the assault of an employee of the Colonial Food Store at 3415 Thomason Tuesday night.

The employee, Yaya Flores of 511 E. Estes Drive, told police she was coming out of the back room of the store when a man grabbed her around the neck and started pushing her back into the room.

The man then fled from the store, police said.

MONEY TAKEN

Mrs. Suzanne Griffith of 427 Andrews Highway told police $167.70 had been taken from the cash register at the Pizza Hut located at 1427 Andrews Highway.

Mrs. Griffith told police the money had been taken in different amounts over the past week. She noticed the money was missing Tuesday.

Two arrested after chase

ANDREWS—Two Midland men were arrested here following a high-speed chase involving two Andrews County sheriff's office units and a highway patrol car Saturday morning.

Elvy Nolan Beauchamp Jr., 25, of Route 3, Box 378, and Larry Wayne Bingham, 24, of 4113 Anetta Drive were charged with theft over $200 in connection with thefts on Gulf and Atlantic Richfield oil leases. Beauchamp was also charged with the unlawful carrying of a weapon and four different traffic charges.

The chase began between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. when an employe for DA&S Well Service Co. saw two men coming out of a Gulf storage yard south of Andrews, police said.

The employe chased the men while calling his dispatcher who in turn called the Andrews County sheriff's office.

The two men were finally stopped on the west Midland farm road five miles south of Andrews off U.S. 385.

Agency says proposals need to be redesigned

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy plan will fall substantially short of its goals and should be redesigned, the congressional auditing agency said today.

In a new analysis, the General Accounting Office said that despite repeated declarations of the need for saving energy, Carter is backing a plan that will cut energy demand by insignificant amounts.

Instead, the administration's package is intended mainly to reduce foreign oil imports by forcing a dramatic increase in the use of coal, the agency said.

"Based on the administration's own estimates, with few exceptions, the plan will fall short of the goals even if (it) is fully implemented," the report said.

The GAO analyzed the Carter energy package at the request of Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee.

The report was to be made public in testimony before the government operations subcommittee, but its main findings were made available in advance to The Associated Press.

The GAO hinted that to achieve his goals the President may have to seek more mandatory conservation measures than are contained in the plan pending before Congress.

"One fact that has not been widely recognized is that the administration did not design its energy plan to achieve the stated goals without unspecified voluntary actions or further mandatory actions," authors of the report said.

The GAO study goes far beyond similar conclusions contained in an independent analysis by the Congressional Budget Office last week.

"Since under the best of circumstances, plans designed to meet goals often fall short, we believe the plan should be redesigned to provide a reasonable opportunity of achieving the stated goals," the GAO said.

Specifically, the GAO said that while Carter wants to hold the rise in energy demand to 2 per cent a year, the plan would result in a 2.2 per cent annual increase.

Questioning other Carter goals set for 1985, the GAO said: —Oil imports will fall to 7 million barrels, not 6 million as forecast.

—Insulation will be installed in 60 per cent of buildings, not 90 per cent as predicted.

—There will be solar energy devices installed in 1.3 million homes, not 2.5 million.

Carter has set a goal of reducing gasoline consumption by 10 per cent, a target congressional auditors said would be met. They also said a goal calling for increasing coal production by 400 million tons annually will be exceeded, with an increase of about 565 million tons.

Schleicher test cases

Jack McQueen of Abilene was waiting on a completion unit after setting 4 1/2-inch casing at 5,760 feet, total depth, at No. 2 A. L. Baugh, Schleicher County wildcat, six miles northeast of Eldorado.

A one-hour drillstem test in the Strawn reef from 5,744-5,760 feet, recovered 3,730 feet of gas and 15 feet of salty mud.

It is the former McQueen Oil & Gas, Inc., drilled to 552 feet in 1974 and junked and abandoned.

It is 2,200 feet from north and 567 feet from east lines of section 8, block M, GH&A survey, 100 feet east of the Strawn gas opener in the depleted Baugh field.

Lea gas well potentials

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1 Gulf-McKay-Federal, 1/2 mile south of Morrow gas production in the Lusk, North field of Lea County and 3/4 mile north and slightly east of a dual Morrow gas and Bone Springs oil discovery, has been completed from the Morrow.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 11,437 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 12,634-12,644 feet. No condensate was reported, however, it flowed gas and condensate on four-point tests.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 34-18s-32e, 16 miles southwest of Buckeye.

Explorer flowing

Dedric B. Baxter, Midland, No. 1 Edwards Estate, Ward County wildcat, 1/2 mile west of the Crawar, North field, was flowing to clean prior to making production tests, through unreported perforations.

It has been plugged back from total depth of 8,681 feet to 6,482 feet.

It recovered 1,010 feet of gas and 12 feet of drilling fluid on a 2 1/4-hour drillstem test taken from 8,580-8,630 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 4, block B-20, PSL survey, eight miles southeast of Monahans.

Completion test slated

ATAPCO No. 1 Ellwood, Mitchell County exploratory test, 18 miles south of Colorado City, was bottomed at 7,560 feet, awaiting a completion unit, after operator set 4 1/2-inch casing at total depth.

A drillstem test from 7,380-7,440 feet, total open one hour and 45 minutes, recovered 30 feet of free oil, 270 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud and 180 feet of heavily gas-cut mud. The sample chamber recovery was 1.8 cubic feet of gas and 800 cubic centimeters of free oil, no water. Flowing pressure was 93-248 pounds; 80-minute initial and three-hour final shut-in pressures were 3,134 and 2,879 pounds, respectively.

The project is 1,650 feet from northeast and 660 feet from northwest lines of section 27, block 16, SPRR survey, six miles east of the Ellwood, North (Yates) gas field.

Former Midlander wed

LAFAYETTE, La. — Terry Gayle Cleveland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joy C. Cleveland Jr. of this city, formerly of Midland, Tex., and David William Hoopman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Hoopman of Findlay, Ohio, were married during a double ring ceremony here.

The Rev. Perry R. Sanders officiated the vows in the First Baptist Church, and Mrs. Philip Lokey, Mrs. Ramona Carmichael and Luther Burney provided wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length gown of white chiffonette designed on an empire A-line silhouette. The Queen Anne neckline and the fitted bodice were overlaid with re-embroidered Alencon lace with seed pearls and pearlized sequins. The sheer Bishop sleeves were edged with wide cuffs of matching lace accented with seed pearls, pearlized sequins and self-fabric buttons. An attached Watteau train draped down the back to form a chapel-length train, and a one-tier, waltz-length mantilla veil enhanced with matching lace and seed pearls was attached to a modified Juliet headpiece.

The bride carried a nosegay of pink Sweetheart roses, accented with stephanotis, London fern, gypsophila and white picot ribbon streamers.

Bridal attendants were Kathy Sharp of El Paso, Tex.; Mrs. Fred Hains of South Bend, Ind., sister of the bridegroom; and Lana Cleveland and Paula Cleveland, both sisters of the bride.

Attending the bridegroom were Michael Hoopman of Findlay, brother of the bridegroom; Ronald Switzer of Cleveland; Gregory Cross of Muncie, Ind.; and Craig Hanson of Kotonah, N.Y.

John Fetzer and Robert Brower, both of Lafayette, seated the guests. Ginger Miller of Midland was flower girl and Mike Cleveland, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mrs. David William Hoopman

Washington's ice cream passion could cause home productivity

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Passion over ice cream is usually confined to the lust for a cold dish of peach to finish a summer's dinner, or perhaps the temptation of humble vanilla slithering off a slice of warm apple pie.

But passion of a different order stirs today in the nation's capital. The reason: The government is changing its definition of ice cream. And the question is, will our ice cream still be ice cream?

Yes, say the people who manufacture ice cream and stand to make money with the new definition.

No, say the milk producers, who fear they will lose money with it.

But one thing is sure: The taxpayers will pick up the tab, dollar for dollar, in dairy support programs, to the extent that the ice cream industry takes advantage of the change.

All of this involves only 10 per cent of each carton, cone or cup of ice cream, but it is a dear 10 per cent to the milk producers, who feel that tampering with it will be a disaster.

To be sure, the government is not taking the cream out of ice cream. That stays. What the Food and Drug Administration is doing is ending its basic requirement that 10 per cent be essentially, nonfat dry milk — what you buy at the store as powdered milk.

Not that ice cream makers have to quit using nonfat dry milk. But they can use instead other, cheaper substances derived from milk.

Even today a small and restricted amount of one of these ingredients may be substituted for nonfat dry milk. Now FDA is removing the restriction and allowing ice cream makers to use "safe and suitable" substitutes. The only requirement is that those substitutes provide the same amount of protein as today's ice cream.

This decision, three years in the making and scheduled to take effect June 13, has evoked a cacophony of claims and counterclaims, of predictions of government losses and of doom; and end to Ice Cream As We know it.

Sen. William Proxmire, Democrat from the dairy state of Wisconsin, warns that "the end result would be a product less desirable in terms of taste, texture and quality."

DEAR ABBY

Michigan man slams disrobing practice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: why do male physicians always insist that their women patients disrobe completely when they come for an office visit? It seems that this procedure is especially "necessary" when the woman patient is young and attractive.

Since I am a man, I have my own ideas about why doctors insist on it. I have never heard of a man being asked to undress.

You find out, Abby, and let us husbands know there are at least a quarter of a million other men in Michigan who would like the answer to this one—CURIOUS IN FARMINGTON HILLS

DEAR CURIOUS: Both men and women must disrobe to some extent for a physical examination. Your suspicions are as groundless as they are evilminded. And who appointed YOU spokesman for the men of Michigan?

