Amin reportedly back in Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Radio Uganda said today President Idi Amin has returned to Uganda after a trip that apparently took him nowhere near London and the Commonwealth summit, where the Ugandan dictator earlier was reported to have secretly arrived.

The radio announced Amin's safe return after holding talks with unnamed "top revolutionary military officers" from Tanzania and Zambia on the spot where the borders of Uganda, Tanzania and Rwanda join.

The broadcast made no mention of earlier reports by the governmentcontrolled radio that the burly dictator was in Britain.

Radio Uganda reported Tuesday that he had arrived in London demanding "to be carried shoulderhigh by the British for several miles' as "part of the field marshal's celebrations of the British queen's siver jubilee.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the government, which has told Amin he is not welcome because of allegations of atrocities in his country, had no word on Amin's arrival.

Shooting case to go to jury

Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon said Wednesday he will present Tuesday night's shooting case, in which a Midland man was killed, to the next Midland County Grand Jury for further investigation.

Gideon said the case would be routinely presented to the grand jury as are all violent deaths that involve a possible felony charge.

Killed in the late Tuesday fray was Edwin Jewel England, 29, whose most recent address was listed as the West Wind Motel

Loy Blanscett, 52, of the 900 block of West Tennessee and a customer at the bar, suffered gunshot wounds to the chest and hand. He was listed in serious condition early today at

Midland Memorial Hospital. The incident reportedly began as a barroom argument between Edwin England and his two brothers. Travis and Rodney. Edwin reportedly pulled a pistol and started firing at the other

Rodney suffered a gunshot wound to the arm and fled the scene. He still has not been located, police said.

Edwin and Travis then took their fight to the motel's parking lot in the 3000 block of West Wall Avenue where they exchanged gunfire. It was not known where Travis obtained his gun, police said. Edwin was killed when police arrived and ordered the two men to drop their guns. Travis complied with the order, but Edwin reportedly fired at the officers. A shot from one of the officers then felled Edwin, police whereabouts, Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley today blasted the Ugandan dictator as "a cause of shame for all mankind.

In a luncheon speech to the Royal Commonwealth Society, Manley, a vehement supporter of Third World causes, accused fellow Third World leaders of a double standard for condemning "racist tyranny" in white-ruled southern Africa while ignoring Amin.

'We of the Third World rightfully unite to fight racist tyranny in southern Africa and to denounce it in its various forms," Manley said. "We should not hesitate, therefore, to denounce tyranny, whether of the tribal, military or Fascist kind, when it is found in our own ranks.

President Dawda Jawara of Gambia in West Africa admitted there is "a good deal of embarrassment" among Africans over Amin, and he was certain the subject of Uganda would be raised at the conference.

Radio Uganda reported Tuesday that Amin had left for London despite word from Prime Minister James Callaghan and other British leaders that he was not wanted at the Commonwealth meeting or the simultaneous celebrations of Queen Elizabeth's 25 years on the throne.

Later Tuesday, the Ugandan radio said Amin had stopped in an Arab country, which was assumed to be

Gas-guzzler tax survives, rebate dies

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's proposed tax on gas-guzzling autos survived a series of tests in the House Ways and Means Committee today, but his planned rebates for motorists who buy fuel-efficient cars was easily rejected.

By a 23-13 vote, the committee refused to strike the gas-guzzler tax from the big energy tax bill the panel is writing. But Carter's own plan for a gas-guzzler tax lost 24-13 to a substitute offered by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill

The Rostenkowski proposal is a sharply watered-down version of Carter's. It delays the start of the tax until 1979 and even then would apply only to cars that get less than 15 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The Carter plan would have taken effect with 1978 models and applied to all those whose efficiency is less than 18 miles per gallon.

The proposal to pay purchasers of fuel-efficient cars a rebate of up to $500 was defeated 31-5. Members of the committee viewed the rebate scheme as unworkable because a large portion of the money would be paid to buyers of foreign

After knocking down the rebate, the committee began considering a new staff plan that would replace Carter's proposed tax on gas-guzzling cars. Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the committee, endorsed the staff's proposed compromise, but the Carter administration had no immediate response to it.

The compromise would delay the new tax until the start of the 1979 model year and even then the mileage standards required of new cars would be far below those proposed by Carter.

For example, Carter suggested that 1978 cars be required to get at least 18 miles to the gallon or purchasers would face a tax on less efficient models. The compromise would postpone the standards for a full year.

But in 1979, instead of the 19-mileper-gallon standard suggested by Carter, no car would face the new tax unless it got less than 15 miles per gallon. The tax then would be between $339 and $553.

In 1985, no tax would be imposed except on models getting less than 23.5 miles per gallon. Carter wanted the tax on all models with less than 27.5 miles per gallon. But instead of Carter's proposed $2,488 tax on the least efficient models, the compromise would impose a tax of $3,856.

Runway motorcyclists pose danger

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

The small single-engine airplane makes its approach for landing. It gets lower and lower as it approaches

As the wheels touch down, a youth on a motorcycle darts out across the

A scene from a television show or movie? Not quite, but a possibility at Midland's Air Park.

According to Jim Haines, flight instructor and safety consultant at the air park, youths are using the runway as a place to ride their motorcycles, causing hazards for themselves and aircraft using the runway. "The runways seem to be an attraction for the local Evel Knievels and their motorbikes," Haines said. Because of the hot weather. Haines said, the problem is not as great as it once was. A few weeks ago, there were motorcycles sighted on the runway at least once a day, he added. "One time there were three motorcycles riding down the middle of the runway while some traffic was waiting to take off," Haines said.

'The greatest danger, he said, is when an inexperienced pilot faces a situation when a motorcycle darts in front of him. "There is no telling what that pilot will do to avoid a crash. The experienced pilot is prepared for the unexpected while the inexperienced is

Haines recalled a time when a small jet was attempting a landing at the airport.

A youth was watching the plane from what seemed to be a safe distance even though he was still on a runway, Haines said.

However, because the pilot had to watch the motorcyclist and attempt to land at the same time, the landing was very rough for the experienced

Haines said he has also heard of instances in which youths have thrown rocks and shot BB guns at airplanes as they landed

Haines said airport officials are trying to get a fence for the airport, but the vote on that by the Midland City Council will not come until the

Meanwhile, the police and sheriff's deputies are virtually powerless in trying to keep the youths away from the airport.

"The law can't do anything unless we get identification or a license plate number." he said

Haines said even then he did not know what law officials could do with the youths except charge them for trespassing

The Federal Aviation Administration has no jurisdiction over the motorcyclists, Haines said, because no federal laws are being

"But if those kids are caught by the FAA when they are throwing rocks or shooting at the airplanes, then they would have no recourse. It is a violation of federal law to interfere with a flight crew or shoot at an airplane," he added.

Haines said the best solution to the problems is for parents to keep their children away from the runway area. "The kids are safety minded because they wear helmets when riding. They are just unaware of the dangers involved," he said. But the helmets can be a hazard. Haines said, because the motorcyclist cannot hear a plane approaching.

Also, the parents may not realize they would be liable if their children were caught throwing rocks or shooting at airplanes, he said. Haines said he has talked to an FAA specialist in Lubbock, but there is nothing he can do except talk to the Midland City Council to alert them to the dangers. Another area of concern for Haines and the airport is that the airport could be liable if an accident did Haines said that a plane landed on a youth and killed him at an airport in

The parents sued the airport, air traffic controller and the plane's pilot claiming they were negligient. Haines

"The parents claimed negligence because the airport officials knew of the problem of youths playing on the runways and did not take measures.' he said

A minor legal technicality prevented the court from awarding damages to the family, Haines said. "Pilots know that they could be held liable in such an event and they will tend to stay away from airports with this type of problem," he said.

Also, Haines said anti-airport groups in the city may use the motorcycle problem as a case for shutting the airport down.

Because of an agreement with the federal government, the airport probably would not be shut down unless an equal facility is built somewhere else, which would be a multi-million dellar project. Haines

However, the group could sharply curtail the air port's operation, which would harm the city's business economy by revenue loss from fuel sales, Haine's said.

Assessed property valuations to be sent

By JIM STEINBERG

Sometime within the next 10 days. Midland residents can expect to receive notification by mail of their assessed property valuation for 1977.

And they are almost sure to find it has increased. But whether or not there will be an increase in taxes can't be so easily determined.

At a press conference today Mayor

Ernest Angelo Jr. reaffirmed previous statements that the city council is unofficially committed to lowering the tax rate from its present $1.14 level to a figure that will generate the same total income as was obtained in 1976 from the properties on the 1976 tax roll.

'The calculated tax rate to accomplish this goal is $0.672. The council's commitment is unofficial because the actual tax rate will not be set until the budget has been studied and adopted, a process that will begin in July and be completed in September. However, there is no doubt in my mind that the council will lower the tax rate to the calculated figure." Angelo said.

The assessed valuation for residential and commercial property in Midland is $677,316,470, as compared to $399,235,070 for 1976, representing an increase of 69 per cent. The 1977 figure does not include the assessed value of new construction appearing on the rolls for the first time in 1977. This amounts to $21,683,530. The last citywide tax evaluation was done in 1972, at a time when the Midland economy was in a depressed situation, Angelo said, giving a reason for the large increase in property value. Inflation was cited as another factor: in the increase.

Tax assessor Virgit Jones estirnated that 50 per cent of Midland tax'payers will experience decrease or pay the same amount in taxes as last year, and the other 50 per cent will pay more.

It was pointed out at the press conference that although the Midland Independent School District and Midland College share a common agency for tax assessment with the city, they set their own rates independently. New rates have not been Angelo said that property owners having questions about a valuation should contact the tax office. If they are not satisfied with the answer they o'otain, they should attend the Board of Equalization meeting at the time and place indicated on their card. As an additional appeal, taxpayers can take their case before city council. And as a final matter, it can be appealed to district court. .

The seven-member City of Midland Swim Team passed the 200-mile mark at about 12:15 p.m. today in their attempt to set a world record in the 300-mile swim, according to Coach Doug Ingram is confident the team can set the record.

"The time (of the record) isn't that impressive," Ingram said. The main obstacle in setting the record is the endurance factor involved, Ingram said. "All we have to do is hold up

Saturday," he said. Ingram expects the team to complete the 300-mile objective "sometime early Saturday, before 6 a.m." If the team should complete the distance according to Ingram's schedule, they will have beaten the record by well over 24 hours.

The seven who are attempting to set the 300-mile record are Brad Swendig, Clay Spears, Sid Glenn, Curt Buthman, Phil Pelligrino, Jeff Lambeth and Jay Quintana. These seven are also attempting to set the record for the longest continuous time swum by a relay team.

The club set out at noon Monday to break four world records in swimming, as recognized by the "Guinness Book of World Records." They have already set two records. At noon Tuesday, the club set the record for the longest distance swum by a seven member relay team in 24 hours.

The distance was 73 miles, 1,050 yards, which beat the record by approximately 800 yards.

The club also set a world record Wednesday in the 100-mile swim. The group swam the distance in 25 hours, 39 min., 53 sec. This time bettered the old record by 15 min., 7 sec.

Twenty members of the club participated in the 100-mile swim. Participating in the event in addition to the seven named earlier, were Lori Shook, Carrie Mayes, Susan Swendig, Wondy Williams, Gretchen Koch. Jimmie O'Neill, Mike Insber, Carey Karrens, Paul Fremeil, Mike Solari, Mark Solari, Robin Franke and Emily Murrah.

The seven attempting the 300-mile record are doing so in conjunction with their attempt to swim a longer time in the water than any relay team ever has.

Water use shows rise

City and industrial water use in the Colorado River Municipal Water District is beginning to rise due to the annual dry season in the area.

Cities, which have had demands dulled earlier in the year by cold and damp weather, posted about a 2 per cent gain in May, while oil companies and industries were up 19 per cent in their demands.

As a result of the May deliveries of 1,888,275,000 gallons, up 6.98 per cent over May 1976, the year's total stood at 7,545,872,000 gallons, a gain of 2.07 per cent. This was the first time this year that the total has exceeded that of the corresponding time last year.

During May, cities used 1,273,000,000 gallons, up 25 million gallons or 1.98 per cent. The oil companies and industries used 614 million gallons or 19.05 per cent.

Deliveries to cities included these figures:

Odessa 511,756,000 gallons, up 1.96 per cent; Big Spring 266,076,000, up 4.28 per cent; Snyder 82,437,000, up 2.99 per cent; Midland 403,850,000, up 2.57 per cent; Stanton 9,482,000, down 9.80 per cent. Neither San Angelo nor Robert Lee required any water from the district in May.

of John F. Kennedy.

In proclaiming the Soviet Union "the freest of all countries," Castro said 20 million Russians sacrificed themselves in defense of their system during World War II. He wondered whether America would survive a similar test.

At one point in the interview, Miss Walters called Castro "almost naive" for suggesting that China considers itself a good ally of the United States. Castro backed off somewhat by conceding that the two countries do have "some tactical differences."

Rosalynn talks with missionaries

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Two American missionaries who said they were beaten in a Brazilian jail told their story to Rosalynn Carter, and the First Lady expressed her sympathy and promised to tell her husband about it.

Father Lawrence Rosebaugh, 42, a Roman Catholic, and Thomas Capuano, 24, a Mennonite from Altamount, N.Y., told Mrs. Carter they were arrested last month while distributing food to the poor.

They said they were stripped naked, thrown into a crowded cell and not allowed to contact the U.S. Consulate for three days, during which time they were kicked and knocked around by prison trustees. They said they were released on the fourth day after being allowed to call the con-

Bryant asked to bring fight to San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) -Anita Byrant has been invited to bring her controversial antigay campaign to San Antonio, but a Baptist preacher who issued the invitation says he's fighting more than just gay rights.

"It's a battle of morality vs. immorality," the Rev. Joe West said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Jim Eggeling, a spokesman for San Antonio's homosexual community, said he doesn't know why an antigay rights rally is planned in San Antonio since the city has no homosexual rights ordinance.

The Dade County, Fla., defeat of a gay rights ordinance on Tuesday was a solid victory, the Rev. West said, and may signal the beginning of the "greatest moral revival of our time." He said voters apparently saw through the gays' "fairy tales" about the ordinance.

The minister said he will meet with Miss Bryant in Houston on June 16 when she performs at the state bar association's convention

Eggeling used to be a schoolteacher, but was fired after telling administrators he was a homosexual.

When a gay spokesman addressed the city council on June 2, the appearance attracted a 'we hate gays" crowd. Eggeling

The city's homosexual community held a rally and raised $2,000 for the Dade County gay movement. A counter-rally at the Alamo attracted persons opposed to the Dade County gay rights ordinance.

"Our major push now is to show the city council and the county commissioners that we have political clout. It may not be enough to swing a vote, but we can eliminate people who are actively hostile toward gays," he Eggeling said no one knows what percentage of San Antonio voters are gay, but he they represent a "significant sector. While the Rev. West views the San Antonio struggle as one against immorality. Eggeling calls it a battle between civil libertarians and bigots.

And the ex-schoolteacher views the Florida election as a victory. 'The national averages say that one out of ten people are gay The vote was two to one against the ordinance. That means it was reduced by a factor of five from the national averages," he said.

