Natural gas decontrol wins important victory in House

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In the first key battle of what promises to be a summer-long war, natural gas producers Thursday won approval from a House Commerce subcommittee for an end to federal price controls on newly

Under intense lobbying from at least three factions, the House Commerce Committee's energy and power subcommittee voted 12-10 to end controls on so-called "new" gas. The action set the stage for subsequent battles in the full Commerce Committee later this month, in the special House energy committee after that, and still lafer on the House floor and in the Senate.

Had natural gas producers lost the subcommittee vote, a key congressional source said Thursday, their chances would have looked bleak But now, he said the producers have a decent chance of winning.

Gas producers were undaunted by President Carter's reversal of his campaign promise to support relaxation of federal price controls on natural gas. Instead they mobilized for another effort - after one that failed narrowly last year - to windecontrol in Congress.

The stakes, as in the past on this issue, are enormous.

Decontrol would mean billions of dollars in profits to the natural gas industry, along with correspondingly higher prices to consumers and the risk of some short-run damage to the economy. But it also could mean greater supplies of the premium fuel - highly desired because of its almost polution-free qualities — in the 1980s

The measure approved by the energy and power subcommittee, authored by Rep. Robert Krueger (D-Tex.), would add about $100 a year, on average, to the annual heating bills of the 40 million households using natural gas, according to the Carter administration, which opposed the

At the same time, the Administration said, the Krueger measure would increase revenues by producers by at least $56 billion over the next eight

Gas producers disputed the cost estimates and said that in return for what new revenues their industry did realize, consumers would receive more than equivalent benefit in the form of new discoveries and greater future supplies of the fuel

Understanding the debate and how it is likely to proceed requires a quick look at the positions of the other main participants and at the present pricing system.

At present: the U.S. natural gas market is divided roughly in half gas sold to interstate pipelines and gas sold "intrastate" or in the same state in which it is produced.

The price the producer receives for interstate gas is regulated by the Federal Power Commission, which has imposed a current ceiling price for new contracts of $1.45 per thousand cubic feet (mcf). The price of intrastate gas is uncontrolled and has recently sold for an average of about $1.84 per thousand cubic feet. although some contracts have been at prices well over $2 per mcf.

What almost all sides agree is that the present system cannot continue.

regulated prices and the other half free of control, relatively small supplies have been flowing into the interstate pipelines serving the great populated areas of the East, Midwest, and Pacific coast.

As a result, factories, stores, and even schools, homes, and hospitals in these areas have faced curtailed supplies, particularly during severe winters, while gas has been used to fire boilers in such producing states as Texas when oil or coal easily could have been used instead.

The disagreement comes over how to change the system The producers mustered more than week to lobby Congress in facor of decontrol

Meanwhile, consumer groups such as the Consumer Federation of America and Energy Action, have been equally active, although in smaller numbers.

In their view, even the $1.45 per mcf price approved by the Federal Power Commission for some new natural gas supplies, is too high. They note that as recently as 1970, contracts were signed at a price if 26 cents per mcf. and that the FPC staff estimated that a price of about 60 cents per mcf would give producers a reasonable return The consumer groups call for ending the inequitable disparity between the interstate and intrastate markets by extending federal price controls to previously unregulated intrastate gas, and then setting an 'equitable" price, which for many of them would mean a rollback. The Carter Administration also has called for extending price controls to the intrastate market, but it has no desire to roll back the price.

Under the Administration plan, as old contracts for gas expired, new contracts covering those same supplies would be limited to the current FPC ceiling of $1:45.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Gulf Oil Corp. is trying to persuade House investigators to keep secret a nineinch stack of documents allegedly proving the firm was at the center of an international cartel conspiring to boost uranium prices

A company which builds nuclear power plants says that price-fixing. activities of the alleged cartel helped drive the cost of uranium from $6 or $7 a pound in 1972 to $41 a pound.

A House subcommittee is holding a hearing today on Gulf's request that the documents be kept secret.

Gulf is being joined in its request by the government of Canada, which told the State Department that several documents are confidential records of the Canadian Department of Energy. Mines and Resources.

Canada claims the papers are protected by the Official Secrets Act. Last month Gulf lost a fight in U.S. District Court here to keep the documents out of the hands of the investigations unit of the House Commerce Committee.

The documents were then in the possession of the Westinghouse Electric Corp., a manufacturer of nuclear power plants. The firm has accused the alleged cartel of engineering a seven-fold increase in the price of uranium, which prevented it from meeting delivery contracts at agreed

In a hearing before U.S. District Court Judge George Hart last May 5, Westinghouse attorney William Jentes said the documents are 'nothing more than the minutes of these conspiratorial get-togethers of the producers ... to fix the world price of uranium.

Although he was prevented from quoting from the documents. Jentes described them in some detail. He said that in February 1972 major worldwide uranium producers met in Paris "to remedy this situation of oversupply and low prices. - He said the deal was made final at a meeting in Johannesburg, South Africa, in June 1972, when the producers "basically set a floor price for uranium which they thereafter. I might say, steadily raised.

administration a major defeat. The influential committee voted

Thursday to throw out Carter's plans for a standby gasoline tax, a tax on cars that get poor mileage and a program of rebates for people who buy cars that get good mileage But the administration is looking for some of the decisions to be reversed, and still is holding out hope for a stiff tax on crude oil. "We will probably re-evaluate our position when we get to the Senate.' said Laurence Woodworth, Carter's assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, after watching the committee administer the first of the three defeats on Thursday

Still to come is consideration of what some in the Carter administration view as the most important part of the President's tax package: a new tax on crude oil designed to make energy more expensive and thus force conservation. This would result in an estimated 7.6cent hike in the cost of a gallon of

-Rejected, 24-13, Carter's plan to place a tax of up to $2,500 on cars that get poor gasoline mileage. By the same vote, the panel substituted its own tax, a watered-down version that would delay the tax until 1979 and then apply it only to the most wasteful

Although Carter didn't request it; the committee voted 18 to 17 to take away the federal income tax deduction of state and local gasoline taxes. The deduction has been available only to those who itemize deductions. This plan, which passed the House two years ago but narrowly failed in the Senate, would cost drivers some $700 million more a

Another committee alternative to the Carter program did not fare so well. On a 25-11 vote the panel rejected an amendment by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-III., to raise the fourcent per gallon federal gasoline tax to seven cents next Jan. 1.

North loop receives clearance

The proposed north loop around Midland's urbanized area received formal clearance from environmental considerations, the state Department of Highways and Public Transportation announced Thursday.

Approval of the final environmental impact statement and public hearing data covering the development of the proposed 16.7 mile loop around Midland was received from the Highway Administration Federal Regional Director.

The proposed highway project, which was requested by both Midland city and county officials, contemplates the construction of a fourlane divided facility throughout the limits of the $37 million project.

The next step in the development of the proposed project will be considered by the state Highway and Public Transportation Commission which could come as early as June 30.

Midland, Ector areas show drug abuse hikes

By JIM STEINBERG

Midland and Ector counties lead the Permian Basin area with the greatest increases in drug abuse problems. according to a report by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission

Of the 994 persons arrested for drug abuse during 1976, 37 per cent occurred in Ector County and 26.5 per cent occurred in Midland County.

The next highest percentage of arrests for drugs was Howard County with 11.3 per cent of all the regional drug arrests. Of those arrested, 20.3 per cent were under age 18, 41 per gent were between 18 and 21, 29.1 per cent were 22 to 29 years old, 5.9 per cent were 30 to 39 years old and 30 per cent were age 40 and over. Curiously, a breakdown of the arrest statistics shows that 86.4 per cent were males and 13.6 were females.

"These percentages could be interpreted that more males have drug problems than females which may be true to an extent, but not as great a difference exists as these statistics indicate. The reason for this seems to be that males are more likely to be arrested for drugs than females are.' the report states.

Drug arrests for opium or cocaine and their derivatives comprise 11.6 per cent of all drug arrests in the Permian Basin. Drug arrests for marijuana comprise 84 per cent of all drug arrests in the region. The drug category of synthetic narcotics which can cause addiction, such as methadone, accounted for the smallest portion of drug arrests in the Permian Basin, at 1.9 per cent. Midland County reported 63.6 per cent of all arrests in this drug category. Dangerous non-narcotic drugs such as barbituates and benzedrine accounted for 2.2 per cent of all drug arrests. Ector County accounted for 69 per cent of those arrested. There were eight drug related deaths in the Permian Basin during 1976, according to the PBRPC report. Three were in Midland County, three were in Ector County and two were in Howard County.

Republicans call for Korean scandal prosecutor

By CHARLES BABCOCK The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In a move the White House quickly dismissed as unnecessary, two top Republican congressional leaders called on President Carter Thursday to appoint a Watergate-type special prosecutor to investigate the Korean Central Intelligence Agency's attempts to influence U.S. officials.

Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), the Senate minority leader, said at a press conference that "fairness and equity" demand that the Democratic administration pursue charges of South Korean influence-buying just as Republicans pursued the Watergate investigations that eventually toppled President Richard Nixon.

The Justice Department has been investigating allegations that the South Korean government spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash and gifts and entertainment on U.S. officials to ensure continued support for President Park Chung Hee's regime in Seoul. The inquiry has been going on for more than a year without returning any indictments.

Two House committees are conducting separate investigations of the Baker was careful to say he was not suggesting the South Korean scandal was a Democratic Watergate. "I hope it isn't," he said "But I do think the issue is important enough to deserve a full impartial investigation.

Baker and Rep. John Rhodes (R-Ariz.), who said he agreed with his colleague's suggestion, were vague in explaining why a special prosecutor was needed. Both cited Justice Department leaks to newspapers as one reason, but they could not offer specifics of such leaks.

White House press secretary Jody Powell responded immediately and negatively to the GOP demand, saying a special prosecutor was unnecessary because the Justice Department already was pursuing the matter vigorously

He described the Baker-Rhodes

press conference as a "fairly adept two-step," and added that he had "no desire to add to the attention he (Baker) would hope to attract."

A Justice Department spokesman said later that several other members of Congress have written Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, suggesting the appointment of a special prosecutor in the case. In each instance, Bell has replied that the department's public integrity section was pursuing all leads thoroughly without a time limit for completing the inquiry, the spokesman said.

In a related matter, the House ethics committee called an emergency closed meeting Thursday to discuss how to tighten its procedures for controlling the confidentiality of sensitive information.

The unscheduled meeting was called after The Washington Post reported Thursday that the committee had voted in executive session to subpoena four executive branch officials who might have had access to secret intelligence reports naming congressmen who took money from

The President told B1 backers on Monday that he would make a basic judgment later this month on what to do about the B1, one of the most expensive weapons programs ever proposed by the Pentagon. Following that session, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz, told reporters Carter "is becoming convinced that we can't live without the B1.

Although other members of

Probation 'successful,'

Pickett tells Rotarians

Putting persons convicted of crimes on probation instead of sending them to prison saves tax dollars and returns people to useful lives - instead of sending them to "a post-graduate course in crime" - state District Judge Perry D. Pickett told Rotarians Thursday

Pickett spoke to the Midland Rotary

About 90 per cent of those placed on probation in Midland successfully complete their probation period, Pickett said.

It costs between $4,000 and $5,000 to keep an inmate in the penitentiary.

Midlanders still seek swim record

The seven-member relay team from the City of Midland Swim Team passed the 255 miles mark at 12 noon today in its quest for a world record in the 300-miles swim, according to a team spokesman.

The team is swimming approximately 24 hours ahead of the record pace. Coach Doug Ingram expects the team to reach the 300-mile objective early Saturday morning.

If the team should set the 300-mile record, it will be the third world record they have set this week. They will try for a fourth, time the longest ever swum by a seven-member relay team. The two records the team has already set are for the 100-mile swim and for the longest distance swum by a seven-member relay team in 24

The 100-mile record was set about noon Wednesday. The longest 24-hour distance record was set at noon Tuesday. The team began their record attempts noon Monday.

The City of Midland Swim Team has made plans for the seven-member relay team to swim seven days. If they do complete the seven days, they will break the current record, which is about five days, set by a swim club-in California. The seven day period will end at noon Monday.

The records the team is breaking are officially recognized in the "Guinness Book of World Records."

Pickett said. Further, if everyone convicted of a crime was sent to prison, "we couldn't build enough penitentiaries to hold them," he said.

Persons on probation must meet several conditions or the probation can be revoked, Pickett said. The first condition is restitution to the aggrieved party, he said.

Other conditions include working at suitable employment, not violating laws, reporting to the probation officer regularly and avoiding injurious or vicious habits. Pickett said the law permits probation for persons already convicted of a felony, but he seldom uses it. He said he never uses probation when a person has been convicted previously of a violent crime. He said a recommendation from the district attorney of a probated sen-tence can be "a powerful inducement" for a defendant to plead guilty. Although he does not have to accept the district attorney's recommendation; he said; he does in 90 per cent of the cases presented

Pickett said he usually can look at the presentence report and tell whether or not an individual will be able to complete his probation period successfully.

Factors to consider are the deterrent effect of the sentence, the benefit to society and the benefit to the person's family.

"Overall, it (probation) is working. Overall, it's benefiting society," he

Two convicted on unemployment fraud charges

Two persons were convicted last week in county court of fraudulent application for unemployment

That brings the total for the year to three and another case is pending. D. H. "Pete" Hotchkiss of the Midland office of the Texas Employment Commission said Thursday.

In all three completed cases, the individuals said in the application they were not working when, in fact, they were employed.

Hotchkiss said those are the only four cases of that kind that have come to the commission's attention in Midland in the two-and-one-half years he has been with the Midland office.

With each of the three convictions, probation for one year was imposed and the individuals were required to pay court cost and repay the commission the benefits they received.

While some types of fraudulent statements are difficult to detect, it is almost inevitable that persons who are employed will be caught if they claim on their application they are not, Hotchkiss said.

Reports from employers are compared by computer quarterly to reports on those who are receiving benefits. If the computer finds that benefits were paid for a period in which a person was employed, an investigation is made, he said. In those cases in which a person misreported income because of an error, the commission does not prosecute, he said. "It's flagrant actions that we prosecute," he said.

"I would like to stress the fact that we feel that most people are honest and accept their statements as truth unless proven otherwise," he said.

As of this month, there are approximately 120 persons in Midland actively filing claims for unemployment insurance benefits, he said Midland currently boasts the lowest unemployment rate in Texas.

England death ruling reached

Justice of the Peace Robert Pine Thursday ruled justifiable homicide in the shooting death of Edwin Jewel England, 29, by a Midland police officer late Tuesday

According to Police Chief Wayne Gideon, autopsy results indicated England died of a single gunshot wound to the head. The projectile was a single pellet fired from a police shotgun and Detective Larry Biedsoe was the only officer using a shotgun. Gideon said.

England, whose latest address was listed as the West Wind Motel, was shot down on the parking lot of the Desert Inn West motel in the 3000 block of West Wall Avenue. Another man, Loy Blanscett, 52, of the 900 block of West Tennessee and a customer at the bar, suffered gunshot wounds to the chest and hand during the fray. He was listed in fair condition at Midland Memorial Hospital early today.

Gideon said Wednesday he will present the shooting case to the next Midland County Grand Jury for further investigation.

The White House estimates that under its plan producers would get additional revenue of about $15 billion in the next eight years, compared with at least $56 billion under the Krueger decontrol plan. However, the Congressional Budget Office predicted there would be no discernible gains to producers from the Administration plan, with price gains from sales of interstate gas just about canceling lower prices for intrastate sales once controls were extended to that The consumer groups have been bitterly critical of the Carter plan. They contend it would assure excessive profits for the producers. The Administration has countered that the higher prices — at least for interstate gas - called for under its plan are necessary both to encourage consumers to stop wasting the premium fuel and to provide produces with incentive to find more.

In recent days, however, the two camps have been allied in an effort to head off Krueger's decontrol measure, or, when it became apparent that the bill was likely to win approval in the energy and power subcommittee, to keep the margin as narrow as possible

The consumer lobbyists could count at least one victory: Rep. Martin A. Russo (D-Ill.), a freshman from the Chicago whom they besieged with arguments for more than seven hours, voted to oppose Krueger.