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a wonderful guy for almost five years and we plan to marry soon. About two years ago he started to lose confidence in his driving. He kept imagining that he was about to hit another car when he wasn't even close, and then he'd go to pieces.

He's never had an accident in his life. Now he makes up excuses to get out of driving and if I don't drive, we don't go.

I was in the hospital recently for a month and he visited me only twice because the bus schedules conflicted with his working hours.

His refusal to drive has curtailed our social activities and now it's limiting his job opportunities. He says our future home will have to be situated on a bus line.

No amount of pleading will induce him to drive. He refuses to see a doctor. I hate to give him an ultimatum, but if I thought it would help, I would. Should I accept his problem as a simple phobia? Or should I set a time limit, after which he must start driving again?—STUMPED IN NY

DEAR STUMPED: Whether it's a "simple phobia" or a symptom of a more serious emotional (or physical) problem cannot be determined without a thorough examination. Don't marry him until after he sees a doctor.

DEAR ABBY: I am a directory-assistance operator at a telephone exchange, and I want to speak for myself and other telephone operators who take a lot of guff and abuse from the public.

Our job is to help people find the telephone numbers they need. We are not hired to tell people whether a tomato is a fruit or a vegetable. We are also not allowed to carry on conversations with people who call us to "visit."

Men, we are not a dating service, and we can't give our names or marital status, or describe what we look like just because you like our voices. We do not care to hear about your bodies, and we don't get "turned on" by suggestive language.

We don't have to listen while people call us four-letter to the editor. I don't know what street John is on, but I'll give you seven ways Mr. Schaefer can help you.

Many people who call me for a recording, but very few call me for a personal hug and interview. I'm sure you'll be helpful.—YOUR TELEPHONE ASSISTANT

DEAR ABBY: I'm a woman! And I hope that's not a question. I'll give you a message.

National Health Clinic is now in MIDLAND/ODESSA

GUARANTEE "You will quit smoking in 5 days or your money back!"

Sworn statement of Patricia Turner: Being a registered nurse, I knew the dangers of cigarette smoking but I couldn't stop on my own. A friend told me about National's program and I stopped in 2 days. It's been over six months and I haven't even had the desire for a cigarette.

Sworn statement of Owen E. Wood: The only thing you need with this program is the earnest desire to quit smoking. I smoked for 27 years. I tried a number of different times to stop using every method and device possible and nothing worked until now. I have withdrawn from cigarettes with virtually no side effects. I'm not nervous. I'm not grumpy and I don't have the desire for cigarettes any longer.

NATIONAL HEALTH CLINICS will be in the Odessa/Midland area with our GUARANTEED 5 day stop smoking program. This program, administered by our mobile unit, is available for a LIMITED TIME ONLY.

Even though our program is available in major cities, National's planning staff feels that residents of areas out of commuting distance of our permanent locations will also benefit from our 5 day program. Local residents who act promptly can enter the program and stop smoking within five days without the usual withdrawal symptoms and without any appreciable weight gain. Only a LIMITED number can be accommodated.

National's stop smoking clinics utilize the same method as the Schick centers that you may be familiar with. In addition, our program will stop you from smoking in 5 days or your money back. However there is one major difference between National's Program and Schick's... the price... you will be pleased to find that the cost of National's program is substantially less.

MASTERCARD AND BANKAMERICARD ACCEPTED

We'd all be happier if every wife could depend on her spouse as a bridge expert relies on his partner. The difference, if any, is that a top bridge player must occasionally deceive a partner for his own good.

During the recent North American Championships in Pasasena, Peter Pender led the four of spades and looked around for a way to get three other tricks. The hand was played at may tables, and practically every East returned the queen of clubs south covered with the king, and West won with the ace. None of these Wests knew anything about East's shortness in spades. A club continuation was very natural, and that was the end of the defense.

SOLVES PROBLEM

Dave Smith solved his problem by returning the jack instead of the queen of clubs at the second trick. Here also, South's king drove out the ace of clubs. But East's lead of the jack of clubs said that he didn't have the queen; and West trusted his partner.

So at this table Pender shifted back to spades. Smith promptly ruffed and then took the setting trick with the queen of clubs.

Clip this hand out and show it to your spouse the next time it becomes clear that you were less than reliable.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer (or in second position after a pass) you hold: S-A; H-J; D-QJ1096; C-QJ8764. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. You have 11 points in high cards and 4 points for the two singletons, but you do not have a sensible opening bid. You need at least two of the eight aces and kings for a sound opening bid.

Sleep studies indicate complexity of dreams

SHERYL FITZGERALD Newsday

NEW YORK — How, why and what we dream has always fascinated mankind. Joseph was called to interpret the dreams of the pharaoh. Oracles have used dreams to tell the future. Freud believed that studying dreams could help us understand the unconscious mind. Although Lucretius observed restlessness in animals that he thought signified dreaming in about 44 BC, the scientific study of the dream state in humans is relatively new.

Research done in the past 25 years shows that sleeping is a richly detailed and highly organized activity. An orderly succession of bodily and mental events occurs in sleep, managed by that great control center, the brain. Time-lapse portraits of sleeping subjects, believed to be the first of their kind in sleep science, were shown recently in an exhibit called "Dreamstage: An Experimental Portrait of the Sleeping Brain," which presented a multimedia story of the brain's work during sleep. During the exhibition, at Harvard University's Carpenter Center for the Visual Arts in Cambridge, Mass., a human subject slept peacefully in an enclosed observation booth while the activity of his brain, eyes and muscles was recorded.

The recordings were then projected (by laser and synthesizer) into a sound and light show. Coupled with slides and other graphics, it showed how the body works during sleep's stages, and how that relates to dreaming.

What does happen when you dream? Basically, according to Dr. J. Allan Hobson, professor of psychiatry at Harvard's Medical School, some mechanism in the brain stem (that part of the brain underlying the cerebral cortex and linking it to the spinal cord, which controls unconscious activities) is automatically activated. Outside stimulations are prevented from influencing brain activity, just as if you'd pulled down the shades and turned off the lights.

Hobson, whose scientific work formed the basis for the exhibit, explained that such internally caused activity is periodic and occurs as a regular, built-in part of sleeping. "Dreaming doesn't happen because you're hungry or thirsty or have to go to the bathroom," Hobson said.

"It occurs willy-nilly, and to ask why we dream is like asking why the heart beats. There's a lot of baggage associated with dreaming, like the idea that it is somehow unhealthy to dream. There's absolutely no truth to the notion that if you could work out problems in waking life, you would not dream. That's a really outmoded idea."

During dreams, the ability to move around is blocked. The brain cells that control movement are still sending messages to the spinal cord, but the signals are inhibited and reach the muscles in incomplete form. Therefore, even though you can lie there imagining things happening, you can't get up and act out your dreams.

"You might dream that you're running, but you can't move," Hobson said. "You legs will feel heavy. This is because the brain's message isn't getting through."

Why we see what we see in dreams is probably a coordination of actions between a part of the brain that Hobson calls the "eye movement generator" and that part where memories of past experiences are stored.

The eyes move during Rapid Eye Movement sleep, one of several different kinds of sleep undergone each night and the period when most dreaming takes place. What is probably happening, he said, is that in the absence of light, the brain is comparing the eye's movement to information stored in the memory and constructing an image that fits.

Strong Turkish leadership unlikely

By JOE ALEX MORRIS, JR. The Los Angeles Times

ANKARA — Nearly complete election returns Tuesday indicated there was little chance that Turkey would get a strong government which can face up to its formidable foreign and domestic problems.

Virtually all parties and vote-counters indicated that former Premier Bulent Ecevit's Republican People's Party will end up with 212 or 213 seats, well short of a majority in the 450-seat parliament called the Grand Assembly.

This made it all but inevitable that Ecevit, should he go ahead as he says he will and try to form a government, will have to seek a coalition with the Moslem fanatics of the National Salvation Party. Although Ecevit sees himself as a European-type social democrat, the NSP leader, Necmettin Erbakan, wants to turn Turkey back to its Moslem and Oriental traditions.

Ecevit, a 52-year-old poet and former journalist, reportedly is ready to do this, even though according to people who know him well, he detests Erbakan and thinks he is totally irresponsible.

Ecevit said Tuesday that work on a new government should not be delayed, and indicated he was only awaiting the presidential nod to get on with the business of forming one.

Erbakan has indicated that he was ready to consider another coalition with Ecevit, even though their last attempt broke down because of deep differences between the two men.

The prospect of Erbakan in a new government created a pall of gloom in Western diplomatic circles. "If Erbakan is in, there will be no progress over Cyprus," said one Western ambassador.

This means that relations between Turkey and the United States will continue to deteriorate. Problems with Greece, over both Cyprus and the Aegean, are linked to a Cyprus settlement as well.

The prospects for Cyprus appeared worse no matter who eventually forms a government here. Premier Suleyman Demirel boasted Tuesday that his four party, right wing coalition actually had increased its number of parliamentary seats from 228 to 232.

But this also included the 26 deputies of Erbakan, who is a deputy premier in the outgoing government.

Little accomplished as cleanup deadline nears

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Five years and billions of dollars ago, the problem seemed surmountable. Yes, Lake Erie was dying. Yes, the Potomac River was an open sewer. The streams and ponds and rivers and lakes in and around the nation's cities were unfishable, unswimmable and undrinkable.

But a technological society that sent man to the moon could surely clean up its own waste. In a spirit of brimming optimism, Congress passed the 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Now the first cleanup deadline — July 1, 1977 — is upon us. Congress, the administration, industries, cities and environmentalists are gearing up to pick the law apart. Meanwhile, the average citizen might wonder: is the water getting any cleaner? The answer is: sort of.