Five listed as Kelley successors

By JACK NELSON The Los Angeeles Times

WASHINGTON - John Van de Kamp, district attorney of Los Angeles County, and William Lucas, a black ex-FBI agent who is sheriff of Wayne County (Detroit), Mich., are among five persons a presidential committee will recommend for possible appointment as the next FBI director, The Los Angeles Times learned Wednesday.

The committee will submit its recommendations to President Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell Thursday

Van de Kamp and Lucas are among some 50 candidates for the post who have been interviewed by the ninemember committee since it held its first meeting at the White House on Feb. 22. Altogether, the committee considered some 235 persons.

Carter has said he expects to select FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley's successor from the committee's list of recommendations, but that in the "almost inconceivable" event that he rejects all five he will ask the committee to submit additional names.

The Times learned from selection committee sources that Van de Kamp and Lucas were on the list.

The committee reportedly decided on its final list several days ago. But it was delayed in making its official recommendation by the absence of one of its members, Frederick A.O. Schwartz, a New York attorney who was visiting in Israel.

Schwartz was unavailable for comment. Four other committee members contacted by The Times would neither confirm nor deny that Van de Kamp and Lucas were on the list.

"My only comment is no comment," said Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley. "The President has to release these names. We have narrowed it down to five names.

Washington attorney Charles Morgan Dr., Du Page County, Ill.,

Board member Mary Wall, and Massachusetts state Sen. Joseph F. Fimilty all said they could not disclose the recommendations.

Morgan and Mrs. Wall both said they were pleased with the final list and believed the public would generally find the names acceptable.

"It's a broad-based list of people some with FBI experience and some with experience in other areas of criminal justice," Mrs. Wall said. Van de Kamp, 41, member of a prominent Los Angeles food products family, was appointed district attorney on Oct. 9, 1975 by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. The appointment followed weeks of debate and searching for a successor to Joseph Busch, who had died three months earlier.

Van de Kamp was elected to a fouryear term as district attorney last year with a solid win over Vincent Bugliosi, prosecutor in the Charles Manson murder case.

Ethics Committee heats up on South Korean bribe issue

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The House ethics committee moved Wednesday to seek testimony and documents from U.S. intelligence agencies and officials for the committee's widening investigation of congressmen who took cash gifts from the South Korean government.

Among the actions taken by the ethics committee in busy public and secret sessions Wednesday were:

-Authorization of subpoenas for four government officials, including former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissigner's top aide, who might have had access to secret National Security

-Discussion of a tentative agreement for obtaining copies of secret Central Intelligence Agency documents, which would give President Carter a veto over making any such information public.

-Approval of a questionnaire to be sent to all current and former members of the House who have served since 1970 — more than 700 in all-asking them to list any cash or favors they received from five South Koreans.

In a related matter, a House international relations subcommittee investigating broader foreign policy questions about U.S.-South Korea relations has scheduled a public hearing for June 22 to take sworn testimony from Kim Hyung Wook, a former director of the Korean CIA.

Kim has been talking to the subcommittee secretly for more than a year, but during the past week has made a series of public statements about his knowledge of the South Korean influence-buying campaign on Capitol Hill.

Members of the ethics committee and its staff declined to comment on the subpoenas authorized behind closed doors later Wednesday. But the committee's apparent aim is to question the four government officials about CIA reports from Seoul and NSA intercepts of South Korean embassy cable traffic, which might name members who took improper

The four officials, whose testimony will be sought, The Washington Post has learned, are Lawrence S. Eagleburger, Brent Scowcroft, and Robert G. Hyland, all members of the National Security Council staff during the Nixon and Ford administrations, and Juanity M. Moody, former chief intelligence officer at NSA, the supersecret agency that monitors international communications.

Pianist to lose clothes

LUBBOCK - Internationallyknown pianist Roger Williams, who will appear as guest artist with the Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchest in season-opening concerts next fall. will leave a tangible token of an even more immediate visit to West Texas.

Williams, widely-known as "Mr. Piano," comes to Lubbock this week to perform with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra in a Friday night summer pops concert in Memorial Civic Center here.

After the event, Williams will donate the elaborate brocade suit he will wear for the concert to The Museum of Texas Tech University.

The saga of a concert costume began two years ago when Betty J. Mills, curator of the historic fashions and textiles collections at the museum, saw Williams perform on TV with a leading orchestra. She wrote to the artist, complimenting his performance and adding a request: As I observed your performance, it occurred to me that your formal suit. would be a significant addition to our Collection of Historic Fashions. It is a beautiful suit; is there a possibility that you might consider placing it in our museum when you have finished your season of wearing it?'

In a hand-written response Williams noted that it was "a brandnew suit, but when I'm through wearing it, it's yours!'

That was in August 1975. Last week Williams sent another note to Mrs. Mills: "Will be playing with the Lubbock Symphony June 10. If you wish, I will bring along the brocade

Mrs. Mills response was immediate and affirmative. Indeed the suit was still wanted as a valuable addition to the historic fashions collection, a collection not only used for exhibition but for study by students of textiles and clothing at Texas Tech.

The pianist, who has several dozen gold records to his credit, has said that he will wear the pink brocade suit for the Lubbock preformance and then give the outfit to the museum.

ENTERTAINMENT

Friday's concert, featuring popular music and light classics, will be for the general public as well as Lubbock Symphony patrons and subscribers. Box supper tickets and table reservations are available through the symphony office, 806-762-0747. General admission tickets, ranging from $1 to $4, also may be obtained from that office. Subject to availability, general admissions may be purchased at the Civic Center box office Friday evening. Supper will be served beginning at 7 p.m., and the concert itself will start at 8:30

Cities find ways to save cash on trash

By LEE MITGANG AP Urban Affairs Writer

Frank Williams, director of Pittsburgh's Department of Environmental Services, said that by 1975, "we costed out the whole thing and we figured the city could take the North Side over at a savings of

There is no clear-cut trend favoring either private or municipal collection. But Savas's study finds that increasingly cities are willing to change, and the changes have been about equally divided between those that switch to private pickup and municipal pickup.

Currently an average of one city out of 80 makes a switch one way or another each year. Savas said in a recent interview.

His study of 2,060 U.S. cities found that among cities with populations of 250,000 to 750,000, 73 per cent use municipal garbage pickup for part or all of the city, and the proportion decreases rapidly to 23 per cent for cities with populations of 2,500 to

The study, which didn't include cities with populations over 750,000, also found nearly three-quarters of Southern cities favoring municipal collection, but only about 19 per cent of Northeastern cities using public garbage workers.

Most of the nation's largest cities use municipal garbagemen, usually because of longstanding and hard-tochange arrangements with unions. San Frangisco, Portland, Ore., Boston and Indianapolis are the largest cities that use private contractors for part or all of their garbage collection.

Savas's study, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, found that among 315 cities, the mean annual cost per household for garbage pickup done by city employes is $32.08, compared with $27.82 for private hauling. On the other hand. municipal collection tended to provide more service than contract firms, such as more frequent garbage collection and more backyard ser-

Some cities are beginning to find that their own workers can collect garbage cheaper and more efficiently than private refuse companies.

Pittsburgh and Richmond, Va. are saving hundreds of thousands of dollars a year by doing away with private contract garbage service and letting city employes do the job.

Minneapolis and Oklahoma City have divided their cities into sectors. some serviced by private refuse firms and the rest by city sanitationmen. The results so far have been greater productivity from both public and private workers competing against each other, and lower costs to tax-

For years the conventional wisdom has been that garbage collection chores could be handled by private companies at savings to a city.

But in Minneapolis, 50,000 homes are served by city garbage workers and 73,000 by private contractors paid by the city. Clayton Sorenson, Director of Public Works, says that after five years, city costs have dropped steadily while the amount of refuse collected has tripled.

"When we began the arrangement, the private contract haulers were doing the job cheaper than our city workers. But we laid out route assignments for the city workers and told them they could go home anytime they were finished, even if it was less than an eight-hour day.

"Productivity increased." Sorenson says "We disposed of the stereotype that public workers aren't human beings, that they can't be efficient.

The competitive atmosphere between public and private workers in Minneapolis has worked so well that a year ago city employes were found to be doing their job slightly cheaper than private contractors. As a result, the private firms lowered their rates to keep up with the cost-efficiency of the city garbage collectors. It is this kind of side-by-side competition that some feel is the ideal arrangement

"It's exactly what we're hoping for," says Pat Lay, director of Public Service in Oklahoma City, which implemented a similar mix of public and private garbage pickup on May 2.

The various ways that cities can best dispose of trash were discussed in a study published last winter by Prof. E. S. Savas of Columbia University.

Savas says the most efficient way to handle garbage in larger cities is to divide it into districts of roughly 50,000 persons. The city should then contract out some of them to private firms. The city's own workers pick up the rest. If handled properly, the resulting competition can do wonders keeping private service costs low, while increasing public worker productivity

In Pittsburgh, the North Side district with about 80,000 persons was being served by Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc., the nation's largest private refuse collector.

The Constitution prohibits Catholic priests or the clergy of other religions from voting or associating with political activities. Mexico is a predominantly Catholic country.

Martinez Verdugo said the law makes priests "citizens of exception" without full rights. The Election Commission has been instructed by President Jose Lopez Portillo to recommend electoral law changes which would allow minority political organizations to participate openly in national politics

'Feet, hands, hat ...

United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young continues to sound off at home and abroad in an irresponsible manner, embarrassing to the administration and to the nation.

One wonders how much longer President Carter will put up with the black ambassador ... or how long it will be before public opinion will demand his resignation. President Carter surely must be in accord with some of Young's observations particularly in foreign affairs or else he would have dismissed the ambassador some time ago. This is frightening in itself.

Young's latest trouble stems from his characterization of former Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford as racists.

Republican National Chairman Bill Brock said Young's remark about Nixon and Ford "points up the fact that he is a diplomatic incompetent who, should be fired.'

We certainly will go along with Mr. Brock in his statement.

The President, believe-it-or-not. disagreed with Young in his characterization of the two former presidents, but he (Carter) rejected a Republican demand that Young apologize or be fired.

We would think that an apology certainly should be in order in this particular instance.

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said he doesn't think the President feels that Nixon and Ford are racists, "certainly not in the sense he would use the term." Powell said further he believed Young, a onetime civil rights activist, was using racist in "the broader sense of the term."

But what really counts is how the general public interprets the Young termed Nixon and Ford "racist" in a Playboy magazine article interview. This prompted the Republican call for an apology or dismissal.

The ambassador Tuesday further tempered his "racist" remarks by saying his criticism of Carter's two predecessors also applied to Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. He added that they were not in-

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. hit the nail on the head with his comment that Young is putting "both feet, both hands and his hat" in his mouth and should never have been appointed ambassador to the United Nations.

Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., told Young Tuesday that he considered the reference to Ford "an insult to a very great man." He, too, said the comment reference was deserving of an apology

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis. chairman of the House International Affairs Committee, also expressed concern about the reference to President Ford.

It also is noted that Young created a stir recently when he described Russians and Swedes as racists.

Meanwhile, a Tass commentator in Moscow said nobody in the United States takes Young very seriously. The commentator went on to say that this is the reason Young is allowed "innocent pranks." The Soviet commentator, however, said that some of Young's remarks are so outrageous that they call for some rejoinder

And so the criticism of Ambassador Andrew Young continues to mount at home and abroad. Much of the criticism certainly is justified. He got off on the wrong foot from the very beginning and he has made no effort whatsoever to alter a bad

He has transformed tiny Cuba into a world power, of course, with a $3.8 million daily subsidy from the Soviet Union Without Soviet succor, he would have to close down his operation.

The establishment of diplomatic ties between Havana and Washington will also have its unseen side. With the exchange of diplomats will also come an exchange of spies.

Last year, we identified the Cuban spy chief in the United States as Julian Torres Rizo, who also doubles as secretary of Castro's United Nations delegation. Competent sources told us Rizo, while posing as a diplomat, has been developing contacts with radicals in this country

Another top spy, who will join Castro's diplomatic mission in Washington unless our story stops her, is Alina Alayo Amaro. She is known inside Castro's spy agency, the DGI, by the code name "Adelfa." Her assignment, according to intelligence sources, is to penetrate the U.S.

He seems to believe, therefore, that the Soviets are playing his game rather than the other way around WATCH ON WASTE - Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell, in response to President Carter's call for austerity, has turned in the Justice Dept.'s three big limousines. In fact, he cleaned out the entire motor pool, with its 10 additional cars. But he ordered 13 spanking new Mercuries. Three are Marquees, equipped with all the available comforts. These will provide door-to-door service for the Attorney General and for FBI chief Clarence Kelley, with the third standing by in case other Justice bigwigs need chauffeuring. Ten new Cougars are also ready to haul Justice Dept. biggies around Washington The motor pool is not new, as a spokesman pointed out, although the automobiles are.

'Good Italian food isn't fattening, and it also tomatoes doesn't take a long time to cook. We use fresh ingredients and enhance their taste with fresh herbs," said Celli, who cooked a fast and lowcalorie lunch recently in her Manhattan apartment, where she also gives cooking lessons.

Recently she gave cooking lessons in Palm Beach, Fla., working with Marcello Fiorentino. chef-proprietor of Capriccio's in Palm Beach.

"We were tremendously successful in Florida because everyone wanted to know how to cook fast and without using lots of cream and butter and oil," Celli said. "That is the new approach to food, and all it takes is a little imagination. Knowing how to put the right ingredients together is the other essential.'

The young woman, who believes serving food is like a theatrical production, began her lowcalorie techniques about six years ago. "I needed to lose weight but my students asked me how to trim calories. I kept expermenting with lowercalorie versions until the taste was right."

Judicious use of herbs, undercooking to retain crunch, plenty of spice and "bite" are some of the ways to bring out flavor without adding calories. For example, Celli made a sauteed chicken-breast dish with a mustard-wine sauce about 250 calories per that was calculated to be serving instead of the usual 650. This version uses no oil or butter for sauteing, but rather calls for sauteing in a nonstick "We get into the habit of using oil and butter when it is really not necessary. Sometimes you can accomplish the same results by using just a small amount of fat," Celli said. "Also, I believe in cutting kitchen time whenever possible. Most of my recipes are under 15 minutes. You don't have to chop many of the ingredients ahead of time. What you can do is slice and dice them into the pan as they are saute-

Her primavera sauce for spaghetti is a case in point. She chops a number of vegetables, such as zucchini, fresh tomatoes, shallots and mushrooms, into a large skillet as the pasta is boiling in another pot. Then, after the pasta has cooked and is drained, it is added to the vegetables, some fresh Parmesan cheese is grated on top, and the mixture is heated and ready to be served. Ricotta cheese is used for cream sauces; liqueurs are added to ricotta for dessert sauces. "It's not necessary to add sugar. When you use fruits such as bananas, pineapples, grapes, apricots or oranges to provide sweetness, it is enough. We can enjoy the naturalness of fruit, and we begin to find even a small amount of sugar in

Amin's location remains mystery

LONDON (AP) - An apparently false Ugandan report that President Idi Amin had arrived in London for the Commonwealth conference heightened suspicions today that the burly black dictator's trip was a huge Radio Uganda announced Amin's arrival in London and said he was demanding "to be carried shoulderhigh by the British for several miles" as "part of the Field Marshal's celebrations of the British Queen's Silver Jubilee.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the government had no word of Amin's arrival. "If he had landed legally in this country, I would know,' the spokesman added

Radio Uganda reported Tuesday that Amin had left for London despite word from Prime Minister James Callaghan and other British leaders that he was not wanted at the Commonwealth meeting or the simultaneous celebrations of Queen Elizabeth's 25 years on the throne.