In the subcommittee, Krueger was able to get four of his fellow Democrats to join all seven Republicans in voting for his measure, which was approved as an amendment to the Administration

The 10 Democrats opposed to the measure included the chairman of the subcommittee, Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.), and the chairman of the full Commerce Committee. Rep.

take up the issue within two weeks. There, the balance appears to favor slightly some version of the Carter plan, although all sides agree the decision will be close. The sentiment for decontrol is not expected to be great in the special energy committee, charged with reconciling elements of the giant energy policy package reported by commerce, ways and means, banking

Harley O. Staggers (D-W.Va.).

The full committee is expected to and other committees. Nevertheless, by winning the subcommittee vote, the decontrol forces were given a good chance — even if they lose in all the other committees of obtaining a rule permitting a vote on decontrol on the House floor.

The challenge for the Carter Administration will be to chip away at some of their strength - perhaps by raising slightly the $1.75 ceiling price under the White House plan - while not going so far as to alienate too many of the consumer activists and their congressional allies

Angelo will introduce resolutions to mayors

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. will introduce resolutions on energy and in behalf of handgun ownership at the annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors beginning Sunday in Tucson, Ariz.

On Thursday Mayor Angelo said he was optimistic about the chance of the energy resolution being adopted. But he is not so optimistic about the chances of the pro-gun resolution.

During the 1972 conference, the mayors group adopted a stance which called for national legislation against the sale and private possession of except by law officers, the military and sportsmen's clubs.

"It's a stance that has been an embarrassment to many in the group," Angelo said. The position has been used as a rallying point for antigun people across the country, he

The resolution Angelo will submit on behalf of the City of Midland would repeal the June 1972 Policy Statement on Handgun Control.

"Whereas the June 1972 policy statement, if enacted into law, would repeal this right for millions of law abiding handgun owners and would bring harassment of millions of our citizens who lawfully own and use other firearms, while having questionable effect on the armed criminal," the resolution declares.

The energy resolution reads in part: "Whereas government price controls and overregulation have hampered rather than encouraged the development of our vast reserve of coal and shale oil while at the same time helping to create an otherwise avoidable shortage of natural gas:

"Be it resolved that the United States Conference of Mayors take a leadership role in encouraging the adoption of the free enterprise solutions to our energy problems, particularly in the area of production and development of our coal reserves and of our remaining reserves of oil and natural gas. Both resolutions will be submitted to the full body of the conference Wednesday

Turner has made a strong argument to President Carter and others involved in the debate over reorganization of the intelligence community that there should be greater centralization bringing NSA and the NRO under direct budgetary and operational control of the director of the community.

Turner, like his predecessors heads both the community and the CIA, but in practice actual control of NSA and the NRO has been exercised by the secretary of defense.

Brown has also taken his case to Carter, arguing that it would be a mistake to give any agency or individual a monopoly on intelligence estimates and operations.

For many years public transportation has been a deficit item in city budgets and while the trend shows no signs of changing, several alternatives are available to communities wishing to initiate a public transportation system. To understand public transportation and what it can add to a community it also is necessary to be aware of how much the system could cost the community.

As with most other service-oriented businesses, costs for providing public transportation have increased steadily over the years. It is important also to note that while the costs have gone up, the amount that could previously be covered through user fees or revenues has decreased Thus the establishment of a public transportation system in any city is a major decision that requires sound financial planning from the begin-

Two basic costs are involved in any public transportation system - 1) Capital costs - the first cost and replacement costs of vehicles, facilities and equipment, and 2) Operating costs - the continuing costs of administration, information services, drivers' wages and vehicle maintenance and fuel. Some state and federal subsidies are available to cities to help meet these costs, but beyond the subsidies, the sponsoring city must have plans for some kind of financing through their own local resources.

User charges or fares are a matter of public policy and vary from place to place, but it is a normal objective of public transportation to maintain a low cost so as to attract riders in all income levels and age categories. The more costly alternative is normally available already in the form of private transportation or taxis.

In most systems it has been determined that the average full-fare rider pays between 25 cents and 40 cents per ride with fares somewhat higher in some demand responsive systems. Also, as an incentive to increase ridership, school age children often travel for half-fare or less and the elderly and handicapped are sometimes aided by federal programs which allow reduced fares during non-peak hours.

Another program that is growing in popularity is the multi-ride ticket that can be bought on a monthly or annual basis and allow the holder a specific number of rides. Other programs have been worked out to provide specialized services at some reduced rates for agency clientele making predetermined "essential" trips in the community. It is interesting to see what per cent of normal operating costs are supported by user charges. In a 1974 study of Texas cities, user charges were shown to support only 35 to 50 per cent of the total operating costs involved in the systems. The study also determined that the relative costs supported by user charges continue to drop as costs have risen.

It is estimated that in 1977 user charges on most urban public transportation systems will support only 25 per cent of the total cost of operating the system.

With this in mind, communities wishing to initiate a public transportation system have available four methods of finance: 1) User charges or fares, 2) Contract payments made by agencies whose clients make use of services offered by the system, 3) State and federal programs, of which there are several, and 4) local resources.

It is expected that a public transportation system in Midland would operate on a deficit budget and sponsoring authorities would need to have a plan for offsetting costs not covered by other means. It is at this point that Midland citizens would have to decide how much they are willing to pay directly (fares) and indirectly (increased taxes) for public transportation in Midland.

Contraceptive ban unconstitutional

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court Thursday ruled unconstitional a New York State law banning the sale of nonprescriptive contraceptives to persons under 16.

In a far-reaching decision, the court held that the right of privacy as it relates to decisions on sexual relations "extends to minors as well as adults."

The justices also struck down two provisions in the New York law that, unlike the under-16 ban. are similar to those in the laws of numerous other states.

to overturn the New York law, but aligned themselves variously on key issues in the case. The decision affirmed a panel of three federal appellate judges that had nullified the law.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. wrote the opinion for the court. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger dissented without comment. Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented with an invocation of the memory of "those who valiantly but vainly defended the heights of Bunker Hill in 1775' and of those "brave men on both sides" who shed blood "at Shiloh, Gettysburg and Cold Harbor.'

Such men, Rehnquist contended, would be outraged that the court has "enshrined in the Constitution the right of commercial vendors of contraceptives to peddle them to unmarried minors through such means as window displays and vending machines located in the men's room of

On the issue of advertising, Justice Brennan wrote for the court that the constitutional guarantee of free speech prevents a state from completely suppressing information about the availability and price of contraceptives.

Plans are under way in Congress to create another federal overseer of business and thank goodness business organizations are all set to fight the proposal to the finish

This particular new agency, as proposed, would control the setting of measurement standards in private industry, including those used in manufacturing, construction and processing.

This traditionally has been done on a voluntary basis through such organizations as the American National Standards Institute.

An article appearing in the June edition of Nation's Business explains that a bill introduced by Sen. James Abouresk, D-S.Dak., the Voluntary Standards and Accreditation Act of 1977, would thrust the federal government directly into the process. The bill, S. 825, would establish a National Standards Management Board to oversee all standard-setting activities. The board would have the power to cancel standards and the accreditation of standardsetting organizations. There would be no appeal except through the courts.

Sounds somewhat familiar to other legislation adopted in the past, doesn't it? And we certainly do not need another federal agency to further disrupt the business community.

The bill is called "onerous" by Donald L. Peyton, executive vice president of the American National Standards Institute, because of its emphasis on "government coercion." He is in a position to know whereof he

The Nation's Business article says that in theory, the new agency would protect small firms against discrimination by standard-setting groups, but business organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States say present antitrust laws are sufficient for that purpose.

The magazine goes on to say that advocates of the legislation say that big firms dominate the standard-setting groups and that these groups sometimes set standards so high that small firms can't compete.

But Bernard H. Falk, president of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, argues, however, that "private standards organizations subject to antitrust prosecutions" have far more compulsion to be fair to all parties "than has a federal standards regulatory agency, with its effective immunity from prosecution.'

Hopefully, Congress will sidetrack this particular piece of unneeded legislation.

Carpentry at the Supreme Court

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - Inside the mortals who inhabit Washington.

The taxpayers provide the Supreme Court, for example, with a carpentry shop to repair the judicial furniture and maintain the woodwork. Some distinguished Justices are not above using the court carpenters, however, to nandle their personal woodwork.

Under the direction of chief carpenter Edward F. Douglas, the official woodworkers have used the taxpayers' lumber and facilities to construct and repair furniture for the jurists. No less than white-maned Chief Justice Warren Burger himself has used the carpentry shop to make picture frames for his wife and her

Later, carpenter Douglas wanted his son David to work for him in the carpentry shop. This sort of nepotism is forbidden by Civil Service regulations. Both Supreme Court Marshal Alfred Wong and personnel chief James Powers, therefore, refused to permit it. So Edward Douglas appealed to Chief Justice Burger who overruled the objections. Young David Douglas was quietly hired in violation of the Civil Service

We tried to discuss the carpentry scandal with the people whom our sources implicated. But if there's one from Watergate, it's how to stonewall We contacted the offices of everyone mentioned in our story. They either failed to return our calls or referred us to the court's public information officer, Barrett McGurn. He would say only that Edward Douglas had been a faithful employee of the court for 16 years, that his son David is on the payroll and that our charges are under study

Then, with the finality of a Supreme Court ruling, McGurn refused further comment and wouldn't let us speak to anvone else

FOOTNOTE: Our reporter Jonathan Bernstein, nevertheless, reached Edward Douglas at his home. The chief carpenter said he had spent his own time and used his own materials when he did work for the Justices. This is disputed, however, by other witnesses. He admitted that he had taken some timber - "good for nothing but firewood," he said from the court for his personal pier. He denied all the other charges and refused to comment about his son's

WASHINGTON WHIRL - It looks as if President Carter is welshing on another campaign promise. He got the endorsement of the National Education Association last year by promising to form a separate Dept. of Education. This would have to be carved out of the present Health, Education and Welfare Dept., and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano doesn't want his empire broken up. He appears to have the ear of the president on this subject.

- The census taker who knocks at your door in 1980 may be your friendly neighorhood postman. Every 10 years, 150,000 census takers swarm across America to make an official count of the population. But Rep. Tom Steed, D.-Okla., has spoken quietly to budget boss Bert Lance about letting the postmen conduct the census in 1980. Vance likes the idea.

- Storage space is so short at the White House, we heard, that there was a filing cabinet in the first-floor ladies' room. We sent our reporter, Gilda LePatner, to check it cut. She found a refrigerator that looks like a filing cabinet.

A CHANGING WORLD: President's words return to haunt him

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

Surprise and dismay have characterized President Carter's reaction to the victory of hard-line right-wingers in the recent Israeli elections.

His personal dismay is un-derstandable because the Likud Party's triumph makes peace a little bit tougher to achieve in the ongoing struggle with Israel's Arab neighbors.

The President, however, should not have been as surprised as he has indicated in a new series of big-power threats to the Jewish nation. It was his own pronouncements and threats against Jerusalem in the weeks prior to the May 19 elections that had a lot to do with the result that dismays

Despite his high popularity with those whom George Gallup and other pollsters interview within the United States, Mr. Carter again took the dangerous road in foreign affairs, a road that ended with results that were counterproductive.

First, he lost another opportunity to remain silent in a very sensitive situation

Second, he picked the worst possible time to warm up to Israel's enemies - principally Egypt, Jordan and Syria. He literally frightened the Israeli voting public into making a

Concerning silence being more effective than rhetoric, even a president inexperienced in foreign affairs might have listened more to advisers who cautioned that speaking out forcefully, as his penchant for a self-gratification has led him to do previously, is wrong at a time a friendly nation is involved in an election campaign that is closely linked to war or peace in the Middle

They had been the war route five times and they knew that giving up the Golan Heights, for instance, would be an open invitation to Syrian attack And, even though the Israeli Labor Party already was in trouble over corruption and inflation, the voters turned in greater numbers to the Likud Party as the one least likely to bow to Mr. Carter.

On the business of hob-nobbing with Israel's enemies, also at election time, Mr. Carter did another disservice to his own peace pronouncements in praising Syria's President Hafez Assad as "great and brilliant, one of my favorite leaders. This is the same Assad who has pledged to destroy Israel. Little wonder that Israeli voters took the

These results are unfortunate at this time because there might have been the start toward a Palestinian settlement if Mr. Carter had kept a more discreet silence — at least until after the Israeli elections.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Jordan's King Hussein had previously moved toward amity with Israel in statements that the Palestinian settlement would be in the form of an association with or under Jordan's control. Israel for several years has talked of a Palestinian "homeland" on the West Bank and Gaza Strip - so long as Jordan was in charge.

Now, that solution has been destroyed for a long time to come. And, war is a more likely prospect than peace in the Mideast.

This is too bad because Mr. Carter genuinely wants peace. But, again his urge to speak out and "do something" has betrayed his lofty motives.

GOP national chairman William Brock goes 'solo' that he could accept forthright refusal

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - After more than four months of ineffective collaboration with party leaders in the House and Senate, Republican national chairman William Brock has quietly decided to go it alone as party spokesman trying to respond to the effective political tactics of Jimmy

Brock wants to minimize joint public appearances with House minority leader John Rhodes and Senate minority leader Howard Baker. What's more, Brock plans national committee task forces to plot policy positions on the economy, energy, taxes, foreign policy and other questions without clearance from Rhodes and Baker.

Brock is consciously emulating Democrat Paul Butler (1955-60) in-stead of Republican Ray C. Bliss (1965-68) as the model for the national chairman of a party out of power. Butler's Democratic Advisory Council (DAC) ignored — and often infuriated — the Johnson-Rayburn leadership in Congress in taking policy positions. Bliss' Republican Coordinating Council (RCC) deferred to — and was usually dominated by — the Dirksen-Ford congressional

Actually, Brock's move will get strong support from congressional Republicans, particularly con-servatives who feel Baker is preoccupied by presidential ambitions and Rhodes lacks dynamism. These conservatives, disappointed by Brock's relative silence, eagerly

Project disputes continue

WASHINGTON (AP) - For the second time in three days, a Senate appropriations subcommittee failed to reach agreement on President Carter's controversial proposal to scrap 18 water projects.

During a recess in the subcommittee meeting, Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss, told reporters there was no chance the panel would decide today whether to eliminate funds for the dams and other water projects. He said another meeting would be scheduled early next week.

During the meeting, Stennis told the subcommittee members there were 'special matters" on which he wanted to postpone action until he could confer with Sen. John Mc-Clellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Mom's pardon sought The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A 9-year-old girl from Fort Worth, Tex., showed up in Washington this week with an unusual request. She wanted to see Jimmy Carter to ask him to issue a presidential pardon to her mother, who is serving a three-year prison sentence at a minimum security federal institution in Fort Worth.

The girl's name is Sandra Chandler, and while much remains unclear about her adventure, this much seemed clear: She delved into her piggy bank, according to her sister, went to a travel agency, where she purchased a $114 one-way ticket to Washington and had about $20 left over, boarded a Braniff Airlines plane Tuesday by herself at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, got off in Washington and told Braniff officials she wanted to see the Presi-

She failed in her attempt to see Carter But she spent two days in Washington, got inside the White House, met with presidential assistant Midge Costanza and other officials, including a Justice Department lawyer, and bumped into Jody Powell in a White House hallway. The girl's story became known Thursday because Penner Summers and Pepper Summers and another sister, Delilah Chandler, who lives with Sandra in Fort Worth, were angered that she had failed to see the President and began calling newspapers and television stations to complain.

"How can you tell a 9year-old girl she has to have an appointment to see the President?" Pepper Summers said. Costanza, who heads the White House office of public liaison, said she first heard of the gir when Braniff officials called her at the White House and told her of Sandra's request to see the President. She was taken to the White House for a meeting with Costanza. In the meantime, her sister Delilah was called in Fort Worth, and she flew to Washington later Tuesday.

The two sisters stayed overnight in Washington - where is not clear and met Wednesday at the White House with members of Costanza's staff and a Justice Department lawyer. Turned down on the pardon request, they returned to Fort Worth Wednesday night.

Identical dresses call for diplomacy

By JURATE KAZICKAS

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) -"We're wearing the same dress." Rosalynn Carter exclaimed as she shook hands with President Alfonso Lopez' stepsister.