Take the Hudson River, where fashionable swimming resorts a few miles up from New York City were abandoned after World War II because of heavy industrial pollution. Oil and sewage killed most of the fish.

In the late 1960s, a vigorous anti-pollution campaign was undertaken, resulting in 160 new sewage plants. The 1972 federal law made industries install clean-up equipment, too. But, just as bluefish and crabs were returning to some parts of the river, a new hazard was discovered.

A dangerous chemical, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), which cause nervous disorders and probably cancer and birth defects, had been discharged for years from two General Electric factories near Albany. An estimated 500,000 pounds of the almost indestructible compound now lie along a 50-mile stretch of the Hudson. Fishing was banned last year and the company has agreed to spend $3 million trying to clean up.

Industries, cities and the federal government have spent billions of dollars in the last five years building sophisticated plants to clean up pollution. But the equipment that destroys the bacteria in sewage water and the filters that collect solids and other conventional pollutants from industrial waste water are ineffective when it comes to manmade chemicals that, in minuscule amounts, are dangerous to human health.

When the 1972 act passed, the Environmental Protection Agency set up a massive, complex program. Guidelines were issued for scores of different industries — from electroplating to sugar beet processing. Individual permits were required for 41,454 plants specifying how much each could discharge and what cleanup equipment was necessary.

By July, industries must install "best practicable technology," an interim cleanup standard that weighs costs and benefits. By 1983, the act requires "best available technology" — the best possible equipment to make waters "fishable and swimmable."

Cleanup is expensive — the 1977 standards will end up costing industry an estimated $19 billion — so hundreds of lawsuits were filed challenging the agency's guidelines and permits. Steel mills, power plants and oil refineries resisted regulation most strongly. But overall, about 90 per cent of industry is now in compliance.

Cities and towns, however, are way behind. By July 1, all 33,000 should have installed secondary sewage treatment — a process which removes 90 per cent of organic matter. The 1972 act provided $18 billion to fund 75 per cent of municipal plants — the largest public works program since the interstate highway system.

But fewer than half the country's cities and towns will comply with the deadline. Cities such as New York and Detroit are still dumping thousands of gallons of raw and almost untreated sewage into their rivers daily, while giant treatment plants are still on the drawing boards.

At hearings this month the Carter administration is expected to ask Congress to change the law to encourage faster municipal cleanup, and to shift from massive concrete treatment plants toward recycling plants that would use sewage water for irrigation. EPA may also ask for legal authority to force water conservation through such measures as showerhead valves and toilet-tank dams.

Television documentary explores history of 'CIA's secret army'

Newsday

NEW YORK — An underground terrorist organization of CIA-trained Cuban exiles is carrying out a secret war against Fidel Castro in an attempt to wreck the growing U.S.-Cuba thaw, according to a television documentary to be broadcast this week.

The documentary, part of the "CBS Reports" series with Bill Moyers, is entitled "The CIA's Secret Army" and will be broadcast Friday night. The program, which includes an interview with Castro, examines the structure and membership of a virulently anti-Castro terrorist organization based in Miami. Members of the group say that they want to stop the rapprochement between the United States and Cuba that resulted in an agreement last Friday to exchange diplomatic observers.

Also during the program: —One member of the organization admits that ex-CIA case officers are advising the group and offering encouragement, although the U.S. government officially condemns the group. (Castro has charged that exile attacks are sponsored by the CIA.)

—Castro claims that there were at least 24 known CIA assassination plots against him and other Cuban leaders but denies that he retaliated by ordering the assassination of President Kennedy.

—Bernard Barker, one of the convicted Watergate burglars and a longtime activist in the Cuban exiles' war against Castro, says that he recruited 120 Cuban exiles for Operation Diamond, the Nixon administration's plan for destroying domestic opposition to its policies. The Watergate break-in was part of Operation Diamond.

New details of the CIA's long-standing attempt to destroy Castro are revealed, including a plan for biological and chemical warfare against Cuban sugar-cane workers and a secret arrangement with Florida state officials and newspapers to prevent any disclosure of the agency's anti-Cuban operations.

The CBS program underscores the growing problem of the extremist faction of Cuban exiles who have fought for Cuba's liberation from Castro for 18 years. Believed to number about 200, they are the hard core of the nearly 2,000 exiles who were organized and trained by the CIA during the 1960s to carry out a campaign of subversion and guerrilla attacks against Cuba.

The covert war, largest in the CIA's history, was ended officially by President Johnson in 1967. The Cuban exile movement then fragmented but underwent a resurgence about two years ago under the leadership of an organization called Coalition of Revolutionary Organizations (CORU).

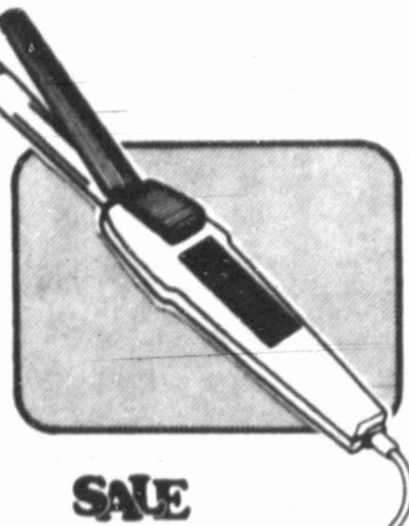

In the documentary members of the organization take responsibility for a war of terror against Castro, including the assassinations of at least four Cuban diplomats in Lisbon and Mexico City and bombings of Cuban embassies.

White House likely candidate for solarization

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The White House could be heating its water with the sun by the end of the year. President Carter, who began his term by commissioning a solar-heated inaugural stand and has gone on to call for a major energy effort from the American people, is putting his own house in order. He has asked the Energy Research and Development Administration to study all ways to use solar energy at the White House.
 The ERDA feasibility study for a solar-energized White House has been under way for not quite a month, it was learned. The study is expected to be completed within another 30 days.

 While looking to the sky, the White House is going ahead, as are many homeowners, with the more conservative project of adding insulation in the roof. A second study on other energy saving techniques for the White House is being conducted by the General Services Administration.
 Both projects are being coordinated with Rex Scouten, the chief usher of the White House, who actually is the building's manager. Scouten said he is "convinced we will have a solar energy system soon in the White House."

 "Solar energy for the White House is technically feasible, economically promising and architecturally possible," said Ronald Scott, assistant director of solar heating and cooling for ERDA, who is directing the feasibility study.
 "Of course we can't have any visual pollution from the collectors. The solar energy will have to be competitive with fossil fuel. And it has to perform properly. But there aren't any real problems with any of these."
 "Heating the White House's water with solar energy is certainly the easiest to do and the most cost effective. Air conditioning with solar energy will be the most difficult part of the plan, but we're considering that as well."

 The White House has a great deal going for it as a candidate for solar energy, Scott pointed out. "It's a great thermal sink (a natural heat collector and storer). That massive stone construction is just wonderful. And if you had it to rebuild, you wouldn't orient it any differently at all."
 The White House lines up on an east-west axis with the long walls facing south and north, a major recommendation for collecting what is called "passive" (non-mechanical) solar energy. All of the public rooms have major windows on the south, and the three smaller drawing rooms — the Red, Green and Blue Rooms — have only south windows. South windows get significantly more energy from the sun than do other windows.

 (For some purposes, they get too much. Several years ago, the White House installed Solarex, a thin, colorless plastic film on the east, west and south windows throughout the house to cut down on the ultra-violet ray destruction of the fabrics.)

 The White House also has a fair amount of flat roof space on which to mount solar collectors, according to Scouten. "Though they'll have to leave us room to get to the flagpole to run up the flag," he said.
 With present technology, it probably wouldn't be possible for the White House to get all its energy from the sun. Current recommendations call for half as many square feet of solar collectors as there are square feet of house, which in the case of the White House's 375-odd rooms would mean a lot of collectors.

Spanish Communists gaining respectability

The Los Angeles Times

BARCELONA, Spain — The politician attracting the largest crowds in Spain's election campaign is Santiago Carrillo, the Communist leader who less than six months ago was hiding from the police.

"The Communists are coming out like mushrooms after the rain," a Barcelona worker, a Socialist, said recently as he watched thousands of Communists rushing to hear Carrillo.

Communist officials estimated that 200,000 showed up on that occasion, but they exaggerated. The number was more like 100,000, still the largest

Large crowds, however, do not necessarily mean large voter response. Most analysts do not expect the Communists to win more than 10 per cent of the vote, if that, in the June 15 parliamentary elections, the first free elections in Spain since 1936.

But Carrillo and the Communists will probably win something more important — respectability. For four decades, they were hunted down by the forces of the dictator Francisco Franco. Franco painted the Communists as the terrifying enemy of Spain.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Broken bone can be painful

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: My husband broke his leg quite badly when he was skiing last winter. He had a good surgeon, and the bone was pieced together perfectly well, mechanically, it is almost as good as new. But my husband still feels a constant pain in that leg. Both the surgeon and our doctor have taken X-rays and done tests, and they cannot find any reason for this. Is there anything you can think of that might help?—Rosalie M.

anti-pain methods would not be used if they cut off information vital to the doctor. You might say it is when pain becomes meaningless in terms of the original problem that you have to treat it as a disease in itself.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: What's all this about cholesterol and exercise—do jogging and biking really keep your cholesterol way down?—Jeff L.

DEAR JEFF: Medical studies cited by the President's Council on Physical Fitness indicate that exercise can indeed do a lot to hold your cholesterol level in check—and a lot more good besides. It tends to lower your blood pressure and it lessens your chance of getting a heart attack. It also, of course, makes you feel and look much better.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Maryland 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

DEAR ROSALIE: If the doctors are unable to find any organic cause for the pain, you might ask them to refer your husband to one of the pain clinics now being set up in some of the major medical centers around the country. Pain often continues for months, or even years, after the origin-cause of it has been cured or removed. And it is to deal with just such chronic distress that the new clinics have been established.