Later Tuesday, the Ugandan radio said Amin had stopped in an Arab country, which was assumed to be Libya. The broadcast said he would go on to France, West Germany or

Shooting case to go to jury

Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon said Wednesday he will present Tuesday night's shooting case, in which a Midland man was killed, to the next Midland County Grand Jury for further investigation.

Gideon said the case would be routinely presented to the grand jury as are all violent deaths that involve a possible felony charge.

Killed in the late Tuesday fray was Edwin Jewel England, 29, whose most recent address was listed as the West Wind Motel.

Loy Blanscett, 52, of the 900 block of West Tennessee and a customer at the bar, suffered gunshot wounds to the chest and hand. He was listed in serious condition early today at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The incident reportedly began as a barroom argument between Edwin England and his two brothers, Travis and Rodney. Edwin reportedly pulled a pistol and started firing at the other

Rodney suffered a gunshot wound to the arm and fled the scene. He still has not been located, police said.

Edwin and Travis then took their fight to the motel's parking lot in the 3000 block of West Wall Avenue where they exchanged gunfire. It was not known where Travis obtained his gun.

Edwin was killed when police arrived and ordered the two men to drop their guns. Travis complied with the order, but Edwin reportedly fired at the officers. A shotgun blast from one of the officers then felled Edwin, police said.

Gideon Tuesday refused to say which officer was believed to have fired the fatal shot until autopsy results show what type of bullet felled

Ireland and would reach England Wednesday or Thursday by boat. But there has been no report of his leaving Libya or any other Arab country, and he has not been sighted in Europe.

The Nairobi Daily Nation, the leading newspaper in Kenya, Uganda's eastern neighbor, said a Ugandan army major told it the 6-foot-4, 250-pound president had been seen in the Kampala area after the government radio said he had left for London. The major was not identified.

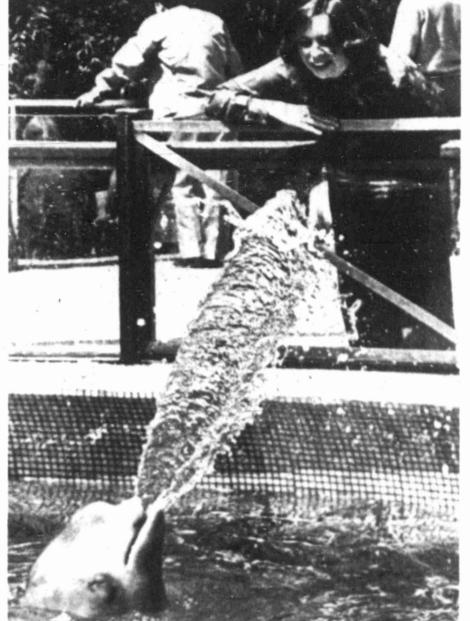

There was growing speculation that all the official reports of Amin's trip were part of a hoax intended to twist the tail of the British lion. But British officials were taking a relaxed attitude that extended also to the announcement Wednesday that the Ugandan government had barred the 300 British residents of Uganda from leaving the country until Amin returned from London.

"I don't take these reports very seriously and I wish you would not Prime Minister James Callaghan told reporters.

'Why don't we all keep cool about this and not give President Amin the chance to think he is putting the wind up us?" he said. "He may have put the wind up you, but he hasn't put the wind up me.

A spokesman for the Ugandan government office in London said the Britons "are in no physical danger." He denied that the restriction was connected with Britain's unwillingness for Amin to come to London.

Amin is unwelcome in Britain because of the reign of terror he has carried on since he seized power in

Fuel-efficient car rebate almost dead

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Ways and Means Committee is ready to kill President Carter's proposed rebate on fuel-efficient cars, but Democratic leaders are trying to salvage his plan to tax big gas-gulping vehicles.

"The rebate doesn't have any support at all," Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the influential committee, said Wednesday

But in an apparent effort to delay a vote on the companion tax on cars that get poor gas mileage, Ullman postponed until today a formal vote on killing the rebate. The committee finished its second day of work on Carter's energy-tax proposals Wednesday. One opponent, Rep. Joe Waggonner, D-La., said 20 of the 37 members of the panel were ready to vote against the so-called gas-guzzler tax

Ullman predicted the tax will be approved by the panel. But it will not go into effect at least until the 1979 model year, he said, and some committee members want to postpone it until 1980

But Waggonner said he was advising against any delay. "The votes if they approve the delay," he said.

Working on Carter's other energy tax proposals, the panel approved a tax credit of up to $400 for persons who improve the fuel efficiency of their homes and a credit of up to $2,000 for purchasers of home heating and cooling systems powered by the sun or wind

In both cases, the credits proposed by Carter were rejected in favor of versions offered by committee

The rebate and gas-guzzler tax are key elements of the far-reaching energy program Carter spelled out on April 20. Another major provision - a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon — also is in deep trouble.

In an effort to reduce U.S. gasoline consumption 10 per cent by 1985, Carter asked Congress to impose a gradually increasing tax of up to $2,500 on cars that get poor gasoline mileage and allow a rebate of up to $500 for buyers of fuel-efficient

The tax and rebate would be based on the fuel-efficiency standards already in the law.

Runway motorcyclists pose danger

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

The small single-engine airplane makes its approach for landing. It gets lower and lower as it approaches

As the wheels touch down, a youth on a motorcycle darts out across the

A scene from a television show or movie? Not quite, but a possibility at Midland's Air Park.

According to Jim Haines, flight instructor and safety consultant at the air park, youths are using the runway as a place to ride their motorcycles. causing hazards for themselves and aircraft using the runway

"The runways seem to be an attraction for the local Evel Knievels and their motorbikes," Haines said. Because of the hot weather, Haines said, the problem is not as great as it once was.

A few weeks ago, there were motorcycles sighted on the runway at least once a day, he added.

"One time there were three motorcycles riding down the middle of the runway while some traffic was waiting to take off," Haines said.

"The greatest danger, he said, is when an inexperienced pilot faces a situation when a motorcycle darts in front of him. "There is no telling what that pilot will do to avoid a crash. The experienced pilot is prepared for the unexpected while the inexperienced is

Haines recalled a time when a small jet was attempting a landing at the airport.

A youth was watching the plane from what seemed to be a safe distance even though he was still on a runway. Haines said.

However, because the pilot had to watch the motorcyclist and attempt to land at the same time; the landing was very rough for the experienced

Haines said he has also heard of instances in which youths have thrown rocks and shot BB guns at airplanes as they landed.

Haines said airport officials are trying to get a fence for the airport, but the vote on that by the Midland City Council will not come until the

Meanwhile, the police and sheriff's deputies are virtually powerless in trying to keep the youths away from the airport.

"The law can't do anything unless we get identification or a license plate number," he said

Haines said even then he did not know what law officials could do with the youths except charge them for trespassing The Federal Aviation Administration has no jurisdiction over the motorcyclists, Haines said, because no federal laws are being "But if those kids are caught by the FAA when they are throwing rocks or shooting at the airplanes, then they would have no recourse. It is a violation of federal law to interfere with a flight crew or shoot at an airplane." he added.

Haines said the best solution to the problems is for parents to keep their children away from the runway area. "The kids are safety minded because they wear helmets when

riding. They are just unaware of the dangers involved," he said. But the helmets can be a hazard, Haines said, because the motorcyclist cannot hear a plane approaching.

Also, the parents may not realize they would be liable if their children were caught throwing rocks or shooting at airplanes, he said.

Haines said he has talked to an FAA specialist in Lubbock, but there is nothing he can do except talk to the Midland City Council to alert them to the dangers. Another area of concern for Haines and the airport is that the airport could be liable if an accident did

Haines said that a plane landed on a youth and killed him at an airport in

The parents sued the airport, air traffic controller and the plane's pilot claiming they were negligient, Haines

"The parents claimed negligence because the airport officials knew of the problem of youths playing on the runways and did not take measures," he said

A minor legal technicality prevented the court from awarding damages to the family, Haines said.

"Pilots know that they could be held liable in such an event and they will tend to stay away from airports with this type of problem," he said

Also, Haines said anti-airport groups in the city may use the motorcycle problem as a case for shutting the airport down.

Because of an agreement with the federal government, the airport probably would not be shut down unless an equal facility is built somewhere else, which would be a multi-million dollar project, Haines

However, the group could sharply curtail the airport's operation, which would harm the city's business economy by revenue loss from fuel sales, Haines said.

President says he welcomes IRS audit

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, calling his tax audit a good thing, is suggesting that Internal Revenue Service accountants go over his income tax returns every year he's in the White House.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale. also the target of an IRS audit, hasn't said whether he wants the same annual review. Asked whether the vice president agrees with Carter. spokesman Al Eisele said:

"But I think it's a good thing to do." Carter said. "We're suggesting they do it every year I'm in office." Carter didn't make it clear whether the IRS conducted a full-scale audit

each time it checked one of his returns. Nor did he reveal any IRS findings. But White House Deputy Press Secretary Rex Granum said Carter authorized him to say an annual, full-scale audit would be welcome as long as Carter is President.

In reply to queries about published reports that the IRS is auditing Carter's 1975 income tax return, White House spokesmen made what ceded were "mistakes and unwarranted assumptions" Wednesday afternoon as they stumbled through a confusing, 21/4-hour explanation.

The briefing was interrupted by an hour and a quarter recess so the spokesmen could check their facts.

Swimmers lapping it up still

By RICHIE REECER

The seven-member City of Midland Swim Club relay team passed the 190-mile mark at about 8 a.m. this morning in their attempt to set a world record in the 300-mile swim, according to Coach Doug Ingram Ingram is confident the team can set the record.

"The time (of the record) isn't that impressive," Ingram said. The main obstacle in setting the record is the endurance factor involved/Ingram said. "All we have to do is hold up and not fall apart before

Saturday," he said. Ingram expects the team to complete the 300-mile objective 'sometime early Saturday, before 6 a.m." If the team should complete the distance according to Ingram's schedule, they will have beaten the record by well over 24 hours. The seven who are attempting to set the 300-mile record are Brad Swendig, Clay Spears, Sid Glenn, Curt Buthman, Phil Pelligrino, Jeff Lambeth and Jay Quintana. These seven are also attempting to set the record for the longest continuous time swum by a relay team.

The 'club set out at noon Monday to break four world records in swimming, as recognized by the "Guinness Book of World Records." They have already set two records. At noon Tuesday, the club set the record for the longest distance swum by a seven

member relay team in 24 hours.

The distance was 73 miles, 1,050 yards, which beat the old record by approximately 800 yards. The club also set a world record Wednesday in the 100-mile swim. The group swam the distance in 25 hours, 39 min., 53 sec. This time bettered the old record by 15 min., 7 sec. Twenty members of the club participated in the 100-mile swim. Participating in the event in addidtion to the seven named earlier, were Lori Snook, Carrie Mayes, Susan Swendig, Wendy Williams, Gretchen Koch, Jimmie O'Neill, Mike Iber, Carey Karrens, Paul Fremeil, Mike Solari, Mark Solari, Robin Franke and Emily Murrah.

The seven attempting the 300mile record are doing so in conjunction with their attempt to swim a longer time in the water than any relay team ever has. The seven swimmers plan to swim a total of seven days. Each swimmer swims one hour at a time. At the end of the scheduled seven days, each will have swum a total of 24 hours. The club has contacted the

Guinness officials to assure the club of recognition. The club has complied with regulations set by the officials. The Midland, Jaycees have taken the responsibility of authenticating the records set by the club. The Guinness officials require the recognition of the club by a local civic organization. City of Midland Swim Club members range in age from 12SHOWERS are forecast today for much of the western half of the nation. Cool weather is expected in the North and warm weather in the South. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Transport systems vary

EDITOR'S NOTE: This information on possible uses of public transportation systems is being presented as background information for a community-wide transportation survey to be published in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram. The survey is being conducted by the Transportation Task Force of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

When considering public transportation for a city like Midland, it is important to keep in mind the different systems that could be employed using multi-passenger buses

The most familiar type of service is the fixed route system in which vehicles run along definite routes with scheduled stops at designated points.

United Way goal $50,000

LAMESA - The Dawson County United Way has set its goal for 1977 at $50,000, about $5,000 over last years

United Way directors approved the goal, the highest ever, at a recent meeting. The figure was set after budget requests for a total of $61,245 were trimmed considerably

Maps showing the different routes availability, some groups may and schedules are made available to riders with each rider required to be present at the bus stop at the proper time in order to get a ride. Items to be considered in a fixed route system include such things as frequency. overall coverage of the city and availability of a variety of direct, no transfer trips to key destinations

A second system growing in popularity is the demand-responsive system in which buses can be operated on a door-to-door, on-call basis. This type operation can provide good coverage to major activity centers. Whatever the case, the demand responsive system requires the rider to call a dispatcher to arrange for a ride at a particular time. Times required to pre-arrange pickups vary from place to place, but in Midland some organizations that provide this service now require at least one-half to one full day advance

Specialized services can also be offered special groups within the community. These special services may apply to any readily identifiable group, such as the elderly or handicapped, that can pre-arrange pickups and deliveries on a demandresponsive or fixed basis.

Group service or special charter arrangements can also be a part of a public transportation system Depending on scheduling and arrange to have special pick-ups and deliveries made on either a one-time or regular basis. Charter arrangements can also serve as an additional service to the community in providing transportation needed during special one-time functions or activities.

Another use for public transportation vehicles is through an employment subscription service. Again, this service depends on other pre-arranged scheduling, but an employment subscription service can allow persons to use the public transportation system as a method of getting to some work location not already on the system's fixed routes. Vehicles used primarily for an employment subscription service are available many times during mid-day hours for use by special groups on either a fixed route or demand-

Retirees to meet today at Webb

BIG SPRING - Retirees from the Midland, Big Spring and Odessa area will have an informal gathering this evening at the Webb Air Force Base Officers' Open Mess to learn the latest Air Force policies. A film strip on the newest Air Force weapon systems, and a retiree briefing will be presented.

Col. Harry A. Spannaus, wing commander, will speak on general closure plans. Maj. Edward Morton, base director of medical services, will talk on hospital services. First Lt. Larry Wittgan, hospital registrar, will speak on CHAMPUS and Capt Wanda Wood, chief CBPO, will talk on ID cards, casualty assistance and mortuary assistance. There will be a general question and answer period.

A buffet dinner will be served at 7 p.m. at $4.50 per person featuring ham, fried chicken, potato salad, cole slaw, baked beans, rolls and butter. dessert and coffee or tea. The program will start at 8 p.m. with the briefing, film and then Col. Spannaus and staff.

Some water project funds cut

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Seeking a compromise with President Carter, a key Senate subcommittee agreed Wednesday to deny funds for eight of the 18 water projects he is trying to terminate.

Meeting behind closed doors and under strict secrecy orders, members of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on public works also agreed to continue nine of the projects on Carter's "hit list." Action was deferred until Friday on the other project.

In addition, the subcommittee agreed to eliminate a dozen new projects approved by the House Appropriations Committee that would cost almost $500 million if carried to completion.