"It looks nice on you." Mrs. Carter told Olga Samper at a reception Thursday night given by Colombia's First Lady. Cecilia Caballero de Lopez, at the presidential palace for the First Lady of the United States

The lines of the polyesterblend cocktail dresses were the same, but Mrs. Samper's was shrimpcolored and Mrs. Carter's was in aqua. The Colombian woman said she bought hers at a New York department store.

Mrs. Carter arrived in Bogota, the next-to-last stop on her Latin-American tour, to the least ceremonial reception of her trip. She was met at the airport by Mrs. Lopez and Foreign Minister Indalecio Lievano.

There were no national anthems played, no welcoming remarks and no honor guard. But Lievano said the reception was according to Colombian protocol for the wife of a chief of state.

Amin talks about executing Briton

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

N'AIROBL Kenya (AP) -President Idi Amin is threatening to execute another British resident of Uganda, continuing his war of nerves against the British government.

Radio Uganda said the Briton, who was not identified, had been arrested for spying and "will be executed by a firing squad" if found guilty by a military tribunal

British Foreign Secretary David Owen said in London: "I never like to see any of our citizens arrested, but I do not know the full details yet.

Amin in 1975 sentenced another British resident of Uganda schoolteacher Denis Hills, to death and demanded that Foreign Minister James Callaghan, now Britain's prime minister, come to Kampala to save him. Callaghan complied, but no such British action is likely this time Radio Uganda made no mention of its earlier reports that Amin had left the country on Tuesday to attend the Commonwealth conference in London, in defiance of the British government's opposition Instead it said he had made a "safe return after holding successful talks with Tanzanian and Zambian revolutionary military officers on the Ugan da-Tanzania-Rwanda borders.

The earlier broadcasts, including one Thursday that he arrived in Britain, and his failure to surface in Europe aroused suspicions that he was staging a hoax to try to make the British government look foolish. But the London Daily Mirror reported that Amin actually set out for Europe

According to the British tabloid, a spokesman for Mobutu said Amin flew to Kinshasa, the Zairean capital. on Tuesday after hearing Mobutu was flying to Paris for talks with the French government

Amin pleaded with Mobutu to take him to Paris, where he "planned to go by car to a Channel port and hire a boat to take him to England for the conference." the spokesman was quoted as saying. "But after consulting the French government,

The British government said Amin was unwelcome at the conference because of the mass murders attributed to his regime.

Britain severed relations with Uganda/ a former colony, in July, and Radio / Uganda reported Thursday that Amin directed the French embassy in Kampala to cease handling British interests. The broadcast said Amin had evidence that some of the 300 British nationals who remained after an exodus last year were using the French embassy for "subversive Amin also warned that those who buy British property will do so at their own risk," the broadcast said.

The Ugandan dictator drew criticism at the Commonwealth conference in London Thursday from a vehement Third World spokesman. Jamaican President Michael Manley, who said he was "a cause of shame for all mankind.

Manley accused Third World nations of hypocrisy in condemning the white segregationist governments of South Africa and Rhodesia while keeping quiet about Uganda.

Moluccan terrorists refuse to budge despite mediators

Mediators apparently failed to budge the South Moluccan terrorists holding 55 hostages in northern Holland for 19 days. The Dutch government said the situation was "still serious.

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet met for five hours Thursday night after mediators Josina Soumokil and Hassan Tan paid their second visit to the besieged train on which 51 of the hostages are held by 8 to 10 of the extremists.

The Justice Ministry refused to say what happened during the four-hour mediation session or whether a third attempt was planned. But it was apparent that the Moluccans were holding out despite the government's warning, transmitted by Mrs. Soumokil and Dr. Tan, that they were facing dangerous consequences.

Four more armed South Moluccans are holding four teachers at Bovensmilde schoolhouse, south of Assen. All the hostages were seized May 23 -19 days ago — in simultaneous attacks

Dutch officials said they asked the mediators to tell the terrorists they have no hope of realizing their demands or their political aims. The terrorists want the release of 21 other South Moluccans imprisoned for terrorism and sabotage and a plane to fly them all out of the country. Politically, they are seeking Dutch help in obtaining independence from Indonesia for their native islands in the former Dutch East Indies.

One high government source said the terrorists had not been given an ultimatum. But officials said the situation would not be allowed to drag on much longer.

A government spokesman told reporters one of the hostages on the train used a hand mirror Wednesday to signal in Morse code. "Haal ons eruit (Get us out of here)

Hobby told reporters before the meeting with Briscoe he would recommend the session start on June 20. Afterward, however, he said he mentioned no specific date to the Package store man appeals to Pickett

C. W. Welch can sell liquor in his package store but he can't sell beer — and Greenwood residents would like to keep him from

Welch, a Stanton resident, is owner of the Stanton Southside Package Store, which is located in Midland County near the Martin County line. Liquor sales are not allowed in Martin County. The latest round in the dispute between Welch and Greenwood residents now is taking place in state District Judge Perry D Pickett's court.

Welch appealed the county court denial of his request to district court for a permit to sell beer. After a hearing Tuesday Judge Pickett took the matter under advisement. He has requested briefs from both sides on the question of whether Welch's appeal, his third for a permit for the same location, constitutes harassment of the citizens of Greenwood.

Bud Lea, Greenwood resident who also is president of the Greenwood school board, said the group also has filed a protest with the Alcoholic Beverage Commission against the liquor

That issue will be tried in Austin, Lea said.

Welch said he has not received official notification about that proceeding. He said he is "not terribly concerned" about the possibility that license might be revoked.

Lea said even if the citizens protesting the store fail in their attempt to have the liquor license revoked, they still will fight granting the beer permit, since

Natural gas decontrol wins important victory in House

By PAUL E. STEIGER The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - In the first key battle of what promises to be a summer-long war, natural gas producers Thursday won approval from a House Commerce subcommittee for an end to federal price controls on newly discovered gas.

Under intense lobbying from at least three factions, the House Commerce Committee's energy and power subcommittee voted 12-10 to end controls on so-called "new" gas.

The action set the stage for subsequent battles in the full Commerce Committee later this month, in the special House energy committee after that, and still later on the House floor and in the Senate.

Had natural gas producers lost the subcommittee vote, a key congressional source said Thursday, their chances would have looked bleak. But now, he said the producers have a decent chance of winning.

Gas producers were undaunted by President Carter's reversal of his campaign promise to support relaxation of federal price controls on natural gas. Instead they mobilized for another effort — after one that failed narrowly last year - to win decontrol in Congress.

The stakes, as in the past on this issue, are enormous.

Decontrol would mean billions of dollars in profits to the natural gas industry, along with correspondingly higher prices to consumers and the risk of some short-run damage to the economy. But it also could mean greater supplies of the premium fuel - highly desired because of its almost polution-free qualities - in the 1980s and beyond

The measure approved by the energy and power subcommittee, authored by Rep. Robert Krueger (D-Tex.), would add about $100 a year, on average, to the annual heating bills of the 40 million households using natural gas, according to the Carter administration, which opposed the

At the same time, the Administration said, the Krueger measure would increase revenues by producers by at least $56 billion over the next eight

Gas producers disputed the cost estimates and said that in return for what new revenues their industry did realize, consumers would receive more than equivalent benefit in the form of new discoveries and greater future supplies of the fuel.

Understanding the debate and how it is likely to proceed requires a quick look at the positions of the other main participants and at the present pric-

At present, the U.S. natural gas market is divided roughly in half: gas sold to interstate pipelines and gas sold "intrastate" or in the same state in which it is produced.

The price the producer receives for interstate gas is regulated by the Federal Power Commission, which has imposed a current ceiling price for new contracts of $1.45 per thousand cubic feet (mcf). The price of intrastate gas is uncontrolled and has recently sold for an average of about $1.84 per thousand cubic feet, although some contracts have been at prices well over $2 per mcf.

What almost all sides agree is that the present system cannot continue.

regulated prices and the other half free of control, relatively small supplies have been flowing into the interstate pipelines serving the great populated areas of the East, Midwest, and Pacific coast.

As a result, factories, stores, and even schools, homes, and hospitals in these areas have faced curtailed supplies, particularly during severe winters, while gas has been used to fire boilers in such producing states as Texas when oil or coal easily could have been used instead. The disagreement comes over how to change the system. The producers mustered more than week to lobby Congress in facor of decontrol.

Meanwhile, consumer groups such as the Consumer Federation of America and Energy Action, have been equally active, although in smaller numbers.

In their view, even the $1.45 per mcf price approved by the Federal Power Commission for some new natural gas supplies, is too high. They note that as recently as 1970, contracts were signed at a price if 26 cents per mcf, and that the FPC staff estimated that a price of about 60 cents per mcf would give producers a reasonable return. The consumer groups call for ending the inequitable disparity between the interstate and intrastate markets by extending federal price controls to previously unregulated intrastate gas, and then setting an "equitable" price, which for many of them would mean a rollback.

The Carter Administration also has called for extending price controls to the intrastate market, but it has no desire to roll back the price.

Under the Administration plan, as old contracts for gas expired, new contracts covering those same supplies would be limited to the current FPC ceiling of $1.45.

Gulf Oil Corp. wants uranium documents secret

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Gulf Oil Corp. is trying to persuade House investigators to keep secret a nineinch stack of documents allegedly proving the firm was at the center of an international cartel conspiring to boost uranium prices.

A company which builds nuclear power plants says that price-fixing activities of the alleged cartel helped drive the cost of uranium from $6 or $7 a pound in 1972 to $41 a pound.

A House subcommittee is holding a hearing today on Gulf's request that the documents be kept secret

Gulf is being joined in its request by the government of Canada, which told the State Department that several documents are confidential records of the Canadian Department of Energy. Mines and Resources.

Canada claims the papers are protected by the Official Secrets Act.

Last month Gulf lost a fight in U.S. District Court here to keep the documents out of the hands of the investigations unit of the House Commerce Committee.

The documents were then in the possession of the Westinghouse Electric Corp., a manufacturer of nuclear power plants. The firm has accused the alleged cartel of engineering a seven-fold increase in the price of uranium, which prevented it from meeting delivery contracts at agreed

In a hearing before U.S. District Court Judge George Hart last May 5. Westinghouse attorney William Jentes said the documents are "nothing more than the minutes of these conspiratorial get-togethers of the producers ... to fix the world price

Although he was prevented from quoting from the documents, Jentes described them in some detail.

He said that in February 1972 major worldwide uranium producers met in Paris "to remedy this situation of oversupply and low prices. He said the deal was made final at a meeting in Johannesburg, South Africa, in June 1972, when the producers "basically set a floor price for uranium which they thereafter, I might say, steadily raised.

Jentes gave these other details of the alleged scheme: 'They arrived at an elaborate allocation of the uranium market on a worldwide basis, they agreed to eliminate the competition of those that were not in the cartel arrangement, and that included Westinghouse.

"They arrived at an elaborate procedure to conceal their activities, and they set up an extremely elaborate enforcement machinery including a secretariat which kept elaborate minutes of what went on, and fur-

Jentes asserted that "there were also little individual conspiracies in each of the producing countries," and said that most of the documents involve meetings in Canada of the Canadian producers.

Gulf is resisting attempts to make the documents public on grounds of attorney-client privilege and on grounds that the Canadian government asserts that some contain classified information.

The company's argument was rejected by Hart. He refused to issue a permanent restraining order to nullify the House committee's subpoena seeking the records from Energy package now in shambles

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) - Much of President Carter's energy tax package is in a shambles following a flurry of House Ways and Means Committee votes that handed the administration a major defeat.

The influential committee voted Thursday to throw out Carter's plans for a standby gasoline tax, a tax on cars that get poor mileage and a program of rebates for people who buy cars that get good mileage.

But the administration is looking for some of the decisions to be reversed, and still is holding out hope for a stiff tax on crude oil. "We will probably re-evaluate our position when we get to the Senate." said Laurence Woodworth, Carter's assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, after watching the committee administer the first of the three defeats on Thursday.

Still to come is consideration of what some in the Carter administration view as the most important part of the President's tax package: a new tax on crude oil designed to make energy more expensive and thus force conservation. This would result in an estimated 7.6cent hike in the cost of a gallon of gasoline.

Whatever the committee does is subject to reconsideration by the committee itself as well as by the House and the Senate. But for the moment, the President's plan is listing badly.

North loop receives clearance

The proposed north loop around Midland's urbanized area received formal clearance from environmental considerations, the state Department of Highways and Public Transportation announced Thursday.

Approval of the final environmental impact statement and public hearing data covering the development of the proposed 16.7 mile loop around Midland was received from the Federal Highway Administration Regional Director

The proposed highway project, which was requested by both Midland city and county officials, contemplates the construction of a fourlane divided facility throughout the limits of the $37 million project.

The next step in the development of the proposed project will be considered by the state Highway and Public Transportation Commission which could come as early as June 30.

Midland, Ector areas show drug abuse hikes

By JIM STEINBERG

Midland and Ector counties lead the Permian Basin area with the greatest increases in drug abuse problems. according to a report by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission

Of the 994 persons arrested for drug abuse during 1976, 37 per cent occurred in Ector County and 26.5 per cent occurred in Midland County. The next highest percentage of arrests for drugs was Howard County with 11.3 per cent of all the regional drug arrests. Of those arrested, 20.3 per cent were under age 18, 41 per cent were between 18 and 21, 29.1 per cent were 22 to 29 years old, 5.9 per cent were 30 to 39 years old and 30 per cent were age 40 and over. Curiously, a breakdown of the arrest statistics

shows that 86.4 per cent were males and 13.6 were females. "These percentages could be interpreted that more males have drug problems than females which may be true to an extent, but not as great a difference exists as these statistics indicate. The reason for this seems to be that males are more likely to be arrested for drugs than females are. the report states. Drug arrests for opium or cocaine and their derivatives comprise 11.6 per cent of all drug arrests in the Permian Basin. Drug arrests for marijuana comprise 84 per cent of all drug arrests in the region. The drug category of synthetic narcotics which can cause addiction, such as methadone, accounted for the smallest portion of drug arrests in the Permian Basin, at 1.9 per cent. Midland County reported 63.6 per cent of all arrests in this drug category. Dangerous non-narcotic drugs such as barbituates and bentedrine accounted for 2.2 per cent of all drug arrests. Ector County accounted for 69 per cent of those arrested. There were eight drug related deaths in the Permian Basin during 1976, according to the PBRPC report. Three were in Midland County, three were in Ector County and two were in Howard County.

Republicans call for Korean scandal prosecutor

By CHARLES BABCOCK The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In a move the White House quickly dismissed as unnecessary, two top Republican congressional leaders called on President Carter Thursday to appoint a Watergate-type special prosecutor to investigate the Korean Central Intelligence Agency's attempts to influence U.S. officials.

Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), the Senate minority leader, said at a press conference that "fairness and equity" demand that the Democratic administration pursue charges of South Korean influence-buying just as Republicans pursued the Watergate investigations that eventually toppled President Richard Nixon.

The Justice Department has been

investigating allegations that the South Korean government spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash and gifts and entertainment on U.S. officials to ensure continued support for President Park Chung Hee's regime in Seoul. The inquiry has been going on for more than a year without returning any indictments.

Two House committees are conducting separate investigations of the Baker was careful to say he was not suggesting the South Korean scandal was a Democratic Watergate. "I hope it isn't," he said. "But I do think the issue is important enough to deserve a full impartial investigation.

Baker and Rep. John Rhodes (R-Ariz.), who said he agreed with his colleague's suggestion, were vague in explaining why a special prosecutor

White House press secretary Jody Powell responded immediately and negatively to the GOP demand, saying a special prosecutor was unnecessary because the Justice Department already was pursuing the matter vigorously.

He described the Baker-Rhodes

press conference as a "fairly adept two-step," and added that he had "no desire to add to the attention he (Baker) would hope to attract.

A Justice Department spokesman said later that several other members of Congress have written Aftorney General Griffin B. Bell, suggesting the appointment of a special prosecutor in the case. In each instance, Bell has replied that the department's public integrity section was pursuing all leads thoroughly without a time limit for completing the inquiry, the spokesman said.

In a related matter, the House ethics committee called an emergency closed meeting Thursday to discuss how to tighten its procedures for controlling the confidentiality of sensitive information.