At a pain clinic, your husband would be checked by several specialists. They would either recommend a course of therapy your husband could follow under the direction of your family doctor, or they would provide a treatment at the clinic itself if it were a method not yet available elsewhere.

There are a number of very advanced techniques being used against chronic pain such as injecting long-lasting anesthetics, cutting certain nerve fibers, or killing nerve cells by electric heat. Another approach is to neutralize the pain message by actually stimulating the nerves that are transmitting it.

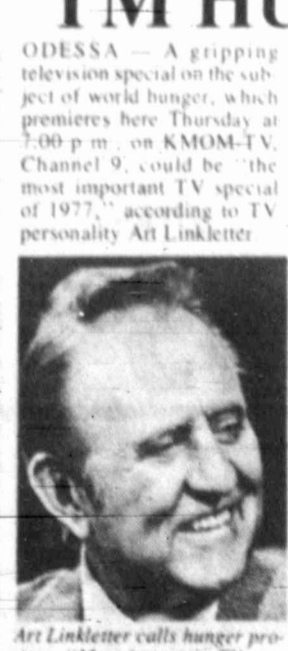

Pain, of course, is a very valuable signal to the doctor when it indicates that something is wrong, and these

THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD...
"I'M HUNGRY!"

ODESSA — A gripping television special on the subject of world hunger, which premieres here Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on KMOU-TV, Channel 9, could be "the most important TV special of 1977," according to TV personality Art Linkletter.

program include Julie Andrews, Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows, Vincent Price, Roger Staubach, Shirley Jones, Hank Aaron and Carol Lawrence.

Also appearing will be Billy Graham, Charles Colson, Andrea Crouch, B. J. Thomas, Dale Evans, and nationally recognized authorities on hunger and population problems.

The exhaustive program explains the hunger issue vividly and in explicit detail, taking the viewer into the lives of hungry people in India, Kenya, Indonesia, and many other lands where parents and children together attempt to survive on the amount of food an average American eats during a coffee break.

The telecast gives a clear and positive presentation of the hunger crisis, with documented stories of heroic and sacrificial work now being done by religious, charitable and government programs overseas.

THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD... "I'M HUNGRY!" is being sponsored by World Vision International, a worldwide Christian humanitarian organization.

Linkletter, who appears as a guest on the program, said: "This national TV special on world hunger will help viewers of all ages understand the meaning of hunger and malnutrition. I hope everyone will watch."

In addition to Linkletter, other featured guests on the Recalling that five Palestinians who attempted to shoot down an El Al jetliner in Nairobi last year were handed over to the Israelis by Kenyan authorities, a Western diplomat observed, "A lot sure has changed during the past year."

Although regarded as one of Israel's closest friends in black Africa, Kenya's siding toward the Arabs has been more and more apparent since the March Cairo Afro-Arab summit.

In Cairo, Kenya's vice president, Daniel Arap Moi, often mentioned as a leading figure in Kenya's "Israel lobby," conferred with the PLO's President Yasser Arafat.

One Kenyan delegate to the Cairo summit said a lot of pressure was exerted on Kenya to unambiguously identify with the Arab cause.

Midland Cubs open key series against Dodgers

Midland's streaking Cubs come off a 6-4 road tour of the Texas League East Division to begin their stretch drive for the West Division first-half pennant with a five-night, seven-game homestand against the San Antonio Dodgers.

The Cubs conclude the first half with games on the road against Amarillo and El Paso. The first-half ends June 24.

Going into tonight's game, the Cubs are 1 1/2 games behind the division-leading El Paso Diablos. Manager Jim Saul probably will start Jeff Albert, 3-4, against the Dodgers as Midland shoots for its ninth win in 14 games against the Los Angeles farmhands.

DOUBLEHEADERS ARE scheduled for Thursday and Saturday, both games beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Since going on the road, the Cubs have made several roster changes. When pitcher Wayne Doland, plagued by hardluck this spring, suffered a hairline fracture of his right hand, the Cubs obtained pitcher Randy Benson, a lefthander who had been released by the St. Louis Cardinals organization.

Outfielder Carlo Lezcano, brother of Milwaukee outfielder Sixto Lezcano, another former Texas Leaguer, joined the Cubs off the Florida State University campus.

In another change, infielder Scott Boras' contract was purchased from the Arkansas club and to make room the Cubs released veteran outfielder Earle Chew.

AFTER TONIGHT'S 7:30 p.m. game, the Cubs and Dodgers square off in a YMCA Night doubleheader at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Youngsters wearing a YMCA t-shirt will be admitted free. Between games, fans will be treated to exhibitions of boys and girls softball, baton twirling, tumbling and gymnastics, karate, soccer, cheerleaders and Indian Guides.

It also is Permian Telco Federal Credit Union and ladies night. Friday's game is two-bit beer night. Outfielder Karl Pagel has been the big stick in Midland's attack since the season's start with 16 homers and 55 runs batted in for a .352.

THE LEADING hitters for the Dodgers are third baseman Art Fischetti (.353, four homers and 22 rbi) and shortstop Ron Washington. Barry Biggerstaff has a 2-2 won-lost record and an impressive 1.96 earned-run-average. Ted Power is 3-2 with 40 strikeouts.

Athletes rap aging AAU track officials

By EARL GUSTKEY
The Los Angeles Times

It used to be that a track season wasn't complete without some athlete complaining loudly about the age of officials.

In 1969, for example, John Carlos wanted an 8.8 or 8.9 time for the 100-yard dash he won at the NCAA meet.

"I won the race by 10 yards and they gave me a 9.1," Carlos said. "The second place guy was 9.3." "And at the AAU meet that year, I beat Lennox Miller by five yards and they gave us both a 9.2."

Carlos' point, shared by other athletes, is that track meets are run in part by men past their prime.

"An older guy's reflexes just aren't as good as younger man's," Carlos added. "Reading the finish of a close sprint is tough enough for a young man, let alone a guy in his 70."

Says Kate Schmidt, American record holder in the woman's javelin: "Sometimes I think the older and blinder you are, the better your chances of being a head field judge."

Of course, not all athletes agree.

Steve Williams, world class sprinter: "Overall I'd say officials in the sprints are very capable. Once in a while a starter will let a guy get away with a false start, but it's rare."

"In general, the competence level of officials is very, very good," said Dwight Stones.

"I've put the rap on AAU officials in the past," the high jump world record holder explained, "but most of the time I was referring to AAU administrators."

"I haven't had many complaints about meet officials. Some of them are too old, though. No one knows the high jump rules like I do. And when I have to tell an official a rule's been changed that he didn't know about, some of them get uptight."

Now, gradually, younger men are being brought into the officials' ranks.

"Several years ago over half our officials were over 50," said Andy Bakjian, who assigns AAU officials to meets.

"Now it's about 30 percent. The problem is, we're short-handed all the time. Older, retired men usually have the time to work weekends. For a younger man to do it means giving up weekends with his family."

Bakjian is trying to recycle former athletes back into the sport. Reynaldo Brown, the high jumper, and ex-400-meter hurdler Geoff Vanderstock, for example, will be working the AAU meet at UCLA June 9-11.

Still, many oldsters are still on the job.

"About 20 of our 247 nationally certified officials in Southern California are over 70," Bakjian said.

Cubs convince Lasorda

CHICAGO (AP) — Nobody, least of all the Chicago Cubs, has to convince Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda that the National League East Division leaders are for real.

leaders their second straight loss. "They're doing the things they have to do to win."

Ray Burris, the Cubs' starting pitcher who went eight innings to improve his record to 8-5, agreed. "We're as good as we want to be," said Burris. "We have depth that we haven't had in the past and its good knowing we have everybody is pulling for each other."

"It's not a team of superstars, but everybody's doing their job," said Burris.

Cubs find respect

The Chicago Cubs, the team that was supposed to have frittered away respectability in a pique, are the surprise of the National League, if not all baseball.

The Cubs with trades are doing what everyone expected California, which invested heavily in the free agent market, to do with its pocketbook.

It may not last, as the cautious are quick to point out, but the Cubs are leading the NL East by 2 1/2 games, polishing off the West Division-leading Los Angeles Dodgers, the hottest team in baseball during the first two months, two straight.

When the Cubs traded high-rollers Rick Monday to the Dodgers and Bill Madlock, two-time NL batting champion, to the Giants, the soothsayers predicted they might have thrown away the franchise.

INSTEAD, THEY acquired a third baseman eager for a chance to play in Steve Ontiveros and Ivan DeJesus, a shortstop who wasn't supposed to be able to hit the curve ball, in return, not to mention Bill Buckner, a lame first baseman who has yet to pay dividends. But even his injury has turned out to be an odd blessing. It gave Larry Bittner a chance to play and he has been all the Cubs hoped of Buckner.

And, of course, Bobby Murcer has been everything the Cubs envisioned.

DeJesus may be the key in all the swapping. He hasn't stolen bases like everyone expected, but he's hitting close to .300 and the way he has teamed up with Manny Trillo, the second baseman who leads the NL in batting, is one of the secrets to the improved Chicago pitching.

LAST YEAR, Bobby Adams, Chicago's roving infield coach, opined that Trillo made the double play better than any second baseman in the league, including Joe Morgan. With DeJesus at his side, this year, he is proving it.

But in Chicago, they are giving most of the credit for the Cubs' turnaround to Bruce Sutter and the formula employed bears a remarkable resemblance to the technique that brought Midland a Texas League pennant two years ago.