The House projects were rejected as part of a new policy adopted by the Senate subcommittee Wednesday of opposing new construction starts until the administration and congress agree on new criteria for justification of future water projects.

Carter touched off a storm of protest in Congress and elsewhere in April when he asked Congress to kill the 18 projects on grounds they didn't justify their cost or posed environmental or safety hazards.

Last week the House Appropriations Committee voted to provide funds for all 18 projects, plus 3 others including California's Auburn Dam which Carter asked to be deleted pending further study Carter also requested modification of five others, including the Central Arizona Project. The House will begin debate Monday on its bill to finance those projects.

Because of an injunction of secrecy imposed on the subcommittee by its chairman, Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.), only a few of the projects agreed on for termination or continuance could be identified.

It was learned that those projects tabbed for elimination are the Cache Basin in Arkansas, the Yatesville Lake in Kentucky, the Savery-Pot Hook in Colorado and Wyoming and the Oahe Unit in South Dakota.

Among the projects the subcommittee agreed to continue are the

Richard B. Russell Dam and Lake in Georgia and South Carolina, the Columbia Dam in Tennessee and the Garrison Diversion Project in North

Secrecy was imposed by Stennis because the subcommittee had not completed its work on the big public works money bill. Stennis said nothing had been definitely decided but other subcommittee members said the decisions on the water projects would stand.

One member said Stennis was seeking to fashion a bill that Carter could accept. The President has hinted that he might veto the version approved by the House committee.

Grant recommendation given Ector County

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A $47,294 grant for Ector County has been recommended by the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Advisory Board in Gov. Dolph Briscoe's office.

The grant must go to Briscoe for his recommendation before being forwarded to the appropriate federal agency.

The grant would be combined with $5,300 in local funds to operate a status offender diversionary program Status offenders are juveniles who violate laws aimed specifically at juveniles.

The program would hire a community resource specialist who would be under the direction of the chief juvenile probation officer. The specialist would provide assistance to youths who have been referred from other agencies as in need of a comprehensive service.

the auto manufacturers and the United Auto Workers union and opposed by environmentalists. It gives auto makers a two-year delay (until the 1980 model year) before they must meet hydrocarbon emission standards, temporarily waives the proposed nitrogen oxide standard, and permanently softens the carbon monoxide standard. Those are the three major auto pollutants regulated by the 1970 Clean Air Act. Rep. James Broyhill, R-N.C., a sponsor of the amendment, said its purpose "is to achieve strict air quality controls and, at the same time, balance this concern with other national goals." He added: "Our amendment will not only control automobile pollution, it will also save fuel, hold down consumer costs and preserve the strength of the American

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., an opponent, said: "The auto industry has spent an incredible amount of money in this lobbying campaign, and I think if they had spent that money in trying to meet these standards we would not be fighting this fight out today, and we would be talking about cleaner cities and healthier people across the country.

PORPOISES-Adopted, 244 for and 109 against, an amendment lowering the quota of porpoises that can be killed by commercial tuna fishermen in 1977. The overall bill (HR 6970) had recommended a quota of 78,000, but this amendment lowered the number to 69,000. HR 6970 was later passed.

The Senate has not yet acted. The bill's main thrust is to resolve the dispute between environmentalists and the merchant marine industry over the porpoise killing that is an incidental by-product of yellow-fin tuna fishing. The porpoises, a diminishing species, are unavoidably netted along with the tuna, and HR 6970 seeks to minimize the incidental killing while protecting the economic interests of the tuna industry.

Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., a sup-porter of the amendment, said: "To major roll call votes May 26 through me needless killing of the porpoises is almost like killing humans. I think we should avoid with all the strength we have the unnecessary killing of these mammals." Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., an opponent of the lower quota, said: "I don't think that the amendment will accomplish anything. . except to fuzz up the bill, to make it unworkable, and to drive the tuna fishermen to some other area where they can fish, or else

Ranger tells park story

SPENCER, Tenn. (AP) - Rangernaturalist Dan DeGroat gave up city living to become a story-teller in the wilderness, unraveling the mysterious workings of nature for visitors to Fall Creek Falls State

"Trees, plants, animals everything — is interrelated," says DeGroat, 24. "We want visitors to go home with a feeling rather than a set of facts." DeGroat points out that the 256- foot Fall Creek Falls, the highest waterfall east of the Rocky Mountains, is becoming smaller as deposits build at the bottom and water slowly erodes the sandstone at the top. "So I know this is sandstone - so what?" he asks. "What they (visitors) need to know is that a layer of shale lies under the sandstone and gives the waterfall its general characteristics. If it was reversed, there probably wouldn't be a water-

DeGroat said the falls will collapse one day because the cascading water is wearing away the shale at the bottom of the falls faster than the sandstone at the top. One day, the bottom will be unable to support the weight of

Over hundreds of thousands of years, the falls have moved up the gorge, responding to the constant but imperceptible erosion, collapse and

"There are many stories to be told of the park," DeGroat said. "For instance, the environment at the bottom of the falls is comparable with that of southern Canada.

DeGroat's role is not simply that of a story-teller, however. He's also trained, along with the park's other rangers, to provide emergency medical care when needed in the park's rugged wilderness.

Coal could play havoc if rules not followed

By THOMAS O'TOOLE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - If pollution controls are not strictly adhered to, President Carter's plan to switch the nation's industries to coal could result in annual contamination of the atmosphere with 10 million tons of sulfur dioxide, 600 million tons of carbon dioxide and as much nitrogen oxides as the country's 110 million cars exhaust, a White House document

Changing over to coal could also mean the release of tons of soot, which among other things contain a chemical called benzopyrene - identified as one of the main carcinogens in cigarette smoke

Typically, American coal also contains breathable bits of 14 toxic metals, including lea and arsenic.

Finally, the amount of coal the President wants industry to convert to would contain enough of isotopes of radium and thorium possibly to contaminate the air with more radioactivity than all the working nuclear power plants in the United States do

"No matter how you look at it," said John F. O'Leary, administrator of the Federal Energy Administration and the man who will direct coal conversions for President Carter, "a coalfired plant is more hazardous to health than a nuclear-fired plant."

In a document still not released by the White House, the Office of Energy Policy and Planning estimates that by 1985 the President's plan to convert factories and power plants to coal will involve the burning of an additional 200 million tons of coal a year.

The document indicates the White House would accept pollution control standards that would result in more than half the anticipated soot and sulfur dioxide exhaust being scrubbed

It is possible, although expensive, to eliminate more than three-quarters of these pollutants

Cities, states and the Environmental Protection Agency could enforce higher pollution standards.

President Carter plans to force most of these coal conversions, asking for legislation to prohibit new factories from burning oil or natural gas. to tax old factories that continue to burn oil and natural gas and give tax rebates to those voluntarily turning to

The White House estimates it can force conversions to coal that will save the equivalent of 3.3 million barrels of oil a day.

And while the White House concedes that reluctant industries will pay as much as $40 billion in taxes the next eight years to keep burning oil and gas, it also claims the rest of industry will receive $38 billion in tax rebates for investing in coal.

The White House document also concedes that the cost of converting to coal will be steep because it will involve installing scrubbers to remove some soot and sulfur from coal's ex-

Quentin appointed

ODESSA - Dr. George H. Quentin, associated professor in the Control Engineering Program at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, has been named project manager of control engineering with Electric Power Research Institute in San Francisco, Calif.

He will move to San Francisco where he will supervise research and development of advanced alternatives for energy production in the form of electric power. Dr. Quentin came to Odessa in 1973 haust gases. But the White House claims the factories putting in the scrubbers will get their money back in tax rebates.

The document also notes solid waste disposal problems. At an average-sized (one million kilowatt) coal-fired electric plant, ash accumulates at the rate of 30 pounds a This compares with the year-long wastes of a nuclear-fired plant which, although extremely toxic, fill a volume of two cubic meters, according to Dr. Bernard L. Cohen of the University of Pittsburgh. A volume of two cubic meters would fit under a dining room table.

Finally, the White House says that, while conversions to coal will be expensive, the price of coal will be low enough to keep electric rates down. The White House estimates coal conversions will result in only a 2.5 per cent increase in electric rates in the United States over the next eight

The technical problems in removing nitrogen-oxide wastes remain a question mark since emission regulations have not been set for these exhaust products, according to the document. It also notes that carbon dioxide, an inevitable pollutant of coal does no harm to health but it does build up in the atmosphere in a way that can raise the earth's temperature over the next 50 years. That still leaves the questions of radioactivity and toxic metal exhaust, which are far more difficult to control in a coal-burning plant than sulfur and soot exhausts.

A Clark University study estimated that when coal plants are located near large cities the exposure to radioactivity is 50 times greater than for nuclear paints the same size.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said last year "there is some uncertainty" about whether toxic metals can be controlled in coal exhausts. It listed 14 toxic metals in coal exhausts: arsenic, antimony, cadmium, lead, selenium, manganese, thallium, beryllium, chromium, nickel, titanium, zinc, molybdenum

Gov. Briscoe to speak at meeting of TIPRO

SAN ANTONIO -Gov. Dolph Briscoe will be one of the speakers during the 31st Annual Meeting in the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association in San Antonio.

TIPRO's annual gathering gets under way Sunday afternoon with an open meeting of the State Petroleum Issues Committee. Congressman Bob Krueger and State Representative Joe Hanna will address the meeting. At 6:30 p. m. Sunday, the president's reception honoring the TIPRO president will be held in the International Ballroom of the Hilton Palacio del Rio, headquarters for the meeting. Monday, there will be an executive policy committee session beginning at 9:15 a.m. and continuing to 11:45 a.m. This meeting will be addressed by U. S. Senator John Tower. The membership luncheon will follow with the election of officers. The membership luncheon will be from noon to

A federal energy issues panel seminar will be held from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. Monday. The panelists will be U.S. Senator Harrison Schmitt, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Dr. Laurence Woodworth, and Dr. Gorman Smith, assistant administrator of the Federal Energy Administration.

A Mexican fiesta and a Dixieland jazz concert will be held from 6:30 to midnight Monday.

The Tuesday schedule will include a breakfast seminar on the development of a political action conmittee. The panelists will be A. V. Jones Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, and R. H. Prewitt Jr., chairman of the Liaison Committee of Cooperating Oil and Gas Associations.

The general membership session will be from 10:15 to 11:45 a. m. Tuesday. Governor Briscoe will be the speaker. He will receive TIPRO's annual Hats Off Award for service to the independent segment of the oil

"The electric industry would face a huge financial burden to meet a total conversion from gas and oil use, says Paul Crawford, president of the institute.

In addition, the industry research group says Carter-endorsed environmental legislation, which has already, begun to move through Congress, would require the addition of expensive and inefficient equip-on effects of proposal ment that would add millions to the cost of building and operating new

FEA, industry disagree

coal-fired plants. FEA's Hanfling acknowledges industry would face increased capital costs to convert to coal and install environmental equipment, known as flue scrubbers, on all new plants. But he disagrees with the institute's cost projections Utilities should save because they will be paying lower fuel costs after they convert to coal, Hanfling said

He also says they should realize some long-range savings on construction costs if the President's program is successful in lowering over-all energy consumption and reducing the number of expensive reserve generators needed to meet peak demand periods. Hanfling and Wagner agree the wide-ranging presidential program is difficult to assess. Many of the proposals which Carter outlined in late April may see substantial changes or be killed in Congress. Even in its proposed form, specific parts of the plan would affect various regions and individual customers differently. The energy plan takes a broad approach to changes in the utility field. It includes a proposed system of tax penalties combined with tax credits, aimed at getting utilities which now use natural gas or oil to switch existing plants to coal or build new coal-fired or nuclear power

Areas of the country where utilities are heavily dependent on gas or imported oil - notably the Southwest, California and much of the East Coast - will have to pay more to switch to other energy sources than regions which already have substantial numbers of coal-fired or nuclear powered plants. Government experts note that costs in those areas also would rise substantially if they continued their dependence on current fuels. In addition, the President's plan calls for state public service commissions to make a number of adjustments in rate schedules including the elimin3tion of so called declining block rates under which some large energy users pay less as they use more gas or electricity. That and other rate changes make it difficult to determine just how actual costs of energy will eventually be split among residential, commercial and industrial customers.

If you have a rotisserie attachement for your grill, follow the manufacturer's directions to buy the right size turkey so it will fit on the spit. Thaw the bird in the refrigerator. Untuck the legs and remove the giblets. Rinse the turkey thoroughly and retuck the legs. Do not bother to stuff the bird. The stuffing becomes too smoky in flavor. Stuffing is better when cooked in a covered pan or foil packet ing the grill. Insert the svit through the turkey and clamp securely. Tie the wings to the body of the bird. Place on the grill and make certain the turkey is well balanced to turn freely and smoothly.

Begin to check the turkey for doneness after about 21/2 hours of roasting, using the same tests you use when roasting a turkey indoors. If you like, the turkey may be brushed with barbecue sauce to give it a little add ed zest. Do this during the last half hour of cooking because the sugar in the sauce tends to char if the sauce is brushed on earlier in the cooking. The Barbecue Sauce given here is a good blend of flavors.

Succotash cooked on the grill is a good companion with turkey. Place thawed frozen lima beans and whole kernel corn on two thicknesses of foil. Season with butter, salt, pepper and celery salt. Fold the edges of the foil to make a tight seal. The succotash will cook on the grill or directly on the coals in 30 to 40 minutes

Wind direction, temperature and humidity will vary the amount of heat produced. Take this into consideration when determining cooking

If a rotisserie attachment is used, check manufacturer's directions for the maximum size turkey that can be placed on the spit.

A stuffed turkey takes longer to cook than an unstuffed one, and the flavor of the stuffing may be too smoky. It is best to cook stuffing in a foil packet or in a covered pan on the grill during the last hour of roasting.

To prepare unstuffed turkey, free legs and tail from tucked position. Do not cut band of skin. Remove giblets from neck cavity and neck from body cavity. Rinse turkey and drain. Skewer neck skin to back. Fasten wings behind back by twisting tips. Return legs and tail to tucked position Brush the turkey with

Insert meat thermometer intothe center of the thickest postion of the thigh next to the body cavity, not touching the If a barbecue sauce is used, brush it on the turkey during the last half hour of cooking. If the temperature of the turkey when placed on the grill is warmer than refrigerator temperature, roasting time will be shorter. For hickory-smoked flavor, sprinkle 1/2 cup dampened hickory chips over the coals the last half hour of cooking. When turkey is cooked on a grill, the meat just under the skin may be

8-year-old cyclotron laboratory used in medical, matter studies

The Washington Post

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - In an underground laboratory, encased in concrete walls 8 feet thick, University of Maryland Prof. Victor Viola aims a stream of helium atoms traveling at nearly half the speed of light at an obscure metal called Lithium 7.

In the same laboratory, Dr. George Harrison of the university's medical school bombards tiny bean sprouts with high-velocity neutron beams, while another professor is using the equipment to pry open an infinitesimally small atom to observe the makeup of the nucleus.

Their common laboratory is the Unviersity of Maryland's "Sectorfocused Ischronous Cyclotron, buried two stories beneath the University's physics building in College Park and described as one of the largest and most sophisticated cyclotrons in the world. The cyclotron was installed eight years ago at a cost of

'What we are doing," says Prof. Harry Holmgren, who directs the cyclotron operation, "are the basic studies which are extending our understanding of the nature of matter. We must understand matter if we are going to be able to use it."