The unscheduled meeting was called after The Washington Post reported Thursday that the committee had voted in executive session to subpoena four executive branch officials who might have had access to secret intelligence reports naming congressmen who took money from

South Koreans. Several members expressed concern about the story because the committee is in the midst of negotiating with the CIA and the National Security Agency, for delivery of classified

Reporting to Carter on their recent mission to Seoul to discuss the plan with South Korean officials were Philip Habib, undersecretary of state; and Air Force Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The President told B1 backers on Monday that he would make a basic judgment later this month on what to do about the B1, one of the most expensive weapons programs ever proposed by the Pentagon. Following that session, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., told reporters Carter "is becoming convinced that we can't live without the B1.'

Although other members of Congress said Carter kept his inclinations to himself, many observers expect the President to approve the building of some of the strategic bombers. However, few expect him to give a green light for the 244-plane fleet sought by the Air Force.

Carter was highly critical of the B1 project during the 1976 election campaign.

It then specifies that new power plants, industrial plants, cement plants, etc., are forbidden in the areas if they put more than a certain (rather small) amount of new sulfur dioxide or particulates of matter into

Probation 'successful' Pickett tells Rotarians

Putting persons convicted of crimes on probation instead of sending them to prison saves tax dollars and returns people to useful lives - instead of sending them to "a postgraduate course in crime" - state District Judge Perry D. Pickett told Rotarians Thursday.
Pickett spoke to the Midland Rotary

Club.

About 90 per cent of those placed on probation in Midland successfully complete their probation period. Pickett said. It costs between $4,000 and $5,000 to keep an inmate in the penitentiary.

Midlanders still seek swim record

The seven-member relay team from the City of Midland Swim Team passed the 246-mile mark at about 8:15 a.m. this morning in its quest for a world record in the 300-mile swim. according to a team spokesman.

The team is swimming approximately 24 hours ahead of the record pace. Coach Doug Ingram expects the team to reach the 300-mile objective early Saturday morning.

If the team should set the 300-mile record, it will be the third world record they have set this week. They will try for a fourth, time the longest ever swum by a seven-member relay

The two records the team has already set are for the 100-mile swim and for the longest distance swum by a seven-member relay team in 24

The 100-mile record was set about noon Wednesday. The longest 24-hour distance record was set at noon Tuesday. The team began their record attempts noon Monday.

The City of Midland Swim Team has made plans for the seven-member relay team to swim seven days. If they do complete the seven days, they will break the current record, which is about five days, set by a swim club in California. The seven day period will end at noon Monday.

The records the team is breaking are officially recognized in the "Guinness Book of World Records."

Pickett said. Further, if everyone convicted of a crime was sent to prison, "we couldn't build enough penitentiaries to hold them," he said.

Persons on probation must meet several conditions or the probation can be revoked. Pickett said. The first condition is restitution to the aggrieved party, he said. Other conditions include working at suitable employment, not violating laws, reporting to the probation of ficer regularly and avoiding injurious or vicious habits.

Pickett said the law permits probation for persons already convicted of a felony, but he seldom uses it. He said he never uses probation when a person has been convicted previously of a violent crime.

He said a recommendation from the district attorney of a probated sentence can be "a powerful inducement" for a defendant to plead guilty. Although he does not have to accept the district attorney's recommendation, he said, he does in 90 per cent of the cases presented

Pickett said he usually can look at the presentence report and tell whether or not an individual will be able to complete his probation period successfully.

Factors to consider are the deterrent effect of the sentence, the benefit to society and the benefit to the person's family

"Overall, it (probation) is working. Overall, it's benefiting society" he however, would get a price equivalent to the price of domestically produced crude oil - a price that would approximate $1.75 per mcf beginning next year, and then gradually rise, under the Carter energy plan.

The Administration plan would provide producers with relatively small amounts of additional revenue - if any - beyond what they could expect under a continuation of the present, dual-market system.

Two convicted on unemployment fraud charges

week in county court of fraudulent application for unemployment

That brings the total for the year to three and another case is pending. D. "Pete" Hotchkiss of the Midland office of the Texas Employment Commission said Thursday

In all three completed cases, the individuals said in the application they were not working when, in fact, they were employed Hotchkiss said those are the only four cases of that kind that have come to the commission's attention in Midland in the two-and-one-half years he has been with the Midland office. With each of the three convictions.

probation for one year was imposed and the individuals were required to pay court cost and repay the commission the benefits they received. While some types of fraudulent statements are difficult to detect, it is almost inevitable that persons who are employed will be caught if they claim on their application they are not. Notchkiss said.

Reports from employers are compared by computer quarterly to reports on those who are receiving benefits. If the computer finds that benefits were paid for a period in which a person was employed, an investigation is made, he said

In those cases in which a person misreported income because of an error, the commission does not prosecute, he said. "It's flagrant actions that we prosecute." he said.

"I would like to stress the fact that we feel that most people are honest and accept their statements as truth unless proven otherwise." he said

As of this month, there are approximately 120 persons in Midland actively filing claims for unemployment insurance benefits, he said. Midland currently boasts the lowest unemployment rate in Texas.

England death ruling reached

Justice of the Peace Robert Pine Thursday ruled justifiable homicide in the shooting death of Edwin Jewel England, 29, by a Midland police officer late Tuesday.

According to Police Chief Wayne Gideon, autopsy results indicated England died of a single gunshot wound to the head. The projectile was a single pellet fired from a police shotgun and Detective Larry Bledsoe was the only officer using a shotgun. Gideon said.

England, whose latest address was listed as the West Wind Motel, was shot down on the parking lot of the Desert Inn West motel in the 3000 block of West Wall Avenue.

Another man, Loy Blanscett, 52, of the 900 block of West Tennessee and customer at the bar, suffered gunshot wounds to the chest and hand during the fray. He was listed in fair condition at Midland Memorial Hospital

Gideon said Wednesday he will present the shooting case to the next Midland County Grand Jury for further investigation.

The White House estimates that under its plan producers would get additional revenue of about $15 billion in the next eight years, compared with at least $56 billion under the Krueger decontrol plan. However, the Congressional Budget Office predicted there would be no discernible gains to producers from the Administration plan, with price gains from sales of interstate gas just about canceling lower prices for intrastate sales once controls were extended to that

The consumer groups have been bit-terly critical of the Carter plan. They contend it would assure excessive profits for the producers. The Administration has countered that the higher prices — at least for interstate gas - called for under its plan are necessary both to encourage consumers to stop wasting the premium fuel and to provide produces with incentive to find more.

In recent days, however, the two camps have been allied in an effort to head off Krueger's decontrol measure, or, when it became apparent that the bill was likely to win approval in the energy and power subcommittee, to keep the margin as narrow as possible.

The consumer lobbyists could count at least one victory: Rep. Martin A. Russo (D-III.), a freshman from the Chicago whom they besieged with

The 10 Democrats opposed to the measure included the chairman of the subcommittee, Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.), and the chairman of the full Commerce Committee, Rep. Harley O. Staggers (D-W.Va.)

The full committee is expected to take up the issue within two weeks. There, the balance appears to favor slightly some version of the Carter plan, although all sides agree the decision will be close The sentiment for decontrol is not expected to be great in the special energy committee, charged with reconciling elements of the giant energy policy package reported by commerce, ways and means, banking and other committees.

Nevertheless, by winning the sub-committee vote, the decontrol forces were given a good chance - even if they lose in all the other committees - of obtaining a rule permitting a vote on decontrol on the House floor

The challenge for the Carter Administration will be to chip away at some of their strength - perhaps by raising slightly the $1.75 ceiling price under the White House plan - while not going so far as to alienate too many of the consumer activists and their congressional allies.

In any case, the intensity of the lobbying, already high, is likely to mount

Intelligence institutions seek control

Turner has made a strong argument to President Carter and others involved in the debate over reorganization of the intelligence community that there should be greater centralization bringing NSA and the NRO under direct budgetary and operational control of the director of the community.

Turner, like his predecessors heads both the community and the CIA, but in practice actual control of NSA and the NRO has been exercised by the secretary of defense.

Brown has also taken his case to Carter, arguing that it would be a mistake to give any agency or individual a monopoly on intelligence estimates and operations.

William Griffith of 1200 N. Colorado St. reported the theft of two Doberman Pinscher puppies valued at a total of $240 from his yard sometime

According to police, a witness, Rueben Molinar of 1113 N. Colorado St., told Griffith that he saw two men throw rocks at the mother dog to run her off and then flee with the puppies.

GRASS FIRE REPORTED Three units of the Midland Fire Department were called to a grass fire between Midland Air Terminal

County Commissioner Charlie Welch of Midland, who is not related to the liquor store owner. said he has joined the group protesting the beer permit because the citizens of Greenwood asked him to do so.

Commissioner Welch said he has never opposed another beer ticense in the county, but he does oppose this one because the citizens of Greenwood feel so strongly. He said the community "voted the saloon dry" in about 1900 and has voted against sale of alcohol in every election held since then. Chris King, another Greenwood school board member among those protesting the license, said storeowner Welch "is sitting in our community and our county to serve Stanton. The protesters are concerned about traffic from the liquor store on FM 307, which runs past Greenwood schools.

"Even though this is a package store, they're still going to drink it if they buy it and they pass right in front of our school," Lea

The protesters also are concerned about whether law enforcement officers will be able to adequately patrol the area. King said the sheriff's department patrols that area between 2 and 3 a.m. daily and would not be able to adequately police the area during business hours. King said the group thus far has spent about $4,500 in legal fees to fight the package store and beer license.

"We've opposed it (the beer license) and defeated it (in court) three times, and it just keeps coming back," King said.

Money for the legal efforts has come from donations by Greenwood citizens, Lea said.

No, not another!

Plans are under way in Congress to create another federal overseer of business and thank goodness business organizations are all set to fight the proposal to the finish.

This particular new agency, as proposed, would control the setting of measurement standards in private industry, including those used in manufacturing, construction and processing.

This traditionally has been done on a voluntary basis through such organizations as the American National Standards Institute.

An article appearing in the June edition of Nation's Business explains that a bill introduced by Sen. James Abouresk, D-S.Dak. the Voluntary Standards and Accreditation Act of 1977, would thrust the federal government directly into the process. The bill, S. 825, would establish a National Standards Management Board to oversee all standard-setting activities. The board would have the power to cancel standards and the accreditation of standardsetting organizations. There would be no appeal except through the courts.

Sounds somewhat familiar to other legislation adopted in the past, doesn't it? And we certainly do not need another federal agency to further disrupt the business community.

The bill is called "onerous" by Donald L. Peyton, executive vice president of the American National Standards Institute, because of its emphasis on "government coercion." He is in a position to know whereof he speaks.

The Nation's Business article says that in theory, the new agency would protect small firms against discrimination by standard-setting groups, but business organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States say present antitrust laws are sufficient for that purpose.

The magazine goes on to say that advocates of the legislation say that big firms dominate the standard-setting groups and that these groups sometimes set standards so high that small firms can't compete.

But Bernard H. Falk, president of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, argues, however, that "private standards organizations subject to antitrust prosecutions" have far more compulsion to be fair to all parties "than has a federal standards regulatory agency, with its effective immunity from prosecution.'

Hopefully, Congress will sidetrack this particular piece of unneeded legislation.

Carpentry at the Supreme Court

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - Inside the Corinthian temple that houses the nation's highest court, the nine blackrobed men behind the great mah ogany bench are Olympian. Yet they are as vulnerable to petty larceny, apparently, as the lesser mortals who inhabit Washington.

The taxpayers provide the Supreme Court, for example, with a carpentry shop to repair the judicial furniture and maintain the woodwork. Some distinguished Justices are not above using the court carpenters, however, to handle their personal woodwork.

Under the direction of chief carpenter Edward F. Douglas, the official woodworkers have used the taxpayers' lumber and facilities to construct and repair furniture for the jurists. No less than white-maned Chief Justice Warren Burger himself has used the carpentry shop to make picture frames for his wife and her

Taken separately, the carpentry work done for individual Justices perhaps has been trivial. But there was an almighty uproar in Washington over a set of valances that FBI carpenters built for FBI chief Clarence Kelley. Supreme Court Justices presumably should be as pure as FBI directors.

We have been given several examples of the misuse of the court carpenters. Here are just a few cases that we have been able to confirm from independent witnesses:

The carpentry shop personnel built a coffee table for Justice Harry Blackmun's wife. She purchased the

- The shop has built home bookcases for most of the Justices, ostensibly to hold their law books, thus giving this particular home carpentry quasi-official status.

 Before Justice William O. Douglas retired, court carpenters cabinets and fix some molding. Justice Douglas, it should be added, is not related to carpenter Douglas.

 The chief carpenters constructed frames and mats for the personal pictures of the Chief Justice, his wife and friends. Later, carpenter Douglas wanted his son David to work for him in the carpentry shop. This sort of nepotism is forbidden by Civil Service regulations. Both Supreme Court Marshal Alfred Wong and personnel chief James Powers, therefore, refused to permit it. So Edward Douglas appealed to Chief Justice Burger who overruled the objections. Young David Douglas was quietly hired in violation of the Civil Service

The chief carpenter said he had spent his own time and used his own materials when he did work for the Justices. This is disputed, however, by other witnesses. He admitted that he had taken some timber - "good for nothing but firewood," he said from the court for his personal pier. He denied all the other charges and refused to comment about his son's employment.

WASHINGTON WHIRL - It looks as if President Carter is welshing on another campaign promise. He got the endorsement of the National Education Association last year by promising to form a separate Dept. of Education. This would have to be carved out of the present Health, Education and Welfare Dept., and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano doesn't want his empire broken up. He appears to have the ear of the

He had warned Israel that it must give up the West Bank, the Sinai and the Golan Heights - and return to pre-1967 borders that had brought invasion by the Arabs. He talked vaguely of "legal borders with defensive capabilities."

This kind of talk scared Israelis to death.

They had been the war route five times and they knew that giving up the Golan Heights, for instance, would be an open invitation to Syrian attack. And, even though the Israeli Labor Party already was in trouble over corruption and inflation, the voters turned in greater numbers to the Likud Party as the one least likely to bow to Mr. Carter.

On the business of hob-nobbing with Israel's enemies, also at election time, Mr. Carter did another disservice to his own peace pronouncements in praising Syria's President Hafez Assad as "great and brilliant, one of my favorite leaders.' This is the same Assad who has pledged to destroy Israel. Little wonder that Israeli voters took the hard line.

These results are unfortunate at this time because there might have been the start toward a Palestinian settlement if Mr. Carter had kept a more discreet silence — at least until after the Israeli elections.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Jordan's King Hussein had previously moved toward amity with Israel in statements that the Palestinian settlement would be in the form of an association with or under Jordan's control. Israel for several years has talked of a Palestinian "homeland" on the West Bank and Gaza Strip — so long as Jordan was in charge.

Now, that solution has been destroyed for a long time to come. And, war is a more likely prospect than peace in the Mideast.

This is too bad because Mr. Carter genuinely wants peace. But, again his urge to speak out and "do something" has betrayed his lofty motives.

Contraceptive ban unconstitutional

By MORTON MINTZ The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court Thursday ruled unconstitional a New York State law banning the sale of nonprescriptive contraceptives to persons under 16.

In a far-reaching decision, the court held that the right of privacy as it relates to decisions on sexual relations "extends to minors as well as adults."

The justices also struck down two provisions in the New York law that, unlike the under-16 ban, are similar to those in the laws of numerous other states.

One invalidated provision pro-hibits anyone but a licensed pharmacist from distributing nonmedical, nonprescription contraceptive products - condoms. foam and jelly. Eighteen states, including Virginia, and the District of Columbia impose a similar prohibition.

The second invalidated provision made it an offense for anyone - including a licensed pharmacist - to advertise or display contraceptives. Twenty states in addition to New York have similar laws. Seven of the nine justices voted to overturn the New York law. but aligned themselves variously on key issues in the case. The decision affirmed a panel of three federal appellate judges that had nullified the law.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. wrote the opinion for the court. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger dissented without comment. Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented with an invocation of the memory of "those who valiantly but vainly defended the heights of Bunker Hill in 1775" and of those "brave men on both sides" who shed blood "at Shiloh, Gettysburg and Cold Harbor.'

Such men, Rehnquist contended, would be outraged that the court has "enshrined in the Constitution the right of commercial vendors of contraceptives to peddle them to unmarried minors through such means as window displays and vending machines located in the men's room of truck stops .