With 16 saves in 25 games, Sutter and his forkball are reaping much of the credit. Chicagoans feel he is the top reliever in baseball.

Johnny Bench, for one isn't inclined to argue. "I never saw a ball explode like his," said Johnny. "I figured I couldn't hit what he was throwing so I bunted maybe I could bunt it."

SUTTER'S RECORD is 0-1 and the guy who handed him that defeat was former Midland Cubs teammate Julio Gonzalez, who blooped a game-tying single in the ninth and then blooped a game-winning hit in the 11th of a game at Houston.

Chicago writer Bob Verdi notes, "He might be the first Cy Young winner never to win a game, he has lifted his club from mediocrity to respectability on the end of his fork."

Bruce sees it differently. "You can't save games unless your team is in the game, and you can't keep a game close unless your team keeps it close first. The difference in the Cubs this year isn't me. It's in the team itself."

Bruce reasons, "We have better personnel and better attitude. You know in Scottsdale this spring, I was really down about things. I thought it was going to be the same old crap all over again, guys doing what they wanted to do when they wanted to."

"BUT THIS team has turned out differently. Last year, we had too many guys who were too selfish. This year there are more guys willing to give themselves for the team."

Sutter goes on. "I didn't think it would be that way. When we made these two trades in the winter, I was like everybody else. I felt they were bad deals. I mean you could build a team around a guy who hits like Bill Madlock, right?"

"But the other side of it, is that Bill did worry a lot about his batting average. If he had three or four

NBA 2nd unit owns the glitter

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton helped the Portland Trail Blazers to the National Basketball Association title, but the 6-foot-11 center finished second to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA all-star voting.

Walton was joined on the second team by Julius Erving and George McGinnis of the Philadelphia 76ers, whom the Blazers defeated in the championship playoffs.

Abdul-Jabbar and Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz led those named to the first team, which was announced Tuesday by the NBA.

Abdul-Jabbar collected 107 points in voting by sports writers and broadcasters from all league cities. The first-team selection was the sixth of the centers eight-year NBA career.

Twins cityslick Chisox on surprise double steal

By The Associated Press

Bob Lemon says that his Chicago White Sox can compete with the Minnesota Twins this year.

But if they do, they will have to outthink them first.

The Twins outsmarted the White Sox with a crucial double steal in the 11th inning that gave them a 6-5 victory Tuesday night. The victory increased the Twins first-place lead in the American League West Division to two games over the White Sox.

With the score 5-5 and Jerry Terrell and Rod Carey on base, Twins Manager Gene Mauch ordered a double steal.

Terrell, on the front end of the double steal, was not the least bit surprised when the sign was flashed.

"Gene (Manager Gene Mauch) asked me, 'Can you steal?' and I said yes, they weren't even looking for it. The pitcher was just concentrating on the batter."

THE STEAL put runners at second and third and it looked like they would stay there after Larry Anderson struck out Lyman Bostock for the second out.

That put Willie Norwood and his .080 batting average at the plate for the Twins. Norwood grounded to shortstop Alan Bannister for what appeared to be the final out of the inning.

"I wanted to get a second chance," Norwood said after the game.

Bannister gave it to him, throwing the ball low and in the dirt past first baseman Jim Spencer, allowing Terrell to score the winning run.

Terrell gave Carey credit for Bannister's bad throw. "When Rodney went into his juggling act in front of Bannister, I knew we had it made," said Terrell.

However, Bannister disagreed that Carey upset him by darting in front of him. "It was just a plain and simple choke. Carey didn't do a thing," Bannister said. Spencer's two-out home run in the ninth had given the White Sox a 5-4 lead, but Carey tied the score in the bottom of the inning with a sacrifice fly.

Glenn Adams gave the Twins a 3-2 lead in the second with his first homer since 1975. Minnesota made it 4-2 in the third, but Jorge Orta's pinch hit tworun homer in the eighth tied the score 4-4.

Rangers 7, Yankees 3 Willie Horton's fluke double triggered a five-run fourth inning and carried the Rangers to their victory over the Yankees.

With two on and two out in the fourth, Horton hit a high fly ball that center-fielder Mickey Rivers lost in the lights, allowing two runs to score. Toby Harrah followed with his seventh homer of the year and the Rangers got another run on two doubles off loser Ed Figueroa.

Bucky Dent cracked a two-run homer for the Yankees in the second, and Bump Wills hit a solo homer for Texas in the third.

Blue Jays 6, Angels 3 Ron Fairly's eighth-inning home run off Paul Hartzell broke a 3-3 tie and powered the Blue Jays to their third straight victory.

Dave McKay and John Scott also homered for the Blue Jays.

Tigers 5, Mariners 2 Jason Thompson and lightning Tom Verzyer each drove in two runs for Detroit and rookie Dave Rozema won his sixth game of the season as the Mariners dropped their sixth game in seven starts. Rozema had a seven-hit shutout entering the ninth, when the Mariners scored both their runs and knocked the rookie sensation out of the game. Steve Foucault came in and got his fifth save of the season.

Ben Ogilvie smashed his eighth homer of the season in the eighth for Detroit.

Brewers 7, Orioles 6 Sixto Lezcano scored from third base on a wild pitch by Baltimore's Tip-py Martinez with two out in the ninth inning, giving Milwaukee its triumph.

Lezcano tripled off the top of the wall in left center off loser Dyan Miller. Martinez came in and walked Sal Bando intentionally. Then with the count 1-0 on Cecil Cooper,

Don Money and Sal Bando also homered for the Brewers.

Bill Castro, who pitched the final inning, gained his seventh victory against two losses.

Royals 5, Red Sox 4 Joe Zdeb capped a two-run ninth-inning rally that carried Kansas City past Boston in a game in which Royals' Manager Whitey Herzog was ejected.

After loading the bases in the ninth, the Royals tied the score when Boston first baseman George Scott bobbled a potential double play grounder, allowing the tying run to score. Zdeb then singled in the winning run.

Seaver passes Koufax on all-time whiff list

By The Associated Press

Tom Seaver may get tired pitching baseball games, but he never tires of the crowd's adoration. "It's fun to do these types of things here in front of these people," says Seaver.

What Seaver did Tuesday night was hit another milestone in his glowing career—surpassing Sandy Koufax on the all-time major league strikeout list while leading the New York Mets to an 8-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"I was a bit tired in the ninth," said Seaver, who had enough energy to tip his cap after ending the game by striking out George Foster for his 10th strikeout of the game and the 2,400th of his major league career.

SEAVER GOT a long standing ovation from the crowd of 16,067 at Shea Stadium when he moved into 13th place on the all-time strikeout table by fanning Dan Driessen in the seventh inning. When Seaver edged ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers' Hall of Famer, it triggered a scoreboard message of the accomplishment.

"When I heard the applause," said Seaver with a smile, "I looked around to see what it was. I thought it was one of the cats running on the field. Then I looked around at the scoreboard. It was quite a sight."

Seaver threw a high amount of pitches—148. That accounted for his change of pace in the last three innings.

"Seaver threw a fastball for six innings and his curve and slider for the last three," said catcher John Stearns.

The performance not only impressed the fans, but the Reds as well.

"I've seen him faster," said Cincinnati third baseman Pete Rose.

NBA Coach-of-Year wastes no time pampering

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Tom Nissalke, the National Basketball Association's Coach of the Year for the 1976-77 season, has a simple formula for handling troublemakers—he gets rid of them.

"The nitwit is being phased out of sports," Nissalke said Tuesday. "Teams aren't interested in taking on the head cases anymore."

"Now if (Kareem Abdul)Jabbar was a head case, and he's not, or a Bill Walton, a team might try to take them on, but it would have to be the superstar."

Nissalke, who guided the Rockets to the Central Division championship, said not having any troublemakers on the team helped improve the club. "I was able to coach this year because I didn't have to bail anybody out of jail," Nissalke said. "At one place I coached, my trainer's life was threatened. I didn't have that problem, either."

Nissalke said although he had complaints from players who sat on the bench, there was no dissension during Houston's successful season. Nissalke said he has found honesty the best policy in keeping players happy.

"I left our players with one thought at the end of the season," Nissalke said. "If they ask to be traded, be sure that somebody wants them. I tell our players to come to my office any time they want to know their worth. I'll tell them exactly their value."

"I think you're only confusing a guy

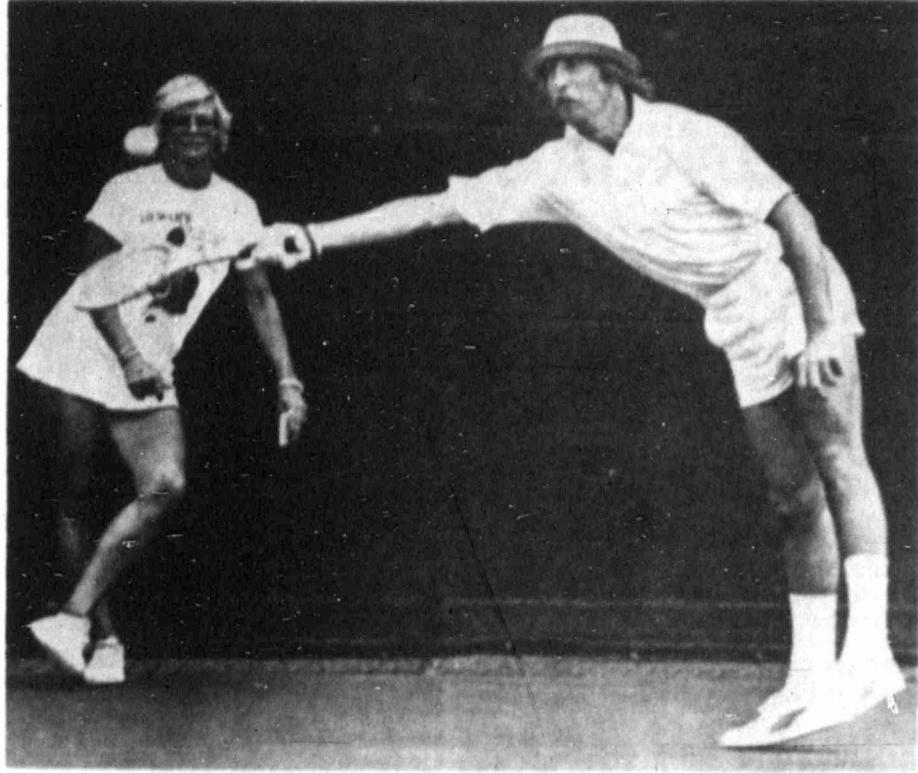

if you lie to him. It's better for him to know where he stands."