The equipment has enabled Viola to conduct experiments with the helium beam and Lithium 7 that he says tend to support a theory that argues that the universe was created billions of years ago in a huge, primal explosion.

At the same time, through use of the neutron beam, Harrison hopes to discover a superior way to treat

In simplified terms, the cyclotron works by forcing atoms of helium or hydrogen through an electromagnetic field that hurles them faster and faster in an upwardly spiralling orbit. Eventually the atoms reach speeds of one-quarter to one-half the speed of light - or 90,000 miles a second.

Reaching the upper rim of the spiral, the beam is deflected into a 4inch diameter vacuum tube that shoots the particles directly at their

As the particles slam into the target - for example, a thin sheet of lead foil if the target is the nuclei of lead atoms - the protons and neutrons of the nuclei are knocked around like billiard balls. Radiation detectors monitor these collisions and a computer receives these reports and records them on tape.

"We are trying to learn something about matter distribution on the surface of the nucleus of the atom,' Holmgren said.

By measuring the kinds of collisions within the nuclei, the angles at which particles rebound when they collide. and what happens when a particle is knocked out of a nucleus, scientists add to their knowledge of the relationship of particles to each other. their distribution and the shape of various nuclei, Holmgren says.

When the cyclotron is running, he said, the radiation levels in the room where it is located are so intense that no one could survive for more than a few minutes - thus the 8-foot thick concrete walls. So, when someone like Victor Viola wants to conduct his tests for Lithium 7, the operation is monitored two stories above at a huge instrument panel with a battery of screens and

When he began his lithium experiments. Viola said, he was not necessarily looking for evidence to support or contradict any theories of creation. He was merely looking for the origins of Lithium 7 along with three other light metals.

To do that, the cyclotron was set up to duplicate the kinds of nuclear reactions that occur in the interstellar dust that fills vast expanses of space between the stars."What we're doing is using the cyclotron to duplicate the cosmic ray flax," said Viola. To do that, the cyclotron was set up to slam the nuclei of helium atoms into each other, bombard carbon and nitrogen nuclei with protons, and trigger other nuclear reactions that resemble the cosmic ray process.

What the experiments showed was that the natural abundance of three of the metals could easily be explained by the cosmic ray process. "But every place where we have Lithium ? involved, the story breaks down. said Viola. "One has to find another source for the origin of Lithium 7 other than the nuclear reactions in the intersetellar dust.

Most physicists believe this points to the "big bang" as the source of most of the Lithium 7 in the universe.

While Viola continues his probe into the mysteries of Lithium 7. Harrison searches for a better cure for cancer as he experiments with radiation treatment on bean sprouts.

'You can always eradicate a tumor with radiation, says Harrison, "but you run the risk of damaging the healthy cells, too. What we're looking for is a quality of radiation where the normal tissue can be spared.

There is evidence, Harrison said, that neutrons - those particles of the atomic nucleus that are not electrically charged — tend to attack the cancerous cells while leaving the healthy ones alone.

So, once every three or four months for the past few years, Harrison has been loading a glass water tank filled with bean sprouts into the back seat of his car and driving from his baltimore office to the cyclotron here.

There he puts the sprouts directly in th path of a high velocity beam of neutrons being fired out of the cyclotron. He uses bean sprouts, Harrison says, because their radiation damage properties closely resemble those of human cells. He places them in a tank of water because that enhances their similarity to cells in the human body.

Harrison figures he has subjected about 2,000 bean sprouts to the neutron treatment so far. He is convinced the cancer treatment is effective, but he is not yet sure just how effective.

Women's army head in Israel proud of job

By RANDI ROSENBLUM

NEW YORK (AP) - "The only daughters I've got are in the army," says Col. Dalia Raz, commander-in-chief of the Women's Corps of the Israeli Defense

For young women draftees in Israel's armed forces. Colonel Raz, whose real children are two sons, is a combination housemother, counselor and commander

"I deal with all sorts of problems — personal, social and professional," said the tiny officer who trained as a social worker. "I just love it. It's not the kind of job that anyone forces you to do Israel's men and women may serve on the same military bases, but they have separate barracks and separate duties. They are equal in every respect except combat, said the colonel. Israeli women fought against the Arabs in the 1948-49 war but have not

"The most equal job is combat and we don't want it," she said in an interview here, for emotional reasons, "because of what happened to our girls

"But nobody in Israel says we can't do it mentally or physically," she continued, "because we did it. And in any other job we're equal

Although the women draftees get one month basic training in the use of weapons, gymnastics and self defense, they serve as administrators, computer programmers, drivers and parachute folders.

"The army couldn't make it without the women. the colonel said proudly, citing the more than 200 jobs that women fill. "Just in the last year we have begun to take on 20 new technical jobs, in fields like mechanics, electronics and weapon repair. It's a big

"I'm sorry it didn't happen before because it should have," she said. "But I'm very happy it happened during my command. You don't see women in such jobs in civilian life

In Israel, she notes, the military is a very high status profession for women "We say that the two years in the army is an education in the best school that a girl could have." she said "It teaches her to be independent and responsible. The positions and talks we give a girl at the age of 20 she wouldn't find on the

Colonel Raz, a seventh generation Sabra whose mother's family came to Israel about 150 years ago, is the first women in the family to become a soldier She was drafted at 18, like all Israeli women, then decided to stay on because, she said, it was interesting She became commander-in-chief in

Women's Corps will be made a general, as is the case in the United States. "The change will come, probably soon But after colonel, you have first one-star general, and then general. So we've got a long way to though she had just spent two weeks on a beach rather than on a speaking tour for the Zionist

She is the mother of boys age 5 and 14, and her husband, a civilian engineer is also a lieutenant colonel

When you come home and the kids are jumping around, you stop being a colonel," she said.

"I love being a mother. I love being a wife. But after so many years I don't know if I could just stay home and watch everyone else go off to work and

The 38-year-old commander says she will probably go into social work when she retires from the military in a couple of years

"If peace would come to the Middle East, maybe we won't need an army," she said wistfully "Maybe someday I won't have my job anymore Men can work in administration too

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Safeguard children

Dear Dr. Solomon: My two little grandchildren they are three and five - are full of mischief, and I do not think my daughter is careful enough about seeing that things like bleach and cleansers are kept out of their reach. However, she never takes my advice about anything Do you have some official kind of list of safety precautions — one that she wouldn't pooh-pooh as coming from an old worry bird? -Dear Mrs. F .: You are absolutely right about how important safety measures are with your children who are still too small to read or understand warnings on lables - and who are bent on exploring everything in sight. About a million children a year are involved in poising accidents. Here is what the American Red Cross urges as precautions to help parents keep children from getting hold of poisonous substances. 1 - Keep all household products out of sight and out of reach of children, preferably in a locked cabinet or closet 2 — Remove the container to a safe spot if you have to leave the room, even for a minute, while using one of these products. 3 - Store household cleaners and medicines

separately from foodstuffs, and always keep these items in their original containers - never in cups or soft drink bottles 4 - Since children tend to imitate their elders avoid taking medicine in their presence. 5 - Never carelessly discard toxic products in waste containers that are accessible to children. 6 - Forbid children to taste medicines, chemicals, plants or berries they find. Insist on this. 7 - When speaking of medicines to children, call each one by its proper name, and never refer to themas candies. Safeguard pills that are flavored or colored, as children will eat them like candy

To D.T., St. Cloud, Minn.: I'm glad you feel better since you had your fecal impaction dugget. Fecal impactions are due to feces staying for long periods in the rectum for occasionally in the large colon) This results in too much reabsorbtion of water, which leaves the feces very hard and impacted. You are right to have your doctor take care of it because it's the only way to feel better in such a case.

PBRPC OKs Community Block Grant

A request for a $946,000 Community Block Grant by the City of Midland received favorable review from the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Board of Directors (PBRPC) Tuesday.

The Community Development Block Grant money for the year 1978 must now be approved by the Dallas district office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The application will be in the hands of government officials in Dallas by the end of this month, City Manager James Brown said today.

Included in the application is $310,000 for paying and curbing, $220,000 for housing rehabilitation, $140,000 for a senior citizen's center, $114,000 for park improvement, and $56,000 for planning.

The PBRPC board of directors also reviewed favorably an application for a $21,000 grant by Midland County. The grant, along with $40,000 from a grant last year, would be used for the purpose of constructing a rehabilitation and counseling facility for operation by the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The facility would be for drug detoxification.

Other items receiving favorable review and comment included:

- A job placement grant for $15,102 to the vocational rehabilitation unit of Big Spring State Hospital from the Texas Rehabilitation Commission. - A request by the City of Big Spring for $104,000 from the Economic Development Administration, to be matched with $34,915 in local funds, to hire professional staff to coordinate the industrial development program designed for the Webb Air Force Base facility. Funds are also included for the purpose of hiring a consulting firm to develop an economic adjustment strategy plan for the entire

- A preapplication for a limited profit loan to the Farmers Home Administration. The corporation is requesting $480,000, and will match this with $25,300, for a project total of $505,300. This money will be used to construct a 32 unit housing project for low to moderate income families in Seminole.

 A request by the Big Spring Independent School District for $191,531 from the Department of Health Education and Welfare to fund its full year-part day 1978 Head Start program. With an applicant contribution of $53,119 the project totals $244,650. The district is also submitting supplemental applications for building and playground improvements, $2,000, and medical-dental services, $2,000. The Big Spring Head Start program serves residents of Howard County, using a complete school building with ten classrooms and campus. Two hundred children are enrolled in the program.

Upton County Judge Mrs. Peggy Garner was elected vice-chairman of the PBRPC and Fort Stockton city councilman Gene Day was chosen secretary-treasurer.

The total fiscal year 1978 PBRPC budget is $3,740,915. The operating budget is $870,549 and $2,870,366 passes through the agency to local governments and manpower recipients.

Government to threaten terrorists

By ROON LEWALD

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) - The Dutch government was sending word today to South Moluccan terrorists holding 55 hostages in a train and a schoolhouse in northern Holland to free their captives or face dangerous consequences.

A government spokesman said it was "out of the question" that the twin sieges, which began 17 days ago, will be allowed to continue much longer. Officials are becoming increasingly worried about the condition of the hostages, especially the 51 persons held aboard the commuter train 12 miles north of Assen. Cardiologist Jakob Nieveen said they may develop heart problems due to the stress, the lack of exercise and the uncomfortable conditions. More than half of them are over 40. Dr. Nieveen made the comment after examining

Theo J. van Hattem, 46, who was freed from the train Wednesday after becoming ill. Doctors said he might have had a slight heart attack

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet were hoping mediators Josina Soumokil and Hassan Tan could convince the terrorists their position is hopeless, both "for their demands and for the political aims they have in view," a Justice Ministry spokesman

The mediators, elders in the 40,000-member South Moluccan community in The Netherlands, talked for nearly six hours with the gunmen aboard the train Saturday but failed to make any progress

Eight to ten terrorists are believed to be on the train and four others are holding four teachers at the elementary school in nearby Dovensmilde.

Hofheinz says he won't seek another term

HOUSTON (AP) - Mayor Fred Hofheinz announced today he will not seek a third two-year term in the Nov. 8 city election.

Hofheinz, 39, said it is time to let new faces give Houston government a fresh momentum. Immediate speculation on a possible successor centered on Frank B. Briscoe, a former district attorney, and Jim McConn, a former city councilman. Briscoe made an unsuccessful challenge against Hofheinz in 1975.

Hofheinz, now in his second two-year term, said "Good government requires change and innovation. It requires new faces, fresh ideas and the energy of new leadership - the kind of new leadership that I brought to city hall almost four years ago.

The mayor of the state's largest city said he believed he would have been successful if he had sought a third term but "the expectation of victory is not enough justification for my candidacy.

"I believe that mayors can serve too long. I believe they can outlive their effectiveness. It is better, in my judgement, to err in favor of brevity of service than longevity,"he said.

Hofheinz made no announcement concerning future political plans. During his years as mayor, Hofheinz said, "We have been able to open the doors of government to groups who never before had access.

Coal could play havoc if rules not followed

By THOMAS O'TOOLE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - If pollution controls are not strictly adhered to. President Carter's plan to switch the nation's industries to coal could result in annual contamination of the atmosphere with 10 million tons of sulfur dioxide, 600 million tons of carbon dioxide and as much nitrogen oxides as the country's 110 million cars exhaust, a White House document

Changing over to coal could also mean the release of tons of soot, which among other things contain a chemical called benzopyrene - identified as one of the main carcinogens in cigarette smoke

Typically, American coal also contains breathable bits of 14 toxic metals, including lea and arsenic

Finally, the amount of coal the President wants industry to convert to would contain enough of isotopes of radium and thorium possibly to contaminate the air with more radioactivity than all the working nuclear power plants in the United States do

"No matter how you look at it," said John F. O'Leary, administrator of the Federal Energy Administration and the man who will direct coal conversions for President Carter, "a coalfired plant is more hazardous to health than a nuclear-fired plant."

In a document still not released by the White House, the Office of Energy Policy and Planning estimates that by 1985 the President's plan to convert factories and power plants to coal will involve the burning of an additional 200 million tons of coal a year.

The document indicates the White House would accept pollution control standards that would result in more than half the anticipated soot and sulfur dioxide exhaust being scrubbed

It is possible, although expensive, to eliminate more than three-quarters of these pollutants.

Cities, states and the Environmental Protection Agency could enforce higher pollution standards.

President Carter plans to force most of these coal conversions, asking for legislation to prohibit new factories from burning oil or natural gas. to tax old factories that continue to burn oil and natural gas and give tax rebates to those voluntarily turning to

The White House estimates it can force conversions to coal that will save the equivalent of 3.3 million barrels of oil a day

And while the White House concedes that reluctant industries will pay as much as $40 billion in taxes the next eight years to keep burning oil and gas, it also claims the rest of industry will receive $38 billion in tax rebates for investing in coal.

The White House document also concedes that the cost of converting to coal will be steep because it will involve installing scrubbers to remove some soot and sulfur from coal's exhaust gases. But the White House claims the factories putting in the scrubbers will get their money back in tax rebates.

The document also notes solid waste disposal problems. At an average-sized (one million kilowatt) coal-fired electric plant, ash accumulates at the rate of 30 pounds a

This compares with the year-long wastes of a nuclear-fired plant which, although extremely toxic, fill a volume of two cubic meters, according to Dr. Bernard L. Cohen of the University of Pittsburgh. A volume of two cubic meters would fit under a dining room table. Finally, the White House says that, while conversions to coal will be expensive, the price of coal will be low enough to keep electric rates down. The White House estimates coal conversions will result in only a 2.5 per cent increase in electric rates in the United States over the next eight question mark since emission regulations have not been set for these exhaust products, according to the document. It also notes that carbon dioxide, an inevitable pollutant of coal, does no harm to health but it does build up in the atmosphere in a way that can raise the earth's temperature over the next 50 years.

That still leaves the questions of radioactivity and toxic metal ex-haust, which are far more difficult to control in a coal-burning plant than sulfur and soot exhausts.