On the issue of advertising. Justice Brennan wrote for the court that the constitutional guarantee of free speech prevents a state from completely suppressing information about the availability and price of contraceptives.

He said that the First Amendment protection the court gave last year to truthful "commercial speech" about the prices of prescription drugs extends to truthful commercial speech about non-prescription contraceptives.

In other phases of the case, Brennan relied on past decisions concerning marriage, contraception, procreation, abortion, family relationships, child-rearing and education.

Four justices — Potter Stewart, Thurgood Marshall, Potter Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens - joined Brennan in holding that the right of privacy protects decisions about sexual relations against intrusion by the state unless it has 'compelling' interests at stake. A decision whether to beget or bear a child "is at the very heart" of the constitutionally protected privacy, Brennan said.

Only three justices - Stewart, Marshall and Blackmun - joined Brennan in the phase of the opinion extending to minors the right of privacy as it affects sex-

Consumer rights cut by ruling

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 3 Thursday that consumers can sue price-fixing manufacturers for antitrust damages only if they have bought affected products directly from the manufacturers.

Consumers or ultimate purchasers almost always buy from middlemen who deal directly with the manufacturers. The decision perserves the right of middlemen to sue for the triple damages authorized by the antitrust laws even though they have passed on illegal overcharges to final but invited Congress, if it disputes the ruling, to amend the law.

The law, the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976. authorizes state attorneys general to recover damages for price-fixing in behalf of consumers in their states.

White, in the footnote, said Congress intended to limit recovery to cases where consumers bought directly from manufacturers. One of the principal draftsman, Bernard Nash, former assistant counsel to the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, told a reporter that White was wrong and had rendered the statute "virtually meaningless."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), chairman of the subcommittee, said the law, under the ruling. "will not provide ad equate deterrents against antitrust violators. I thus intend to introduce legislation to restore to consumers those private rights which the court has ... denied them."

Kathleen F. O'Reilly, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, charged that the court "is blatantly inviting price-fixing."

And Justice William F. Brennan

Jr., in a dissent joined by Justices Thurgood Marshall and Harry A. Blackmun, noted that "direct purchasers who act as middlemen have little incentive to sue suppliers so long as they may pass on the bulk of the illegal overcharges to the ultimate con-

The decision involved a treble-damage suit brought by the State of Illinois and 700 local government entities against the Illinois Brick Co., a manufacturer of concrete blocks. The company sold blocks to masonry contractors who, in turn, sold them to general contractors. The blocks ended up in buildings bought by the plaintiffs.

The Seventh U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals held that the state and communities - indirect purchasers or final consumers - could sue if they could prove the middlemen contractors had passed on to them illegal overcharges. The Justice Department and 49 states, in friend-of-the-court briefs, agreed

Identical dresses Amin talks about executing Briton

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) -President Idi Amin is threatening to execute another British resident of Uganda, continuing his war of nerves against the British government.

Radio Uganda said the Briton, who was not identified, had been arrested for spying and "will be executed by a firing squad" if found guilty by a military tribunal.

British Foreign Secretary David Owen said in London: "I never like to see any of our citizens arrested, but I do not know the full details yet.'

Amin in 1975 sentenced another British resident of Uganda, schoolteacher Denis Hills, to death and demanded that Foreign Minister James Callaghan, now Britain's prime minister, come to Kampala to save him. Callaghan complied, but no such British action is likely this time.

Radio Uganda made no mention of its earlier reports that Amin had left the country on Tuesday to attend the Commonwealth conference in London, in defiance of the British government's opposition. Instead it said he had made a "safe return after holding successful talks with Tanzanian and Zambian revolutionary military officers on the Uganda-Tanzania-Rwanda borders.'

The earlier broadcasts, including one Thursday that he arrived in Britain, and his failure to surface in Europe aroused suspicions that he was staging a hoax to try to make the British government look foolish. But the London Daily Mirror reported that Amin actually set out for Europe.

then returned home when President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire refused to help him get there.

According to the British tabloid, a spokesman for Mobutu said Amin flew to Kinshasa, the Zairean capital, on Tuesday after hearing Mobutu was flying to Paris for talks with the.

French government. Amin pleaded with Mobutu to take him to Paris, where he "planned to go by car to a Channel port and hire a boat to take him to England for the conference," the spokesman was quoted as saying. "But after consulting the French government, President Mobutu gave Idi Amin the brushoff.

The British government said Amin was unwelcome at the conference because of the mass murders attributed to his regime.

Britain severed relations with Uganda, a former colony, in July, and Radio Uganda reported Thursday that Amin directed the French embassy in Kampala to cease handling British interests. The broadcast said Amin had evidence that some of the 300 British nationals who remained after an exodus last year were using the French embassy for "subversive

Amin also warned that those who "buy British property will do so at their own risk," the broadcast said.

The Ugandan dictator drew criticism at the Commonwealth conference in London Thursday from a vehement Third World spokesman, Jamaican President Michael Manley. who said he was "a cause of shame for all mankind."

Manley accused Third World nations of hypocrisy in condemning the white segregationist governments of South Africa and Rhodesia while keeping quiet about Uganda.

Moluccan terrorists refuse to budge despite mediators

ASSEN. The Netherlands (AP) -Mediators apparently failed to budge the South Moluccan terrorists holding 55 hostages in northern Holland for 19 days. The Dutch government said the situation was "still serious."

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet met for five hours Thursday night after mediators Josina Soumokil and Hassan Tan paid their second visit to the besieged train on which 51 of the hostages are held by 8 to 10 of the extremists.

The Justice Ministry refused to say what happened during the four-hour mediation session or whether a third attempt was planned. But it was apparent that the Moluccans were holding out despite the government's warning, transmitted by Mrs. Soumokil and Dr. Tan, that they were facing dangerous consequences.

Four more armed South Moluccans are holding four teachers at Bovensmilde schoolhouse, south of Assen. All the hostages were seized May 23 — 19 days ago - in simultaneous attacks 10 miles apart

Dutch officials said they asked the mediators to tell the terrorists they have no hope of realizing their demands or their political aims.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The special session on public school financing should be held "as soon as possible." Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Billy Clayton have told Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe has said he will call a special session if assured each House will give the necessary two-thirds approval to put the measure into immediate effect.

Other food law sections affect use of saccharin

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - Current federal food law makes it highly unlikely the Food and Drug Administration will allow use of saccharin in bulk foods and beverages despite claims of benefits for diabetics and the obese. the agency's director said here

Dr. Donald Kennedy sounded almost apologetic as he told a public hearing in the Los Angeles Convention Center that the proposed ban on the sugar substitute is based on "clear legal provisions.

He said saccharin would have been banned even if the Delaney Amendment did not exist. The amendment requires the removal from the market of all food additives shown to cause cancer in animals.

Other sections of the federal food law clearly state that an additive must be removed from the market if it is unsafe, he said.

'I would be less than honest if I didn't tell you that very little inform ation is apt to turn up so that under the law we can put (saccharin) into soft drinks," Kennedy said in reply to a question from David Nelson. representing the Juvenile Diabetes

Earlier at a news conference, the FDA commissioner said a report released Tuesday by the Office of Technology Assessment, an agency of Congress, confirmed the adequacy of the animal testing done by Canadian researchers who reported that saccharin causes bladder cancer in rats.

The Canadian study was the basis for the FDA ban proposal.

Kennedy said it is difficult to assess the benefits of saccharin to diabetics and the obese because it has not been determined whether the sweetener is a necessary part of foods or a convenience that is not really necessary.

He said that where food is concerned the law does not take benefits into consideration - only safety.

The FDA proposal to ban saccharin was issued April 14. The 60-day comment period will be up June 14. Then motion the FDA will sift through the comments and publish its conclusion probably sometime in August, Kennedy

Mom's pardon sought

By EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A 9year-old girl from Fort Worth, Tex., showed up in Washington this week with an unusual request. She wanted to see Jimmy Carter to ask him to issue a presidential pardon to her mother, who is serving a three-year prison sentence at a minimum security federal institution in Fort Worth.

The girl's name is Sandra Chandler, and while much remains unclear about her adventure, this much seemed clear: She delved into her piggy bank, according to her sister, went to a travel agency, where she purchased a $114 one-way ticket to Washington and had about $20 left over. boarded a Braniff Airlines plane Tuesday by herself at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, got off in Washington and told Braniff officials she wanted to see the Presi-

She failed in her attempt to see Carter. But she spent two days in Washington, got inside the White House, met with presidential assistant Midge Costanza and other officials, including a Justice Department lawyer, and bumped into Jody Powell in a White House hallway.

The girl's story became known Thursday because Pepper Summers and another sister, Delilah Chandler, who lives with Sandra in Fort Worth, were angered that she had failed to see the President and began calling newspapers and television stations to complain.

"How can you tell a 9year-old girl she has to have an appointment to see the President?" Pepper Summers said.

Costanza, who heads the White House office of nublic liaison said she first heard of the girl when Braniff officials called her at the White House and told her of Sandra's request to see the President. She was taken to the White House for a meeting with Costanza In the meantime, her sister Delilah was called in Fort Worth, and she flew to Washington later

The two sisters stayed overnight in Washington - where is not clear and met Wednesday at the White House with members of Costanza's staff and a Justice Department lawyer. Turned down on the pardon request, they returned to Fort Worth Wednesday night

New trial rejected

An amended motion for a new trial for James W. 'Bubba'' Pickett.

Stewart was convicted of voluntary manslaughter April 21, 1977. Among the grounds cited in the request for a new trial was Stewart's contention that the judge erred when he refused to allow evidence on the "defendant's reputation for truth and veracity in the community" to be presented.

New SW Bell district plant manager named

Midland's new district plant manager for Southwestern Bell is Jean Parks, who is the first woman to hold a district level title here.

In her new capacity, Mrs. Parks will manage the company's installation and repair activities and switching and transmission maintenance programs. She will be responsible for more than 200 employees and 100,000 telephones.

She replaces Joe Wilson, who is transferring to Corpus Christi.

A native of Floydada, Mrs. Parks joined the company as clerk to the wire chief there in 1964. She worked at several other clerical positions before being named project engineer in San Antonio

She held positions of increasing importance in Lubbock and spent three months as supervising service foreman in Midland during 1976. She became division plant supervisor in Lubbock in July, 1976, and served in that position until her recent promotion.

A graduate of Floydada High School, Mrs. Parks attended Texas Tech University. She has three sons, two of whom work for Southwestern

Fire records of club show 4-year lapse

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — The most recent inspection at the Beverly Hills Supper Club, where at least 161 persons died in a Memorial Day weekend fire, showed no fire safety violations. But officials can't explain a four-year gap in the inspection records

Meanwhile, State Police Commissioner Kenneth Brandenburgh said he would conclude his investigation at the club in Southgate today, and would issue a statement probably dealing with the fire's 'origin, source and cause.'

Officials have refused to confirm or deny the report given to The Associated Press by an insurance investigator in Atlanta that the May 28 fire started at a frayed electrical cord in a decorative fountain and burned for several hours before being discovered

In Frankfort, State Fire Marshal Warren Southworth said the club had passed its most recent fire safety inspection, on Jan. 27.

But there are no documents in the files for the years 1972-75. Southworth said he doesn't know whether this indicates that no inspections were made or whether inspection records and correspondence for those years are missing.

The inspection files were released Thursday after they were returned by investigators at Southgate. The most recent entry was a nine-line, handwritten report signed by state inspector John Bramlage.

Stab wound kills youth

ODESSA - An Odessa youth was dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital Thursday night after receiving a stab wound in the chest.

Odessa police said this morning 16year-old Grover Martinez Rowland of 1108 W. Clifford St. in Odessa was stabbed in a fight in Southside Park about 10:30 p.m. Police are looking for a 16-year-old in connection with the incident. An undetermined number of other youths also were involved in the fight, police

"Means of egress were found to be open, none blocked, illuminated exit signs in working order," the report said. "Patrons going out front door to obtain automobiles would have some congestion but in case of emergency evacuation should be no problem with existing exits."

Two bodies remain unidentified and unclaimed while two women are still listed as missing. Officials have conceded the possibility, while saying it is remote, that the disparity may result from misidentification of

Autopsy set for Odessa 6-month-old

ODESSA - An autopsy has been ordered in the death of a six-monthold Odessa girl found Thursday lying face down in a tub of water.

The child, Sherri M. Smauley, duaghter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smauley, was pronounced dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital by Justice of the Peace Harold Sligar. He withheld a ruling on cause of death

pending the autopsy. The child's mother told officers she had put Sherri and her 18-month-old sister into a tub and went to answer the telephone. When she returned, she said, she found the girl lying face down in the water. The father said there was about one inch of water in the tub. Services for the child are pending at Easterling Funeral Home

DETROIT (AP) Prompted by the death of a mechanic, a federal safety agency has stepped up its investigation of faulty fan blades that could result in the recall of 6.2 million Ford Motor Co. cars and trucks. Such a recall would be

Ford

probed

the second largest in history The mechanic, Roger

Keyes, 24, of Rockwood, Mich., was injured May 22 in a Detroit garage when the fan broke on the 1972 Ford Torino he was repairing, said the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. He died last Saturday:

Ford spokesmen said Thursday they knew of the death only after being contacted by a reporter.

A neighbor said Keyes was at work when "the fan broke and caught him through the chest and throat

Joan Claybrook, head of the NHTSA, has said the incident "shows the urgent necessity of an immediate recall." She called it a "severe problem

Last week, the NHTSA said it was considering recalling up to 6.2 million 1970-77 model Ford cars and light trucks because the engine cooling fan blades could break off and injure someone working under the hood.

Ms. Claybrook said Ford had reported 185 complaints, including 13 reports of injuries, to the traffic safety administration.

Ford previously agreed to a voluntary recall of 425,000 vehicles, all of them 1972 models. The company said fans from other model years do not pose a safety hazard.

Specific vehicles involved in the voluntary recall are Lincolns, Ford Torinos and Mercury Montegos with 302, -351 and 400-cubic inch engines and con ditioning. The fans in question have seven blades, compared with five-blade fans in other vehicles.

Ford Vice President Herbert Misch, in charge the company will begin notifying 1972-model owners of the recall on June 16, when free replacement fans should be available at dealers.

Stādium evokes talk

ODESSA - Ector County school board members Thursday heard opposing views on whether the school district should try to regain ownership of Barrett Stadium. The stadium was sold to Odessa College. Odessa taxpayers have rejected three bond issues in the past three years which would have included money to purchase land for a new stadium

Ray Britton, representative of the Concerned Taxpayers of Ector County told school board members the school district needs the stadium worse than the college needs it. He urged the trustees to purchase the stadium to reunify the community.

Another citizen, Lucius Bunton, said Barrett Stadium is inadequate because of lack of parking facilities and general condition of the stadium. He said the college needs the land.

The board went into executive session to discuss the issue after the presentations.

Hearings fail to solve coal slurry dilemma with objections to appropriating the By THOMAS E. SLAUGHTER

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) - The rhetorical battle over proposed coal slurry pipelines came to Wyoming Thursday but Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., said the hearings failed to produce the technical ammunition he had hoped.

Roncalio chaired the joint hearing conducted by the House Indian Affairs and Public Lands and Mines and Minerals subcommittees into legislation that would grant coal slurry companies the power of eminent domain. The legislation is sponsored by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., one of the subcommittee members.

The coal slurry process, which involves transporting pulverized coal in a water solution through a pipeline, came under fire from many of the witnesses. They told the sub-committees that the pipelines could not be justified because of precious western water that would be consumed in the slurry process.

However, Roncalio said after the hearing that he had hoped specific technical data would have been presented at the hearing on a possible solution to the delemma - returning the spent water to the point of origin where it could be put to beneficial use.

One of the major pipelines would run from near Gillette, Wyo., to a power plant near White Bluffs, Ark. The water for that pipeline would be drawn from a massive underground formation underlying parts of Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska. Roncalio has said he would support a coal slurry bill if it were amended to require that the water be recycled or that an equivalent amount of water be returned to Wyoming.

But the preponderance of the testimony Thursday from the nearly four dozen witnesses dealt primarily water from other uses - primarily agricultural.

"It didn't produce as much of the technical information as I would have liked," Roncalio said. But he added, "Generally, people had a chance to come in and express their views.'