The collegians the Rockets select in Friday's NBA draft already know where they will stand—probably out in the cold.

"We're not going to get any players that will make that big a difference," said Nissalke, who last year traded Houston's first round picks in 1977 and 1978 to Buffalo for Moses Malone.

"We've got 12 players and they want to be players here." The Rockets had the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft last year and used it to take Maryland All-American John Lucas, who became the quarterback of Houston's offense. This year, the Rockets' first selection won't come until the 18th pick in the second round, the 40th selection over-all.

Vilas surprised in net tourney

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Tim Gullikson of Onalaska, Wis., pulled off the first upset of the $100,000 John Player Lawn Tennis Tournament today when he ousted top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 62, 6-2 in only 53 minutes.

It was Gullikson's second week on grass. Last Saturday he was losing finalist to Mark Edmondson in a tournament just outside London.

Vilas, on the other hand, came straight onto Nottingham grass from the clay of the French Open in Paris. He won that tournament.

Rain the past two days had prevented Vilas from getting any grass practice. As he said afterward, "You can't go straight on to a match on grass and play your best after a year on clay."

Tim Gullikson, an eager 25 and a scant five minutes younger than twin brother Tom, is ranked 45th in the United States. He played the right type of game against the leaden-footed Vilas, switching his attack with almost every shot and never fearing to charge the net.

Vilas, meanwhile, still obviously playing a clay type of game, kept back most of the time and was caught out of position by Gullikson's short game.

In the first set, Gullikson got a couple of early service breaks for a 5-2 lead and finished off the set with an ace for 6-2. In the second set, Vilas started off well but quickly faded.

In the third game of that set he dropped service, thanks to a couple of pieces of Argentine sportsmanship when twice he overruled line decisions in his favor to concede the points to Gullikson.

That gave Gullikson the break he needed to go 3-1 up and he increased that to 5-1, still keeping Vilas on the run from one sideline to the other.

Vilas managed a consolation game on the seventh to trail 2-5, but the eighth was Gullikson's without trouble. As in the first set, he finished with an ace.

Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., who won the inaugural tournament here in 1974, had an initial shock when Chris Kachel of Australia took the first set. But Smith came back in the next two sets to win the match 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

In a match cut in half by Tuesday night's rain, Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif., beat fellow American Brian Teacher 7-5, 2-6, 7-5. Another U.S. winner was Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., who easily beat Jun Kamiwazumi of Japan 6-2, 6-2.

Stockton, Smith and Lutz are seeded fifth, sixth and seventh here this year.

Rick Barry would like to play for Suns

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rick Barry, one of the top forwards in the National Basketball Association, says he would like to play for the Phoenix Suns, but that does not mean he wants to be traded.

Barry, in an interview with the Tucson Citizen, said he likes the Suns' team-play concept because that is the kind of basketball that wins championships.

"If I had a team I could pick to play on, it would be Phoenix," said Barry, in Las Vegas for a celebrity tennis tournament. "The Suns need a forward who plays the way I can play. They'd like to have me and I'd like to play for them."

For now, the 6-foot-7 All-Star has one year left on a contract with the Golden State Warriors. He led the Warriors to the NBA championship two years ago.

He said Tuesday that his remarks were not intended to mean he wanted to be traded to the Suns.

He answered with an emphatic "No" when by the San Francisco Chronicle in a telephone interview whether he wanted to be traded. "Are you kidding?" he added.

Noting that construction of his new home in the Oakland area was beginning next month, Barry said, "That's all I need—a trade so I could commute."

He confirmed, however, that he was accurately quoted in his admiration for the Suns' team play. He was critical of Golden State's style several times during the past year.

Barry praised Phoenix Coach John MacLeod for making the Suns a "hard-working team with great discipline. They're a smart team."

He said injuries to the Suns' big men, including forwards Garfield Heard and Curtis Perry, last season were reasons the team did poorly.

Barry said, "One of the reasons I like Phoenix so much is their team play. Team play always overcomes individual talent in the long run."

hits, he might make a great play at third base. But if he was 0-for-3, he might let it effect his fielding and he might make an error. It's just different this year."

After an arm injury and an operation for a pinched nerve early in his career, Sutter, a fastball pitcher, didn't have his old velocity and was so depressed he asked for his release.

Then minor league pitching coach Fred Martin taught him how to throw the forkball, which he finally mastered in 1974 and 1975 at Midland.

The fork not only saved and made a career, but a lot of folks in Chicago figure it may have saved a franchise, too.

MC signs Mayfield, state's top cager

Cullen Mayfield, an all-state and All-American guard from South Oak Cliff High in Dallas, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Midland College.

Chaparrals Coach Jerry Stone announced the signing of Mayfield, a 5-9, 138-pound guard, who was named Texas Schoolboy Basketball Player of the Year by the Amarillo Globe-News.

Mayfield was the catalyst in SOC's state AAAA championship team this year, directing the offense and hitting 50 per cent of his shots while averaging 20.6 points per game.

MAYFIELD WAS named first team all-district 12-4A, All-Metro, All-Greater Dallas, all-state and all-tournament at last season's state meet. He also was picked on Willhamer's All-American high school team.

On June 10, Mayfield, the son of Mrs. Verma Mayfield of Dallas, will play for the Texas All-Stars against Oklahoma in the Faith 7 Bowl game at Shawnee, Okla.

"Cullen may not be very big, but he plays tall on the court. He's a great shooter, but an unselfish player who finds the open man," Stone said. "Besides that, he's a fine young man who will fit into our program at Midland College."

Mayfield is the second player to sign with the Chaps. He joins Kelly Newsome of Richardson. They are counted on to strengthen an MC team which compiled a 23-9 record, finished second in the Western Junior College Conference and reached the finals of the Region V tournament at Abilene in March.

Palmer qualifies with ease

By The Associated Press

Arnold Palmer didn't lift a club but qualified for his 25th consecutive U.S. Open golf tournament Tuesday, watching an enormous field at Charlotte, N.C., complete rain-delayed competition in sectional efforts to enter the prestigious tournament.

Thundershowers had cut short Monday's scheduled two rounds of play, but Palmer completed 36 holes and finished at 142 over two courses. Then came the wait to see if there would be a silver anniversary Open celebration.

"I was pretty certain that 142 would make it," said Palmer, "so there was no sweat."

He joined 39 others from the field of 129 at Charlotte in qualifying for the tournament June 16-19 at Tulsa, Okla. Competition was held at seven other sites Tuesday.

PALMER WAS accompanied in qualifying by Grier Jones, who topped Charlotte contestants with a two-round 135. Others included Joe Inman, George Archer and Bruce Devlin. Former Open champ Billy Casper failed to make the cut as did former Masters champion Charles Coody and former PGA champion Bobby Nichols.

It was the first time since 1969 that Palmer had to qualify for the Open. He did not qualify under any of the 10 categories that led to the exemption of 41 players for the upcoming event.

Lanny Wadkins withdrew from qualifying at Charlotte Monday and vowed "I'll never play in the U.S. Open again when I'm not exempt. I've won $90,000 this year, and I can't even get in the U.S. Open."

But a number of others did Tuesday at sites across the United States.

AT MEMPHIS, Jimmy Wittenberg Jr., of Memphis led 14 qualifiers. Three former Open champions competed there but only Gene Littler managed to obtain an alternate role. Orville Moody failed to qualify and Orville Moody failed to appear. Former PGA champ Lionel Hebert also failed to qualify.

Marty Fleckman, Bob Menne, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Bruce Fleisher, Gay Brewer, Fuzzy Zoeller and Rod Curl took seven of the 13 spots available in the sectional play at Memphis.

Curtis Strange of Williamsburg, Va., the former NCAA champion from Wake Forest who gained his pro playing card last weekend, tied with George Griffin III of Philadelphia as the low scorer in the qualifying segment at Washington.

MEANWHILE, RON Hoyt of Sunol, Calif., and Dr. James Rheim of Carmel, Calif., led the 36 players contesting six spots at Camarillo, Calif.

Among those who didn't make the Open there are Cesar Sanudo, Jerry Barber, Rick Rhoads and Bruce Summerhays.

Jim Wright of Scarsdale, N.Y., and Farrel Furst of Wilton, Conn., tied for the top honors at Greenwich, Conn., where 60 vied for nine spots. Other New York metropolitan area qualifiers were Bill Zibbro and Tom Ulozis.

John Melnick of St. Simons Island, Ga., and John Harris of Edina, Minn., led the six who qualified at Atlanta while pro Bob Dickson and DeWitt Weaver failed in their attempt to make it.

Canadiens' Guy LaFleur wins Hart MVP laurels

MONTREAL (AP) — Right wing Guy LaFleur of Montreal Canadiens has been named winner of the Hart Memorial Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the National Hockey League for the 1976-77 season.