A Clark University study estimated that when coal plants are located near large cities the exposure to radioactivity is 50 times greater than for nuclear paints the same size.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said last year "there is some uncertainty" about whether toxic metals can be controlled in coal exhausts. It listed 14 toxic metals in coal exhausts: arsenic, antimony, cadmium, lead, selenium, manganese, thallium, beryllium, chromium, nickel, titanium, zinc, molybdenum

CLEAN AIR ACT — Adopted, 255 for and 139 against, an amendment softening federal auto-emission standards. It was attached to the 1977 Clean Air Act Amendments (HR

6161), later passed and sent to the The amendment was supported by ROLL CALL REPORT

the auto manufacturers and the United Auto Workers union and opposed by environmentalists. It gives auto makers a two-year delay (until the 1980 model year) before they must meet hydrocarbon emission standards, temporarily waives the proposed nitrogen oxide standard, and permanently softens the carbon monoxide standard. Those are the three major auto pollutants regulated by the 1970 Clean Air Act Rep. James Broyhill, R-N.C., sponsor of the amendment, said its purpose "is to achieve strict air quality controls and, at the same time, balance this concern with other national goals." He added: "Our amendment will not only control automobile pollution, it will also save fuel, hold down consumer costs and preserve the strength of the American economy Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., an opponent, said: "The auto industry has spent an incredible amount of money in this lobbying campaign, and I think if they had spent that money in trying to meet these standards we would not be fighting this fight out today, and we would be talking about cleaner cities and healthier people

PORPOISES-Adopted, 244 for and 109 against, an amendment lowering the quota of porpoises that can be killed by commercial tuna fishermen in 1977. The overall bill (HR 6970) had recommended a quota of 78,000, but this amendment lowered the number to 69,000. HR 6970 was later passed.

The Senate has not yet acted. The bill's main thrust is to resolve the dispute between environmentalists and the merchant marine industry over the porpoise killing that is an incidental by product of yellow-fin tuna fishing. The porpoises, a diminishing species, are unavoidably netted along with the tuna, and HR 6970 seeks to minimize the incidental killing while protecting the economic interests of the tuna industry.

Ranger tells park story

SPENCER, Tenn. (AP) - Rangernaturalist Dan DeGroat gave up city living to become a story-teller in the wilderness, unraveling the mysterious workings of nature for visitors to Fall Creek Falls State

"Trees, plants, animals everything — is interrelated," says DeGroat, 24. "We want visitors to go home with a feeling rather than a set of facts." DeGroat points out that the 256- foot Fall Creek Falls, the highest waterfall east of the Rocky Mountains, is becoming smaller as deposits build at the bottom and water slowly erodes the sandstone at the top.

"So I know this is sandstone - so what?" he asks. "What they (visitors) need to know is that a layer of shale lies under the sandstone and gives the waterfall its general characteristics. If it was reversed, there probably wouldn't be a water-DeGroat said the falls will collapse one day because the cascading water is wearing away the shale at the bottom of the falls faster than the sandstone at the top. One day, the bottom will be unable to support the weight of the top. Over hundreds of thousands of years, the falls have moved up the gorge, responding to the constant but imperceptible erosion, collapse and rebuilding. "There are many stories to be told of the park," DeGroat said. "For instance, the environment at the bottom of the falls is comparable with that of southern Canada. DeGroat's role is not simply that of a story-teller, however. He's also trained, along with the park's other rangers, to provide emergency medical care when needed in the park's rugged wilderness.

Nuclear power plants plan new security measures

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - 'Tiger teeth" that can rip steelbelted radials, to ribbons, "deraiters" that can send a locomotive zooming off the tracks. microwave sensors that can detect an intruder - these are just a few of the "science fiction" devices that figure in a massive security buildup now under way at the nation's nuclear power plants.

The new measures are the result of a federal ruling calling for amended security plans this year for America's 74 civilianoperated nuclear facilities Sixty of them house nuclear reactors; the other 14 are licensed to handle plutonium and highly enriched

"James Bond may have had a bomb-toting briefcase and a car that could spread its own oil slick, but that was kid stuff compared to the real thing," says George S. Rye of Honeywell's fire and security systems section, which plans and coordinates such elaborate security setups. "If a saboteur has designs on a nuclear plant in the future, the only thing he's going to sabotage is himself.

"Each nuclear facility is different. The terrain varies So does plant design," Rye points out. "For different nuclear plants we're taking a variety of approaches, so we can adapt to each individual situation. Those approaches may include a concrete "yehicle barrier" erected around the entire plant, an illuminated "isolation zone" that extends for 20 feet on both sides of this barrier and microwave sensors that sound an alarm and turn on TVcameras to scan the zone whenever it is invaded.

"We've discussed many other things," Rye adds, "even the possibility of water-filled moats like they put around castles in the Middle

Some plants may require "tiger teeth." These are rows of vicioussteel spikes protruding from the pavement of the road to rip up the tires of a vehicle attempting to enter. Would-be saboteurs who commandeer a supply train and try to gain access by way of the railroad will face a similar obstacle. Derailers that remain in place except when specifically moved will send the hijacked locomotive right off the tracks.

Since sabotage from within is also a consideration, over-all plans include such things as:

-Electronically encoded access cards for each employe. These must be submitted to an electronic "reader" that checks such facts as whether the employe is due at this particular time and at this specific door. If not, the door will not open.

Ehrlichman's 'ghost' reportedly haunting old office building

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) - The ghost of Abraham Lincoln that's supposed to haunt the White House may have a rival in the neighboring Old Executive Office Building, which houses part of President Carter's staff.

The new "ghost" that is said to stalk the marble-floored corridors of the Old EOB, a 19th century relic venerable enough to house an attic full of spirits, has been given the name of John D. Ehrlichman.

Of course, Ehrlichman also was the name of the domestic policy assistant to resigned President Richard M. Nixon. It should be added that Nixon's Ehrlichman is alive and miles away from Washington, serving a federal prison term in Arizona for Watergate-related crimes.

The "ghost" surfaced a few months ago when Carter's people decided to try out an automatic pen used in past administrations by officials called upon to sign more letters than they could manage without help

Housed in the EOB basement, the pen machine uses a large circular matrix to duplicate each particular signature.

According to an administration source, a Carter employe set the machine in motion and, lo, the signature that emerged read "John

D. Ehrlichman.

This caused consternation, and gave rise to the fresh ghost story, because it is standard procedure to immediately destroy the signature matrix of each departing official. The real Ehrlichman had been fired by Nixon, albeit reluctantly, four years earlier.

Even if you never wondered what Presidents and their wives talk about in private, the following might prove instructive:

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, did not betray a trace of a smile this week as he reported on one such conversation, by telephone, between the President and his hemisphere trotting wife Rosalynn.

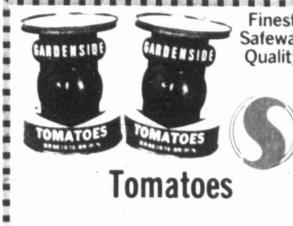

"The President did talk to Mrs. Carter this morning." Powell related. "She was very pleased with her visit to Peru. She told the President that she recognized that the visit to Brazil would be one of the more difficult stops on her trip, but she felt that a frank discussion of various agreements as well as differences would be the best step toward increased understanding.

"She told him all that?" an incredulous reporter asked.

"That's what he said," Powell responded, unable at this point to conceal a broad grin.

Tuna fishermen vs. porpoises may become war which nobody can win

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) -In the case of the courts, the Congress, the porpoises and the tuna fishermen, there are no known winners.

Instead, there are angry fishermen. dissatisfied environmentalists, jobless cannery workers and dead dolphins. There also is the consumer, but by act of Congress, as interpreted by the courts. his interests rank well down the line.

the search for a solution, could go into a handbook on how the government got the way it is. # Summer cookouts can feature a special delight — roast turkey

Cookouts are a part of summer living and a turkey spinning on the spit or roasting in a covered grill is a great tempter. The aromas wafting from the grill arouse appetites for the delightful meal.

If you have a rotisserie attachement for your grill, follow the manufacturer's directions to buy the right size turkey so it will fit on the spit. Thaw the bird in the refrigerator. Untuck the legs and remove the giblets. Rinse the turkey thoroughly and retuck the legs. Do not bother to stuff the bird. The stuffing becomes too smoky in flavor. Stuffing is better when cooked in a covered pan or foil packet ing the grill. Insert the svit through the turkey and clamp securely. Tie the wings to the body of the bird. Place on the grill and make certain the turkey is well balanced to turn freely and smoothly

Begin to check the turkey for doneness after about 21/2 hours of roasting, using the same tests you use when roasting a turkey indoors. If you like, the turkey may be brushed with barbecue sauce to give it a little added zest. Do this during the last half hour of cooking because the sugar in the sauce tends to char if the sauce is brushed on earlier in the cooking. The Barbecue Sauce given here is a good blend of flavors.

Succotash cooked on the grill is a good companion with turkey. Place thawed frozen lima beans and whole kernel corn on two thicknesses of foil. Season with butter, salt, pepper and celery salt. Fold the edges of the foil to make a tight seal. The succotash will cook on the grill or directly on the coals in 30 to 40 minutes.

Boston's genealogical curiosity both long-lived, deep-rooted

EDITOR'S NOTE - Alex Haley's "Roots" may have caused a genealogy boom elsewhere in America, but proper Bostonians always have taken a special pride in their past. More than a natural curiosity about their ancestry is the lure, with the proper blood lines, of one or several of the 50 or so patriotic

By DANIEL Q. HANEY Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) - A large oil painting in the Massachusetts House shows the Puritans stepping onto the New World in 1630. Though they didn't know it then, these no-nonsense fellows were about to found the capital of American ancestor wor-

Descendants of the gray, forbidding men in that picture now are officers of Boston genealogical clubs.

Alex Haley's "Roots" may have kindled curiosity about ancestral origins in the rest of America, but in Boston the fad has long been a certified Brahmin institution.

Says James Bell of the New England Historical Genealogical Society: "Haley's certainly captured for a popular audience what it's all about. He's focused on what for us has been a persistent and continuing interest

"Massachusetts has always been interested in genealogy," says Corinne A. Hall, historian general of the Society of Mayflower Descendants of Plymouth. "We have more members here than anywhere else. But since 'Robert' came out and the bicentennial, we've had more inquiries than

Having a carefully documented family chart is as much a symbol of membership in Boston society as old money and new sailboats.

"Every Boston family has a person who is its recognized genealogist." says Cleveland Amory, a long-time observer of life among the upper

"These families make it perfectly clear they go back a long way. At its best, it's a feeling of family solidarity At its worst, it's unpardonable pride and snobbishness.

Long ago, Boston was ripe for ancestor envy, and the reasons run back to its origins.

Most important is its solid core of stout. Yankee families that fade to the Revolution and beyond. If they are curious about whether their forefathers were preachers or privateers, the courthouses and libraries around Boston have one of the nation's largest stockpiles of genealogical records

There are 50 or so of these organiza tions in Boston. All base their membership on descent from an early American. They have names like the Society of Descendants of the Colonial Clergy, the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence and the Society of Founders and Patriots of America.

There are, for example, the descendants of the Puritans pictured in the legislature. The painting shows Gov. John Winthrop flanked by Sir Richard Saltonstall and the Rev. George

8-year-old cyclotron laboratory used in medical, matter studies

The Washington Post

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - In an underground laboratory, encased in concrete walls 8 feet thick, University of Maryland Prof. Victor Viola aims a stream of helium atoms traveling at nearly half the speed of light at an obscure metal called Lithium 7.

In the same laboratory, Dr. George Harrison of the university's medical school bombards tiny bean sprouts with high-velocity neutron beams, while another professor is using the equipment to pry open an infinitesimally small atom to observe the makeup of the nucleus.

Their common laboratory is the Unviersity of Maryland's "Sectorfocused Ischronous Cyclotron, buried two stories beneath the University's physics building in College Park and described as one of the largest and most sophisticated cyclotrons in the world. The cyclotron was installed eight years ago at a cost of $4.3 million.

'What we are doing.' says Prof. Harry Holmgren, who directs the cyclotron operation, "are the basic studies which are extending our understanding of the nature of matter. We must understand matter if we are going to be able to use it.'

The equipment has enabled Viola to conduct experiments with the helium beam and Lithium 7 that he says tend to support a theory that argues that the universe was created billions of years ago in a huge, primal explosion.

At the same time, through use of the neutron beam, Harrison hopes to discover a superior way to treat

In simplified terms, the cyclotron works by forcing atoms of helium or hydrogen through an electromagnetic field that hurles them faster and faster in an upwardly spiralling orbit. Eventually the atoms reach speeds of one-quarter to one-half the speed of light — or 90,000 miles a second. Reaching the upper rim of the spiral, the beam is deflected into a 4-

shoots the particles directly at their

As the particles slam into the target for example, a thin sheet of lead foil if the target is the nuclei of lead atoms - the protons and neutrons of the nuclei are knocked around like billiard balls. Radiation detectors monitor these collisions and a computer receives these reports and records them on tape.

"We are trying to learn something about matter distribution on the surface of the nucleus of the atom. Holmgren said.

By measuring the kinds of collisions within the nuclei, the angles at which particles rebound when they collide. and what happens when a particle is knocked out of a nucleus, scientists add to their knowledge of the relationship of particles to each other. their distribution and the shape of various nuclei, Holmgren says.

When the cyclotron is running, he said, the radiation levels in the room where it is located are so intense that no one could survive for more than a few minutes - thus the 8-foot thick concrete walls. So, when someone like Victor Viola wants to conduct his tests for Lithium 7. the operation is monitored two stories above at a huge instrument panel with a battery of screens and dials.

When he began his lithium experiments, Viola said, he was not necessarily looking for evidence to support or contradict any theories of creation. He was merely looking for the origins of Lithium 7 along with three other light metals.

To do that, the cyclotron was set up to duplicate the kinds of nuclear reactions that occur in the interstellar dust that fills vast expanses of space between the stars."What we're doing is using the cyclotron to duplicate the cosmic ray flax," said Viola. To do that, the cyclotron was set up to slam the nuclei of helium atoms into each other, bombard carbon and nitrogen nuclei with protons, and trigger other nuclear reactions that resemble the cosmic ray process.

What the experiments showed was that the natural abundance of three of the metals could easily be explained by the cosmic ray process. "But every place where we have Lithium 7 involved, the story breaks down,' said Viola. "One has to find another source for the origin of Lithium 7 other than the nuclear reactions in the intersetellar dust.

Most physicists believe this points to the "big bang" as the source of most of the Lithium 7 in the universe,

While Viola continues his probe into

the mysteries of Lithium 7, Harrison searches for a better cure for cancer as/ he experiments with radiation treatment on bean sprouts. 'You can always eradicate a tumor with radiation, says Harrison, "but you run the risk of damaging the healthy cells, too. What we're looking for is a quality of radiation where the normal tissue can be spared.

There is evidence, Harrison said, that neutrons — those particles of the atomic nucleus that are not electrically charged — tend to attack the cancerous cells while leaving the healthy ones alone.

So, once every three or four months for the past few years, Harrison has been loading a glass water tank filled with bean sprouts into the back seat of his car and driving from his baltimore office to the cyclotron here.

There he puts the sprouts directly in th path of a high velocity beam of neutrons being fired out of the cyclotron. He uses bean sprouts, Harrison says, because their radiation damage properties closely resemble those of human cells. He places them in a tank of water because that enhances their similarity to cells in the human body.