Eckhardt repeatedly asked the witnesses why a slurry line should be blocked if the Wyoming Legislature in 1974 granted a coal slurry company the rights to 20,000 acre feet a year from the underground formation.

'All this bill says is that the coal slurry pipeline will have a change to compete with the railroads," he said. 'Now, what's so wrong with that?"

Wyoming Gov. Ed Herschler began the testimony, telling the sub-committees that he needed to see more technical information before he would drop his opposition to slurry legislation. Specifically, Herschler said he was worried about the water that would be lost to the state and about the propriety of granting the power of eminent domain to a private

U.S. tourists 'invade' new Cuba

Newsday

Cuban President Fidel Castro wants 100,000 tourists in his country by next year, and says he'll attract them by selling "climate and recreation" instead of the gambling and prostitution that earned Havana the label of "Sin City" in the 1950s.

"Climate and recreation" is indeed what was offered the first shipload of visitors from America to reach their shores in 16 years when the MTS Daphne steamed into Havana recently with 320 passengers

- the first in a series of cruises by the Daphne through the end of June and resuming in January.

But that first group of cruise passengers wasn't looking for climate and recreation, any more than they wanted gambling and prostitution. Because in the end, the lure of Cuba expected to draw some 10,000 Americans by ship and plane this year — can't be found in the simple pleasures of the island's 137 beaches. with bars selling Czechoslovakian beer, souvenir stands touting Havana cigars, three-piece bands playing ty that Cuba has become. "I think you have to want more than a beach to go to Cuba," said San Francisco travel agent Michael Bosch. "It's a cultural,

educational, historical adventure. That means accepting the fact that true hotel luxury is better found in other parts of the Caribbean, that telephones don't work quite right, that Havana — one of the world's most beautiful cities

- lacks the hustle and bustle that private enterprise like tiny shops and street vendors would give it.

Most of all, the passengers aboard the Daphne's pioneering cruise discovered, it means spending a lot of time meeting Cubans. Encounters with taxi drivers, guides, musicians and passers by on the street were what the excited chatter was about as the Daphne left Havana 36 hours after its arrival.

Thirty-six hours were just about time enough for many visitors to confirm the impressions they had brought with them; only a few did an about-face. Yet much of the information they started out with was faulty. leading to suspicion on the part of both Americans and Cubans — and ugly American" incidents as well. Just a few hours after the first cluster of passengers had rushed to the starboard side of the Daphne crying, "There it is, there it is," the first misunderstanding began

toward the smokestacks and haze polluting the green Cuban countryside. As a turquoise blue arc of spray spread out behind, a sailor suddenly straightened up and handed his binoculars to a companion. The Daphne had an escort: A Russianmade torpedo boat from the Cuban navy was apparently nervous about this unexpected arrival several miles off course from Havana harbor. It took 40 lost minutes and frenzied shipto-shore signaling before that misunderstanding was cleared up. As the first tourist threw out his celebratory frisbee and emerged on the docks, a loudspeaker blared out a lamentable version of "Guantanamera," and a Cubatur guide handed out little red plastic pendants. The Customs men smiled, somewhat uncertainly at that point but more openly as the emotion-packed 36-hour visit proceeded.

And outside the sagging Customs building bedlam. Some 500 grinning yelling, cheering, hugging Cubans welcomed the Americans and the Americans grinned, yelled and hugg-

But the Americans, who were under the impression that they would be herded into air-conditioned buses for their tour, dutifully herded themselves into the buses parked at dockside. They totally ignored the 10 new Chevrolet Nova taxis from Argentina that were lined up waiting to take them wherever they wanted to go for about $1.50 to downtown Havana, or under $50 for the whole

On the Daphne were two Cuban-American doctor couples from Chicago, the Bonos and the Fuentes. They had signed on hoping to see brothers and sisters they hadn't seen in 17 years. At first Customs would not let them ashore — and Carlos Bono's sister, Josephine, wept in the street Finally, several hours later, they were allowed to leave.

Most of the $700 to $800 worth of gifts they had brought along stayed on board because Cuban Customs wanted to charge them $3,000 in duties. However, a Chicago man did amendment to limit agree to pay $600 in duties for three suitcases of gifts.

Vignettes of Cuban life capsuled by writer

Newsday

In the 16 years since Americans freely came and went in Cuba, the country has become a land of mystery. Trying to fit the pieces of the new society together is a matter of balancing prejudices and pre judgments with what actually exists. The following incidents, en countered on a brief visit to Havana a few weeks ago aboard the MTS Daphne, do not add up to a whole interpretation of that complex island. But they do offer some clues.

The heavy oak beams. the tile, the marble, the ambitious grandeur of the Hotel Nacional belong to an era when conspicuous signs of wealth were the kind that mattered. Now, groups of listless men and women sit in the lobby, alternately staring stonefaced at the foreign visitors and glancing at the color television set on which

Right questions on stock trade not easy to ask

By ROBERT SOBEL Newsday

NEW YORK - "What are the prospects for Petrodynamics? Do you think I should buy it?" The second question appears to be a logical follow-up to the first, but actually they are quite different and separate requests for opinions and advice. Furthermore, neither necessarily is the correct question for an investor to ask - or to put it more accurately, they do not go far enough.

It is not particularly difficult to learn what is happening at Petrodynamics. A reading of Standard & Poor's Industrial Manual, a glance through annual reports and advisories issued by investment services and brokerages, combined with the basic knowledge of the industry, are all that are required. The essential fundamental information regarding Petrodynamics is easy to come by, and that is why so many otherwise intelligent and sophisticated individuals think they can become stock market experts overnight. Armed with this information, they enter the market, only to learn that there is much more that they need to know.

Since the information is so easily obtained and digested, chances are that others have been there before you. Some have decided to buy, and others to sell, and their decisions have been reflected in the price of the stock. One does not obtain "inside information" from any published source. Even before the words are placed on paper, some investors have acted upon the news, and the stock's price has reacted accordingly.

So the question, "Do you think I should buy it?" is more difficult to answer than it seems at first glance. Setting aside a few complications involved in the specialist system employed by the New York Stock Exchange, for every buyer there is a seller. Each is betting on the future, and one will be proven wrong. Differences of opinion usually are based upon the way essential information is analyzed, and not the stupidity of one side and the astuteness of the other. These qualities may be perceived in retrospect, but that isn't much help to the person who has to decide

bands

The potential buyer really wants the answers to two separate questions. The first, and the simpler, is, 'Should I buy Petrodynamics at its current price?' Almost any stock is a buy if it falls low enough — but of course, knowing how low is enough presents a major problem, Still, this is relatively simple when set beside the second question, "When should I sell?" After its acquisition the stock's price either will rise or fall. When should you admit you made a mistake or, more happily, decide to take profits?

The Street is filled with people who know how to select stocks that represent companies whose fortunes are on the rise. There are fewer analysts who have good records when it comes to picking the right amount to buy. Fewer still know when to sell.

It was this problem and need that prompted Justin and Robert Mamis to write "When to Sell," which recently was released by Farrar Straus Giroux. Both men are well equipped for the task, Justin worked as an NYSE floor official for five years before leaving to organize "The Professional Tape Reader," a market advisory service that takes a technical approach, while his brother is the co-author of a monthly market column, which he puts out under the pen name of "Ursala Tauro." This is not the first book on the subject, and like some of the others, it offers for mulas, methods to analyze charts, and the like Neophytes may find these sections useful, but oldtimers have been there before and might simply skim through them.

More interesting and useful are the Mamis' insights into the psychology of investing and timing. Now, this is a most important subject, one covered in a wide variety of articles and books. After the investor has digested all the technical and fundamental information, he must make his decision, and most of the time, for most investors, it is not triggered by some mathematical formula, but rather results from a gut feeling about the stock and the moment. Some earlier writers have done fairly well on the psychology of buying, but none have had more useful ideas on that for selling.

In one section, the brothers note that many investors seem happier with paper losses than with gains. Having purchased Petrodynamics at 50 and seeing it go to 40, they sit back, telling themselves they will sell once the price is back to 50. Thus, they can root it on and at the same time have a fixed goal. Should the stock have gone to 60, however. The investor will lack such an upside goal, and will be in the uncomfortable position of making a mental commitment to see if and when the stock declines 10 points.

Japanese TV makers deny Zenith charges

By LEE LESCAZE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Five Japanese television manufacturers have pointed their fingers back at their accuser, the Zenith Radio Corp., in the highstakes lobbying battle over the American consumers' TV dollars.

In their rebuttal sent to the Justice Department's antitrust division, the Japanese called the blizzard of charges by Zenith "a clever mixture of economic doubletalk, 'yellow-peril' scare tactics and deliberately misleading (and frequently downright false) statements." The Japanese are battling Zenith for the mind of John H. Shenefield, the acting assistant attorney general for antitrust who is awaiting nomination and confirmation to that post. Shenefield has already been visited by representatives of Zenith, which accuses 18 Japanese companies of violating U.S. antitrust law through a 'cartel' agreement Zenith also charges that some Japanese manufacturers paid secret rebates to American purchasers in violation of customs law, and the Japanese memorandum answers these allegations only obliquely. Any antitrust investigation should be of Zenith, not us, the Japanese manufacturers say in a 46-page memorandum to Shenefield prepared by their

Zenith, the memo says, is "a would-be monopolist whose sole purpose in bleating (about Japanese competition) is to protect its position as the dominant, price-protected producer of television sets in the United States (and which) has been able to manipulate the reins of government to protect itself against competition." COMMERCIAL

The bathtub is on legs and I'd like to keep it. The washbasin needs replacing.

What ideas do you have and how should I get started? — R.D.

A. You are lucky to have such a large bathroom but sometimes older bathrooms can be a challenge.

Wallpaper can be an instant personality builder in an old bathroom. It can lend a traditional look, add lots of charm and cover up a multitude of sins including badly damaged walls. By all means keep the four-legged bathtub. And for the basin I saw a marvelous trick I'd like to try myself. Buy an old credenza or cabinet (one

Q. We are living in a tiny city apartment and expect to move in two years when my husband finishes school

We need a dining room set for the apartment but our space is quite limited so we could not handle a regular sized dining table and chairs.

I do not feel we can afford to buy a set only for two years. We need to be able to use whatever we buy when we move. But I am not sure what kind of dining furniture we will want. What would you suggest? - W.W.C.

A. I think I'd seriously consider buying a good quality patio set - an outdoor one perhaps in metal and glass with cushioned seats. You could choose something you like that would give you a start later in furnishing your garden or patio of a home.

Outdoor furniture can give a light and airy look to an apartment clining room, especially appropriate if you add a few plants for an indoor greenhouse effect.

If metal and glass doesn't sound appealing, inexpensive directors chairs with bright canvas backs and seats and wood frames are always handy in a home. They're good for the garden, are easy to fold and put away for the winter and it is easy to replace the canvas when it needs freshening.

Railroads: U.S. neglects good transportation

NEW YORK + In the post-World War II rush to build bigger and faster planes, huge trucks and cars and the wide interstate highways to drive them on, much of the American rail system was steadily allowed to become a streak of rust.

No one, it can be argued, failed more miserably to anticipate the energy crisis than the people who set the nation's transportation policies between 1945 and 1970.

The result is that the nation will enter the 1980s with the finest interstate highway system in the world. the most comprehensive domestic air transport system on earth and a rail system 20 to 30 years behind those of Europe and Japan

The dangers of such neglect in an energy-short age are obvious: A Treasury Department study found that a train can average up to 360 miles per gallon of fuel per passenger. while full airplaines get between 30 and 60 miles per gallon per passenger

The comparison clearly has not escaped the Japanese and Europeans. Japan developed a 130-mile-per-hour train as far back as 1965. The United States is only now trying to develop a rail link between Washington and New York on which trains running up to 120 miles per hour could cut travel time between the two cities to 2 hours

By the time it's finished, however, the French will be running 160-mileper-hour trains between Paris and Lyons Italy and West Germany are already constructing similar lines. and Spain is expected to begin construction this year on a route for highspeed trains.

The British, who have less incentive to invest in rail improvements because the will soon be producing an oil. surplus, began running 125-mile-per hour trains from Bristol and South Wales to London two months ago.

Rolling evidence of the gap between European and American rail technology can be seen in the Swedish locomotives and French-built or French-designed trains now moving on certain Amtrak routes

Rail officials have known that the best way to lure passengers from more energy-wasting forms of travel to rail transport is to provide them with fast, comfortable equipment, but when it came time for the United States to build better passenger equipment, what was left of the American rail equipment industry could not build it.

Amtrak's experience with the Metroliner between Washington and New York is the best example

Amtrak's share of the air-rail market between New York and Washington, which it largely shares with Eastern Airline's highly successful shuttle, rose from 27 per cent

seven years ago to 41 per cent last year. The New York-Washington route is one of the few over which Amtrak comes close to providing decent service by European standards. It is also a good measure of how willing the public is to switch to rails if given any real inducement to do so.

The question now is: How capable is the U.S. rail system of meeting both the passenger and freight demands that must certainly be made of it for the rest of the century'

The Carter administration is proposing to spend $1.71 billion in the next year on railroads, including subsidies to Amtrak as well as loans and aid to privately owned companies for the improvement of freight service. This is not a significant increase from the $1.66 billion the government is expected to spend this year.

This money is being spent to improve and subsidize a system covering more than 200,000 miles of track that carry 1.7 million freight cars with an average capacity of close to 71 tons The $1.71 billion that the government will spend on this vast system compares rather unfavorably with the cost of a single super aircraft carrier. Such a ship currently carries a price tag of at least $2 billion and will cost $15.5 billion to maintain over its transit. Much of this is federal capital for relatively new rapid transit systems in cities including San Frandisco. Miami, Washington and Baltimore. Already there are serious questions in San Francisco and Washington over whether or not these systems have been designed in such a way that enough people will ever use them to justify their staggering construction costs.

Cost overruns as well as less-than expected passenger revenues suggest that American technology has fallen so far behind that brand-new transit systems have become little more than expensive toys with which communities may experiment with taxpayers' money. The San Francisco and Washington experiences suggest that we may have been better off in the long run to let the Japanese or the French design and build the systems

At the same time, freight trains must still creep at slow speed over many miles of track in the Middle Atlantic, Midwestern and New England states because to go any faster on the long-neglected roadbeds would risk derailment

Hanoi press reports resistance attempts

JCPenney

By JEAN THORAVAL Agence France-Presse

HANOI - For the first time since the fall of South Vietnam, the Hanoi press has officially reported attempts at armed resistance south of the 17th

The army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan said that in April, 1975, a total of 33,166 soldiers were registered as operating under the orders of the former Saigon regime in Lam Dong province near Dalat.

According to the newspaper, 28,183 of them spontaneously gave themselves up to the new revolutionary authorities, while the others went into hiding A resistance center at Dam Ron, a town of around 6,000 inhabitants 75 miles north of Dalat, was wiped out, Quan Doi Nhan Dan reported The guerrillas were former members of the 405th battalion of the regional forces, the newspaper said

Another hot bed of resistance that apparently has not been wiped out is situated at Don Duong in the parish of Chau Son, where a large Catholic community sprang up in 1954-55, having fled the north after the Genevaagreements

The army paper said security forces found there a clandestine transmitter, a store of military goods and anti-Communist publications

Quan Doi Nhan Dan, which has been publishing this news over the past week in a series of reports, also reported that several groups of Vietnamese had fled the country in junks from Cam Ranh and Phan Ri in Phu-Khanh proviene It said the departures were organized by veterans "who did not hesitate to open fire on security forces

Hearings fail to solve coal slurry dilemma

By THOMAS E. SLAUGHTER

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) - The rhetorical battle over proposed coal slurry pipelines came to Wyoming Thursday but Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., said the hearings failed to produce the technical ammunition he had hoped.

Roncalio chaired the joint hearing conducted by the House Indian Af fairs and Public Lands and Mines and Minerals subcommittees into legislation that would grant coal slurry companies the power of eminent domain. The legislation is sponsored by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., one of the subcommittee

The coal slurry process, which involves transporting pulverized coal in a water solution through a pipeline, came under fire from many of the witnesses. They told the subcommittees that the pipelines could not be justified because of precious western water that would be consumed in the slurry process.