The honor marked the third individual award captured by LaFleur as he helped Montreal to its 20th Stanley Cup playoff triumph. The 25-year-old native of Thurso, Que., also won the Art Ross Trophy as NHL scoring champion and the Conn Smythe Trophy as the MVP in the playoffs.

award winners announced Tuesday were Larry Robinson of Montreal, who earned the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the best defenseman; center Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings, who won the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy as the player best combining gentlemanly play and outstanding ability; and right wing Willi Plett of the Atlanta Flames, who took the Calder Memorial Trophy as Rookie of the Year.

Balloting for the awards was conducted among 54 members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association in the 18 league cities. LaFleur becomes only the third player in league history to win as many as three individual honors in a single season.

Bobby Orr, then of the Boston Bruins, captured a record four awards in 1969-70 when he took the Ross, Hart, Norris and Smythe trophies. Stan Mikita of the Chicago Black Hawks captured the Hart, Ross and Lady Byng trophies in 1966-67 and 1967-68.

The trophies pushed LaFleur's NHL award money to a record $27,500. He earned $15,000 for Montreal's Stanley Cup victory, $5,000 for the team's first-place finish in the Prince of Wales Conference, $2,000 for the Ross award, $1,500 for each of the Hart and Smith trophies, $2,000 for his first all-star team berth and $500 for helping his conference to victory in the all-star game in January.

Second in the balloting was center Bobby Clarke of the Philadelphia Flyers, the winner the two previous seasons. Los Angeles goaltender Rogatien Vachon was third. Robinson won the defensemen's award by the closest margin of any of the races. He polled 186 points to beat Borje Salming of the Toronto Maple Leafs by 29 points. Denis Potvin of New York Islanders, last year's winner, was a distant third in the Norris voting.

Dionne became the first Los Angeles player to win an individual honor despite the fact he has won the Lady Byng twice in three seasons. He was the recipient in 1974-75 while with the Detroit Red Wings. Jean Ratelle of the Boston Bruins was runner-up.

'Star Wars' breaking records across nation

By MIKE GOODKIND

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The good men wear white, the bad guys wear black and there's no sex, character development or social criticism. But "Star Wars" has managed to break theater records all over the country, and to send 20th Century Fox's fortunes rocketing.

By Monday, 12 days after its premiere, the George Lucas science fiction epic that took $9 million to make had grossed $5.2 million in 45 theaters.

The biggest moneymaking movie of all time was "Jaws," which took in $192 million. "Jaws" grossed $21 million in its first 10 days, but that was in 409 theaters.

The day before "Star Wars" opened, Fox stock was selling for $11.75 per share. When trading closed Monday, it was at $21.

"We can't see any other reason than 'Star Wars' for the way the stock has taken off," said Phillip Myers, Fox's director of corporate affairs.

The country apparently was ready for an escapist movie.

Among the good guys in the flick are two robots. See Threepio (C3PO) and Artoo-Detoo (R2D2), and a hairy creature named Chewbecca, who copilots a space cruiser.

The human hero's name is Luke Skywalker.

He's played by Mark Hamill. Skywalker finds that he stands between the villainous Galactic Empire and the destruction of freedom in the galaxy. With the help of a laser-like sword called a "light saber," he comes to the rescue.

The special effects for all this have won critical raves.

Theatergoers are "seeing something they can't possibly live as a normal human being," said Ashley Boone, marketing vice president for Fox, who is looking longingly to the end of the month when "Star Wars" goes into hundreds more theaters.

Albert Szabo, the 58-year-old manager of the Avco Cinema Center in Los Angeles, said, "I have never seen anything like this in 30 years in the business. They are filling the theater for every single performance. This isn't a snowball, it's an avalanche."

The reason, he said, is obvious.

"During the last number of years we have had a whole lot of message pictures which had a social message of some kind," he said. "The message pictures imply subtle re-education. But the public doesn't want to be re-educated. It wants sheer entertainment."

"People need heroes, he added. "They are tired of rooting for murderers and criminals."

Liberace still playing, soaring

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — When the former Walter Bunker flies through the air with the greatest of ease at the Las Vegas Hilton, he all but outdoes Peter Pan.

For when Peter Pan flew into the Darling nursery, he only broke up a household. But when the ex-Bunkerkeys, much more famous as Liberace, sails elegantly over the Hilton stage, merrily winking at his audience, he breaks up the 2,000-seat showroom.

The flying bit, a much talked about, sometime feature of Lee's performance, is a larky outgrowth not only of his showmanship and imagination but of his vigor and zest.

Lee's no longer a kid but he still brings more pizzazz to a showroom than many a striping half his age.

"I eat a well-balanced diet that's high in protein," Liberace proclaims when he's asked what magic ingredient goes into his gusto.

"Meat, fish, eggs.

"I stay away from artificially sweetened things, and I don't like canned foods. Fruits and vegetables taste better and are better for you in their natural state."

Liberace's vigorous showmanship is so much a part of him that he now wears his bedazzling public image like a skin.

The custom-built cars, the 146-pound, floor-length mink cape completely lined with Austrian rhinestones, the homes, including one in Las Vegas with a garage that's a combination ballroom-dining room — these dramatic adjuncts to his personality and life-style encompass him until they've erased all vestiges of his own natural state, though — believe it or not — he had one.

Once upon a time in the 1920s, the now gaudy and glamorous Liberace was a little boy (though even then he wasn't an ordinary one) without a candleabra to his name.

As little Wladziu Valentino Liberace, son of immigrant parents, Lee was reared in a musical family.

His father, Salvatore, played French horn with the Milwaukee Symphony. His mother played piano at home, and, by the time Wladziu was 4 years old, so did he.

At 14, he made his debut as a soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra but he wasn't concentrating entirely on the classics.

For in high school, he headed a combo called "The Mixers," and shortly after he was appearing on a limited nightclub circuit as Walter Bunkerkeys.

He finally dropped the names Bunkerkeys and Wladziu Valentino on the advice of a piano-playing family friend who'd dropped his own first names, Ignace Jan, and was known simply as Paderewski.

By this time Lee was doing very well in the world of show biz, thank you.

In 1950, he even made a movie, appearing as a honky-tonk piano player in "South Sea Sinner" starring Shelley Winters.

But it wasn't until 1952 that he really hit his stride after a television producer saw and heard him playing at San Diego's Coronado Hotel and booked him as a summer replacement for Dinah Shore.

A syndicated series, two Emmys and so much money followed that Liberace coined his famous phrase about crying all the way to the bank.

Recently Liberace was appearing nightly at the Las Vegas Hilton while rehearsing four new shows, meeting a schedule which should have exhausted even his prodigious supply of energy.

"I don't believe in health fads, nor do I take a lot of vitamins.

"I take just one vitamin preparation a day which is all-inclusive.

"But I feel strongly that sensible eating and mild exercise are important. So I jog some, I work out at a local gym about three times a week and I walk as much as possible.

"Youthfulness will always remain the thing fans want to see in their favorite performers," he holds, "so I want to look as young as possible, as long as possible."

Staying fit enough to wear his jewelry on stage is challenge enough, for Lee invariably performs loaded with baubles which he flourishes with a comment to the audience. "I'm glad you want to see them, because — let's face it — you bought 'em."

This bit of business invariably gets a big hand and a big laugh.

Rich enough to retire many times over, Lee doesn't plan to.

"Saying you want to retire is like saying you're dead," he declares.

"After all the years of struggle, what do I want to give this up for?"

"I'm just beginning to enjoy myself!"

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Alice Browne, 14, of Mission Viejo, Calif., in April became the first woman to swim the 200-yard butterfly in less than two minutes. The first man to do that was Mike Troy in 1960, swimming for Indiana University. That year Troy went on to win a gold medal in the Rome Olympics.

Davis gives senior recital

Cecile Davis, a 1977 honor graduate of Midland High School, presented her senior piano recital earlier this week in the home of her teacher, Mrs. E. F. Motter.

Miss Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cody Davis, has been a keyboard student of Mrs. Motter for the last nine years. At MHS, she was a member of the National Honor Society and the National Forensic League, and earned three academic letters and four letters in drama. She is active in her church, First Christian Church, and has been a part-time employee of the Midland County Public Library for two years. She is the recipient of an academic scholarship from Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

Another recent piano recital in the city presented a group of students of Mrs. Her-

Performing on the program were Bradley Dummer, Ross Lovelace, Carey Cohn, Shea Wood, Deana Baker, Lizabeth Libby, Lori Keese, Charlotte Hines, Janes Ferguson, Pamela Emerson, Leslie Fort, Jean White and Kimberly Culvahouse.

DETROIT (AP) — The city which produces more horsepower than any other community in the world is now looking for more horsepower to beef up its Police Department. The department's Mounted Section is asking public-minded citizens to donate horses, preferably chestnuts or bays for uniformity.

"We also prefer geldings," says Lt. Patrick Muscat, "but since we're an equal opportunity employer, we'll take mares too."

Charlie labels his songs 'American'

Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Some folks reckon Charlie

Pride, a black man who admits he sounds as much like a good ole boy as your resident redneck, might be better to change his tune.

Or his color.

"All the time," he says, "in a mellow baritone coated with a helping of Mississippi molasses, "people say, 'You look like us and sound like them.'"

"Or, 'You sound like us and look like them.'"

"I made up my mind a long time ago that what I want to be is just Charlie Pride, the man.

And if you're going to throw colorful labels around, good ole red, white and blue will do.

songs," says Charlie. "People label it country western or whatever. I call it American music."

Pride, in the last decade, has recorded 11 gold albums and one gold single (not counting a gold mine of hits in Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Tasmania).