Harrison figures he has subjected about 2,000 bean sprouts to the neutron treatment so far. He is convinced the cancer treatment is effective, but he is not yet sure just how effective.

Hanoi warring

on rats

HANOI - A rat extermination campaign is underway in Hanoi to prevent summer epidemics, after several reported cases of bubonic plague in southern Vietnam.

Agence France-Presse

The measures will supplement a nationwide vaccination program against plague begun in the past few days, the health service said recently in a long article in The Daily Hanoi Moi.

This extermination campaign should be more "radical" than previous attempts, indicating a minimum goal of effectiveness of 85 per cent The operation will be carried out in four phases.

First, the rats should be starved the article urged. Persons responsible for grain silos, food stores, canteens, food stalls and restaurants have been instructed to be on the lookout for rodents.

Second, the rats should be poisoned with zinc phosphide mixed with cooked rice, onions and lard. The process should be repeated for three nights. The dead rats should be collected without touching them, powdered in pesticide, and then buried in quicklime. After 15 days, the powder "ragumin" will be used to kill the hardier survivors by inducing edema of the lungs and suffocating the rodents.

Earthquake memories still vivid in Italy

By PIERO VALSECCHI

GEMONA, Italy (AP) - "I can see the earth breaking open and the mountain collapsing on our houses. Then I wake up and I realize it's not true, that I was dreaming. But it happens often and I am always afraid," says Roberto, a 9-yearold boy who lives in a refugee camp a year after an earthquake destroyed his house and killed his grandparents.

Roberto is one of the many children of Friuli still shocked by the experience of the jolts which nearly destroyed his town and nearby villages, killing 950

His fears, shared by many adults, are kept alive by continuing earth tremors, which still can be felt occasionally in this mountainous region near the Austrian and Yugoslav frontiers.

The May 1976, quake deeply influenced, and upset, Roberto's life. He has given up school to help out with chores in the prefabricated barracks where he lives with his father, a mason

His mother, employed in another village, only comes home once a week.

"I read and I write at home, but I no longer go to school. I fear living here but at the same time I can't stand the idea of leaving. I have my friends here and I sometimes like to go to downtown Gemona and visit the place where my house was." he says.

Several teachers in nursery and elementary schools based in barracks here noted that many children have developed aggressive tendencies as a result of the quake.

"It is not a general trend, however." one teacher emphasized. "Others are quiet. For instance, one boy who was buried for hours in his collapsed houses is extremely calm and never shows signs of fear.'

Adults express other reactions. Dino Cum, 42, who fell from a third-floor terrace the night of the quake but landed unhurt in the debris, almost miraculously, says he sometimes feels an oppression at night.

"You feel threatened, in danger. Yet I can't survive away from here," Cum says.

He had moved to Switzerland with his wife and their 5-yearold daughter, Rossella, after strong aftershocks which, he says, were psychologically worse than the quake "and shattered my nerves.

"I was really afraid and I decided to quit my land. But after a few months we returned here. Living away was worse than anything else.

The Cum family lives in barracks a few miles from

Old Nashville Union Station's future in doubt

By JOHN NOLAN

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ravaged by time and weather and surrounded by the automobiles that helped outdate it, historic Union Station here remains as a tribute to the heyday of railroading.

Various plans have been discussed to renovate or preserve the station, a landmark in Nashville since 1900. But although Union Station apparently has an emotional attachment for many, it sits in disuse.

partly decaying due to a leaking roof The station has been called one of the South's great railroading centers. Even today, lines run west-from it to places like Memphis, Chicago and Evansville, Ind., and east to Chattanooga, Atlanta and other cities. A regional executive of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad - owner of the station - admits the facility remains centrally located even today for railroad operations.

And the station and its adjoining train shed have been declared national landmarks, raising a hope for some that federal funds may be available for restoration work. But such plans are still tangled in

"I would hope they'd fix it up," said Phil Hooper, resident vice president for the L&N Railroad. "In the South and for my generation, there's a lot of sentiment for the station. Dedicated in the fall of 1900, Union Station has been padlocked since mid-1975, ordered closed by city officials because of extensive wall damage from a leaking slate roof and outdated wiring, among other factors. Hooper said the city had ordered the railroad to tear down the attached train shed, which had its supports partly damaged by a derailed train several years ago

But he said officials are delaying such action. The shed is nationally known in engineering circles for its roof trusswork

And Union Station itself, which was used until the late 1960s, still shows evidence of grandeur, despite piles of fallen plaster, broken or missing windows and holes in the roof

Inside, a curved ceiling of stained glass frames arches high over the floor of the enormous passenger rotunda, and rose-colored glass still adorns the frames of what were office windows. Ornately carved wood appears on stair railings, and decorative metal grillwork is to be seen in many

The building was constructed with Bowling Green, Ky., limestone and Tennessee marble, with a black slate roof. A main tower rises nearly 240 feet over the street, where a big clock, now fallen apart, and a statue of the Greek god Mercury - blown down by a windstorm in the 1950s - were once located.

Charles Howell, a local contractor and member of a group called Historic Nashville Inc., said interest remained high in saving the station.

In talks to civic groups about several historic local buildings with which he has been involved, Howell said, "The first question almost invariably is what's going to happen to Union Station.

But he added, "There's no way to know what it would cost until you knew what you wanted to do with

Meetings have been held in recent years to stir interest for the station, but no strong public move has emerged. George Emery, an official of the National Park Service's Historic Sites Survey, concedes some federal funds would be available for work on the

But he and other officials agreed that participation by the city and widespread support by the public are essential to saving the station.

Hooper, although admitting he is emotionally attached to the facility, said it was not in the business interests of the railroad to restore it the mountain overhanging Gemona, whose slopes show the wounds, signs of the quake-caused land-

The epicenters of the jolts were very near Gemona and the Cums often feel tremors, even the light ones. "Rossella immediately wakes up and calls her mother as soon as she feels a jolt. Sometimes she cries and runs into our bed. However, we feel safer in the barracks. We only hope the jolts stop and give us time and will to rebuild our houses," Cum says. But Teresa Cucig, 75, of Tarcento, said living in a tent for some months, in cold and rainy weather, was worse than any tremor

Market pulls back

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market pulled back a bit today as traders awaited further signs of the direction of interest rates.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.81 at 909.18, after a 9.92 advance Tuesday and Wednesday.

Losers slightly outnumbered gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed ussues.

Brokers said the Dow's advance in the last two days had brought it to a level where technical analysts expected it to meet with some resistance. Traders also seemed inclined to hold back awaiting weekly money-and-credit statistics from the Federal Reserve late today, and the decision by New York's Citibank Friday morning on whether to raise its prime lending rate from 634 to 7 per Brunswick ranked among the most active NYSE issues, down 3/8 at 131/8. A 127,000-share block traded at

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks slipped .08 to 53.57. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .04 at 113.72.

Volume on the Big Board slowed to 8.03 million shares by noontime.

PBRPC OKs Community Block Grant

By JIM STEINBERG

A request for a $946,000 Community Block Grant by the City of Midland received favorable review from the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Board of Directors (PBRPC) Tuesday.

The Community Development Block Grant money for the year 1978 must now be approved by the Dallas district office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The application will be in the hands of government officials in Dallas by the end of this month, City Manager James Brown said today.

Included in the application is $310,000 for paving and curbing, $220,000 for housing rehabilitation, $140,000 for a senior citizen's center, $114,000 for park improvement, and $56,000 for planning.

The PBRPC board of directors also reviewed favorably an application for a $21,000 grant by Midland County. The grant, along with $40,000 from a grant last year, would be used for the purpose of constructing a rehabilitation and counseling facility for operation by the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The facility would be for drug detoxification.

Other items receiving favorable review and comment included: A job placement grant for $15,102 to the vocational rehabilitation unit of Big Spring State Hospital from the Texas Rehabilitation Commission.

- A request by the City of Big Spring for $104,000 from the Economic Development Administration, to be matched with $34,915 in local funds, to hire professional staff to coordinate the industrial development program designed for the Webb Air Force Base facility. Funds are also included for the purpose of hiring a consulting firm to develop an economic adjustment strategy plan for the entire

- A preapplication for a limited profit loan to the Farmers Home Administration. The corporation is requesting $480,000, and will match this with $25,300, for a project total of $505,300. This money will be used to construct a 32 unit housing project for low to moderate income families in Seminole.

— A request by the Big Spring Independent School District for $191,531 from the Department of Health Education and Welfare to fund its full year-part day 1978 Head Start program. With an applicant contribution of $53,119 the project totals $244,650. The district is also submitting supplemental applications for building and playground improvements, $2,000, and medical-dental services, $2,000. The Big Spring Head Start program serves residents of Howard County, using a complete school building with ten classrooms and campus. Two hundred children are enrolled in the program.

Upton County Judge Mrs. Peggy Garner was elected vice-chairman of the PBRPC and Fort Stockton city councilman Gene Day was chosen

The total fiscal year 1978 PBRPC budget is $3,740,915. The operating budget is $870,549 and $2,870,366 passes through the agency to local governments and manpower recipients

Hofheinz says he won't seek another term

HOUSTON (AP) - Mayor Fred Hofheinz announced today he will not seek a third two-year term in the Nov. 8 city election. Hofheinz, 39, said it is time to let new faces give

Houston government a fresh momentum. Immediate speculation on a possible successor centered on Frank B. Briscoe, a former district attorney, and Jim McConn, a former city councilman. Briscoe made an unsuccessful challenge against Hofheinz in 1975. Hofheinz, now in his second two-year term, said

"Good government requires change and innovation. It requires new faces, fresh ideas and the energy of new leadership — the kind of new leadership that I brought to city hall almost four years ago

Dear Dr. Solomon: My two little grandchildren — they are three and five — are full of mischief, and I do not think my daughter is careful enough about seeing that things like bleach and cleansers are kept out of their reach. However, she never takes my advice about anything. Do you have some official kind of list of safety precautions - one that she wouldn't pooh-pooh as coming from an old worry bird? =

Dear Mrs. F.: You are absolutely right about how important safety measures are with your children who are still too small to read or understand warnings on lables — and who are bent on exploring everything in sight. About a million children a year are involved in poising accidents. Here is what the American Red Cross urges as precautions to help parents keep children from getting hold of poisonous substances.

1 - Keep all household products out of sight and out of reach of children, preferably in a locked cabinet or closet.

2 - Remove the container to a safe spot if you have to leave the room, even for a minute, while using one of these products.

3 - Store household cleaners and medicines separately from foodstuffs, and always keep these, items in their original containers - never in cups or soft drink bottles.

4 - Since children tend to imitate their elders. avoid taking medicine in their presence. 5 - Never carelessly discard toxic products in waste containers that are accessible to children. 6 - Forbid children to taste medicines, chemicals. plants or berries they find. Insist on this.

7 - When speaking of medicines to children, call each one by its proper name, and never refer to them as candies. Safeguard pills that are flavored or colored, as children will eat them like candy

To D.T., St. Cloud, Minn: I'm glad you feel better since you had your fecal impaction dug out. Fecal impactions are due to feces staying for long periods in the rectum (or occasionally in the large colon). This results in too much reabsorbtion of water, which leaves the feces very hard and impacted. You are right-to have your doctor take care of it because it's the only way to feel better in such a case.

Kansas City parks director heads growing domain

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If parks are the lungs of the modern city — Frank Vaydik is the man who makes Kansas City breathe.

For the past 13 years, the 63- yearold director of parks and recreation has been protector, guardian and cultivator of one of the largest and what has been called one of the finest urban park systems in the United States Vaydik, an unabashed naturalist, has fought off developers and other "encroachers" while enlarging Kansas City's park lands from 5,700 to 9,500 acres. This means that he oversees an area slightly less than half the size of the whole island of Manhattan. Swope Park, Kansas City's largest with 1,771 acres, alone, is twice as big as New York's famous Central Park.

Along the way he has found time to create a multitude of popular recreational activities that range from mobile jazz concerts in the inner city to belly dancing for senior citizens.

He has planted thousands of trees and oversees 5,000 rose bushes, 200 flower beds with 38,000 tulips and more than 150,000 assorted flowers. They bathe the city in a rainbow of colors backed by the lush green of the 140-mile boulevard system that interconnects Vaydik's parks.

Vaydik came here from the Detroit parks department in 1964 because, as he explains, Kansas City — with less than half of its 316 square miles developed — "still had room to grow to provide the vital open space missing in so many of our troubled and overcrowded cities."

vercrowded cities."

He found a city that had a long

Western-style love affair with space and natural beauty. The park system itself was founded back in 1890 when William Rockhill Nelson, the blustery editor of the Kansas City Star, used his own money to hire city planner George Kessler to begin the park and boulevard system.

The parks department is an independent government body — outside political influence Land acquired by the department can be sold only after a referendum by city voters. The clincher: park land cannot be used for any other purpose; it is off limits for fire stations, police stations, schools — and especially while longer before a final decision is made on a possible accommodation of some World Hockey Association franchises by the National Hockey

'Certainly the issue is so complex that nobody can make up their minds right now," said Ed Snider of the Philadelphia Flyers, a driving force on the NHL's fact-finding committee

But at least the NHL's Board of Governors has voted to permit the fact-finding committee to continue and see if the leagues can be brought together.

The fact-finding committee wouldn't have continued if it did not have a solid expression to continue. Snider said Wednesday

Snider indicated, however, that if a decision to accomodate the WHA was not made by the end of meetings with the owner-player council in June 23-24, it was likely the issue would be dead.

"I wouldn't say it is too late for next season," said Sam Pollock, general manager of the Montreal Canadiens. "There are two or three ways of looking at it: You've got to have a schedule and you can't wait until the day before the season opens. You either go with the same 18 teams we such as Cleveland that aren't settled, or with some new clubs

After promising to have it settled by Wednesday, the governors again delayed, and it is possible that no final decision will be reached at these meetings on the proposed sale of the team by Mel Swig.

Businessman George Gund III said Wednesday he was optimistic that the league would accept a modified proposal to rescue the Barons. He was to make his pitch today to a special committee empowered by the governors to resolve the Cleveland

ALBERT ALSO issued seven of the walks, five in the first two innings, miraculously escaping with only tworun damage and they came as a result of bobbles behind him.

Midland got those back in the second when Steve Davis singled and Carlos Lezcano, the recent addition from Florida State University, pulled a towering home run over the left field

San Antonio went ahead for good in the fourth by using a walk to Marv Webb and singles by Randy Rogers and Art Fischetti for one run and when no one covered second on Fischetti's steal, Rogers scored on the

Charles Meyers, who had doubled in the second and singled in the fourth. hit his fourth homer in the seventh, a two-out, two-run job that came after one of Midland's four errors.

THAT LEFT Albert looking at a 6-2 deficit, four of the runs unearned, and Saul looking for a pinch hitter to get something going offensively

It wasn't until the eighth that Midland finally rousted starter Mike Seberger, 1-2, who started the game with an earned-run-average of 21.43, a misleading statistic in view of the way he handled the Cubs. Seberger, who started the season

Ryan kills 19 Blue Jays

By The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan spent Wednesday night striking out 19 Toronto batters in 10 innings, but all he got to show for it was a no-decision.