However, Roncalio said after the hearing that he had hoped specific technical data would have been presented at the hearing on a possible solution to the delemma - returning the spent water to the point of origin where it could be put to beneficial use

One of the major pipelines would run from near Gillette. Wyo., to a power plant near White Bluffs, Ark The water for that pipeline would be drawn from a massive underground formation underlying parts of Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska. Roncalio has said he would support a coal slurry bill if it were amended to require that the water be recycled or that an equivalent amount of water be returned to Wyoming. But the preponderance of the testimony Thursday from the nearly four dozen witnesses dealt primarily with objections to appropriating the water from other uses - primarily agricultural.

'It didn't produce as much of the technical information as I would have liked," Roncalio said. But he added, "Generally, people had a chance to come in and express their views.

Eckhardt repeatedly asked the witnesses why a slurry line should be blocked if the Wyoming Legislature in 1974 granted a coal slurry company

"All this bill says is that the coal slurry pipeline will have a change to compete with the railroads," he said. 'Now, what's so wrong with that?"

Wyoming Gov. Ed Herschler began the testimony, telling the subcommittees that he needed to see more technical information before he would drop his opposition to slurry legislation. Specifically, Herschler said he was worried about the water that would be lost to the state and about the propriety of granting the power of eminent domain to a private

73 wildcats successful

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Thirty wildcat oil wells and 43 wildcat gas wells were drilled in Texas during the last half of May, the railroad commission reported Tuesday.

The oil discoveries included nine in southeast Texas, six in North Texas, four each in South Texas and the Lubbock area, three in east central Texas and one each in East Texas, west central Texas and in the San Angelo and Midland areas.

The gas strikes included 25 in South Texas, seven in southeast Texas, five in the Refugio area, three in west central Texas and one each in East Texas, the Panhandle and the San Angelo and Midland areas.

A total of 259 wildcat oil wells have been drilled this year, 23 more than at this time last year. A total of 315 wildcat gas wells have been drilled, 60 fewer than at the end of May 1976.

The commission said 5,389 oil wells have been completed this year, 391 more than in the first five months of 1976. A total of 1.782 gas wells have been completed this year, eight more than in the first five months of last

The commission said 126 dry holes were drilled from May 16 through

"By exercise of this privilege private families can be evicted from their homes and lands against their will," Herschler said. "This is a wer that should be granted only in furtherance of the most basic national priorities and in emergency cases.'

I'm happy to recommend the best collection of hands to appear in many years: Test Your Play as Declarer. by Israeli expert Paul Lukacs and Bridge World editor Jeff Rubens Today's hand is a fair sample.

Fire records of club show 4-year lapse

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) -The most recent inspection at the Beverly Hills Supper Club, where at least 161 persons died in a Memorial Day weekend fire, showed no fire safety violations. But officials can't explain a four-year gap in the inspection records.

Meanwhile, State Police Com missioner Kenneth Brandenburgh said he would conclude his investigation at the club in Southgate today, and would issue a statement probably dealing with the fire's 'origin, source and cause.

Officials have refused to confirm or deny the report given to The Associated Press by an insurance investigator in Atlanta that the May 28 fire started at a frayed electrical cord in a decorative fountain and burned for several hours before being discovered. In Frankfort, State Fire Marshal

Warren Southworth said the club had passed its most recent fire safety inspection, on Jan. 27. But there are no documents in the files for the years 1972-75. Southworth said he doesn't know whether this indicates that no inspections were made or whether inspection records and correspondence for those years. are missing.

The inspection files were released Thursday after they were returned by investigators at Southgate. The most recent entry was a nine-line, handwritten report signed by state inspector John Bramlage

Stab wound kills youth

ODESSA - An Odessa youth was dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital Thursday night after receiving a stab wound in the chest.

Odessa police said this morning 16year-old Grover Martinez Rowland of 1108 W. Clifford St. in Odessa was stabbed in a fight in Southside Park about 10:30 p.m.

Police are looking for a 16-year-old in connection with the incident. An undetermined number of other youths also were involved in the fight, police said.

"Means of egress were found to be open, none blocked, illuminated exit signs in working order." the report said. "Patrons going out front door to obtain automobiles would have some congestion but in case of emergency. evacuation should be no problem with existing exits

Two bodies remain unidentified and unclaimed while two women are still listed as missing Officials have conceded the possibility, while saying it is remote, that the disparity may result from misidentification of

Autopsy set for Odessa 6-month-old

ODESSA - An autopsy has been ordered in the death of a six-monthold Odessa girl found Thursday lying face down in a tub of water.

The child, Sherri M. Smauley, duaghter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smauley, was pronounced dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital by Justice of the Peace Harold Sligar. He withheld a ruling on cause of death

pending the autopsy The child's mother told officers she had put Sherri and her 18-month-old sister into a tub and went to answer the telephone. When she returned, she said, she found the girl lying face down in the water The father said there was about one inch of water in the tub. Services for the child are pending at

Ford blades probed

DETROIT (AP) Prompted by the death of a mechanic, a federal safety agency has stepped up its investigation of faulty fan blades that could result in the recall of 6.2 million Ford Motor Co. cars and

Such a recall would be the second largest in history.

The mechanic, Roger Keyes, 24, of Rockwood. Mich., was injured May 22 in a Detroit garage when the fan broke on the 1972 Ford Torino he was repairing, said the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration He died last Saturday.

Ford spokesmen said Thursday they knew of the death only after being contacted by a reporter A neighbor said Keyes was at work when "the fan broke and caught him through the chest and throat Joan Claybrook, head of the NHTSA, has said the incident "shows the urgent necessity of an immediate recall." She called it a "severe problem

Last week, the NHTSA said it was considering recalling up to 6.2 million 1970-77 model Ford cars and light trucks because the engine cooling fan blades could break off and injure someone working under the hood.

Ms Claybrook said Ford had reported 185 complaints, including 13 reports of injuries, to the traffic safety administration

Ford previously agreed to a voluntary recall of 425,000 vehicles, all of them 1972 models. The company said fans from other model years do not pose a safety hazard

Specific vehicles involved in the voluntary recall are Lincolns, Ford Torinos and Mercury Montegos with 302, -351 and 400-cubic inch ditioning. The fans in uestion have seven blades, compared with vehicles

Ford Vice President Herbert Misch, in charge of safety matters, said the company will begin notifying 1972-model owners of the recall on June 16, when free replacement fans should be available at dealers.

Stadium evokes talk

ODESSA - Ector County school board members Thursday heard opposing views on whether the school district should try to regain ownership of Barrett Stadium

The stadium was sold to Odessa College. Odessa taxpayers have rejected three bond issues in the past three years which would have included money to purchase land for a new stadium

Ray Britton. representative of the Concerned Taxpayers of Ector County told school board members the school district needs the stadium worse than the college needs it. He urged the trustees to purchase the stadium to reunify the community.

Another citizen, Lucius Bunton, said Barrett Stadium is inadequate because of lack of parking facilities and general condition of the stadium. He said the college needs the land.

The board went into executive session to discuss the issue after the presentations.

THE BITTER pill didn't go down any easier when it was learned that first place El Paso beat Amarillo, 16-0, padding its West Division lead to three games despite Midland's split. The Cubs and Dodgers clash in a 7:30 p.m. game today, two-bit beer night, the fourth of the seven-game series which runs through Sunday.

Ledbetter, now 4-4, hurled his fourth complete game in the opener.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

The lucky number was two for Bobby Hillin

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a three part series on the Midland based Longhorn Racing Team's experiences at the Indianapolis 500. Midland businessman Bobby Hillin is the principal owner of Longhorn Racing, Inc.

Only the top 33 race cars in the world qualify for the Indianapolis 500, and earning a berth in that elite field can pose its own set of problems and tensions.

Just double the problems and tensions for the Midland based Longhorn Racing Team since they were trying to qualify two cars for the storied race.

INDY SETS aside two weekends for car qualification, and if you can't earn a time fast enough in a trial run by 6 p.m. Sunday on the final weekend of qualification, you just don't make the race

For Midland's Bobby Hillin and the Longhorn team, qualification came easy and hard. They had the best and almost the worst of both worlds. Qualifying at Indy may carry more pressure than the race itself.

For driver George Snider and the Longhorn's Wildcat entry, qualifying came easy. George qualified the first weekend for the 13th spot on the starting grid with a respectable time of 188.976 m.p.h. No fuss. No trouble. No worry. And no car problems to contend with two weeks before the

"I THINK we had to make only a couple of minor adjustments to the Wildcat all the way up to race day,' Hillin remembers. "We had to adjust the wing angle a little and the right rear toe-in was off. Other than that I don't think we had to do anything. The Wildcat was ready and we were pleased with its qualifying run.

The Longhorn's Eagle, a car that Hillin had doubts about ever qualifying in the first place, had a maze of obstacles to overcome. It is a real wonder that the Eagle ever made the top 33 cars.

First of all, driver Bubby Jones had to earn his rookie license during the second week on a Wednesday, but the Eagle blew a engine during a warmup run early in the week, and had it not been for an extension to Thursday for 11/2 hours for the rookie test, the Eagle would never have had a chance.

"THE ROOKIE test is tough in itself," Hillin mused. "There are two phases and during the first and most difficult phase, Bubby had to drive 20 laps not under 160 m.p.h. and not over 165 m.p.h. That may not sound like much, but there is no speedometer on the champ cars, and Bubby had never driven over 140 m.p.h. in his life. That's about the top speed for a sprint

The engine problem also put a big burden on Donnie Ray Everett, Longhorn's chief mechanic and former Midlander. Everett didn't get any sleep from Monday till late Wednesday, and a week after the Indy race, Everett wound up in the hospital with pneumonia.

That was a big enough test for anyone, but Jones still had to qualify for the race itself on the last Sunday of qualifying.

DURING THE final two days of qualifying, Jones kept turning in laps of 183 m.p.h., a speed that would have missed qualifying

At 4:10 p.m., one hour and 50 minutes before the deadline. Jones made his final attempt. He clocked a 184.938 m.p.h. to earn the final berth in the 33 car field Still. Jones and the Eagle could have been bumped if two cars had posted faster speeds in those final two hours. It didn't happen

JONES MADE the grade on a hectic Sunday afternoon, and Longhorn Racing had two cars ready for the Indy 500.

"It looked like it was going to rain late Sunday," Hillin added "We wanted to get our time in and hope nobody else could overcome us We had reports from the other side of Indianapolis that it was raining. We took the time, but it never did rain. There were several cars that could have made the time, but a wreek and a slow car probably saved us at the

You can give a big assist to three other people," Hillin said. "Mike Devan, the chief mechanic for Lindsey Hopkins who we purchased the Eagle car from, really helped us in getting the Eagle ready. Also Al Unser and Gordon Johncock, who lost the Indy with a blown engine while leading through 184 laps, never left the side of Bubby through the final two days of qualifying. They both like Bubby, and I really think they just talked Bubby into driving faster Bubby had never driven a champ car and the speed was new to him. Unser and Johncock just got Bubby over the hump. By the way. Unser finished third in the race."

So with 13th and 33rd positions nailed down, Longhorn Racing was ready for the Indy 500.

Ex-hoofer leads Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Tom Storey, once a Las Vegas song and dance man, turned escape artist in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic

'When it's your day, it's your day,' shrugged Storey, for five years an entertainer in Strip hotels, after his unorthodox putting style enabled him to escape almost constant trouble and turn. potential disaster into the first round lead Thursday.

He one-putted 10 times, once chipped in for an eagle three and needed only 24 strokes on the greens on his way to a seven-under-par 65-by far the best round of his career.

A gallery of only five people watched the slender, chipper, 35-year-old in his adventures over the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course, adventures that were highlighted by his putting stance in which his right hand is about a foot down the shaft of the club and the left hand

"hanging on to the top.

"If you can't putt any other way, you do the best you can," said Storey, who joined the tour only last year and had done absolutely nothing at all until he broke through for a victory in the Oklahoma City Open, a satellite event, a few weeks ago.

That was worth $9,000. He's won only one other check this season.

"When it's going bad for you, there seems to be absolutely nothing you can do to change it. And when it's going good for you, it looks like you can't do anything to change that, either. This was one of those kind of days," he said after establishing a two-stroke lead over globe-trotter Gary Player, who managed a solid 67 despite the jet lag he said he was experiencing after the long flight from his South African home.

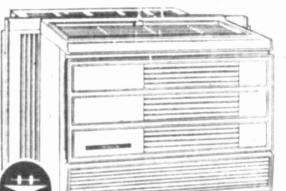

Mike Hill was next with a 68. The group at 69 included Hale Irwin. John Schroeder, Woody Blackburn, Tom Shaw, lefty Sam Adams, Mike Morley and Gary McCord

Jerry Pate matched par 72 in his first competitive round since the Masters. Pate. who has been sidelined with a pinched nerve in his neck, will defend his U.S. Open title in Tulsa, Okla. next week.

Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, a winner last week, were at 71. Lee Trevino had a 72. PGA champ Dave Stockton and Ray Floyd shot 73s and Dave Hill, Mike's older brother and a four-time winner of this tournament, had

Yankees rip Brewers, 10-1

By The Associated Press

Don Gullett has lost his velocity, but none of his vitality

"I feel great now," says the New York Yankees' left-hander. "It's just a matter of getting my rhythm back.

The absence of such rhythm has cost Gullett some speed on his fastball-although the Milwaukee Brewers hardly noticed it while dropping a 10-1 decision to Gullett and the Yankees Thursday

"I had better movement with my pit ches today, but my velocity just wasn't there," said Gullett, attempting to get back in the groove after early-season injuries. "My consistency and control weren't there, either.

Tech supporters mass for barbecue By TERRY WILLIAMSON Leete Jackson, president of the Red Raider Club, on hand.

Over 200 Texas Tech University supporters attended a barbecue co-sponsored by the Red Raider Club and Midland Tech exes at the VFW Hall history of the annual event.

The large crowd prompted Tech football assistant Bob Patterson to say, "Who says that it takes a winning season to attract a crowd?

Patterson, who is the administrative assistant to head coach Steve Sloan and who recruits this area, gave a run down on this year's football team. Sloan was unable to attend the event because his motherin-law suffered a stroke in Tennessee this week.

PATTERSON SAID that Tech should have an exciting team this fall in view of the fact that Rodney Allison, Tech's Heisman Trophy candidate, returns at quarterback.

We expect Allison to do a good job. Just give him a crowd and a ball under his arm and things will happen, and happen fast

Patterson also said that senior linebacker Gary McCright, a former Midland Lee standout, was expected to provide a lot of leadership for the team this year. He also mentioned that Tech signed Midland High's Rusty Maroney this year, and Tech expects to use him as a linebacker and punter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Allison, parents of Rodney, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle McCright, parents of Gary, were in attendance.

"WE WON nine and lost two last year." Patterson said. "Maybe we won too many games. People expect us to do better. The coaches, however, like to get that extra Cotton Bowl check.

We lose only one starter on the offensive line, and I think we will definitely be a factor in the Southwest Conference race

"Last year we defeated Texas, A&M and Arkansas. That's the first time we have done that in one year in the history of the school. Dizzy Dean once said 'when you done good that ain't bragging. That's

Head basketball coach Gerald Myers was also at the meeting, and he is excited about his recruiting

Myers signed two 6-foot-9 players. Leslie Nichols of Buffalo, N. Y., and Joe Baxter of Lon Morris Junior College. Ralph Brewster, 6-8, and Randy Mc-Pherson, 6-7, also added strength

MYERS ALSO signed Midland College guard Tommy Parks.

"We think Tommy fills a real void for us. He has the potential to be the best floor quarterback Tech has had since I graduated. I don't think I can concede that anyone can play guard any better than I could." Myers laughingly said. "Parks was kind of overlooked this year, but when we saw him play in the All-Star game in Waco, we felt fortunate to sign him at such a late date. He was super in that game.

C. H. Brockett and Bob Dean made presentations to the Tech golf tournament winners, which was held earlier in the day at Hogan Park. Myers teamed with Royce Woolard, Bill Hightower and Ken Sewell to win the scramble with a 17-under par 54.