"You know," he said, "a lot of people come up to me and say they really like my voice but that they've never heard of me before."

"I think that's because a lot of radio stations only play certain types of music. You hear a lot of Tony Bennett and Frank Sinatra, and I feel I can sing as well as they do but unless people listen to a country-western station they won't hear me."

Pride says he sings what is classified as gospel, blues and rock 'n' roll, in addition to his bread-and-molasses country western.

Never, though, has he ventured into the "soul" role.

"I've gotta be Charlie Pride, an individual," he says. "Not what people feel I should be because of the way I look."

"When I grew up I listened to the Grand Ol' Opry. And I've been listenin' for some 30 years."

Pride grew up around the cotton fields of Sledge, Miss., population "either 514 or 516."

He had a baseball bat in one hand and a guitar ("Bought it at Sears, Roebuck when I was 14") in the other.

When the hits stopped bouncing off the bat with the consistency he had hoped for ("I wanted to break every major league record in the books"), he devoted full time to pickin' and singin'.

Now the hits are more plentiful than he ever dreamed.

Country music organizations have consistently honored him as artist, entertainer and vocalist of the year.

But, he cautions, "There's no such thing as havin' it made."

"I've just reached a certain plateau, and I have to start another one. If I could reach everybody on the planet with my music, be able to entertain and please 'em all — well, that would be shootin' for somethin' pretty good."

Pride figures he has outlasted the novelty of being a black country-western singer.

"When I started," he said, "they'd say I was the first colored country singer. Then it was the first Negro country singer."

"And finally, the first black country singer."

"I say fine to each one of the three. Unto myself, I'm Charlie Pride the man, an American."

"I just happen to have a permanent tan."

As for being black, Pride makes no special claims.

"I'm not black, according to my own self," he says. "My daddy told me a long time ago I was Caucasian, Indian and African."

Pride claims to have a wide — and underrated — black following.

Reggie Smith is trouble, ask Giants, Mets, Phils

By CHARLES MAHER
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Ask around the league and they'll tell you Reggie Smith is a troublemaker. For instance, he has made trouble for the Mets, the Phillies, the Giants. But none so far for the team some figured he'd really hurt: the Dodgers.

"I don't know where he got that reputation," said Tom Lasorda. "The only thing I know is when I became manager I told him I needed him and he put his arm around me and told me he would never let me down. Believe me, there have been times when his leg was bothering him and he went out and played anyway. When he said he wouldn't let me down, he meant it. I don't care what anybody else says about Reggie Smith. I think he's one of the nicest guys I ever met."

Yet back in Boston, where he played seven seasons, some said he loafed about half the time. And half a loafer, they decided, was worse than none. So, in 1974, Reggie moved on to the Cardinals. But he didn't exactly strike management as the new Spirit of St. Louis, so about the middle of last season he was traded again, this time back to home country.

Smith was born in Shreveport, La., but grew up in Los Angeles. He signed with the Minnesota Twins out of high school but was drafted from their minor league organization in 1963 by the Red Sox. He had a good record at Boston, hitting over 300 three times, but not so good on average.

"I SUPPOSE I had the reputation of a brooder," he said, "a guy who was sulking and generally not wanting to play."

"What gave rise to that impression?" he was asked.

"I had a temper and at times it would get out of control. People in baseball felt that was the real Reggie Smith. They didn't think of Reggie Smith possibly just being a young adult, maturing. I wanted to fight back and I fought back with words."

Smith said he had many critics, the most demanding of whom was himself.

"If I made a mistake no one was more upset than I was. But I reached the point where I didn't want people constantly picking at things I did wrong. Boston was the last team to sign black players and I was going to be their savior, their face-saver, because I had all the raw ability in the world. I was expected to be their Willie Mays or Hank Aaron or Frank Robinson or (Roberto) Clemente. But I was going to have my own identity. I wanted to be Reggie Smith."

Others wanted him to be Reggie Smith, too, but a new and improved Reggie Smith.

"I didn't think it was fair for them to say, 'You're capable of doing this but you're not playing up to your abilities.' How could they say that? I didn't know what I was capable of doing and I was going to be the one to do it. Maybe subconsciously I was rebelling. I was determined to be myself."

"Who was saying these things?"

"THE MEDIA people. I think they were somewhat irresponsible in their writing. They ought to be careful. They had people convinced I should have been doing better than I was. And maybe I should have. But how could they know?"

"The crowds got on you?"

"Sure. And adding fuel to the fire. Bill Russell (the former Celtic center) made a statement about racism in Boston. Being a somewhat prominent figure in Boston, I was asked my reaction. I think I would have been remiss if I failed to tell the truth. So I said yes, there was racism in Boston, as there is anywhere else."

"What exactly did Russell say?"

"He said Boston was one of the most racist cities in the U.S. and I did not find it difficult to believe him. I challenge any of them to walk the streets and listen. Or just get in a cab. You'll hear an Italian cab driver talking about the Jews and the Irish and a Jewish cab driver talking about the Irish and the Italians and the blacks talking about everybody. You're going to tell me there isn't racism there? I mean, it was to the point where it was blatant. Talk about de facto segregation. I find it more there than any place in the South. But they were looking the other way. You know, there's one thing about burying your head in the sand. You expose the largest part of your body."

MOVING ALONG to St. Louis, Smith hit over 300 in 1974 and again in 1975. But he was in klutzville, hitting 218, when the Cards traded him to L.A. last June. The loafing stories reappeared before the trade. Smith said the trouble was not in his head but his left shoulder. He hit 280 after joining the Dodgers and had postseason surgery for repair of a rotor cuff that acts as a shoulder socket.

"What's it like playing in the area where you grew up?"

"For some it could add a tremendous amount of pressure. The hope of succeeding in your home town. Fortunately, I came back in the prime of my career. My personality and approach to the game were already set. I didn't have to prove anything because my record speaks for me. The hometown people can see me at my best instead of seeing a raw Reggie Smith developing."

"So you're comfortable here?"

"More than any other place I've played."

"What happens when a club gets going the way the Dodgers did this year? Does some kind of chemistry come into play?"

"You can have the talent — like the Yankees have an abundance of talent — but that alone doesn't make you a good ballclub. Fortunately, we have individuals here that are closely related as far as personalities and aggressiveness are concerned."

"The Yanks have another Reggie and they're having a personality war."

"THAT'S WHEN other things get in the way of ability," Smith said.

baseball Pete Rose, "but not more explosive." Seaver, who allowed only five hits and walked but one batter, got all the support he needed from Lee Mazzilli's three runs batted in as the revitalized Mets won their seventh game in eight starts under new Manager Joe Torre.

Cesar Geronimo got three of the Reds' hits and was the only Cincinnati player to get past second base against Seaver, who hurled his third shutout of the season and 42nd of his career. Along with his fine pitching, Seaver also contributed two RBI.

New York scored four runs off Reds starter Pat Zachry in the fourth inning. Mazzilli had a two-run single in the rally, a run scored on an error and Seaver delivered a sacrifice fly.

Phillies 9, Astros 8

Greg Luzinski's three-run homer in the sixth inning rallied Philadelphia over Houston. The Phillies trailed 7-4 starting the sixth, but reliever Joe Niekro walked two batters in a row with one out. An error by shortstop Julio Gonzalez on a line drive by Garry Maddox loaded the bases and Ted Sizemore's single drove in two runs and kayoed Niekro.

Right-hander Gene Pentz replaced Niekro and got Mike Schmidt on a fly ball, but Luzinski hit his 10th homer of the season over the left field fence and a 9-7 Philadelphia lead.

Giants 7, Pirates 6
Bill Madlock and Darrell Evans each drove in three runs, helping San Francisco take a six-run lead and hold off Pittsburgh. San Francisco starter Jim Barr held a 7-1 lead on a two-hitter through six innings before the Pirates chased him with five runs in the seventh.

The Giants had scored three first-inning runs off Pirates starter Larry Demery. Madlock singled home one of the runs and Evans added a sacrifice fly. Evans also doubled home a run in the third and singled in a run in the sixth. Madlock had a two-run single in the fourth.

Padres 9, Cardinals 5
Dave Winfield pounded a two-run homer in the first inning and a run-scoring single during a four-run fifth that powered San Diego over St. Louis.

Rookie left-hander Bob Ovwchinko entered the game in the second inning for San Diego and spaced eight St. Louis hits through 4 2-3 innings for his first major league victory.

FEA, industry disagree on effects of proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — Government and industry officials agree that inflation will push utility bills higher in the next few years. But they disagree on what additional effect President Carter's energy program may have.

Utilities should save because they will be paying lower fuel costs after they convert to coal, Hanfling said. He also says they should realize some long-range savings on construction costs if the President's program is successful in lowering over-all energy consumption and reducing the number of expensive reserve generators needed to meet peak demand periods.

Agency says proposals need to be redesigned

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy plan will fall substantially short of its goals and should be redesigned, the congressional auditing agency said today.

Specifically, the GAO said that while Carter wants to hold the rise in energy demand to 2 per cent a year, the plan would result in a 2.2 per cent annual increase.

In a new analysis, the General Accounting Office said that despite repeated declarations of the need for saving energy, Carter is backing a plan that will cut energy demand by insignificant amounts.

Questioning other Carter goals set for 1985, the GAO said: —Oil imports will fall to 7 million barrels, not 6 million as forecast.

—Insulation will be installed in 60 per cent of buildings, not 90 per cent as predicted.

—There will be solar energy devices installed in 1.3 million homes, not 2.5 million.

Carter has set a goal of reducing gasoline consumption by 10 per cent.

The GAO analyzed the Carter energy package at the request of Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee.