"That's the best I have ever seen Nolan pitch," said California Manager Norm Sherry. "It was as easy as he's ever thrown. That's the way Sandy Koufax used to pitch, nice and easy

Ryan, who tied a career high with the 19 strikeouts, was not around when Bobby Grich led off the 13th inning with a home run, giving California a 2-1 victory over the Blue Jays. The right-hander with the blazing fastball was relieved by Da've LaRoche in the 11th and left the park before the game ended.

"He makes a shortstop feel like a spectator," said Grich. "When he pitches, I feel I should pay my way into the park. I get maybe one ground ball a game. He's awesome.

Ryan struck out 18 in nine innings but was trailing 1-0 until Bobby Bonds' two-out single in the ninth tied the score. Both Ryan and Toronto starter Jesse Jefferson carried nohitters into the sixth inning.

Expos know good deal

NEW YORK (AP) - Give the Montreal Expos credit for this much-they know a good prospect when they see him.

The Expos liked Kalvin Adams enough to make him the No. 1 over-all selection in baseball's amateur free even though they were unable to sign the Central Arizona Junior College third baseman-outfielder, that didn't change their opinion of the young

So, when the Expos' turn came up in Wednesday's secondary draft of players previously selected but not signed, they came right back and picked Adams again.

Adams hit .415 in 83 games with seven homers and 77 runs batted in this season and was the second Central Arizona product to go in the first round of the secondary phase. Teammate Frank Ferroni, a lefthanded pitcher, was the opening selection, chosen by the Minnesota

"They're both ready to go out and play," said Coach Ken Richardson. 'They're in the same situation. Another year of baseball at this level won't really help them that much."

Adams was an all-around man for Central Arizona. Besides third base and the outfield, he even pitched and caught on occasion.

'He has outstanding potential as a hitter," said Richardson. "He has a big league bat."

Richardson said Adams had stayed in school after last January's draft because the Montreal contract offer wasn't good enough to lure him away. "But he wants to go and he's ready to play," the coach said.

Ferroni was drafted in January by the Cleveland Indians but didn't think he was ready for professional baseball at that point. He preferred a year of junior college experience and pitched 100 innings for Richardson's division champions, posting an 8-4 record and 2.79 earned run average in 16 games.

"He was our stopper," said Richardson. "He has average major league velocity and a pretty good curve ball.'

The Twins were enthusiastic about the 18-year-old left-hander.

"He's a strong, stocky-type kid," said scout Jess Flores, Jr. "His speed and curve ball are exceptional. He has good stuff with exceptional

Ferroni was one of a dozen pitchers selected on the opening round of the secondary phase. And Arizona Central wasn't the only popular shopping spot for the pros, who concentrated on junior college baseball

Pecos eyes state title Pro transactions

> AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Pecos looked for its first victory today in four trips. to the state schoolboy baseball tournament, and Duncanville sought to keep its championship streak alive

The tournament opener at 1 p.m. matched Pecos and no-hit specialist Linvel Mosby against newcomer Waco Midway and Uvalde, also making their first appearances in the tournament, were scheduled in the second game In the 4A semi-finals Thursday night, defending champion Duncanville plays Victoria Stroman and Fort Worth Southwest plays Houston

Duncanville won the title in 1975, as well as last year, after moving from 3A to 4A. Pecos was eliminated in first game losses in 1973, 1974 and 1976, and

Sharpstown also lost in the semifinals The two 1977 championship games are scheduled for Friday night

Mosby, who has a four-year earned run average of 1.25, was drafted by the Texas Rangers of the American League in the second round of Tuesday's pro draft.

Pecos lost 12 of its first 13 ganes while Mosby was recovering from an injury but won 15 of its next 17 games in advancing to the state tournament. Mosby struck out 17 of 21 batters in pitching a perfect-game victory over Seminole in the district finale.

Hillin experiences Indy

EDIYOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a three part series of the Midland based Longborn Racing Team's experiences at the Indianapolis 500. Midland businessman Bobby Hillin is principal owner of Longborn Racing, Inc.

Bobby Hillin once said that if something went wrong with his own car, he couldn't fix it himself. So it may have come as a big surprise to Midlanders when the fact was released that Bobby had two cars entered in the Indianapolis 500, the Super Bowl of the race world.

Hillin is like a lot of race fans. He loves the competitive atmosphere of auto racing-the excitement, tension and high speeds. But it is a well known fact that Bobby likes to be in the middle of the action. The sidelines is not for him.

TWO YEARS ago Hillin formed Longhorn Racing, Inc. with the idea that one day he would see the Indianapolis 500 from pit row instead of the stands. It was only a matter of time before it actually happened, but the surprise is that it came so soonnot with one car, but two.

When the Indy 500 got off to a flying start a couple of weeks back, Hillin had a car in the 13th and 33rd positions on the starting grid. Not bad for the first time out for any racing group. In fact, that is almost unheard

HILLIN NEVER intended to have two cars entered in this year's Indy. and the way it came about was not exactly the way Longhorn Racing had planned it 'We purchased a championship car last August," Hillin revealed. "It was a get our feet wet sort of thing. We wanted to see what the real costs were with the idea that we would go to Indy with the Eagle car we had bought 'Early this year, we realized that the old Offy engine in the Eagle was not competitive. The Foyt V-8's and the Cosworth's were just too powerful. So, we purchased a Wildcat from George Bignotti, who is the chief mechanic for Patrick Racing. Bignotti's cars have won six Indys. and the one we bought was the same one that Wally Dallenbach drove last year at Indy

"WE INTENDED to sale the Eagle, but we hadn't sold it by the time the Indy qualifying was upon us, so we decided to let Bubby Jones have a try at qualifying the Eagle. We never thought it would qualify

George Snider, a 12-time Indy driver, drew the new Wildcat because he was a championship racer with experience. Snider had driven the old Eagle for Hillin last year in the United States Auto Club's championship for championship cars although he is well known for his sprint and dirt championship racing on the USAC scene. Jones had to pass his rookie test at Indy before he could even take the Eagle on a qualifying spin. The two choices were the logical moves to make. Jones will again drive for Hillin in the sprint and dirt championship divisions this year while Snider will be the championship

Jones, on the other hand, is a rookie

series

make the road clear for two cars. Snider qualified for the Indy race on the first weekend of qualifying and Longhorn Racing secured the sponsorship from Mel Simon and Associates, a firm that builds shopping centers across the country. It was a one race sponsorship, but it cleared the way for Hillin to enter the Eagle and give Jones a chance to qualify. Later, when Jones did qualify, Longhorn Racing got another sponsorship from Bruce Cogle Ford.

That's really how Hillin made his racing debut at the Indy 500, but the qualifying and race itself proved to be quite an experience. But that's a story for another time. NEXT: Qualifying for the Indy 500.

Bugaboo on premarital sex among youths applies to immature, confused adolescents

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl who many times has felt like going further than I should with a boy I really like. Abby, I'm going to ask you a sex question I wish I could ask my mother but can't because all I would get is a lecture.

Why should a girl be expected to wait until she's married to have sex? We all have normal passions that get stronger with adolescence. Married people have an outlet for their sex, but what about unmarried people?

Other countries like Samoa permit premarital sex Why can't we? I can see logical reasons for not being promiscuous, such as danger of venereal disease and unwanted pregnancy, but when two people want sexand know how to prevent disease and pregnancy, why the big "No No"

Our society is so advanced in other ways, but it insists that unmarried people either suppress their normal sex urges or pretend they don't exist.

If there is any good reason why kids who are in love should refrain from premarital sex, I'd like to know what it is -SPEAKING FOR TEENS

DEAR SPEAKING: The big "No No" is not the relationship between two normal, healthy, MATURE, responsible people "in love"; it's the use of sex by the immature, irresponsible, confused adolescent who mistakes his first sexual stirrings for

"Knowing" how to prevent unwanted pregnancies and venereal disease is not enough to prevent them: witness NO decline in illegitimacy even with the Pill. And in spite of all the education concerning venereal pump disease, it's still a major public health problem.

When you are ready to accept all the responsibilities and commitments of "love" and a family. you will not ask me what is wrong with premarital

DEAR ABBY: I have worked at a service station COLUMBUS, MS. for the last seven months, and I never realized how rude and thoughtless people can be

I hope you can find it in your heart to print these suggestions for your readers to consider:

1. Please take a few seconds and roll down your window and tell us what you want. We don't have bionic ears and we can't read lips. If you hold up five fingers, that could mean five gallons of gas OR $5

2. Don't ask us to check your oil when you plan to go right home and put a quart in. We don't need the experience. If you can put oil in at home, you can

3. Please don't sit there with your door open while the attendant is trying to wash your windows.

4. When you finish using the air hose, please roll it back up and replace it on the hanger.

5. If all you have is a $100 bill, please ask the attendant if he is able to change it before he puts gas in your car. We keep our cash thinned down, and it's very irritating when someone gets a dollar's worth of gas and hands you a $100 bill.

6. If you want premium gas, please pull up to that pump. We can't get premium gas out of a regular

7. PLEASE don't complain to us about the price of gas. We have nothing to do with the price. We just

Thanks, Abby, Even if you don't print this, it sure felt good to get this off my chest.-I. H. IN

Small deeds lead to bigger ideas CLEVELAND (AP) - Flora shop for the boys as soon as the Freeman believes that the realization of grand dreams has to start with modest deeds which can then be expanded.

Mrs. Freeman, as the founder of United Reach Out Bond Hope Mission Inc., spends four afternoons, a week along with other volunteers to teach 20 to 25 underprivileged children about preparing meals, hair styling and sewing. This is done in a remodeled storefront in Cleveland's Hough neighborhood, one of the city's poorest. Mrs. Freeman and about 30 volunteers have converted the storefront to provide room for their activities.

On Saturday mornings there is a social hour for the youngsters, with dancing and refreshments. Mrs. Freeman wants to add a woodworking workshop can afford the equipment.

The mission survives on small contributions. It receives no grants. she said. But these modest efforts are only the start of bigger plans.

"I came from a little town right on the bank of the Mississippi River, where I saw a lot of bad things." she explained. "It was an inspiration to me to help people up here.

She said that one day she would like to start a "survival" meal program. When the money, food and kitchen equipment are obtained, the mission would like to serve meals the last 10 days of each month to low-income persons whose food money is exhausted.

'We're teaching children crafts that can lead to job skills," Mrs. Freeman said, "and we're keeping them off the street and out of mischief, too.

Women's army Classified head in Israel proud of job

By RANDI ROSENBLUM

For young women draftees in Israel's armed forces. Colonel Raz, whose real children are two sons, is a combination housemother, counselor and

"I deal with all sorts of problems — personal, social and professional," said the tiny officer who trained as a social worker. "I just love it. It's not the kind of job that anyone forces you to do.

Israel's men and women may serve on the same military bases, but they have separate barracks and separate duties. They are equal in every respect except combat, said the colonel. Israeli women fought against the Arabs in the 1948-49 war but have not done so since

'The most equal job is combat and we don't want it." she said in an interview here, for emotional reasons, "because of what happened to our girls

"But nobody in Israel says we can't do it mentally or physically," she continued, "because we did it. And in any other job we're equal.

Although the women draftees get one month basic training in the use of weapons, gymnastics and self defense, they serve as administrators, computer programmers, drivers and parachute folders.

"The army couldn't make it without the women," the colonel said proudly, citing the more than 200 iobs that women fill. "Just in the last year we have begun to take on 20 new technical jobs, in fields like mechanics, electronics and weapon repair. It's a big

"I'm sorry it didn't happen before because it should have," she said. "But I'm very happy it happened during my command. You don't see women in such jobs in civilian life.

In Israel, she notes, the military is a very high status profession for women. "We say that the two years in the army is an education in the best school that a girl could have." she said. "It teaches her to be independent and responsible. The positions and talks we give a girl at the age of 20 she wouldn't find on the

Colonel Raz, a seventh generation Sabra whose mother's family came to Israel about 150 years ago. is the first women in the family to become a soldier. She was drafted at 18, like all Israeli women, then decided to stay on because, she said, it was interesting. She became commander-in-chief in

"It's not just a job as in civilian life," she said. "At every level you make decisions - and you see the results. You have satisfaction.

As to the possibility that the commander of the Women's Corps will be made a general, as is the case in the United States, "The change will come, probably soon. But after colonel, you have first one-star general, and then general, So we've got a long way to go," added the colonel, deeply tanned and looking as though she had just spent two weeks on a beach rather than on a speaking tour for the Zionist organization, Pioneer Women Na'amat.

She is the mother of boys age 5 and 14, and her husband, a civilian engineer, is also a lieutenant colonel in the army reserve

"When you come home and the kids are jumping around, you stop being a colonel," she said.

"I love being a mother. I love being a wife. But after so many years I don't know if I could just stay home and watch everyone else go off to work and

The 38-year-old commander says she will probably go into social work when she retires from the military in a couple of years.

"If peace would come to the Middle East, maybe we won't need an army," she said wistfully. "Maybe someday I won't have my job anymore. 'Men can work in administration too.

Government to threaten terrorists

By ROON LEWALD

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) - The Dutch government was sending word today to South Moluccan terrorists holding 55 hostages in a train and a schoolhouse in northern Holland to free their captives or face dangerous consequences.

A government spokesman said it was "out of the question" that the twin sieges, which began 17 days ago, will be allowed to continue much longer.

Officials are becoming increasingly worried about the condition of the hostages, especially the 51 persons held aboard the commuter train 12 miles north of Assen

Cardiologist Jakob Nieveen said they may develop heart problems due to the stress, the lack of exercise and the uncomfortable conditions. More than half of them are over 40.

Dr. Nieveen made the comment after examining Theo J. van Hattem, 46, who was freed from the train Wednesday after becoming ill. Doctors said he might have had a slight heart attack.

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet were hoping mediators Josina Soumokil and Hassan Tan could convince the terrorists their position is hopeless. both "for their demands and for the political aims they have in view," a Justice Ministry spokesman said The mediators, elders in the 40,000-member South Moluccan community in The Netherlands, talked for nearly six hours with the gunmen aboard the train

Saturday but failed to make any progress. Eight to ten terrorists are believed to be on the train and four others are holding four teachers at the elementary school in nearby Dovensmilde.

Under Carter Energy Proposals

Motorhomes Escape Gas Guzzler Tax

STANDARD NEWS SERVICE Motorhomes, which get only six to ten miles per gallon, are excluded from President Carter's proposed gas guzzler 'tax program.

The Federal Energy Administration cites three reasons why motorhomes are excluded. 1 Motorhomes of which there are less than one million in the U.S., use less than one per cent of the coun try's total gasoline consumption. This is an insignificant portion of the 2.5 billion barrels of gasoline used last year in the United States by all motor vehicles. A barrel equals

2. The proposed "gas guzzler" tax, if passed by Congress, would be based on mileage rating certificates issued by the Environmental Protection Agency chasis, are not subject to EPA ratings. Only cars and light trucks are rated for mileage by the EPA.

3 Recreational vehicles with a gross vehicle weight of 10,000 pounds a category which includes most motorhomes are specifically listed as exempt from the gas guzzler tax in Carter proposals

Under the proposed Carter formula, automobiles which get fewer than 18 miles per gallon would be taxed on a sliding scale, beginning with 1978 models. A tax of $180 would be levied on a car getting 15 mpg. $449 on a car getting 11 mpg. But a motorhome getting 8 mpg. would not be subject to gas guzzler taxes.