TECH COACH Romeo Crennel teamed with Bob Dean, Wayne Lutke and Holly Bird for a 57 and second place while Ted Ferguson, R. L. Heath. Champ Rainwater and Paul Haskins took third with HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — Lanky junior John Stark of Houston held a three-stroke lead going into the third round of the NCAA Golf Championships here today after posting a two-day total of 142.

Arizona State continued to lead the team competition in the four-day tournament at Colgate

University's Seven Oaks golf course Tied for second in the individual competition at 145 were Lee Mikels of Arizona State and Dan Pohl of Arizona, whose 71 Thursday was the low of the day.

Stark, 21, from San Antonio, Tex., playing in a daylong drizzle, turned in matching scores of 36 to add to his firstround score of 70 from Wednesday, s Tied for third at 146 were Joe Walter of Georgia. defending champion Scott Simpson of Southern California and Sam Trajan of Florida Steve Waugh of Georgia Southern had a 72 for a two-day total of 147, while Payne Stewart of Southern Methodist University, Lindy Miller of Oklahoma State and Watkins of Arizona State remained in contention with 148s. Arizona State, led by the play of Mikels, Bill Loeffler and Scott Watkins, had a 592 team total,

Solomon wins with ease

BRUSSELS (AP) — Favored Harold Solomon of Pompano Beach, Fla., easily beat Barry Phillips-Moore 6-3, 6-3 Thursday despite the Australian's "magic racquet" in the rain-hampered Brussels International Tennis Grand

The surprise of the day was the 6-2, 6-2 defeat of Austrian Hans Kary by Karl Meiler of West

Solomon, apparently worried by the famous "secret weapon" of Phillips-Moore, which gives superior speed to the ball, cleverly kept him at the baseline. The Australian rallied to 4-3 in the first set, before finally losing 6-3.

The American quickly led 4-0 in the second set. and eased up a bit to finish strong at 6-3.

Phillips-Moore apparently was reluctant to give too many details on his racquet, reportedly thinking of licensing it soon. Tennis sources, however, could learn that he reportedly had tried more than 2,000 different kinds of stringing before deciding on its 15 vertical and five horizontal strings, linked together in the center with plastic.

from trade talks to scold the Oakland A's ticket department Thursday for the jam-up of fans which occurred at Wednesday's halfprice game with the Cleveland Indians.

"I don't want people waiting in line to pay their way into the ballpark. It's a shame it happened. I'll do something," the A's owner said from his apartment in Chicago.

Under the A's new price policy, tickets are halfprice for all games Monday through Thursday. But the team was not ready for the crowd which turned out Wednesday and at least 1,000 people were standing in lines at the few open ticket windows when the game started at 1:30 p.m.

They could have held up the start of the game." Finley said Thursday. However, the visiting Indians had reservations for a 5 p.m. plane flight

The crowd count was 7,828, at least double what could be expected in the past for a weekday game, and it was estimated that several hundred fans turned around and went home when they saw the

Russell Wimberly, a four-year Wallard Exploration 9, Willie's letterman on the Rankin High School golf team, which has been the Class A Renley's Custom Bulldongs 13. Park State champion for the past five years, has signed a letter of intent to attend Midland College The 19-year-old golfer was district medalist this year as the Red Devil golf squad tied a record for most consecutive state titles. He was third in the district medalist race as a sophomore, moved up to second place as a junior, and then hit the top this season. He also finished third in the state medalist competition as a junior with an average of 76.8. He won the district title this year with a 72.8 average.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wimberly, Russell also lettered three years on the Rankin football team. He ranked fourth in his graduating class of 33 with an academic average of 93. He was a member of the National Honor Society for three years, and also was chosen to receive the 'service to school" merit award for three years.

"Midland College has been for tunate to attract golfers from this area and certainly some of the finest Dwayne Turner at Rankin "MC golf coach Delnor Poss commented. "He instills a winning attitude and teaches good fundamentals. Russell's outstanding academic record will also be a credit to the student body.

Niekro's victory was his third in the last four starts and his second shutout. The right-hander, 4-8, opened the season by losing his first seven decisions.

"Yes. I'm out of the slump now, Niekro said. "A lot of it was in my delivery and a lot in my head. You get those going against you and you haven't got much to go with. "He had a good one," said Mike

Pinch-hitter Jose Cardenal's basesloaded squeeze bunt in the 11th inning scored pinchrunner Mick Kelleher to give Chicago its victory over San Francisco.

"He told me to take one pitch and then bunt," Cardenal said of Manager Herman Franks, who has used Cardenal sparingly because of his .171 batting average.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - An old veteran, hurdler Willie Davenport. and a relatively unknown sprinter. Derald Harris, went into the finals of their events today with added confidence after good qualifying performances in the National AAU Track and Field Championships at UCLA.

Davenport, the 33-year-old former Olympic star, won his heat Thursday in qualifying for the 110-meter high hurdles and his clocking of 13.74 seconds equalled the best mark of the day in the event. Charles Foster won his heat with an identical time.

Harris, from Los Medanos College in Pittsburg, Calif., was the fastest of a good 200-meter field with a time of 20.78. James Gilkes won the other qualifying heat in 20.85.

Two of those considered top contenders in the 200, however, did not make it to the final. Steve Williams. rated among the favorites in both the 100 and 200, finished fifth in the heat won by Harris. Clancy Williams, also expected to do well in both sprints. pulled up lame with a sore thigh muscle in the same heat.

"I just didn't have it together for the 200." said a disappointed Williams. "My rhythm is off and I just didn't have the proper timing for the race. I'm going to be pretty confident in the 100, though

There were only three finals, all women's, scheduled for the first day State's Peg Neppel highlighted those with the world's best time in the seldom-run women's 10,000 meters.

Miss Neppel, a 23-year-old graduate student, took the lead early and lapped the field en route to her 33:15.09 clocking. That time bettered the world's best mark of 33:42.2 set by

Denmark's Loa Olofsson last March. The women's 10,000 is not, however, an event recognized by the International Amatesr Athletic Federation

Following her victory, Miss Neppel said she had injured her foot slightly earlier in the week and had not run since Tuesday.

"It was bothering me late in the race." she said. "But when you have a race like that going, you don't throw it out the window.

In another final, Sue Broddock

hettered her American record with a time of 24:10.1 in the women's 5,000meter walk. She had set the national standard of 25:28.8 in this meet last

Three walks, three hits and an error led to a five-run surge by the Dodgers before Andy Muhlstock finally got the third out. Cleo Smith's three-run double was the big blow, but Jeff Leonard's single which scored Smith proved the game-deciding blow as it turned out.

With an 8-1 lead, Doug Slocum, a hard-throwing righthander who is now 2-2, appeared home free. Midland had just two hits going into the sixth. Pagel's triple and Groover's infield single, both in the second.

BUT SEIBERT walked to open the back to the box. Hernandez walked Pagel singled to load the bases and Tony Pepper's foul fly to left scored a run and moved the other runners to second and third

Carlos Lezcano grounded to third but Webb's throw was wild as two more runs scored. Steve Davis then drilled a homer, his eighth, over the left field barrier and that insurmountable lead was suddenly 8-6.

Don Standley relieved Slocum and gave up a singles to Duane Gustavson before getting pinch-hitter Steve Haug on a grounder for the third out. Haug stayed in the game, replacing Lezcano, injured running the bases.

Right questions on stock trade not easy to ask

By ROBERT SOBEL Newsday

NEW YORK - "What are the prospects for Petrodynamics? Do you think I should buy it?" The second question appears to be a logical follow-up to the first, but actually they are quite different and separate requests for opinions and advice. Furthermore, neither necessarily is the correct question for an investor to ask - or to put it more accurately, they do not go far enough. It is not particularly difficult to learn what is happening at Petrodynamics. A reading of Standard & Poor's Industrial Manual, a glance through annual reports and advisories issued by investment services and brokerages, combined with the basic knowledge of the industry, are all that are required. The essential fundamental information regarding Petrodynamics is easy to come by, and that is why so many otherwise intelligent and sophisticated individuals think they can become stock market experts overnight. Armed with this information, they enter the market, only to learn that there is much more that they need to know. Since the information is so easily obtained and digested, chances are that others have been there before you. Some have decided to buy, and others to sell, and their decisions have been reflected in the price of the stock. One does not obtain "inside information" from any published source. Even before the words are placed on paper, some investors have acted upon the news, and the stock's price has reacted accordingly.

So the question, "Do you think I should buy it?" is more difficult to answer than it seems at first glance. Setting aside a few complications involved in the specialist system employed by the New York Stock Exchange, for every buyer there is a seller. Each is betting on the future, and one will be proven wrong. Differences of opinion usually are based upon the way essential information is analyzed, and not the stupidity of one side and the astuteness of the other. These qualities may be perceived in retrospect, but that isn't much help to the person who has to decide today how to act.

The potential buyer really wants the answers to two separate questions. The first, and the simpler, is, "Should I buy Petrodynamics at its current price?" Almost any stock is a buy if it falls low enough - but of course, knowing how low is enough presents a major problem. Still, this is relatively simple when set beside the second question, "When should I sell?" After its acquisition the stock's price either will rise or fail. When should you admit you made a mistake or, more happily, decide to take profits?

The Street is filled with people who know how to select stocks that represent companies whose fortunes are on the rise. There are fewer analysts who have good records when it comes to picking the right amount to buy. Fewer still know when to sell.

It was this problem and need that prompted Justin and Robert Mamis to write "When to Sell," which recently was released by Farrar Straus Giroux. Both men are well equipped for the task, Justin worked as an NYSE floor official for five years before leaving to organize "The Professional Tape Reader," a market advisory service that takes a technical approach, while his brother is the co-author of a m thly market column, which he puts out under the pen name of "Ursala Tauro." This is not the first book on the subject, and like some of the others, it offers formulas, methods to analyze charts, and the like Neophytes may find these sections useful, but old timers have been there before and might simply skim through them.

More interesting and useful are the Mamis' insights into the psychology of investing and timing. Now, this is a most important subject, one covered in a wide variety of articles and books. After the investor has digested all the technical and fundamental information, he must make his decision, and most of the time, for most investors, it is not triggered by some mathematical formula, but rather results from a gut feeling about the stock and the moment. Some earlier writers have done fairly well on the psychology of buying, but none have had more useful ideas on that for selling.

In one section, the brothers note that many investors seem happier with paper losses than with gains. Having purchased Petrodynamics at 50 and seeing it go to 40, they sit back, telling themselves they will sell once the price is back to 50. Thus, they can root it on and at the same time have a fixed goal Should the stock have gone to 60, however, The investor will lack such an upside goal, and will be in the uncomfortable position of making a mental commitment to see if and when the stock declines 10 points.

Japanese TV makers deny Zenith charges

By LEE LESCAZE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Five Japanese television manufacturers have pointed their fingers back at their accuser, the Zenith Radio Corp., in the highstakes lobbying battle over the American consumers' TV dollars. In their rebuttal sent to the Justice Department's antitrust division, the Japanese called the blizzard of charges by Zenith "a clever mixture of economic doubletalk, 'yellow-peril' scare tactics and deliberately misleading (and frequently downright false) statements."

The Japanese are battling Zenith for the mind of John H. Shenefield, the acting assistant attorney general for antitrust who is awaiting nomination and confirmation to that post.

Shenefield has already been visited by representatives of Zenith, which accuses 18 Japanese companies of violating U.S. antitrust law through a 'cartel' agreement

Zenith also charges that some Japanese manufacturers paid secret rebates to American purchasers in violation of customs law, and the Japanese memorandum answers these allegations only obli-

Any antitrust investigation should be of Zenith, not us, the Japanese manufacturers say in a 46-page memorandum to Shenefield prepared by their lawyers.

Zenith, the memo says, is "a would-be monopolist whose sole purpose in bleating (about Japanese competition) is to protect its position as the dominant, price-protected producer of television sets in the United States (and which) has been able to manipulate the reins of government to protect itself against competition."

U.S. tourists 'invade' new Cuba

Newsday

Cuban President Fidel Castro wants 100,000 tourists in his country by next year, and says he'll attract them by selling "climate and recreation" instead of the gambling and prostitution that earned Havana the label of "Sin City" in the 1950s.

"Climate and recreation" is indeed what was offered the first shipload of visitors from America to reach their shores in 16 years when the MTS Daphne steamed into Havana recently with 320 passengers

- the first in a series of cruises by the Daphne through the end of June and resuming in January

But that first group of cruise passengers wasn't looking for climate and recreation, any more than they wanted gambling and prostitution. Because in the end, the lure of Cuba expected to draw some 10,000 Americans by ship and plane this year — can't be found in the simple pleasures of the island's 137 beaches. with bars selling Czechoslovakian beer, souvenir stands touting Havana cigars, three-piece bands playing Gauntanamera.

It isn't the 1930's-style luxury of the nity of the Hotel Mar Azul that Americans talk about on the way home. It isn't the air-conditioned buses or the extravagance of flowers floating in a kidney-shaped pool.

It's the experience of the new society that Cuba has become. "I think you have to want more than a beach to go to Cuba," said San Francisco travel agent Michael Bosch. "It's a cultural,

educational, historical adventure. That means accepting the fact that true hotel luxury is better found in other parts of the Caribbean, that telephones don't work quite right, that Havana - one of the world's most beautiful cities

- lacks the hustle and bustle that private enterprise like tiny shops and street vendors would give it.

Most of all, the passengers aboard the Daphne's pioneering cruise discovered, it means spending a lot of time meeting Cubans. Encounters with taxi drivers, guides, musicians and passersby on the street were what the excited chatter was about as the Daphne left Havana 36 hours after its arrival.

Thirty-six hours were just about time enough for many visitors to confirm the impressions they had brought with them; only a few did an about-face. Yet much of the information they started out with was faulty. leading to suspicion on the part of both Americans and Cubans - and some "ugly American" incidents as well. Just a few hours after the first the starboard side of the Daphne crying, "There it is, there it is," the first misunderstanding began.

Flying the red, white and blue Cuban flag as a seafaring courtesy. the Daphne began to curve slowly

toward the smokestacks and haze polluting the green Cuban countryside. As a turquoise blue arc of spray spread out behind, a sailor suddenly straightened up and handed his binoculars to a companion. The Daphne had an escort: A Russianmade torpedo boat from the Cuban navy was apparently nervous about this unexpected arrival several miles off course from Havana harbor. It took 40 lost minutes and frenzied shipto-shore signaling before that misunderstanding was cleared up.

As the first tourist threw out his celebratory frisbee and emerged on the docks, a loudspeaker blared out a lamentable version of "Guantanamera," and a Cubatur guide handed out little red plastic pendants. The Customs men smiled, somewhat uncertainly at that point but more openly as the emotion-packed 36-hour visit proceeded.

And outside the sagging Customs building bedlam. Some 500 grinning. yelling, cheering, hugging Cubans welcomed the Americans and the Americans grinned, yelled and hugg-

But the Americans, who were under the impression that they would be herded into air-conditioned buses for their tour, dutifully herded themselves into the buses parked at dockside. They totally ignored the 10 new Chevrolet Nova taxis from Argentina that were lined up waiting to take them wherever they wanted to go for about $1.50 to downtown Havana, or under $50 for the whole

On the Daphne were two Cuban-American doctor couples from Chicago, the Bonos and the Fuentes. They had signed on hoping to see brothers and sisters they hadn't seen in 17 years. At first Customs would not let them ashore — and Carlos Bono's sister, Josephine, wept in the street. Finally, several hours later, they were allowed to leave

Most of the $700 to $800 worth of gifts they had brought along stayed on board because Cuban Customs wanted to charge them $3,000 in duties. However, a Chicago man did agree to pay $600 in duties for three suitcases of gifts.

Roots of Hatch Act controversy run deep

Vignettes of Cuban life capsuled by writer

By AMEI WALLACH Newsday

In the 16 years since Americans freely came and went in Cuba, the country has become a land of mystery. Trying to fit the pieces of the new society together is a matter of balancing preudices and preudgments with what actually exists. The following incidents, encountered on a brief visit to Havana a few weeks ago aboard the MTS Daphne, do not add up to a whole interpretation of that complex island. But they do offer some clues.

The heavy oak beams, the tile, the marble, the ambitious grandeur of the Hotel Nacional belong to an era when conspicuous signs of wealth were the kind that mattered. Now, groups of listless men and women sit in the lobby, alternately staring stonefaced at the foreign visitors and glancing at the color television set on which
